Iowa:*

SIR—I have the honor herewith to transmit to you, on behalf of the Board of Trustees of the Iowa Hospital for the Insane at Mount Pleasant, their thirteenth biennial report, together with the report of the Superintendent, and statistical and other exhibits, showing the operations of the period, and the present condition of the Institution.

TRUSTEES' REPORT.

IOWA HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE, }
AT MOUNT PLEASANT, July 1, 1885. }

To His Excellency, BUREN R. SHERMAN, Governor of the State of Iowa:

THE Trustees of the Hospital at Mount Pleasant respectfully submit their thirteenth biennial report, accompanied by the report of the Superintendent, and exhibits of the Steward and Treasurer.

The meetings of the Board of Trustees during this period have been held as required by law, also monthly visits by one or more trustees each intervening month between the regular meetings of the Board.

The improvements and repairs have been made by the Superintendent, with the advice and counsel of the Board of Trustees. The work is well and substantially done, and has our approval, and we most heartily concur in what the Superintendent says as to the marked improvement made in the Hospital by reason of these several additions and repairs.

In our last report we asked for a sufficient appropriation to erect an addition to each wing of the Hospital, to afford easy, rapid and economical accommodation for the unfortunate insane, who are at present without hospital care, crowding our poor-houses and jails.

The Legislature seeing the importance of this, but feeling unable to erect both wings at that time, made an appropriation at the last session of $100,000, with which to erect one of the proposed wings.

The new addition was erected in connection with the east wing, being the wing for male patients.

The appropriation was based on an estimate for a brick building, sufficient to accommodate 200 patients, but after careful estimates it was found that it could be built of stone and kept within the appropriation, and make it correspond with the main building. This was done, and the new addition is now nearly completed, one ward being ready, and was occupied during June, and the whole will be finished by about September 1, 1885. It is of the most substantial quality, and in every way fully and completely adapted for the purpose intended, and will properly accommodate 200 patients.

Not only was this built within the appropriation, but enough was saved to put in the heating apparatus, gas fixtures, and completely furnish the same. This was largely due to the vigilance exercised by the Superintendent over the work, and utilizing the labor of patients whenever practicable. This will afford the necessary relief and accommodation in the male wards.

We would urge however the absolute necessity of making a like appropriation of $100,000 for a similar addition to the west wing for 200 female patients. This is so urgent that we feel that we hardly need do more than suggest it. The female wards are now overcrowded, so that many are compelled to sleep on the floors in the halls, and many others are being crowded into our poor-houses or kept at home, without proper medical and other care. The cost by the plan proposed, as shown by the additional wing already erected, will not exceed $500 per capita, being less than one-half of the cost of either of the present hospitals, owing to the fact that we have the motive power ready to attach, and all needed hospital appliances, out buildings, administrative departments and grounds, and all we need to provide is the additional room for patients; and in addition to this the labor of patients can, to a very large extent, be utilized in making the improvements. Not only can they be provided for cheaply, but also speedily, as it will only require the erection of the ward building and can be completed within a year after the appropriation is available. Not only this, but it will give additional wards so as to make a better classification of patients than is now possible. At present there are but nine female wards, while as shown by the best medical superintendents there should be not less than twelve wards in order to classify patients so as to secure the best results. With over 1500 insane now in our State without hospital care, the dictates of common humanity must commend this request to every one, and urge immediate action.

In regard to the appropriations necessary for the purpose of making the necessary improvements and repairs during the coming biennial period, aside from the addition to the wing, we would refer your Excellency to the report of the Medical Superintendent, and say that we fully and heartily concur in what he there says, and can only add that we deem each of them as wise and necessary, and the estimates there made as to the cost, we think, are none too large, and we would refer you to that report for the estimates and reasons for each.

We repeat that some changes in the present laws are desirable, one of which, viz.: that the visiting committee to the hospital be paid as the Board of Trustees by the State. It does not seem to be a legitimate charge to the expense of keeping the patients, as has been the custom.

Section 1419 of the Code provides for the removal of patients who have no legal settlement in the State if the trustees see fit and proper.

So near the State line we are often compelled to take in the tramps, and there being no provision made for the payment of the expense of removal, they remain on hand indefinitely and become a serious burden upon the State. We suggest such legislation as may remedy or remove this burden.

Since our last report one of our members, Dr. G. R. Henry, of Burlington, Iowa, has been removed by death. We all feel this to be a personal loss, and take this opportunity to bear testimony to the zeal, care and ability with which he discharged every duty in connection with our Board.

In closing this report we desire to bear testimony to the able, vigilant and untiring efforts of the resident officers in discharging their respective duties, and hardly repress an inkling of pride in the general good condition of the Hospital.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

To the Trustees of the Iowa Hospital for the Insane, at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa:

GENTLEMEN—The time having arrived requiring the presentation of the thirteenth biennial report of the Superintendent of this Hospital to your Board, I most respectfully submit the same. The Institution has during the entire period been much crowded, and we have had under treatment a larger number of patients than shown by any previous report published, reaching eleven hundred and seventy-eight individuals. This does not include those discharged and readmitted during the period, or any who have been absent visiting.

The division by sexes was—of men, six hundred and sixty-two; of women, five hundred and sixteen.

The number of admissions has also been unprecedented in the history of the Hospital: seven hundred and six have been admitted—four hundred and twenty-six men and two hundred and eighty women.

The whole number discharged during the period has been six hundred and thirty-four—three hundred and seventy-one men and two hundred and sixty-three women. Of these, one hundred and twenty-three men and seventy-one women were discharged recovered; eighty-four men and sixty-four women discharged improved; one hundred and thirteen men and eighty women discharged in a stationary or unimproved condition, and fifty-one men and forty-eight women have died. There remain in the Hospital, June 30, 1885, five hundred and forty-four patients—two hundred and ninety-one men and two hundred and fifty-three women.

The additional accommodation made by the construction of the new wing is affording much needed relief on the male side of the Institution, but the female division remains much crowded, and will continue so until another wing is constructed for women.

EXPENDITURE OF APPROPRIATIONS.

The several amounts appropriated for specific purposes have been used according to specification, as follows, an itemized statement and the several balances appearing in the steward's exhibit.

WIRE MATTRESSES AND BEDSTEADS.

For this purpose one thousand dollars per annum for two years was appropriated by the Twentieth General Assembly, and the entire amount has been expended, completely furnishing the Hospital throughout with wire mattresses and bedsteads, where renewal was needed. A cheerful and substantial piece of furniture of ash, trimmed with walnut, was selected for the latter, and with the wire mattresses attached, and a hair mattress for each, a most comfortable bed has been provided for our entire household.

FOR RENEWAL OF SUB-BASEMENT WALLS.

The appropriation made for this purpose was $8,500. This work has been prosecuted until all of the old sub-basement on the east side of the Hospital has been removed and new walls constructed of substantial material, and in a workmanlike manner. The wall on the west side is being rapidly replaced in the same manner, and we expect to complete it within the appropriation.

STEAM-HEATING APPARATUS.

This appropriation has been expended for the purpose indicated, and where we formerly had the old steam coils, which had become defective and leaky on account of the chemical action of water used years ago from an artesian well, we have now substituted Gold's patent radiator, Utica pattern, manufactured by A. L. Ide, of Springfield, Ill. We have enclosed these heating surfaces with sheet iron, and during the past winter, where this work had been accomplished, notwithstanding the usual severity of the weather, we were enabled to heat the wards much easier than before, keeping the temperature at 70° Fahrenheit, nearly every day, and being entirely free from the annoyance of pipes constantly bursting.

WATER-CLOSET FUND.

The balance unexpended at the date of the last report has been used for the purpose intended, and closets constructed in the dormitories of the second section west. This has shown the improvement wisdom of the expenditure.

FIRE-PROOF WALLS.

An appropriation of $3,000 was made by the Nineteenth General Assembly for the construction of fire-proof walls between the rotunda of the center building and the wards on each side, from the office story to the attic. Since the date of our last report the lath partitions have all been removed in three stories, and a substantial brick wall constructed to the roof. Iron doors and jams have been placed on both sides, thus completely occluding the several divisions in case of fire, so that it cannot be communicated from one to the other. The amount appropriated for this purpose was sufficient to complete the work.

HEATING AND VENTILATING FUND.

The changes that were being made in the male wards when the last report was written, have been completed. The appropriation that was made for two sections being sufficient for the three divisions east. The same amount was appropriated by the last General Assembly for three sections west, and the entire Hospital has now a satisfactory system of ventilation, completed within the limits of the appropriation. With our household crowded, as it has been, we feel that we should congratulate ourselves that no accident has occurred while such a mass of brick and other debris has been removed, the wards being constantly occupied during the process of repair. I do not hesitate to say that we now have an institution as completely ventilated and warmed as any in this country.

FILTER.

The excavation for this improvement has been completed, and the walls of the filter-beds are being constructed. The plan for this improvement is as follows: Two independent filter-beds fifty feet long and twenty-five feet wide, and seven feet deep, are made by excavating in the ground, the excavation being substantially walled with stone, plastered with cement. The bottom will then be concreted, six inches thick. A main or central drain of eight-inch tile is being laid through the entire length of the filter-beds, on the bottom, and lines of four-inch drain tile laid transversely three feet apart, open into the central drain. A clear water space 10x25 feet is located at one corner of the filter, and is connected by a six-inch pipe, with two large cisterns or reservoirs, under ground, both together being one hundred and twenty feet long, and ten feet in diameter. At one end of the main drain, where it empties into the clear water space, is a well four feet in height, which has openings twelve inches apart for the purpose of graduating the weight of water on surface of filter. On the concrete floor of the filter and over these drains, twelve inches of rock, four-inch cubes is placed; then twelve inches of rock, two-inch cubes; then twelve inches of charcoal; then twelve inches of gravel; then twelve inches of very coarse sand, and finally twelve inches of very fine sand.

A four-inch cast-iron pipe connecting with the pipe from main reservoir enters the filter above the bed, and being perforated with holes every two inches, equally distributes the water over the surface of the filter bed, and it passes down through the sand, gravel, charcoal, etc., and discharges into the clear water space, and through a pipe to cisterns before mentioned, from which it is pumped into the tanks in the attics for general distribution throughout the building. We have constructed two filter beds, so that we may be able to clean one of them at any time when necessary without interrupting the flow of water. Within the past two years a system of water-works has been constructed for the city of Mount Pleasant by Geo. B. Inman, Esq., of New York city, and we have been supplied from that source; a pipe connecting the city main with our reservoir in front of the Hospital. Our annual rental is less than the cost of fuel, labor and repairs for pumping from the old and impure source which was formerly our only supply. With the present ample amount, with our reservoirs and filter, we have what is first requisite in locating a site for a Hospital—a never failing supply of pure water for all purposes.

WASHING MACHINES.

The amount appropriated for refurnishing laundry was $2,500. We procured four of the largest size brass washing machines of Geo. W. Gorden of Chicago, and put them in place of the old wooden machines, which had become decayed and could not be used longer. They are a most excellent machine, and I know of none better than the brass washer. We also put in a No. 1 extractor, which works very satisfactorily.

SHEDS FOR CATTLE, DRY-HOUSE, ETC.

An appropriation of $3,000 was asked for the purpose of constructing a dry-house for lumber, to be used in construction and repairs, which are constant; for shelter for cattle, and a piggery. Only $2,000 was appropriated, and we consequently could only build the dry house, which was immediately needed for the lumber necessary for the additional wing we have been constructing, and shelter for cattle. We put up a building of brick, fifty by twenty-five feet, with stone foundation. Steam coils are run the entire length of the building under an open floor, and the air supplied is taken in through the foundation, passing up over the steam surfaces into the lumber room below, and the room above containing mouldings and other finishing lumber; the circulation being completed by opening two dormer windows in the roof. This has worked perfectly, and all the lumber put into the new wing and for repairs in the old building has thus been well seasoned. The sheds for cattle have not yet been constructed, but will be, probably before this report is published.

ELECTRIC FIRE ALARM.

A system of thermostats has been adopted, and they have been placed in the basements, attics, and other unfrequented places throughout the entire Hospital, and connected by wire with an annunciator in the front hall, and also with the large bell in the clock tower. In case of fire the index is raised and points to the section where it is; a small bell attached to the annunciator is rung, and also the large bell. A Gamewell striker has been placed in the clock tower and connection made with the button in annunciator in our public office, and officers, porter, etc., can thus be conveniently and promptly called, whenever desired in the office, or for any special duty, as the bell can be heard over the entire building.

An electric watch clock has been placed in the office and the hospital wired, and stations placed at either end of each flat. The patrol of each watchman can thus be traced every night. This work has all been most satisfactorily and perfectly accomplished by the Western Electric Company of Chicago.

The possibility of fire in our Institution is thus greatly reduced, and consequently our anxiety, as a result of this improvement. The appropriation was sufficient to complete this work.

REPAIR AND CONTINGENT.

The balance on hand at the date of the twelfth biennial report was expended during the ensuing six months, and a large portion of the amount appropriated for the same purpose by the Twentieth General Assembly since. With these funds we have completely renovated all the wards on the female side of the Hospital. Seven female wards have had the floors to corridors and rooms removed, and nearly all the other woodwork. These wards have all been painted and decorated, and many of them refurnished and supplied with pictures for the walls. Three male wards were served in much the same way, and the balance of them were painted, both walls and wood-work. The floors to seven more wards ought to be renewed at once.

ADDITIONAL WING.

The work of erecting a wing for the accommodation of 200 more patients was commenced as soon as possible after the passage of the bill making the appropriation.

The uncertainty of securing it left it impossible for us to be prepared with our construction plan. The services of Messrs. Willett & Pashley, of Chicago, were secured, and they were unanimously chosen by your Board as architects.

The general supervision of the construction of the wing was by the language of the bill placed in the hands of the Superintendent. The plans were completed in detail according to the general ideas of the Superintendent, but he is indebted to Major Willett for frequent valuable suggestions, aside from the furnishing of plans and drawings.

The excavating was largely done by our patients, thus saving expense and furnishing much needed employment. In June a commencement was made on the outside foundation walls. Messrs. Beckwith, Winters & Porter, of Mt. Pleasant, furnished the stone from their quarries and did this work.

Twelve inches of concrete, four and a half feet wide, was first placed where the foundation was to be laid, then a solid stone wall, four and a half feet at the bottom, and battered up three feet to two at the top, laid in cement mortar, completed the foundation. The entire distance around the building is seven hundred feet. Great care was taken to select none but the most substantial stone for the foundation and superstructure. The wall above foundation was built two feet thick with ample bonds running entirely through, and the style of stone-work selected was irregular range work, with cut stone window caps, sills, water-table and coping on gable. The cut stone was also furnished by Beckwith, Winters & Porter.

The partition walls inside were all constructed of brick and all done by days work. The brick for this purpose were made on the Hospital premises. The carrying of mortar, brick, lumber, etc., was mostly done by patients, who worked very faithfully, rendering valuable assistance to us.

Bids for stone, manufacturing of brick, and lumber, were received, so that we might procure these items as economically as possible. The brick were manufactured by Merkle & Day, of Mt. Pleasant. The lumber, including the white pine and oak for framing, and the yellow pine for finishing, was furnished by the lowest bidder, Thos. R. Lyon, Esq., of Chicago. Our sand, brick, etc., were hauled by persons living in the vicinity of Mt. Pleasant, with their teams. The first section of the wing is one hundred and thirty four feet long and sixty feet wide, with a second section, or L, one hundred and nineteen feet long and forty feet wide. There are sleeping rooms on each side of the corridors, and dining rooms, bath rooms, lavatories and water closets for each section. The corridors are twelve feet wide and the sleeping rooms eight by twelve feet; alcoves and bay windows are located about the center of the first section in each ward, on both sides, and bay windows at the east end of the first section and the south end of the second section.

The wing is practically four stories in height, as the topography of the ground was such that wards were constructed one story lower than those in the original building, all above ground and in every respect the same as those above, except that the ceilings are a few inches lower. There is a cellar seven feet in height under the entire wing, in which is located the steam heating apparatus, and stairways are located at each end of the main section. The first section with four wards is arranged to accommodate thirty-five patients in each ward, and is intended for the class that we have in the past been obliged to discharge and return to the counties or friends for want of room. The second section, being most remote from the other patients, is intended for the more violent and noisy patients, and is constructed to accommodate but fifteen patients in each of the four wards, and with no associated dormitories, each patient having a sleeping room of his own, thus giving this class better care and supervision than has ever been possible with a much larger number crowded together, causing irritation and collision. The water closet, lavatory and bath-room floors are made by laying 8 x 8 marble tile on brick arches supported by iron beams, thus preventing early decay where water is being almost continually spilled upon the floors, and protecting the plastering in rooms below. The water closets are connected in the cellar with a branch sewer, running about one thousand feet to the line of the main sewer of the Hospital. This sewer has been laid with fifteen-inch vitrified sewer pipe, with socket joints and carefully cemented at each joint. A trap has been introduced at a point nearest the smoke stack, and a foul-air duct of the same material here commences and is carried into the main opening of the stack, thus affording perfect ventilation to all the water closets in the wing. All the heating is accomplished by indirect radiation except the dormitories in the northeast corner of the first section, where steam coils have been introduced. Flues were built in the corridor walls from the cellar containing the heating apparatus to each ward, and open into them seven feet from the floor. Gold's patent radiator, Utica pattern, was adopted for heating surfaces, and the entire heating apparatus has been put in position and tested to our entire satisfaction.

A ventilating flue was constructed in each sleeping room, opening one foot from the floor, with upward draft into the attic and outside through the campaniles. The draft is strong and the circulation completely assured. Transoms over the bed-room doors admit the air at night from the corridors when the doors are closed. Dumb waiters have been supplied for the dining-rooms in each section, and the car track from the kitchen extended to them through the cellar, thus permitting the transportation of food under cover, without being exposed to the elements, so that it can be served hot and palatable.

The bath-tubs, wash-bowls and hoppers, all of iron, enameled or painted, and the soil-pipe was purchased of the J. L. Mott Iron Works, of New York, at their branch house in Chicago. The roof is of the best tin, and was put on by Messrs. Rukgaber, McGregor, & Raines, of Mt. Pleasant. It has been covered with two coats of metallic paint. The downfalls for rainwater are of corrugated galvanized iron, and five inches in diameter, connecting with a ten-inch tile, which joins the sewer near a corner of the building, and is there tapped, so that there may be no interference with the ventilation.

This aids in flushing the sewer and keeping it nicely cleansed. For the construction of this wing for the accommodation of two hundred patients, the sum of $100,000 was appropriated, or $500 per capita. It was left optional to build of brick or stone. The original building was of stone, but simply veneered and backed up with brick. Having found a quality of stone which was substantial, it was decided to build of this material, and no brick was used except for partition walls. I think the wisdom of our decision has already been demonstrated.

One ward was completed and occupied last month, another is now ready for occupancy, and the remainder are rapidly being pushed forward to completion, and will be opened for the reception of patients as early as each is fitted up, all within a month or two, although the bill making the appropriation extends the time for opening for the reception of patients to January 1, 1886. It will thus be observed that we are accommodating patients in it, six months earlier than we promised to. We have urged forward the completion of this additional accommodation from the fact that we were suffering so much from crowding, and also to relieve the counties in this hospital district as early and fully as possible from the burden they have so long carried, and the unfortunate insane from county-houses and jails where proper appliances and medical care cannot be provided, as found in a well regulated hospital. With the amount appropriated it was only expected that we should construct the building, and no provision was made for heating or furnishing. We have, however, been able, by careful management, to purchase our heating apparatus and place it in position, and to procure the necessary furniture for the entire wing, so that as fast as completed, we have everything ready for the reception of patients, and we have a balance sufficient to meet all demands for completion and furnishing. During the process of construction about fifty male patients have been employed almost daily in some way in forwarding the work, and it is a source of congratulation that no accident has resulted to any one. Many have commenced to improve, and have recovered while thus employed, and all have been benefited mentally and physically.

IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED.

We require for annual use in the Hospital five or six hundred tons of ice, and have capacity for storage of only one hundred tons. This is a most important factor in treatment, as well as domestic economy, and we should have a substantial building constructed as soon as possible, sufficiently large to meet our demands. For constructing and fitting up such building, the sum of $3,000 will be required. We have no proper place for keeping butter, eggs, fresh meats, fruit, etc. It is economy to purchase a supply of butter and eggs, especially in the season when in the best condition and cheapest, and store a sufficient amount for the year. As we kill our beef and mutton, it is very important to have a dry, cold place to keep it in while it is being used, especially in hot weather. The amount of apples which it is necessary to store for the use of our patients is large, and we have no place at present where they can be preserved for any length of time. To construct a suitable building with all the necessary compartments, that will be dry, properly ventilated and sufficiently cool (36° Fahrenheit), will require the sum of $7,000. The amount asked for dry-house for lumber, sheds for cattle, and for piggery, was reduced from three to two thousand dollars, consequently we were compelled to give up the latter. As we have no shelter for our hogs during the winter, and they are compelled to be kept in yards near the Hospital wards, so that the wind being in the right direction, the odor of the pens becomes very offensive, we desire to construct properly arranged places for our two or three hundred hogs, -and, in conjunction with it, remove and reconstruct our slaughter-house, also too near the ward buildings. We have a most desirable location for the purpose on the bank of the creek, a sufficient distance to remove the nuisance from further annoyance to ourselves and others. It will require $1,500 to accomplish this. Our ironing-room, sewing and mending room, and distributing room, are all located so that it is necessary for our female patients to pass through the rotunda by the public offices and hall, and a narrow dark passage way to reach their work. Consequently there are a large number of patients, somewhat disorderly, who would be much improved by being employed, who are debarred from it. The clothing, after being laundried, is all carried in baskets through the rotunda, making it necessary for men to carry baskets daily into the female wards. The number of persons thus passing through the rotunda, throwing open doors in winter, and always creating general disturbance, amounts to more than a thousand each week. Then the rooms occupied for the above purposes are needed for sleeping apartments for female domestics, who are employed in the several Hospital departments. Lastly, this is the chief place about the premises, where we have any anxiety in regard to fire. By constructing a building in the west airing court, in conjunction with, or contiguous to, the wing for female patients, all the evils above enumerated could be avoided, and the conveniences of labor and distribution be utilized, while safety would be assured. Such a building, for all purposes enumerated, substantially constructed and arranged as we desire, will cost $8,000. To carry forward to completion the necessary improvements and repairs in the old buildings, which will include the laying of new floors in seven wards, removal of plastering, repainting and other repairs in front and rear center, and relaying of the entire length of the main sewer of the Hospital, which was built of brick originally, and lime mortar, and which is constantly breaking through and causing us trouble, will require $6,000 per annum for two years. We desire to remove and re-arrange our fences to airing courts in front, so as to give our patients more liberty, and those on the front wards, especially the lower story, an opportunity to obtain a better view when in the house. We also wish to grade around our new wing, and lay out more walks for our female patients in the grounds, and construct summer houses, so that they can walk about in damp weather, and be sheltered from rain and sun at all times. We can, with good results, use $2,000 for these purposes.

WING FOR FEMALE PATIENTS.

In constructing the wing for which the appropriation was made by the Twentieth General Assembly, it was decided to locate it on the east side of the building for the accommodation of male patients, as the pressure was most urgent for that class. The importance of the other wing on the west side for female patients now forces itself upon us with increased emphasis as each week adds to the number of women under care, and compels us to either make beds for them upon the floor, or recommend to you for your order of discharge. The same arguments which were used to secure the increased accommodation needed for these people two years ago may again be presented, with additional weight, as the accumulations have continued to go on, and only a small portion of the whole number have been provided for. There are now, from the statistics we have had before, undoubtedly from fifteen to eighteen hundred insane still without hospital care in Iowa, and many of them, especially females, suffering for proper care. In our last biennial report I recommended the construction of two wings here, one for men and the other for women, which would have completed the original plan contemplated for this Hospital. Considering the state of the finances, and the fact that large appropriations were being asked in other directions, it was decided that it was best to build only one wing here during the biennial period just closed, and the second one afterward, and it is this which we are now most anxious for. The means of classification afforded by the wing for males already provided, and the ease of administration, comparatively on one hand, with the crowded and uncomfortable condition in the female wing on the other, makes this addition at this time seem imperative. The promptness with which this provision has been made for men in the wing just built, indicates that this is the earliest possible relief we can secure, while the new Hospital is being constructed, and the fact that we have not only completed, in a most substantial manner, this wing within the appropriation but also saved enough to put in the entire heating apparatus of the wing and furnish it throughout for two hundred patients, would seem a sufficient guaranty that the money thus appropriated would be economically expended. I here reiterate with increased emphasis what was elaborated upon in our last report, the desirability of continuing the present mode of caring for the insane both recent and chronic together, and not in separate institutions; the classification within the Hospital wards can thus be made most satisfactory for all, and it is unnecessary to repeat the arguments in favor of this plan. With this additional wing for females, this means of classification will be extended to women as now here afforded to men, and they can also be removed from the crowded and improper surroundings of county houses and jails. We are constantly solicited by county officers and friends of patients to urge this provision and plead for its prompt adoption. With the State House practically completed, the revenue from the small assessments made for State purposes certainly cannot be more wisely and beneficently used than in making comfortable provision for these unfortunate ones, whose light of reason has been extinguished and who grope in intellectual darkness, the helplessness of their condition appealing to the great heart of this noble commonwealth.

We are assured by those in charge that the provision made for a building for insane convicts will be utilized according to agreement, and we shall thus at an early day be relieved of that class who should have proper hospital care, but not in conjunction, or in any way associated with, other insane patients. I am compelled to call attention again to the fact that we have in this Institution a hundred or more persons who were declared by commissioners of insanity who sent them here without legal settlement in Iowa.

A bill was introduced two years ago making provision for paying the transportation of such cases to their homes, whenever found, directly out of the State treasury, as the Hospital has no funds for that purpose, but it failed to pass for want of time. I again recommend such a measure, that this room thus occupied now, be diverted no longer from the purpose for which it was intended; the accommodation, care and treatment of our own citizens. As it is now, if it becomes necessary, from our crowded condition, to send any away to be otherwise provided for, it must be the resident and tax-payer, which is certainly unjust.

EMPLOYMENT AND DIVERSION.

The success that has attended the employment of the insane, under proper limitations, has demonstrated beyond a question the very great importance of this factor in their care and cure. A large number are anxious to be doing something, and many others require only slight encouragement to induce them to occupy themselves in some useful way. Of course, such labor cannot be depended upon to carry forward the varied departments of our household without proper supervision and watchfulness, and by the aid of paid employes working with the patients; and it is not for the purpose of financial gain that we advocate the industrial feature here. During the biennial period just closing, for about nine months of each year, from one hundred and fifty to one hundred and seventy-five male patients have been employed, either upon construction or labor on farm or garden, and the results have been most gratifying. A large number of these persons have dated their recovery or early convalescence to participation in this work; many others have very materially improved, and been able to return to their homes and make a livelihood for themselves, and all have been benefited by increased physical vigor, good appetite, refreshing sleep at night, and a diversion of the mind from irritating subjects; and that introspection which is frequently the disturbing element and brain irritant, like the constant scratching of an abraded surface, preventing the healing process from going on. During the winter season this opportunity for labor is very much abridged for the want of proper shops and industrial departments, which we hope in some degree in the future to supplement. A good deal of work is done by females in our domestic departments, but they are debarred from doing as much as men. This can in a measure be obviated by the construction of the building recommended for an ironing room, etc.

Our entertainments have been continued during the autumn, winter and spring, and much credit is due to officers, employes and patients for the varied amusements they have prepared from time to time, for the diversion and benefit of our household. The cornet band has continued to furnish good music for lawn and hall entertainments, and the orchestra for our dances and dramatic interludes. The dances have been kept up whenever the weather would admit, and musical, dramatic and literary programmes have been regularly presented, much to the edification and amusement of all. The lectures, illustrated by the oxy-hydrogen light, by Drs. Bassett and Witte, have afforded much interest and instruction.

All the holidays—Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Years, Washington's Birth-day and July 4th, each year—have been observed in an appropriate and patriotic manner, some special amusements being always afforded and extra refreshments provided.

Dr. M. E. Witte has shown great interest in organizing and making efficient the corps of helpers necessary to present our various entertainments, and to him is due much credit for their successful rendition, which has been accomplished in addition to his other arduous duties.

To extend the limits of this report by a description of treatment, medicinally, or manner and amount of restraint is now impossible, as I desire to present pathological reports of two or three cases. Suffice it to say now, that we find most of our patients depleted physically upon admission, sleepless and nervous, and use such remedies as in our judgment will meet the indication and relieve the patient at the earliest possible period.

Nature is recuperative, and our efforts are aimed to aid this process and build up where defection has been going on. We use only what restraint may seem best for the well being and safety of the individual or his associates, always bearing in mind that it is a surgical appliance, only to be used by the advice of a physician as such a measure, and never as punishment. This is sometimes as much more humane and effective in the cure of the excited and exhausted patient rather than an attempt at control by the "holding process" by attendants when constant straggling results, as the proper adjustment of a splint to a fractured limb is better care than the services of a nurse for that purpose.

PATHOLOGICAL WORK.

In our last report the fact was mentioned that Dr. F. P. Peck had been appointed as third assistant physician and pathologist. As much of his time as could be spared from other duties has been devoted to this specific work in the laboratory, which is well supplied with a good microscope and other appliances, and he has been very faithful and painstaking in this research. It is but due to the medical profession of the State and others interested that a report of some of the work thus accomplished be published. I have therefore selected three interesting cases, for publication in this biennial report.

A broad field lies here before us, and the large amount of material furnished ought to be thus scientifically and carefully examined, that practical application may be made in preventing and curing disease of the brain and nervous system. The fault has not been, as some pseudo-scientists have intimated, with the Superintendents of Hospitals for the Insane, that this work has not been more generally prosecuted, but because they and their medical staffs have been fully occupied with other Hospital duties, and necessary appliances have not been provided.

The statistical tables appended contain some interesting facts, but from the imperfect history we often receive, such tables are not as valuable as we could wish. They have been carefully prepared at the expense of a good deal of time and labor by Dr. H. M. Bassett; the material being kept by him from month to month, in addition to his other duties, to which his long experience and disposition peculiarly adapt him. His services have been most efficient, and I take this occasion to express my admiration for his self-sacrificing devotion to duty.

The system of book-keeping which was inaugurated under the direction of the steward, Mr. E. N. Nelson, shows all the transactions of the Hospital with each individual from day to day, and indicates every item of expenditure and cost of same during the biennial period just closed. All of his books, statements and reports have been very accurately kept and most satisfactory to me, as well as the discharge of other duties requiring sound judgment and more than ordinary discretion.

A large share of the underwear used in the Hospital, bedding, towels, etc., etc., have been manufactured under the supervision of the Matron, Mrs. F. V. Cole, who, by her uniform kindness to patients, and comforting ministrations, has endeared herself to them, and rendered efficient service in the many avenues which her position opens.

FARM.

The past two years have been productive in this section of the State, and we have harvested good crops of cereals, vegetables and grass. The present year a large return has been gathered from the strawberry plants which were set out only two years ago, and other small fruits are being cultivated, as they are a most delicious adjunct to our bill of fare as served to our entire household. As previously stated, a good deal of the labor performed is by male patients; indeed, when we are not building, this is their chief occupation. We have a good stand of corn, potatoes and oats, and our vegetable garden bids fair to furnish a supply for all our needs for the season.

Below you will find the list of products, and amount of each, raised in 1883 and 1884.

PATHOLOGICAL REPORT OF CASES.

A CASE OF EPILEPSY.

Case No. 4333. Admitted Sept. 28, 1880. Age 35; single.

From the history of this patient before admission we learn he had epileptic seizures dating back "several years." The present maniacal attack began September 24th. He was very much excited from its commencement. The patient has shown a disposition to injure others and himself, and was destructive to his clothing. One sister was insane.

HISTORY AFTER ADMISSION.

The patient was received in an exalted state of delirious mania, talking and singing constantly. Food and medicine had to be administered by artificial means. Chloral was given to quiet him and secure the needed sleep, which end it satisfactorily accomplished. He continued in a maniacal condition for several days, after which he became quiet and partially rational, in which state he steadily continued until November 22d, when he had a severe epileptic seizure, the first to our knowledge since his admission. His physical health was good. He, however, manifested but little or no ambition. He seemed to be, as he says they call him at home, "half witted."

He continued in a stationary condition up to March 16, 1881; all his bodily functions seemed to be naturally performed; had no recurrence of epileptic seizures to our knowledge, but his mental reaction was very weak.

Between March 16th and April 20th he had several epileptic attacks. April 14th, during one of his attacks, he, in falling, suffered a dislocation (subclavicular) of the right humerus. It was reduced without much difficulty, and he soon had as good use of the arm as ever.

His general health at this time was excellent. During the following two years there was but little change in his condition. Much of the time he was very quiet, sitting about in an indolent manner; generally using some favorite settee, showing little or no mental activity, representing a well marked type of demetia.

He never read, played at games, or took any interest in conversation. He replied pleasantly to all simple questions addressed to him, and also appeared to notice what was going on about him as far as his simple and defective intellect would admit. He generally said he felt pretty well and was quite comfortable. At times he would complain of some headache and costiveness, and would make his wants known. At long intervals he had epileptic seizures of great severity, which were followed by grave and violent mania, usually continuing about two weeks, and attended by delirium and marked cerebral hyperæmia. At such times he was very destructive, delusional, disorderly, restless and incoherent. There was also obstinate refusal of food. Gradually the maniacal symptoms would subside, and he would slowly sink into a condition of apathy. During the summer of 1883 he became very fleshy. About the 20th of June he had a very severe epileptic seizure and became very maniacal again; was very destructive and required constant attention to induce him to tolerate his clothing. About the first of July he became more quiet and composed, and it was hoped the maniacal attack was subsiding as usual. The excitement and disturbance, however, increased again, and on the morning of the 4th there were symptoms of cerebral congestion. This condition continued in spite of treatment, and the patient died at 6 P. M.

AUTOPSY.

Autopsy was held forty-four hours after death. External inspection showed obesity to an extreme degree; face cyanotic, rigidity still present.

Head.—On making the transverse incision over vertex, the subcutaneous tissue was found to be one-fourth inch in thickness. No lesions were found on the internal surface of the scalp or on the pericranium. Calvarium symmetrical and bones of skull were in a normal condition.

Dura mater.—The dura on removal of the calvarium was found to be very tense. The vessels were in a state of universal engorgement. There were no adhesions or new growths on the convexity, but adhesions were present between the frontal lobes anterior to and above the corpus callosum. The frontal lobes were separated without tearing the membranes.

Pia mater.—The vessels of the pia were found to be distended with blood, encroaching upon the perivascular spaces; congestion of the smaller vessels was plainly visible to the unaided eye. No marked change in the vessels of the choroid plexus.

Brain.—There was found to be on section a very decided injection of all the vessels; the convolutions were of a pinkish shade, somewhat pressed together, and their increase in size produced a stretching of the dura.

The white substance was universally spotted with red points corresponding to the sections made of the capillaries, and on pressure blood would freely flow from each point. These points produced a speckled appearance of the entire white substance of the brain. The lining (ependyma) of the ventricles was normal. No noticeable change in Ammon's horn or any of the basal ganglia; ventricles comparatively free from fluid; the cerebellum presented the same appearance of congestion as were noticed in the cerebrum.

Vessels.—The cerebral capillaries as referred to above were found to be extensively injected. An anomaly of the vertebral arteries was found, the left being as large as the basilar, the right rudimentary.

Liver.—The liver was of normal shape and size, but quite soft and changed in color, due to post mortem change.

Stomach.—The stomach was distended; no pathological evidences noticeable.

Omentum.—The omentum occupied its normal position, evenly spread over the small intestines; no ante mortem inflammatory lesions.

Heart.—Dilation of the left ventricle, with corresponding attenuation of its walls. Valves of the heart were in a normal condition.

Lungs.—The bronchi and alveolae presented no ante mortem changes; pleural surfaces normal; some post mortem change.

Kidneys.—The kidneys were of normal shape and size; appearance extremely mottled; capsule easily removed; changes were probably all post mortem.

Spleen.—The spleen was of normal shape, size and color.

Intestines.—The intestines were distended, of normal color, and free from ante mortem changes.

Gall Bladder.—This organ was distended and contained a mulberry calculus two and three-fourths inches in circumference, and numerous smaller calculi with facets.

PATHOLOGICAL EXAMINATION.

Inasmuch as nothing abnormal (save the congestion referred to) as regards the brain was found, it was deemed advisable to make a careful microscopical examination of the pons and medulla.

This portion of the encephalon was preserved intact and hardened in solutions of alcohol varying in strength from a forty-five per cent solution to absolute alcohol. This hardening process required about eight weeks. The specimen was then cut transversely into three segments. The first separating the medulla from the pons, the second dividing the medulla transversely at its middle. The shallowness of the well of the microtome did not admit of embedding the medulla intact. Commencing at the upper portion of the pons, the whole tissue, composing the pons and medulla, was cut into thin sections and after examination (with the lower objective) a series of eleven sections were retained for staining, mounting and further examination. The sections retained were one from the upper portion of the pons, one from the middle, and one from the lower portion. The next seven were from the different portions of the medulla, and the eleventh from the upper cervical portion of the cord. These sections were then passed through Seiler's staining solution, the nuclei receiving the stain in about two minutes. The sections of the pons were removed sooner than those of the medulla. The sections were then passed through a fixing solution (hydrochloric acid and alcohol 1:4). This removed all superfluous stain and made permanent the remaining stain; the axis cylinders being the darkest, the medulla sheath a shade lighter, and the neuroglia still lighter in color; the sections losing their lilac tint and becoming of a deep rose color. They were then passed through several changes of absolute alcohol, after which they were rendered transparent in turpentine,* then placed on filter paper just long enough to remove the superfluous turpentine, and finally mounted in Canada balsam. The sections of the pons being wide were covered with thin films of mica. The sections were then numbered in order from above downward.

MACROSCOPICAL EXAMINATION.

Section 1.—This section, representing the upper portion of the pons Varolii, showing the general contour to be symmetrical, the left half being larger; also dilatation of one of the vessels midway between the raphe (median line) of the posterior division and the left hand margin of the section located in the anterior fibres of the middle crus (processus e cerebellum ad pontem).

*We usually prefer benzole for brain tissue.

Section 2.—This section represents the pons at its greatest convexity; several (five) apertures are seen, the largest one-eighth inch in diameter, is situated to the left of the raphe of the posterior division in the posterior portion of the middle crus of the pons. The other four are to the right of the raphe, the one nearest the raphe being one-sixteenth inch in diameter, each of the other three being one thirty-second inch in diameter, and situated more externally. (On making the sections of this region several foci of complete degeneration were seen. Microscopical examination of the contents of the largest revealed free fat crystals and granular matter.)

Section 3.—This section represents the pons at the level of the external origin of the auditory nerve; is one five-hundredth inch in thickness and normal in appearance.

The next seven sections represent the medulla (cross sections of, from above downward), as follows:

Section 4.—Is a cross section of the medulla at the external origin of the eighth pair of nerves; normal in appearance.

Section 5.—Is a section of the external origin of the hypo-glossal nerves. Normal in appearance. The fissure being due to pressure used on the cover glass.

Section 6.—A section of the medulla at the apparent origin of the upper roots of the spinal accessory. An aperture is here seen similar in appearance and location to those mentioned above.

Section 7.—A section near the lower portion of the olivary bodies, in appearance is similar to No. 6, save the aperture being smaller.

Section 8.—Is a section at the lower extremity of the olivary bodies, showing a very small aperture in the external division of the motor area—lateral column—otherwise normal in appearance.

Section 9.—Is a section one-fourth inch below the olivary bodies; normal in appearance.

Section 10.—A section one-half inch below the olivary bodies; normal in appearance.

Section 11.—A section from the upper cervical region of the cord; normal in appearance.

MICROSCOPICAL EXAMINATION.

Section No. 1.—Ectasis (dilatation) of the vessels located in the anterior portion of the fibræ arcuatae and in the anterior portion of the crusta, left side; near these regions are cells so filled with granular elements as to render the nuclei in many of them invisible. Further examination reveals localized sclerosis; a small area was found deficient in nerve cells and surrounded by hypertrophied connective tissue free from vessels. Fig. I represents the dilated vessel referred to above. The negative required an exposure of twelve minutes. The vessel is magnified 75 diameters. In ectasis we expect to find the perivascular spaces obliterated. (See Section No. 2, also Fig. IV.) But here the space is visible, owing to contraction of the coagulated contents; the transverse spaces are due to separation caused by the contraction.

Section No. 2.—This section of the pons represents capillary ectasis as taking place in the anterior portion of the crusta and near the raphe'. To the right may be seen two vessels, running parallel, surrounded by their perivascular spaces. The left extremity of the visible portion of the upper vessel represents a cross section of a branch of the main vessel, that leaves it at a right angle. The first portion of the vessel to the left has the same diameter as those to the right; after extending a short distance it becomes abruptly dilated to four times its former calibre. The first part of the dilated portion fills the perivascular space completely. In portions of this section are seen nerve fibres, in which the medullary substance is swollen by imbibition (no pathological significance), foci of granular degeneration (as described by Lockhart Clark), localized sclerosis, and finally complete degeneration is seen in the posterior portion of the motor tract; most of the apertures (section through foci of complete degeneration) have a shaggy wall of cerebral tissue.

Section No. 3.—Perivascular spaces diminished in calibre or occluded in region of the olivary bodies.

Section No. 4.—Irregular cavities are seen in the region of the fibræ arcuatae, connected with peduncular cerebelli of both sides.

Section No. 5.—Same appearance as in section 4.

above, Section No. 4. Granule globules are disseminated throughout the posterior columns.

Section No. 7.—White blood corpuscles are seen in this section, near the floor of the fourth ventricle.

Section No. 8.—Granule globules and white blood corpuscles are seen near the floor of the fourth ventricle; a partially collapsed arterial and capillary ectasis is noticeable, also proliferation of corpuscles into perivascular lymph sheath; sheath also contains granules. This section is the region described in the macroscopical examination, represents a cross section of the abscess referred to, this being through its middle portion; section No. 7 showing the upper portion and section No. 9 the lower. Reference to Fig. II will show it to be an encapsulated abscess, some of the detritus contained, being carried to one side by the knife.

Section No. 9.—Capillary ectasis and white blood corpuscles, cavity mentioned in description of section No. 8.

Section No. 10.—Increase of neuroglia between the cut ends of the nerve fibres. White blood corpuscles very distinctly seen.

Section No. 11.—Capillary ectasis, proliferation of corpuscles into perivascular lymph space, granular debris and white blood corpuscles.

INSANITY CAUSED BY TUBERCULOSIS.

CASE, 4882.

The case to be presented is that of a male patient, thirty-three years of age, married, and by vocation a farmer. He was admitted August 25, 1882. From the physician's return we ascertain that this was the first attack, the first symptoms being manifested about two weeks before admission. Disease at this time was increasing, with irregular lucid intervals. Derangement was manifested on religious subjects; made vague threats to injure others; no suicidal attempts have been made; no filthy or destructive habits; was not intemperate or subject to any constitutional taint as far as known. The patient received no treatment, nor was any restraint used. A paternal aunt has been insane. It may be well to emphasize here, that the patient presented no history of any pulmonary trouble.

HISTORY AFTER ADMISSION.

This patient was admitted while in a state of depression. He was inclined to sit on a settee in a morose and sulky manner, apparently taking no notice of anything. When questioned, he suddenly, and without the least provocation, struck the questioner repeatedly. He would strike and kick at every one who came near.

He soon became wildly maniacal, shouting and preaching nearly all the time. This period of great excitement continued for a week, when he gradually became more quiet and composed. This period of improvement did not long continue, as he soon became excited and violent again; the period of excitement at this time continued seven days, and at the end of twelve days he was in a condition to associate with the other patients. During November and December of 1882 he was much depressed, but was subject to intervals of sudden and violent rage, on slight provocation. He did not at this time manifest any delusions; answered simple questions well, and his physical health was fair. During January, February and March, 1883, his improvement was very marked. At this time he was orderly and his general deportment was good. His conversation was that of an intelligent person; still, at times he became nervous and irritable, and then he would complain of uneasy feelings, which would soon subside under the use of bromide of potash. Physical health good. During May and June he gradually became more and more disturbed, though he was still in a condition to exercise considerable self-control. He would have periods of despondency and depression, which however would soon give way to brighter and more cheerful feelings. During the first two weeks of July, these periods became more frequent and prolonged, and there was a noticeable increase in mental confusion. On the 13th of July he was found weeping, without being able to give a satisfactory reason for it. He at this time became very talkative, his ideas being very much confused, language very incoherent, and he even became delirious. His physical health had now become impaired. Examination of chest elicited signs of incipient tuberculosis. Cough ceased under use of cod liver oil and iron. On the 15th of July he became still more disturbed; was very delusional and disposed to violence. His delusions were of a very distressing and painful character. He said his family had been killed and he had committed some great crime in the past, and he was now suffering through the malice of the Freemasons. His physical health became still more impaired, and on July 22d he presented marked symptoms of passive congestion of the brain. He soon became very stupid and had a temperature of 103.5°. He was swathed in mustard sheets, cold applied to head, and his bowels moved by enemeta. By evening he brightened up considerably, and spoke. He also, under the influence of delusions, struck at persons about him. During the night the stupor became more profound and increased during the following day, the patient dying at 6:50 P. M.

AUTOPSY.

External Inspection.—Autopsy was held forty-three hours after death. External inspection revealed a rather delicate frame; degree of general nutrition fair; livid discoloration in underlying portions of the trunk; cadaveric rigidity nearly disappeared; no edema.

Internal Inspection—Cranium.—No change in the soft parts; thickness, color, consistency and continuity of pericranium normal; skull was of usual size; outer table, diploe and inner table of skull normal as to relative thickness and consistence, configuration of the inner surface of the skull, width and depth of meningeal grooves and color of inner surface normal.

Dura Mater.—Degree of tension normal; gray in color, veins of bluish tint and distended to an extreme degree; internal surface presented no marked modifications in color, thickness increased along the posterior portion of the longitudinal sinus, and adhesions in this region were quite extensive.

Pia Mater.—Pia and arachnoidal membranes easily removed intact; extensive adhesion between the frontal lobes.

Cerebrum.—On removal of the brain, adhesions were found over the second (middle) temporo-sphenoidal convolutions; the superficial layers of the cerebral tissue remaining attached to the membranes, being in that condition known as meningo encephalitis. Size, contents and ependyma of lateral ventricles normal. Choroid plexuses were of a very dark red hue and to the unaided eye there appeared watery cysts (due to liquefaction of colloid material)*. One cyst was large, apparently holding five drops of fluid, the others were much smaller. Very little ependymites of the fourth ventricle. On removal of the brain, the occipital lobes were found to be much firmer in consistence than other portions of the brain, and on section, a perceptible increase in firmness was noticed. On examination of the free cut surface of this, there were nodules found as in sclerosis. Examination of the second temporo-sphenoidal convolution revealed a distinct softening of this region. The punctus vasculosa showed plainly on section of the base of the brain. Basal ganglia was found to be normal.

Cord.—Same venous fullness in dura of cord as noticed in connection with the brain. Microscopical examination revealed no pathological lesions in cord.

THORAX.

Lungs.—Pleural surfaces were slightly adherent to chest walls at apices. The left apex presented hard nodules the size of a pea; calcification had taken place. The right apex presented cicatricial tissue and had the appearance—so rare in the history of such cases—of a healed cavity. No gas was present in pleural cavity, but the lungs were distended with gas, the product of decomposition.

Heart.—The heart was of normal shape and size, and the valves were in a normal condition.

ABDOMEN.

Omentum.—The omentum occupied its normal position and was of normal appearance.

Stomach.—The stomach was found to be empty; its walls presenting a normal appearance.

Liver.—The liver was of normal shape, size and consistence.

Kidneys.—The kidneys were of normal shape, size and consistence; capsule had its normal adherence.

Spleen.—The spleen was larger than normal, but of normal color and consistence.

Intestines.—The intestines presented no evidence of disease.

PATHOLOGICAL EXAMINATION.

The portions of the encephalon to be examined were removed from a sixty-five per cent solution of alcohol, and not being sufficiently hardened, were placed in an eighty-five per cent solution for several days; the pons and medulla being hardened intact. The pons and medulla were then separated by a cross section with a razor;

then each portion embedded separately, prior to cutting sections. Sections were then cut from the upper extremity of the pons, after superficial examination of which one or more were retained for permanent mounts, and in the same manner were treated the middle and inferior portions. Ten sections of the medulla were retained, representing as many regions of that portion of the encephalon. Six sections of the occipital lobe were retained from the upper and middle convolutions, also ten sections of the middle temporo-sphenoidal. These sections were retained after a hasty macroscopical and microscopical examination of many. These sections were passed through alcohol to dehydrate them and then stained in carmine solution (Seiler's) fixed in an acidulated alcoholic solution, 1-4; again dehydrated by being passed through an eighty-five per cent solution of alcohol, and finally through absolute alcohol; then rendered transparent in benzole and mounted in Canada balsam. The cord being removed intact was suspended in a sixty-five per cent solution of alcohol for eight weeks, after which it was removed to a ninety-five per cent solution, i. e., portions of it, e. g., a portion from the cervical region, the upper and lower dorsal, the lumbar enlargement and the cauda equina. A portion of the tubercular lung removed from the fifty per cent solution of alcohol was sufficiently hardened, and it was immediately embedded preparatory to making sections. The order of examination will be as follows: 1st. The sections obtained from the occipital lobe. 2d. Those from the temporo-sphenoidal. 3d. The pons. 4th. The medulla. 5th. The cord comprising the cervical, dorsal and lumbar regions, and lastly the lung.

MICROSCOPICAL EXAMINATION.

Section 1.—Histologically we find on examination of vertical sections of the middle occipital convolution, the first layer, the one nearest the meninges, to be composed principally of connective tissue, the nerve cells being very scanty. The second layer was found to be composed of numerous small pyramidal cells with an average diameter of .010 mm. at the base. The long diameter of most of these cells being verticle to the surface. This layer was not distinguishable throughout section. An amplification of 1,000 brought to view the large pyramidal cells of the third layer associated with irregular cells, the latter being mostly found in still lower strata, and lastly fusiform cells were seen with their long axes parallel to the fibres of the association system. Pathologically we find in this section numerous tubercles diffused more or less through the tissue sometimes (occurring in clusters; again surrounding the vessels especially at points of dilatation; the tubercular foci are located principally near the union of the gray and white matter, the tubercles being epithelioid (endothelioid) in character; some present the appearance of white blood corpuscles; many, however, being larger, presenting a furrowed appearance.

Section No. 2.—Histologically, this section presents to view in the superficial layer, delicate nerve tubes, though few in number parallel with the pia, and appear as described by Kolliker & Arndt. The outer layers cannot be well distinguished. "The five layer type appears to undergo very remarkable modifications in the posterior parts of the encephalon."† Fig. III presents submiliary tubercles as seen in this section. Each tubercle is round, presents a well defined periphery without capsule; is grayish white in color and transparent, so that an occasional cross section of an axis cylinder may be seen through the "cytogenic growth." An occasional tubercle is fissured. These submiliary tubercles must be differentiated from white blood corpuscles and pus corpuscles; from the former they may be by their size, from the latter by their situation.

These tubercles are not as uniform in size as white blood corpuscles; some being smaller and occasionally one much larger; the larger being furrowed. Tubercles occupy the place of normal tissue; pus corpuscles, as found in sections of the brain, are found in a higher or lower plane, so that when the pus corpuscles are in focus, the tissue elements are out of focus and vice versa.

Section No. 3.—This section contains a miliary aneurism** of an artery situated among the commissural fibres of Gratiolet. This aneurism shown in Fig. IV is situated .015 in. beneath the sulcus, separating the middle (2) and inferior (3) occipital convolutions. The vessel is distended on both proximal and distal sides of aneurism, obliterating the perivascular space; it is such changes in the cerebral vessels as seen in cut, that may finally result in rupture of the walls, producing fatal cerebral hemorrhage or apoplexy.

To the right of the field (not shown in cut) may be seen stratified chalky concretions, common in connection with tuberculosis.* (A two-thirds objective will include both lesions in one field.)

Section No. 4.—Examination of this section reveals peripheral intraencephalic hemorrhage located in superficial layers of the middle (2) convolution. The foci of these hemorrhages being so very small, no serious organic changes were caused by them. Tubercular deposits are discernable in the pia; some of the perivascular lymph spaces are seen to contain white blood corpuscles.

Section No. 5.—Tortuous condition of cortical vessels occurring in those of the primary and secondary arborisation.

Section No. 6.—Tubercular deposits are presented in the region of a dilated arteriole in the same region occupied by the aneurism in section number 3.

SECTION FROM THE TEMPORO-SPHENOIDAL LOBE.

Section No. 1.—The only abnormal appearance in this section of the middle temporo-sphenoidal convolution, is the sudden dilatation of a vessel of primary arborisation; it preserves a uniform diameter from the cortex through the several layers and then becomes suddenly dilated to four times its original calibre.

Section No. 2.—In this section are presented the following evidences† of softening:

1. Stasis of the vessels.
2. Crystals of hæmatoidin.
3. Granule corpuscles (corpuscles of Gluge).
4. Fat granules and free oil globules, due to fatty degeneration of the protoplasm of the neuroglia.
5. Foci of caseous degeneration.
6. Elements of miliary tubercles (a) large tubercle cells; (b) small tubercle cells; (c) fine meshed network from interior of the same.

Section No. 3.—Foci of complete degeneration surrounded by granular debris entirely free from nerve cells, may be seen in this section, also an irregular dilatation of the adjacent vessels.

Section No. 4.—Tortuous condition of the cortical and deep seated arteries. Extensive proliferation of cells.

† Cornil & Ranvier, Pathological Histology, p. 373, and Rindfleisch, Pathological Histology, p. 125.

Section No. 5.—This section shows a proliferation of cells within a perivascular lymph space, also migratory cells in the adventitia of the vessels. The adjacent cerebral tissue being deficient in cellular elements.

Section No. 6.—Here miliary tubercles may be seen throughout the superficial layers, and in one locality the tubercular deposit is quite extensive, being equal in thickness to the superficial layers in which it occurs.

Section No. 7.—Miliary tubercles are here shown unstained in a double stained section. Near the margin of the section in the course of a vessel of the pia is a large tubercular nodule involving the coats of the vessel; the center of this nodule appears quite dark and gradually fades toward the margin.

PONS VAROLII.

Section No. 1.—This cross section from the greatest convexity of the pons presents miliary tubercles in the motor district of the posterior division of the pons, also in the region of the longitudinal fasciculi of the basis cruris cerebri.*

Section No. 2.—In this section may be seen tubercles near the floor or the fourth ventricle. Dilatation of an arteriole separated from the gray floor of the fourth ventricle by the posterior longitudinal fasciculus.

Section No. 3.—This section at the level of the origin of the facial nerve abducens† presents tubercles near the floor of the fourth ventricle.

MEDULLA.

Section No. 1.—The cross section from the upper portion of the medulla presents miliary tubercles in the anterior columns: extensive cellular proliferation is also found here, showing pigment granule carriers and kreatinin crystals. Near the central portion of this region is a small oval shaped area, sclerosed, presenting a few irregular distorted cells.

Section No. 2.—Tubercles are seen as in section No. 1, and in the same location. In this section the anterior pyramids are more especially involved. Caseation is present in the central portion of the large nodules, nothing but debris being discernable. These foci which occur uniformly throughout the anterior pyramids in this section can be plainly seen by means of a condenser, x 2. Kreatinin crystals are seen.

Section No. 3.—This transverse section at the level of the highest roots of the vagus presents tubercles throughout the pia more marked in that portion in close proximity to the anterior pyramids.

Section No. 4.—Tubercles are seen near the floor of the fourth ventricle and throughout the intima of many of the vessels.

Section No. 5.—This section which is on a level with the lower extremity of the fourth ventricle presents miliary tubercles extending from the anterior margin, along the course of the smaller vessels. After passing through this gray portion the tubercles are found to extend horizontally from the left toward the mesial line: This tubercular region extends again into the gray layer and here it is of a caseous nature. The portion of gray matter thus almost surrounded by tubercular elements is sclerosed, the cellular elements being almost entirely wanting.

Section No. 6.—Miliary tubercles in and near the pia and in the region of the vessels of the first arborisation.

Section No. 7.—This section differs from the preceding by presenting a nidus of tubercles visible to the unaided eye, at the margin of the section (left side). This nidus involves the outer margin of the decussating pyramids, the intermediate cellular tissue between the region involved and the surface being contracted to such an extent as to produce a sulcus or depression into which dips the adjacent pia.

Section No. 8.—Two giant cells are found in the right antero-lateral column. The perivascular spaces seen in these latter sections are much larger than we usually find them in normal tissue, corresponding in appearance to the condition found in atrophy.

Section No. 9.—This section presents miliary tubercles in the anterior columns: extensive cellular proliferation is also found showing pigment granule carriers.

The following series of sections are from the spinal cord representing the different regions of the same. These sections are about one two hundred fortieth inches in thickness, and with one exception (oblique sections of lumbar enlargement) are transverse sections. These sections, after being cut, were passed through dilute alcohol, absolute, carmine solution, acidulated alcohol, absolute again, benzole and mounted in Canada balsam.

Cervical Region.—This section presents miliary tubercles diffused throughout the pia. Cellular proliferation to the left of the central canal and giant cells between the central canal and the posterior margin of the section.

Upper Dorsal.—The same appearances are seen in this section as described in that of the cervical region.

Lower Dorsal.—Tubercular deposits throughout.

Lumbar.—Examination of these sections representing the upper, middle and lower portions shows the same cellular proliferation and in the same region mentioned in the description of the cervical. Examination of the columns separately reveals tubercles dotting the region known as the columns of Burdach and the lateral columns.

The anterior and posterior cornus are involved to a much less extent and the remainder of the central gray is not free from tubercles.

LUMBAR ENLARGEMENT.

Oblique Section.—This section presents to view numerous miliary tubercles, no portion of the section being free from them, the adjacent pia being also involved. These deposits are very distinctly seen with one and one half inch objective.

Cross Section.—The cross section of this region presents the same tubercular appearance with the addition of foci of complete caseous degeneration.

Canida equina.—In this section no field could be found free from tubercular deposits.

LUNGS.

Several free hand sections of the lungs were cut; the sections comprise the tissue at the margin of a tubercle as well as a portion of the tubercular mass. It may be well to state here that the term tuberculosis in the examination of the lung and of the other tissues described, was not used without reserve until bacilli tuberculosi were found. The sections were dehydrated in alcohol, some stained in carmine solution, others in aniline solution then dehydrated, placed in turpentine for twelve hours and finally mounted in balsam.

Examination of the ones stained with carmine revealed miliary tubercles, appearing similar to some of the deposits found in the brain and cord.

Microscopical examination of the other sections showed the vessels filled with corpuscles to repletion, and in the intima of many of them are to be seen tubercles granular in appearance. Other tubercles bearing a similar appearance, seem to have no connection with the vessels.

ENCEPHALITIS.

Case No. 5153. Admitted June 19, 1883. Aet 30. Single: Coal miner.

About six weeks ago, after a few days illness from headache and fever, this patient appeared for a day or two at a time demented; lost his memory, and was unable to find his boarding place when in the street; loss of sleep, voracious appetite, listless, and was inclined to wander about. Disease appears to be increasing; is variable with rational intervals. There is no particular subject on which the derangement is manifested. No disposition to injure himself or others; habits filthy; no relatives insane. Patient was temperate; had no bodily disease, and restraint was not resorted to. Was given "bromide of potash."

HISTORY AFTER ADMISSION.

August 3, 1883. Since the admission of this patient he has remained in a very stupid and confused mental condition, bordering very closely on complete dementia. He appears dazed, and is unable to comprehend when spoken to. He is quiet, but very careless, and anything but cleanly. His mental condition seems to be dependent on cerebral degeneration. At one time he became excited with signs of cerebral hyperæmia, but this subsided under cold applications to head; ergot and strychnia internally.

August 15, 1883. The patient developed an active diarrhea soon after date of last record. One week ago this became dysenteric and was attended with considerable fever. Since the beginning of this trouble the patient has been in an asthenic condition, and during the past few days he has failed very rapidly, the discharges becoming more and more frequent and copious. The patient died at 1.45 A. M.

AUTOPSY.

Autopsy was held thirty-six hours after death. The body was found to be in a condition of post mortem rigidity. Calvarium symmetrical, bones free from congestion and inflammatory lesions.

Dura mater.—Adherence of dura to bones of skull or to pia not marked. Calcification of falx cerebri: no other lesions or new growths.

Pia mater.—Adherence of pia to the base of the brain; seemingly otherwise normal.

Brain.—Marked degeneration of the corpus striatum. Ependymitis of the lateral ventricles, more marked in the left, and the same condition was found in the fourth ventricle. Softening of the third temporal convolution of both sides. Marked serous effusion in all the ventricles and subarchnoidal spaces, also varicose condition of the choroidal vessels and of velum interpositum. Pons varolii was of a grayish yellow color, not unusually soft.

Stomach.—The stomach was somewhat dilated.

Intestines.—Dysenteric inflammation of the mucus coat of the large intestines, most marked in sigmoid flexure. All other organs seemed to be in a normal condition.

PATHOLOGICAL EXAMINATION.

The following series of sections comprise the pia from the base of the brain: The third temporal convolution, corpus striatum (2 mounts). Corpora albicantia, optic thalamus, pons varolii (5 mounts), and the medulla (5 mounts). In addition to these are two showing the characteristic lesions of dysentery, they being transverse sections of the walls of the colon. Examining the pia first, we here find the following evidence of basilar meningitis, a new formation of connective tissue giving rise to increased thickening of the pia mater.* An endarteritis and periarteritis of the vessels and considerable granulation tissue. The vessels are most irregularly distorted, calibre extremely variable and filled to repletion, presenting an appearance not greatly unlike forcibly injected vessels.

We now place the section of the temporal convolution (3) under one and one-half inch objective, and observe that all the vessels are not only filled to repletion but fusiform dilatation of the vessels also occurs.

Using the same objective fields, may be found, presenting five or more vessels with fusiform dilatations. Examining the vascular system involved portions of an encephalitic brain, we are supposed to be able to find white blood corpuscles in the perivascular spaces; but in these sections, owing to the universal distention of the vessels, the perivascular spaces are occluded. Replacing the one and one-half inch objective with one-fifth, and securing good illumination, it will be seen that the neuroglia participates in the inflammatory process, and the nerve elements have undergone fatty degeneration. Stricker says: "The production of fat is one of the specific peculiarities belonging to various tissues, and among others to the white nerve matter." Here, instead of seeing the axis cylinders deeply stained and surrounded by the lighter colored medullary tissue—substance of Schwan—as would be seen in normal tissue prepared in a similar manner, we observe that the cross section of the nerves presents a granular appearance, due to the fatty degeneration. The axis cylinders are markedly thickened with proportionately diminished medullary tissue, the latter being destroyed by the thickening of the former.*

Now using the two-thirds objective, lesions of diffused encephalitis are seen. The observer is surprised by the vast amount of pus corpuscles, it being almost impossible to find a field free from them in any of the sections. The corpuscles do not occupy the position of the cerebral tissue as do the submiliary tubercles as shown in case 4882, Fig. III, but are in either a higher or lower plane. The pus corpuscles are also much larger than the submiliary tubercles, the former appearing as large as when magnified seventy-five diameters, as the latter magnified 250. The pus corpuscles, with two-thirds objective (x 75) and subdued illumination stand out in bold relief, showing their spherical contour and granular surface. The pus corpuscles are the most abundant in the lower portion of the medulla. The vessels of the pia surrounding the medulla and pons are in a similar condition to those found at the base of the brain. Having the result, we next wish, if possible, to ascertain the cause. Here we have masses of pus corpuscles with the concomitant elements of encephalitis occurring in a case whose history of mental disease only covers a period of sixteen weeks. Whence came these corpuscles?

We do not wish to theorize, but will briefly state the condition that may have produced the result, and will leave the reader to draw his own conclusion. These being cross sections of the tissue, the views of the vessel are longitudinal, under which circumstances an examination of their walls is difficult; fortunately, however, the cross-sections tions of the medulla also show sections of the spinal arteries, and we find them to be in an atheromatous condition. One of the factors in producing the changes in the vascular walls may have been a long-standing engorgement with dilatation, and the giving away of the coats, possibly the adventitia, gave rise to the fusiform dilatations. The intima of the vessels (spinal) was thickened. The vascular walls being in this condition, the inflammation may have extended to the surrounding delicate cerebral tissue (?) resulting in atrophy of the cellular portion as well as fatty degeneration of the nerve elements, and the proliferation of the cellular elements of the neuroglia. In this case we look upon the meningitis as the cause, and the encephalitis as the effect.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

The following papers have been regularly received and distributed among our patients, who have perused them with much interest, especially those from their own homes, and could the editors not sending their issues, see the gratification resulting from those received, I have no doubt all publications in this hospital district would follow. Our sincere thanks are extended to all thus remembering us:

Isaac W. Crumley.....	5.00

The Mt. Pleasant brass band favored us with a lawn serenade.

Band Concert, Abingdon, Ills.

Young Ladies Band, Aledo, Ill.

All of these favors were appreciated by our patients, and in their behalf I return thanks to the donors.

The loyal and faithful service of the physicians and other officers as elsewhere indicated, has largely contributed to whatever of success has been attained in the management of this Institution during the period just closed, but to the Supervisoress, Miss Meno Trope, and the Supervisor, Mr. G. H. Lyon, as well as most of those who have been employed as attendants and assistants, much credit is due, and our thanks are extended.

Though the burden may seem sometimes heavy, the faithful are not overlooked here, nor will they be, when toil and sacrifice are over, and the final summon comes to an eternal reward.

I cannot close this report without reference to the death of our friend and collaborator, your associate on the Board, Dr. G. R. Henry. His words of encouragement and kindly sympathy, to me personally, endeared him to me and made his loss peculiarly trying. To all of you gentlemen of the Board of Trustees I feel extreme gratitude for your cordial and unqualified support since you first welcomed me to this position. By your wise co-operation my hands have been upheld, and when discouragements have appeared, by your kindly advice and hearty words of cheer, I have been strengthened for further efforts in prosecuting this work of humanity.

With sincere gratitude for the favorable circumstances by which we have been surrounded, and the multitude of blessings we have enjoyed, and with firm reliance upon that Divine Providence, to whom all is due, we close this record, and enter with courage upon the responsibilities and labors of another biennial period.

Respectfully submitted,

H. A. GILMAN,

Superintendent.

EXPLANATION.

Prior to the appointment of Doctor H. A. Gilman as the superintendent, and E. N. Nelson as steward of the Hospital, all special appropriations were kept under the general head of Improvement Fund, and as a consequence the treasurer did not know upon what special fund any order was issued, the division being kept on the Hospital books by the steward alone.

Respectfully,

C. V. ARNOLD, Treasurer.
