LAW& SAUSAGE!

*Laws are like sausages.
It's better not to see them being made.*

*Otto von Bismarck
(1815 - 1898)*

As this issue of the Iowa Liquor Quarterly goes to print, the 2004 Session of the Iowa General Assembly is in its waning hours. In fact, by the time you've opened this issue, chances are that the Iowa Legislature will have already adjourned for the session – with individual legislators having returned home to their respective districts.

Since the opening gavel on January 12th, several bills of interest to the beverage alcohol industry have been introduced and debated under the golden dome of the Iowa State Capitol. Liquor penalties for underage sales, a beer excise tax increase and a keg registration law were among the many items receiving attention this year.

I. LIQUOR PENALTIES FOR UNDERAGE SALES.

A fourth underage sales violation results in the revocation of the liquor license. And, until passage of a bill this session, the offender also was ineligible to hold a license anywhere else in Iowa as well.

The effect of that law, on occasion, placed several corporate-wide licenses in peril. The Division and several retail associations successfully worked together to end that overreaching practice.

Effective July 1st, revocation for underage sales is limited to the specific location only. The bill also established that the violation date, not the date of conviction, will be used in determining the timeline and the appropriate statutory penalties.

II. BEER EXCISE TAX RATE.

While the liquor penalties bill did pass, the session was marked more by what did not pass. A key example was a proposed increase to the state's beer excise tax rate. Presently taxed at the rate of $5.89 for a 31-gallon barrel (19¢ a gallon), the rate has not been altered since 1986.

In order to help balance the state's budget, a proposal was floated early in the session to double the beer barrel tax from $5.89 to $11.78 (38¢ a gallon). That increase would have moved Iowa's rate from the current standing of 25th nationally to 12th highest in the union, while generating an additional $14 million. The bill, however, never gained any legislative traction and appears certain not to reach the Governor's desk this year.

III. KEG REGISTRATION.

Another bill that failed was one calling for a mandatory keg registration law. Spearheaded by a grass-roots effort, the original proposal would have required the state's beer wholesalers to affix a tag with an ID number to all kegs sold to retailers within the state. Unlike a similar proposal last session, this year's effort gained significant momentum and was able to make it out of the House State Government committee.

The final version voted out of committee required that an identification sticker be affixed to all kegs sold for off-premise consumption. The bill also required that a patron's name, date of birth and address be recorded and kept by the retailer for a period of 90-days. In the end, the bill ran out of steam after the first funnel and failed to make it onto the House floor for debate. Proponents of the bill, however, have vowed to work to re-introduce the bill next session.

Those are just some of the highlights of the 2004 legislative session. Of course, with certainty, next year will again be another interesting year for the beverage alcohol lobby. For a complete list of all of the session's relevant beverage alcohol bills, view the Legislative Update found on the Division's home page at www.IowaABD.com.

FREE TOBACCO TRAINING OFFERED

Last session, the legislature enacted a law requiring the Iowa Alcoholic Beverages Division to establish a state-wide tobacco retailer certification program by April 11, 2004. Ahead of the curve, the Division launched the Iowa Pledge Tobacco Retailer Certification Program at the beginning of April and, at the time of printing, has already certified over 40 clerks. The system, available at www.IowaABD.com, consists of on-line registration for a two-hour class, as well as an on-line quiz taken after the class to ensure clerks have obtained core competencies from the training. The classes are offered to retailers free-of-charge.

As an incentive to train employees, the new law contains a second provision creating an affirmative defense for underage tobacco sales violations. Stores sending employees to training will be afforded an affirmative defense for a tobacco sales-to-minors infraction, provided that the employee cited is certified prior to the violation. The affirmative defense can be asserted once in a four-year period and applies only to retailers – clerks are still subject to a criminal fine for selling tobacco to minors.

Business Regulation

The Iowa Alcoholic Beverages Division regulates all entities that sell alcohol and tobacco in the State of Iowa. Collectively, the Division oversees approximately 9,000 Iowa retail businesses or, alternatively stated, 23% of the state's retail outlets. The range of ABD's regulatory scope includes restaurants, grocery stores, gas stations, golf courses, civic centers, taverns and other retail services.

* The percentage is determined by dividing the number of alcohol and tobacco licenses by the total number of retail businesses in Iowa, as reported by the 2000 U.S. Census Bureau.

Flavors and fun help drive summer sales of rum

By Michael Sherer, a Seattle-Based Writer and Consultant Specializing in Beverages and Foodservice

Note: This excerpt is printed with permission from the July/August 2003 issue of StateWays—the Beverage Alcohol Merchandising Magazine for Control States.

Summer is the season for fun and relaxation, and nothing captures that laidback spirit quite like rum. Rum evokes images of lush tropical islands, warm sunshine, soft breezes, and a casual, barefoot lifestyle.

The rum category . . . posted gains of 684,000 9-liter cases nationally [in 2002], or growth of 3.9 percent. Control states saw even better growth of 4.1 percent, or an increase of about 170,000 mixed cases. The growth has been fueled in large part by several trends. First, consumers have shown a willingness to experiment with flavors for some time. The generation of drinkers that has entered the category in the past decade grew up exposed to an explosion of flavor choices among all types of beverages. And due to its versatility and mixability, rum provides a rainbow of choices for consumers.

"The accessibility and mixability of rum have really helped drive growth," said Kate Latts, director of marketing strategy for Whaler's Rum, marketed by Heaven Hill Distilleries. "The addition of flavors has just added to the trend. It's a natural extension of the category."

Consumers also are adding more and more experiences to their "wardrobe." That wardrobe usually consists of a range of brands in different categories that consumers can "wear" depending on where they go.

They might have a flavored rum cocktail on a casual night out with friends, a basic gin and tonic at a backyard barbecue, or an ultra-premium vodka martini at a business dinner with a client or the boss.

Rum, because of its sweeter flavor profile, may be doing as much or more to open up the spirits business to younger drinkers than does vodka, particularly among women. "Women are discovering these rum brands and are realizing they can drink what they like, something lighter and sweeter," said Latts. "They have a lot of fun experimenting."

Rum also evokes Latin as well as island culture, and due to the growing influence of Hispanic immigrants, everything Latin is hot now, from Jennifer Lopez to George Lopez. More restaurants are featuring Latin and Caribbean foods, and that's spilling over onto drink menus too.

Finally, for the past several years, classic cocktails have been fashionable again. They confer upon consumers an aura of sophistication and sense of romance that harks back to different times. "Consumers are interested in drinking spirits with badge value," said Paul Francis, senior marketing manager [of] flavored rums at Bacardi. "A martini glass is just a glass until you have what goes in it." And consumers want those martini glasses to be filled with more unusual flavor experiences. Flavored rums, along with other flavored spirits, have expanded the combinations to an almost limitless number.

Much like vodka, the explosion of flavored rums includes a wide variety—from fruits to spices. Brands that initiated the flavored category however . . . have become synonymous with certain drinks.

Premium brands . . . also are seeing some growth. While sales of super-premium vodkas are growing dramatically, sales of higher-end rums are expanding more gradually.

When merchandising rum, remember that flavors aren't the only thing that might pique your customers' interest. Rum is as varied as the many cultures sprinkled across the Caribbean, and most nations ringing the tropical sea lay claim to their own versions. Like Scotch, rum's flavor is affected by water, soil, vagaries of the weather, and the process by which each distillery works its magic. From the light-bodied rums of Puerto Rico to the dark navy style of Myers's Legend, rums take on a life of their own, and each distillery has its own distinctive style.

Fun and festive, rums can put your customers—and your sales—in a summer spirit.

Rum evokes images of lush tropical islands, warm sunshine, soft breezes, and a casual, bare-foot lifestyle. . . .

Reel 'Em In with these Tasty Recipes

If you enjoy wine with your dinner, chances are you've come across the age-old dilemma of choosing the proper wine. If so, you've also heard the perennial advice: Use white wine for light meats and sauces, red wine for dark meats and sauces. It's not as easy, though, to choose which wine to cook with — especially for a main course as tricky as fish.

Of all the dishes prepared with wine, fish is one of the most challenging and rewarding. When cooked with wine, seafood follows the same path as a dinner party: A good wine in the proper amount enhances both, while inferior or excessive wine can be disastrous for your food and your guests. Never overdo it or cook with a wine that you wouldn't drink on its own. Better to use no wine at all than spoil a meal just to empty that bottle at the back of the fridge.

To start off, most general rules for eating with wine apply to cooking with wine. With most fish and seafood, you'll want a white wine to complement the lighter meat and subtler taste. Because of this, the lighter flavor of fish usually warrants less wine. Since the alcohol in wine evaporates during cooking, the flavors become more concentrated, so there's no need to slosh the wine in by the cupful — most recipes call for less than a cup. Also, since alcohol evaporates at a lower temperature than water, it's altogether possible to cook most of the alcohol out of a wine.

Different wines can bring a variety of flavors to your meals. For example, Sauvignon Blanc, which is known for its herb-heavy bouquet, easily highlights a meal with lots of herbs and seasonings. And while white wines are a good choice for most seafood, a hearty red wine can enhance many heavier dishes with tomato-based sauces. If you have time, try a few sample dishes with different wines on your own, and play it by taste.

What's most important is to remember that cooking fish with wine, like all cooking, is a highly subjective process. Try cooking a few different meals with a variety of wines, and find out what hits the spot. When all is said and done, you're the most important judge.

Bass in Court-Bouillon

6 red bass filets
1 thinly sliced onion
1 chopped green pepper
3 chopped celery stalks
1 pack chopped green onions
1 minced garlic clove
1 16-oz. can chopped tomatoes
1 cup tomato paste
Lemon slices
½ cup dry red wine
½ cup cooking oil
½ cup flour
½ tsp thyme
½ tsp marjoram
½ tsp allspice
½ tsp cayenne pepper
2 tsp lemon juice

- Heat the oil and flour together over low heat until dark, stirring frequently. This will take about 20 minutes.
- Add the onion slices, chopped green pepper, celery stalks, minced garlic clove, and chopped green onions. Cook for 5 to 10 minutes, or until soft.
- Add chopped tomatoes, tomato paste, chopped parsley, thyme, marjoram, allspice, cayenne pepper, lemon juice, red wine, bay leaf, and water. Add salt and pepper if necessary.
- Bring to a boil, stirring constantly.

- 1 tsp of garlic cloves, minced
- 1 leek, sliced
- ¼ cup red pepper
- ¼ cup green pepper
- ¼ cup white wine
- Pinch of salt
- Dash of hot pepper sauce

- Boil vegetables in stock until thoroughly cooked.
- Stir in fish fillets, wine, and cream.
- Cook over medium heat until liquid thickens. This should take about 5 minutes.
- Serve fillets on lettuce leaves covered with sauce and vegetables, if desired.

Fish Fillets Poached with Wine and Mushrooms in a Creamy Sauce

- 10 fish fillets
- ½ cup fish or chicken stock
- 3 cups fresh mushrooms
- 2 tbsp minced shallots or scallions
- ½ cup heavy whipping cream

- ½ tsp lemon juice
- ½ cup white wine
- 2¼ tbs flour
- 2 tbsp equal parts parsley, chives and tarragon (minced and mixed)
- Salt and pepper

- Cover and cook for 3 to 4 minutes with 2 tbsp butter, ½ tsp lemon juice and 2 tbsp minced shallots or scallions. Cook until the mushrooms are limp, but haven't browned yet.

- Lay a piece of buttered wax paper, cut to fit, on top of the fish.

- Reduce heat and simmer on the stove for about 5 minutes, then set in lower middle of the preheated oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until fish is opaque and springy rather than squashy; do not overcook. Drain the poaching liquid into a stainless saucepan
- Cover the fish and keep warm while making the sauce.

White wine sauce with herbs:

- Rapidly boil down poaching liquid until reduced to 1 cup.
- Meanwhile in another saucepan melt 2 tablespoons of butter, stir in 2½ tablespoons of flour and cook slowly stirring until butter and flour foam and froth together for 2 minutes without coloring more than a buttery yellow.
- Remove from heat; when bubbling has stopped, pour in all the hot poaching liquid at once, vigorously blending with a wire whip.
- Beat in ½ cup of heavy whipping cream and bring to a boil; boil slowly stir for several minutes.
- Thin cut sauce as necessary with dollops of cream - sauce should be thick enough to coat a spoon lightly.
- Taste carefully, adding more salt, pepper and drops of lemon juice.
- Stir in 2 tablespoons of minced fresh herbs such as a mixture of parsley, chives, and tarragon.
- Drain the fish again, spoon the sauce over it, and decorate with futed mushrooms.

Fresh Fruit Makes Drinks Taste Great

Take advantage of the abundant variety of fruit available

this time of year to add luscious, fresh-picked flavor to beverages. Start with the recipes below and let your imagination and taste buds help you create your own flavorful combinations.

Be sure to serve these drinks in chilled or frosted glasses to keep them cold longer. Chill glasses by placing them in the refrigerator for at least an hour; before you start mixing a drink, fill the chilled serving glass with ice water; pour out the ice water just before you are ready to serve the drink. Frost glasses and bowls by dipping them in water and placing them in the freezer for 30 minutes.

Flavored Lemonade

1½-2 ounces wine, gin, vodka, or other alcoholic beverage of choice
½-1 ounce liqueur of choice, if desired
Fresh Lemonade (see recipe below)
Lemon slice

Combine the alcoholic beverage, liqueur, if desired, and fresh lemonade in a shaker half-filled with ice; shake to mix. Strain and serve over ice in a chilled or frosted highball (collins) glass. Garnish with lemon slice.

Fresh Lemonade

4 ounces water
2 ounces freshly squeezed lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar

Combine the juice and sugar in a glass and stir until sugar completely dissolves.

Daiquiris

Try adding your choice of sliced banana, strawberries, peaches, or other fresh fruit to the basic daiquiri recipe below. Use a shaker to mix a basic daiquiri and a heavy-duty blender to mix fruit-flavored and frozen variations. Serve daiquiris in chilled or frosted cocktail or highball (collins) glasses, and garnish with fruit.

Basic Daiquiri

1½ ounces light rum
½ ounce freshly squeezed lime juice
1 teaspoon sugar syrup*

Combine all the ingredients in a heavy-duty blender; add cracked ice. Blend until smooth and pour into a chilled or frosted serving glass.

Margaritas

Add your choice of fruit liqueurs, fruit, and other ingredients to the basic margarita recipe below. Margaritas can be either shaken with ice or mixed in a blender with cracked ice for frozen variations. Serve margaritas in traditional margarita glasses or large cocktail glasses. Chill the serving glass, moisten the rim with lime or lemon juice, and dip it into either coarse salt or a mixture of salt and sugar. Garnish margaritas with a slice of lime or appropriate fruit for fruited variations.

Frozen Margarita with Fruit

2 cups cracked ice
1½ ounces white or gold tequila
½ ounce triple sec
1 ounce lime or lemon juice
Raspberries, peaches, bananas, or other fresh fruit cut into small pieces
1 ounce fruit liqueur that complements the selected fresh fruit
½ ounce sour mix

Put the ice in a heavy-duty blender and add the remaining ingredients. Blend until slushy but still firm; pour into a prepared serving glass.

Piña Colada

In Spanish "piña colada" means "strained pineapple," and this delightful fruity drink features pineapple—the juice as well as chunks of the fruit—combined with rum and cream of coconut. Serve it in a chilled or frosted highball (collins) glass, and garnish it with an orange slice, a maraschino cherry, and—of course—a pineapple wedge.

1½ ounces light rum
1 ounce cream of coconut
2 ounces pineapple juice
¼ cup pineapple tidbits or chunks
Orange slice
Maraschino cherry with stem
Pineapple wedge

Place 3 ounces of crushed ice in a blender; add the rum, cream of coconut, and pineapple juice and fruit. Blend until smooth; pour into a prepared serving glass and garnish.

2-3 ounces Irish cream
1 scoop ice cream for garnish

Combine the ice cream and Irish cream in a heavy-duty blender; blend until frothy. Pour into a chilled or frosted cocktail glass, and top with another scoop of ice cream.

For a summertime drink, make this classic with ice cream instead of the usual heavy cream.

1-2 ounces brandy or cognac
 $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 ounce crème de cacao
1 scoop vanilla ice cream

Combine the brandy, crème de cacao, and ice cream in a shaker half-filled with ice. Shake vigorously and strain into a chilled or frosted cocktail glass or brandy snifter.
