Patron authentication options

There have been several questions this week about using your library's ILS to authenticate your patrons logging in to Bridges. I don't have a complete list, but so far I have heard about:

- Apollo by Biblionix
- Atrium by BookSystems

Librarians have reported that both allow library patrons to log into Bridges using the system they have in place. If you have one of these systems, contact their support to see about making the change for your library. New patrons will be able to use Bridges as soon as you create their account and you won't have to send updates to Eunice.

If you have another system that your library uses to authenticate patrons, please email Eunice that information. We'll create a list for the website.

Personal Topics on Simultaneous Use
