National Center for Missing and Exploited Children TEAM ADAM Program

Named after Adam Walsh, the 6-year-old abducted and murdered son of John and Revé Walsh, Team Adam is a new resource for law enforcement provided by the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children.

Patterned after the National Transportation Safety Board's system for sending trained specialists to the site of serious transportation incidents, Team Adam does the same thing in serious child-abduction and child-sexual-victimization cases. It is an on-site response and support system that provides assistance to local law-enforcement agencies.

NCMEC has identified an initial team of 20 specialists who are on call to respond directly to the scene of these incidents. The specialists are chosen based on their expertise and geographic home base to minimize response time and travel costs. Included in the initial team are retired FBI Agents and retired officers from the Los Angeles (California) Police Department, Massachusetts State Police, New York (New York) Police Department, Phoenix (Arizona) Police Department, and others. NCMEC provides intensive training to ensure that each specialist is prepared to perform the tasks required in a uniform and consistent manner.

The specialists work in full coordination with federal, state, and local law-enforcement agencies. The specialists report to the agencies Command Center and determine the particular needs of the investigating agency. The specialists advise, assist, and offer NCMEC's extensive resources including direct access to NCMEC's case-management and case-analysis systems, lead analysis, and data-mining services. If needed, NCMEC also equips the law-enforcement agency with computer and communications technology to enable rapid distribution of key information to other agencies and personnel. They are prepared and authorized to provide additional assistance to the investigators, the victim's family, and the media as appropriate.

A generous grant of $3 million in initial funding was provided by the Michael and Susan Dell Foundation. Funding provided by the Michael and Susan Dell Foundation will cover the start-up expenses and first few years of operational costs. Permanent funding is being developed from public and private sources.

The program is managed by NCMEC's Missing Children's Division Director, a retired New York Police Captain with more than 29 years of experience in handling these types of cases. NCMEC's role focuses on providing assistance to the investigating law-enforcement agencies, making sure that they have access to and use all of the resources available to assist in the case, and ensuring that every possible step is taken. This supports the appropriate investigative role of local, state, or federal law-enforcement agencies.

Time is the enemy in missing-child cases. According to a study by the State of Washington's Office of the Attorney General, in 74 percent of child abduction-homicides the homicides occurred within the first three hours after the abduction.<sup>1</sup> Offenders who sexually assault and murder children, can do so repeatedly. Rapid capture and prosecution is the best possible remedy. Rapid response is a key factor that correlates directly to the recovery of a child, who is still alive, after being taken by nonfamily abductors. Every possible effort must be made to identify, capture, and permanently remove these criminals from society. With 18,000 state and local law-enforcement agencies in the United States,<sup>2</sup> some agencies may not be familiar with all of the available resources. Team Adam helps to ensure a quick and thorough response to these cases, helps to ensure that law enforcement knows of and has access to the best tools and latest technology, and greatly improve the odds of a successful recovery of the victim and prosecution of the assailant.
