* There were seventy-one counties that reported costs of criminal prosecution. Of these forty-four reported "expense of county;" sixty-five reported the "expense of grand jury;" fifty reported the amount paid "district and other attorneys," and forty-one reported the amount of costs paid in justices' courts.

The undersigned cannot close this report without venturing to make a suggestion in reference to the importance of the collection of the criminal statistics of our State. It will be seen by the report of 1862 that sixteen organized counties failed to make any report, while nine counties fail to report for 1863. An extraordinary effort was made to induce the Clerks of the several counties to make the report contemplated in Sec. 349 of the Code. It seems to me that this matter is of so much importance that it demands the special attention of the General Assembly. Would it not be wise to refer this matter to the several District Attorneys, requiring them to collect all facts appertaining to criminal prosecutions, and present them to the Attorney General, to be by him properly collated and reported to the Legislature?

Very respectfully,

JAMES WRIGHT, Sec'y State.
