Electrical Fire Strikes New Lottery Headquarters

An electrical fire on Aug. 23 shut down the Des Moines headquarters of the Iowa Lottery. No one was injured in the incident, but employees had to evacuate the building for the day.

Repair crews restored electrical service to the lottery building the morning of Aug. 24, allowing employees to return to the workplace. Clean-up crews that specialize in fire-damage cleaning also were working at the site.

“We’re just thankful that no one was hurt,” lottery spokesperson Mary Neubauer said. While the building did sustain some smoke and fire damage, she said, crews worked to get everything back in operation as quickly as possible.

Lottery sales and drawings were not affected by the fire, and lottery retail locations were able to pay prizes as usual.

Lottery workers in the basement of the building reported hearing several loud pops about 8:50 a.m. and saw white flashes of light from an equipment room. Smoke then began filling the building. Investigators indicated that the fire was started by electrical equipment.

The lottery had moved Aug. 4 to its headquarters location at 2323 Grand Ave. in Des Moines. About 60 employees work at the lottery’s headquarters. The building, constructed in 1954, had been the longtime home of an insurance company before the lottery purchased the location in December.

During the period that the lottery’s headquarters was closed, players could not validate tickets or claim prizes at any Iowa Lottery office. Those functions resumed the following morning.
