MR. SPEAKER—I am directed to inform your honorable body that the Senate has passed the following bill, in which the concurrence of the Senate was asked:

House File No. 552, a bill for an act to authorize and empower the joint committee on Retrenchment and Reform to employ expert accountants and efficiency engineers, to institute reform and appropriate funds therefor.

JOS. E. MEYER,
Secretary.

Scholz of Clayton moved that the remarks of Crozier of Marion and Brockway of Louisa relative to House File No. 332 be printed in the Journal.

Motion prevailed.

Mr. Crozier addressed the House as follows:

MR. SPEAKER—I rise to a question of personal privilege this morning and I ask in particular the attention of the members of the committee on Roads and Highways. I wish it understood that what I may say is in no sense in the nature of an apology for anything I have said or done as a member of this House.

I refer to a bill introduced by me, by request, in the early part of this session with relation to bridges. A measure which has engaged the attention of the committee on Roads and Highways and upon which there has been much discussion in the newspapers. I do not make this explanation on account of any matter that may have been published in the newspapers. I recognize the right of the newspapers to criticise me or any one else in the matter of public duty and it is not in reply to any of the newspaper criticisms that I arise this morning but rather at the instance of the members of this House to whom I owe the duty of explaining my conduct as to any measure before this House.

This bill was handed to me by a gentleman claiming to represent the interests of the smaller bridge contractors, giving me to understand that the larger bridge contractors were opposed to it. I stated to him at the time that if, as it was claimed, this measure was in the interests of what is known as the "bridge gang" I would not support it.

I wish to say further that it was at my instance that Mr. Metz was brought before the committee. I suggested to the chairman, Mr. Brockway, that when Mr. Metz came before the committee that they should subject him and the bill to a careful scrutiny and at the same time informing him that I had been informed that Mr. Metz was not representing the larger bridge companies.

My knowledge of Mr. Metz and his family connections for a number of years was sufficient to entitle his representations to my confidence and I wish to say now that if it is as I have been informed, that he is representing the greater bridge companies, that I shall not support this measure.

At the close of the remarks of Mr. Crozier, Mr. Brockway, chairman of the Roads and Highways committee, arose, corroborated the statements of Mr. Crozier, and further stated that no member of the committee, as he believed, held the gentleman from Marion responsible for the bill.

Mr. Brockway addressed the House as follows:

MR. SPEAKER—I wish to state that the gentleman from Marion came to me soon after the introduction of the bill that he has mentioned and the conversation between us was exactly as he has stated. He said that the bill was introduced by him "by request", that the party said it was entirely in the interest of the small bridge companies and for the purpose of enabling them to hold their own in competition with the big concerns. I believe that those of us who saw Mr. Metz before our committee can understand how the gentleman from Marion was misled. I believe that any other member of this House would have made the same error.

I do not believe that any member of the committee on Roads and Highways attaches any responsibility for the introduction of this bill to the gentleman from Marion.

The speaker announced that as speaker of the House, he had signed in the presence of the House, House Files Nos. 162 and 235 and House Joint Resolution No. 6.

Dawson of Cherokee moved that Hon. J. W. Bowman, a former member of the House from Linn county, be invited to address the House.

Motion prevailed.

The speaker appointed Dawson of Cherokee as a committee to escort Mr. Bowman to the chair.

Mr. Bowman then addressed the assembly.

On motion of Ring of Linn, the House adjourned until 1:00 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

House reconvened, Speaker Cunningham in the chair.

Bliss of Ringgold presented petition of citizens of Beaconsfield, Iowa, in behalf of House File No. 484.

Referred to committee on Railroads and Transportation.

MR. A BILL FOR AN ACT Amending Chapter One Hundred Fifty-seven (157) of the Acts of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly, Relative to Legalizing Certain Conveyances by Foreign Administrators and Executors; Regulating the Proof of Titles to Real Property and Legalizing Certain Instruments and Proceedings as Against Defects Arising Prior to 1900, and as to Defects Prior to 1895; Legalizing Certain Proceedings and Instruments When of Record Ten (10) Years and Regulating Proof of Title as Affected by Such Defects; Legalizing Certain Instruments Executed by Executors, Administrators, Trustees, Guardians, Referees and Commissioners Prior to 1903; Declaring Certain Bonds and Contracts for Deeds Void; Giving Certain Assignments the Same Force and Effect as a Deed of Conveyance; Providing That Persons in Possession or Pending Litigation Shall Not Be Affected by the Provisions of the Act and Giving Claimants One (1) Year in Which to Commence Actions and Barring Their Rights Thereafter.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Section 1. That all conveyances of real estate executed prior to January 1, 1900, wherein the grantor or grantors described herself, himself or themselves as the surviving spouse, heir at law, heirs at law, surviving spouse and heir at law, or surviving spouse and heirs at law of some person deceased in whom the record title or ownership of said real estate previously vested, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be so recited as far as they relate to the right of the grantor or grantors to convey, and said conveyance or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be recited so far as they relate to the right of said grantor or grantors to convey and the said conveyance or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence of his, her or their rights to convey the entire estate, title or interest of such purported deceased person as fully as though the record title of said grantor or grantors has been established by due probate proceedings in the county where the real estate is situated; provided, however, that where any such conveyance in express terms purports to convey less than the entire estate or a limited estate, the recitals above referred to shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be recited so far as they relate to the rights of said grantor or grantors to convey and said conveyance or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence of his, her or their right to convey that portion, title or interest which said conveyance purports to convey as fully as though the record title of said grantor or grantors had been established by due probate proceedings in the county where the real estate is located.

Sec. 2. No existing judgment or decree quieting title to real estate as against defects arising prior to January 1, 1895, and purporting to sustain the record title shall be held ineffectual because of the failure to properly set out in the petition or notice the derivation or devolution of the interest of the unknown defendants or on account of the failure of the record to show that such notice was approved by the court or that the same was published as directed by the court or because of the failure of the record to show that an affidavit was filed by plaintiff showing that personal service could not be made on any defendant in the state of Iowa, or because of the failure of defense by a guardian ad litem for any defendant under legal disability or because of failure to comply with any other provision of law, but all such decrees are hereby made legal and effectual the same as if all provisions of law had been complied with in obtaining them.

Sec. 3. No action shall be brought to set aside a judgment or decree quieting title to real estate rendered prior to January 1, 1903.

Sec. 4. No foreclosure proceeding or sale of real estate on execution prior to January 1, 1895, wherein a sheriff's deed was executed and which purports to sustain the record title shall be held ineffectual on account of the failure of the record to show that any of the steps in obtaining said judgments or in the sale of said property were not complied with, that such proceedings are hereby legalized and made valid as if the record showed that all the provisions of the law had been complied with.

Sec. 5. Affidavits on record in the office of any county recorder at the time of taking effect of this act explaining any defect in the chain of title to real estate arising prior to January 1, 1900, or the records thereof made under section two thousand nine hundred fifty-seven (2957) of the Code shall be conclusive evidence of the facts purported to be stated therein in all actions involving the title to said real estate and affidavits thereafter made and recorded as provided in section two thousand nine hundred fifty-seven (2957) of the Code shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein contained for three (3) years next succeeding the recording thereof and thereafter the same shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein contained.

Sec. 6. In all cases where the record shows that a contract or bond for a deed has been given prior to January 1, 1895, and the record discloses no performance of the same and that more than ten (10) years have elapsed since the contract by its terms was to be performed, that such contract shall be deemed abandoned and of no effect and the land freed from any lien or defect on account of such contract.

Sec. 7. In the proof of title to real estate derived from deeds or other conveyances or instruments affecting real estate, executed prior to January 1, 1900, wherein there is a difference between the Christian name, names, initial or initials in which title is taken, and the Christian name, names, initial or initials of the grantor or grantors in a succeeding conveyance, the surname in both instances being written the same or sounding the same, such conveyances or the records thereof shall be conclusive evidence that the same surname refers to the same person in the several conveyances and instruments.

Sec. 8. In all cases where, prior to the year A. D. 1903, an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner, acting as such in this or any state, has conveyed in such trust capacity real estate lying in this state and such conveyance has been of record since prior to the first day of January, A. D. 1903, in the county where the real estate so conveyed is located and which conveyance purports to sustain the title in the present record owner or owners thereof, such conveyance shall not be held void or insufficient by reason of the fact that due and legal notice of all proceedings with reference to the making of any such conveyance was not served upon all interested or necessary parties or that such executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner is not shown to have been duly authorized by an order of court to make and execute such conveyance, that a bond was not given therefor, or that no report of the sale was made; or such sale or deed of conveyance was not approved by order of court or that any such foreign executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, referee or commissioner was not appointed or qualified in the state of Iowa prior to the making of such conveyance or that the record thereof fails to disclose compliance with any other provisions of law, and all such conveyances are hereby legalized and declared valid, legal and binding and of full force and effect.

Sec. 9. No judgment or decree purporting to set aside any will, or the provisions of any will, or to place any construction upon any will or terms of any will, or to aid in carrying out the provisions of any will and no contract or agreement purporting to be a settlement of any suit or action to set aside any will or the terms of any will or to place any construction upon any will or any of the terms thereof shall be held ineffectual, void or insufficient because the records fail to show proper service of notice on all parties interested, that persons under disability affected by the action were not properly served with notice or represented by guardian or guardian ad litem, either in suit, action or in a settlement thereof, that all persons interested participated in the settlement, or that any other provisions of law had been complied with which are necessary to make a valid decree, judgment or settlement, provided more than ten (10) years have elapsed since the judgment, decree, contract or agreement was filed, entered or placed on record in the county where the real estate affected thereby is situated. And said decree, judgment, contract or agreement shall be conclusive evidence of the right, title or interest it purports to establish or adjudicate in so far as it affects the title to such real estate, and said proceedings therein are hereby made legal and effectual the same as though all provisions of law had been complied with in the obtaining of said decree, judgment or execution of said contract or agreement. And that any judgment, decree, contract or agreement such as above described which is now of record less than ten (10) years in the county in which the real estate is situated, shall, at the expiration of ten (10) years from date of filing, entering or recording thereof, have the same force and effect as is above given to those now in effect more than ten (10) years.

Sec. 10. That in the event the record title to any parcel of real estate discloses that the original entry, certificate of entry, receipt or duplicate thereof has been assigned, that prior to such assignment or thereafter, the United States or state issued a patent or conveyance to the assignor, that no deed of conveyance appears on record from the original entryman or assignor to the assignee, that the present record owner holds title by, through or under such assignment, such assignment shall have the same force and effect as a deed of conveyance and shall be conclusively presumed to carry all right, title, and interest of the patentee of said real estate, the same as though a deed of conveyance had been subsequently executed by the patentee or assignor to a subsequent grantor.

Sec. 11. No sale of real property for taxes made prior to January 1, 1895, wherein the tax deed was executed and which deed purports to sustain the record title, shall be held ineffectual on account of the failure of the record to show that any of the steps in the sale and deeding of said property were not complied with; that said proceedings are hereby legalized and made valid and effectual as if the record showed that all the provisions of law had been complied with.

Sec. 12. That chapter one hundred fifty-seven (157) of the acts of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly are hereby amended as follows: By striking out the figures "1911" in the second line of section 1 and inserting in lieu thereof the figures "1913".

Sec. 13. Any grantee, grantor, surviving spouse, heirs, legatees, devisees, assignees, assignors, personal representative or any other person or persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in any real estate, which right, title or interest may be terminated, divested or cut off by the terms of this act, or whose right, title or interest this act purports to terminate, divest or cut off, but for any reason it would not be thereby terminated, divested or cut off, shall have one (1) year from and after the taking effect of this act in which to commence actions to establish any right, title or interest claimed. But after one (1) year from the taking effect of this act no action shall be maintained and in all matters of evidence made conclusive by this act shall, in actions commenced under this section, be presumptive evidence.

Sec. 14. That the provisions of section three thousand four hundred fifty-three (3453) of the Code extending the period of limitations in favor of minors and insane persons shall not be applicable to any of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 15. This act shall not affect pending litigation; and when so amended the bill do pass.

GERRIT KLAY,
Chairman.

A BILL FOR AN ACT Relating to the Transfer of Messages by Telegraph Companies and Providing for the Violation Thereof, and Conferring Power on the Board of Railroad Commissioners in Connection Therewith.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Section 1. Every person, firm or corporation, whether organized within or without the state, engaged in the business of transmitting messages by telegraph in this state shall, immediately upon the taking effect of this act, provide and thereafter maintain at as many points within this state as shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, transfer or exchange stations, for the purpose of transferring messages originating on the lines of the initial company to the lines of the company having the station of destination.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of all such telegraph companies upon receiving a message either within or without this state, to be transmitted to a point within this state on the line of another telegraph company and not on that of the receiving company when demanded by the sender thereof, to transmit such messages by the quickest route from the point of receiving to the point of destination and with the least possible delay.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the initial telegraph company to transfer messages without delay to the telegraph company upon whose line the point of destination is located when demanded by the sender thereof and it is hereby made the duty of the connecting company upon whose line the point of destination is located to receive and transmit such message or messages to the point of destination without delay and in the same manner as though the message had originated upon the line of the final company.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of all such companies to prepare and publish for the use of the public a schedule of rates for the transmission of messages over the lines of connecting companies as in this act provided, and which rates for transmission shall not exceed the sum of the rates now charged by the initial company from the point of receiving to the nearest point of intersection or crossing of the lines of the receiving company and those of the company having the point of destination, plus the regular rate now charged from such point of intersection or crossing to the destination.

Sec. 5. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, the state board of railroad commissioners shall have general supervision of all telegraph companies operating and doing business in this state and shall have authority to compel compliance with this act, and to prevent discrimination and to fix and establish just rates for such transferred messages, as provided in this act, provided, however, that should a state utility commission be hereafter created by virtue of statute then the powers herein granted to the railroad commission shall immediately cease and be transferred to such utility commission the same as though this act had directly conferred upon such utility commission the powers herein granted.

Sec. 6. If the proprietor of any such telegraph line or lines within the state of Iowa, or person having control or management thereof, fail to comply with or violate any of the provisions of this act, it shall subject such proprietor or person in control to a penalty of one hundred dollars ($100.00) in addition to actual damage, if any, for each and every such violation or failure, to be recovered by the sender of such message in a court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 7. Any person, firm, or corporation, or any employe or agent of such firm or corporation, violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly; and when so amended the bill do pass.

The following communication was received from Clifford Thorne, chairman of the state board of railroad commissioners, in response to concurrent resolution duly adopted:

March 13, 1913

The Honorable Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly:

Gentlemen: In compliance with the Concurrent Resolution, passed by both houses of the General Assembly, March 11th and 12th, we hereby submit to you the following description of the duties of, and cases handled by, the Commerce Counsel of Iowa during the past biennial period, and his relation to the Commission.

In the cases hereafter described, the Commission co-operated with the Commerce Council in handling the following:

Advances in rates on butter, poultry and eggs;

Western Classification No. 51;

Mississippi River case;

"Interior" Iowa case (affecting shipments between Iowa points and the East);

Iowa-Western Rate Case; and the

Sanborn Rate Case.

The Advanced Rate Case is described because it was concluded during the past two years and had the Commerce Council been in existence, it would have been the duty of this official to have co-operated in handling the case or to have taken charge of the same.

The Commerce Council had charge of all of the other cases hereafter described.

FUNCTIONS OF THE COMMERCE COUNSEL.

The Commerce Council is attorney for the consumers, shippers and producers generally throughout this state in cases involving rates and services before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Iowa Board of Railroad Commissioners. The Commerce Council is not attorney for the Commission any more than are the lawyers who appear for the railroads and express companies; on the other side of these same controversies.

The State Board of Railroad Commissioners is primarily a tribunal for the determination of opposing interests on intra-state matters, including rates and services.

In the past it has been customary to find the railroads represented in these cases by lawyers and traffic men of very great capacity and long expert training, while the people were usually represented by amateurs, who worked under tremendous disadvantages.

It has been our plan to develop a department whose special duty it was to care for these matters, which would be composed of capable lawyers and rate experts devoting their entire time to these matters, and thereby becoming experts capable of meeting the experts on behalf of the railroads.

Our State Railroad Commission, the Inter-state Commerce Commission and practically every state commission in the country, is empowered to act practically as a judge, deciding controversies as to rates and services between the public and the railroads; and at the same time they are empowered to take the initiative on behalf of the public. In other words, they are expected to act as judge, jury, lawyer and witness, all at one and the same time. This is an absurd combination and was bound to fail. What has been the result? Every commission in the country, including both the strong ones and the weak ones, have dropped their prosecuting functions and have confined themselves almost exclusively to deciding cases brought before them. You cannot name a case decided in the entire history of the Inter-state Commerce Commission where an advance was denied or a rate reduced affecting Iowa, in which some person outside of the commission did not initiate and prosecute the case.

Up to two years ago, no department of the Iowa state government had ever successfully prosecuted a case before the Inter-state Commerce Commission. During the past two years Iowa has handled cases before the Inter-state Commerce Commission involving several millions of dollars. As yet we have not lost a case. This is due simply to the remarkably fruitful field for work which awaited this department; and the fact that we have tried to carefully select only such causes as were just.

The field for the work of the Commerce Counsel is tremendous, and almost inexhaustible, depending wholly upon the capacity of the man who fills the place.

The railroad earnings from Iowa traffic last year amounted in round numbers to $80,000,000.00; of this sum approximately $70,000,000.00 was earned on inter-state traffic, and $10,000,000.00 on state traffic.

It is impossible for any one not thoroughly in this work to have a conception of the magnitude of the field of work properly belonging to the Commerce Counsel.

Yesterday a bound volume naming over a thousand changes in rates and weights, proposed by the railroads, reached our office. A hearing will be held on them, at St. Louis, commencing April 1st. April 3d, we must be represented at Washington, D. C., in oral argument affecting the rates on over seven thousand articles from over a thousand Iowa towns to all points in sixteen states west of the Missouri river.

The Commerce Counsel department has been and can be many times more than self-sustaining. Many rate cases involve very small amounts of money, and on the other hand, there are a few that involve vast sums of money. For instance, the money involved in the Butter, Poultry and Egg Case, described herein, amounted to over three hundred and fifty thousand dollars annually, so far as Iowa alone was concerned. And the sum involved in the Feeding Cattle Rate Case, so far as it affected Iowa, amounted to more than two hundred thousand dollars annually. These cases, in addition to Western Classification No. 51, are by far the most important which have been concluded since the office of Commerce Counsel was created. All of these cases terminated in our favor. Had the advances proposed in these three cases gone into effect it would have cost Iowa more than a million dollars a year. The record in the Advanced Rate Case shows the sum at stake in the entire country in that case amounted to more than fifty millions of dollars annually. This case was concluded in February, 1910. The advance was denied.

Changes in rates are going on constantly at the present time. Last week, for instance, 113 tariffs affecting Iowa Inter-state traffic were filed with the Inter-state Commerce Commission, each one of them including from a half dozen to several hundred changes in rates. This is a typical week. The regular routine task of keeping a constant check on these changes, and guarding Iowa's interests, is tremendous. Any month we are also liable to be confronted with a case of great importance similar to the Western Classification Case, or the Advanced Rate Case, both of which were concluded during the past two years. The great task of compelling a general revision of Iowa interstate rates, now in progress, will be worthless unless you follow that up by carefully guarding the rates which we secure.

The size of the record in these cases is enormous. In the Eastern Iowa case there were over four hundred exhibits filed and eleven hundred pages of testimony. In the Sanborn rate case the record covered a little over eight thousand pages. In the Advanced rate case, the record consisted of ten thousand, (10,069, to be exact) printed pages.

It is perfectly proper that more than one attorney should work on cases of this magnitude. In private business if you had a case involving a hundred thousand dollars you would not hesitate to employ more than one counsel. The railroads always have pursued this policy. For instance, in the case before the interstate commerce commission, involving the class rates from Iowa, to eastern points, the following lawyers appeared and represented the railroads:

T. H. Norton (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway company.

R. B. Scott (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad company.

C. C. Wright (Chicago, Ill.), general solicitor for the Chicago & North Western railway company.

Garrard Winston (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Chicago Great Western Railroad Company.

William Ellis (Chicago, Ill.), commerce counsel for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company.

W. F. Dickinson (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company.

A. P. Humburg, general attorney for the Illinois Central Railroad Company.

George W. Seevers (Minneapolis, Minn.), general counsel for the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company and the Iowa Central Railway Company.

M. S. Connolly (Pittsburgh, Pa.), general attorney for the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Company, Pennsylvania Company and Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Douglas Swift (New York City, N. Y.), attorney for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company.

O. E. Butterfield (Detroit, Mich.), general attorney for the New York Central lines.

The chairman of this commission has gone beyond his duties absolutely required by law in handling six of the important interstate cases. But during the early tentative stages of the growth of the commerce counsel department, it was thought wise to do everything possible to help to get it on its feet and make it an unqualified success. Under the law the commerce counsel on interstate cases must do what is required of him by the board. More and more the commerce counsel has been given charge of interstate cases.

It is absolutely necessary on intrastate cases that the commerce counsel shall be entirely independent of the state board so that he can be truly the advocate of the public before the commission with power to take the initiative on behalf of the public. This serves two purposes. First, it lets him fight his case as he pleases without the embarrassment of representing the tribunal which makes the decision. Second, it serves as a check,—if he becomes lax, the commission is still there to guard the public interests; if the commission becomes weak and ineffective, the commerce counsel can do some very effective prodding. A check of this sort is well, where such large interests are involved.

On interstate cases I think it wise for both departments to be able to co-operate, as at present, on important matters. Both must use the rate department, the tariff files, etc.

I think it well for the state to be able to hold this department responsible for results. We have tried to bring results. If we have failed, you should make a change. If we have succeeded, you should leave things as they are, and encourage us to further work and success, and not try to cripple or to hamper us.

Respectfully submitted,

CLIFFORD THORNE,

Chairman State Board of Railroad Commissioners.

ORGANIZATION OF THE RATE DEPARTMENT.

The Rate Department of the Iowa Commission was organized about July 15, 1911. At this time there were less than one thousand effective tariffs in the files, and such tariffs were those of the roads passing through the state. The department has now over 20,000 effective tariffs and supplements which affect interstate traffic from Iowa points. This file has been of great value in quoting rates to shippers in the state, and, of course, has been of great assistance in preparing and prosecuting the interstate rate cases. This file is open to the public at all times.

The department has compiled a set of rate charts covering various important commodities, such as live stock, grain, coal, lumber, etc., showing rates from Iowa stations to the principal markets; for example,—grain rates are shown from the Iowa stations to Chicago, Kansas City, Peoria, St. Louis and St. Paul. These tables are revised daily as the rates are changed by supplements or re-issues of the tariffs.

IMPORTANT INTERSTATE CASES CLOSED.

WESTERN CLASSIFICATION NO. 51.

Western Classification No. 51 is a tariff published by the railroads causing changes on over a thousand items affecting interstate traffic to and from every town in Iowa and all points in Illinois, Wisconsin and all points west of the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. A member of the Iowa Commission as chairman of the committee representing sixteen western state commissions protested against the advances proposed.

This single case is equivalent to more than a thousand cases because each one of the thousand advances would be applicable between all Iowa points and all of the territory above described.

The investigation lasted over one year, resulting in one of the most important decisions ever rendered by the commission. Next to the opinion in the express case, it is the longest ever made by the commission.

The carriers, in compliance with the orders of the commission, have filed several hundred changes effective March 31st.

Amongst the important items was an advance of 100 per cent on binding twine, 50 per cent on silos, 23 per cent on sweat pads and collars, 50 per cent on essential oils, 40 per cent on cattle and sheep dip, 150 per cent on litter carriers mixed with agricultural implements.

A few of the important phases of the decisions of the commission in this case are as follows:

First in importance are the rules and regulations. The carriers proposed many things. These are applicable to every city, town and hamlet west of the Mississippi river. The state commissions made objections to fourteen of these rules, and changes were made or ordered in twelve of them.

A concrete illustration of these concerns the dunnage allowance. Prior to the issuance of No. 51, the carriers permitted shippers to use lumber and boards to prop up machinery in a car, the railroads hauling 500 pounds of such lumber free of charge. No. 51 abolished this dunnage privilege, and the commission ordered it reinstated. When one considers the thousands of shipments that are made annually, the importance of such a ruling can be appreciated.

Another change of importance to the western half of the United States concerns green hides. The carriers put in a rule permitting them to refuse to take green hides for shipment. We pointed out that they could be stored or handled in live stock cars, and not contaminate other commodities, and claimed that the carriers should be compelled to accept same for transportation. Our position was sustained by the commission.

Second, several hundred advances were proposed by the railroads in minimum weights. They announced their policy to be the establishment of minimums upon the physical capacity of the cars, refusing to take into consideration the commercial conditions surrounding the transportation. Prior to the decision in this case the commission was divided on this proposition.

A concrete illustration of the result of this policy is as follows: Ferris wheels are never loaded more than one to a car in actual traffic, but a car will hold two wheels with a combined weight of considerably more than 24,000 pounds. This was used as a justification to raise the minimum weight fifty per cent.—from 16,000 to 24,000. Commercial conditions dictate the 16,000 minimum, and the carriers are ordered to reinstate the same. This decision crystallizes the policy of the federal government in favor of considering both the physical capacity of the car and the commercial conditions in the establishment of minimum weights.

Third. (Mixtures). One of the most important parts of this case concerns carload mixtures. The carriers have proposed the elimination of carload mixtures on 234 articles, and have proposed changes restricting carload mixtures on more than three hundred other articles. One of the most important changes affecting carload mixtures, which serves as an illustration of the effect of such changes, concerns binding twine. Prior to the issuance of No. 51, the carriers permitted binding twine to be shipped mixed with agricultural implements, all of which took carload rates. In No. 51, they proposed to apply L. C. L. rates on all shipments of binding twine made in this manner. This would have caused an advance of about one hundred per cent in the freight rates on binding twine and more than ninety per cent of all binding twine shipments, we were told by the largest shippers in the country, would be affected by this hundred per cent advance.

As indicating the policy of the carriers; thirty-two articles had carload mixtures granted to them, while over five hundred articles were totally eliminated from carload mixtures, or the mixtures were changed or restricted. The Interstate Commerce Commission in their decision has ordered the carriers to pursue diametrically the opposite course. Instead of restricting mixtures, they are instructed to make them more liberal.

On these three great phases of the case, the representatives of the nine hundred railroads who are defendants, and the representatives of the sixteen state railroad commissions clashed. The state commissions opposed the railroads on fourteen of their rules, on the proposition that commercial conditions are properly considered in the framing of carload minimum weights, and lastly, on the proposition that mixtures should be made more liberal instead of being restricted. In all three of these positions taken by the carriers, the tendency was against the small shipper, increasing the carload minimums, limiting the carload mixtures, and making the rules more burdensome; three matters of truly national importance.

Frequently generalizations are not nearly so instructive as concrete illustrations. For that reason, we have compiled the following itemized list of the recommendations urged by the state commissions, and the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission on all articles where specific complaint was made by us, and sustained by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

RULES.

Rule 2. This rule, as proposed by the railroads, placed the burden upon the shipper of knowing whenever articles take different rates because of the value of said commodity, and required the shipper to prepare and sign a statement for the railroad. Our contention was that where two rates were applicable on the same shipment because of different values, it is the duty of the carrier to notify the shipper of this fact. The commission decides:

"This rule should be so reconstructed, as to place upon the carriers the positive duty to first print those conditions, and not require the shippers to write them, and upon the carrier's agent, the duty to notify the shipper of the alternative rates and present for his signature, the necessary bill of lading, to secure the desired rate."

Rule 4. This rule gave to the carriers the right to refuse to carry freight on which they have a rating. Objections came chiefly from the shippers of green hides. The commission decides:

"We think the rule should be modified so as to eliminate the carriers' right to refuse shipments of green hides when they are in proper condition for transportation."

Rule 6-A. Section 1. State commissions asked that the phrase "one loading point" should be stricken from the rule. And the commission so decided.

Rule 6-A. Sec. 4. The state commissions said.

"If this rule is allowed to go into effect, and is obeyed, the agent can, by failing to perform duties required of him, or for the purpose of discriminating, or for any other reason which may occur to him, or through carelessness or ignorance, wrongfully distribute a carload of freight, and penalize the consignor by causing said shipment to draw less than carload rate.

"We respectfully submit that the provision is exceedingly unjust and unfair, and should be stricken in its entirety from the classification, or else the clause 'on written request of the consignor, consignee or owner,' be inserted before the word 'destination.'"

The Interstate Commerce Commission decides:

"This punishes the shipper for the derelictions of the carriers' agents. We cannot approve of such a rule."

Rule 6-B. Two main issues concerning this rule had to do, first, with the unit, and second, with its application. It was suggested by the state commissions that on some articles cubical contents rather than linear feet be taken as a proper basis, and the Interstate Commerce Commission so decided. The application of this rule to agricultural implements caused a very extended discussion in the record. The carriers wanted to advance the carload minimum on agricultural implements from 20,000 to 24,000. This advance was disapproved by the commission. On the direct issue as to whether or not commercial conditions are factors to be considered in estimating minimum weights, the carriers took the position that they should not be considered, and the state commissions took the position that they should be considered; and the Interstate Commerce Commission decided as follows:

"If individual rates, with respect to which the commission is required to make orders, or which the carriers establish, may be determined as they have been, by so-called commercial conditions, why should not minimum weights be affected and established in the light of these same conditions. It is our conclusion, therefore, that carriers should take into consideration both the physical minimum and the commercial minimum in deciding upon a classification minimum to govern carload shipments throughout the country, and provide themselves with cars of corresponding sizes."

Rule 7. Par. 2. Note E. This rule required all overflow shipments, no matter how large, to be marked by the shipper.

The state commissions said:

"This rule is not complained of, nor are objections made to the same if it is to apply only when a shipper is, in fact, forwarding an overflow shipment and such overflow is not caused by the act of the carrier, and it does not exceed 6,000 pounds. However, when the overflow does exceed 6,000 pounds, or in the direct results of the failure on the part of the carrier to furnish the size of the car ordered by the shipper, it does not seem fair or just or reasonable that the penalty for such failure should fall upon the shipper."

The Interstate Commerce Commission ruled as follows:

“‘Follow lot’ shipments should be marked by the shipper of the ‘follow lot’ whenever they constitute an overflow, resulting from the failure of the shipper to designate the dimensions of cars required for his shipment. But where the shipment could be loaded in a car of the size ordered by the shipper and two cars are furnished by the carrier, the marking where necessary should be done by the carrier.”

Rule 7. By this rule the carriers sought to require a certain form of tag to mark shipments, made with metal eyelets. The state commissions objected to this, and the Interstate Commerce Commission disapproved the change.

Rule 10. This is a new rule providing a change in the nested rule, requiring three or more articles to be packed in a certain given manner in order to secure interstate ratings, which are much lower than others. If this change had gone into effect, it would have caused an increase in freight rates of more than fifty per cent to the sellers and purchasers of iron tanks on the farms generally throughout this territory.

State commissions objected to the rule, and were sustained by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rule 18. State commissions protested against the rule because of the large advance in freight rates whenever the carriers load or unload a large shipment. Carriers make application of the minimum carload rate on the L. C. L. shipments wholly conditional upon the shipper loading or unloading.

State commissions claimed the charge for less than car loads should not exceed the charge for carloads, plus the reasonable charge or cost which should be allowed for the carrier to handle it. In the past, this has been one and one-fourth cents. The commission orders the continuance of one and one-fourth cents per hundred pounds, as in the past, and disapproves the change proposed by the carriers, causing the advance stated.

Rule 24. Sec. 2. State commissions objected to the phrase “one loading point,” and the same was stricken from the rule by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rule 27. This is the dunnage rule described above. Carriers heretofore have allowed 500 pounds in Western Classification, and a thousand pounds dunnage on many articles in Southern Classification, and 500 pounds in Official Classification territory.

Here there was a lack of uniformity, and in an attempt to make it uniform, the railroads attempted to remove all dunnage. The commission ordered the 500 pounds dunnage reinstated.

Rule 30. Carriers attempted to eliminate provisions allowing for returning stoves, and the transportation of caretakers. The commission ordered:

"The classification should either provide for the transportation of a necessary caretaker of perishable freight free of charge, or require carriers to take care of stoves and replenish fuel in transit when such protection is required."

This advance was disapproved by the commission.

In addition to these decisions upon specific cases, the commission laid down certain definite rules, outlined above, for the revision of the rest of the classification, stating:

“It is expected that carriers will revise No. 51 and direct the future development in accordance with the views expressed in this report.”

If this is done in a bona fide manner it will mean more than a thousand changes. That the carriers have seriously undertaken this task in a fair manner, is evidenced by the fact that their first installment of changes in No. 51, covers three hundred and twenty-five subjects, equivalent to over six hundred items.

In addition to the establishment of the basic principles for three important factors of the classification framing carload mixtures, minimum weights and rules described in the fore part of this analysis, probably the most fundamental change resulting from this investigation is the order of the commission prescribing specifically the manner in which classification shall be made in the future.

In their decision the commission says:

"The making of a freight classification is a great public function. In the past the hearings before the classification committees have been semi-public rather than public, and in a certain sense they have been private, although in later years the tendency has been toward greater publicity. Public business can not be conducted in a private way. The failure to recognize this fact fully, and to proceed in accordance with it, has been largely responsible for the commotion centering about Classification No. 51."

As to the future, the commission states:

"Procedure in the Future.—The formal hearings of classification committees hereafter should be made public, after due notice to the interested parties, including state commissions and the Interstate Commerce Commission. A record of the facts and arguments for and against a certain classification should be kept. As rapidly as items, or groups of items, have been disposed of by the classification committee they should be published in accordance with law. In case of a protest to this commission, the record made up before the committee should be promptly transmitted to the commission. On the basis of this record, supplemented when necessary by additional inquiries, the commission will be able to decide whether or not to suspend a proposed change in the classification. We believe that this manner of procedure will obviate nearly all formal proceedings in the future, and will confine investigations on the part of this commission to the relatively few and large matters decisive of principles and possibly also affecting great material interests."

A western classification of freight fixes the relative rates on eight thousand articles throughout three-fourths of the nation. No. 51 proposed more changes than any other tariff ever filed by any railroad or railroads. And the decision in this case is the most epoch-making on classification matters ever rendered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

POULTRY, BUTTER AND EGGS.

About July 12, 1912, the Iowa Commission was advised that the railway companies in Official Classification Territory were considering an advance from second to first-class in the freight rates on butter, eggs and poultry. The commission received numerous requests asking the Iowa Commission to intervene in behalf of the interested shippers and associations at the hearing before the Official Classification committee.

The chairman of the Official Classification committee advised that the commission could be heard at New York on July 23rd, at which time a member of the Iowa Commission and the commerce counsel appeared before the committee protesting against the proposed advances. This matter was of vast importance to the Iowa shippers. We asked the State Dairy Food department to give us a conservative estimate of the volume of traffic moving from Iowa points to the Atlantic coast, which would be affected by the change; we asked for the same figures from the State Poultry Dealers' association. With this as the basic figures, and knowing the advance in cents per hundred pounds, we find that the proposed advance in the rates would have cost Iowa approximately $356,000.00 annually. After the hearing the Official Classification committee did not advance the rates.

ADVANCED RATE CASE.

The commission was represented in oral argument of this case by a member of the commission who had been working on the case prior to his qualifying as a railroad commissioner.

The carriers in eastern territory testified that the advance would net them in round numbers $27,000,000.00 annually. The western carriers sought an advance on two hundred different commodities affecting this territory and the two combined aggregated over $50,000,000.00, as a general advance for freight rates in the United States. Probably never before in the history of the human race has such a large sum been involved between private individuals before any tribunal. The carriers failed to get this fifty million ($50,000,000.00) dollar advance. A member of the Iowa commission opened and closed the argument for the shippers of the country in this case.

As confirmation of my statement I will call attention to the following extract from the decision of the commission which can be found in I. C. C. Docket No. 3500, page 2: "This proceeding, which is probably known as the 'Western Advanced Rate Case,' involves the reasonableness of the rates upon some two hundred commodities which the carriers west of Chicago have attempted to increase."

IMPORTANT INTERSTATE CASES NOW PENDING.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER CASE.

On July 11, 1911, the Iowa commission instituted proceedings before the interstate commerce commission relative to class rates (this includes over 8,000 articles) between points on the Atlantic seaboard and in Central Freight Association territories, which includes all eastern points, and cities located on the Mississippi river between Dubuque and Keokuk. At the present time, St. Louis is enjoying 117 per cent of the Chicago rate on shipments from the east, while the Mississippi river cities pay 122 per cent of the Chicago rate, plus the bridge toll, which is 5 cents per hundred pounds on first-class, and graduated down for the other classes.

Hearings were held at Des Moines, Iowa, on November 1, 1911, before the interstate commerce commission, and by request of this commission, a special hearing was held at Keokuk, Iowa, on January 18, 1912. This hearing was requested at Keokuk because of the vast importance a readjustment in the rates would mean to the growth of this city on account of the industries which will be located there after the completion of the dam. A member of the commission, the commerce counsel and his assistant, attended these hearings and examined and cross-examined witnesses.

At a later date a printed brief and reply brief were filed in the name of the commission, and on March 22, 1912, this commission presented oral argument at Washington, D. C., before the interstate commerce commission.

In these cases, 159 exhibits were prepared and introduced by the rate department of the Iowa commission. The case is now submitted and is awaiting decision. In this case we claim that the Iowa cities on the Mississippi river should have the same rates to and from the east as does Quincy, Hannibal, Louisiana (Mo.), St. Louis, and East St. Louis.

INTERIOR IOWA CASE.

On June 3, 1910, the Iowa commission instituted proceedings before the interstate commerce commission regarding the class rates between interior Iowa points and eastern points.

Hearings were held at Des Moines, Iowa, on October 30 and 31, 1911, at which time a large number of witnesses were examined and cross-examined by a member of the commission, the commerce counsel and his assistant.

This commission filed a printed brief and reply brief, and on March 22, 1912, presented oral argument to the interstate commerce commission at Washington, D. C. As previously stated, the rate department of the Iowa commission prepared 159 exhibits which were filed in this case and the Mississippi river case.

The main proposition insisted upon by the Iowa Commission as to interior Iowa points is that there should be a complete revision of the interstate rates to and from these interior points. At the present time, there is a haphazard, unreasonable series of groups throughout Iowa. The Interstate Commerce Commission, in the Burnham-Hanna-Munger decision, as subsequently modified in the Warnock case, has held 55 cents to be the reasonable differential across the state of Iowa on first-class traffic from the Atlantic seaboard. In other words, this 55 cents is the amount to be added to the first-class rate up to the Mississippi river, in order to equal the Missouri river rate. It is our claim that this 55 cents should be equitably distributed across Iowa. At present, we find more than one-half of this 55 cents absorbed before we get beyond the first tier of counties west of the Mississippi river. There was a radical change in the groupings of the live stock rates throughout Iowa, and it is the desire of the commission in the present contest to affect just as radical a change in the groupings of these class rates.

This case is now submitted.

WESTERN RATE CASE.

This proceeding was instituted by the commission on its own motion. The petition was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 23, 1912, and covers rates between approximately 1,000 Iowa towns, and all points in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, and all points in California, Oregon and Washington, except points taking Pacific coast rates. The case involves many thousands of rates, both class and commodity, which vitally interest and affect Iowa towns.

Hearing was called at Chicago, Illinois, on January 21, 1913, before Commissioner Prouty, at which time many shippers and traffic men of the various commercial clubs introduced testimony and filed exhibits. A member of the Iowa Commission, together with the Commerce Counsel, examined and cross-examined the witnesses, and have filed briefs, and will later appear in oral argument before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

INTERSTATE CASES HANDLED BY COMMERCE COUNSEL INDEPENDENT OF ANY ASSISTANCE FROM THE BOARD OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

ADVANCE IN COAL RATES.

The commission was advised that the carriers had issued supplements to their freight tariffs advancing the rates on coal from the Iowa mines to points in South Dakota and Montana. A representative of the Iowa Commission (the Commerce Counsel) appeared at the hearing in Omaha, on November 22, 1912, opposing the said advance.

At the conclusion of the hearing the carriers voluntarily announced that the advanced rates would be withdrawn.

FEEDING CATTLE RATE.

At the present time rate on feeding cattle on interstate traffic to Iowa points is 75% of the fat cattle rate. Last year the railroads sought to advance this to the regular fat cattle rate. If this advance had gone into effect it would have cost Iowa, according to the estimate of the president of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, more than $200,000.00 annually.

The attempt was defeated, the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission being against the railroads. In this case Iowa was represented by Commerce Counsel, Judge Henderson.

Dubuque Shippers' Association vs. C. & N. W., et al.

This case affects less-than-carload shipments from Dubuque to points in Wisconsin. On September 5, 1912, petition, or complaint was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hearing was held at Des Moines on November 16, 1912. The case is now pending.

Dubuque Shippers' Association vs. Ill. Cent. R. R. et al.

On November 11, 1912, complaint was made to Interstate Commerce Commission on account of rates on excelsior. Case was assigned for hearing at Dubuque on February 21, 1913.

Marshall Oil Company, Marshalltown, Ia., vs. C. & N. W. et al.

On September 10, 1912, petition was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning rates on axle grease in mixed carloads. Case was assigned for hearing at Des Moines, November 16, 1912. Brief was filed with Interstate Commerce Commission on December 14, 1912.

The case is now pending.

State of Iowa vs. Atlantic Coast Line R. R. Co., et al.

This case affected rates on glucose from Iowa points to the Atlantic seaboard. It was submitted May 17, 1912, and decision rendered by the Interstate Commerce Commission in favor of complainant.

Iowa and Southwestern Ry. Co. vs. C. B. & Q R. R.

Complaint has been filed in this case which affects through traffic arrangements but date for hearing has not yet been fixed.

EXPRESS RATES, RULES AND PRACTICES.

A general investigation was made by the Interstate Commerce Commission of express rates, rules and practices. The Iowa Commission appeared in the said case through the Commerce Counsel. Different protests were filed by Iowa shippers against existing conditions and rates, the most important of which related to doubling the charge on shipments sent C. O. D. This was ordered changed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Interstate Commerce Commission rendered an epoch-making decision, completely overhauling the entire express rate structure in the country, and placing the same chiefly on a distance basis; also the commission has abolished many of the abuses and wrong practices that have been grown up about this business.

TRANSCONTINENTAL RATES.

The Iowa Railroad Commission, through the Commerce Counsel intervened in the case of the suspension of certain tariffs raising and readjusting transcontinental rates. Case has been submitted and is now pending.

WEIGHING OF FREIGHT BY CARRIERS.

The state of Iowa has been represented by the Commerce Counsel at a number of hearings in the matter of investigation of alleged irregularities and discrepancies in the weighing of freight by the carriers. Other hearings will be held in the near future.

CEMENT RATES.

This case affected the rates on cement from producing points to Eddyville, Iowa. The matter was adjusted by the department of the Commerce Counsel with the railway company without the necessity of a formal complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

LUMBER RATES.

Complaint was made in regard to rates on lumber from southern producing points to certain Iowa cities on the C. R. I. & P. Some of the rates have already been adjusted by the railway company, and others are in the process of adjustment, which, if consummated, will remove the necessity to bring formal complaint before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

COFFIN STOCK CASE.

State of Iowa vs. Railway Companies. This case affected rates on coffin stock. On August 30, 1912, complaint was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hearing was held at Des Moines December 16, 1912. Decision is pending.

CAR FACILITIES.

During the present winter months the commission has received numerous complaints regarding shortage of cars for shipment of grain, livestock, etc., principally regarding shortage of grain cars.

On January 14, 1913, the Farmers' Grain Dealers' Association of Iowa, by R. H. McVicker, secretary, Eagle Grove, Iowa, filed a petition requesting a formal hearing upon the question as to what is an equitable distribution of cars during times of stringency. The board named February 4, 1913, in their offices at Des Moines as time and place for the hearing, and accordingly, all interested parties were so notified.

The case of the Western Grain Dealers' Association, by Geo. A. Wells, secretary, Des Moines, Iowa, regarding shortage of cars for grain shipments, was set for hearing at the same time.

At the conference a large number of interested grain dealers and managers of farmers' elevator companies testified as to the conditions existing in the state. The representatives of the carriers also submitted their testimony to the commission. The hearing was concluded on February 5th. Ninety-two appearances were made.

As practically all of the shipments concerned were interstate, the commission announced at the close of the hearing that the Commerce Counsel would be instructed to present the matter to the Interstate Commerce Commission for both the complainants in the case; also that an abstract of the testimony offered at the hearing before this board would be prepared and presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Facts are now being prepared by the Commerce Counsel for presentation as ordered by the Iowa Commission.

IMPORTANT INTRA-STATE CASES.

SANBORN RATE CASE.

At a conference of several state railroad commissions at Lincoln, Neb., on August 30, 1911, it was decided to file a brief before the supreme court of the United States, as amici curise, opposing several of the positions taken by Judge Sanborn in the decision in the Minnesota rate cases. This decision directly imperils the powers and usefulness of state commissions in fixing rates of common carriers.

On September 7, 1911, the Iowa Commission decided to join with the several states in preparing such a brief, in as much as the coal rates fixed by the commission were enjoined by the United States circuit court, on application of the railroad companies, and further action in this case was withheld, awaiting decision in the Minnesota case.

A member of the Iowa commission was chosen chairman of the committee to prepare and file the brief for the eight state commissions. Representatives of the commissions prepared the brief at Des Moines, under the direction of the chairman of the committee. The commerce counsel took active part in all consultations.

The case is now pending before the supreme court of the United States.

Amongst the most important issues at stake in this case are the following:

First.—That an order of a state commission reducing rates which may affect a competitive rate outside of the state constitutes interference with interstate commerce such as to make it unconstitutional.

Second.—That seven per cent is a reasonable rate of return.

Third.—That a railroad is entitled to a return on the value of real estate multiplied by two or three.

Fourth.—That expenses should be distributed between state and interstate traffic on a revenue basis.

Fifth.—That values should be distributed between state and interstate traffic on a revenue basis.

Sixth.—Value, new (and not present value), is the correct basis.

Several of these issues will affect many millions of dollars in the valuation of Iowa railroads. The supreme court of the United States has held repeatedly during the past two years that the volume of the railroads is the basis of all computations as to reasonableness of rates.

INTRASTATE CASES HANDLED BY COMMERCE COUNSEL.

SWITCHING CASE.

The Iowa State Manufacturers' Association, Des Moines branch, by G. A. Wrightman, secretary, filed with the board an application requesting establishment of reasonable maximum rates for switching services and a definition of industrial vicinity of Des Moines, Iowa.

The Commercial Club of Cedar Rapids, by H. F. Sundberg, traffic manager, filed a similar application regarding switching services at Cedar Rapids, and the Clinton Manufacturers' and Shippers' Association, by M. D. Smiley, secretary, filed an application for such an order to apply at Clinton, Iowa. After several hearings, these cases were submitted to the commission on July 16, 1912.

While these cases were pending before the commission the carriers advanced the rates for industrial switching services throughout the state. The rates named in these tariffs were voluntarily withdrawn by the carriers on request of the commission, until decision was reached in these switching cases.

On January 14, 1913, the commission rendered decision in the Des Moines case, in which the jurisdiction of the commission was considered. The opinion also defines switching service, industrial switching, joint industrial switching and industrial vicinity. A reasonable maximum charge for industrial switching service was found to be 3-4 cents per hundred pounds, actual weight, subject to a minimum charge of four dollars per car for a haul of three miles, or less, and $5.00 a car for a haul over three miles.

The reasonable maximum charge for a joint industrial switching service was found to be the same as described for industrial switching, for the originating road. If this service is performed by two carriers, the terminating line shall receive not to exceed $3.00 per car, and if the service is over three or more lines, the maximum charge for the intermediate carriers shall be $2.00 per car.

The opinions in the Cedar Rapids and Clinton cases, applied the findings in the Des Moines case.

The carriers were expected to comply with the findings of the commission within 36 days from the date of the order, and at this time the companies are filing tariffs complying with the opinion of the board.

LIVE STOCK CASE.

The Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, by their president and secretary, filed a letter with the commission on May 4, 1911, requesting that a date be set for hearing on Index No. 10, supplement No. 7, to Iowa Classification No. 14, which provides for the continuation for the exception to Rule 35, that 51 feet be the standard length of cars for the shipment of live stock in the state of Iowa. This exception was to expire June 1, 1911.

After several hearings and a re-hearing, the commission rendered its opinion on September 3, 1912, finding reasonable requirements as to car-load minimum weights to be as follows:

In 36 ft. cars.	To-day.
Hogs	16,000
Stock cattle	20,000
Fat cattle	22,000
Sheep, single deck	10,000
Sheep, double deck	19,000

And when cars of smaller dimensions than 36 ft. in length are furnished:
To-day.

Fat cattle	20,000
Hogs	15,000

In accordance with these findings, supplement No. 10 was issued and became effective on October 7, 1912.

SPEAKER—Your committee on Appropriations, to whom was referred House File No. 41, a bill for an act to provide for the manufacture of binding twine in the state prison of Iowa, beg leave to report they have had the same under consideration and have instructed me to report the same back to the House with the recommendation that the same be amended by the following substitute amendment:

A BILL FOR AN ACT to Provide for the Manufacture and Sale of Binding Twine at the Reformatory at Anamosa, to Make an Appropriation Therefor and to Punish Violation of This Act and of Agreements Made Under its Provisions.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Section 1. That the board of control of state institutions is hereby authorized to establish and maintain at the reformatory at Anamosa or at the penitentiary at Ft. Madison the industry of manufacturing and selling binding twine on state account. The machinery of the plant shall have capacity to manufacture not less than ten thousand pounds of finished product each day.

Sec. 2. The price of binding twine and terms of sale shall be fixed by the warden, subject to the approval of the board of control, not later than the first day of March of each year. Such twine shall be sold to actual consumers within this state in quantities needed for their use and to dealers within this state, under such rules and regulations as shall be adopted by the board of control, for cash or on security, to be approved by the warden as provided by such rules and regulations. Dealers desiring to purchase twine shall enter into an agreement in writing with the warden to sell only to actual consumers within the state for their own use. Such agreement shall also provide that when such twine is sold for cash it shall be at a price not greater than one cent per pound above the purchase price and freight from the reformatory to the station where such twine is sold, and when such twine is sold on time it shall be sold at a price not greater than the purchase price and one and one-half cents per pound and freight added. The warden shall hold at the reformatory until the first day of March of each year, not less than one million pounds of twine for the purpose of filling cash orders from actual consumers within the state and thereafter and until the fifteenth day of June of each year he shall hold one hundred thousand pounds and after that date all twine may be sold. Whenever in the opinion of the board of control the best interests of this state so require twine may be sold to consumers and dealers without this state but reasonable provision must first be made to meet the probable demands of consumers and dealers within this state.

Sec. 3. The state shall retain such an interest in twine sold to dealers that if any dealer shall violate his agreement with the warden in any particular, or violate the provisions of this act, the board of control may declare the twine purchased and held under said agreement forfeited to the state and authorize possession of such twine to be taken forthwith by the warden. Every dealer purchasing twine under the provisions of this act shall keep it separate from all other twine and shall keep a correct record of all his sales, showing dates and amounts of sales, prices at which sold and name and postoffice address of each purchaser, which record shall be open at all times to the inspection of the warden, board of control and any officer or agent of either, and the county attorney.

Sec. 4. Every dealer who shall violate the terms of the agreement he shall have entered into as hereinbefore provided, or who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished accordingly.

Sec. 5. For the purposes of carrying out the provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated the sum of two hundred thousand dollars, of which seventy-five thousand dollars shall be available for use on the first day of July, A. D. 1913, and the remainder on the first day of January, A. D. 1914. The money so appropriated shall be used under the direction of the board of control to alter, improve, repair and put in condition for use any building or buildings heretofore constructed at the reformatory, and to construct such new buildings as may be required for the installation of the twine plant and for storage purposes. Said money shall also be used for purchasing and installing machinery and appurtenances for manufacturing, for the purchase of material and the payment of wages, and allowances for prisoners. The money not required for buildings nor for the installation of the plant and the payment of wages and allowances with additions thereto, shall constitute a revolving fund for the maintenance of the industry.

Sec. 6. A strict account of all receipts and disbursements on account of said industry shall be kept. Whenever there shall be a net profit therefrom after allowing for maintaining the machinery and equipment and paying all expenses, including wages of officers and employes, the board of control shall allow from such profits, if available, to each prisoner employed in such industry, such sum as shall be fixed by the board of control, based upon his industry, efficiency and general conduct, but not exceeding the wages of persons not prisoners engaged in similar industries. The money so allowed, after deducting therefrom as cost of maintenance the sum of sixty cents for each day the prisoner is imprisoned while employed in said industry, may in the discretion of the board of control be paid in whole or in part and from time to time, to relatives of prisoners dependent upon them for support, or may be paid to the prisoners while in prison or when they are released therefrom; and when so amended the bill do pass.

if approved and ratified by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon, it shall be valid as a part of the constitution of the state of Iowa, as amended, and when said section one (1) of article three (III), of the legislative department is so amended, it shall read as follows:

Sec. 1. The legislative authority of this state shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives, and the style of every law shall be, "Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa," but the people reserve unto themselves the right and power to propose laws, to enact, approve or reject the same at the polls, independent of the general assembly, and reserve the right and power to approve or reject any item, section or part of any act enacted by the general assembly, except otherwise provided by this section. The general assembly shall fix the number of qualified electors required to propose the enactment of any proposed law, which shall be not less than twelve (12%) per cent nor more than twenty-two (22%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Every law proposed by the people shall be presented by petition, signed by the required number of qualified electors, addressed to and filed with the secretary of state not less than one hundred and fifty (150) days before the general election at which the proposed law shall be submitted. The petition shall contain the full text of the proposed law, with title and enacting clause.

The required number of qualified electors required to exercise the right and power to require an act passed by the general assembly to be referred for approval or rejection shall be fixed by the general assembly but shall not be less than ten (10%) per cent nor more than twenty (20%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Petitions therefor shall be addressed to and filed with the secretary of state within ninety (90) days from the final adjournment of the general assembly which passed the act to which the petition is addressed, and shall contain a full text of that part of the act to be referred; but such right and power shall not extend or apply to an act passed by the general assembly relating to the preservation of the public peace, public health or appropriations for the support and maintenance of the department of state and state institutions. All acts, and parts thereof, enacted by the general assembly and submitted to the people shall be and remain in full force and effect until rejected by the people, as herein provided.

Until the general assembly enacts a law fixing the per cent of qualified electors required for petition, the required per cent shall in all cases be fifteen (15%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state.

The whole number of votes cast for secretary of state at the regular general election past preceding the filing of petition shall be the basis for the number of legal voters required to sign such petition.

The veto power of the governor shall not apply or extend to any measure initiated and enacted by the people.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative or referred under the referendum shall be submitted to the people for adoption or rejection at the regular biennial election first occurring after the filing of the petition.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative shall become a law when approved by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon, and shall take effect as hereinafter provided.

Any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law when rejected by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon and proclamation has been made by the governor as hereinafter provided. All proposed laws under the initiative shall take effect and any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law from and after the date of official declaration of the vote thereon by proclamation issued by the governor, which shall be not later than thirty days after the vote has been canvassed by the state canvassing board for that purpose, composed of the governor, secretary of state and attorney general, and certificate thereof made not later than December first following the election.

The petition contemplated by this section shall consist of sheets having such general form, printed or written, as shall be prescribed by the secretary of state, and shall be signed by the required number of qualified electors, in their proper persons only, to which shall be attached the resident addresses of such persons signing the petition and the date of signing. To each of such sheets shall be attached and made a part thereof an affidavit of some qualified elector that each signature thereon is the signature of the person whose name it purports to be, and that, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the affiant, each of the persons signing said petition was, at the time of signing, a qualified elector. Such petition, so verified, shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures thereon are genuine and true, and that the persons signing the same are qualified electors of the state of Iowa.

Immediately upon the filing of a petition for the submission of a proposed law to the voters, the secretary of state shall submit the said proposed law to the supreme court for its opinion upon the constitutionality thereof, which shall be rendered within twenty (20) days, and if the court finds that the proposed measure conflicts with the constitution of the United States or the state of Iowa, the proposed measure shall not be submitted.

Until the general assembly shall provide by law a method of procedure of printing, distributing and submitting proposed measures, the secretary of state shall, ninety (90) days preceding the general election at which the measure will be voted upon, cause to be printed any and all measures for or to which petition has been filed, in pamphlet form, containing the full text thereof, with the title and enacting clause, together with arguments for and against the same, within the limits prescribed by the secretary of state. The number printed shall be not less than one for each voter voting at the last general election preceding the filing of the petition, which shall be delivered to the county auditor of each county.

For each voter in each voting precinct of each political party voting at the last general election, the auditor of each county shall deliver one copy to each precinct committeeman of each political party in the county.

The secretary of state shall submit all measures petitioned for in accordance with the provisions of this section, to the people for adoption or rejection at the polls in compliance herewith; but the right and power reserved to the people shall not operate to deprive or limit the power of the general assembly to enact laws.

If, at an election, conflicting measures submitted to the voters of the state shall be approved by a majority of the votes, severally cast thereon, the measure receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law as to all conflicting provisions.

This section of the constitution shall be, in all respects, self-executive; and when so amended the bill do pass.

JOINT CONVENTION.

The joint convention was called to order by Lieutenant Governor Harding, president of the Senate, and president of the joint convention.

By unanimous consent, roll call was dispensed with and the president declared a quorum of members present.

President Harding then introduced Hon. William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, who addressed the general assembly.

Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

I feel honored to be invited to address the lawmakers of this great commonwealth assembled for the discharge of the responsible duties that rest upon them. Insofar as the invitation is due to the office with which the president has honored me, I extend thanks for the administration. Insofar as the invitation is based upon the fact that I am a citizen of a neighboring state, I extend thanks for the people of my state.

I recognize that speaking to you at this period of your session there are two reasons why I should not speak at length. In the first place, I am warned by my own experience that the closing days of a session are busy days and the time is more precious than in the opening days. I recognize too that near the close of a session it is more difficult to introduce new measures or secure consideration for new ideas, and therefore it would be less profitable to discuss questions that might come before you than it would have been had I come when your session opened, and I shall therefore confine myself to one proposition and I shall present it to you as briefly as I can, not so much with the hope that it will affect your deliberations at this time as with the hope that it may assist you in the formation of opinions on subjects that may come before you hereafter.

I might appear today in the attitude of one of the weather bureau. We have now a very complete weather bureau, a very complete system for ascertaining the things that we ought to know in regard to changes in the weather. I am connected with the political weather bureau, and it has been my business for some time to study the course of the winds and the changes in the political weather, and I think I am better able to predict now than I once was on these subjects. In fact, I am compelled to admit that I lost caste somewhat some years ago as a forecaster in politics and for a time some were disposed to throw up the fact that I had missed my guess as to what the people wanted or what they would do. I have not had so much trouble the last few years along this line. My guesses have been more accurate—at least the fulfillment of the prediction has followed more closely upon the prediction and left less time for doubt or dispute. I want now to tell you the general course of the wind and to tell you that it has been blowing long enough in one direction for us to judge something of the permanency of it. It is almost as steady now as a trade wind and yet it is not the kind of a trade wind that used to play havoc with the people's desires and prosperity.

I want to say to you that the trend of the world is in the direction of more popular government and that we now have been able to examine the direction of this wind for so long a time and at so many different points that prognostications may be based upon these investigations with great certainty. They are reliable. I can say to you that in every state in this Union and throughout the world the tendency is everywhere and always toward more popular government; that the tendency everywhere and always is towards giving the people larger control of their own affairs, and if this is true, then every legislator who recognizes this tendency and puts himself in harmony with it will find that his work will be successful and every legislator who is foolish enough to throw himself in front of this movement will be run over.

I am not asking you to attempt to do the things that will be popular but I think that every one ought to know what forces are permanent, what forces are irresistible and the forces that move toward the realization of the ideal of those who founded these institutions—these forces are permanent forces and irresistible forces.

Now, having stated this proposition as broadly as I can, I want to make an application. A general principle is not easily comprehended except as it is illustrated by applications of it. If time permitted or if this were an opportune occasion, I might review the experience of other nations. I will stop long enough to tell you that you can not go into any country in this world with any degree of civilization but what you will find there is a paramount political issue and the central element of that paramount issue is the controversy between the people who demand the control of their government and the fraction less than the people who insist upon using the government for their own personal pecuniary advantage. That is the struggle the world round between the unorganized many, but they are becoming more organized each year, and the thoroughly organized few—the many asking for their rights and the few clamoring for privilege. In the nation at large a change is taking place in the point of view from which public questions are to be examined, and after all the point of view is the essential thing to be understood. When you know a man's point of view you can estimate with considerable accuracy not only what he will say he will do but what he will say is his reason for doing it. There are just two points of view from which people look at things that affect mankind. One is the aristocratic point of view, the other is the democratic point of view, and I am not using the word democratic in a partisan sense. Jefferson drew this dis-tion a century ago when he said there are just two parties in every land, and where speech was free these two parties would manifest themselves. He described these parties as the aristocratic party that would draw to itself those who did not believe in the people and didn't trust them, and the democratic party who would draw those who did believe in the people and those who did trust them. I need not tell you he had no reference to our party when he used the word democratic, for at that time there was no party in this country known by the name of the democratic party, and strange to say to us the party we now call the democratic party was then called republican so handicapped were we for a name in the beginning. He used the word that described not the party names that come and go but he used the word that described the spirit that animated parties. He used the only line that can be drawn always and everywhere through society, the line that separates the man who is at heart a democrat from the man who is at heart an aristocrat. Now, you cannot go into any party and find that all of the people in the party correspond with those things suggested by the party name. For instance, in this country, you can not find in any party all who are aristocratic in spirit or all who are democratic in spirit. In fact there is no party in this country that is big enough to hold all of the people who are democratic in spirit. The great mass of our people in all parties are democratic in spirit. You want evidence of that? We have evidence at hand. It is the unanimous sentiment that is today back of the election of the senators by the direct vote of the people. You can call the roll and nine-tenths of the people are in favor of the election of United States senators by the people because at heart they are democrats—at heart they trust the people, at heart they want the people to control this government. It took a great while to get the people to understand it, and then it took them a good while to make their representatives understand it, for the representative is much slower than the people to understand democracy. Not possibly more slow to comprehend it but more slow to pay any attention to it. The reason for it is the individual has no pecuniary reason for not following his convictions, while a representative sometimes has. I do not mean to say that the representative is corrupted by money but I mean to say that the power of concentrated wealth is of so great help to a man running for office or to defeat him that sometimes a representative listens to the few who can thus actively organize for him and forgets the many who just vote the ticket without close scrutiny into the bias of the man for whom they vote. If I were going to illustrate this difference in point of view I would say that the democrat believes, and he believes it honestly, that society is built from the bottom, the aristocrat believes, and he believes it honestly, that society is suspended from the top. The democrat believing society is built from the bottom, says legislate for all of the people, believing that prosperity will surely find its way up for all classes. The aristocrat says, and he says it honestly, for he believes it, he says legislate for the well-to-do, and then be patient and let the others wait while their prosperity leaks through to those below. That is the distinction, my friends.

It so runs through this world, and I mention it because I doubt not that you have questions before you right now that illustrate this division. I do not know what questions you have before you. I did not inquire. I was afraid if I did that I might say something that would apply to these questions but if I didn't know I could discuss general principles and then let you apply these suggestions when you had occasion.

I do not know whether you have before you those reforms known as the initiative and referendum, and if they are before you I do not know what the probability is, but I want to discuss these things because they illustrate what I mean. The tendency of this government and of the world is toward larger power in the hands of the people and I can use the growth of the initiative and referendum as an illustration.

Sixteen years ago last summer we put a plank in our party platform in Nebraska for the first time declaring for these reforms, and I remember distinctly the opposition paper said when this plank was read to the convention that one delegate said to another in the convention, what is that? and the paper said the delegate answered, that is a new kind of democratic drink, and the paper stated that it went through unanimously. It is sixteen years ago last summer that that paper wittily and humorously referred to the initiative and referendum as a new kind of democratic drink, yet two years ago last summer that same paper led the fight for the adoption of that plank in the republican platform and endorsed the initiative and referendum. It was not speaking of it in witty and humorous terms then; it was intensely in earnest; and it did win its fight. Two years ago last summer every party in Nebraska endorsed the initiative and referendum, and in the legislature that convened that fall the initiative and referendum was submitted, not exactly in the form we would like to have seen but it was submitted and adopted last fall by an overwhelming majority.

Ten years ago if you said anything about the initiative down in New York you were taken to task for suggesting a very wild idea. I remember once less than ten years ago when I had the temerity to say a word about it in Brooklyn one of the New York papers had an editorial two columns long explaining how dangerous it was, and yet last fall there were three men before the people for the office of president, that is, three who polled the largest vote, two of them were in favor of the initiative and referendum and the one man who was not carried two states with eight electoral votes. The people were not afraid of the initiative and referendum. I do not say that every man who voted for Wilson or Roosevelt voted for him because he favored them and I do not mean to say that the vote that Mr. Taft received necessarily measured the strength of the opposition, but what I do mean to say is that this reform has passed the stage when it can be made a scarecrow, or when men will be afraid to trust as president of the United States a man who trusts the people with the control of their government. I do not know what you intend to do on this subject. I do not mean any reflection on you when I say I do not care. I used to be impatient about reforms but I learned patience by experience and I know if you will not do it now you will do it later. I believe that the stars in their course fight with us when we stand for those things in the line of popular government. I have faith in the triumph of this reform in this and every state because I believe the people have sense enough to run their own government and they have sense enough to retire from politics those who have not faith in them. I care not how honestly a man may distrust the people. A man who honestly distrusts the people ought to be left at home to study the genius of his government and its institutions and not be put in a place where he can misrepresent those who elect him to speak for them. An honest man has no right to embezzle power, an honest man has no right to misrepresent his constituents.

There are two theories of government—the democratic theory which looks at all questions affecting mankind from a democratic standpoint and those who look at these questions from an aristocratic standpoint or hold the aristocratic theory of government. The democratic says the people ought to think for themselves and ought to elect people not to think for them but to act for them. That is the democratic theory of representative government. The aristocratic theory is that people have not sense enough to think but still choose very wise men to think for them and do things the people do not want done. I need not tell you that the democratic theory is the theory that is growing and I need not remind you either that when you go out and ask for votes you ask for them on the democratic theory and not on the aristocratic theory. How do I know? Because you have platforms. What do you have platforms for, except to tell the people what you will do if they elect you and why tell them what you will do unless you expect that to determine their choice? If you believe in the aristocratic theory of government, if you believe the people have not sense enough to know what is to be done, why don't you run without a platform? Tell them that it is none of their business, you will do what you think is right for them. Why don't you do it? Because you are more interested in holding office than in announcing your belief in an aristocratic idea. If you are a democrat when you run, you ought to be a democrat when you are elected. Let your conscience work before election. I have not much faith in a conscience that hibernates during the campaign and blossoms out when there is a chance to betray a constituency. I believe in a conscience. I believe that no man ought to act contrary to his conscience. I do not believe a legislator ought to do what is wrong because his constituents want it. Have I stated it as strongly as I can? If a platform declares for a policy that a representative thinks is wrong he ought to say so when he accepts the nomination. He ought not to leave the people to believe by silence that he is in favor of the platform. I believe a man's conscience ought to work all of the time, and if he does not believe in a platform he ought to say so and ask judgment on his position, but if he is elected on a platform and afterwards believes on mature reflection that his platform is wrong and he ought not to carry out the same against his conscience, then let him give the people a chance to elect somebody else. That is my idea of representative government. That the representative must understand that his citizens have consciences also and that they have the right to ask the representative to do what they want done and when a man can not do what his constituents want done he ought to return to his commission and let them select somebody that will.

Why is it the demand for the initiative and referendum is growing? It is because representatives have refused to do what their constituents want done. The initiative gives the people a chance to do what they want done when the representatives refuse to do it. Under the initiative a certain per cent of the people can ask that a question be submitted, and when submitted the people vote on it, and if when submitted the people vote for it, it becomes a law, just the same as if the legislature had passed it, and do you know of any reason why the law should be more binding when passed by representatives than when passed by the people themselves? What is the referendum? It is the veto power lodged in the people. Have you the veto power lodged in the governor of this state? Does it require two-thirds to overcome it? Well, my friends, if it is right to put in the hands of the governor the power to set his judgment against the judgment of the majority of the members of both houses and thus prevent the passage of a law unless two-thirds of both houses register their approval in spite of his veto power, why deny the right of the people who elect legislators and governors to veto anything that their public servants do if the people are opposed to it? Is there anything contrary to the spirit of free institutions in this? It is a dangerous thing for a representative to suggest that his people have not sense enough to act on these subjects. For if they have sense enough to elect him, ought he impeach their intelligence? You say you can not let them act for fear they would make mistakes. You ought not suggest the idea of the people making mistakes, for it might be pointed out that the people made a mistake when they elected you. I would be the last one to insist that the people did not make mistakes, but no one will go beyond me in asserting the right of the people to make mistakes if they want to.

You cannot escape mistakes by escaping the veto power of the people. Somebody must act and somebody will make mistakes. If you have an unlimited monarchy a king will make mistakes for the people and he generally lives up to his opportunities. That is why they quit having unlimited monarchies. If you had an aristocratic government the few make mistakes for the rest of the people, and there have been many illustrations of their mistakes being made. In fact, it is sometimes so profitable for the few to make mistakes that it takes them a long while to correct them and human history is written in blood largely because of the mistakes of the few made against the many—mistakes that the many tried to correct. The tendency of the world today and nowhere is it plainer than in our own country is to let the people control their government. Let them make the mistakes, if they will. They will not make as many as representatives will make against them or for them and they will correct them as soon as they find them out. I say this in regard to the initiative and referendum.

I have just one other thought to add in connection with it. I regard it as fundamental. I think the initiative is the greatest suggestion in the improvement of the government that has come in the generation. You tell me it suggests doubt as to representative government? No. It just recognizes facts. Does it overthrow representative government? No, it simply perfects representative government. The physician who advises you to cut off a limb to save the body is not an enemy; he is a friend. So that man who would perfect representative government and cures every defect of it is a better friend of representative government than the man who would try to ignore diseases in the body politic, and reject all remedies offered. We need the initiative and referendum in order to put the government in the hands of the people and to drive the lobbyist from the halls of legislation.

Today we have great, selfish predatory interests that are seeking to secure advantage. Sometimes they want special privileges granted by law and sometimes to prevent passage of laws that ought to be passed. But whether they seek affirmative privilege or simply negative laws that permit them to trample upon the rights of others they are insistent, powerful and influential. I served in congress for a little while, long enough to know that the difference between democrats and republicans manifested themselves on few occasions but the difference between those that stood with the people and those that stood with the despoilers of the nation manifested themselves on many occasions.

I saw while in congress and since have seen in Washington and everywhere the representatives of great privilege insisting that the interest of the few shall be put above the rights of all the people. Where do you find this controversy manifesting itself? Wherever you attempt to give effective control of great corporations. If, for instance, an effort is made to create a utility board, or provide means of regulating corporations you find the opposition. You know where it comes from. In Washington I saw a railroad lobby for ten years prevent the carrying out of the recommendation of the interstate commerce commission asking for larger power. No arguments made on the other side, but somehow there was a silent pressure that was sufficient to overcome the people's demand. Rebates, favors and discriminations continued. The people cried out for relief but their voice was not heard because around the Capitol were the paid representatives of these great interests who succeeded in stifling the public conscience and defeating the public will. I saw for more than a decade efforts made to stop the pass. A man who would indignantly deny that a pass was proper would accept one and refuse to carry out the party platform. But we are making progress. At last the demand was strong enough to coerce a congress and we found congress enlarging the powers of the commission and we found congress abolishing the pass. At last as this last session of congress was about to die we found a bill passed which provided for the physical valuation of railroads. Is it not strange that so simple a proposition could be obstructed so long. Do you know why the people should not know how much it would cost to re-build a railroad, except if they did know they would want legislation that they would not now demand? In other words, predatory interests have kept the people in the dark.

I dissolve all doubts on the side of the people. If a measure comes up and they say it is unconstitutional, I ask is it desirable and if they say it is, I say let the courts decide if it is unconstitutional. But if it is desirable and the legislature decides to pass it you can rest assured the courts will prevent any injustice. Therefore, give the benefit of the doubt to the people if the thing proposed is desirable. Do you know of any argument that can be made against legislation that will provide effective restraint for corporations? A corporation is a creature of law. It has no natural rights. When you deal with a human being you come in contact with natural and inalienable rights but you have no such difficulty when dealing with a corporation. A corporation has no rights except those given it by law and if you give it all the rights a human being has and then the additional rights that are conferred by law, the man-made-man becomes more powerful than the God-made man. It is only fair to insist that there shall be some power somewhere that shall act as a restraint upon every corporation that is created by law. The people can not be presumed to create a corporation for public injury, and they can not assume that that corporation shall act as judge in its own case and decide impartially for the people. It is too much to expect of the corporation. We would not expect it of the best judge we ever elevated to power. I suggest that in every state in this union as in the nation at large there should be some official elected by the people who shall have power to say to every corporation, thus far shalt thou go and no farther. I would suggest that it might be a good thing to provide by law that every corporation should keep hanging up in its chief office a motto taken from the bible, "Remember now thy creator."

Just one other subject. I do not know whether you are dealing with it or not. I was in Nebraska yesterday. I found that our legislature there was dealing with it. It was the question as to the power, the right of a local community to own its own franchises. Should the city be permitted to own its own franchises or should it be compelled to hire people to do its work. The question which comes in regard to cities also comes up in regard to counties and these come in response to conditions. Remedies are never suggested until the diseases are discovered. In our state they are trying to decide whether the state shall be permitted to own and operate any municipal franchises that it desires to own and operate, and whether a county shall be permitted to own and operate these things. The crucial question just now is whether a county shall be permitted to have a telephone system owned by the people. We have people in Nebraska who think the county ought to be permitted to own and operate a telephone system. Is it not strange that any intelligent man should be willing to represent so unintelligent a community as one that can not attend to such matters? Do you suppose that question would ever rise unless a telephone company had more influence with some man than all of the people who voted for him? Is it possible that any intelligent man should doubt either the right or the capacity of the people to do these things? If there is a man who doubts the capacity of the people to do these things, let me suggest to you if there are any special privileges that are very valuable to secure without the public consent, they had better secure them soon for the age for such things is rapidly passing away. When the time has come and these things are no longer possibilities but realities you will wonder why it was there was any doubt about what the people had a right to do or what they could do.

I have talked longer than I expected. Let me sum up in a single word what I have said. The world is moving on toward popular government. The world is coming to understand that the government that rests for its just powers upon the consent of the governed, the government responsive to the will of the people is the most just of governments, the most wise of governments and the strongest of governments. When I was in college I heard the three different kinds of governments defended by different arguments. Friends of democracies insisted it was the most just, friends of the aristocratic insisted it was the most wise, friends of monarchy insisted it was the strongest of government. I am not willing to accept arguments in favor of aristocratic or monarchical governments, and I believe it is true that the democratic is the most just of governments and I believe it is also true that the democratic is the wisest of governments, for the government that rests upon the wisdom of all the people is wiser than the government that rests upon but a fraction. I believe the democratic is the strongest of governments. I am prepared to endorse the sweeping statement made by the great historian Bancroft who said that the Republic was the strongest of governments because it dared to discard the implements of war and build its citadel in the hearts of men. Governments are strong in proportion as they are supported by the hearts of people. Love is the most potent force in government as it is the most potent force in social life. When people love their government it is strong; when they do not it is weak. I beg of you to make the government of this nation and state strong by building them upon the love of the people and you can not do it unless you trust the people and let them control their government and let them make it their agent for accomplishing what they want to accomplish for the defense of their rights and protection of their welfare.

O, Thou by whom we come to God,
The Life, the Truth, the Way;
The path of prayer thyself hast trod:
Lord, teach us how to pray!

Teach us that we may come before our Father in such a way that this hour may have largest significance for all the interests represented here.

We would recognize that the life we commemorate today was one of the choice gifts of Him who is the giver of every good and perfect gift. We lift our hearts in gratitude to our Heavenly Father, for the large contribution made to the life of our commonwealth by him whom we honor today. We thank Thee for the pioneer spirit with which he entered upon the study of the great questions of our social and political life. We thank Thee for the courage and persistence with which he championed the causes he espoused, for the trust he manifested in the triumph of the right, his confidence in the people, and the high moral and ethical ideals that were dominant in all his public life. We remember with gratitude the singular beauty of his home life, the blessed influence of the home on earth out of which he has gone to the home above. We would recognize that such a life is one of the choicest products of our free institutions, one of the richest treasures of our great commonwealth. We bow in submission to the loving Will that has called him from us, devoutly thanking Thee that he was spared to us for his long public career and for the beautiful twilight of his eventful life.

Oh thou Father of us all, wilt Thou be our teacher today. Speak through Thy servant who shall bring us the message of the hour, speak through the events that we shall live over in our thought, speak through the associations of this day. Help us that we may be ready learners. May this be an hour of consecration to the highest ideals in public, business and home life, that we may be more sacrificial in our citizenship, more unselfish in our friendship, more ready to follow in the footsteps of Him who went about doing good. May the influence of this gathering go out to the homes of our state, to our young manhood, calling it to a high faithfulness to the trusts of our age.

We pray for our chief magistrate and those who are associated with him, for the members of our legislature, for all our citizenship that together we may work out a high destiny for our great commonwealth and that we may make a worthy contribution to the life of our great nation.

For those who knew best and loved most dearly our deceased friend we pray the benediction of Thy comfort. May the hearts of this widow and these children be filled with a sense of holy triumph through the tender ministrations of Him who has promised, I will not leave you comfortless, may they be comforted in each other and may the fathers mantle fall upon his sons.

Make this a holy hour, one that shall leave a permanent impress for good upon us all and one that shall have large significance in the life of our people, and we will give to Thee the praise and the glory through Jesus Christ our risen Lord and Savior.

Governor Clarke, introducing Senator William S. Kenyon, spoke as follows:

Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly and Fellow Citizens:

We are met here this afternoon to honor the memory of one of Iowa's most distinguished men; a man who was a defender of the rights of the people; a man who placed the public welfare above every other consideration; a man who gave to the state many years of most distinguished public service; a man who was a safe adviser in both public and private life; a man who was the finest example of high-minded citizenship; a good man; a man whose memory will be cherished in Iowa through many, many years.

I know of no one in this state who was more intimately acquainted with him both in public and private, and indeed his family life, than was Senator Kenyon. I think, therefore, no one could be better prepared than he to speak on this occasion, and it therefore gives me the greatest pleasure indeed to present him to you today. Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly—Senator Kenyon.

SENATOR KENYON'S ADDRESS.

Two years ago the legislature of the state paused in its labor to commemorate by fitting service the life of one of Iowa's distinguished citizens who had passed from this world's activities before the time usually given to man. Just as his life had seemingly reached the point of greatest usefulness, by that inscrutable, mysterious working of Providence, he was called to another sphere. Today the legislature again pauses to fittingly observe the life of another great Iowan who likewise has passed to the other shore. Dolliver died before his work was done. For William Larrabee, "the mysterious clock, that marks the three score years and ten," had not run down before its time. He had finished his life work. Like the golden grain waiting to be garnered he was ready. As the parable "First the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear," so it was with him, he had reached full maturity. He was the "Good Man" Milton pictures as "The ripe fruit our earth holds up to God."

After a long and distinguished career, full of years and full of honor, he laid his burden down and passed into the dreamless and mysterious slumber we call death. Every man within the borders of the state when the news came of the death of this beloved citizen might well say, as King David said unto his servants when announcing the death of Abner: "There is 'a great man fallen' in Isreal," for in everything that goes to make real greatness, not one element was missing in William Larrabee, and it is altogether appropriate that his life be commemorated by the state he honored and loved.

While this occasion is one of sorrow, it is likewise one of rejoicing. Our hearts are heavy over our loss and the heartache ever will remain, yet we rejoice over his life accomplishment. His life was a triumph. Men differ from each other in achievement as stars differ from each other in glory. We are proud that he was of our state. We are glad that he cast his lot in Iowa. We glory in what he did for mankind. Our state is better for his life and the inspiration thereof has reached out and touched many a soul who, because of him, will go forward with a more courageous heart, and higher aspiration to fight life's battle. Popular government is better and stronger today because he lived.

His life's story is the story of the opportunity and advancement of the poor boy in this country. It is the story of the plow boy, teacher, miller, banker, statesman. A man to be great should have something to do with the selection of his parents. He could not have more wisely selected. His father was a graduate of West Point, serving with distinction in the war of 1812. His mother was a sterling New England character, from whom he inherited a Puritan conscience.

In early boyhood through accident he lost the sight of one eye. Even in those early days he was a great student. Coming to Iowa when 21 years of age he served as foreman on a farm for two or three years. He was not satisfied to labor for others. He bought a mill in the little village and though it plunged him into thousands of dollars of indebtedness he went forward with a confidence in himself. Men drove from miles to this mill and there are men living in the neighborhood today who will tell you of his influence over them; will tell you of his honesty and unceasing toil. Standing at the hopper in the mill, he had McCauley's History of England and other books, which he studied at every spare moment. He wasted no time. Always a patriot, he was anxious to serve his country in the Civil War. He raised a company, but was denied admission because of the injury to his eye. Had he gone to war he would have achieved great military distinction. Not able to assist at the front, no man assisted more at home in taking care of the families where the fathers and brothers had gone to war. From his mill the soldiers' wives and families would receive free all the flour they needed and he was one of the committee to look after their interests. Even in those early days he exhibited that industry, perseverance, honesty, study and generosity which marked his after years. Such a man will soon make a mark and exert an influence upon the community and it is not strange that he was early called to public service. That public service is an open book to every man in Iowa; on the pages of that book there is not a stain.

I am one of those who believe that the Almighty is working out great purposes in this world.

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform,
He plants his footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm."

And his purposes are steadily marching on.

The transitions of history indicate that some great power is moving on through the instrumentality of finite beings to make this world a better place in which to live; we know it not at the time, but later see clearly. We cannot understand why one man is chosen and another left. They may be men of equal ability, one goes forward—the other stands still. We must believe that there is a destiny shaping our ends in the lives of men and of nations. In this process God had set a great task for William Larrabee as one of His instrumentalities. When the hour struck for action he was ready. He was one of those whom Lowell described as—

said Edmund Burke. The only aristocracy of Governor Larrabee was the aristocracy of brain. He never permitted his soul's ideals to atrophy and die. He knew in his soul the great work he was here to do. The process of preparation was continuous with him. Public life was not for honor, but merely an opportunity for service. He scanned the political horizon and with broad vision saw the larger questions in our political and industrial life, which few seemed to perceive at that time, and on these questions he was twenty-five years in advance of his time. He was as the voice in the wilderness. He sounded the just note of warning against discrimination and unfair railroad rates, and his voice was one of the first to be heard. He knew the transportation question was the most important one for the American people. His book on that subject was the best contribution to the discussion of the times, and he lived to see his theories incorporated in state and federal statutes. Every man who travels the pathway of better legislation for corporate control, finds all along that pathway clear evidence of the blazing of the trail by William Larrabee a quarter of a century ago. At that time he was preaching the doctrine of the open door of equal opportunity, later popularized as the doctrine of the “Square deal.”

PUBLIC SERVICE.

William Larrabee was first elected to the state senate in 1867. He occupied a seat in that body for eighteen years, most of the time chairman of the Ways and Means committee. He was nominated and elected governor of the state in 1885, was re-elected in 1887. The political seas were tumultuous during his term of service and it was not an easy task to safely guide the ship of state. His views on public questions are best gathered from his messages to the legislature and his inaugural addresses. They are likewise an index to his political ideals.

In his first inaugural with reference to the industrial question, he said:

“The industrial question, involving the relations between labor and capital, the rate of wages, and the proper distribution of wealth, is by no means a new one, nor does it require the application of new principles for its solution, but rather the reviving of new confidence in old virtue.”

On Education:

"The most powerful lever of progress is education. If it is true, as I hold it to be, that ignorance, poverty and crime are intimately related, it is the duty of every state to educate."

His views upon the liquor question at that early date were fixed and firm, as evidenced by the following:

"The saloon is the educational institution which takes no vacation or recess and where the lowest and most pernicious political doctrines are taught. Its thousands of graduates may be found in all positions of wretchedness and disgrace, and are the most successful candidates for our poorhouses and penitentiaries. It is the bank where money, time, strength, manliness, self-control and happiness are deposited to be lost, where drafts are drawn on the widows and orphans, and where dividends are paid only to his Satanic Majesty. Let it perish."

The agricultural interests of the state were close to his heart. In his first biennial message, speaking thereof, he said:

"Agriculture is our chief interest. If it languishes all other interests suffer. It deserves the care and attention of both the state and national legislature. The diseases which affect our live stock are general and can be dealt with effectually and finally only by national authority. I recommend that congress be memorialized by you to make ample appropriations which can be used in emergencies to crush out pleuro-pneumonia, hog cholera and similar contagious diseases. By prompt and energetic action many millions might be saved."

The agricultural and horticultural societies, fine stock associations and other organizations have been doing good work. These, with farmers' institutes and other methods of awakening the public mind and securing the intelligent application of the best means to produce the highest prosperity upon the farms of Iowa, and the greatest happiness in the homes which beautify the prairies of our state, should be liberally encouraged by the representatives of the people in their legislative action.

His views on railroad legislation were forceful, as set forth in the same message, in part as follows:

"First. I recommend the passage of a law destroying the pass system root and branch. No one should be permitted to ride free except the officers and employes of railroads, and they only when traveling upon the legitimate business of their respective companies. Neither passes nor mileage tickets should be used in payment for services or work of any kind done for railroad companies. Such services and work should be paid for in cash.

"Second. I recommend that maximum passenger fares on first class roads be fixed at two cents a mile. In my judgment increased travel, and receipts from those who formerly traveled on passes will soon make up to the railroad companies any loss they may suffer from this reduction in fares, and the change will prove beneficial both to them and to the people. A large percentage of the business is already done at this rate, but not enjoyed by those least able to pay.

"Third. I recommend the passage of a law fixing reasonable maximum rates of freight on the principal commodities transported by rail; and also authorizing and requiring the railroad commissioners to reduce said rates at any time when, in their judgment, they are too high. If it shall be held that the legislature cannot delegate to the commissioners the power to absolutely fix such rates, then they should be regarded as prima facie reasonable rates. Railroads should not be permitted to raise any freight rate at any time without the approval of the railroad commissioners.

"The companies should be required to furnish sufficient freight cars. There have been, during the present season, hardship and suffering in the midst of plenty, in the northwestern part of the state, because of the failure of the railroads to provide sufficient rolling stock to move the products of that section."

In his second inaugural address, he dealt with all the questions agitating the minds of the people, but laid special stress on the transportation question. He maintained therein that the charges for transportation as prevailing in the state were far too high and bore little or no relation to the cost of service.

Just at this time when the physical valuation bill has passed congress, it is interesting to note the following language from his inaugural:

"Owners of railroads are no more entitled to a perpetual royalty than inventors. For a certain period of time, perhaps as long as similar privileges are enjoyed by patentees, railroads should be allowed liberal returns for their capital and enterprise; and if at the end of such a period it be found that similar roads could be constructed and equipped at a reduced cost, then their rates of transportation should be proportionately reduced."

He had come to the belief that the railroad question was the most important question and he did not hesitate to speak out. Note this language in his second inaugural, the words of a courageous man:

"Railroads have in the course of time usurped powers dangerous to the public welfare, and have practiced extortions perhaps less cruel, but in the aggregate more gigantic, than those of the British landlord." * * * *

"Thucydides relates how the Grecians, in olden times, engaged in the business of piracy under the command of men of great boldness and ability, and how the men so engaged, both enriched themselves and supported their poor by their booty. They ravaged villages and plundered unfortified places. This was not at that time an employment of reproach, but rather exalted those piratical adventurers in the estimation of their kin. It appears that a class of persons has grown up under the refining influence of our modern age with tendencies similar to those of that sturdy race; and, strange as it may seem, some people even on our soil attribute honor to their practices."

He realized there was a community of interest between the state and its public corporations, but he knew that abuses existed and that the people were determined that such abuses should be corrected. He did not advocate any legislation detrimental to the best interests of railroads, but he demanded that they must submit to proper control. He said:

"Long continued abuses and aggressions will finally arouse the people; and law, the outgrowth of the necessities of the community, will surely, though insensibly, be moulded by public opinion."

Speaking of the railroad commission, he said:

"The railroad commission was created to be a committee of the people, obligated to advocate their rights. Organized capital can safely be trusted to defend itself."

His last biennial message is perhaps his greatest state paper, and his guide boards there for men in public life can be followed with safety. He reviewed with the minutest detail the business of the state, and with a comprehensiveness and a clearness that challenges admiration. He had seen the last General Assembly enact the maximum rate law to regulate the rates of common carriers in the state; he had seen it pass both houses without a dissenting vote. He believed in the wisdom of the measure and felt in writing his last message that the great work he had set out to do in the enactment of this railroad legislation, had been accomplished, and it was his greatest work. No change had come over the spirit of his dreams with the reference to the liquor question. Note this language:

"But if we must have the saloon, why place a high tax upon it? We might as well tax the gambling-house and the brothel. It is the theory of our law to tax property for the support of the government. The saloon-tax, however, is as a rule not paid by the owners of large property, but by people of small means. Is it the standard of Iowa manhood to rob women and children of the earnings of their husbands and fathers for the purpose of relieving property owners of the payment of legitimate taxes? Yet it is not true that licensing of saloons reduces taxation, for the increase in the expenses of the courts, poor-houses, and prisons far exceeds the tax collected from the saloon. Besides, three-fourths of the losses and bad debts incurred by business men can be traced directly or indirectly to the evil of intemperance."

And the conclusion of this great message might be read, with profit, to the legislature upon his birthday, as the farewell address of the father of his country is read in the halls of the national congress upon his birthday. Nothing is more indicative of the character of the man than this portion of his message. Was ever a higher appeal to patriotism penned than this:

"It is a high honor to be called upon to legislate for a free people, and a higher one still to so legislate as to enhance the security of life and property, to promote education and morality, to protect the weak and ameliorate the condition of the unfortunate." * * * * *

Further:

"You should remember that, while wealth and power are always vigilant in the protection of their interests, the weak and the poor must rely upon your sense of fairness and justice for protection. All interests should be given a public hearing, but the character of the men representing such interests and the motives governing their action should be kept in view. Subsidized agents should not be permitted to creep into your confidence in disguise."

Again:

"You cannot afford to ask favors from corporations for your constituents, but you should always demand for them their rights. There is every year a greater disproportion between the rich and the poor; and the legislator should not ignore the tendency of wealth to concentrate, but should carefully consider every measure likely to affect, directly or indirectly, the accumulation and distribution of wealth. * * * * * Appropriation bills and other important measures should be presented early and carefully considered, and should, under no circumstances be permitted to be crowded into the closing hours of the session."

That advice ought to be heeded by the national congress as well as state legislature. His guide to duty as a public official was clearly set forth in other words of this remarkable conclusion:

"In the discharge of my official duties it has been my earnest endeavor to promote the welfare of the commonwealth by divesting myself of all personal, local, and partisan considerations, and rendering obedience only to the law and the dictates of my conscience."

Read the great state papers of this country, none are clearer in expression, none purer in diction. His state papers are monuments to his energy, wisdom, sense of clearness and capacity for doing. Governor Larrabee was a thinking, not a talking statesman. He devoted to public service the same energy as to private business, or even more so; he believed a dollar of public money should go as far as a dollar of private money; he believed a man should give even more energy to public life than to private life. Public affairs were to him a sacred trust. There is no doubt that had he desired he could have occupied a seat in the national congress, but he preferred to return to the quietude of his own home; preferred not again to hold public office although if the call of the state should come, and it seemed to him a call of duty, he would respond; this call came when Governor Shaw appointed him on the first board of control. There he served with Judge Kinnie and his good friend John Cownie, in the formative period of the great work carried on by the board of control. In 1904 he was president of the Iowa commission of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. It has been told by one of his good friends, that the only office to which he was really anxious to be elected, was that of road supervisor. He was in advance of his time in road-making, as he was in railroad rate-making. It is passing strange that the apparently small ambition to fill this office was never gratified. Suffice it to say, that had he been elected, his district would have had roads which could have well been taken as models for good road construction.

In all his political life he was never without a strong abiding champion, Conscience.

After his retirement from public life he did not hesitate to partake in the stirring political events and campaigns. He made addresses in Governor Cummins' campaign for re-election and in the Allison-Cummins senatorial campaign. He did not hesitate to break friendship where principle was involved. He broke some close friendships in those campaigns.

In 1906, speaking at Fayette, on the achievement of the Republican party, among things showing that he felt the railroad problem was still an important question in this country, and that had not been finally settled, he said:

"Dividends are paid by the railroads on at least twice as much capital as was ever invested in them by the stockholders; more than one-half the stock issued by them in water, for which no legitimate payment was ever made. The railroads in Iowa are capitalized and dividends are paid on more than twice as much as was ever invested in them by the stockholders. We have heard great complaints of the evils of absentee ownership, and the excessive amounts taken from Ireland by the English and from Cuba by the Spanish, yet we are suffering from the same thing right here in Iowa. Wall Street took in net earnings from the railroads in the state last year, after paying all expenses of operation, all taxes, and large amounts for betterments, over $10,000,000.00 more than it was legitimately entitled to."

Speaking at West Union, in the campaign for Governor Cummins, he sounded this call to duty:

"The battle between right and wrong will not cease until the decay of civilization. Questions are never settled until they are settled right."

It sounds like a clarion note from speeches of Abraham Lincoln.

The golden age of his life was after his retirement from public service. It was the harvest season for him, reaping the result of the good seed he had sown in earlier life.

“Who soweth good seed shall surely reap,
The year grows rich as it groweth old,
And life's latest sands are its sands of gold.”

He was greater in retirement than in any other sphere of his life. Different from many men in public life he cared not for its glamour. In a notation in one of his books, referring to Gladstone's retirement, he wrote:

“Gladstone retired on his own motion; showed good sense.”

He did not follow as many men do the call of the great city but as Washington at Mt. Vernon, Jefferson at Monticello, Jackson at the Hermitage, he retired to Montauk and to a position of dignity and of great power. As Mt. Vernon is an inspiration to the nation, so is Montauk to the state. The influence thereof was not limited to the county of Fayette, nor to the state of Iowa, but it was nation wide. On an eminence, overlooking the beautiful valley, he built the substantial brick home, always his beloved dwelling place. The surrounding country resembled the New England hills from whence he came. On the lawn he later placed statues of eminent generals, attesting his patriotism. On two sides of the house are acres of pines put out by him in an early day. To the rear, fields of Iowa's fertile soil, an orchard of his own planting; in front a vineyard on the hill. There he could wander through the days, could listen to the music of the pines, look over the vast area stretching before his vision. No city life could be as inspiring as that; no man could be narrow in that atmosphere. It illustrated his wisdom that in laying down the burdens of state, he went back to the old home. Men came from far and near to sit at his feet and learn wisdom; his influence was more powerful at Montauk in those later years than when he occupied the governor's chair, greater than had he occupied a place in the national congress. That house at Montauk with those surroundings always seemed to me a little section of Paradise. His home life was, “A sweet savor wherever happy homes are recognized as the citadel of virtue and the hope of the world.” I have so often gone as if on a sacred pilgrimage to Montauk, roamed its fields, rested neath the shade of the old trees, sat in the library with this wonderful man, listening to his words of wisdom. He would relieve the tension of discussion now and then by the music of a Tetrazinni or a Caruso on the Victrola, or the suggestion, “Shall we now listen to a speech from Bryan?” from the same instrument.

The best work of the sculptor graced the home. Beautiful paintings here and there; busts of Lincoln, Sherman, Grant and others. Surrounded by his children, his grandchildren, and a wife who glorified womanhood, and who had been his greatest aid in all his work. Ah! such homes indeed are the foundations of the republic. One might well exclaim with Bobby Burns in the immortal Cotter's Saturday Night:

“From scenes like this, Old Scotia's grandeur springs,
That makes her loved at home, rever'd abroad.”

It was an atmosphere in which to meditate; it was an atmosphere to develop the best that is in men and women, and there is little wonder that the sons who have come out from that home have taken prominent positions in our state, and the daughters are beloved in their communities. It could not be otherwise. To know William Larrabee well was to know him in his home, it was a part of himself. He exhibited there a love of knowledge and literature; a mastery of books; a memory of historic incident that was most remarkable. He was an inveterate reader and had an insatiable appetite for knowledge. Going through his library, which contains thousands of volumes of the best reading, and taking here and there a book from the shelves, one finds marginal notes and evidence that he read a book not only once, but twice and thrice; he made friends of books. It was not unusual to find him at six o'clock in the morning reading, and some days he would read all day, retiring early at night.

Through it all, the fairest flower of his life, blooming there and everywhere, was gentleness; a gentleness, however, that did not mean absence of vigor, for when aroused over the abuses that he felt had crept into our body politic or over some wrong in legislation, there would be a flash of the eye, and a firmness of the voice that indicated the fighting qualities of this gentle man.

No one can estimate the value of such a life to a community or a state. One such life can transform the whole community. As I have observed this man in the little village of Clermont, and his wife at her Sunday Bible Class, the good people of the village gathering in, I have felt how blessed is any village or town having one such family within its borders. In the midst of heavy business cares, he never forgot his duties as a citizen. The words of John Milton are so true and applicable to him:

"There is nothing that makes men rich and strong,
But that which they carry inside of them.
Wealth is of heart, not of mind."

While he had what the world called wealth, he had the greater wealth not measured by fields or buildings, or dollars, the wealth of a good heart and clean mind; the wealth of a contented spirit; a wealth of sympathy in humanity's woes. No unfortunate could come to the gates of Montauk and not receive help; no despondent soul but went from its doors with a renewed vision of hope; none who had come for wisdom went empty away. Schools and colleges attest his generous beneficence. Of whom could it more justly be said: square dealing, will be written by the legislators because of his influence. Many a youth of the state will strive to be like him; many a deed of kindness done by those who cherish his unselfish life; many a cup of cold water given in his name, and so his spirit ever abideth with us, and so are the words of the scripture fulfilled: "His works do follow him."

On a beautiful day last November there gathered from near and far a great concourse of people to pay their last tribute of love and devotion

"His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him,
That nature might stand up and say to all the world:
This was a man!"

I could not, in the brief period assigned to me for this occasion, undertake to analyze and set forth completely all the characteristics of this splendid man. Naturally when we view such a character who has left his imprint upon the history of our state, we look for the elements of success—there seemed to be many in him. He had a sublime courage, knowing not the meaning of fear. That courage arose from a complete harmony with conscience. There was a persistency in doing in his nature, and a doing for the right—giant power and indomitable energy. That energy and will power he applied to every task. Goethe has truly said: "The difference between great and little men is the amount of energy applied to their undertakings." Justice was a passion with him, and true indeed as Addison has written: "There is no virtue so truly great and Godlike as justice." Men who are not wise cannot be just. By nature honest not only with others but with himself, imbued with a spirit of fair dealing, he loved the right and hated the wrong. His life was a protest against a life of ease—it was not merely a problem to him of killing time. He had an abhorrence for the shoddy and the sham. He cared nothing for popularity; he knew that fame was a mere passing vapor, and while he despised the wrong, he had a charity that suffered long and was kind. He harbored no malice, but he brooked no compromise. The Sermon on the Mount was his guide. While he was resolute in conviction, he was mild and gentle in manner; exacting yet indulgent; and his children can look back to the vigorous manner in which he was always accustomed to say: "Make no compromise with evil."

Not an orator in the popular acceptance of the term, but yet so possessed with the confidence of the people that they would believe every word he might say, he was a power on the platform. Every man who listened knew that Governor Larrabee would not say one false word; that he would not seek to convey any wrong impression of his position for the sake of gaining an end. How simple his life was, and I am sure that same simplicity he would have desired in death, that he would endorse the letter of Burke to Matthew Smith: "I would rather sleep in some corner of a little country church yard than in the tombs of the Capulets." And in the little country church yard—God's acre—he sleepeth.

These gentle, simple, honest traits made a personality that gripped him to the affections of the people and at the time of his death he was without doubt first in the confidence and affection of the state.

During the closing months of his life, and before election, I visited him several times at Montauk. Because of his physical weakness I could only talk with him for a brief period of time, and would then go out and come back in an hour or so. I knew the shadow of death was near; he knew it also. It haunted his room, it was with him in the waking hours of the night. How brilliant his mind was during all that time. He had set his firm resolution upon one thing, to cast his ballot on election day, and his determination was so great I have never questioned it was the thing that kept him alive during those weeks. In all of those conversations he would say, repeating it again and again: "I have great confidence in the people. They will do the right thing, they will work this problem out." He always had that confidence in the people, elevation to power never took him from the people. I have often wished we had a congress full of William Larrabees—what a congress that would be.

Men can be judged somewhat by the books they read. Governor Larrabee surrounded himself with the best of the world's literature; ancient as well as current. You would find in his library the latest works of eminent authors and all the periodicals of the day. That library was and is an inspiring spot. His admiration for the military is shown by the paintings and busts there. He must have been a disciple of Lincoln, for in his library are three busts of Abraham Lincoln, one painting and a picture; while down in the little village stands a statue of the great emancipator—his gift to the home folks.

On the shelves of the library are found the choicest works of the poets; the best histories and scientific books. You can take down the Lives of American Statesmen; find shelf after shelf devoted to our great generals, and reminiscences of the Civil War; a whole shelf filled with books on the railroad problems; Bryce's American Commonwealth; Ferrero's Greatness and Decline of Rome; Diary of James K. Polk; Letters of Queen Victoria; Van Holst's Constitution of the United States; John Mitchell's Organized Labor; Mirabeau on The French Revolution; Side Lights on Astronomy. A book on School Architecture, which he had studied carefully, together with the plans of the model school building he was constructing as a gift to his town at the time of his death. Also books with reference to the Spanish language, which he commenced to learn when he was 80 years of age. It is most interesting to take down these books and note his comments thereon. They are all marked. In Parson's "Heart of the Railroad Problem," where the author speaks of rebating and railroad officials who permitted rebating, on the margin the governor has written: "Send them to the penitentiary; they are worse than chicken thieves." In the notes of same book the author speaks of the railroads boycotting Lawson day at Ottawa, Kansas, Chautauqua: "Same with LaFollette at Strawberry Point."

Evidently Grant was his favorite general, in "Reminiscences of the Confederacy;" he has written on the margin, speaking of Grant: "He used to come to Clermont, and sold leather to C. F. Weck."

In the "Life of Jefferson" with reference to the author's suggestion that Jefferson would have favored the annexation of Cuba and objected to the annexation of the Philippines and the Hawaiian Islands, he had written on the bottom of the page: "I agree with him as to Cuba and the Philippines." Evidently the governor was not much of an expansionist.

In the same work, and there speaking of Jefferson's belief, that the voice of the people is the voice of God, the governor had written on the margin: "Comes nearer to it than anything else."

At the close of Well's "The Future in America" he had written in language very similar to the text: "Congress, at present the feeblest, least accessible, and most inefficient government of any civilized nation, is the worst west of Russia. Congress is entirely inadequate to the tasks of the present time."

I am glad there is no date given to the time when the governor made these sage observations as to congress.

At the close of Henry George, Jr.'s, "The Menace of Privilege," he observes on the margin: "Many good things said, and many impractical things advocated."

In Chandler's "Trial of Jesus" the author refers to the grandeur of character of Napoleon Bonaparte, and the governor remarks: "He retired like a whipped cur after he was restrained from lawless career; lawless life rather than loftiness of life."

President Roosevelt's message of January 31, 1908, with reference to employers' liability act and experience of the interstate commerce commission, seemed to be a special friend of his. At his desk is a copy marked, and one part is so marked that it cannot escape notice, that which reads:

"Our main quarrel is not with these agents and representatives of the interests. They derive their chief power from the great sinister offenders who stand behind them. They are but puppets who move when the strings are pulled. It is not the puppets, but the strong cunning men, and the mighty forces working for evil, behind and through the puppets, with whom we have to deal."

In his old diary, which it was my privilege a short time ago to see, are recorded daily events of his life as far back as 1853, and a wonderfully interesting life it was even at that early period.

The diary shows that as a young man he loved the outdoor life; that his days were days of toil, often working all day and all night. He remembered his father as a presidential elector in the Harrison campaign. His diary shows that he taught school in an old log school house when he first came to Iowa, boarding around the district.

In "Lecky's Map of Life" are marked a number of passages, showing that he oftentimes reflected on the hereafter. I was especially impressed in going through this book with the following passages marked by him:

"He should accustom himself, then, to think of death as sleep—the only sleep from which man never wakes to pain."

"Every good man knowing the certainty of death and the uncertainty of its hour, will make it one of his first duties to provide for those he loves, when he has himself passed away."

"The great guiding landmarks of a man's life are indeed few and simple; to do our duty; to avoid useless sorrow; to acquiesce patiently in the inevitable."

How he followed these landmarks as laid down therein his life record attests.

Always calm, tranquil and poised, those traits never left him in the closing weeks. He faced the Grim Reaper with the same courage that he had faced every other problem, and when amid those beautiful surroundings with his family by his side, with the people of the great state hoping against hope that he might be spared a few days longer, death touched him and he fell asleep. When the mysterious bark floated out with the tide, it carried over the river immortal, to glorify that mansion not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, a soul as pure as on the day God sent it into the world.

What lessons in this life for the young manhood of our state and nation. He was a great believer in young men, and he may well serve as an example for them. Young men can learn from him that there is no success without labor. Work was his key to success, he went to the root of every question, worked twenty hours a day sometimes in busy season. True indeed::

"The heights by great men reached and kept,
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward in the night."

He believed in the gospel of labor. He knew that the mere accumulation of fortune does not mean success; that success comes from a life of service.

How truly he exemplified that "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." He made the name of Larrabee a synonym of purity in private life, efficiency and honesty in public life. The manhood of our state is safe when the young men and boys growing up have the lesson of such lives before them, and strive to emulate them. Such lives really never die. It is not so much that they live on in that other land, waiting to bid us welcome, but through their influence, they live on in this life. Is the sweet singer of Israel dead? Do not Longfellow and Tennyson live on in the hearts of those who love the beautiful and the good? Is Lincoln dead?—Listen and hear the response of millions of freemen marching on. No man dies who leaves behind him an influence inspiring men and women to do better things. And in this way William Larrabee lives on. Many a law for humanity, many a statute for fair play, for to the master of Montauk, the aged and the young; the priest and sinner; from farm and from city. No one present can ever forget that scene, an Iowa Indian Summer day and nothing is more sublime. Nature aglow with beauty as if it would glorify the surroundings, the simple service out of doors upon the porch where he so often had stood and watched the going down of the sun, the beautiful view down the valley and over to the hills, and the moaning of the sorrowing pines. With tear-dimmed eyes we followed him to the silent city; school children along the way attesting their love; flags at half mast. On every hand evidences of his benefactions to his town. When the simple service was over and we had given back to earth her treasure, I retraced my steps to the old home, wandered out alone amid the pines, their needles as a velvety carpet, their odor a sweet incense, their swaying tops sighing a requiem, and there through the trees could be seen the sun just sinking to rest, and sending back its mysterious messages to the earth, messages from the eternal mansions to which he had gone, messages of cheer, of inspiration, messages of the good life, of service and devotion to country, of love for fellowmen and I thanked God for the inspiration of the life of a Larabee to the manhood of the state. And, "as the arrows of sunset lodged in the tree tops bright" I realized that the gates of light, we know not where, but somewhere, had opened wide for him, that:

"Somewhere the sun is shining,
Somewhere the song birds dwell."

And I knew that somewhere the Master was saying: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

The shadows commenced to lengthen and twilight approach, and as I turned my steps toward the house that never more would seem the same, there came to me the comforting words of the "Christian's Goodnight," nor farewell but merely goodnight, for on some other shore, somewhere, some time, some day, we shall say not goodnight, but good morning:

"Good night, beloved, blessed be thy rest,
Come lay thy head upon the Savior's breast,
We loved thee well, but Jesus loved thee best,
Goodnight! Goodnight! Goodnight!"

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 5.

JOINT RESOLUTION to Amend the Constitution Relating to Legislative Authority; Providing for the Initiative and Referendum with Reference to the Enactment of Laws, or Laws Enacted by the General Assembly, and Amendments to the Constitution.

Be it Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:—

That the following, designated as section one (1), be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to section one (1), of article three (III) of the legislative department of the constitution of the state of Iowa, which, when agreed to by this, the Thirty-fifth General Assembly, shall be referred to the Thirty-sixth General Assembly and, if by it agreed to, shall be referred to the qualified electors of the state of Iowa, and, if approved and ratified by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon, it shall be valid as a part of the constitution of the state of Iowa, as amended, and, when said section one (1), of article three (III) of the legislative department is so amended, it shall read as follows:

Section 1. The legislative authority of this state shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives, and the style of every law shall be, "Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Iowa", but the people reserve unto themselves the right and power to propose laws, to enact, approve or reject the same at the polls, independent of the general assembly, and reserve the right and power to approve or reject any item, section or part of any act enacted by the general assembly, except otherwise provided by this section. The general assembly shall fix the number of qualified electors required to propose the enactment of any proposed law, which shall be not less than twelve (12%) per cent nor more than twenty-two (22%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Every law proposed by the people shall be presented by petition, signed by the required number of qualified electors, addressed to and filed with the secretary of state not less than one hundred and fifty (150) days before the general election at which the proposed law shall be submitted. The petition shall contain the full text of the proposed law, with title and enacting clause.

If the proposed measure be to enact a law, the enacting clause shall be as follows: "Be it enacted by the people of the state of Iowa."

The right and power to initiate and enact laws shall be restricted within the same constitutional limitations as apply to the general assembly.

The required number of qualified electors required to exercise the right and power to require an act passed by the general assembly to be referred for approval or rejection shall be fixed by the general assembly, but shall not be less than ten (10%) per cent nor more than twenty (20%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Petitions therefor shall be addressed to and filed with the secretary of state within ninety (90) days from the final adjournment of the general assembly which passed the act to which the petition is addressed, and shall contain a full text of that part of the act to be referred; but such right and power shall not extend or apply to an act passed by the general assembly relating to the preservation of the public peace, public health or appropriations for the support and maintenance of the department of state and state institutions. All acts, and parts thereof, enacted by the general assembly and submitted to the people shall be and remain in full force and effect until rejected by the people, as herein provided.

Until the general assembly enacts a law fixing the per cent of qualified electors required for petition, the required per cent shall in all cases be fifteen (15%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state.

The whole number of votes cast for secretary of state at the regular general election past preceding the filing of petition shall be the basis for the number of legal voters required to sign such petition.

The veto power of the governor shall not apply or extend to any measure initiated and enacted by the people.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative or referred under the referendum shall be submitted to the people for adoption or rejection at the regular biennial election first occurring after the filing of the petition.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative shall become a law when approved by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon, and shall take effect as hereinafter provided.

Any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law when rejected by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon and proclamation has been made by the governor as hereinafter provided. All proposed laws under the initiative shall take effect and any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law from and after the date of official declaration of the vote thereon by proclamation issued by the governor, which shall be not later than thirty days after the vote has been canvassed by the state canvassing board for that purpose, composed of the governor, secretary of state and attorney general, and certificate thereof made not later than December first following the election.

The petition contemplated by this section shall consist of sheets having such general form, printed or written, as shall be prescribed by the secretary of state, and shall be signed by the required number of qualified electors, in their proper persons only, to which shall be attached the resident addresses of such persons signing the petition and the date of signing. To each of such sheets shall be attached and made a part thereof an affidavit of some qualified elector that each signature thereon is the signature of the person whose name it purports to be, and that, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the affiant, each of the persons signing said petition was, at the time of signing, a qualified elector. Such petition, so verified, shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures thereon are genuine and true, and that the persons signing the same are qualified electors of the state of Iowa.

Immediately upon the filing of a petition for the submission of a proposed law to the voters, the secretary of state shall submit the said proposed law to the supreme court for its opinion upon the constitutionality thereof, which shall be rendered within twenty (20) days, and if the court finds that the proposed measure conflicts with the constitution of the United States or the state of Iowa, the proposed measure shall not be submitted.

Until the general assembly shall provide by law a method of procedure of printing, distributing and submitting proposed measures, the secretary of state shall, ninety (90) days preceding the general election at which the measure will be voted upon, cause to be printed any and all measures for or to which petition has been filed, in pamphlet form, containing the full text thereof, with the title and enacting clause, together with arguments for and against the same, within the limits prescribed by the secretary of state. The number printed shall be not less than one for each voter voting at the last general election preceding the filing of the petition, which shall be delivered to the county auditor of each county.

For each voter in each voting precinct of each political party voting at the last general election, the auditor of each county shall deliver one copy to each precinct committeeman of each political party in the county.

The secretary of state shall submit all measures petitioned for in accordance with the provisions of this section, to the people for adoption or rejection at the polls in compliance herewith; but the right and power reserved to the people shall not operate to deprive or limit the power of the general assembly to enact laws.

If, at an election, conflicting measures submitted to the voters of the state shall be approved by a majority of the votes, severally cast thereon, the measure receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law as to all conflicting provisions.

Insofar as applicable, the provisions of this amendment shall govern in the initiative and adoption of amendments to the constitution; provided, however, that no amendment so submitted shall become a part of the constitution until it shall have first received an affirmative majority vote at two successive regular biennial elections, the majority vote at the first of which shall be the authority for preparation of the ballot and re-submission at the second. The word "enacted" shall be replaced by the word "resolved" in the enacting clause when amendments to the constitution are submitted.

This section of the constitution shall be, in all respects, self-executive.

I feel somehow in the mood and controlled by these lines, I have for thereof, which shall be rendered withintwenty (20) days, and if the court full text thereof, with the title and enacting clause, together with argument and power to approve or reject any item, section or par tof any act en-

This section of the constitution shall be, in all respects, self-executive.

On the question, "Shall the resolution pass?"

The ayes were:

Anderson of Montgomery, Anderson of Greene, Atkinson, Bartle, Bauman, Bernbrock, Bingham, Black, Blackford, Bliss, Boettger, Bradley, Brady, Brown, Bruce, Cannon, Carson, Clark, Cole, Cronbaugh, Crozier, Daniels, Dawson, Dixon, Downey, Doze, Dunlap, Eggleston, Elliott, Elwood, Enger, Fraley, Greene of Grundy, Greene of Clinton, Griffin, Hadley, Halgrims, Halstead, Hamilton, Hansen, Hazen, Helming, Huff, Hunt, Huntley, Hutchins, Jacobs, Jacobson, Jensen, Jones, Kane, Kelso, Kingland, Klay, Kulp, Larrabee, Lenoeker, LeRoy, Lounsberry, Lund, Manning, McHose, McVicker, Meredith, Miller, Milton, Mitchell, Munro, Odendahl, Pickford, Power, Reeve, Ring, Rohwer, Rone, Saltzmann, Scholz, Scott, Shankland, Sherman, Sidey, Steelsmith, Stokes, Stutt, Thompson, Townsend, Trumbauer, Webb, White, Whitney, Workman, Mr. Speaker—92.

The nays were:

Barry, Brockway, Chapman, Craig, Jamison, Koontz, McCullough, Newcomb, Peterson, Stipe—10.

Absent or not voting:

Burt, Buxton, Erickson, Griggs, Grout, Heaton—6.

So the joint resolution having received a constitutional majority was declared to have passed the House.

Klay of Sioux proposed the following amendment to the title:

Amend by adding thereto "and amendments to the constitution."

Amendment adopted and title as amended agreed to.

CONSIDERATION OF BILLS.

House resumed consideration of House File No. 215.

Hansen of Shelby moved that the minority report be substituted for the report of the majority.

Motion lost.

Report of committee was adopted and House File No. 215 was indefinitely postponed.

Hamilton of Lee moved that Hon. Maurice Connolly, congressman from the third district be invited to address the House.

Motion prevailed.

The Speaker appointed Hamilton of Lee a committee to escort Mr. Connolly to the Speaker's desk.

Mr. Connolly then addressed the House as follows:

MR. SPEAKER AND REPRESENTATIVES—It was a great surprise to me that I should be asked to speak here to-day. Ever since the campaign and the results of November, I have lost the art of speech, in fact, the art of conversation. The exigencies and demands of the cohorts who are willing to serve the country, who have petitioned and have had requests to make of me, have made me a first class listener, and in the campaign, I developed a faculty of talking in my sleep, but now my trouble is that I listen in my sleep. Late last night I had a telephone call from a gentleman, who was willing to be postmaster in a certain vicinity, who was very anxious to hear me speak favorably.

But, my friends, I realize that you have a great deal to do. I do not believe I could tell you anything. I am simply here as a native of Iowa; one who was born in the state; one who comes from people who were pioneers in Iowa. My father was here in the thirties and my grandfather preceded him in Iowa, and I have great admiration for Iowa and great respect and love for the pioneers who blazed the trail and builded this state, and I have just one last connecting link,—an old gray haired mother. From her, from the influences of the old pioneer home, the good that may be in me, the good influences that arise in me emanate from the sanctity of that home. All that I ask is that these influences may continue.

I feel somehow in the mood and controlled by these lines, I have forgotten who wrote them, but they suggest themselves to me at this time. I am in my swaddling clothes period of politics. I am an infant in politics. I am new in politics, but I think of these lines:

“The greatest thing in life, I find at every turn of the road,
Is the stalwart hand of some comrade, kind to help one onward with the load.

And since of gold, I cannot give, and love alone must make amends,
My only prayer is while I live, God make me worthy of my friends.”

And when I say “my friends,” I mean the people who put me in the position I occupy to-day, and I beseech that God, your God and my God, who smiles benignly upon tolerance and liberality, I beseech that that God, the God without whose assistance we can do nothing, may give me light to act intelligently, not only for my friends, but my foes, to serve them in a patriotic sense and not in a partisan sense; to give me the light to act intelligently and the fortitude to do that which is right, and that I may take my part in going out into the lanes and the byways and helping to bring in the lame and the halt, the sick and the poorly fed and poorly clad, who have been somewhat neglected during all these years in legislation, and help to bring them out into the great, broad pathway of life, which for many years has been used only for privilege, to lead them into that pathway at the end of which we see a sentiment originated by a democrat but which applies to all people the golden chiseled words "Equality of rights to all and special privileges to none."

I thank you most sincerely for your courteous and kind attention.

Ring of Linn moved that House File No. 572 be recalled from the committee on Judiciary and referred to the committee on Labor.

Motion prevailed.

Dixon of Sac moved that Hon. Paul Stillman, former Speaker of the House, be invited to address the members of the House.

Motion prevailed.

Brockway of Louisa moved that House File No. 465 be made a special order for Wednesday, March 26th, at 10:00 o'clock A. M., and continue a special order until disposed of.

Motion prevailed.

Miller of Bremer moved that the chief clerk be instructed to prepare a duplicate copy of House File No. 475 with all endorsements thereon.

Motion prevailed.

Journal of Thursday, March 20th was corrected and approved.

Klay of Sioux presented the following resolution, asked unanimous consent for immediate consideration and moved its adoption:

RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS: There having been a great many inquiries as to the essential points of difference on the vital matters between House File No. 648, by the House committee on Public Utilities, and Senate File No. 306, by the Senate committee on Public Utilities, and it is desirable that the members have these differences printed in brief form for their own use and for the purpose of answering inquiries thereon, therefore be it

Resolved, That the following statement, by the chairman of the House committee on Public Utilities, be printed in the Journal, and that the public printer be directed to print one thousand (1,000) extra copies thereof for the use of the members of the House and Senate.

"The House committee on Public Utilities has introduced an entirely new bill establishing a public service commission. The House committee has tried to gather the best features in the laws from the various states, profiting by their experience and their mistakes.

The essential points of difference on the vital matters between the House bill and the Senate bill are as follows:

Under the House bill, the city is able to purchase an existing public utility operating under a permit granted by the state commission, by pursuing the following course: A special election is held, and if the majority of the citizens so decide, the matter is then settled, without any appeal to the commission of the state as to the necessity for the purchase; without any appeal to the district court, subject to appeal to the supreme court; without any unanimous vote of any jury being required. A public utility taking out an indeterminate permit, waives all jury trials on those matters. This question of necessity, we believe, is one for the citizens themselves to determine in each locality. After that matter is decided, the appraisal of value of the property is made by the state commission.

The commission's findings of facts are conclusive, in the same way that a jury's findings of facts are conclusive. It took twenty years to get this principle adopted in the national inter-state commerce law. We feel that the Iowa legislature should profit by this experience, removing the possibility of interminable delays and litigations in the courts.

Appeals are made directly from the commission to the supreme court. It is thought unwise to make a tribunal of the character of a public service commission on an equality with an ordinary justice of the peace court, subject to appeal to the district court, thence to the supreme court, and thence to the federal courts.

The commerce counsel is not abolished. The department remains just as it is today, but the committee has introduced a separate bill to extend its jurisdiction to all public utilities.

The commission is to be composed of five members, permanently, to be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Problems confronting a tribunal of this character are of such magnitude that the members of the commission should be, as closely as possible, of the character and standing of members of our supreme court. Their judgment in the appraisals of properties will determine the ownership of large interests. The appraisal of the Des Moines street railway alone would determine values aggregating several millions of dollars.

The expenses of the commission are to be borne by assessments on the utilities regulated. The commission is required to make valuations for taxation purposes of all the public utilities in the state, which are now valued by the executive council, and certify these valuations to the executive council or other taxation tribunal making the assessments; these findings to be conclusive as to the valuations for taxation purposes. This relieves the state of the expense of having two valuations made by separate commissions. We feel this duplication is unwarranted, and the findings of one tribunal might be very embarrassing to the other body.

No foreign corporation can receive any grant or franchise hereafter to construct or operate a utility handling heat, light, water or power.

The commission is prohibited from approving issues of stocks and bonds. If the public service commission should approve an issue of securities, it would naturally follow that the state commission, when called upon later, to determine the value for rate making purposes, would be compelled to recognize those stocks and bonds as entitled to return, which would probably also carry with it the recognition of other securities formerly issued on the footing as such new securities. The whole question of validating existing capitalization and watered stock is thus avoided.

The commission is empowered to suspend any changes in rates upon investigation, and if an advance by a public utility is unjustified, it can be permanently suspended.

Any person making a written application for a hearing is entitled to the same, and in the hearing of cases, those involving labor disputes are given preference over all other cases.

Removal of commissioners is provided as follows: Upon complaint filed by the attorney general, or one hundred citizens petitioning for the same, and the attorney general then filing said complaint, the chief justice is required to name a tribunal, to consist of three members of the supreme court. This tribunal shall hear the charges, and determine whether the commissioner shall be discharged.

The bill specifically provides that no part of the same can be interpreted as validating any existing franchise.

Some of these matters provided in the House bill raise the issues that have been threshed out in many states and in congress, relative to the interstate commerce act. They will probably arouse the same opposition that similar measures caused when it was sought to write them in our national laws."

Motion prevailed, and resolution was adopted.

Mr. Stillman made the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE: I appreciate deeply the distinguished courtesy which you have conferred upon me by permitting me to stand for a moment in this exalted station. I appreciate it the more because some whispering out of the past enables me to see something strangely and sweetly familiar about these surroundings. In fact, as I look about me, I am almost overcome by a flood of recollections out of the past,—a past which is illumined by memories of the most delightful associations of life, had upon this floor. As I stand here I am impressed by the sweeping and the rapid changes which time brings. For of all the 108 men, who six years ago assembled as the Thirty-second General Assembly, unless my vision fails me, but three now remain; and whatever damage the omission may do to the pride of one who holds the political views I do, I am of the opinion that those three are all democrats. (Applause from the Cherokee strip). The modest and conscientious gentlemen from Van Buren, whom I dare say all have learned to love; the caustic but genial gentleman from Bremer, who has not done his duty by you unless he has enlivened the session by his bright shafts of wit; and finally, the most venerable gentleman from Johnson, whose patriarchal and benignant smile I now see hover over the left part of the chamber, like a benediction.

Gentlemen, as republicans we have become in the later days, men of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and I assure you that it adds nothing to the sum of our misfortunes to know that three such democrats have survived the changes of time and fortunes of politics.

I am too familiar with the proprieties and ethics to impose a speech upon you. I have no speech. But I will not sit down until I have congratulated every one of you upon his membership in this body. There may be greater honors and more spectacular positions, but there is no finer honor won than to be called to represent an Iowa county upon the floor of this House, representing a people who have themselves made a capital of character.

And now, gentlemen, I thank you once more for this courtesy. It has been a great delight to stand before you again. I know that it is contrary to the ethics of the legislature for one not a member to speak upon subjects before you, but if that were not the case, and I were free to tell you what is in my mind, I should say to you that I was delighted yesterday to note that the gentlemen from the other side of the corridor passed a real progressive road bill, in which I hope this House may concur next week.

Having violated the proprieties of this House, I move that the remark be expunged from the record. (Applause).

The following communication was received from the governor :

STATE OF IOWA.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

To the Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly:

Iowa has a soil that is not equalled in its possibilities by any other like area of the earth's surface. Yet there are countries where the soil, of much less natural fertility, is made to produce, on the average, almost, if not quite, twice as much per acre of crops common to both countries. This must necessarily be due to better methods of soil conservation, closer study of seed selection, better methods of tillage and generally to a more profound study of soil production as it is related to human needs and welfare. The soil of England, Germany, France, after centuries of cultivation, is made to produce on the average twice as much wheat per acre as is produced in this country. Holland and Denmark do likewise and also double the production per acre of oats, potatoes and other crops produced here. It is said of Denmark that no other country in the world is to be compared with her in the intelligence with which she treats her soil and in results produced. To express it in another way it has been said that all the rest of the world can go to Denmark to learn how to farm. Her agricultural schools, planted thickly over the country, superintended and taught by men of a very high order of scholarship are said to be unsurpassed. Home economics, I am advised, receive the most careful attention with most excellent results. In some of the countries mentioned dairying has also been brought to a state of perfection and profit not equalled elsewhere. The utilization of the entire products of the field for feed and the study of food values has brought about great economies. The great benefit of co-operation among agricultural industries has been conclusively demonstrated. Through co-operation agriculture, dairying and all allied industries have been made much more profitable. Land tenancy in some of these countries has been put upon a sound basis, just and profitable alike to both landlord and tenant, and at the same time compelling the preservation and fertility of the soil.

The possibilities of Iowa wait upon scientific study of ways and means. She is crying out, so to speak, to be given a chance to demonstrate to the world the wondrous land she really is. She is impatient of this delay. She is tired of being shorn of her strength when she should and could, if given a chance, bring forth in multiplied abundance. Her wisest and most far-seeing men want to lend a hand to bring about this most desirable consummation.

Believing that it would result in great benefit to our agricultural interests and thus also promotive of the general good if a study at first hand by competent and well known citizens of the state could be made in some of the countries mentioned, at least, of agricultural conditions and methods and dairying and schools and co-operation and land tenantry and kindred subjects with special reference to Iowa conditions and needs and a report made of results, facts and conclusions, and believing that you will be glad to co-operate with me in whatever will prove helpful to our people in connection with these great subjects, I respectfully ask that by resolution you authorize and empower me to appoint and commission as representatives of the state of Iowa not more than three persons for the purpose above named, all to be without any expense whatever to the state.

Done at the city of Des Moines, Iowa March 25, 1913.

G. W. CLARKE,
Governor.

Shankland of Polk called up resolution laid over under Rule 34, relating to the limiting of time of debate and explanation of vote.

STATE OF IOWA.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

To the Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly:

The day for your final adjournment is not very far distant. Soon your work will pass into history. You have had before you, perhaps, more great subjects for consideration than any other legislature of the State that has preceded you. On practically all of them, however, you have had the help of the legislation and experience of other States. If you have been confronted by matters of unusually great importance your obligation to the State is correspondingly great. New conditions and new relations face the people of these States. Legislation must be wisely adapted to the new order. Not many years ago Public Utilities Acts, Workmen's Compensation Acts, Prison Reform, Permanent Roads, the Short Ballot, the Reorganization of our Rural Schools and many other subjects resulting from the best thought applied to the new day were not thought of. Now the development of human affairs has forced them to the front and now they are the demand of human welfare, and this demand is absolutely unyielding and resistless. Human progress cannot be halted. It may be stayed a while as it always has been in the realms of science, of education, of legislation, but the better day ever comes on apace sometimes to the dismay and confusion of him who opposed. Legislation upon these subjects to meet the new conditions and promote the common good I believe is just as certain as anything can be that is absolutely inevitable. This is true also as to the reform in the administration of our tax laws. Our law upon this subject is inequitable and unjust in its operation. It has been condemned by every state treasurer who has considered the matter during the last twenty-five years. It has been denounced by every commission that has ever carefully and thoroughly considered the subject. There is not a political economist in the United States who has given years of time to the study of methods and systems of taxation who does not say that our system is a failure and that it can never be otherwise. It is denounced as a failure in every State in the Union where it has been tried and State after State has abandoned it. It is not that people should be taxed more but that they should be taxed justly, and that the public burden on the individuals should be in proportion to his ability to bear it. It is impossible that there can be any rational objection to a system that taxes every man upon the basis of actual value. A system is proposed that will bring about that result so far as possible, in fact. No man can have an advantage. It is right and therefore deserves support.

I have said these measures will all be recognized and translated into law in this State. They will be. Then why should the day be delayed? If it is, members of this legislature will see the time when it will be thought extremely strange that the Thirty-fifth General Assembly refused legislation on any of these important matters. It will, however, be but a repetition of the history of legislation. Looking back over the years one marvels that there should have been stubborn opposition to measures now recognized as absolutely just and essential to the common good. So will it be if this legislature refuses its great opportunities. The opportunity is yours, the great distinction should be yours. This legislature ought not to adjourn without legislation on these subjects through just and workable measures. These things are right and are demanded by present conditions. There can be no higher reason for doing a thing than because it is right. In addition to this reason, the first and best of all reasons, there is the further reason as to practically all of these matters that the people have demanded the legislation proposed. Every one of us was elected on a platform voicing this demand. Every one of us entered into a covenant with the people of this State when we were elected. We should keep this covenant and not betray it. There can be no defense for a willful breach of faith. There should be consecration to the public welfare and selfish and mercenary interests should not be allowed to deceive and mislead. We have here a section of the age-long fight for progress, for better things, for the good of all the people. It is a stand for the betterment of human conditions in Iowa. Day after day I have had conferences with you, singly and by twos and threes on these subjects and for more than six weeks very many, many times you have, on invitation, come to my office in numbers from eight to ten more than thirty while we discussed these and other matters. I have felt, however, that I wanted to submit a word to you as a whole. I do not see how your record for hard work, for determined conscientious effort could be surpassed. Personally I have never seen it equalled. You have been criticised, as if legislation on these great questions could be properly shaped and moulded in a day. The work of shaping and moulding has now practically been done and it only remains for the fruits of it, on these great subjects, to be crystalized into law—it only remains for you to take your place in the history of the State. It will be an honored place if you redeem every pledge and hope of the people and keep in step with the best thought of the time on the subjects with which you have had to deal. I believe you will.

I desire to submit a word with reference to the extension of the Capitol Grounds. It is the need of the present—it is the imperative demand of the future. It is a matter of the very best business policy. If looked at only as an investment it would be a remarkably good one. By extending the payment for the grounds over a period of ten years it would bring no burden at all upon the people. Never again can the purchase of ground be so advantageously made as now. Iowa should do business as competent, successful business men do. Advantage should be taken of the time and the opportunity. Iowa should announce that she is of age and full-grown. She should step out of the old conditions that hamper and restrain her into the new. The legislature should be unafraid. The people will sustain you. When the work is done they will ever refer to you as the legislature that was far-seeing and wise enough to extend the Capitol Grounds, that gave the Public Utilities Bill, the Workmen's Compensation Act, Prison Reform, provided for permanent road building, put our rural schools on the road to great betterment, reformed our tax laws and did other things of great value, a great record, and unparalleled. What man is there of you that will lose this the greatest opportunity of his life to render a great public service. Listen not to the voice of selfishness. Tolerate not the 'invisible' man. For more than ten years practically all legislation and all political agitation in this country has been against human selfishness. Let it proceed. The rights of all men must be put above the selfishness of a few men. Go forward. Your duty, as it seems to me, is plain.

Governor.

Sec. 2. The executive board of the state of Iowa, with the superintendent of public instruction, is hereby authorized and empowered to adopt text books for the teaching of all branches that are now or may hereafter be authorized to be taught in the public schools of the state, except cities of the first class, or special charter cities, or those having a population of over 5,000, in which case the board may select such books as they may deem best suited for their needs, and they shall enter into contracts with any firm or corporation handling such supplies or text books, and such books shall be of a uniform series and character for each special grade throughout the state, except as above provided, and they may arrange on equitable terms for the exchange of books, supplies, or contracts now in use for new ones adopted.

Sec. 3. Before purchasing text books under the provisions of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the board to advertise the letting of such contracts by publication in at least three daily papers which have a general circulation throughout the state, no two of which shall be in the same city.

Said notice shall state the time up to which bids will be received, the classes and grades for which text books and other necessary supplies are to be bought, and the approximate quantity needed, and said board shall award the contract for said text books and supplies to any responsible bidder or bidders, in whole or in part, offering suitable text books and supplies at the lowest price, taking into consideration the quality of material used, illustrations, binding and all other things which go to make up a desirable text book; and may, to the end that they be fully advised, consult with county superintendents, city superintendents, or other competent persons, with reference to the selection of text books; and further provided that the board may reject any or all bids, or any part thereof, and re-advertise therefor, as above provided; and further provided that, should the board, after due consideration, find that such bid or bids were not just and reasonable, then authority is hereby given said board, at their discretion, to procure copyrights for any or all such school books and supplies, and arrange for their publication by the state, either by prison labor or otherwise, and sell same to the school boards and boards of supervisors of the state at cost, as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 4. It shall be unlawful for any school board or county board of supervisors to displace any text book that has been regularly adopted or re-adopted under the provisions of this chapter, and no such adoption shall be held or change made more than once in every five years.

Sec. 5. Any person or firm desiring to furnish books or supplies under this chapter shall, at or before the filing of his bid, deposit in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction samples of all text books included in his bid, and the person, firm or corporation who shall have been awarded such contract shall leave such samples in the custody of the superintendent of public instruction, and the samples shall be in all particulars identical with those to be furnished by the accepted bidders to the people of the state. The board shall require of any person, firm or corporation with whom they contract for furnishing any books or supplies to enter into a good and sufficient bond, of such sum as may seem wise to them, for the faithful performance of any such contract, but bonds of surety companies authorized under the laws of Iowa shall be accepted. And they may also demand a bond that no book or supply contracted for by them shall be sold to any other state at a lower price.

Sec. 6. And it shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to immediately after such adoption notify the county superintendents of the several counties of the state, giving a list of such books and supplies as shall have been adopted by the executive board, the contract price of the same, and any other information of value to said county superintendents, which report and information shall be given by the county superintendent to the board of supervisors at their first meeting thereafter, and the county superintendent shall also present to the board of supervisors a detailed statement showing the number of pupils in the county, and, as near as possible, the number in each grade, and such other information as shall aid the board of supervisors in arriving at the number of books and supplies needed to supply the pupils of the county.

Sec. 7. The board of directors and county supervisors of each and every school corporation and county in the state of Iowa are hereby authorized and empowered to purchase such school books and supplies as have been adopted by the executive board as constituted under this act, and to sell the same to the pupils of their respective districts at cost, and said money so received shall be returned to the contingent fund. The books and supplies so purchased shall be under the charge of the board purchasing them, who may select one or more persons within the county to keep said books and supplies for sale, to insure the safety of the books and money, the board shall require of each person so appointed a bond in such sum as the board may deem advisable.

Sec. 8. Whenever a petition signed by one-third or more of the legal voters, to be determined by the school board of any school corporation, shall be filed with the secretary thirty days or more before the annual meeting of the electors, asking that the question of providing free text books for the use of pupils in the public schools thereof be submitted to the voters at the next annual meeting, he shall cause notice of such proposition to be given in the call for such meeting.

Sec. 9. If, at such meeting, a majority of the legal voters present and voting by ballot thereon shall authorize the board of directors of said school corporation to loan text books to the pupils free of charge, then the board shall procure such text books as shall be needed, in the manner as herein provided, and loan them to the pupils. The board shall hold pupils responsible for any damage to, loss of, or failure to return any such books, and shall adopt such rules and regulations as may be reasonable and necessary for the keeping and preservation thereof. Any pupils shall be allowed to purchase any text book adopted by the executive board at cost. No pupil already supplied with text books shall be supplied with others without charge until needed.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS: For many years it has been the custom of the railroads operating in and across the state of Iowa, in conjunction with railroads east and west, to tender to the public each year what are known as homeseeker rates to influence travel from Iowa and from points east of Iowa and across this state to the west for the purpose of exploiting Canadian lands, Mexican ranchos, dry farming lands in the semi-arid and desert districts, high priced irrigation project lands, etc., and to induce persons from Iowa and the territory east of Iowa to purchase these lands and become settlers; and

WHEREAS: The railroads have refused to name Iowa points as destinations for these rates, or to apply them to Iowa points despite the fact there are hundreds of opportunities in every county in Iowa for homeseekers to establish themselves upon lands that do not have to be irrigated, where water tolls are not exacted, where it is not necessary to resort to dry farming, where markets are close at hand, where the school system and the public conveniences are developed and where the climate and the soil insure a crop every year; therefore,

Be it Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That the state of Iowa in view of the fact homeseeker rates are made and thousands of dollars expended for advertising them to points north and south and west of Iowa, and that these rates are made to apply across Iowa and from Iowa points but not to points within the state, and that colonist rates are made in the same way, regard these rates as not only a discrimination against the state and its interests, but as destructive to its best interest and request and demand of the railroads operating in Iowa that in the future they refuse all tenders of homeseeker and colonist rates from connecting lines and decline to issue tariffs giving these rates except that Iowa destinations are included and the same rates and the same stop-over privileges given to Iowa territory as are accorded to any other territory to which the rates apply.

Laid over under Rule 34.

Be it Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Section 1. That cities and towns and cities acting under special charter and commission plan of government shall have power to acquire and provide for the formation and maintenance of a municipal theater for the use of all the inhabitants, under proper regulations, and may purchase land and erect buildings, or may hire buildings or rooms, suitable for that purpose, and equip the same with the appurtenances and fixtures necessary for the conducting of a theater, and provide for the compensation of the necessary employes; may receive, hold or dispose of any and all gifts, donations, devises and bequests that may be made to them for the purpose of establishing, increasing or improving any such theater; and may apply all proceeds, profits, interests and rents acquired therefrom in any such manner as will best promote the prosperity and utility of such theater; but no money can be appropriated for such purpose until the electors of such city or town shall, at a general or special election, have voted for the establishment of such theater.

Sec. 2. In any city or town in which a municipal theater has been established there shall be a board of trustees consisting of five members, to be appointed by the mayor, by and with the approval of the council. Of the trustees first appointed, one shall hold office for one year, one for two years, one for three years, one for four years, and one for five years, from the first day of July following their appointment; and at their first meeting, they shall cast lots for the respective terms, reporting the result of such lot to the council.

Annually thereafter, before the first of July, the mayor shall appoint, by and with the approval of the council, one trustee to succeed the trustee retiring on the following first of July, who shall hold office for a term of five years from such first of July, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. The mayor may remove any or all of said trustees for cause, and any vacancies occurring in the board shall be filled by appointment by the mayor as herein provided, such appointment to fill out the unexpired term for which the appointment is made. Bona fide citizens and residents of the city or town, male or female, over the age of twenty-one years, are eligible to appointment. The removal of any trustee permanently from the city shall render his office as trustee vacant. Members of said board shall receive no compensation for their services.

Sec. 3. Said board of theater trustees shall have and exercise the following powers: To meet and organize by the election of one of their number as president of the board, and by the election of a secretary and such other officers as the board may deem necessary; to have charge, control and supervision of the municipal theater, its appurtenances and fixtures, and rooms connecting the same, directing and controlling all the affairs of such theater; to employ such employes as may be necessary for the proper management of such theater and fix their compensation; and to make contracts with or employ theatrical companies or individuals for the giving of such performances as may meet with their approval; provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed as permitting said trustees to give exhibitions, entertainments or amusements of any character which are now or may hereafter be prohibited by law. Said trustees shall have power to charge rentals and to fix an admission fee for all exhibitions, performances or amusements, but nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting said trustees from granting the use of such theater for gatherings of a public nature and to which no fee of admission is charged.

Sec. 4. All moneys received from taxation, admission fees, rentals, gifts or bequests and set apart for the construction or maintenance such a theater shall be deposited in the treasury of such city or town to the credit of the theater fund, and shall be kept by the treasurer separate and apart from all other moneys, and paid out upon the order of the board of trustees, signed by its president and secretary; and the said trustees shall make an annual report to the mayor and council of all moneys received from whatsoever source, all property acquired, improvements made, all funds or property disposed of, and for what purposes.

Sec. 5. For the purpose of paying for the purchase price of such theater grounds and for the construction of such theater building, and equipping the same, such cities or towns shall have the power to levy upon all the property within the corporate limits of such cities and towns subject to taxation for said purposes in addition to all other taxes now provided by law, a special tax not exceeding in any one year two (2) mills on the dollar for a period not exceeding ten years.

Sec. 6. Any city or town desiring to purchase ground or to construct a building for theater purposes may issue bonds in anticipation of the special tax authorized in the preceding section. Such bonds shall be known as theater bonds and shall be issued and sold in accordance with the provisions of chapter twelve (12) of title five (V) of the Code of Iowa, and acts amendatory thereto. In issuing such bonds, the city council may cause portions of said bonds to become due at different definite periods, but none of such bonds so issued shall be due and payable in less than three nor more than ten years from date of issue.

At such primary election, the candidate of each party receiving the highest number of the votes cast for the office for which he was a candidate, shall be the nominee of his party for such office.

Sec. 6. The Governor shall also issue a proclamation fixing a day for the special election by the electors of Larrabee County, under the laws governing general elections and conducted in the manner as therein provided, except as the same are herein changed, which date shall be not less than thirty nor more than sixty days after the date of the primary election herein provided for. Said election shall be held at the same precincts as provided in Section 5 hereof, relating to the primary election. At such election, the several officers provided for in Section 5 hereof shall be elected and the result of such election, including the canvass of the vote, shall be declared in the same manner as other elections for county and township officials, and for such purposes the board of supervisors of Kossuth County shall convene on the Monday following said election, at their usual meeting place, at which time it shall be determined by lot which of the supervisors elected shall hold office until January 1, 1917, which until January 1, 1918, and which until January 1, 1919, and the result of such determination entered of record as a part of said canvass. Until the election and qualification of the officers of Larrabee County, all the public business pertaining to Larrabee County or any of its citizens, shall be conducted by the officers of Kossuth County, the same as if no division had been made.

Sec. 10. Any supervisor of Kossuth County residing within the territory of Larrabee County shall cease to be a member of the said board of supervisors of Kossuth County upon the election of the board of supervisors in Larrabee County.

Sec. 11. The fact that the proposition to change the boundary of Kossuth County shall be adopted at the general election in 1914 will not disqualify any person residing in the territory set off as Larrabee County who may be elected to any office in Kossuth County, Iowa, at said election, to hold such office, except the offices of county supervisors, providing the person or persons so elected shall become a resident or residents of Kossuth County prior to the date upon which such person is required to qualify as provided by law.

Said commission shall prepare a certificate signed by all the members thereof, which shall be duly acknowledged and filed for record in the office of the recorder in and for Larrabee County, which certificate shall contain a complete statement of the findings of said board and a reference to the books, documents and records which it has certified, and ordered transferred to said Larrabee County, and all such documents, records, books and papers so certified by it shall be admissible in evidence the same as are other county records in the State of Iowa. Either county may appeal from the finding of such commission or any part thereof to the district court of either Larrabee or Kossuth County, but any such appeal shall include every question known to such county and to which it objects at the time the appeal is taken.

Sec. 13. The commissioners provided for in Section 12 hereof to reside in Kossuth and Larrabee Counties shall receive six dollars per day and actual expenses, and the non-resident member ten dollars per day and actual expenses, for the time actually spent in the performance of their duties as herein provided. Kossuth County and Larrabee County shall each pay one-half of the expense of such division, payment to be provided for by the Board of Supervisors of each county.

Sec. 16. All the expenses incurred in the division provided for herein, including the cost of the primary and special elections, and the expense incurred by the commission referred to in Section 12 hereof, other than the personal expenses of said commission, shall be paid by the County of Larrabee and the board of supervisors of such county shall make the necessary provision therefor.

Sec. 17. This act, being deemed of immediate importance, shall be in force and effect from and after its publication in the Register and Leader, and the Bancroft Register, two newspapers of general circulation, which publication shall be without expense to the state.

By renumbering section 8 as section 9, and by adding as section 8 the following:

Section 8. The owner, operator, lessee or person in charge of any gypsum mine shall make or cause to be made an accurate map or plan of such mine, drawn to a scale not more than two hundred (200) feet to the inch, on which shall appear the name of the state, county and township in which the mine is located, the designation of the mine, the name of the company or owner, operator, lessee or person in charge, the certificate of the mining engineer or surveyor as to the accuracy and date of the survey, the north point and the scale to which the drawing is made. Every such map or plan shall correctly show the surface boundary lines of the rights pertaining to each mine and all sections or quarter section lines or corners within the same; the lines of town lots or streets; the tracks or side tracks of all railroads, the location of all wagon roads, rivers, streams, ponds, reservations made of gypsum and mineral. For the underground workings said map shall show all shafts, slopes, tunnels or other opening to the surface or to the workings of a continuous mine; all excavations, entries, rooms and cross cuts; the location of the escape ways, and of the fan or furnace or other means of ventilation and the direction of air currents and the location of permanent pumps, hauling engines, engine plains, abandoned works, fire walls and standing water. A separate and similar map drawn to the same scale in all cases shall be made of each and every seam of gypsum operated in any mine in the state. A separate map shall also be made of the surface whenever the surface buildings, lines or objects are so numerous as to obscure the details of the mine workings if drawn upon the same sheet with them and in such case the surface map shall be drawn upon transparent cloth or paper so it can be laid upon the map of the underground workings and thus truly indicate the local relation of lines and objects on the surface to the excavation of the mine, together with any other principal workings of the mines. Each map shall also show by profile drawing and measurement, the last one hundred fifty (150) feet approaching the boundary lines, showing the rise and dip of the seam. The original or true copies of all such maps shall be kept at the office of the mine and true copies thereof shall also be furnished the state mine inspector for the district in which said mine is located within thirty (30) days after the completion of the same. The maps so delivered to the inspector shall be the property of the state and shall remain in the custody of the said inspector during his term of office and be delivered to his successor in office. They shall be kept at the office of the inspector and be open to examination to all persons interested in the same. But such examination shall only be made in the presence of the inspector or his office assistant, and he shall not permit any copies of the same to be made without the written consent of the operator or the owner of the property, except as herein and otherwise provided. An accurate extension of the last preceding survey of every mine in active operation shall be made once in every twelve (12) months prior to July 1st of every year and the result of such survey with the date thereof shall be promptly and accurately entered upon the original map and a true, correct and accurate copy of said extended map shall be forwarded to the inspector of mines in the district in which said mine is located so as to show all changes in plan of new work in the mine, and all extension of the old workings to the most advanced face or boundary of said workings which have been made since the last preceding survey, and the parts of the mine abandoned or worked out after the last preceding survey shall be clearly indicated and shown by colorings which copy must be delivered to the inspector of mines within thirty (30) days after the last survey is made. When any gypsum mine is worked out or is about to be abandoned or indefinitely closed, the owner, operator, lesse or person in charge of the same shall make or cause to be made a complete extended map of said mine and the result of the same shall be duly extended on all maps of the mine and copies thereof so as to show all excavations and the most advanced workings of the mine and their exact relation to the boundary of section lines on the surface, and deliver to the inspector a copy of the completed map. The state inspector of mines shall order a survey to be made of the workings of any mine and the result to be extended on the maps of the same and the copies thereof whenever in his judgment the safety of the workmen, the support of the surface, the conservation of the property or the safety of the adjoining mine requires it: and if not made by the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge when ordered by the inspector it shall be made or cause to be made by the inspector and paid for by the state and the amount collected from the owner, operator, lessee or person in charge as other debts are collected; and when so amended the bill do pass.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

MR. SPEAKER—I voted against the Public Utilities Bill, because I believe, with John Mac Vicar, that its adoption would be "The Crowning Infamy" of a so-called progressive legislature. Since to go into details as to the several reasons for my opposition would be to cover the same ground as was covered by the Mac Vicar article from the Des Moines Daily News, which this body has voted to suppress. I will not take the risk of another rebuke by advancing them again, but content myself with the statement that if my mind were incapable of evolving other reasons, the mere fact that agents of certain corporations have spent much of their time here this winter urging the passage of the Public Utilities Bill convinces me that the principal purpose of the measure is to deliver the people of Iowa over to the corporations so securely bound and shackled that future legislatures may not be able to release them.

Also, I will take the liberty to suggest:

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again;
The eternal years of God are hers;
But Error, wounded, writhes with pain,
And dies among his worshippers."

Like notice shall be sent to those in possession of said land and to all mortgagees of record. Proof serving such notice by registered mail shall be made by affidavit of the auditor, who shall keep in his office a permanent record of the date of sending said notices, together with registry receipts, which record of the auditor shall be final and conclusive as to the time of sending the said notice. Such notice shall also be published once in the official newspapers, which publication shall be not less than seven (7) days prior to the time set for hearing, proof being made thereof by affidavit as in case of legal notices published in official newspapers.

Sec. 3. The board shall hear the objections at the time set and shall, if necessary, view the premises before making their final decision and if they shall find that said proposed improvement is necessary, they shall establish the district as specified in the plat and return of the county engineer; provided, however, that the county board of supervisors shall be without power or authority to establish such permanent road improvement districts, or to provide for the levy and collection of taxes therefor, if at the time fixed for said hearing, written objections to said proposed improvement, signed by owners of property which will be required to bear more than fifty per cent of the special assessments, have been filed with the county auditor. In the event no such protest is filed, the board shall have jurisdiction, power and authority to order said improvement, provide the necessary tax levy therefor and carry out the further provisions of this act relating thereto.

Sec. 4. The auditor shall thereupon publish notice of the time and place of letting the contracts for said improvement, in the official newspapers of the county, the date of publication being not less than fifteen (15) days prior to the date set for the letting; and he may publish similar notice thereof in some journal of general circulation among contractors. The board of supervisors shall award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder; provided, however, that the board shall have the power to reject all bids, in which event, they may readvertise or let privately by submitting contract to the state highway commission for approval, or build by day labor at a cost not to exceed the lowest bid received. All bids received shall be publicly opened at the time and place specified in the advertisement and shall be recorded in detail in a book kept for that purpose by the county auditor, which book shall at all times be open to the public for inspection. Any proposed contract which shall exceed the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000) for any road improvement under this act shall be first approved by the state highway commission before the same shall become valid. All bills for permanent road work shall be filed in itemized form and certified to by the engineer before being allowed by the board, and before warrants in payment therefor are drawn by the county auditor. Partial payments may be allowed by the board on contract work on the basis of the engineer's certified estimates and the percentages specified in the standard specifications of the state highway commission. The board of supervisors may authorize the auditor to draw warrants for the amount of pay rolls for labor furnished under the day labor system when said pay rolls are certified to by the engineer in charge of the work. Said bills shall be passed upon by the board at the first meeting following said payment.

Sec. 5. All improvements made under the provisions of this act shall conform to the standard plans and specifications of the state highway commission, and the engineer in charge for the county shall inform himself as to the provisions therein contained. The actual expenses incurred by said commission under this act for field engineering, or for conducting hearings, outside of the office of the commission, shall be assessed as a part of the costs of any permanent road construction as herein provided; and itemized vouchers of such expenses, duly verified by some member of the commission, shall be filed with the county auditor.

Sec. 6. When any such permanent road district has been established, as provided for in this act, the board of supervisors shall, acting under general instructions of the state highway commission, inspect and classify all the lands benefitted by the proposed improvement and shall make an equitable apportionment of the estimated total cost of said proposed improvement, including all of the necessary expenses incurred in connection therewith, and file a report of the same with the county auditor, who shall immediately thereafter fix a time for hearing the objections thereto before the board of supervisors and cause to be served upon the owner of each tract of land described in said report, as shown by the transfer books in the auditor's office, notice in writing of the filing and pendency of said report, the amount of special assessment apportioned to such owner, the day set for hearing the same, and also that all objections thereto must be made in writing and filed with the county auditor before the hour set for said hearing, which notice shall be sent by registered mail to the owner at his last known address at least fifteen (15) days prior to said hearing. Like notice shall be sent to those in possession of said land and to all mortgagees of record. Proof serving such notice by registered mail shall be made by affidavit of the auditor, who shall keep in his office a permanent record of the date of sending said notices, together with the registry receipts, which of the auditor shall be final and conclusive as to the time of sending the said notice. Such notice shall also be published once in the official newspapers, which publication shall be not less than seven (7) days prior to the time set for hearing, proof being made thereof by affidavit as in case of legal notices published in official newspapers. At the time set for hearing the board of supervisors shall proceed to consider the objections filed and may increase or decrease the apportionment made in said report as may then appear to be just and equitable, which apportionment shall be assessed to the specially benefited land within said improvement district in proportion to the benefits received, and shall be collected in the same manner as other taxes are levied and collected for county purposes; and when so collected shall be kept separate from other county funds and shall be paid out, on the order of the board of supervisors, only for purposes properly connected with such improvement; provided, however, that not to exceed fifty per cent of the entire cost of the improvement shall be paid by an assessment on the specially benefited property within said improvement district which is situated nearer to said road than to any other county road, the balance of the cost of said improvement to be paid as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 7. Any property owner who has filed objections under the provisions of the preceding section and who is aggrieved by the final assessment made shall have a right to appeal to the state highway commission from said assessment, any time within five (5) days from the making of same, by serving notice of such appeal upon the county auditor; and said appeal shall be heard by the state highway commission under such rules and regulations as they may prescribe, but it shall be incompetent on such appeal to show that the lands assessed were not benefited by the improvement. The state highway commission shall promptly certify back to the board of supervisors the assessment, together with its modifications, if any, which assessment shall be final.

Sec. 8. The special assessment for benefits shall be levied at one time by the board against the property so benefited, and when so levied and certified shall be payable at the office of the county treasurer. If the owner of any land, against which any such levy shall have been made and certified, shall within thirty (30) days from the time of such assessment, promise and agree in writing endorsed upon his assessment certificate, or in a separate agreement, that in consideration of having the right to pay his assessment in installments he will not make any objections of illegality or irregularity as to the assessment of benefits or levy of such tax upon and against his property but will pay said assessment with interest thereon at such rate, not exceeding six per cent per annum, as shall be prescribed by resolution of the board, such tax so levied against the land of such owner shall be payable in not to exceed twenty (20) equal annual installments, the first of which, with interest on the whole assessment, shall mature and be payable on the date of such assessment; and the others, with interest on the whole amount unpaid, annually thereafter, at the same time and in the same manner as the March semi-annual payment of ordinary taxes; but where no such terms and agreement in writing shall be made by the owner of any such land, then the whole of said special assessment, so levied upon and against the property of such owner, shall mature at one time and be due and payable with interest from the date of such agreement and shall be collected at the next succeeding March semi-annual payment of ordinary taxes. All of said taxes with interest shall become delinquent on the first day of March next after maturity and shall bear the same rate of interest with the same penalty as ordinary taxes.

Sec. 9. Where the assessment and levy on account of any highway improvement has been made by the board of supervisors of any county under the provisions of this act without the required legal notice to the owner of the land affected thereby and where the whole or any part thereof remains unpaid, the board of supervisors shall have the authority to recall the assessment or levy thus made without said legal notice and proceed anew, as provided for in this act, to apportion and levy the cost of such improvement among the owners and upon the lands benefited thereby, and the new assessment and levy made upon notice and hearing in such cases shall be certified by the county auditor to the county treasurer, re-entered upon the tax list and collected as other taxes for county purposes, and all payments made under the prior assessment and levy shall be credited upon the new assessment and levy. The same right of appeal to the state highway commission shall be granted as in cases of an original assessment.

Sec. 10. When any improvement district is established by any board of supervisors and the contract let therefor, or the improvement wholly or partly constructed, and when the improvement bonds issued on account thereof and the proceeding or taxes therefor have been paid for any cause found invalid, and when the board of supervisors has found that said improvement will be an improvement for the convenience and welfare of the public, such board is authorized to provide for the completion of the work and the payment therefor, and to that end and shall recall the tax already levied and shall re-ascertain the costs and expenses of such improvement in the manner and as provided herein for the original assessment.

Sec. 11. If the funds necessary to make any permanent improvement provided for herein are raised out of yearly revenues and without the issue of bonds, fifty per cent of the cost of said improvement shall be raised by assessments upon specially benefited real estate, twenty-five per cent of said cost shall be paid out of the county permanent highway fund provided for in section twelve of this act, and the balance of said cost out of the state highway fund provided for in section thirteen of this act. If the whole or any portion of the fund necessary to make any such permanent improvement is raised by the issue of bonds, fifty per cent of the cost of said improvement shall be raised by assessment on specially benefited real estate, twenty-five per cent of said cost shall be paid out of the district highway fund provided for in section fourteen of this act, and the balance of said fund out of the state highway fund provided for in section thirteen of this act.

Sec. 12. The board of supervisors of each county may at the time of levying for other purposes levy a tax of not more than two mills on the dollar of the assessed value of the taxable property in the county, including all taxable property in cities and corporated towns, which shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes and when collected shall be used only for the making of permanent improvements of highways as in this act provided; and provided further that in paying for said improvements in those counties in which special taxes or license fees are received by the county, said taxes may also be used in the payment of permanent improvements. All revenues provided for in this section shall constitute a fund to be known as the county permanent highway fund.

Sec. 13 For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act the board of supervisors of each county shall, annually, at its September session, levy a tax of one mill on the dollar to be known as the state highway fund, which tax shall be levied upon all taxable property within the limit of the county, and shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner and held by the county treasurer as are other taxes, and used by the state highway commission in paying not to exceed twenty-five per cent of the total cost of constructing permanent roads within the county wherein said tax is levied, and no part of said funds shall be used for any other purpose. The state highway fund herein provided for may also be used by the state highway commission in maturing permanent road bonds issued in financing said road improvement district. As soon as any district is proposed, the board of supervisors shall apply to the state highway commission for approximately twenty-five per cent of the cost of said proposed improvement, whereupon the state highway commission shall, if said improvement meets with their approval, appropriate said amount to the project. Provided, however, that if any money received under said levy shall on the first day of July remain unappropriated by the lawful action of the board and the commission for the purposes herein provide, the said money shall then be used by the board of supervisors of said county on any permanent road, bridge or culvert improvement which has been approved by the state highway commission.

Sec. 14. When the board of supervisors shall establish a permanent road district in which the roads therein are to be improved and the cost thereof raised by a bond issue, they shall, at the same session or as soon thereafter as is practicable, levy a tax upon all of the taxable property within the limits of said permanent improvement district sufficient to produce, within not to exceed twenty (20) years, revenue enough to pay twenty-five per cent of the total cost of constructing the permanent roads within said district, which tax shall be known as the district highway fund and shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner and held by the county treasurer as are other taxes, and used in maturing permanent road bonds issued in financing said road improvement; providing, however, that when said levy is made the board of supervisors shall exempt from the tax provided for in section twelve of this act all taxable property within said permanent road improvement district.

Sec. 15. Should the board of supervisors of any county determine that fifty per cent of the estimated cost of any improvement proposed to be made under the provisions of this act is greater than in their judgement should be levied in any one year, they shall fix and determine the amounts to be raised annually by taxation and shall then have jurisdiction, power and authority to issue permanent road bonds of the county to anticipate such revenues as are made available under sections twelve, thirteen and fourteen of this act; provided, however, that no such bond issue shall be of any validity until authorized by a majority of the electors residing within the permanent road improvement district on account of which said bonds are issued, voting thereon at a general or special election called by the board of supervisors for that purpose. The board of supervisors shall make all of the necessary arrangements for holding such referendum vote and in the event that such permanent road improvement district extends into two or more counties, the arrangements therefor shall be made by the joint action of the respective board of said counties. Provided, further that in the event the permanent road improvement district extends into two or more counties, each of said counties shall issue bonds to cover the cost of said improvement, within their respective county.

Sec. 16. All bonds herein provided for shall be issued and shall provide that the principal shall be payable in equal annual installments and bear interest at not more than six per cent annum, payable semi-annually. It is the purpose of this act that all bonds issued thereunder shall be matured within the estimated life of the permanent road improvement for which said bonds are issued, said estimate to be made by the board of supervisors and approved by the state highway commission, and in no case shall any such bonds run for a longer period than twenty (20) years. All bonds shall be exempt from taxation for all purposes and in so far as applicable they shall conform to the requirements of section four hundred three (403) of the code. They shall be numbered by the board of supervisors and before issued shall be recorded by the county auditor, said records showing specifically the permanent road improvement for which said bonds are issued. All bonds and interest thereon shall be secured by the tax levies herein provided for and shall be payable out of the funds derived from such levies and pledged to the payment of the same, and no bonds shall be issued in excess of taxes authorized and levied to secure the payment of the same. It shall be the duty of the board of supervisors to collect such funds, with interest thereon, and to hold the same separate and apart in trust for the payment of said bonds and interest, and to apply the proceeds of said funds pledged for that purpose to the payment of said bonds and interest. The board of supervisors is hereby empowered and directed to prepare, advertise, issue and sell the bonds herein provided for. The board may devote said bonds at par with accrued interest to the payment of said road improvement work as it progresses, or it may sell said bonds at not less than par value together with accrued interest and devote the proceeds of such payment, together with any premium received in the sale thereof, to the payment of such road improvements.

HONS. CLEM F. KIMBALL, J. T. HAZEN, O. G. REEVE, GEO. W. CROZIER, S. W. NEAL.

Members of the Senate and House Committee, Iowa Legislature, Des Moines, Iowa.

GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of yours of March 29th, enclosing the very kind and complimentary resolutions of the Iowa legislature, inviting me to visit and address your distinguished body. I appreciate the great honor and compliment you pay me, and I would consider it not only a duty, but a great pleasure to respond to any request of Iowa's legislature.

But I regret that it is not at present considered prudent for me to leave home. I am out attending to my work, but under treatment that makes it necessary for me to remain at home for the present.

The state of Iowa has many, many times greatly honored me, and one of the great satisfactions and pleasures of my life has been that, from the time I entered the state in May, 1853, I have been its citizen. Although my duties have been mostly outside of the state, my home and heart have been in it.

Unless one has traveled and had the opportunities I have had, he does not appreciate what an honor it is to be a citizen of a state that has the standing that Iowa has, not only in our, but in all countries. Its representatives in national and state councils have placed it upon the highest level in patriotism and statesmanship and in all things that make a country great.

In all these years I have seen Iowa develop and grow, and fortunately I have been able to take some part in this development, and it would be my greatest pleasure to, in person, extend to you, as the representative of all the people of Iowa, my heartfelt thanks for the great honor that you pay me, and I wish to extend to you, one and all, my best greetings and wishes for your good health, prosperity, and a successful ending of your labors.

I am, truly and most respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

GRENVILLE M. DODGE.

Larrabee of Fayette from the committee on Retrenchment and Reform, submitted the following report :

JOINT REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RETRENCHMENT AND REFORM.

To the Senate and House of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly.

Mr. President and Mr. Speaker--Your joint committee on retrenchment and reform which was instructed to investigate the department of agriculture and report to the assembly, beg leave to state that they have made such investigation and herewith submit their report, together with testimony taken and the partial report of Quail, Parker & Company, the efficiency engineers employed by this committee.

The investigation developed that the Iowa State Fair, conducted by the board of the department of agriculture, is one of the most extensive and successful annual state exhibits of agriculture in the United States; that during the week while the annual fair is held the board handles approximately $190,000, and to conduct a fair of that magnitude during this short period requires considerable executive ability and peculiar fitness and qualifications of the men in charge.

Under the present system the members of the board are elected at large and selected in view of their qualifications to handle the separate departments of the exhibition, such as finance, transportation, horticulture, machinery or live stock, and that the board may form a complete unit to manage the fair. While it is necessary to have the exhibitors bring their exhibits, yet the financial success of the state fair depends largely upon the qualifications and ability of the members of the board, and it is the opinion of this committee that a change from the present system of electing the members of the board by the whole convention to the district plan would be detrimental to the success of the fair and might seriously cripple it.

The investigation further developed that the officers and members of the board have not been guilty of any financial irregularities or misconduct, but their method of keeping the books and records can be improved upon, as suggested in the report of the engineers herewith submitted, the original having been filed with the secretary of state.

The committee further finds that the pass system ought to be abolished, and unless the General Assembly desires to legislate on this specific question, this committee will instruct the board to abolish all passes, except that the following persons may be admitted free of charge during the fair under proper regulation and strict supervision: The officers, members of the board and employees of the fair; the officers of other state fairs; the exhibitors upon the payment of $2.00 each for a season ticket; all the necessary help required to take care of their exhibits; the concessionists and their necessary help.

The investigation developed that to compel these persons to pay admission would create such a prejudice against the fair as to endanger its success. Only one state in the Union, Ohio, has completely abolished all passes of any kind, and their system has been severely criticised. (See page 9 of testimony of A. R. Corey.)

The committee further approves the adoption of all the recommendations contained in the report of Quail, Parker & Company on page 16, except recommendation No. 1, which suggest reducing the number of the members of the board. The members of the board receive no pay except their per diem and traveling expenses. If the number of the board is reduced it will be necessary to employ competent and efficient help to take care of the different departments, and the employment of such help would undoubtedly involve a larger expenditure than what is now paid to the members of the board.

With reference to the recommendations 2 to 9 inclusive your committee advises you that it is their understanding that your committee has authority to adopt and enforce said recommendations, and your committee will, unless by appropriate action you express your disapproval, adopt and enforce said recommendation.

Your committee further calls your attention to the fact that under authority of the legislature, Quail, Parker & Co., have for some time been engaged in a careful examination of the various departments of state government, and that while it will be impossible to complete such investigation before the legislature adjourns, the investigation has proceeded far enough to make it clear that such investigation will open the way to very large savings to the state in economy and efficiency.

Your committee further suggest that not only will it be impossible to complete such investigation before the legislature must in the nature of things adjourn, but that the work of making the necessary laws regulating the enforcement of advanced business methods for state administration cannot well be done by any legislature while harrassed and burdened with ordinary legislation. We therefore recommend completion of the regular work of this session, and that when such work is ended, we adjourn until November, by which date a full report upon all matters placed with said accountants will be completed, and that we then reassemble, and without expense to the state, and unhampered by other duties, give careful and faithful and undivided attention to a readjustment and reorganization of our state business methods to such extent as may be deemed advisable and necessary upon full consideration.

Herewith we submit and offer for your consideration a resolution for action upon and along the lines above suggested.

Larfabee of Fayette from the committee on Retrenchment and Reform, presented the following concurrent resolution:

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

Whereas, the committee on Retrenchment and Reform has been by this legislature authorized to, and under such authority has employed expert accountants and efficiency engineers who have been for some time and now are, engaged upon the performance of the duties for which employed; and

Whereas, said expert accountants and efficiency engineers have not yet completed the service for which employed and cannot so complete within the period to which this session will extend; and

Whereas, the work of said accountants and engineers has proceeded far enough so that it is clearly apparent that a reorganization of the various departments under consideration by said accountants and engineers will be of great saving to the state in service, efficiency and money; and

Whereas, the matters to be covered by the report of said accountants and engineers should receive the immediate attention of the legislature.

Now therefore, be it resolved by the House, the Senate concurring:

Section 1. That when the final adjournment of the Senate and House be taken it be until Tuesday, October 21st, 1913.

Sec. 2. That the desk employes, sargeant-at-arms and chief door-keeper be required to appear at said time, and all other employes of Senate and House be excused.

Sec. 3. That the members of the Senate and House return for further service upon the date named without expense to the state in service or mileage.

Sec. 4. That the joint committee upon retrenchment and reform are hereby directed to prepare an abridgement of the report of said accountants and engineers, print same and furnish copies thereof to each member of the legislature at least thirty days prior to the date of reconvening, together with the recommendations of said committee.

Sec. 5. The expense of printing and distribution shall be presented at said adjourned session for action by the legislature.

Larrabee of Fayette, from the committee on Retrenchment and Reform, submitted the following report of Quail, Parker and company, expert accountants, and asked that it be printed in the Journal.

DES MOINES, IOWA, MARCH 25, 1913.

The Joint Committee on Retrenchment and Reform of the Senate and House of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly of the State of Iowa.

GENTLEMEN:—In pursuance of contract dated February 5, 1913, and of specific instructions thereunder, we herewith present an interim report on the investigation of the Department of Agriculture—particularly referring to the accounts and transactions relative to the state fairs for the years 1912 and 1911—together with statements in support thereof as enumerated in the appended index.

ORIGIN—CONSTITUTION—APPROPRIATION.

The Department of Agriculture was created by legislative enactment of the Twenty-eighth General Assembly in the year 1900, and the section of the statute reads as follows:

“Department of Agriculture.—For the promotion of agriculture, horticulture, forestry, animal industry, manufactures, and the domestic arts, there is hereby established a department to be known as the ‘department of agriculture,’ which shall embrace the district and county agricultural societies organized or to be organized under existing statutes and entitled to receive aid from the state, the state weather and crop service, and the offices of the dairy commissioner and the state veterinarian. (Sec. 1657-b, Supp. 1907).”

This enactment took effect July 4, 1900, and at the same time various prior enactments relative to the Iowa State Agriculture Society and the several county societies were repealed (Sec. 1657-a, Supp. 1907). The Iowa State Agriculture Society was founded in the year 1853, the first state fair having been held in October 1854, and while primarily supported by means of membership subscriptions and admission fees, it, together with the several county societies, was encouraged and aided at various times by small appropriations from the state.

The management of the department is vested in a board termed the “State Board of Agriculture,” of which the governor, the president of the State Agricultural College and Mechanic Arts, the State Food and Dairy Commissioner, and the State Veterinary Surgeon are ex-officio members; and the other members, who are elected at the agricultural convention held at the Capitol on the second Wednesday in December in each year, comprise a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and one director from each congressional district.

The duties of this board as defined by the statute are as follows:

"Duties of Board.—The board shall have general supervision of the several branches, bureaus and offices embraced in the department of agriculture; and it shall be the duty of the board to look after and promote the interests of agriculture, of agricultural education and animal and other industries throughout the state; to investigate all subjects relating to the improvement of methods, appliances and machinery, and the diversification of crops and products, also to investigate reports of the prevalence of contagious diseases among domestic animals, or destructive insects and fungus diseases in grains, and grasses and other plants, the adulteration of foods, seed and other products, and to report the result of investigation, together with recommendations of remedial measures for prevention of damage resulting therefrom. It shall be the duty of the Iowa agricultural experiment station to co-operate with the department of agriculture in carrying on these investigations. (Sec. 1657-g, Supp. 1907)."

The president, vice-president and secretary are constituted an executive committee, which is empowered to transact such business as may be delegated thereto by the board; and the president may call meetings of the board when the interests of the department require it. The board elect a secretary for the term of one year, whose duties are such as usually pertain to that office, under the direction of the board; and the appropriations and directions for the support of the department, as defined by the statutes, are as follows:

"Office—Supplies—Salary of Secretary and Assistant.—The office of the department of agriculture shall be in rooms numbers eleven (11) and twelve (12), in the capitol building; the said office shall be entitled to such supplies, stationery, postage and express as may be required, which shall be furnished by the executive council in the same manner as other offices are supplied. The salary of the secretary shall not exceed eighteen hundred dollars ($1,500) per annum; and when the board deem it necessary it may employ an assistant at an expense of not more than seventy-five dollars ($75) per month. (Sec. 1657-n, Supp. 1907)."

"(The amendment by the 31st General Assembly was by striking out the word 'fifteen' in line 6 and inserting in lieu thereof the word 'eighteen,' but the figures '($1,500)' were unchanged.)"

"Treasurer—Duties—Bond—Compensation. The board shall elect a treasurer for a term of one year, whose duties shall be to keep a correct account of receipts and disbursements of all moneys belonging to the department of agriculture, and shall make payments only on warrants signed by the president and secretary thereof, except in payment of premiums. He shall execute a bond for the faithful performance of his duty, to be approved by the board and filed with the secretary, and shall receive such compensation for his services as shall be fixed by the board, not exceeding one hundred dollars per annum. (Sec. 1657-o, Supp. 1907)."

"Compensation of Elective Members. The elective members of the state board of agriculture, for attending the meetings of the board, and for the special work pertaining to the holding of the state fair shall be allowed four dollars ($4) per day and five cents per mile in going and returning from the place where the business is transacted, the claim for which shall in all cases be verified and paid as provided in section (8). (Sec. 1657-p, Supp. 1907)"

"Finance Committee—Report—Compensation. Prior to the annual convention of the department of agriculture the state accountant, provided for in section one hundred sixty-one-a (161-a) of the supplement to the code 1907 shall examine and report upon all financial business of the department of agriculture, said report to be made to the executive council. Such report shall be edited under the direction of the executive council and be published in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred sixty-three (163) of the code and acts amendatory thereof." Approved February 23, A. D. 1909 (Ch. 107, 33 G. A.)

"Amounts Appropriated. There is hereby appropriated annually from and after the first day of January nineteen hundred and one (1901) for the support of the office of the department of agriculture, twenty-four hundred dollars ($2,400) and for insurance and improvements of buildings on the state fair grounds the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000) or as much thereof as shall be necessary, and the auditor of state shall draw a warrant therefor upon the order of the department of agriculture signed by the president and secretary thereof, in such sums and at such times as the board shall deem necessary. The state shall not be liable for the payment of any premiums offered by the state board of agriculture, nor for any expenses or liabilities incurred by said board, except, as expressly provided for in this act. (Sec. 1657-t, Supp. 1907.)"

"State Fair.—The board shall have full control of the state fair grounds and improvements thereon belonging to the state, with requisite powers to hold annual fairs and exhibits of the productive resources and industries of the state. They may prescribe all necessary rules and regulations thereon. The board may delegate the management of the state fair to the executive committee and two or more additional members of the board; and for special work pertaining to the fair they may employ an assistant secretary and such clerical assistance as may be deemed necessary. All expenditures connected with the fair including the per diem and expenses of the managers thereof, shall be recorded separately and paid from the state fair receipts. The said board of agriculture shall have the power to authorize or forbid the construction of street railways within the state fair grounds and may define the motive power by which the cars thereon shall be propelled and to authorize or forbid the location and laying down of tracks for street railways in said grounds. (Sec. 1657-i, Supp. 1907.)"

Although the enactment creating this department (Sec. 1657-l, Supp. 1907) specifically defines the activities embraced thereby, we have so far been unable to ascertain that the State Board of Agriculture exercises any control whatsoever over the offices of the dairy commissioner and the state veterinarian, and furthermore in the special enactments relating to these two departments no mention is made of any supervision or control by the Department of Agriculture. The enactments relative to district and county societies, and the state weather and crop service are as follows:

“State Aid to District or County Society. Any county or district agricultural society, upon filing with the auditor of state affidavits of its president, secretary, and treasurer showing what sum has actually been paid out during the current year for premiums, not including races, or money paid to secure games or other amusements, and that no gambling devices or other violations of law were permitted, together with a certificate from the secretary of the state society showing that it has reported according to law, shall be entitled to receive from the state treasury a sum equal to forty per cent of the amount so paid in premiums up to five hundred dollars, and ten per cent additional of the amount paid in premiums over five hundred dollars, but in no case shall the amount paid to any society exceed the sum of three hundred dollars. When any society fails to report, according to law, on or before the first day of November, that society shall not receive a warrant from the state auditor for that year, but the secretary of the state board of agriculture shall notify the county auditor of the county in which the society is located of such failure, and the board of supervisors may appoint a delegate to the annual meeting or state agricultural convention, said delegate to be a resident of said county. (Sec. 1661-a, Supp. 1907); (Ch. 108, 33 G. A.)”

“State Weather and Crop Service—Appropriation. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of two thousand seven hundred dollars annually, to be drawn and expended upon the order of the president and secretary of the department of agriculture for such service, including the salary of the director, which shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars per annum. (Sec. 1681, Supp. 1907.)”

The expenditures under these two appropriations are checked in this department and certified by the president and secretary before warrants are issued—the director of the state weather and crop service presenting an account monthly for his salary ($125.00), his stenographer ($60.00) and his incidental expenses—but no record thereof is made in the financial books kept in this department.

STATE FAIR FINANCIAL POSITION.

The fair grounds, consisting of some 280 acres, were originally purchased for about $50,000.00 by subscriptions raised by the citizens of Des Moines in 1885, and about the same time the state appropriated $50,000.00 for the erection of buildings thereon and the general improvement thereof. We have taken this $100,000.00 as the fundamental basis of the present approximate value, and after examining the whole of the expenditure hereon from December 1, 1901, to November 30, 1912, we have prepared an approximate statement of the financial position as at November 30, 1912, November 30, 1911, and November 30, 1910, wherein we have set up the original $100,000.00 plus the further expenditures hereon as representing the cost of the permanent improvements as at these dates. This statement is presented in Exhibit "A," and the following is a summary thereof:

ASSETS.

State Fair Grounds and Permanent Improvements.—In Schedule "1" we present a statement of fair grounds and permanent improvements expenditure for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, in which the approximate cost of the main buildings, etc., is duly set forth. The undistributed expenditure represents material, labor, supplies, loose tools, etc., and expense items prior to November 30, 1910 which are not segregated on the records and which it is now a matter of impossibility to charge to specific buildings, etc., together with additions to loose tools, implements, etc., amounting to $1,284.50 and $912.92 for the years 1912 and 1911 respectively.

During the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, amounts aggregating $1,861.16 were realized at an auction sale of certain lots and houses, and amounts aggregating $1,444.33 were realized on the sale of part of the power plant. A further amount of $1,066.47 was also realized on the sale of part of the power plant during the twelve months ended November 30, 1911. We are informed that the prices realized on the power plant sales were in accordance with the valuation made by a local appraiser. As the records do not disclose the cost of the specific lots, houses and power plant disposed of, no adjustment has been made for the difference between that amount and the sums realized as stated above. The power plant which we are informed, is no longer used, is represented in the permanent improvements as at November 30, 1912, at the sum of $14,748.70, but as no inventory has been made of the machinery, etc., remaining in or belonging to the power building, it is impossible to even estimate the loss arising through the dismantling of this property.

The amount of $1,699.18 included under the caption of undistributed expenditure for committee expenses, represents per diem and mileage charged by certain members of the Board for attending meetings at the office of the department; expenses of visits to various state fairs; and expenses attending special committee meetings for legislative work connected with obtaining appropriations; the purchase of improvements; the study of other state fair grounds preliminary to having plans drawn, and procuring attractions.

The amounts included under the caption of undistributed expenditure for loose tools, implements, teams, etc., represent the cost thereof, but as no detailed inventory has been made of the items comprised therein, the officials of the department are consequently unable to state whether all such items are now in existence. This condition is primarily due to the lack of proper accounting system, further remarks as to which will be found in a later part of this report. Having regard to the amount of wear and tear these items are subject to, and to the fact that no amount has been charged off the original cost thereof for depreciation, a physical appraisal could not be expected to substantiate these values.

The original contracts for the erection of the main buildings, together with the architects certificates supporting the payments therefor, have been submitted to us, and we are informed that, with one exception, no contract has been awarded, in connection with which, the proposals were not advertised and bids obtained in customary manner. The exception referred to was in connection with the erection of the cross-section of the horse barn which was required at very short notice and for which the board has not the requisite amount of time wherein to advertise the proposals in the usual way.

Inventories.—No inventories have been taken of the lumber, hardware, forage or general supplies on hand at the fair grounds. In addition to the lumber and supplies obtained by purchase in the usual manner, large quantities of these materials have been salvaged from time to time from the wreckage of various buildings on the grounds, but no record has been made of the quantity or value of such materials and consequently it is a matter of impossibility to obtain any definite information as to whether the department has had the sole use or benefit of all such materials. We are informed that no large quantities of the above mentioned commodities are purchased except for specific purposes, but, as in the case of the salvaged materials, no systematic record is kept of the receipts and issues thereof.

Current Resources.—These comprise the following:

	1912	1911	1910
Annual appropriation, balance.....$	1,275.00	$ 1,275.00	$ 1,275.00
Special appropriation, balance.....		7,000.00

	$ 2,010.46	$ 26,781.55	$ 8,558.44

The annual appropriation is drawn against monthly and is dealt with specifically in a later part of this report, the balances as above represent the amounts undrawn in respect of the appropriations to the following June 30th; the close of the state's fiscal year. The special appropriations balance as at June 30, 1911, represents the amount undrawn in respect of the special appropriations made by the Thirty-fourth General Assembly (34 G. A. ch. 193, sec. 1). We verified the cash at bank as at November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, by certificate obtained from the Iowa Trust and Savings Bank, the vice-president of which, G. S. Gilbertson, is treasurer of the Board of Agriculture, and in Schedule "2" we present a statement of receipts and disbursements for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, which is a summary of the transactions on this bank account. The accounts receivable represent a variety of small items appertaining to the respective periods but not collected as at November 30th.

Contingent Resources.—These comprise the unexpired insurance premiums as at November 30, 1912 ($2,015.59), November 30, 1911 ($2,724.39), and November 30, 1910 ($2,701.61). The fire and tornado insurance is carried on three-year policies, and, as the premiums thereon are paid in advance we have computed the value of the unexpired premiums as above pending their transfer as the policies expire.

LIABILITIES.

Current Obligations.—These comprise the accounts payable which represent a variety of small items outstanding, but appertaining to the periods ended November 30, 1912, November 30, 1911, and November 30, 1910, respectively.

These items represent the amounts undrawn in respect of the appropriations made for the state fiscal years ending June 30, 1913, June 30, 1912, and June 30, 1911, respectively.

Surplus or Present Worth.—The total of the items set forth under this caption represent the excess of the assets over the liabilities on the respective dates, and details of the same are as follows:

Total, November 30, 1912.....		$811,832.05

This surplus of $811,832.05 as at November 30, 1912, is of course based primarily on the approximate valuation of the fair grounds and permanent improvements as at that date set up by us, but in justice to the department an independent appraisal of these assets should be made, before the Board is charged with and held accountable for their value, under any improved system of accounting and control which may be ultimately decided upon.

The special appropriations made by the respective general assemblies are as follows:

State legislature for erection of buildings and improvement of fair grounds in 1885.....	$ 50,000.00
Twenty-ninth general assembly for erection of livestock pavilion (29 G. A., ch. 184).....	37,000.00
Thirtieth general assembly for erection of agricultural building (30 G. A., ch. 150).....	47,000.00
Thirty-second general assembly for erection of swine barn and show ring (32 G. A., ch. 204)...	75,000.00
Thirty-third general assembly for erection of amphitheatre, and removing track and barns (33 G. A., ch. 242).....	100,000.00
		<hr/>
Total, November 30, 1910.....		$309,000.00

Thirty-fourth general assembly for the following purposes (34 G. A., ch. 193):

Additional land and lots ($12,000.00).....	$ 5,000.00
Machinery hall	65,000.00
Sanitary toilets	8,000.00	78,000.00
		<hr/>
Total, November 30, 1911		$387,000.00

Thirty-fourth General assembly, balance for additional land and lots	7,000.00
Total, November 30, 1912	$394,000.00

On reference to Exhibit "A" and Schedule "1" the manner in which these appropriations, together with the net income for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, have actually been expended will readily be observed from the columns denoting the increases and decreases of the various items set forth therein.

STATE FAIR OPERATIONS.

We have made a thorough examination of the whole of the records appertaining to the operations of the Board of Agriculture for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, respectively, and in Exhibit "B" we present an income and expenditure account comprehending these two periods of which the following is a summary:

	1912	1911
State fair income.....	$180,936.67	$174,909.95
State fair operating expense.....	139,021.23	$133,150.11
	<hr/>	<hr/>
Net income state fair.....	$ 41,915.44	$ 41,759.84
Miscellaneous income	10,680.98	3,476.88
	<hr/>	<hr/>
Total income	$ 52,596.42	$ 45,236.72
Other expenditure	10,162.94	4,385.76
	<hr/>	<hr/>
Net income, or surplus.....	$ 42,433.48	$ 40,850.96

State Fair Income.—We compared the various items of income during the above periods with documentary and other evidence submitted for our inspection, and taking the various captions thereof seriatim, we have to comment as follows.

Live Stock Exhibits.—These comprise the following:

	1912	1911
Horse department, stall rent	$ 1,745.00	$ 1,729.00
Cattle department, stall rent	988.00	1,146.00
Sheep department, pen rent	138.00	170.00
Poultry department, coop rent	731.45	658.05
Swine department, pen rent	1,076.00	1,206.00
	$ 4,678.45	$ 4,909.05

The charges in the horse department are 2.00 per single stall, $4.00 per box stall, and $1.00 per pony stall; in the cattle department $2.00 per single stall; in the sheep department $1.00 per pen; in the poultry department $1.00 per coop, and —or 25 cents per bird; and in the swine department $1.00 per pen. The superintendents individual departmental records, containing lists of the exhibitors and the amount of the rental collected therefrom for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, respectively for the above departments, were produced to us, and while the amounts stated to have been collected by each superintendent for the rent set forth above were found to be in agreement with the aggregate income from such sources entered in the receipts book, it is a matter of impossibility to state whether the amounts so accounted for properly represent the income actually derived from these sources, owing to the total absence of proper accounting methods.

Agriculture Exhibits; Dairy Exhibits; Fine Arts Exhibits; and Machinery Exhibits. The rentals in these departments are based on the amount of superficial space occupied—in the case of fine arts and machinery exhibits, 5 cents per square foot, and we have verified the correctness of the income accounted for on the records for these two departments. The duplicate contracts for the space occupied by the individual exhibitors in the machinery department were not signed, however, on behalf of the lessees. We have been unable to verify the correctness of the income derived from the exhibits in the agricultural and dairy departments owing to the fact that no definite rule appears to have been enforced regarding the charges for space therein, this matter apparently having been left to the discretion of the respective superintendents. The total income entered in the superintendents departmental records agrees in the aggregate with the amount entered in the receipts book, but our previous comments as to lack of proper accounting methods apply also to these departments.

Dog Show.—This feature was introduced for the 1912 state fair through the medium of the Greater Des Moines Kennel Club, and the income derived therefrom comprises the entry fees together with admission receipts, advertising, etc. We have verified the correctness of the admission receipts ($1,222.95) by examination with the tickets issued and returned records, but we have been unable to verify the correctness of the entry fees ($274.75) and sundry receipts ($103.48) as the department does not possess any documentary evidence of a satisfactory character.

Concessions and Privileges.—The amounts turned over by the superintendent of this department are in agreement with the entries in the receipts book, but the evidence placed at our disposal for the verification thereof, has been of an unsatisfactory character inasmuch as the amount called for by the individual contracts with certain of the concessionaires has not always been accounted for, and furthermore, in certain instances, the signature of the concessionaire has not been obtained to the contracts, thereby rendering these documents useless as a means of verification. We are informed that the discrepancies between the contract prices and the amounts turned over by the superintendent are due in some cases to the abandonment of the privileges by the concessionaires, and in other cases to reductions in the prices made by the superintendent acting within his discretionary power granted by the Board. The individual amounts payable by the concessionaires under their contracts are fixed by the superintendent of this department, the Board leaving the matter of the consideration payable thereunder entirely in his hands, and we are informed that it is impracticable for the Board to fix definite prices beforehand, at which the concessions and privileges are to be granted, owing to the peculiar conditions under which this department operates. We verified the income derived from the concession granted to the Reiss Shows, which was fixed at 35 per cent of the admissions thereto for the year 1912, but we have been unable to verify the income derived from the concession granted to the Hatch Shows for the 1911 fair, as the unused admission tickets have been destroyed.

Entry Fees, Races.—The amounts turned over by the superintendent of the racing department have been verified with the details of entry fees in the American Trotting Association's record of races, and comprise the receipts under this caption, being 3 per cent of the amount of the purse offered in all harness races plus 5 per cent additional from money winners, and $5.00 for each entry in running races.

Sale of Forage.—The amount included under this caption is derived from the sales of forage to exhibitors and others during the fair, but no satisfactory evidence has been produced to us in support of the amounts turned over to the treasurer by the superintendent. No record is kept of quantities purchased and sold, and no account of the sales is submitted to the Board. The matter of the inventory of forage on hand at the conclusion of the fairs has already been referred to in an earlier part of this report.

Advertisements, Premium List.—The income derived from this source is based on the following classification: inside of cover, $40.00; full page, $25.00; half page, $15.00; quarter page, $7.50, and cards each $3.50. We have verified the amount receivable in this connection with the actual space taken in the premium lists each year, and find the same in agreement with the amounts entered in the receipts book.

Dairy Department, Sales of Ice Cream, etc.—The amount included under this caption represents the net proceeds of the sales of ice cream, etc., during the fair, and the only evidence in support of the receipts entered on the records are the statements of the sales and purchases and expenses, rendered by the superintendent of this department. We understand the daily takings are recorded on a cash register but no effort is made by the Board to verify the correctness of the statements as rendered by the superintendent.

Public Safety Department, Fines, Etc., and Miscellaneous Receipts.—The amounts included hereunder are as per the records but as in the cases of the other departments previously referred to, the lack of proper accounting precludes any verification thereof.

Exhibitors Tickets.—The income shown under this caption is derived by a charge of $2.00 for each ticket issued to individual exhibitors and has been verified by examination of the register of exhibitors, and in addition in the case of the year 1912, by examination of the tickets issued records. These tickets entitle the holders thereof to admission to the fair grounds during each day of the fair, and in effect, take the place of a charge for entering the exhibits.

Ticket Sales.—We found it impossible to verify the amount of the ticket sales for the year 1911 as the tickets issued but not sold have, we are informed, been destroyed. We are, however, also informed that an examination of the ticket sales for that year was made by the ticket audit committee, but no record of the result of such examination has been submitted to us. We have made a thorough examination of the ticket sales for the year 1912 and find the following discrepancies in the number of tickets returned as unsold to the secretary:

Day admission, 50 cents each; 500 short, value	$ 250.00
Childrens admission, 25 cents; 10 short, value	2.50
Half-fare admission, 25 cents each; 10 short, value	2.50
Bleachers admission, 25 cents; 9 short, value	2.25
	$ 257.25

Complimentary and Free Tickets.—In Appendix "I" we present a statement of complimentary and helpers tickets, issued by the secretary for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, and in Appendix "II" we present a statement of complimentary and helpers tickets issued by the officers of the Board and department superintendents for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911. The information contained therein is as per the records but the department does not possess any evidence whereby the correctness thereof can be verified.

State Fair Operating Expense. The classification of this expenditure together with the respective amounts thereof for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, will be found on reference to Exhibit "B." We have examined the returned warrants issued and all claims in connection with the expenditure for the above mentioned periods and find the amounts entered on the records to be in agreement therewith.

Under the statutes defining the powers and regulating the duties of the Board of Agriculture, the executive committee consisting of the president, vice-president and secretary are empowered to pass on all expenditure incurred by the department. We have examined the records relating to the proceedings at the meetings of this committee and find that all expenditure during the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, has been duly approved for payment. This expenditure has also been approved by the auditing committee but we find that in certain cases pay rolls for labor at the fair grounds have been approved without the proper O. K. of the superintendent of the department being thereon.

In Schedules "3," "4," "5," and "6," will be found details supporting the amounts appearing under the caption of state fair operating expense, for department expense, miscellaneous expense, salaries and cash premiums respectively. The pay rolls for the employees of the departments enumerated in Schedule "3" are in accordance with the reports of the respective superintendents. The number of employees engaged and the respective duties thereof are at the discretion of the department superintendents, and we are informed that in no case has an employee received payment for services not rendered, or remained on the pay roll longer than was absolutely necessary. The superintendents per diem contains items for services rendered by the secretary of the Agricultural Department; the Food and Dairy Commissioner and the Secretary of the Horticultural Society.

The executive committee meeting; special committee meeting and board meeting expenses include per diem and mileage charges of the various members and officials for meetings held at the capitol, together with actual travelling and hotel expenses for meetings, etc., attended out of the state, the claims for which have been duly approved by the executive committee. Further comments relative to the traveling and hotel expenses for meetings, etc., attended out of the state will be found in a later part of this report.

The items included herein for express, telegraph and telephone, postage, printing and advertising are, in our opinion, properly chargeable hereto. The postage and printing includes the cost of preparing and mailing the various publications issued by the department, and the advertising represents the cost of publishing the notices connected with the fair over all parts of the state and in various newspapers, etc., outside the state, the expenditure for which is decided upon by the Board and which, in the opinion thereof is undertaken in the best interests of the state fair generally. In addition to these charges various other items of expenditures are made out of the appropriations as per sections 164 and 165 of the Code, and supplies are also received from the state printer and the state binder.

In Schedule "4," we present a statement of the miscellaneous expense for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911. We would call attention to the items included therein for rent of tents, awnings, cots, etc.; plants and flowers, and hauling manure. The purchase outright of the tents, awnings, etc., would result in the saving of this expense; the plants and flowers are not considered as being of any value at the conclusion of the fair and no account is rendered as to the disposition thereof; and the reduction in the cost of hauling manure in 1912 arose through the department letting the contract therefor to an outside party.

A summary of the cost of music and attractions for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, is contained in the following statement:

	1912	1911
Fireworks	$ 2,250.00	$ 6,500.00
Music—bands and orchestras	6,760.00	6,881.00
Aeroplane exhibitions	1,477.82	4,583.33
Vaudeville shows	2,950.00	2,550.00
Sheep, dog exhibitions		560.05
Electric tandem		750.00
Cheyenne show	12,000.00
Miscellaneous	1,301.63	2,521.40
	$ 26,739.45	$ 24,345.78

In Schedule "5" we present a statement of office salaries, permanent employes and temporary employes, for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, from which it will be observed that the salaries paid in the department in excess of the appropriations amounted in 1912 to $4,1065.82, and in 1911 to $2,740.75. We give below copies of resolutions passed by the Board of Agriculture in connection with the employment of extra assistance:

Under date of February 21, 1908: "The following resolution with reference to the management of the Iowa State Fair and Exposition was reported by the special committee and upon roll call adopted by a unanimous vote: Resolved,

"That the general management of the Iowa State Fair and Exposition be delegated to the executive committee as provided in section 1657, i, chapter 3, of the supplement of the code of Iowa, and that said executive committee be and is hereby authorized to employ a secretary or clerk at a salary of not to exceed twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.00) per year, said salary to be paid from the receipts of the State Fair and Exposition."

Under date of February 22, 1908: "J. C. Simpson was employed as clerk to the executive committee at a salary of $1,200.00 per annum, payable monthly by warrant drawn upon the treasurer, time of beginning of his services to date from February 1, 1908.

Under date of February 11, 1910: "Resolved, that the executive committee be authorized and instructed by and in behalf of this Board to fix the compensation of Secretary Simpson for extra services as member of and clerk to the said executive committee for the Iowa State Fair and Exposition at eighteen hundred dollars per annum payable monthly."

The compensation as fixed by resolutions as above was additional to the salary drawn by the then secretary as provided by 28 G. A., ch. 58, sec. 13, and 31 G. A., ch. 67.

The items included hereunder for forage purchased have already been referred to under the caption of inventories in an earlier part of this report.

The expenditure included hereunder for fair grounds department represents the labor employed thereon, and the classification thereof is as per the records as derived from the actual pay rolls. The supervision and employment of all labor represented thereby comes within the duties of the superintendent of grounds, whose O. K. as to the rate of pay and the amount of wages earned by the individual employes is accepted by the Board, but we are informed that reports as to all labor requirements and conditions are submitted by the superintendent thereto. The pay rolls with accompanying vouchers have been produced to us, and we find that the O. K. of the superintendent has not been made on the individual time tickets of the employes in certain cases. The amounts stated to have been earned by the employes as per the pay rolls are in agreement with the amounts paid therefor but, other than the supervision exercised by the superintendent, no effort is made to ascertain if the department derives all the benefits which should accrue in this connection.

In Schedule "6" we present a statement of cash premiums, and Breeders' Association premiums for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911; and disbursements thereof is as per the award records which have been produced to us.

Miscellaneous Income.—This comprises fees, division of horse breeding; collections—use of grounds; interest on monthly balances, scholarship refund; telephone and miscellaneous. The fees, division of horse breeding, represent the collections for the registration of all grades of stallions and jacks in the state, and the increase in the amount thereof during 1912 is due to the enforcement of new regulations whereby all grades of these animals require to be registered, whereas formerly, only the pure bred animals were registered. The amount so collected has been verified with the records in that division of the department. Collections—use of grounds, which include stall and pasture rent; lumber sales; rental of grounds, and miscellaneous, are as reported by the superintendent of grounds, who collects all such items. The records do not provide any check upon the amounts so collected, and owing to the lack of a proper accounting system, it is impossible to state whether all collections have been properly accounted for. The amount of the interest on the monthly balances has not been verified by us, as no monthly statements are issued to the department by the Iowa Trust and Savings Bank and the department accepts the amount accredited without question.

Other Expenditures. This comprises fair grounds maintenance, details of which are set forth in schedule "7"; salaries and expenses, division of horse breeding—details of which are shown in schedule "5"; annual meeting, per-diem and mileage; stationery and office supplies; insurance premiums; animal industry committee expense; sale of lighting plant, expenses; pay roll—wrecking old buildings; pay roll—June race meeting; pay roll—firemens tournament; pay roll—planting rented grounds, and miscellaneous. The fair ground maintenance consists mostly of labor, and our comments as to the pay roll and supervision thereof for the fair grounds department, apply equally in connection with this expenditure, and also to the other pay roll expenditure mentioned in this paragraph. Salaries, division of horse breeding, have already been commented upon in an earlier part of this report.

Net Income. This amounts to $42,433.48, and $40,850.96 for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912, and November 30, 1911, respectively, and is carried to the credit of surplus or present worth as has already been noted in an earlier portion of this report.

PER DIEM AND MILEAGE CHARGES.

In Appendix III we present a statement of the expenses charged by members of the Board and officials of the department for out-of-state meetings during the periods under review, and in all cases the actual charges are less than the amounts allowable by law. In Appendix IV we present a statement of the amounts paid to members of the board, officials of the department, and the department superintendents at the State Fair; and the amounts included therein comprise the whole of the per diem and mileage payments for the twelve months ended November 30, 1912 and November 30, 1911.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS.

The Board of agriculture is responsible and presumably accountable for assets of approximately $800,000.00 in value, and also for the administration of the State Fair funds which now amount to nearly $200,000.00 annually; yet, as this report demonstrates, when called upon to render an account of its stewardship, it is a matter of impossibility to prepare a true and correct statement of the financial position without recourse to an appraisal and inventory, and in addition the records of the administration of the State Fair are of such a nature as to preclude any satisfactory verification thereof.

The accounting methods are of the crudest description and no commercial concern could continue to exist under similar conditions. The only attempt at bookkeeping is comprised in chronological records of receipts and payments. No ledger accounts are kept of the assets created by expenditures on permanent improvements, and prior to 1910 (see schedule "2") no distribution of material and labor, expended by the Board itself under this caption, has been made in the records.

Speaking generally the records kept in the department fail entirely to provide the necessary data and information whereby the due accounting of all income can be properly assured; and also whereby the consideration, which is presumably obtained for all disbursements, can safely be said to have been enjoyed solely thereby. Furthermore as no record is made of the amounts received in respect of annual appropriations (with the solitary exception of the $1,000.00 per annum for insurance &c., twenty-eighth General Assembly, chapter 58) it is a matter of extreme difficulty to arrive at the correct annual cost of operating the department, and this disability is accentuated by the fact that the fiscal year does not coincide with that of the state.

Reference to the printed report of the executive council for the period from June 30, 1910 to July 1, 1912 (pages 459 to 466) discloses that the sum of $28,944.92 was disbursed in respect of the department of agriculture under various annual appropriations during that period, particulars of which are as follows:

Salaries	$ 4,725.00
Furniture and stores	1,209.88
Telephone and telegraph	51.90
Express, freight and cartage	78.49
Farmers' institute and short courses	13,430.93
Miscellaneous expense	1.75
Printing by state printer	4,075.08
Binding by state binder	3,036.33
Engraving	55.46
Stock used by state printer	909.35
Supplies from supply department	1,370.74
Total	$ 28,944.92

None of the above disbursements are entered in the records kept in the department, therefore, while a net income of some $40,000.00 is being realized annually, the state is at the same time subsidizing the department to the extent of $14,500.00 per annum; and in addition is furnishing the funds for operating the weather and crop service, which, according to the report of the executive council for the period from June 30, 1910 to July 1, 1912, (pages 467 to 471) amounted to $7,620.03, made up as follows:

Salaries	$4,330.00
Miscellaneous expense	907.47
Printing by state printer	2,021.06
Binding by state binder	139.50
Stock used by state printer	222.00
	$7,620.03

The department of agriculture is a revenue producer, owing principally to the State Fair and the division of horse breeding fees, and it is therefore a question to be decided by the House and Senate, whether or not it is entitled to annual appropriations for salaries or for any other purpose.

The only specific information published in reference to the operations of the department is contained in the printed annual financial statement, which is necessarily misleading as it is compiled from the receipts and payments of the particular period, irrespective of whether they are properly applicable thereto; and is also erroneous in several respects—no distinction being made between disbursements for repairs and disbursements for permanent improvements, and in addition receipts in respect of the sale of assets are included as income thus unduly inflating the net income for the fiscal year.

We have given the matter of the re-organization of the department very careful consideration, but it will be readily understood that the following recommendations are necessarily in some cases only tentative, as whatever new system of general organization and accounting is ultimately adopted must be co-ordinated with that of other departments, and be controlled by some central department of accounting or finance yet to be created. Our recommendations are as follows:

1. That the present Board be reduced to a more workable number of members, say not less than five nor more than seven. The experience of industrial corporations has proved conclusively that boards of directors consisting of more than seven members are unwieldy owing to the great difficulty experienced in obtaining uniformity of action. This reduction would therefore tend towards increased efficiency, and at the same time curtail the mileage and per diem expense.

2. The adoption of a proper system of double entry bookkeeping, which would comprehend an appropriate classification of assets and liabilities together with income and expenditure accounts, whereby the whole of the financial operations and transactions of the department would be clearly reflected—the basis for which should be an independent valuation of all of the property controlled by the department, by a competent firm of appraisers. This accounting system of course to be directly controlled by the central department of accounting or finance for the state.

3. The adoption of a proper stores system, whereby the receipt and issue at the fair grounds of all lumber, hardware, building materials, etc. etc., would be made a matter of record, and duly entered into the accounting system.

4. The adoption of a proper pay roll system, whereby the names, positions, and rates of remuneration of all employees of the department would be a matter of record. Two books should be designed for this purpose, one for officials and office employees, and the other for the staff at the fair grounds.

5. The definite fixing of rates and for charges by the Board for all concessions and privileges, space and other rentals; and wherever possible the collection of the income therefrom by the secretary of the Board. Prior to each fair plats should be prepared of the floor space in all buildings and the amount rented to each exhibitor properly scaled off thereon.

6. The adoption of rules and regulations defining the duties and limitations to be imposed upon the superintendents of grounds, with special reference to the disposal of the property of the department, the letting of pasturage, stalls, etc., and the collection of moneys therefor.

7. The adoption of a Board members' Attendance book wherein the mileage and per diem due to each member for each meeting would be duly recorded, together with his signature attesting his attendance.

8. The taking of a physical inventory, at the close of each fiscal year, of all lumber, hardware, supplies, and loose tools and implements at the fair grounds; together with the stationery and office supplies at the capitol.

9. The alteration of the department's fiscal year from the twelve months ending November 30, to the twelve months ending June 30, so as to coincide with that of the state.

Other recommendations of a minor character principally relating to accounting details were discussed with the secretary during the course of our examination of the records, but these are not of sufficient importance to warrant specific attention herein, although they will receive due consideration when we receive instructions to proceed with the design and installation of the new system of organization and accounting.

The majority of the above recommendations could be put into effect practically at once, but we would strongly advise against too precipitate action on the accounting system otherwise the reorganization of the other departments and consequently that of the administration and accounting of the state as a whole may be unnecessarily complicated and retarded.

Yours very truly,

Jacobson of Audubon, from the committee on Improvement and Repairs, submitted the following report and asked that it be printed in the Journal:

We the joint committee on Improvements and Repairs beg leave to report that we have had the matter under consideration and make the following recommendations:

We recommend necessary repairs and painting as suggested by the custodian for the law library; said repairs being the removal of the broken and cracked scagliola and brackets, replacement of the same with new, necessary painting and cleaning.

New air compressor installed in the engine room.

Vacuum cleaner to be used in the historical and capitol building.

Removal of steam mains in the power house from the sub-basement and placing overhead in the boiler room and that they be run direct through the wall to the engine. Also that high pressure main to the state house be re-run.

All toilet rooms equipped with flush valves such as are in the House and Senate toilet rooms.

Boilers in the engine room equipped with soot blowers.

Certain necessary repairs to the boiler house, historical and capitol building, pointed out by the engineer to this committee as being necessary for the proper preservation of the building and equipment but too numerous to set out fully in this report, at an estimated cost of fifteen hundred dollars ($1500.00).

A change in the electric wiring in the sub-basement so that it may be cut off and turned on as needed; as it is now the entire sub-basement lights burn continually; also that the sub-basement of the historical building be wired in like manner.

Repairing and cleaning of curtains in the Senate and House chambers.

Repairing of broken places in the sky lights about the capitol.

Repairing of the basement floor in the capitol so that the marble be placed in the three wings and main hall, and the placing of a new floor of cement in the west wing in which the heavy trucking and moving is usually done.

Sewer connections on the first, second and basement floors so that the water for cleaning used by the janitors may be emptied without being carried to the basement.

Repairing of furnaces in the food and dairy building.

Sprinkling system installed over the Senate chamber.

Painting, cleaning and decorating inside the dome of the historical building and the cleaning, painting and redecorating of the walls in several of the rooms.

Cleaning and repairing of House chamber and committee rooms.

Necessary repairs to the water tables, area ways and roof of the historical building, the pedestals at the entrance of the building, stone seats and walks on the capitol grounds, and balustrades on the roof of the capitol.

New carpets to replace those that are old and worn out and repairing and relaying of other carpets.

Repairing of numerous chairs used in both the Senate and House chambers and other parts of the building and also in the historical building.

We further recommend that for the purpose of making the above mentioned repairs there be added to the usual biennial appropriation of $20,000, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), which sum, together with the amount remaining from the appropriation made under subsection 23 of section 3 of chapter 192, acts of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly, be placed in the hands of the executive council.

We further recommend the employment of three young and active men who shall be competent to perform any of the ordinary work or duties that may be required of them in the cleaning, care, and custody and repairing of the building and grounds, and that at least one of them have some general knowledge and skill as a practical mechanic which will enable him to supervise the construction of sidewalks and look after the upkeep of the buildings; provided, however, he shall not be considered as an overseer but as a workman and shall be actively engaged in the performance of work. All men to be under the control of the custodian. We recommend that a lady be employed to act as clerk and assistant to the custodian and that she shall assist in the supervision of such repairs, cleaning and sanitation as can best be done under a woman's direction. Four employees mentioned to be placed upon the custodian's payroll.

All work to be done under the general supervision and direction of the executive council.

A LETTER TO THE THIRTY-FIFTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

GENTLEMEN—The department of Iowa, together with all departments of the Grand Army of the Republic have been requested to make all honorable effort to obtain from their respective General Assemblies, an appropriation suitable to pay the railroad fare of the survivors of the battle of Gettysburg living within their borders. These survivors together with the respective governors to be the representatives of the states at the 50th anniversary of that battle. The occasion to be a great peace demonstration to be participated in by representatives of both sides on the same dates, and upon the same ground. It is expected that every state in the Union will be represented, and many of them have already made the necessary appropriations, to pay the railroad fare to and from the re-union. It is confidently expected that the states will do this much, as the general government will subsidize them for the four days of the re-union. The legislative committee of the Grand Army have asked for an appropriation of $10,000 for this purpose. They have had a hearing before the Appropriation committee of the House, but were not able to obtain such hearing before the Senate committee. That committee cut the appropriation in half, and the Senate passed it with that amount. They also cut out the governor and staff. This amount is not sufficient as could have been shown had a hearing been accorded. There are over 300 survivors in the State, and only about a half dozen have said they could not go, while the most of them have said they could go provided the railroad fare was paid. It is not safe to count on less than 250 being able to go. It is probable that the average fare from Iowa will be between thirty and forty dollars, although at this time nothing is known as to reduced fare for the occasion. It requires therefore but little figuring to convince any one that five thousand dollars is not sufficient for the purpose. The two Dakotas with nearly as many survivors as Iowa, have each made appropriations the same as this department is asking. Can we not anticipate that Iowa will do as well. We respectfully ask the House to replace the amount asked, together with the provision for the governor, and hope the Senate may see its way clear to concur.

With great respect for your honorable body,

Very respectfully,

J. D. BROWN,

Dept. Commander,

CHAS. A. CLARK,

R. W. TIRRILL,

A. C. RIPLEY,
