Meeting the needs of Iowa's youngest learners

A highlight of my weekly school visits is popping into early childhood centers and classrooms. I love the joy and unbounded energy that emanates from these rooms. And as a former high school history teacher of mostly juniors and seniors, I have a deep appreciation for our educators who care for and support our youngest learners.

While there are certainly differences between serving young children and the near-graduates I taught, the vision remains the same: every learner will be safe, healthy, engaged and prepared. In Iowa, we're focused on the programs and practices that will make this vision a reality.

Director Ryan Wise

But for those who don't have a background in early childhood, particularly parents, the alphabet soup of programs can be intimidating. What's important to know, though, is the range of services meeting the needs of Iowa children and families and creating a foundation for academic and life success.

Iowa Dyslexia Task Force recommendations sent to legislature

On Nov. 15, The Iowa Dyslexia Task Force submitted its report to the legislature. The report outlines current practices and concerns regarding Iowa response to dyslexia and key recommendations for the state to move forward in meeting the needs of students with dyslexia. The Dyslexia Task Force Report highlights five recommendations for the legislature and additional recommendations for the Iowa Department of Education, Iowa Area Education Agencies, pre-service education programs, and Iowa school districts.

The Dyslexia Task Force was signed into law by Governor Reynolds on April 17, 2018. Over the past year, the task force has been studying Iowa's response to dyslexia and preparing recommendations. The Iowa Dyslexia Task Force

Assistive Technology (AT) and Accessible Educational Materials (AEM) in the Individual Education Plan (IEP)

Assistive Technology (AT) and Accessible Educational Materials (AEM) needs of students must be considered at each IEP meeting. Currently, items on the IEP ask whether a student needs AT and/or AEM. It seems simple to poll the team during the IEP meeting and make a decision; however, best practice is to complete the consideration process prior to the meeting.

Thoughtful consideration of AT and AEM gathers input from family, student, general and special education teachers, as well as from other professionals e.g. AT Specialists and Occupational Therapists. School Technology Specialists can identify accessibility features of technology tools available to all students. The ultimate goal of consideration is for students to be supported for engagement and participation in learning.

Look for step-by-step AT/AEM IEP consideration guidance on the Iowa Department of Education website. Additional AT and AEM resources can be found in the A-Z listings on the Department website. ## STOP School Violence Prevention and Mental Health Training Program

The Department was awarded a $494,000 grant through the U.S. Department of Justice's STOP School Violence Prevention and Mental Health Training Program. The federal funding is intended to help schools prevent and respond to acts of violence and respond to students who face mental health challenges.

Iowa's project has three objectives:

- Train teachers and school employees to respond to threats of violence and to prevent violence in schools. Training content will align with school emergency plans.
- Train school staff, area education agency staff, and community members to respond to students who may be struggling with mental health or addiction.
- Educate students on preventing violence against themselves and others.

If your building is interested in participating in the training, complete the application. To learn more, register to attend an informational webinar on Dec. 10 at 11 a.m. For questions, contact Nancy Hunt at (515) 326-1031 or nancy.hunt@iowa.gov

Iowa Learning Online (ILO) to end service

Iowa Learning Online (ILO), the Iowa Department of Education's initiative to expand high-quality online learning opportunities, will be available through the Spring Semester 2019-20 school year. After that, districts will either need to create their own online classes or work with a third-party vendor. ILO will no longer directly provide courses after the 2019-20 school year because there is no long-term, sustainable funding source available for operating the program.

Enrollment for spring courses is now in progress. Also, ILO staff are happy to work with your district regarding options for your transition to the use of Department of Education-approved private providers of online courses or your own district-developed online courses.

Input needed on future of career and technical education in Iowa

The Iowa Department of Education has launched an online survey for students, parents, secondary and postsecondary educators, employers, community members and other education stakeholders to share their observations, experiences and insight on career and technical education (CTE) in Iowa. The input received will help in the development of Iowa's state plan required under the federal Strengthening Career and Technical Education for the 21st Century Act, commonly referred to as Perkins V.

Iowa's Career and Technical Education Advisory Council, which was convened by the Department earlier this fall, has requested broad public input to ensure Iowa's state plan meets the unique needs of our learners, educators and employers. Feedback gathered through this online survey will provide guidance to the council, whose charge is to ensure Iowa's state plan positions CTE as a driving force for education, workforce and economic development.

The online survey is open through December 6.

Expansion of the Statewide Voluntary Preschool Program for Four-Year-Old children

School districts not currently participating in the Statewide Voluntary Preschool Program (SWVPP) may submit an application to begin a preschool program in 2020-21. The application is due April 6, 2020. Districts are encouraged to review the FAQs to support application development.

This non-competitive application requires districts to fund the preschool program using other funding sources for year one (2020-2021). One funding option for SWVPP startup costs is the flexibility account. Districts may move unexpended, unobligated funds remaining at the end of the previous fiscal year from certain sources to a flexibility account within the general fund. Districts, through a board resolution including specific stipulations, described in 298A.2, can then expend these funds for SWVPP startup costs. Guidance pertaining to the flexibility account is posted on the General Fund web page. In year two, districts receive state aid based on the number of eligible four-year-old children served in year one.
