Are there exciting and innovative programs going on in your school related to family and school partnerships?

Would you like to be recognized by the Iowa Department of Education for these programs?

As part of the continuous improvement and Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) initiative, the Department is requesting applications for recognition of "promising practices" in the area of family and school partnerships which include children and youth with disabilities and their families, ages three to twenty-one. The purposes for this search include the following:

- ★ to increase the awareness and highlight the importance of family and school partnerships – a key cornerstone to effective schools;
- ★ to recognize settings that are implementing promising practices in family and school partnerships leading to increased student achievement and school improvement; and,
- ★ to further inform continuous improvement and Specially Designed Instruction (SDI) across the state as we develop training and technical assistance efforts in this area.

A "promising practice" could be a program, activity, service, strategy, or policy that shows potential (or 'promise') for developing into an exemplary or evidence-based practice. Promising practices may be those in the earlier stages of development or implementation. Applications should address a practice that promotes positive partnerships between families and schools. Services described must demonstrate the application of a promising practice and go above and beyond the minimum requirements of IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act).

Programs serving students ages 3 to 21 are eligible including those in early childhood, elementary, middle/junior high school, and/or secondary settings. Similar to the terms used by SDI, we will refer to students as learners. Submissions must include learners with an Individual Education Program (IEP), include a special educator, and be linked to a public school (local education agency). Linkages with general education and your Area Education Agency (AEA) are encouraged and the application must include a signature from a supervisor such as the building principal or special education director.

National Cybersecurity Awareness Month

October is National Cyber Security Awareness Month which is an annual campaign to raise awareness about the importance of cybersecurity. The Internet touches almost all aspects of everyone's daily life, whether we realize it or not. National Cyber Security Awareness Month (NCSAM) is designed to engage and educate public and private sector partners through events and initiatives to raise awareness about the importance of cybersecurity, provide them with tools and resources needed to stay safe online, and increase the resiliency of the Nation in the event of a cyber incident.

Cyber criminals do not discriminate; they target vulnerable computer systems regardless of whether they are part of a large corporation, a small business, or belong to a home user. Cybersecurity is a shared responsibility in which all Americans have a role to play. The Stop.Think.Connect. Toolkit provides resources for all segments of the community.

Sanford Harmony Training

By attending this training, teachers, counselors and school personnel will be equipped with the information, strategies, and resources to facilitate Harmony training and coaching at their own schools or district.

Sanford Harmony, a research-based, highly effective teaching strategy that strengthens classroom communities by helping each child understand and appreciate diversity in others. By breaking down barriers, Sanford Harmony enables students to connect and collaborate at much deeper levels.

The workshop will include the screening and discussion of Resilience: The Biology of Stress & the Science of Hope. The original research was controversial, but the findings revealed the most important public health findings of a generation.

Resilience is a 1-hour documentary that delves into the science of Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) and the birth of a new movement to treat and prevent toxic stress. Extremely stressful experiences in childhood can alter brain development and have lifelong effects on health and behavior.

Racial Equity Matters: Resources and Information (Frank Porter Graham)

Co-chaired this year by Betsy Ayankoya and Allison De Marco, FPG's longstanding Race, Culture, and Ethnicity Committee elevates awareness, promotes dialogue, and facilitates a positive work climate, while fostering the development of culturally attuned and culturally relevant work. Members of the committee have joined other FPG strategic groups to strengthen collaborations, and the committee has held recent workshops on the impact of implicit bias on decision-making, recognizing the need for cultural competence, anti-harassment bystander training, and more.

New Infographic: Racial Inequities in School Discipline

Black students, especially boys are disproportionately more likely than their white peers to face multiple suspensions from preschool.

Racial (In)Equity: An Infographic

This infographic is the first in the committee's series on racial inequity and what we can do about it.

A Brief Primer on Racial Equity

"We are thinking about racial equity as one part of racial justice, and thus we also include work to address root causes of inequities, not just their manifestation..."

'Sesame Street' Characters Are Now Teaching Kids How To Cope With Trauma

The video series was launched days after the Las Vegas massacre.

The video series is part of a wider Sesame Workshop initiative — which includes free online reading materials, games and activities in both Spanish and English — aimed at equipping children, caregivers and social workers with tools to help kids overcome traumatic experiences.

The project was launched days after the massacre in Las Vegas, the deadliest mass shooting in modern American history. It was released the same day that new federal survey was published showing how almost half of all American children under age 18 have encountered at least one adverse childhood experience, or ACE, in their lifetime. ACEs are defined as stressful or traumatic events, and can include physical or emotional violence, poverty, natural disasters and terrorism.

ACEs have been linked to "risky health behaviors, chronic health conditions, low life potential and early death," according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The CDC describes early experiences of children as "an important public health issue."

Several psychologists, educators and ACE experts are listed as advisers to the Sesame Workshop initiative. One of them — Ann Thomas, CEO of The Children's Place in Kansas — told NPR last week that she hopes the materials will help create a "sense of safety, consistency and predictability" for kids who are feeling scared and under stress, and will also empower adults to connect better with children experiencing trauma.

"I think one of the biggest values of this material is as a bridge for adults to take grownup issues and put them in developmentally appropriate words to help children heal," Thomas said. "When it's your child, you don't want them to hurt. Sometimes we want to say, 'get over it.' It's hard to be with a child in that pain."
