PRESENTATION TO SPEAKER

Brown of Polk expressed to the Speaker, Mr. Johnson, the appreciation and gratitude of the House for the way in which he maintained order and decorum under the conditions which surrounded the deliberations of the House on March 19th.

At the conclusion of Mr. Brown's remarks, he presented the Speaker with a bouquet of roses and moved that the members of the House who endorsed his sentiments so expressed arise, whereupon all members of the House arose and gave a general applause.

McCaulley of Calhoun asked and obtained unanimous consent to have Mr. Brown's remarks printed in the Journal, as follows:

It is not easy to foresee, in the experiences of man, what may be either his strength or weakness, as he moves along in the pathway of life when there are no disturbing influences and nothing to move him either to the heights of heroism or lower him to the depths of cowardice.

It is only when put under temptation or under circumstances of imminent danger, or under pressure of impending calamity, that the worth of a man, if he has it in him, stands out. Fortitude is one of the greatest virtues. Add to it discretion, mental calmness and clearness of vision, and we have a combination in character which has made outstanding examples. Many a man fails for lack of one or more of the characteristics suggested; and until trial, these hidden, latent qualities are unknown and unobserved. Many a man who, in the calm, serene and peaceful pursuit of his daily life, could reach a mature judgment, might, if taken by surprise, throw to the winds all of the safeguards developed from his experience, and become irrational in mind and misguided in action.

Few of us, and possibly none of us, under the circumstances which surrounded the House on yesterday, could or would have acted with more discretion and diplomacy, and yet with a greater determination that order and decorum should prevail, and that the deliberations of one branch of our government should not be interrupted or disrupted under pressure, regardless of its source or of its magnitude, than did our Speaker. I think that he should be openly commended for the fine spirit which he evidenced, and for his sincerity of purpose, and his quality of fairness and his determination that the dignity of the law should be sustained, and that the orderly processes of government should not be disrupted or overthrown.

A communication was received from the Governor, announcing that he had, on March 23rd, approved the following bills:

House Files Nos. 57, 94, 205, 234, 339, 91 and 156.

PROOF OF PUBLICATION

The official proof of publication of House File No. 482, a bill for an act to legalize the payment of funds by Johnson County, Iowa, from the court expense fund, was duly filed with the Chief Clerk of the House in compliance with the provisions of section 10358 of the Code, 1927.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER FILED

The following motion to reconsider was filed:

MR. SPEAKER: I move to reconsider the vote by which the committee report on House File No. 437 was accepted.

FRANK G. SNYDER.

WHY HOUSE FILE NO. 340 SHOULD NOT BE SUBSTITUTED FOR HOUSE FILE NO. 174

First. Because such a substitution would not permit the Legislature to pass upon each bill separately and independent of each other or upon the merits or demerits of each bill.

Second. Because such a substitution and passage would result in the passage of House File No. 340, which is objectionable for the following, among other, reasons:

House File No. 340. Section 1.

(a) No necessity for the Bill since the present law most adequately and correctly covers this same field.

(b) Deprives the Osteopathic Physician of his right to practice the profession in which he is well trained and for which he has been licensed

(c) Converts into a mere masseur the great army of skilled Osteopathic Physicians who have been adequately trained for their profession.

(d) Reduces the Osteopathic Physician, who has qualified for a great profession, to the lowly station of a bath house attendant.

(e) A skillful attempt to destroy the profession of Osteopathy and surgery with its great hospitals and institutions of learning.

(f) Eliminates the Osteopathic Physician as an active competitor of the medical doctor who desires a clear field without competition.

(g) Deprives the general public of the professional services of the Osteopathic Physician upon which they have come to depend, and takes away from them their constitutional right to select their own physician.

(h) Takes away the necessity for any license to practice Osteopathy, since anyone can give massages.

(i) Takes away from the Osteopathic Physician those rights which he has enjoyed for the past thirty years and which are absolutely essential to render to the public the care and treatment which they are daily called upon to give.

(j) A business scheme to destroy all competition. Just another link in the chain by which the medical doctor seeks to have an absolute monopoly.

House File No. 340. Section 2.

(a) No necessity, since Section 2551 of the Code already provides adequate regulation.

(b) The Osteopathic profession has already voluntarily required, in addition to their regular four year course, a post graduate course in surgery of either two years or one year plus a further one year internship in a hospital having at least twenty-five beds and equipped for doing major surgery. Then, too, the present law requires the Osteopathic Surgeon to take a special examination and have a special license.

(c) The medical surgeon can legally do any form of major surgery with four years of professional training and one year of internship. The Osteopathic surgeon has voluntarily fixed a high standard for himself, requiring either six years of professional training or five years with one additional year as a surgical assistant.

(d) If this Bill passes there will be no more Osteopathic Surgeons because of an impossible condition in the bill. Lines 14 and 15 of Section 2 of the bill require as a precedent an internship "in a hospital approved by the State Department of Health." These internes are selected by the medical staff of the hospital, and the medical staff is made up of medical doctors, and no Osteopathic Physician could get into any such hospital. Without this he can not be licensed as an Osteopathic Surgeon.

(e) This required condition is as unreasonable as requiring one to pass through a certain door and then padlocking the door and placing an armed guard so that no one could break through.

House File No. 340. Section 3.

(a) This section of the Bill prohibits an Osteopathic Physician from doing that which the law now requires him to do; as well as that which he has been legally permitted to do for the past decade.

Third. Because such a substitution would defeat the passage of House File No. 174 which has the following merits and should be passed in the interest of the people:

(a) Because an Osteopathic student should be permitted to pursue his school course without chance of arrest. (See Section 1.)

(b) Because Section 2 merely restores a lost provision of the 1921 law (Sec. 8, Chapter 77, Acts of the 34th G. A.).

(c) Section 2 is in the interest of the public since it merely raises the standards of the schools of Osteopathy and requires that more subjects be taught. No one could object to a profession voluntarily raising the standards of its own schools.

(d) Because Section 3 limits the practice to what is being taught in their school, and certainly a member of a profession should be permitted to practice what he is taught.

(e) Because Section 4 places certain duties and obligations upon the Osteopathic profession, which duties and obligations are made a part of the statute in the interest of the public.

L. B. FORSLING.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The following communication was received from the Governor:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Senators and Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

In my first message to the Legislature I called attention to the vital necessity of obtaining in this General Assembly thorough revision of our ancient tax system. In my closing statement on that subject I said:

"In the face of the present exigency, thorough and genuine tax revision is demanded. It is a 'condition and not a theory' confronting us. If I am any judge of the temper of the people nothing less than a thorough revision of the entire tax system will meet with their approval. To fail them now would be plain evasion of our duty. Half-hearted revision is little better than no revision. Let us be sure when we have finished in this session with this great undertaking that wealth and income now escaping are required to make their fair contribution to the cost of government."

There has been no change in conditions or in public sentiment that would justify us if we permit the session to come to a close having failed in our duty in this respect.

Enact legislation here that will lift part of the ever increasing burden of taxation from visible property and you will have accomplished more for the economic welfare of your constituents than can be accomplished in any other way.

We are aware that certain selfish organized interests are using every means at their disposal to defeat the State Income Tax. Their assault does not alter the fact that this is a fair principle of taxation and the responsibility is now on the Senate to cooperate with the House in the passage of an Income Tax Bill. There is no merit to the argument that an Income Tax will not become a replacement tax. It will reduce the State levy by the amount collected by way of income tax thus reducing the property tax on all property in the State of Iowa.

All the arguments made against the Income Tax resolve into mere obstructive tactics. They come largely from individuals and organizations who are not carrying their share of the tax burden and who seem to conclude that the people will acquiesce in a situation where one-half of the wealth of the State, represented by visible property, pays more than ninety-six per cent of all the taxes. The people have spoken as plainly on this matter of tax revision as they have ever spoken on any question of needed legislation in our State.

Iowa is one of the few states that has no business tax. Therefore, we should have a corporation income tax, justly applied to reach the profits of corporations, gained within the borders of our State. The argument that it will discourage manufacturing industry is without merit. Certain lines of business may attempt to escape but business generally does not fear an income tax, for the reason that an income tax is based on the principle that no tax is paid unless and until the business is a success and then not in a measure to hurt the business, but only in sufficient amount to permit the corporation to contribute fairly to the cost of government. It is a significant fact, that States having a corporation Income Tax, have more than held their own in the development of manufacturing industries. In the number of men employed in factories and in factory production, the corporation income tax States show a percentage of increase, greater than that enjoyed by surrounding States.

I believe the State Income Tax should be applied only to those individuals who are subject to the Federal Income Tax. In this connection if we accept the Federal basis and Federal check, it will greatly reduce the cost of administering the law.

I am in favor of exempting the smaller incomes and raising the rate on the higher incomes and provide an Income Tax on corporations. By so doing you will have taken a long step toward fulfilling the expectation of the people in providing a method of reaching wealth that heretofore has escaped taxation.

In formulating the individual Income Tax it has always been my opinion that the exemptions should be substantially higher than those granted in the bill that is under consideration. We must agree that there should be exempted from the Income Tax, wages and earnings needed to maintain the family in necessities and to educate the children. I am opposed to any provision whereby a person not subject to a tax shall be required to make a return.

If we address ourselves earnestly to this problem we can bring about legislation that will be fair to every individual and every interest; that will spread out the tax burden equitably among our people; that will revive hope and bring a measure of justice to the farmers, laborers, home owners, to business and in fact, to the overwhelming majority of the people of our State.

Respectfully submitted,

DAN W. TURNER, Governor.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER CALLED UP

Berry of Monroe called up the motion to reconsider the vote by which Senate File No. 1 failed to pass the House, found in the Journal of March 20th.

Hush of Montgomery raised the point of order that Senate File No. 1 was in the hands of the steering committee and as such was not pending before the House at this time.

The Speaker held the point of order well taken.

Forsling of Woodbury moved that Senate File No. 1 be removed from the steering committee and be immediately considered.

Torgeson of Worth raised the point of order that it would require a two-thirds vote, for the reason that the steering committee has been established under the rules of the House.

The Speaker held that the point of order was not well taken for the reason that the motion by Forsling of Woodbury was equivalent to making it a special order and as such would require a constitutional majority.

Forsling of Woodbury moved to amend his original motion to read that the motion to reconsider Senate File No. 1 be removed from the steering committee.

The Speaker ruled that Mr. Allen's motion was out of order for the reason that the previous question had been ordered.

Torgeson of Worth moved to reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered.

Allen of Pocahontas moved to make the motion by Mr. Torgeson a special order for Friday, April 3rd.

Forsling of Woodbury raised the point of order that both motions were out of order, for the reason that the previous question had been ordered.

Allen of Pocahontas asked and obtained unanimous consent to withdraw his motion providing for a special order.

The Speaker ruled the motion by Mr. Torgeson was in order.

On the question "Shall the House reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered?" a roll call was demanded.

Motion prevailed.

Forsling of Woodbury moved that the motion to reconsider the vote by which Senate File No. 1 failed to pass the House be laid on the table.

Johnson of Marion raised the point of order that the motion to lay on the table was out of order, for the reason that the motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which Senate File No. 1 failed to pass the House had been previously made and failed to carry, and that the motion to lay on the table could not again be renewed until further action had been taken on the bill.

The Speaker held the point of order not well taken, for the reason that the motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider Senate File No. 1 could be renewed on a subsequent day.

(a) On the first two thousand dollars of taxable income, or any part thereof, one per cent (1%).

(b) On the third and fourth thousand dollars of taxable income, or any part thereof, two per cent (2%).

(c) On the fifth and sixth thousand dollars of taxable income or any part thereof, three per cent (3%).

(d) On the seventh and eighth thousand dollars of taxable income, or any part thereof, four per cent (4%).

(e) On all taxable income in excess of eight thousand dollars, five per cent (5%). Such tax shall first be levied, collected and paid with respect to the net income received during the calendar year 1931, or during that portion of any tax year included within the calendar year 1931; provided, however, that every single person, a resident of the state, having a net income of more than fifteen hundred dollars a year plus five hundred dollars for each dependent, and every married person, a resident of the state having a net income of more than thirty-five hundred dollars a year, plus four hundred dollars for each dependent, shall pay a tax of not less than three dollars.

2. Corporations. A tax is hereby imposed upon each corporation organized under the laws of this state, and upon every foreign corporation doing business in this state, annually in an amount equivalent to one per cent of the net income as herein defined, received by such corporation during the income year; but no corporation having a net income of less than one thousand dollars ($1000.00) during the income year shall be required to file a return or to pay a tax.

(a) Allocation and Apportionment of Net Income. If the trade or business of the corporation is carried on entirely within the state, the tax shall be imposed on the entire net income, but if such trade or business is carried on partly within and partly without the state, the tax shall be imposed only on the portion of the net income reasonably attributable to the trade or business within the state, said net income attributable to the State of Iowa to be determined as follows:

(1) Interest, dividends, rents and royalties (less related expenses) received in connection with business in the state, shall be allocated to the state and where received in connection with business outside the state, shall be allocated outside of the state.

(2) Gains from the sale of capital assets or property held, owned or used in connection with the trade or business of the taxpayer, but not for sale in the regular course of business, shall be allocated to the state, if the property sold is real or tangible personal property situated in the state; otherwise, such gains shall be allocated outside of the state. Gains from the sale of intangible property shall be allocated upon the basis hereinafter provided for the allocation of net income.

(3) Net income of the above classes having been separately allocated and deducted as above provided, the remainder of the net income of the taxpayer shall be allocated and apportioned as follows:

Where income is derived from business other than the manufacture and sale of tangible personal property, such income shall be specifically allocated or equitably apportioned within and without the state under rules and regulations of the board.

Where income is derived from the manufacture or sale of tangible personal property, the portion thereof attributable to business within the state shall be taken to be such percentage of the total of such income as gross sales within the state bears to the total gross sales of the corporation.

The gross sales of the corporation within the state shall be taken to be the gross sales from goods sold and delivered within the state, excluding deliveries for transportation out of the state.

For the purpose of this section, the word "sale" shall include exchange and the word "manufacture" shall include the extraction and recovery of natural resources and all processes of fabricating and curing.

(b) Allocation in Special Cases. If any taxpayer believes that the method of allocation and apportionment hereinbefore prescribed as administered by the board and applied to his business has operated or will so operate as to subject him to taxation on a greater portion of his net income than is reasonably attributable to business or sources within the state, he shall be entitled to file with the board a statement of his objections and of such alternative method of allocation and apportionment as he believes to be proper under the circumstances with such detail and proof and within such time as the board may reasonably prescribe; and if the board shall conclude that the method of allocation and apportionment theretofore employed is in fact inapplicable and inequitable, it shall redetermine the taxable income by such other method of allocation and apportionment as seems best calculated to assign to the state for taxation the portion of the income reasonably attributable to business and sources within the state, not exceeding, however, the amount which would be arrived at by application of the statutory rules for apportionment.

(c) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property, such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean money deposits in banks, shares of stock, bonds, notes, credits, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

3. Taxable year. The tax imposed by this act shall be levied, collected and paid with respect to the net income received during the calendar year 1931, or during that portion of any tax year included within the calendar year 1931 and annually thereafter.

4. Exemptions. The following organizations and corporations shall be exempt from taxation under this act:

(a) All state, national, cooperative and savings banks, title insurance and trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies and/or insurance associations, railway companies, equipment car companies and pullman car companies, now or hereafter organized and incorporated by or under the laws of this state or lawfully operating in the state of Iowa.

(b) Fraternal beneficiary associations.

(b1) Insurance companies organized under the laws of the state of Iowa and existing by reason of the law as it appears in sections eighty-seven hundred eighteen (8718) and eighty-seven hundred nineteen (8719) of the code, 1927.

(c) All domestic companies described in sections 6994-6995 of the code, 1927, engaged in the business of loaning money to deserving persons whose business or circumstances are such as to make it desirable or convenient for them to accumulate funds with which to repay such loans.

(d) Cemetery corporations and corporations organized for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

(e) Business leagues, chambers of commerce, or boards of trade not organized for profit, and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

(f) Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit, but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare.

(g) Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other non-profitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member.

(h) Farmers' associations and fruit growers' associations, or like organizations organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of produce furnished by them.

5. That tax imposed by this act shall apply to and become a charge against estates or trusts, which tax shall be levied, collected and paid annually upon and with respect to the income of estates or of any kind of property held in trust, including:

(a) Income received by estates of deceased persons during the period of administration or settlement of the estate.

(b) Income accumulated in trust for the benefit of unborn or unascertained persons, or persons with contingent interest.

(c) Income held for future distribution under the terms of the will or trust.

(d) Income which is to be distributed to the beneficiaries periodically, whether or not at regular intervals, and the income collected by a guardian of an infant to be held or distributed, as the court may direct.

(e) Income of an estate during the period of administration or settlement permitted by subdivision seven (7), to be deducted from the net income upon which the tax is to be paid by the fiduciary.

(f) The net income received during the year by deceased individuals who have died on or after the date a return was due to be filed without having made a return.

6. The fiduciary shall be responsible for making the return of income for the estate or trust for which he acts, whether such income be taxable to the estate or trust or to the beneficiaries thereof. The net income of an estate or trust shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in this act for individual taxpayers, except that there shall also be allowed as a deduction any part of the gross income which, pursuant to the terms of the will or deed creating the trust, is, during the taxable year, paid to or permanently set aside for the United States, any state, territory, or any political subdivision thereof, of the District of Columbia, or any corporation or association organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; and, in cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, the fiduciary shall include in the return a statement of each beneficiary's distributive share of such net income whether or not distributed before the close of the tax year for which the return is made.

7. In cases under paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of subdivision five (5) of this section the tax shall be imposed upon the estate or trust with respect to the net income of the estate or trust and shall be paid by the fiduciary, except that in determining the net income of the estate of any deceased person during the period of administration or settlement there may be deducted the amount of any income properly paid or credited to any legatee, heir or other beneficiary. In cases under (a), (b) and (c) the estate or trust shall be allowed the same exemptions as are allowed to single persons under section twelve (12), and in cases under paragraph (f) the same exemption as would be allowed the deceased, if living.

ciary, either as to the beneficiaries to whom payable or as to the amounts to which any beneficiary is entitled, the tax shall be imposed upon the estate or trust in the manner provided in subdivision seven (7) of this section, but without the deduction of any amounts of income paid or credited to any such beneficiary. In all other cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, the tax shall not be paid by the fiduciary, but there shall be included in computing the net income of each beneficiary his distributive share whether distributed or not, of the net income of the estate or trust for the taxable year, or if his net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the estate or trust is computed, then his distributive share of the income of the estate or trust for any accounting period of such estate or trust ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such beneficiary's net income is computed.

9. A trust created by an employer as a part of a stock bonus, pension, or profit-sharing plan for the exclusive benefit of some or all of his employees, to which contributions are made by such employer, or employees, or both, for the purpose of distributing to such employees the earnings and principal of the fund accumulated by the trust in accordance with such plan, shall not be taxable under this section, but the amount contributed to such fund by the employer and all earnings of such fund shall be taxed to the distributee in the year in which distributed or made available to him.

COMPUTATION OF TAX.

Sec. 4. Net income defined. The term "net income" means the gross income of the taxpayer less the deductions allowed by this act.

Sec. 5. Gross income defined. 1. The term "gross income" includes gains, profits and incomes derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service, of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, business, commerce of sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit; or gains or profits, and income derived from any source whatever and in whatever form paid. The amount of all such items shall be included in the gross income of the tax year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under the methods of accounting permitted under this act, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period.

2. The term "gross income" does not include the following items, which shall be exempted from taxation under this act:

(a) Amounts received under a life insurance contract paid by reason of the death of the insured, whether in a single sum or in installments (but if such amounts are held by the insurer under an agreement to pay interest thereon, the interest payments shall be included in gross income);

(b) Amounts received (other than amounts paid by reason of the death of the insured and interest payments on such amounts) under a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, but if such amounts (when added to amounts received before the taxable year under such contract) exceed the aggregate premiums or consideration paid (whether or not paid during the taxable year) then the excess shall be included in gross income. In the case of a transfer for a valuable consideration, by assignment or otherwise, of a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, or any interest therein, only the actual value of such consideration and the amount of the premiums and other sums subsequently paid by the transferee shall be exempt from taxation under paragraph (a) of this paragraph;

(c) The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent (but the income from such property shall be included in gross income).

(d) Interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, agencies, or instrumentalities, which is or shall be exempt from state taxation by federal law.

(e) Salaries, wages and other compensation received from the United States by officials or employees thereof which are or shall be exempt from state taxation by federal law.

(f) Any amounts received through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of damages received, whether by suit or agreement, on account of such injuries or sickness.

(g) Stock dividends of a corporation distributed to its own stockholders,

Sec. 6. Basis of return of net income. 1. Taxpayers, who customarily determine their income on a basis other than that of actual cash receipts and disbursements, may, with the approval of the board return their net income under this act upon a similar basis. Taxpayers who customarily determine their income on the basis of an established fiscal year instead of on that of the calendar year, may, with the approval of the board, and subject to such rules and regulations as it may establish, return their net income under this act on the basis of such fiscal year, in lieu of that of the calendar year.

2. A taxpayer may, with the approval of the state board, and under such regulations as it may prescribe, change his income year from the fiscal year to the calendar year or otherwise, in which case his net income shall be computed upon the basis of such new tax year.

3. An individual carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in his individual capacity and shall include in his gross income his share of the net income of the partnership during the income year, but when the partner's net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the partnership is computed, then his share of the net income of the partnership for any accounting period of such partnership ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such partner's net income is computed.

4. Every individual, taxable under this act, who is a beneficiary of an estate or trust, shall include in his gross income the distributive share of the net income of the estate or trust, received by him or distributable to him during the income year. Unless otherwise provided in the law, the will, the deed or other instrument creating the estate, trust or fiduciary relation, the net income shall be deemed to be distributed or distributable to the beneficiaries (including the fiduciary as a beneficiary, in the case of income accumulated for future distribution) ratably, in proportion to their respective interests.

Sec. 7. Determination of gain or loss. 1. For the purpose of ascertaining the gain derived or loss sustained from the sale or other disposition of property, real, personal or mixed, the basis shall be, in case of property acquired on or after January 1, 1931, the cost thereof, or the inventory value, if the inventory is made in accordance with this act.

2. In case of property acquired prior to January 1, 1931, and disposed of thereafter:

(a) No profit shall be deemed to have been derived if either the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, exceeds the value realized.

(b) No loss shall be deemed to have been sustained if either the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, is less than the value realized.

(c) Where both the cost and the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, are less than the value realized, the basis for computing profit shall be the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, whichever is higher.

(d) Where both the cost and the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, are in excess of the value realized, the basis for computing loss shall be the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, whichever is lower.

(e) Any distribution to the taxpayer of the assets of a corporation in partial or complete liquidation thereof shall be treated as a sale of the stock or securities of the corporation owned by him and the gain or loss shall be computed accordingly.

Sec. 8. Exchange of property. 1. When property is exchanged for other property having a readily ascertainable market value, the property received in exchange shall, for the purpose of determining gain or loss, be treated as the equivalent of cash to the amount of its fair market value, if any, but even if property received in exchange has a readily ascertainable market value, no gain or loss shall be recognized (1) when in the reorganization, recapitalization, or other change in identity, form, or place of organization, however affected, consolidation or merger of one or more corporations a taxpayer receives in place of any stock, or securities owned by him, stock or securities in a corporation a party to or resulting from such reorganization, consolidation or merger, or (2) when a taxpayer or taxpayers transfer any property, real, personal or mixed, to a corporation for stock and securities in the corporation and immediately after the transfer is or are in control of such corporation by stock ownership.

2. When property is exchanged for other property and no gain or loss is recognized, the property received shall be treated as taking the place of the property exchanged therefor.

3. Installment Basis.

a. Dealers in personal property. Under regulations prescribed by the board, any person or corporation who regularly sells or otherwise disposes of personal property on the installment plan may return as income therefrom in any taxable year that proportion of the installment payments actually received in that year which the gross profit realized or to be realized when payment is completed, bears to the total contract price.

b. Sales of realty and casual sales of personalty. In the case (1) of a casual sale or other casual disposition of personal property (other than property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year), for a price exceeding $1000, or (2) of a sale or other disposition of real property, if in either case the initial payments do not exceed 40 per centum of the selling price, the income may, under regulations prescribed by the board, be returned on the basis and in the manner above prescribed in this section. As used in this section the term "initial payments" means the payments received in cash or property other than evidences of indebtedness of the purchaser during the taxable period in which the sale or other disposition is made.

c. Change from accrual to installment basis. If a taxpayer entitled to the benefits of subsection (a) elects for any taxable year to report his net income on the installment basis, then in computing his income for the year of change or any subsequent year, amounts actually received during any such year on account of sales or other dispositions of property made in any prior year shall not be excluded; provided, however, no tax shall be imposed on any income accrued from sales made prior to January 1, 1931.

d. Gain or loss upon disposition of installment obligations. If an installment obligation is satisfied at other than its face value or distributed, transmitted, sold, or otherwise disposed of, gain or loss shall result to the extent of the difference between the basis of the obligation and (1) in the case of satisfaction at other than face value or a sale or exchange—the amount realized, or (2) in case of a distribution, transmission, or disposition otherwise than by sale or exchange—the fair market value of the obligation at the time of such distribution, transmission, or disposition. The basis of the obligation shall be the excess of the face value of the obligation over an amount equal to the income which would be returnable were the obligation satisfied in full.

Sec. 9. Inventory. Whenever, in the opinion of the board, the use of inventories is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the board may prescribe, conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and most clearly reflecting the income.

Sec. 10. Deductions. In computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions:

1. All the ordinary and necessary expenses, paid or incurred during the tax year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal service actually rendered, traveling expenses while away from home in pursuit of trade or business, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for the purpose of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity.

2. All interest paid or accrued during the tax year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities, the interest on which is exempt from taxation under this act.

3. Taxes paid or accrued within the income year, imposed by the authority of the United States or of any of its possessions or of any state, territory or the District of Columbia or of any foreign country; except inheritance taxes, Federal estate taxes or estate taxes of this or any other state, and except income taxes imposed by this act and taxes assessed for local benefits, of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed.

4. Losses sustained during the tax year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in trade or business.

5. Losses sustained during the tax year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the trade or business.

6. Losses sustained during the tax year of property not connected with the trade or business, if arising from fires, storm, shipwreck or other casualty, or from theft and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

7. Losses deduced under the foregoing paragraphs four, five, and six shall be ascertained and computed upon the same basis as provided in section seven of this act.

8. Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the tax year; provided, however, that such deductions shall not exceed the value of such debt on January 1, 1931.

9. A reasonable allowance for the depreciation, exhaustion, wear and tear and obsolescence of property used in the trade or business, and in the case of mines or other natural deposits and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion; provided, that in computing the deductions allowed under this paragraph the basis shall be the cost (including in the case of mines and other natural deposits, the cost of development, not otherwise deducted), and in the case of property acquired prior to January 1, 1931, the fair market value of the property on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date. The reasonable allowance under this paragraph shall be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the board. In the case of leases the deductions allowed may be equitably apportioned between the lessor and the lessee.

10. Contributions made within the taxable year to or for the use of:

(a) The United States, any state, territory or political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes;

(b) Any corporation or trust, or community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals;

(c) The special fund for vocational rehabilitation authorized by section seven of the vocational rehabilitation act;

(d) Posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of any such posts or organizations;

(e) Fraternal societies operating under the lodge system, if such contributions are to be used exclusively for religious, charitable or educational purposes. This deduction is limited to an amount which, in all of the above cases combined, does not exceed fifteen per cent (15%) of the taxpayer's net income, computed without the benefit of such deductions.

11. If for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1930, it appears on the production of evidence satisfactory to the board that any taxpayer has sustained a net loss, the amount thereof shall be deducted from the net income of the taxpayer for the succeeding year; and if such net loss is in excess of the net income for such succeeding tax year, the amount of such excess shall be used as a reduction in computing the net income for the next two succeeding tax years, the deduction in all cases to be made under regulations prescribed by the board.

12. Dividends received within the year from stock in any corporation, the income of which shall have been assessed, and the tax on such income paid by the corporation under the provisions of this act; provided, however, that the taxpayer shall not be allowed a credit upon his income tax in excess of the amount of the tax paid by the corporation upon the earnings from which the dividend was paid; and provided further that such corporation has reported the name and address of each person owning stock and the amount of dividends paid each such person during the year.

Sec. 11. Items not deductible. In computing net income no deductions shall in any case be allowed in respect to the following:

1. Personal, living or family expenses.

2. Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments, made to increase the value of any property or estate.

3. Any amount expended in restoring property or in making good the exhaustion thereof, for which an allowance is or has been made.

4. Premiums paid on any life insurance policy covering the life of any officer or employee or of any individual financially interested in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer, when the taxpayer is directly or indirectly a beneficiary under such policy.

Sec. 12. Exemptions. 1. There shall be deducted from the tax after the same shall have been computed as set forth in this act a personal exemption for individuals as follows:

(a) For an individual, fifteen dollars.

(b) For husband and wife or head of a family, fifty dollars.

For the purposes of this chapter, the term "head of a family" means an individual who maintained a household and supported therein himself and one or more persons who were dependent upon him for support.

(c) For each child under the age of eighteen years who is actually supported by and dependent upon the taxpayer for his support, an additional four dollars.

(d) The personal exemptions provided by this section shall be determined by the personal status of a taxpayer on the last day of the tax year.

RETURNS

Sec. 13. Individual returns. 1. Every individual having a net income for the tax year from sources taxable under this act of fifteen hundred dollars or over if single, or if married and not living with husband or wife; or having a net income for the tax year of thirty-five hundred dollars or over if married and living with husband or wife; and every partnership doing business in this state shall make a return under oath, stating specifically the items of gross income and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act.

2. If husband and wife living together have an aggregate net income of thirty-five hundred dollars or over, each shall make such a return, unless the income of each is included in a single joint return.

3. If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by a guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer.

4. Provided, also, that every individual having a gross income of five thousand dollars a year or over, shall file a return.

Sec. 14. Fiduciary returns. 1. Every fiduciary subject to taxation under the provisions of this act, as provided in section three (3) hereof, shall make a return under oath for the individual, estate or trust for whom or for which he acts, if the net amount thereof amounts to one thousand dollars or more or the gross amount thereof amounts to two thousand dollars or more.

2. The return made by a fiduciary shall state specifically the items of gross income, and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act and such other facts as the board may prescribe. Under such regulations as the board may prescribe, a return may be made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries.

3. Fiduciaries required to make returns under this act shall be subject to all the provisions of this act which apply to individuals.

Sec. 15. Corporation returns. 1. The return by a corporation shall be sworn to by the president, vice-president, or other principal officer and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer. Before a corporation shall be dissolved and its assets distributed it shall make a return for a settlement of the tax for any income earned in the income year up to its final date of dissolution.

2. When any corporation, liable to taxation under this act, conducts its business in such a manner as either directly or indirectly to benefit the members or stockholders thereof or any person interested in such business by selling its products or the goods or commodities in which it deals at less than the fair price which might be obtained therefor, or where a corporation, a substantial portion of whose capital stock is owned either directly or indirectly by another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products, goods or commodities of the corporation so owning a substantial portion of its stock in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, or where a corporation, owning directly or indirectly a substantial portion of the stock of another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products, goods or commodities, of the corporation of which it so owns a substantial portion of the stock, in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, the board may determine the amount of taxable income of either or any of such corporations for the calendar or fiscal year, having due regard to the reasonable profits which, but for such arrangement or understanding, might or could have been obtained, by the corporation or corporations liable to taxation under this act, from dealing in such products, goods or commodities.

3. Where the state board has reason to believe that any person or corporation so conducts his trade or business as either directly or indirectly to distort his true net income and the net income properly attributable to the state, whether by the arbitrary shifting of income, through price fixing, charges for services, or otherwise, whereby the net income is arbitrarily assigned to one or another unit in a group of taxpayers carrying on business under a substantially common control, it may require such facts as it deems necessary for the proper computation of the entire net income and the net income properly attributable to the state, and in determining the same the board shall have regard to the fair profits which would normally arise from the conduct of the trade or business.

Sec. 16. Consolidated Returns. 1. Any corporation capable of exercising directly or indirectly substantially the entire control of the business of another corporation doing business in the United States either by ownership or control of substantially the entire capital stock of such other corporation or otherwise may, under regulations to be prescribed by the board, be permitted, and upon demand of the board shall be required, to make a consolidated return, showing the consolidated net income of all of such corporations, and such other information as the board may require in order to compute the net income properly attributable to the state and to impose the tax upon the taxpayers concerned.

2. The board may permit or require the filing of a consolidated return where substantially the entire control of two or more such corporations liable to taxation under this act is exercised by the same interests. Any corporation liable to report under this act and owned or controlled, either directly or indirectly, by another corporation, may be required to make a consolidated report showing the combined net income, such assets of the corporation as are required for the purposes of this act, and such other information as the board may require.

3. In case it shall appear to the board that any arrangement exists in such a manner as to improperly reflect the business done, the segregable assets or the entire net income earned from business done in the state, the board is authorized and empowered, in such manner and under such rules and regulations as it may determine, to equitably adjust the tax.

Sec. 17. Information at source. 1. Every person or corporation being a resident of or having a place of business in this state, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers and all officers and employees of the state or of any political subdivision of the state, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of interest (other than interest coupons payable to bearer), rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income, amounting to one thousand dollars or over, paid or payable during any year to any taxpayer, shall make complete return thereof under oath, to the state board, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by it.

2. Every partnership, having a place of business in the state, shall make a return, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this act, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributed, and the amount of the distributive share of each individual. The return shall be sworn to by any one of the partners.

3. Every fiduciary shall make, under oath, a return for the individual, estate, or trust for whom or for which he acts, and shall set forth in such return the items of the gross income, the deductions allowed by this act, the net income, the names and addresses of the beneficiaries, the amounts distributed or distributable to each and the amount, if any, lawfully retained by him for future distribution. Such return may be made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries.

Sec. 18. Time and place of filing returns. Returns shall be in such form as the board may, from time to time, prescribe, and shall be filed with the board within ninety days after the expiration of the tax year. In case of sickness, absence or other disability, or whenever, in its judgment, good cause exists, the board may allow further time for filing returns. There shall be annexed to the return the affidavit or affirmation of the taxpayer making the return to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. The board shall cause to be prepared blank forms for said returns and shall cause them to be distributed throughout the state and to be furnished upon application, but failure to receive or secure the form shall not relieve the taxpayer from the obligation of making any return herein required.

Sec. 19. Failure to file returns; supplemental returns. If the board shall be of the opinion that any person or corporation required under this act to file a return has failed to file such a return, or to include in a return filed, either intentionally or through error, items of taxable income, it may require from such taxpayer a return or supplementary return, under oath, in such form as it shall prescribe, of all the items of income which the taxpayer received during the year for which the return is made, whether or not taxable under the provisions of this act. If from a supplementary return, or otherwise, the board finds that any items of income, taxable under this act, have been omitted from the original return it may require the items so omitted to be disclosed under oath of the taxpayer, and to be added to the original return. Such supplementary return and the correction of the original return shall not relieve the taxpayer from any of the penalties to which he may be liable under any provisions of this act whether or not the board required a return or a supplementary return under this section.

Sec. 20. Return by administrator or executor. 1. The return by an individual, who, while living, was subject to income tax in the state during the tax year, and who has died before making the return, shall be made in his name and behalf by the administrator or executor of the estate and the tax shall be levied upon and collected from his estate.

Sec. 21. Change of tax year. If a taxpayer, with the approval of the board, changes the tax year on the basis of which his net income is computed, he shall, at such time and in such manner as the board may prescribe, make a separate return of his net income received during the period intervening between the end of his former income year and the beginning of his new income year.

COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT OF TAXES.

Sec. 22. Time and place of payment. 1. The tax may be paid in two installments, each consisting of one-half of the total amount of the tax. The first installment shall be remitted with the return and the second installment shall be paid on or before six months after the date fixed for filing the return; provided, however, that in case the total amount of the tax shall be ten dollars or less, then, and in that case, the whole amount of the tax shall be paid at the time of filing the return.

2. When, at the request of the taxpayer, the time for filing the return is extended, interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum on one-half of the total tax, from the time when the return was originally required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid.

Sec. 23. Examination of returns. 1. As soon as practicable after the return is filed the board shall examine it and determine the correct amount of the tax, and the amount so determined by the board shall be the tax. If the tax found due shall be greater than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be paid within ten days after notice of the amount shall be mailed by the board.

2. If the return is made in good faith and the understatement of the tax is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty added because of the understatement, but interest shall be added to the amount of the deficiency at the rate of one half of one per cent ( $\frac{1}{2}\%$ ) for each month or fraction of a month.

3. If the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency five per cent (5%) thereof, and in addition, interest at the rate of one half of one per cent ( $\frac{1}{2}\%$ ) per month or fraction of a month.

4. If the understatement is found by the board to be false or fraudulent, with intent to evade the tax, the tax on the additional income discovered to be taxable shall be doubled and an additional one per cent (1%) per month or fraction of a month shall be added.

5. The interest provided for in this section shall in all cases be computed from the date the return was originally required to be filed to the date of payment.

6. If the amount of tax as determined by the board shall be less than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be refunded with interest from date of payment at six per cent per annum under the provisions of such regulations as may be prescribed by the state board.

7. All payments received must be credited, first, to penalty and interest accrued, and then to tax due.

Sec. 24. Additional taxes. 1. If the board discovers from the examination of the return or otherwise that the income of any taxpayer, or any portion thereof, has not been assessed, it may, at any time within two years after the time when the return was due, compute the tax and give notice to the taxpayer of the proposed assessment, and the taxpayer shall thereupon have an opportunity, within thirty days, to file an appeal with the board and a hearing shall be granted and a final decision thereon shall be made by the board as soon as possible. The limitation of two years to the assessment of such tax or additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent returns. After the expiration of thirty days from such notification, if no appeal has been filed or after such hearing if such appeal has been filed, the board shall assess the income of such taxpayer or any portion thereof which it determines has not theretofore been assessed and shall give notice to the taxpayer so assessed of the amount of the tax and interest and penalties, if any, and the amount thereof shall be due and payable within ten days from the date of such notice. The provisions of this act with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to a tax so assessed. No additional tax amounting to less than five dollars shall be assessed.

Sec. 25. Warrant for the collection of taxes. If any tax imposed by this act or any portion of such tax be not paid within sixty days after the same becomes due, the board shall issue a warrant under its official seal directed to the sheriff of any county of the state commanding him to levy upon and sell the real and personal property of the taxpayer found within his county, for the payment of the amount thereof, with the added penalties, interest, and the cost of executing the warrant, and to return such warrant to the board and pay to it the money collected by virtue thereof by a time to be therein specified, not less than sixty days from the date of the warrant. The sheriff shall, within five days after the receipt of the warrant, file with the clerk of the district court of his county a copy thereof, and thereupon the clerk shall enter in the judgment docket, in the column for judgment debtors, the name of the taxpayer mentioned in the warrant, and in appropriate columns the amount of the tax or portion thereof and penalties for which the warrant is issued and the date when such copy is filed, and thereupon the amount of such warrant so docketed shall become a lien upon the title to and interest in real property of the taxpayer against whom it is issued in the same manner as a judgment duly docketed in the office of such clerk. The said sheriff shall thereupon proceed upon the same in all respects, with like effect and in the same manner prescribed by law in respect to executions issued against property upon judgment of a court of record, and shall be entitled to the same fees for his services in executing the warrant, to be collected in the same manner.

Sec. 26. Tax a debt. Every tax imposed by this act, and all increases, interest and penalties thereon shall become, from the time it is due and payable, a personal debt from the person or persons liable to pay the same

Sec. 27. Action for recovery of taxes. Action may be brought at any time by the attorney general of the state, and shall be brought by him upon the request of the state board, in the name of the state, to recover the amount of any taxes, penalties, and interest due under this act.

Sec. 28. Tax upon settlement of fiduciary's account.

1. No final account of a fiduciary shall be allowed by any court unless such account shows, and the judge of said court finds, that all taxes imposed by the provisions of this act upon said fiduciary, which have become payable, have been paid, and that all taxes which may become due are secured by bond, deposit or otherwise. The certificate of the board and the receipt for the amount of the tax therein certified shall be conclusive as to the payment of the tax to the extent of said certificate.

2. For the purpose of facilitating the settlement and distribution of estates held by fiduciaries, the board may, on behalf of the state, agree upon the amount of taxes at any time due or to become due from such fiduciaries under the provisions of this act, and payment in accordance with such agreement shall be full satisfaction of the taxes to which the agreement relates.

PENALTIES.

Sec. 29. Penalties. 1. If any taxpayer, without intent to evade any tax imposed by this act, shall fail to file a return of income or pay a tax, if one is due at the time required by or under the provisions of this act, but shall voluntarily file a corrected return of income and pay the tax due, within sixty days thereafter, there shall be added to and made a part of the tax an additional amount equal to five per cent (5%) thereof, plus one dollar, and an additional one per cent (1%) for each month or fraction of a month during which the tax remains unpaid.

3. The board shall have power, upon making a record of its reason therefor, to waive or reduce any of the additional taxes or interest provided in subdivisions one (1) and two (2) of this section or in subdivisions two (2), three (3) and four (4) of section twenty-three (23), and to credit all payments received first to penalty and interest, then to tax due.

4. If any taxpayer fails to file a return within sixty days of the time prescribed by this act, any judge of the district court, upon petition of the state board or county assessor of any county, shall issue a writ of mandamus requiring such person to file a return. The order of notice upon the petition shall be returnable not later than ten days after the filing of the petition. The petition shall be heard and determined on the return day or on such day thereafter as the court shall fix, having regard to the speediest possible determination of the case, consistent with the rights of the parties.

5. Any person who, without fraudulent intent, fails to pay any tax or to make, render, sign or verify any return, or to supply any information within the time required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars to be recovered by the attorney general, in the name of the state, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

6. If a corporation required by the provisions of this act to file any report or return or to pay any tax or fee, either as a corporation organized under the laws of this state, or as a foreign corporation doing business in this state for profit, or owning and using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, fails or neglects to make any such report or return or to pay any such tax or fee for ninety days after the time prescribed in this act for making such report or return, or for paying such tax or fee, the board may in its discretion certify such fact to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall thereupon cancel the articles of incorporation of any such corporation which is organized under the laws of this state by appropriate entry upon the margin of the record thereof, or cancel the certificate of authority of any such foreign corporation to do business in this state by proper entry. Thereupon all the powers, privileges, and franchises conferred upon such corporation by such articles of incorporation or by such certificate of authority shall cease and determine. The secretary of state shall immediately notify by registered mail such domestic or foreign corporation of the action taken by him.

8. Any corporation whose articles of incorporation or certificate of authority to do business in this state have been cancelled by the secretary of state, as provided in sub-section six (6), or similar provisions of prior revenue acts, upon the filing, within ten years after such cancellation, with the secretary of state, of a certificate from the board that it has complied with all the requirements of this act and paid all state taxes, fees, or penalties due from it, and upon the payment to the secretary of state of an additional penalty of fifty dollars, shall be entitled to again exercise its rights, privileges, and franchises in this state; and the secretary of state shall cancel the entry made by him under the provisions of subsection six (6) or similar provision of prior revenue acts, and shall issue his certificate entitling such corporation to exercise its rights, privileges, and franchises.

9. Any person, or any officer or employee of any corporation, or member or employee of any partnership, who, with intent to evade any requirement of this act or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder, shall fail to pay any tax or to make, sign, or verify any return or to supply any information required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. Any person, corporation, or any officer or employee of a corporation, or member or employee of any partnership, who with intent to evade any of the requirements of this act, or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder, shall make, render, sign or verify any false or fraudulent return or statement, or shall supply any false or fraudulent information, or who shall aid, abet, direct cause or who shall procure anyone so to do, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five thousand dollars, to be recovered by the attorney general, in the name of the state, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall also upon conviction be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of from one to three years and by a fine of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars.

10. The board shall have the power to compromise any penalty under subsections five (5) and nine (9) of this section. The penalties provided by such subsections shall be additional to all other penalties in this act provided.

11. The failure to do any act required by or under the provisions of this act shall be deemed an act committed in part at the office of the board in Iowa. The certificate of the board to the effect that a tax has not been paid, that a return has not been filed or that information has not been supplied, as required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be prima facie evidence that such tax has not been paid, that such return has not been filed or that such information has not been supplied.

12. If any taxpayer who has failed to file a return or has filed an incorrect or insufficient return and has been notified by the board of his delinquency refuses or neglects, within twenty days after such notice, to file a proper return, or files a fraudulent return, the board shall determine the income of such taxpayer, according to its best information and belief, and assess the same at not more than double the amount so determined. The board may, in its discretion, allow further time for filing a return in such case.

REVISION AND APPEAL.

Sec. 30. Revision by board. A taxpayer may appeal to the board for revision of the tax assessed against him at any time within one year from the time of the filing of the return or from the date of the notice of the assessment of any additional tax. The board shall grant a hearing thereon and if, upon such hearings, it shall determine that the tax is excessive or incorrect, it shall re-settle the same according to the law and the facts and adjust the computation of the tax accordingly. The board shall notify the taxpayer of its findings and shall refund to the taxpayer the amount, if any, paid in excess of the tax found by it to be due with interest at six per cent per annum. If the taxpayer has failed, without good cause, to file a return within the time prescribed by law, or has filed a fraudulent return, or, having filed an incorrect return, has failed, after notice, to file a proper return, the board shall not reduce the tax below the amount for which the taxpayer is found to be properly assessed.

Sec. 31. Appeal. The determination of the board upon application made by a taxpayer for revision of any tax may be reviewed in any court of competent jurisdiction by a complaint filed by the taxpayer against the board in the county in which the taxpayer resides or has his principal place of business within sixty days after notice by the board of its determination, given as provided in section twenty-three (23) and/or section twenty-nine (29) of this act. Thereupon appropriate proceedings shall be had and the relief, if any, to which the taxpayer may be found entitled may be granted and any such taxes, interest or penalties paid, found by the court to be in excess of those legally assessed, shall be ordered refunded to the taxpayer, with interest at six per cent per annum from time of payment. An appeal may be taken by the taxpayer or the board to the supreme court in the manner that appeals are taken in suits in equity, irrespective of the amounts involved.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE STATE BOARD OF ASSESSMENT AND REVIEW

The following communication was received from L. H. Cook, Chairman, of the State Board of Assessment and Review:

March 19, 1931.

Tax Revision Committee of the Forty-fourth General Assembly.

Dear Sirs:

The State Board of Assessment and Review respectfully submits for your consideration the recommendations contained herein, in regard to the modification of certain sections of the Iowa statutes relating to taxation. These recommendations cover several matters which have come to the attention of the board in the administration of the tax laws, which, in the opinion of the board require legislative attention.

1. Two amendments are desirable to section 6953 of the Code, sub-section three of this section states that sheep and swine over six months of age are subject to taxation; this is in conflict with a provision contained in sub-section thirteen of section 6944 which provides that only swine and sheep over nine months of age shall be taxed.

2. Sub-section five of section 6953 provides that accounts bearing interest are taxable. This is in conflict with the general provisions relating to moneys and credits which provides that all credits are assessable. The board, therefore, submits a bill covering these corrections for your consideration.

3. Section 6965 of the Code in its present form is not clear in its meaning. It provides that the assessment of Grain, Ice and Coal dealers shall be based on the average amount of capital used in conducting the business. The section does not state if this assessment shall be at the general property rate or as moneys and credits. The intent is obviously to provide for the assessment of the personal property of such businesses in a just and equitable manner corresponding with the assessment of merchandise or stocks of goods of other concerns. The board recommends that the section be amended as suggested in the accompanying bill.

4. The board respectfully calls attention to the fact that under the existing statutes stocks of merchandise or other personal property is not assessable in Iowa if brought into the state after the first day of January, thus a mercantile establishment may open its doors on January 2nd without tax liability until January 1st of the following year; if the merchant closes his business prior to the first day of the next year he is tax free for the period of operation. The board makes no specific recommendations upon this subject, but believes that the situation should be called to the attention of the legislature.

5. The board recommends that section 6988 of the Code be amended to specifically provide that any person claiming a deduction for indebtedness from his moneys and credits assessment shall be required to list specifically the nature of such indebtedness and to whom it is due while under decisions rendered by the Supreme Court it has been held that such a showing must be made there is considerable vagueness as to the statutory requirements in this particular. The board, therefore, recommends the enactment of the bill herewith submitted.

6. The board calls attention to the fact that under section 6996 of the Code it is provided that the Auditor of State shall issue to certain loan corporations a certificate entitling them to be assessed on the value of their moneys and credits providing it is found that such corporation is operating in accordance with the provisions of section 6994 of the Code; these sections relate to the operation of so-called Morris Plan Banks. The board finds that the issuance of these certificates often brings about conflict with the statutes relating to the assessment of money capital and banks in cases where such concerns become engaged in operations which are in competition with regularly chartered banks and therefore recommends that the section be amended as suggested in the accompanying bill.

7. The board respectfully desires to call attention to the provisions of Chapter 334 of the Code relating to the taxation of the capital stock of certain corporations. This law in its present form is almost unworkable. In section 7008 it is provided that the value of such shares of stock shall be assessed to the owners thereof as moneys and credits, but that in determining the value of such stock the amount of capital invested in property, other than moneys and credits shall be deducted from the actual value of the shares. Under the provisions of sub-section twenty, section 6944, of the Code, it is almost impossible to determine what corporations are subject to a return under this section and which are not. It will be noted by a reading of section 7008 that all corporations otherwise provided for in chapters 330 to 341 inclusive are exempt, as, are, also certain other corporations. This section does apply to the taxation of domestic insurance companies, certain investment companies, insurance agencies when incorporated, real estate holding companies and certain other classes of business. There is a conflict in this chapter due to the fact that section 7012 is in flat conflict with 7008 in that one section provides that in estimating the value of the capital stock the entire capital actually invested in property, other than moneys and credits shall be deducted from the valuations, while in section 7012 it is provided that the assessed valuation shall be deducted. Inasmuch as the provisions of section 7008 were enacted later than those of 7012 it is the opinion of the board that section 7008 gives the procedure which must be followed. The theory of this section originally was that the capital stock of a domestic corporation was to be taxed on its net worth over and above the physical property owned by such corporation, but due to the fact that legislatures from time to time have exempted certain classes of corporations, this act no longer affects most of the domestic corporations in the state. The return provided for in this act at present has never been generally demanded by assessors, prior to the creation of the State Board, which last year required some two thousand corporations to make a return resulting in the listing of probably $20,000,000 in moneys and credits. Due to the fact that this section applies only to Iowa corporations it is discriminatory in many respects against Iowa businesses organized under the laws of the State and the return may be avoided by the subterfuge of organizing under the laws of another state. It imposes an entirely discriminatory tax upon insurance companies organized under the laws of Iowa and also discriminates as between incorporated insurance companies, financial agencies and those which are not. The board attempted in drafting the Business Franchise Tax, which was introduced in the legislature as one of the recommendations of the Joint Legislative Committee on Taxation and the board, to make this chapter apply to all corporations, both domestic and foreign. A storm of protest was created by this bill, due to the fact that it would have applied to all Iowa corporations, the same provisions which are now under the provisions of this section applicable to only a limited number. There is not the slightest justice or equity in many of the exemptions now provided in the taxation of corporation stock under the provisions of this section. For example, a public utility company which does not operate a transmission line is required to make a return under the provisions of this section, while if such a company operates even one mile of rural transmission line it is not required to make a return. In its present form this section simply amounts to a form of return of moneys and credits and intangible values from certain corporations, while other corporations are exempt from making such a return.

In view of the fact that it seems obvious that the original recommendations of the board and the committee in regard to the taxation of corporation stocks are not likely to be followed it would seem advisable to repeal or modify the provisions of Chapter 334 contained in sections 7008 to 7013 inclusive to eliminate the injustice which results from its enforcement. In lieu of this section there should be a specific requirement providing for the listing by every corporation, domestic or foreign, operating under the laws of Iowa, of a detailed report upon which an assessment may be made on its moneys and credits and corporation stocks owned by such corporation.

The board has already in the recommendation of the Franchise Tax measure expressed its view on what should be done to correct the provisions of Chapter 334. It wishes to emphasize at this time the fact that Iowa does now have a law upon its books imposing exactly the same tax upon the capital stock of some two thousand of its corporations which is proposed in the Franchise Tax Bill recommended, but that the law imposing this tax is practically unworkable in its present provisions. Chapter 334 either ought to be repealed in entirety or its provisions should be made applicable as to all corporations doing business in Iowa. To clarify this chapter the board recommends that section 7012 be repealed as suggested in the accompanying bill. The board also recommends in connection with this section that in order to remedy the injustice which now exists due to the fact that domestic insurance companies are required to make a return under section 7008 which results in a taxation grossly discriminatory to companies organized under the laws of Iowa and which they can avoid by organizing under the laws of other states. Consideration should be given to the exemption of the capital stock of Iowa insurance companies under the provisions of Chapter 334. This can be easily done by the repeal of section 7026 of the Code.

In connection with the discussion of Chapter 334 the board wishes to call attention to the absurdity of the exemptions of capital stock of corporations from taxation in Iowa as provided in this chapter and also in sub-section 20 of section 6944 of the Code. At the present time under Iowa laws the capital stock of all telegraph and telephone companies, no matter where incorporated, is taxable, and the contrary is true as to all railroad companies, which with the exception of those incorporated under the laws of Iowa are taxable. Whether or not the capital stock of a railroad company incorporated under the laws of the state of Iowa is taxable is a matter of grave doubt, due to the conflict of the statutes.

The capital stock of any corporation engaged in merchandising in Iowa, whether organized under the laws of Iowa or not is exempt under this provision; the capital stock of all chain stores is probably exempt from taxation in the hands of individual holders and it is very likely that the stock of most of the industrial corporations is also exempt. The capital stock of all Iowa organized corporations is exempt from taxation in the hands of the individuals and if such corporation is engaged in a mercantile or manufacturing business its capital stock is not taxable under the provisions of Chapter 334.

Under the present laws there is utterly no logic or justice in the policy of the state in regard to the taxation of securities of the nature of capital stock of corporations.

8. The board respectfully calls attention to the fact that the present law relating to the taxation of express companies has become obsolete and unworkable. There is no longer such a thing as an express company. Under the old sense of the word the business of the former express company is now conducted by the railroads who own the capital stock and the equipment, known as the American Express Agency; a very limited amount of property is owned by this agency which is assessable on the same basis as other property, but which the board must apportion on the basis of the number of express routes within the state. The board believes that if there is to be any real effort in the future to impose a tax upon the express business in Iowa it must be done through the application of a gross earnings tax. At the present time the gross amount of the express business in Iowa approximates a little more than $2,000,000 annually; a 2% gross earnings tax upon this business would net approximately $40,000 per year. A large number of states impose such a tax. If it should be the feeling of the committee that such a tax should be adopted a bill providing therefor is hereby submitted.

The board is not in this communication taking up any matters which are dealt with in the County Assessor's bill now pending. If, however, this bill should be enacted there are a number of matters in connection with the present assessment procedure which should be corrected. The board desires, however, to suggest one specific correction covering the question of assessment of moneys and credits and corporation stocks as omitted property. Section 7155 covers the assessment by the Treasurer of omitted property. At the present time there is in many cases a question of determining how much property has been omitted from a past return. There is a very considerable evasion due to difficulty on the part of the state or local tax assessor in determining whether or not assets were held during the entire period for which an assessment is liable. The board believes that where it can be determined that any person is the owner of property which has been omitted from return, that the burden of proof should be upon the owner to show that he has not had possession for the entire five year period for which delinquent taxes may be assessed. The board, therefore, submits the following amendment to section 7155 of the Code.

9. The board also suggests that it would be desirable to place the administration of the Inheritance Tax Department under its jurisdiction.

This recommendation is made at the suggestion and with the approval of the Treasurer of State. If the present moneys and credits law is to be retained there are many advantages in a combination of inheritance tax collections with the collection of delinquent moneys and credits taxes. The board now checks all inheritance tax returns for the purpose of determining whether or not there is an obligation for moneys and credits taxation. The inheritance tax returns, also, will have an important relation to the administration of the State Income Tax. The same men engaged in inheritance tax administration can also be used as agents of the board in other allied matters. In practically all states inheritance tax collections are in the hands of the agencies which administer the collection of income or similar taxes. Probably this particular recommendation should have the attention of the Committee on Departmental Affairs.

The board will be willing at any time to meet the committees of the House and Senate for discussion of these recommendations, which are, in all cases, based upon the practical experience of the board in connection with its administration of taxation affairs.

Yours very sincerely,

Iowa State Board of Assessment and Review,

LHC:ELD

REMARKS FROM THE GENTLEMAN FROM SIOUX

In response to the suggestion by the gentlemen from Palo Alto (Mr. Donlon) for an April first story by the member from Sioux (TePaske) the latter made in substance the following remarks:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: I should not be true to the standards of my race (Dutch) if I were not economical even in the use of time. I shall, therefore, take but a few moments.

This is the first of April, and it is therefore the anniversary of the best practical April fool joke of all history. It was on April one, 1572, during the Eighty Year War, that the Dutch opened the locks and dykes, flooded the country, drove back the invading army under Alva of Spain, and raised the siege of the city of Leyden. Leyden was a key position, and that event was the turning point in that war, as the battle of Gettysburg turned the tide during our own Civil War.

When the Eighty Year War was over, a grateful nation turned to the little city to recognize her services in the cause of human freedom. In the carte blanche of the nation, Leyden wrote "A University". She chose a seat of learning, and Holland became the first school master of modern Europe. I want you to get the full significance of that choice. To use a street phrase, education is the Hollanders' middle name. Just to instance: The Leyden jar comes from Leyden, of course. At that university some of the leading minds of this country during colonial days received their training. At the conference called by President Harding for the reduction of arms, and the representatives of a large number of nations were gathered together, a Hollander was chosen to preside at the meeting, because he could meet the largest number of delegates in their own language.

Holland was the birthplace of Hugo Grotius, the father and greatest exponent of international law. She was the cradle of political and religious freedom. She was ever the messenger of reason and peace.

When France was murdering the Huguenots, they found welcome refuge in the land of my forefathers. While England was persecuting the Pilgrims, a group of them under Reverend Robinson found asylum in this same city of Leyden. When the American colonists were looking about for a pattern for a constitution, they found one in the political institutions of the Netherlands. When our young republic was in desperate need of financial aid, it was Dutch friendship that encouraged Dutch capital to supply the need.

The Dutch have furnished this country with presidents in the persons of the scholarly Martin Van Buren and the forceful Teddy Roosevelt. The congressman from the fifth Iowa District is one of our people; and two of the largest life insurance companies of Des Moines are headed by Dutchmen. When the state wanted a good gardener for the State Institution at Woodward, Iowa, they put a Hollander on the job.

Tidiness also is a Dutch trait. When our enterprising American advertisers wanted a trade mark that would best express cleanliness, they adopted "The Old Dutch Cleanser."

I must take no more of your time, but I want to bring greetings here from our relatively little group. The Norwegians have told their story here in song. The Irish have regaled us with their oratory. But let the land of Rembrandt, of Rubens and of Ruysdael (without some of whose works no art gallery in the world is complete)—let that land—and the land of the hyacinth and the tulip—let that land bring to you its greetings with colors.

(Mrs. TePaske, in Dutch costume, steps in, greets the flag and brings a blooming tulip to the speaker's stand.)

Behold! My Queen—greetings to this House, and to the Speaker whom we all respect and to his good wife whom we all love.

Mrs. TePaske of Sioux presented a pot of tulips to Speaker Johnson.

IMPOSITION OF TAX

Sec. 3. Individuals. 1. A tax is hereby imposed upon every resident of the state, which tax shall be levied, collected and paid annually upon and with respect to his entire taxable income as herein defined at rates as follows:

(a) On the first two thousand dollars of taxable income, or any part thereof, one per cent (1%).

(b) On the third and fourth thousand dollars of taxable income, or any part thereof, two per cent (2%).

(c) On the fifth and sixth thousand dollars of taxable income or any part thereof, three per cent (3%).

(d) On the seventh and eighth thousand dollars of taxable income, or any part thereof, four per cent (4%).

(e) On all taxable income in excess of eight thousand dollars, five per cent (5%). Such tax shall first be levied, collected and paid with respect to the net income received during the calendar year 1931, or during that portion of any tax year included within the calendar year 1931; provided, however, that every single person, a resident of the state, having a net income of more than fifteen hundred dollars a year plus five hundred dollars for each dependent, and every married person, a resident of the state having a net income of more than thirty-five hundred dollars a year, plus four hundred dollars for each dependent, shall pay a tax of not less than three dollars.

2. Corporations. A tax is hereby imposed upon each corporation organized under the laws of this state, and upon every foreign corporation doing business in this state, annually in an amount equivalent to one per cent of the net income as herein defined, received by such corporation during the income year; but no corporation having a net income of less than one thousand dollars ($1000.00) during the income year shall be required to file a return or to pay a tax.

(a) Allocation and Apportionment of Net Income. If the trade or business of the corporation is carried on entirely within the state, the tax shall be imposed on the entire net income, but if such trade or business is carried on partly within and partly without the state, the tax shall be imposed only on the portion of the net income reasonably attributable to the trade or business within the state, said net income attributable to the State of Iowa to be determined as follows:

(1) Interest, dividends, rents and royalties (less related expenses) received in connection with business in the state, shall be allocated to the state and where received in connection with business outside the state, shall be allocated outside of the state.

(2) Gains from the sale of capital assets or property held, owned or used in connection with the trade or business of the taxpayer, but not for sale in the regular course of business, shall be allocated to the state, if the property sold is real or tangible personal property situated in the state; otherwise, such gains shall be allocated outside of the state. Gains from the sale of intangible property shall be allocated upon the basis hereinafter provided for the allocation of net income.

(3) Net income of the above classes having been separately allocated and deducted as above provided, the remainder of the net income of the taxpayer shall be allocated and apportioned as follows:

Where income is derived from business other than the manufacture and sale of tangible personal property, such income shall be specifically allocated or equitably apportioned within and without the state under rules and regulations of the board.

Where income is derived from the manufacture or sale of tangible personal property, the portion thereof attributable to business within the state shall be taken to be such percentage of the total of such income as gross sales within the state bears to the total gross sales of the corporation.

The gross sales of the corporation within the state shall be taken to be the gross sales from goods sold and delivered within the state, excluding deliveries for transportation out of the state.

For the purpose of this section, the word "sale" shall include exchange and the word "manufacture" shall include the extraction and recovery of natural resources and all processes of fabricating and curing.

(b) Allocation in Special Cases. If any taxpayer believes that the method of allocation and apportionment hereinbefore prescribed as administered by the board and applied to his business has operated or will so operate as to subject him to taxation on a greater portion of his net income than is reasonably attributable to business or sources within the state, he shall be entitled to file with the board a statement of his objections and of such alternative method of allocation and apportionment as he believes to be proper under the circumstances with such detail and proof and within such time as the board may reasonably prescribe; and if the board shall conclude that the method of allocation and apportionment theretofore employed is in fact inapplicable and inequitable, it shall redetermine the taxable income by such other method of allocation and apportionment as seems best calculated to assign to the state for taxation the portion of the income reasonably attributable to business and sources within the state, not exceeding, however, the amount which would be arrived at by application of the statutory rules for apportionment.

(c) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property, such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean money deposits in banks, shares of stock, bonds, notes, credits, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

3. Taxable year. The tax imposed by this act shall be levied, collected and paid with respect to the net income received during the calendar year 1931, or during that portion of any tax year included within the calendar year 1931 and annually thereafter.

4. Exemptions. The following organizations and corporations shall be exempt from taxation under this act:

(a) All state, national, cooperative and savings banks, title insurance and trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies and/or insurance associations, railway companies, equipment car companies and pullman car companies, now or hereafter organized and incorporated by or under the laws of this state or lawfully operating in the state of Iowa.

(b) Fraternal beneficiary associations.

(b1) Insurance companies organized under the laws of the state of Iowa and existing by reason of the law as it appears in section eighty-seven hundred eighteen (8718) and eighty-seven hundred nineteen (8719) of the code, 1927.

(c) All domestic companies described in section 6994-6995 of the code, 1927, engaged in the business of loaning money to deserving persons whose business or circumstances are such as to make it desirable or convenient for them to accumulate funds with which to repay such loans.

(d) Cemetery corporations and corporations organized for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

(e) Business leagues, chambers of commerce, or boards of trade not organized for profit, and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

(f) Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit, but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare.

(g) Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other non-profitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member.

(h) Farmers' associations and fruit growers' associations, or like organizations organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of produce furnished by them.

5. That tax imposed by this act shall apply to and become a charge against estates or trusts, which tax shall be levied, collected and paid annually upon and with respect to the income of estates or of any kind of property held in trust, including:

(a) Income received by estates of deceased persons during the period of administration or settlement of the estate.

(b) Income accumulated in trust for the benefit of unborn or unascertained persons, or persons with contingent interest.

(c) Income held for future distribution under the terms of the will or trust.

(d) Income which is to be distributed to the beneficiaries periodically, whether or not at regular intervals, and the income collected by a guardian of an infant to be held or distributed, as the court may direct.

(e) Income of an estate during the period of administration or settlement permitted by subdivision seven (7), to be deducted from the net income upon which the tax is to be paid by the fiduciary.

(f) The net income received during the year by deceased individuals who have died on or after the date a return was due to be filed without having made a return.

6. The fiduciary shall be responsible for making the return of income for the estate or trust for which he acts, whether such income be taxable to the estate or trust or to the beneficiaries thereof. The net income of an estate or trust shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in this act for individual taxpayers, except that there shall also be allowed as a deduction any part of the gross income which, pursuant to the terms of the will or deed creating the trust, is, during the taxable year, paid to or permanently set aside for the United States, any state, territory, or any political subdivision thereof, of the District of Columbia, or any corporation or association organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; and, in cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, the fiduciary shall include in the return a statement of each beneficiary's distributive share of such net income whether or not distributed before the close of the tax year for which the return is made.

7. In cases under paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of subdivision five (5) of this section the tax shall be imposed upon the estate or trust with respect to the net income of the estate or trust and shall be paid by the fiduciary, except that in determining the net income of the estate of any deceased person during the period of administration or settlement there may be deducted the amount of any income properly paid or credited to any legatee, heir or other beneficiary. In cases under (a), (b) and (c) the estate or trust shall be allowed the same exemptions as are allowed to single persons under section twelve (12), and in cases under paragraph (f) the same exemption as would be allowed the deceased, if living.

8. In cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, if the distribution of income is in the discretion of the fiduciary, either as to the beneficiaries to whom payable or as to the amounts to which any beneficiary is entitled, the tax shall be imposed upon the estate or trust in the manner provided in subdivision seven (7) of this section, but without the deduction of any amounts of income paid or credited to any such beneficiary. In all other cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, the tax shall not be paid by the fiduciary, but there shall be included in computing the net income of each beneficiary his distributive share whether distributed or not, of the net income of the estate or trust for the taxable year, or if his net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the estate or trust is computed, then his distributive share of the income of the estate or trust for any accounting period of such estate or trust ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such beneficiary's net income is computed.

9. A trust created by an employer as a part of a stock bonus, pension, or profit-sharing plan for the exclusive benefit of some or all of his employees, to which contributions are made by such employer, or employees, or both, for the purpose of distributing to such employees the earnings and principal of the fund accumulated by the trust in accordance with such plan, shall not be taxable under this section, but the amount contributed to such fund by the employer and all earnings of such fund shall be taxed to the distributee in the year in which distributed or made available to him.

COMPUTATION OF TAX

Sec. 4. Net income defined. The term "net income" means the gross income of the taxpayer less the deductions allowed by this act.

Sec. 5. Gross income defined. 1. The term "gross income" includes gains, profits and incomes derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service, of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, business, commerce of sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit; or gains or profits, and income derived from any source whatever and in whatever form paid. The amount of all such items shall be included in the gross income of the tax year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under the methods of accounting permitted under this act, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period.

2. The term "gross income" does not include the following items, which shall be exempted from taxation under this act:

(a) Amounts received under a life insurance contract paid by reason of the death of the insured, whether in a single sum or in installments (but if such amounts are held by the insurer under an agreement to pay interest thereon, the interest payments shall be included in gross income);

(b) Amounts received (other than amounts paid by reason of the death of the insured and interest payments on such amounts) under a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, but if such amounts (when added to amounts received before the taxable year under such contract) exceed the aggregate premiums or consideration paid (whether or not paid during the taxable year) then the excess shall be included in gross income. In the case of a transfer for a valuable consideration, by assignment or otherwise, of a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, or any interest therein, only the actual value of such consideration and the amount of the premiums and other sums subsequently paid by the transferee shall be exempt from taxation under paragraph (a) of this paragraph;

(c) The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent (but the income from such property shall be included in gross income).

(d) Interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, agencies, or instrumentalities, which is or shall be exempt from state taxation by federal law.

(e) Salaries, wages and other compensation received from the United States by officials or employees thereof which are or shall be exempt from state taxation by federal law.

(f) Any amounts received through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of damages received, whether by suit or agreement, on account of such injuries or sickness.

(g) Stock dividends of a corporation distributed to its own stockholders.

Sec. 6. Basis of return of net income. 1. Taxpayers, who customarily determine their income on a basis other than that of actual cash receipts and disbursements, may, with the approval of the board return their net income under this act upon a similar basis. Taxpayers who customarily determine their income on the basis of an established fiscal year instead of on that of the calendar year, may, with the approval of the board, and subject to such rules and regulations as it may establish, return their net income under this act on the basis of such fiscal year, in lieu of that of the calendar year.

2. A taxpayer may, with the approval of the state board, and under such regulations as it may prescribe, change his income year from the fiscal year to the calendar year or otherwise, in which case his net income shall be computed upon the basis of such new tax year.

3. An individual carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in his individual capacity and shall include in his gross income his share of the net income of the partnership during the income year, but when the partner's net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the partnership is computed, then his share of the net income of the partnership for any accounting period of such partnership ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such partner's net income is computed.

4. Every individual, taxable under this act, who is a beneficiary of an estate or trust, shall include in his gross income the distributive share of the net income of the estate or trust, received by him or distributable to him during the income year. Unless otherwise provided in the law, the will, the deed or other instrument creating the estate, trust or fiduciary relation, the net income shall be deemed to be distributed or distributable to the beneficiaries (including the fiduciary as a beneficiary, in the case of income accumulated for future distribution) ratably, in proportion to their respective interests.

Sec. 7. Determination of gain or loss. 1. For the purpose of ascertaining the gain derived or loss sustained from the sale or other disposition of property, real, personal or mixed, the basis shall be, in case of property acquired on or after January 1, 1931, the cost thereof, or the inventory value, if the inventory is made in accordance with this act.

2. In case of property acquired prior to January 1, 1931, and disposed of thereafter:

(a) No profit shall be deemed to have been derived if either the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, exceeds the value realized.

(b) No loss shall be deemed to have been sustained if either the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, is less than the value realized.

(c) Where both the cost and the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, are less than the value realized, the basis for computing profit shall be the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, whichever is higher.

(d) Where both the cost and the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, are in excess of the value realized, the basis for computing loss shall be the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, whichever is lower.

(e) Any distribution to the taxpayer of the assets of a corporation in partial or complete liquidation thereof shall be treated as a sale of the stock or securities of the corporation owned by him and the gain or loss shall be computed accordingly.

Sec. 8. Exchange of property. 1. When property is exchanged for other property having a readily ascertainable market value, the property received in exchange shall, for the purpose of determining gain or loss, be treated as the equivalent of cash to the amount of its fair market value, if any, but even if property received in exchange has a readily ascertainable market value, no gain or loss shall be recognized (1) when in the reorganization, recapitalization, or other change in identity, form, or place of organization, however affected, consolidation or merger of one or more corporations a taxpayer receives in place of any stock, or securities owned by him, stock or securities in a corporation a party to or resulting from such reorganization, consolidation or merger, or (2) when a taxpayer or taxpayers transfer any property, real, personal or mixed, to a corporation for stock and securities in the corporation and immediately after the transfer is or are in control of such corporation by stock ownership.

2. When property is exchanged for other property and no gain or loss is recognized, the property received shall be treated as taking the place of the property exchanged therefor.

3. Installment Basis.

a. Dealers in personal property. Under regulations prescribed by the board, any person or corporation who regularly sells or otherwise disposes of personal property on the installment plan may return as income therefrom in any taxable year that proportion of the installment payments actually received in that year which the gross profit realized or to be realized when payment is completed, bears to the total contract price.

b. Sales of realty and casual sales of personalty. In the case (1) of a casual sale or other casual disposition of personal property (other than property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year), for a price exceeding $1000, or (2) of a sale or other disposition of real property, if in either case the initial payments do not exceed 40 per centum of the selling price, the income may, under regulations prescribed by the board, be returned on the basis and in the manner above prescribed in this section. As used in this section the term "initial payments" means the payments received in cash or property other than evidences of indebtedness of the purchaser during the taxable period in which the sale or other disposition is made.

c. Change from accrual to installment basis. If a taxpayer entitled to the benefits of subsection (a) elects for any taxable year to report his net income on the installment basis, then in computing his income for the year of change or any subsequent year, amounts actually received during any such year on account of sales or other dispositions of property made in any prior year shall not be excluded; provided, however, no tax shall be imposed on any income accrued from sales made prior to January 1, 1931.

d. Gain or loss upon disposition of installment obligations. If an installment obligation is satisfied at other than its face value or distributed, transmitted, sold or otherwise disposed of, gain or loss shall result to the extent of the difference between the basis of the obligation and (1) in the case of satisfaction at other than face value or a sale or exchange—the amount realized, or (2) in case of a distribution, transmission, or disposition otherwise than by sale or exchange—the fair market value of the obligation at the time of such distribution, transmission, or disposition. The basis of the obligation shall be the excess of the face value of the obligation over an amount equal to the income which would be returnable were the obligation satisfied in full.

Sec. 9. Inventory. Whenever, in the opinion of the board, the use of inventories is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the board may prescribe, conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and most clearly reflecting the income.

Sec. 10. Deductions. In computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions:

1. All the ordinary and necessary expenses, paid or incurred during the tax year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal service actually rendered, traveling expenses while away from home in pursuit of trade or business, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for the purpose of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity.

2. All interest paid or accrued during the tax year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities, the interest on which is exempt from taxation under this act.

3. Taxes paid or accrued within the income year, imposed by the authority of the United States or of any of its possessions or of any state, territory or the District of Columbia or of any foreign country; except inheritance taxes, Federal estate taxes or estate taxes of this or any other state, and except income taxes imposed by this act and taxes assessed for local benefits, of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed.

4. Losses sustained during the tax year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in trade or business.

5. Losses sustained during the tax year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the trade or business.

6. Losses sustained during the tax year of property not connected with the trade or business, if arising from fires, storm, shipwreck or other casualty, or from theft and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

7. Losses deduced under the foregoing paragraphs four, five, and six shall be ascertained and computed upon the same basis as provided in section seven of this act.

8. Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the tax year; provided, however, that such deductions shall not exceed the value of such debt on January 1, 1931.

9. A reasonable allowance for the depreciation, exhaustion, wear and tear and obsolescence of property used in the trade or business, and in the case of mines or other natural deposits and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion; provided, that in computing the deductions allowed under this paragraph the basis shall be the cost (including in the case of mines and other natural deposits, the cost of development, not otherwise deducted), and in the case of property acquired prior to January 1, 1931, the fair market value of the property on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date. The reasonable allowance under this paragraph shall be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the board. In the case of leases the deductions allowed may be equitably apportioned between the lessor and the lessee.

10. Contributions made within the taxable year to or for the use of:

(a) The United States, any state, territory or political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes;

(b) Any corporation or trust, or community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals;

(c) The special fund for vocational rehabilitation authorized by section seven of the vocational rehabilitation act;

(d) Posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of any such posts or organizations;

(e) Fraternal societies operating under the lodge system, if such contributions are to be used exclusively for religious, charitable or educational purposes. This deduction is limited to an amount which, in all of the above cases combined, does not exceed fifteen per cent (15%) of the taxpayer's net income, computed without the benefit of such deductions.

11. If for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1930, it appears on the production of evidence satisfactory to the board that any taxpayer has sustained a net loss, the amount thereof shall be deducted from the net income of the taxpayer for the succeeding year; and if such net loss is in excess of the net income for such succeeding tax year, the amount of such excess shall be used as a reduction in computing the net income for the next two succeeding tax years, the deduction in all cases to be made under regulations prescribed by the board.

12. Dividends received within the year from stock in any corporation, the income of which shall have been assessed, and the tax on such income paid by the corporation under the provisions of this act; provided, however, that the taxpayer shall not be allowed a credit upon his income tax in excess of the amount of the tax paid by the corporation upon the earnings from which the dividend was paid; and provided further that such corporation has reported the name and address of each person owning stock and the amount of dividends paid each such person during the year.

Sec. 11. Items not deductible. In computing net income no deductions shall in any case be allowed in respect to the following:

1. Personal, living or family expenses.

2. Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments, made to increase the value of any property or estate.

3. Any amount expended in restoring property or in making good the exhaustion thereof, for which an allowance is or has been made.

4. Premiums paid on any life insurance policy covering the life of any officer or employee or of any individual financially interested in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer, when the taxpayer is directly or indirectly a beneficiary under such policy.

Sec. 12. Exemptions. 1. There shall be deducted from the tax after the same shall have been computed as set forth in this act a personal exemption for individuals as follows:

(a) For an individual, fifteen dollars.

(b) For husband and wife or head of a family, fifty dollars.

For the purposes of this chapter, the term "head of a family" means an individual who maintained a household and supported therein himself and one or more persons who were dependant upon him for support.

(c) For each child under the age of eighteen years who is actually supported by and dependent upon the taxpayer for his support, an additional four dollars.

(d) The personal exemptions provided by this section shall be determined by the personal status of a taxpayer on the last day of the tax year.

RETURNS

Sec. 13. Individual returns. 1. Every individual having a net income for the tax year from sources taxable under this act of fifteen hundred dollars or over if single, or if married and not living with husband or wife; or having a net income for the tax year of thirty-five hundred dollars or over if married and living with husband or wife; and every partnership doing business in this state shall make a return under oath, stating specifically the items of gross income and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act.

2. If husband and wife living together have an aggregate net income or thirty-five hundred dollars or over, each shall make such a return, unless the income of each is included in a single joint return.

3. If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by a guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer.

4. Provided, also, that every individual having a gross income of five thousand dollars a year or over, shall file a return.

Sec. 14. Fiduciary returns. 1. Every fiduciary subject to taxation under the provisions of this act, as provided in section three (3) hereof, shall make a return under oath for the individual, estate or trust for whom or for which he acts, if the net amount thereof amounts to one thousand dollars or more or the gross amount thereof amounts to two thousand dollars or more.

2. The return made by a fiduciary shall state specifically the items of gross income, and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act and such other facts as the board may prescribe. Under such regulations as the board may prescribe, a return may be made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries.

3. Fiduciaries required to make returns under this act shall be subject to all the provisions of this act which apply to individuals.

Sec. 15. Corporation returns. 1. The return by a corporation shall be sworn to by the president, vice-president, or other principal officer and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer. Before a corporation shall be dissolved and its assets distributed it shall make a return for a settlement of the tax for any income earned in the income year up to its final date of dissolution.

2. When any corporation, liable to taxation under this act, conducts its business in such a manner as either directly or indirectly to benefit the members or stockholders thereof or any person interested in such business by selling its products or the goods or commodities in which it deals at less than the fair price which might be obtained therefor, or where a corporation, a substantial portion of whose capital stock is owned either directly or indirectly by another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products, goods or commodities of the corporation so owning a substantial portion of its stock in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, or where a corporation, owning directly or indirectly a substantial portion of the stock of another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products, goods or commodities, of the corporation of which it so owns a substantial portion of the stock, in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, the board may determine the amount of taxable income of either or any of such corporations for the calendar or fiscal year, having due regard to the reasonable profits which, but for such arrangement or understanding, might or could have been obtained, by the corporation or corporations liable to taxation under this act, from dealing in such products, goods or commodities.

3. Where the state board has reason to believe that any person or corporation so conducts his trade or business as either directly or indirectly to distort his true net income and the net income properly attributable to the state, whether by the arbitrary shifting of income, through price fixing, charges for services, or otherwise, whereby the net income is arbitrarily assigned to one or another unit in a group of taxpayers carrying on business under a substantially common control, it may require such facts as it deems necessary for the proper computation of the entire net income and the net income properly attributable to the state, and in determining the same the board shall have regard to the fair profits which would normally arise from the conduct of the trade or business.

Sec. 16. Consolidated Returns. 1. Any corporation capable of exercising directly or indirectly substantially the entire control of the business of another corporation doing business in the United States either by ownership or control of substantially the entire capital stock of such other corporation or otherwise may, under regulations to be prescribed by the board, be permitted, and upon demand of the board shall be required, to make a consolidated return, showing the consolidated net income of all such corporations, and such other information as the board may require in order to compute the net income properly attributable to the state and to impose the tax upon the taxpayers concerned.

2. The board may permit or require the filing of a consolidated return where substantially the entire control of two or more such corporations liable to taxation under this act is exercised by the same interests. Any corporation liable to report under this act and owned or controlled, either directly or indirectly, by another corporation, may be required to make a consolidated report showing the combined net income, such assets of the corporation as are required for the purposes of this act, and such other information as the board may require.

3. In case it shall appear to the board that any arrangement exists in such a manner as to improperly reflect the business done, the segregable assets or the entire net income earned from business done in the state, the board is authorized and empowered, in such manner and under such rules and regulations as it may determine, to equitably adjust the tax.

Sec. 17. Information at source. 1. Every person or corporation being a resident of or having a place of business in this state, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers and all officers and employees of the state or of any political subdivision of the state, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of interest (other than interest coupons payable to bearer), rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income, amounting to one thousand dollars or over, paid or payable during any year to any taxpayer, shall make complete return thereof under oath, to the state board, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by it.

2. Every partnership, having a place of business in the state, shall make a return, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this act, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributed, and the amount of the distributive share of each individual. The return shall be sworn to by any one of the partners.

3. Every fiduciary shall make, under oath, a return for the individual, estate, or trust for whom he or for which he acts, and shall set forth in such return the items of the gross income, the deductions allowed by this act, the net income, the names and addresses of the beneficiaries, the amounts distributed or distributable to each and the amount, if any, lawfully retained by him for future distribution. Such return may be made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries.

Sec. 18. Time and place of filing returns. Returns shall be in such form as the board may, from time to time, prescribe, and shall be filed with the board within ninety days after the expiration of the tax year. In case of sickness, absence or other disability, or whenever, in its judgment, good cause exists, the board may allow further time for filing returns. There shall be annexed to the return the affidavit or affirmation of the taxpayer making the return to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. The board shall cause to be prepared blank forms for said returns and shall cause them to be distributed throughout the state and to be furnished upon application, but failure to receive or secure the form shall not relieve the taxpayer from the obligation of making any return herein required.

Sec. 19. Failure to file returns; supplemental returns. If the board shall be of the opinion that any person or corporation required under this act to file a return has failed to file such return, or to include in a return filed, either intentionally or through error, items of taxable income, it may require from such taxpayer a return or supplementary return, under oath, in such form as it shall prescribe, of all the items of income which the taxpayer received during the year for which the return is made, whether or not taxable under the provisions of this act. If from a supplementary return, or otherwise, the board finds that any items of income, taxable under this act, have been omitted from the original return it may require the items so omitted to be disclosed under oath of the taxpayer, and to be added to the original return. Such supplementary return and the correction of the original return shall not relieve the taxpayer from any of the penalties to which he may be liable under any provisions of this act whether or not the board required a return or a supplementary return under this section.

Sec. 20. Return by administrator or executor. 1. The return by an individual, who, while living, was subject to income tax in the state during the tax year, and who has died before making the return, shall be made in his name and behalf by the administrator or executor of the estate and the tax shall be levied upon and collected from his estate.

Sec. 21. Change of tax year. If a taxpayer, with the approval of the board, changes the tax year on the basis of which his net income is computed, he shall, at such time and in such manner as the board may prescribe, make a separate return of his net income received during the period intervening between the end of his former income year and the beginning of his new income year.

COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT OF TAXES

Sec. 22. Time and place of payment. 1. The tax may be paid in two installments, each consisting of one-half of the total amount of the tax. The first installment shall be remitted with the return and the second installment shall be paid on or before six months after the date fixed for filing the return; provided, however, that in case the total amount of the tax shall be ten dollars or less, then, and in that case, the whole amount of the tax shall be paid at the time of filing the return.

2. When, at the request of the taxpayer, the time for filing the return is extended, interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum on one-half of the total tax, from the time when the return was originally required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid.

Sec. 23. Examination of returns. 1. As soon as practicable after the return is filed the board shall examine it and determine the correct amount of the tax, and the amount so determined by the board shall be the tax. If the tax found due shall be greater than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be paid within ten days after notice of the amount shall be mailed by the board.

2. If the return is made in good faith and the understatement of the tax is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty added because of the understatement, but interest shall be added to the amount of the deficiency at the rate of one half of one per cent ( $\frac{1}{2}\%$ ) for each month or fraction of a month.

3. If the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency five per cent (5%) thereof, and in addition, interest at the rate of one half of one per cent ( $\frac{1}{2}\%$ ) per month or fraction of a month.

4. If the understatement is found by the board to be false or fraudulent, with intent to evade the tax, the tax on the additional income discovered to be taxable shall be doubled and an additional one per cent (1%) per month or fraction of a month shall be added.

5. The interest provided for in this section shall in all cases be computed from the date the return was originally required to be filed to the date of payment.

6. If the amount of tax as determined by the board shall be less than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be refunded with interest from date of payment at six per cent per annum under the provisions of such regulations as may be prescribed by the state board.

7. All payments received must be credited, first, to penalty and interest accrued, and then to tax due.

Sec. 24. Additional taxes. 1. If the board discovers from the examination of the return or otherwise that the income of any taxpayer, or any portion thereof, has not been assessed, it may, at any time within two years after the time when the return was due, compute the tax and give notice to the taxpayer of the proposed assessment, and the taxpayer shall thereupon have an opportunity, within thirty days, to file an appeal with the board and a hearing shall be granted and a final decision thereon shall be made by the board as soon as possible. The limitation of two years to the assessment of such tax or additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent returns. After the expiration of thirty days from such notification, if no appeal has been filed or after such hearing if such appeal has been filed, the board shall assess the income of such taxpayer or any portion thereof which it determines has not theretofore been assessed and shall give notice to the taxpayer so assessed of the amount of the tax and interest and penalties, if any, and the amount thereof shall be due and payable within ten days from the date of such notice. The provisions of this act with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to a tax so assessed. No additional tax amounting to less than five dollars shall be assessed.

Sec. 25. Warrant for the collection of taxes. If any tax imposed by this act or any portion of such tax be not paid within sixty days after the same becomes due, the board shall issue a warrant under its official seal directed to the sheriff of any county of the state commanding him to levy upon and sell the real and personal property of the taxpayer found within his county, for the payment of the amount thereof, with the added penalties, interest, and the cost of executing the warrant, and to return such warrant to the board and pay to it the money collected by virtue thereof by a time to be therein specified, not less than sixty days from the date of the warrant, file with the clerk of the district court of his county a copy thereof, and thereupon the clerk shall enter in the judgment docket, in the column for judgment debtors, the name of the taxpayer mentioned in the warrant, and in appropriate columns the amount of the tax or portion thereof and penalties for which the warrant is issued and the date when such copy is filed, and thereupon the amount of such warrant so docketed shall become a lien upon the title to and interest in real property of the taxpayer against whom it is issued in the same manner as a judgment duly docketed in the office of such clerk. The said sheriff shall thereupon proceed upon the same in all respects, with like effect and in the same manner prescribed by law in respect to executions issued against property upon judgment of a court of record, and shall be entitled to the same fees for his services in executing the warrant, to be collected in the same manner.

Sec. 26. Tax a debt. Every tax imposed by this act, and all increases, interest and penalties thereon shall become, from the time it is due and payable, a personal debt from the person or persons liable to pay the same to the state of Iowa, and all property of the taxpayer, whether exempt from execution or not, shall be liable for satisfaction of the debt.

Sec. 27. Action for recovery of taxes. Action may be brought at any time by the attorney general of the state, and shall be brought by him upon the request of the state board, in the name of the state, to recover the amount of any taxes, penalties, and interest due under this act.

Sec. 28. Tax upon settlement of fiduciaries account.

1. No final account of a fiduciary shall be allowed by any court unless such account shows, and the judge of said court finds, that all taxes imposed by the provisions of this act upon said fiduciary, which have become payable, have been paid, and that all taxes which may become due are secured by bond, deposit or otherwise. The certificate of the board and the receipt for the amount of the tax therein certified shall be conclusive as to the payment of the tax to the extent of said certificate.

2. For the purpose of facilitating the settlement and distribution of estates held by fiduciaries, the board may, on behalf of the state, agree upon the amount of taxes at any time due or to become due from such fiduciaries under the provisions of this act, and payment in accordance with such agreement shall be full satisfaction of the taxes to which the agreement relates.

PENALTIES

Sec. 29. Penalties. 1. If any taxpayer, without intent to evade any tax imposed by this act, shall fail to file a return of income or pay a tax, if one is due at the time required by or under the provisions of this act, but shall voluntarily file a corrected return of income and pay the tax due, within sixty days thereafter, there shall be added to and made a part of the tax an additional amount equal to five per cent (5%) thereof, plus one dollar, and an additional one per cent (1%) for each month or fraction of a month during which the tax remains unpaid.

2. If any taxpayer fails voluntarily to file a return of income or to pay a tax, if one is due, within sixty days of the time required by or under the provisions of this act, the tax rates shall be increased by twenty per cent (20%), and such increased tax shall be further increased by one per cent (1%) for each month or fraction of a month from the time the tax was originally due to the date of payment.

3. The board shall have power, upon making a record of its reason therefor, to waive or reduce any of the additional taxes or interest provided in subdivisions one (1) and two (2) of this section or in subdivisions two (2), three (3) and four (4) of section twenty-three (23), and to credit all payments received first to penalty and interest, then to tax due.

4. If any taxpayer fails to file a return within sixty days of the time prescribed by this act, any judge of the district court, upon petition of the state board or county assessor of any county, shall issue a writ of mandamus requiring such person to file a return. The order of notice upon the petition shall be returnable not later than ten days after the filing of the petition. The petition shall be heard and determined on the return day or on such day thereafter as the court shall fix, having regard to the speediest possible determination of the case, consistent with the rights of the parties.

5. Any person who, without fraudulent intent, fails to pay any tax or to make, render, sign or verify any return, or to supply any information within the time required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars to be recovered by the attorney general, in the name of the state, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

6. If a corporation required by the provisions of this act to file any report or return or to pay any tax or fee, either as a corporation organized under the laws of this state, or as a foreign corporation doing business in this state for profit, or owning and using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, fails or neglects to make any such report or return or to pay any such tax or fee for ninety days after the time prescribed in this act for making such report or return, or for paying such tax or fee, the board may in its discretion certify such fact to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall thereupon cancel the articles of incorporation of any such corporation which is organized under the laws of this state by appropriate entry upon the margin of the record thereof, or cancel the certificate of authority of any such foreign corporation to do business in this state by proper entry. Thereupon all the powers, privileges, and franchises conferred upon such corporation by such articles of incorporation or by such certificate of authority shall cease and determine. The secretary of state shall immediately notify by registered mail such domestic or foreign corporation of the action taken by him.

7. Any person or persons who shall exercise or attempt to exercise any powers, privileges, or franchises under articles of incorporation or certificate of authority after the same are cancelled, as provided in any section of this act, shall pay a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered in an action to be brought by the board in the district court of Pouk County.

8. Any corporation whose articles of incorporation or certificate of authority to do business in this state have been cancelled by the secretary of state, as provided in sub-section six (6), or similar provisions of prior revenue acts, upon the filing, within ten years after such cancellation, with the secretary of state, of a certificate from the board that it has complied with all the requirements of this act and paid all state taxes, fees, or penalties due from it, and upon the payment to the secretary of state of an additional penalty of fifty dollars, shall be entitled to again exercise its rights, privileges, and franchises in this state; and the secretary of state shall cancel the entry made by him under the provisions of subsection six (6) or similar provision of prior revenue acts, and shall issue his certificate entitling such corporation to exercise its rights, privileges, and franchises.

9. Any person, or any officer or employee of any corporation, or member or employee of any partnership, who, with intent to evade any requirement of this act or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder, shall fail to pay any tax or to make, sign, or verify any return or to supply any information required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. Any person, corporation, or any officer or employee of a corporation, or member or employee of any partnership, who with intent to evade any of the requirements of this act, or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder, shall make, render, sign or verify any false or fraudulent return or statement, or shall supply any false or fraudulent information, or who shall aid, abet, direct, cause, or who shall procure anyone so to do, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five thousand dollars, to be recovered by the attorney general, in the name of the state, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall also upon conviction be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of from one to three years and by a fine of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars.

10. The board shall have the power to compromise any penalty under subsections five (5) and nine (9) of this section. The penalties provided by such subsections shall be additional to all other penalties in this act provided.

11. The failure to do any act required by or under the provisions of this act shall be deemed an act committed in part at the office of the board in Iowa. The certificate of the board to the effect that a tax has not been paid, that a return has not been filed or that information has not been supplied, as required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be prima facie evidence that such tax has not been paid, that such return has not been filed or that such information has not been supplied.

12. If any taxpayer who has failed to file a return or has filed an incorrect or insufficient return and has been notified by the board of his delinquency refuses or neglects, within twenty days after such notice, to file a proper return, or files a fraudulent return, the board shall determine the income of such taxpayer, according to its best information and belief, and assess the same at not more than double the amount so determined. The board may, in its discretion, allow further time for filing a return in such case.

REVISION AND APPEAL

Sec. 30. Revision by board. A taxpayer may appeal to the board for revision of the tax assessed against him at any time within one year from the time of the filing of the return or from the date of the notice of the assessment of any additional tax. The board shall grant a hearing thereon and if, upon such hearings, it shall determine that the tax is excessive or incorrect, it shall re-settle the same according to the law and the facts and adjust the computation of the tax accordingly. The board shall notify the taxpayer of its findings and shall refund to the taxpayer the amount, if any, paid in excess of the tax found by it to be due with interest at six per cent per annum. If the taxpayer has failed, without good cause, to file a return within the time prescribed by law, or has filed a fraudulent return, or, having filed an incorrect return, has failed, after notice, to file a proper return, the board shall not reduce the tax below the amount for which the taxpayer is found to be properly assessed.

Sec. 31. Appeal. The determination of the board upon application made by a taxpayer for revision of any tax may be reviewed in any court of competent jurisdiction by a complaint filed by the taxpayer against the board in the county in which the taxpayer resides or has his principal place of business within sixty days after notice by the board of its determination, given as provided in section twenty-three (23) and/or section twenty-nine (29) of this act. Thereupon appropriate proceedings shall be had and the relief, if any, to which the taxpayer may be found entitled may be granted and any such taxes, interest or penalties paid, found by the court to be in excess of those legally assessed, shall be ordered refunded to the taxpayer, with interest at six per cent per annum from time of payment. An appeal may be taken by the taxpayer or the board to the supreme court in the manner that appeals are taken in suits in equity, irrespective of the amounts involved.

ADMINISTRATION

Sec. 32. The State Board shall administer, enforce, collect, and receipt for the taxes herein imposed. Each member of said board shall give a bond in an amount to be fixed by the Governor. Said bond shall be signed as surety by an association or an incorporation authorized to do a fidelity insurance business in the State of Iowa, and the reasonable cost of said bond shall be paid by the State. The board may for administrative purposes divide the state into districts, provided, that in no case shall a county be divided in forming a district.

The board is hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations as it may deem necessary to the proper administration and enforcement of this act. Such rules and regulations shall be in full force and effect from and after their publication in two newspapers of general circulation in the state of Iowa.

Sec. 33. Board may examine books and records. The board, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any return or for the purpose of making an estimate of the taxable income of any taxpayer, shall have power: to examine or cause to be examined by any agent or representative designated by it books, papers, records or memoranda; to require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses; to issue and sign subpoenas; administer oaths and affirmations; to examine witnesses and receive evidence; to compel witnesses to produce for examination books, papers, records and documents relating to any matter which it shall have the authority to investigate or determine.

In all cases where it finds that the taxpayer has not properly reported his or its income, as provided by law, and all hearings where it decides a matter against the taxpayer, the board shall tax the costs to the taxpayer, otherwise they shall be taxed to the state.

The fees and mileage to be paid witnesses and taxed as costs shall be the same as prescribed by law in proceedings in the courts of this state in civil cases. Where the costs are taxed to the taxpayer they shall be added to the taxes assessed against said taxpayer and shall be collected in the same manner.

In case of disobedience to a subpoena the board may invoke the aid of any court of competent jurisdiction in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and production of records, books, papers and documents, and such court may issue an order requiring the person to appear before the board and give evidence or produce records, books, papers and documents, as the case may be, and any failure to obey such order of court may be punished by the court as a contempt thereof.

Testimony on hearings before the board may be taken by a deposition as in civil cases, and any person may be compelled to appear and depose in the same manner as witnesses may be compelled to appear and testify as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 34. Officers, agents and employees. 1. The board may appoint and remove such agents, auditors, clerks and employees as it may deem necessary, such persons to have such duties and powers as the board may, from time to time prescribe.

2. The salaries of all agents and employees shall be fixed by the board subject to the approval of the executive council.

3. All such agents and employees shall be allowed such reasonable and necessary traveling and other expenses as may be incurred in the performance of their duties.

4. The board may require such of the officers, agents, and employees as it may designate to give bond for the faithful performance of the duties in such sum and with such sureties as it may determine and the state shall pay the premiums on such bonds.

Sec. 35. Oaths and acknowledgments. All officers empowered by law to administer oaths, and all agents, auditors, and such other employees as the board may designate, shall have the power to administer an oath to any person or take the acknowledgment of any person in respect of any return or report required by this act or the rules and regulations of the board.

Sec. 36. Publication of statistics. The board shall prepare and publish annually statistics reasonably available, with respect to the operation of this act, including amounts collected, classification of taxpayers, and such other facts as are deemed pertinent and valuable.

Sec. 37. Secrecy required; penalty for violation.

1. Except in accordance with proper judicial order, or as otherwise provided by law, it shall be unlawful for the board, any deputy, agent, auditor or other officer or employee, to divulge or make known in any manner the amount of income or any particulars set forth or disclosed in any report or return required under this act. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns and the items thereof, or the inspection by the attorney general or other legal representative of the state of the report or return of any taxpayer who shall bring action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against whom an action or proceeding has been instituted to recover any tax or any penalty imposed by this act. Reports and returns shall be preserved for four years and thereafter until the board orders them to be destroyed. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the delivery to a taxpayer or his duly authorized representative of a certified copy of any return or report filed in connection with his tax.

2. Any person violating subdivision one (1) of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and if the offender be an officer or employee of the state he shall be dismissed from office and shall be incapable of holding any public office in this state for a period of five years thereafter.

3. Every taxpayer shall, upon request of the board, furnish a copy of the return for the corresponding year which he has filed or may file with the federal government of the United States, showing his net income and how obtained and the several sources from which derived.

4 Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the auditor may permit the commissioner of internal revenue of the United States, or the proper officer of any state imposing an income tax upon the income of individuals, or the authorized representatives of either such officer, to inspect the income tax returns of any individuals, or may furnish to such officer or his authorized representative an abstract of the return of income of any individual or supply him with information concerning any item of income contained in any return, or disclosed by the report of any investigation of the income or return of income of any individual but such permission shall be granted or such information furnished to such officer or his representative only if the statutes of the United States or of such other state, as the case may be, grant substantially similar privileges to the proper office of this state charged with the administration of the income tax law thereof.

Sec. 38. Accounting by board. All revenue arising under the operation of this act and collected by the board shall be remitted daily by it to the treasurer of state and the same shall become a part of and be credited to the general fund of the state.

Sec. 39. Refunds. 1. The board is hereby authorized to grant a refund of any taxes erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, and all penalties and/or interest assessed or collected thereon, and all taxes that appear to it to be unjustly assessed or excessive in amount, or in any manner wrongfully collected under this act, with interest thereon at six per cent per annum.

2. Such refunds shall be ordered only after claims therefor have been filed by the taxpayer and after hearing, investigation, or such other proofs under oath, as the said board may require.

3. No claim for refund shall be allowed by the board unless a claim therefor has been filed, under oath, with the board within one year after the payment of said tax, penalty or interest thereon.

4. Upon final determination by the board that such refund shall be allowed, the said board shall certify the amount thereof and the name of the claimant to the auditor of state, who, shall, upon the receipt of such certificate, draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state therefor; and the treasurer of state shall pay the same out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sec. 40. Tax a replacement. It is hereby expressly provided that the revenue derived from the tax hereby imposed shall reduce by at least four (4) mills the state millage tax which the board would otherwise levy for state purposes.

Sec. 41. For the purpose of administering, enforcing and collecting the tax provided for in this act there is hereby created the office of County Assessor. Wherever the word "assessor" appears in the law it shall be construed to mean the County Assessor.

Sec. 42. Appointing board. The board of supervisors and the county auditor and the county treasurer of each county shall constitute an appointing board, of which the chairman of the board of supervisors shall be the regular chairman and of which the county auditor shall be the regular secretary. Two-thirds of the members of said board shall constitute a quorum. The secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of the board and perform such other duties as the board may direct.

Sec. 43. First Assessor. Said appointive board shall prior to January 1, 1932, appoint an assessor for the county, who upon qualifying shall serve until the second secular day in January, 1936, and upon his qualifying the terms of office of all township, city, and town assessors shall terminate, but such persons may be retained thereafter by said county assessor as field men but only insofar as he may deem such retention necessary and advisable.

Sec. 44. Appointment. Prior to January 1, 1936, and prior to the first day of January of each fourth year thereafter the said appointing board shall appoint a county assessor who shall serve for a term of four years.

Sec. 45. Vacancies. In case of vacancy in the office of county assessor the county auditor shall call together the appointing board at a time to be fixed by him, at which time an assessor shall be appointed for the unexpired term.

Berry of Monroe raised the following point of order:

MR. SPEAKER: I object to the consideration of that part of House File No. 2 as amended by the Senate pertaining to county assessors and their appointment, duties and powers, and object to the consideration of sections forty-one (41) to one hundred twenty-four (124) inclusive of said bill as amended by the Senate, and also that part of section one hundred twenty-five (125) of said amended bill, reading as follows:

"except as to the provisions of section forty-three (43) requiring the appointing board to appoint a county assessor prior to that date".

I raise the point of order that above referred to sections of House File No. 2 as amended by the Senate cannot be considered by the House for the reason that the same have already been considered by the House, acted adversely upon by the House, and that said propositions have been tabled by the House.

The Chair ruled that the House bill to which the Senate amendments were adopted having been entirely eliminated so far as the House was concerned there was but one amendment and therefore a division could not be taken.

The second request of the gentleman from Monroe could be accomplished in the same manner by amending the Senate amendments by striking the sections referred to and thus accomplish the desired purpose.

Allen of Pocahontas raised the point of order that Joint Rule No. 1 takes precedence over any House Rule and that Joint Rule No. 1 would make improper and contrary to the rules the action of the House in tabling the Allen motion to reconsider the vote by which Senate File No. 1 failed to pass the House.

The Chair held that the point of order raised by the gentleman from Pocahontas should have been raised before the House acted upon the Allen motion to reconsider and further that the point is not essential to the matter now before the House, it already having been held in order.

Kern of Polk offered the following amendment to the Senate amendment to House File No. 2 and moved its adoption:

Amend by striking sections forty-one (41) to one hundred twenty-five (125), inclusive, of the Senate amendments.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 16

A Concurrent Resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States to pass a bill similar to the Shipstead-Mansfield bill for the adequate financing and speedy completion of the river and harbor projects heretofore adopted by Congress.

Whereas, Congress has recognized the economic necessity of a trade outlet to tidewater for the land-locked states of the midwest, and by the Act of July 3, 1930, has adopted projects for channels on the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers which border Iowa for seven hundred fifty miles, but has made no adequate provision for financing their construction so that the resulting benefits may be enjoyed by the present generation, and

the survey of these river channels, have found and reported that "industries have not located in this area because transportation costs, both on raw material and finished products, have been so high as to dictate their location elsewhere", and "the grain producer has had little choice but to sell at one price to the one market," and

Whereas, These conditions, now aggravated by a nation-wide depression, suggest the immediate employment of labor and industry in the construction of public and reproductive works, and

Whereas, The Shipstead-Mansfield bill, provided for an internal loan to supplement annual budget appropriations for the adequate financing of all river and harbor projects already adopted by Congress, thus affecting a material saving in the primary cost of these works, hastening the date of their completion and beneficial enjoyment, and providing immediate employment for the idle labor, idle industry and idle capital,

Now, Therefore Be It Resolved, By the Senate of the State of Iowa, the House of Representatives concurring, that the Congress of the United States be memorialized and urgently requested to enact into law a bill of similar purport to the Shipstead-Mansfield bill, and that our representatives in Congress be urged to support it and use all honorable means to procure its passage.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution attested by the proper officers of both houses, be sent to the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, the presiding officers of the Senate and House of Representatives, and to each United States Senator and member of Congress from the State of Iowa.

Unanimous consent having been obtained for the immediate consideration of the resolution, Donlon of Palo Alto moved its adoption.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article seven (VII) of the Constitution of the State of Iowa, relating to contracting of debt by the State and the payment thereof.

Be It Resolved By The General Assembly Of The State Of Iowa:

Section 1. That the following amendment to the Constitution of the State of Iowa is hereby proposed:

Section 1. That Section five (5) and Section six (6) of Article Seven (VII) of the Constitution of Iowa are repealed and the following is adopted in lieu thereof as Section five (5) and Section six (6) of Article Seven (VII) of the Constitution of Iowa:

"Section 5. The State may by act of the General Assembly contract those debts specifically permitted by the Constitution; but no other debt in excess of two hundred fifty thousand dollars shall be hereafter contracted by, or on behalf of the State, unless such debt shall be authorized by some law for some particular work or object distinctly specified therein, and such law shall not take effect until it shall have been submitted to the people at a general or special election as the General Assembly shall provide, and shall have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election. The law shall be published in at least one newspaper in each County, if one is published therein, throughout the State, once each week for six weeks preceding the election at which it is submitted to the people. Such law submitted to the people shall make provision for the payment of the interest as it comes due and of the principal of each particular bond or other evidence of such debt within twenty years from the time of the issuance thereof, and the payment shall be provided for by such tax imposed and/or from such other sources of revenue pledged as the General Assembly determines will be sufficient for the purpose. Any subsequent General Assembly may provide from revenues, other than those previously pledged, additional funds to fully pay the interest as it comes due and the principal as it matures. Such law submitted to the people shall also, without stating the millage, impose, and authorize and direct the tax levying body of the state to levy and collect, for any year such direct property tax as may be required to pay the interest and/or the principal of the debt as it matures, after all other funds, made available for that purpose by such law and/or subsequent laws, have been applied to such payment."

Section 6. The Legislature may, at any time, after the approval of such law by the people, if no debt shall have been contracted in pursuance thereof, repeal the same or may, at any time, forbid the contracting of any further debt or liability, under such law; but the tax imposed and/or the pledge of revenue by such law, in proportion to the debt or liability which may have been contracted in pursuance thereof, shall remain in force and effect and be irrepealable until the principal and interest of such debt or liability are fully paid."

Section 2. Be it further resolved, that the foregoing proposed amendment be and the same is hereby referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the next general election, and that the Secretary of State cause the same to be published for three (3) months previous to the date of said election as provided by law.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 14

Whereas, Legislative problems are continually increasing, both in number and in complexity; and

Whereas, It is evident that in order to solve such problems most effectively, each legislature must give systematic, scientific and business-like consideration to the actual facts which have a bearing upon each question—to the extent that such facts have been determined by reliable research; and

Whereas, Each legislature must give similar consideration to the methods and experience of other jurisdictions in dealing with problems similar to its own; and

Whereas, Such problems cannot be dealt with adequately until facilities are established to assist legislators to secure the most accurate information and the most expert advice available; and

Whereas, Experience indicates the need for an interstate legislative reference bureau to serve as a clearing house of information between the legislative reference services which are now being conducted by numerous states, and also to serve as a clearing house of information between the legislatures and other agencies which are engaged in the study and analysis of legislative problems, such as governmental departments, political science departments of universities, competent reputable associations, and other sources of information; and

Whereas, Experience also indicates that in certain states which do not maintain legislative reference services, there is an imperative need for such an interstate legislative reference bureau, which will assist the legislators of those states to secure whatever information they desire in analyzing the legislative problems which they must determine, and to make more readily accessible for them, without cost, the valuable material which is available from the legislative reference libraries and bureaus of various other states, and from many other reliable sources, and

Whereas, Every individual legislator in the United States shares the responsibility for improving the present inadequate and unsatisfactory condition of the legislative processes, but neither any individual legislator, nor any group of legislators from one state, can bring about such improvement without the cooperation of legislators of other states; and

Whereas, Such an interstate legislative reference bureau cannot be maintained by any one state alone, without the cooperation of the legislatures of other states; and

Whereas, In order to set the machinery in motion to secure the necessary cooperation of the forty-eight legislatures, members of each legislature are working together in the development of the project of the American Legislators' Association; and

Whereas, The said American Legislators' Association has now established in the vicinity of the University of Chicago, the Interstate Legislative Reference Bureau, which by explicit pledge is without color of politics, partisanship or propaganda, is conducted without profit, and is engaged upon three principal purposes;

First: to procure promptly for all inquiring state legislators, and their agents, whatever information or advice they desire in connection with any legislative problem, primarily by assisting them to secure, without cost, the benefit of all researches conducted by governmental departments, universities, associations, legislative reference bureaus, and other agencies throughout the United States.

Second: to conduct a systematic study of the legislative processes of each of the states, in order to ascertain the practices which contribute most to efficient and economical organization and procedure; and to render all possible assistance to each legislature—and to each legislative reference bureau—which is endeavoring to improve its organization.

Third: to publish for the benefit of all state legislators the monthly magazine, State Government, as well as special bulletins, and thus to disseminate information which will be helpful to all conscientious students of legislation; and

Whereas, The American Legislators' Association is promoting acquaintance and mutual understanding among individuals and organizations officially concerned with the impartial and scientific functioning of the legislatures of the various states, by the organization of Standing Committees and Advisory Boards, and otherwise; and

Whereas, The character and project of the American Legislators' Association have the endorsement, and its organization has the active cooperation, not only of its membership, which consists entirely of members and ex-members of state legislatures, but also of numbers of other responsible citizens, many of whom, having specialized knowledge, are serving on the Association's Advisory Board; now, therefore

Be It Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring: That the organization of the American Legislators' Association and of the Interstate Legislative Reference Bureau are hereby commended as legitimate and constructive efforts to assist the legislatures of the various states in the efficient performance of their work.

Laid over under Rule 34.

3. By striking Sections twelve (12) to sixteen (16), inclusive, and substituting the following in lieu thereof:

"Sec. 2. No county primary road bonds shall be voted by any county after July 4, 1931. Any county primary road bonds voted previous to July 4, 1931 may be issued under the provisions of the law previous to the time when this act becomes effective.

Sec. 3. A county primary road bond redemption fund is hereby created. The State Highway Commission shall each year transfer from the primary road fund to the county primary road bond redemption fund the following amounts:

(a) For each of the years 1932, 1933, 1934, an amount sufficient to pay all interest accruing on county primary road bonds and bonds issued to refund county primary road bonds.

(b) For the year 1935 and each year thereafter until all county primary road bonds and bonds issued to refund county primary road bonds shall have been paid, a sum which, together with any unexpended balance remaining in said county primary road bond redemption fund shall make up a fund of nine million ($9,000,000) dollars.

Sec. 4. Said county primary road bond redemption fund is hereby appropriated for:

1. The payment of accruing interest on county primary road bonds and bonds issued to refund county primary road bonds, and

Sec. 5. If in any year the funds remaining in the county primary road bond redemption fund after setting aside enough to pay all accruing interest on county primary road bonds and bonds issued to refund county primary road bonds are not sufficient to pay the principal of all such bonds maturing, said remaining fund shall be pro rated among the counties on the basis of the amount of such bonds maturing in each county in said year. If in any year the funds remaining in the county primary road bond redemption after setting aside enough to pay all accruing interest on county primary road bonds and bonds issued to refund county primary road bonds should be more than sufficient to pay the principal of such bonds maturing in such year, the excess funds shall be used to call in and pay any county primary road bonds then subject to call.

Sec. 6. Thirty days prior to the date when interest on any of the said bonds accrues, or any of said bonds mature or become subject to call, and for the payment of which there are funds available in the county primary road bond redemption fund, the State Highway Commission shall prepare a voucher therefor, in favor of the county treasurer, and drawn against the county primary road bond redemption fund. Said voucher shall be paid from the county primary road bond redemption fund. The fund so received by the county treasurer shall be used for paying the interest and principal of such bonds and for no other purpose.

HOUSE RESOLUTION CALLED UP

Donlon of Palo Alto called up the House resolution filed by him, and found in the Journal of April 14th, and moved its adoption.

Elliott of Scott raised the point of order that the motion by Rutledge of Webster to table the resolution was pending before the House, and as such must be disposed of before passing to the consideration of the resolution.

Speaker Johnson held the point of order not well taken, for the reason that Mr. Rutledge's motion to table was out of order in as much as unanimous consent, or a motion to suspend the rules for the consideration of the resolution had not been obtained, the rules providing that a resolution must be laid over 24 hours.

Allen of Pocahontas asked and obtained unanimous consent to file at the Chief Clerk's desk that part of the transcript of the testimony which is applicable to the dealings and transactions of the O'Hagan Coal Company of which Hon. Arch W. McFarlane was or is president; which testimony was given to the special investigating committee of the University of Iowa.

Rutledge of Webster moved that action on the resolution be deferred until the report of the special investigating committee on the University of Iowa is filed.

Witt of Butler moved the previous question.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

Pendray of Jackson filed the following explanation of vote:

MR. SPEAKER: I hereby offer an explanation of my vote on the motion by the gentleman from Keokuk to withdraw from the Sifting Committee Senate File No. 291, and I offer as such explanation the circular issued on April 15, 1931, by the Iowa Bankers Association which circular was placed in the hands of the members of the association and is as follows:

Des Moines, Iowa, April 15, 1931

PERSONAL COPY OF PROGRAM OF ACTION

(1) The following are the numbers of the Banking Association Bills:

1. H. F. 445 relating to false statements for credit.
2. S. F. 290 relating to stop-payment orders on checks.
3. S. F. 291 amending the "Blue Sky" Act relating to banks.
(See attached amendment.)

4. S. F. 266 to permit County Schools of Instruction for Vigilantes and other peace officers.

5. S. F. 280 to authorize liability bonds in addition to fidelity bonds for Vigilantes and other County peace officers.

(2) Carry this program with you to the State House and have it available throughout the day so that you may have a "handy reference" on the Association's bills which it is planned will be up for discussion in the House today.

(3) Plan to sit with your Representative at his desk throughout the day until such time as the above I. B. A. Bills shall have been acted upon by the House.

(4) When you learn the attitude of your Representative upon the above bills kindly make a prompt report to Mr. C. E. Beman, Chairman I. B. A. Legislative Committee, and Mr. C. C. Jacobsen, President, who will be in and about the House Chamber.

(5) You are urged to watch the floor leaders and speakers. Urge your legislators to vote as said floor leaders may indicate, they being:

1. Rep. E. O. Ellsworth (The Gentleman from Hardin County)
2. Rep. Roy Drake (The Gentleman from Keokuk County)
3. Rep. S. R. Torgeson, Chairman House Banking Committee (The Gentleman from Worth County)
4. Other Representatives.

We have indicated after each of the name above the manner in which they are addressed with the hope that it may enable you to more easily identify the floor leaders.

(6) The session of the Legislature is rapidly drawing to a close. This will probably be the last day for considering aggressively any banking bills not yet acted upon by the House. The above bills are important bills—several of them exceedingly important. One or more of them while important are purely corrective measures.

(7) It is anticipated that the Association's Legislative work will be completed today; however, should the work on the Association bills be unfinished at the end of this legislative day, it is hoped that you will stay over until tomorrow. Should you find it absolutely impossible to do so, then please report to Chairman Beman or President Jacobsen how you may have left matters with your Representatives on any of the bills that may have to go over until tomorrow.

(8) Evening meeting and dinner—6:15 P. M. Des Moines Club; if consideration on any of the I. B. A. Bills should have to go over until tomorrow, then there will be a "get-together" dinner for all of you (who can remain over) at the Des Moines Club (8th and Locust Street) 5th floor at 6:15 P. M. to discuss the results of the day and formulate further plans for the morrow.

(9) Thanks! The Officers and Committee of your Association are indeed profoundly grateful for the manifestation of loyalty and co-operation that has been extended by you men and the other bankers of the State throughout this Legislative session and as has been further evidenced by your presence here today. Every good wish is extended to you in the important work today committed to your hands and may success reward everyone of you. Sincere thanks.

(GB No. 2955—250)

I renew my protest to the various lobbies which have been an annoyance and nuisance in connection with the transaction of the regular business of the House and I emphatically protest against the unethical methods which were used on the 15th in apparent attempt to intimidate the members of the House. I have been favorable to the passage of the bills proposed by the Iowa Bankers Association but I am emphatically opposed to the methods which have been and are being used to secure their passage.

So the bill having received a constitutional majority was declared to have passed the House and the title was agreed to.

Unanimous consent having been granted Senate File No. 353 was substituted for House File No. 531.

Senate File No. 353, a bill for an act to provide for an exhibit of the arts, industries and resources of the state of Iowa, at the Century Progress Exposition to be held in the city of Chicago, Illinois, in the year, 1933, and to make an appropriation and to create a commission therefor, with report of committee on appropriations recommending passage, was taken up for consideration.

Forsling of Woodbury offered the following amendment and moved its adoption:

Amend by striking all after the enacting clause and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

Section 1. The executive council of the state of Iowa is hereby constituted, in addition to its other duties, as the "Century Progress Exposition Commission". It shall appoint such officers and employ such persons as in its judgment are necessary for the carrying out of the purpose of this act. The treasurer of state shall be the treasurer of the commission, and shall be the custodian of the monies herein appropriated. The members of the executive council, acting as such commission, shall receive no compensation for their services, but they shall be paid out of the appropriation herein made all of their necessary expenses incurred while engaged in the work of the commission. The commission may require any of its officers to furnish a bond with sureties subject to the approval of the commission.

Sec. 2. There is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) or so much thereof as may be necessary for the use of the commission in paying the costs and expenses incident to the making of an exhibit and representation by the state of Iowa as provided in section one (1) hereof. Said fund shall be expended on warrants therefor issued on the order of the governor by the auditor of state on the treasurer of state from time to time. No such warrants shall issue until said commission, through its duly chosen officers, shall certify to the auditor of state that the same is actually necessary for disbursement. All payments of money must be made upon vouchers duly executed under conditions as fixed by said commission, and no claims shall be paid by such commission except such as have been duly presented to the commission and audited and allowed. At the close of its services the commission shall make a statement of all of its doings, which statement shall include a showing of all exhibits made by the state of Iowa, or the citizens thereof, and the awards made on such exhibits, and such other matter as the said commission may deem valuable to the people of the state of Iowa, together with a list of all receipts and disbursements, with complete vouchers therefor. The accounts of said commission shall be kept in such manner as shall be prescribed by the executive council.

Sec. 3. Provided, however, that the purpose of this legislature is that the appropriation provided herein shall only be used in the event that the exposition is of such proportion as to warrant the state of Iowa in participating therein and for the purpose of insuring that no portion of the appropriation herein provided shall be used under any other circumstances or conditions. It is provided that no action shall be taken under the provisions of this act and no money paid from the appropriation provided herein until the executive council shall by proper resolution entered of record direct and authorize the same.

Brown of Polk offered the following amendment to the amendment and moved its adoption:

Amend by striking in line three (3) of section two (2) of the amendment the words and figures "fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00)" and inserting in lieu thereof the words and figures "twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00)".

Section 1. Every person, co-partnership, association, corporation or syndicate engaged in the business of transporting or transmitting gas, gasoline, oils, or motor fuels by means of pipe lines, whether such pipe lines be owned or leased, shall be taxed as herein provided.

Sec. 2. The words "pipe line company" as used in this act shall be deemed and construed to mean any person, co-partnership, association, corporation or syndicate that may own or operate or be engaged in operating or utilizing pipe lines for the purposes described in section one (1) hereof.

The word "board" wherever it appears in this act shall mean the state board of assessment and review.

Sec. 3. Every pipe line company having lines in the state of Iowa shall annually, on or before the first day of April in each year, make out and deliver to the state board of assessment and review a statement, verified by the oath of an officer or agent of such pipe line company making such statement, showing in detail for the year ended December 31 next preceding:

1. The name of the company.
2. The nature of the company, whether a person or persons, an association, co-partnership, corporation or syndicate, and under the laws of what state organized.
3. The location of its principal office or place of business.

5. The name and post office address of the chief officer or managing agent of the company in Iowa.
6. The whole number of miles of pipe line owned, operated or leased within the state, including a classification of the size, kind and weight thereof, separated, so as to show the mileage in each county, and each lesser taxing district.
7. A full and complete statement of the cost and actual present value of all buildings of every description owned by said pipe line company within the state and each lesser taxing district, not otherwise assessed.
8. The number, location, size and cost of each pressure pump or station.
9. Any and all other property owned by said pipe line company within the state which property must be classified and scheduled in such a manner as the board may by rule require.

10. The gross earnings of the entire company, and the gross earnings on business done within this state.

11. The operating expenses of the entire company and the operating expenses within this state.

12. The net earnings of the entire company and the net earnings within this state.

Sec. 4. Every pipe line company required by law to report to the state board of assessment and review under the provisions of this act shall, on or before the first day of April, 1932, make to the state board of assessment and review a detailed statement showing the amount of real estate owned or used by it on December 31, 1931, for pipe line purposes, the county in which said real estate is situated, including the rights of way, pumping or station grounds, buildings, storage or tank yards, equipment grounds for any and all purposes, with the estimated actual value thereof, in such manner as may be required by the board.

Only one such detailed statement by any pipe line company shall be necessary, and when received by the board, it shall become the record of the pipe line lands of such company, and be deemed as annually thereafter reported for valuation and assessment by the board.

Sec. 9. The board may demand, in writing, detailed, explanatory and amended statements of any of the items mentioned in section three (3) of this act, or any other item deemed to be important, to be furnished it by such pipe line company within thirty (30) days from such demand in such form as it may designate, which shall be verified as required for the original statement. The returns, both original and amended, shall show such other facts as the board, in writing, shall require.

Sec. 10. The said property shall be valued at its actual value, and the assessments shall be made upon the taxable value of the entire pipe line property within the state, except as otherwise provided; and shall include the rights of way, easements, the pipe lines, stations, grounds, shops, buildings, pumps and all other property, real and personal exclusively used in the operation of such pipe line. In assessing said pipe line company and its equipment, said board shall take into consideration the gross earnings and the net earnings for the entire property, and per mile, for the year ending December 31 preceding, and any and all other matters necessary to enable said board to make a just and equitable assessment of said pipe line property.

Sec. 11. The state board of assessment and review shall on or before the third Monday in August of each year determine the value of pipe line property located in each taxing district of the state, and in fixing said value shall take into consideration the structures, equipment, pumping stations, etc., located in said taxing district, and shall transmit to the county auditor of each such county through and into which any pipe line may extend, a statement showing the assessed value of said property in each of the taxing districts of said county. The said property shall then be taxed in said county and lesser taxing districts, based upon the valuation so certified, in the same manner as in other property.

Sec. 12. At the first meeting of the board of supervisors held after said statement is received by the county auditor, it shall cause the same to be entered on its minute book, and make and enter therein an order describing and stating the assessed value of each pipe line lying in each city, town, township or lesser taxing district in its county, through or into which said pipe line extends, as fixed by the board of assessment and review, which shall constitute the assessed value of said property for taxing purposes; and the taxes on said property, when collected by the county treasurer, shall be disposed of as other taxes. The county auditor shall transmit a copy of said order to the council of the city or town, or the trustees of the township, as the case may be.

All such pipe line property shall be taxable upon said assessment at the same rates, by the same officers, and for the same purpose as the property of individuals within such counties, cities, towns, townships, and lesser taxing districts.

If said tax is not paid, the county treasurer shall collect the same by whatever method may seem proper. If said tax is not paid within the calendar year in which the same is due, the company shall not be permitted thereafter to use the public or private property of the state of Iowa, or to operate in Iowa for any purpose.

Sec. 13. The provisions of this act shall not apply to a gas distributing plant or company located entirely within any city or town and not a part of a pipe line transportation company. Such local municipal plant shall be taxed in the municipality where located.

House concurred in Senate amendment to House File No. 316.

On request of Hush of Montgomery, unanimous consent having been given, House File No. 352, a bill for an act to provide for the valuation and assessment of pipe line properties used in the transportation or transmission of gas, gasoline, oils or motor fuels by the state board of assessment and review, providing for the making of reports by pipe line companies to said board, providing for the levy and collection of a tax against such property, and authorizing the said board of assessment and review to make rules and regulations relative to the making of reports and furnishing of information by said pipe line companies, with Senate amendment, was taken up and the amendment read and considered.

SENATE AMENDMENT TO HOUSE FILE NO. 352

Amend House File No. 352 by striking out all after the enacting clause thereof, and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

Section 1. Every person, co-partnership, association, corporation or syndicate engaged in the business of transporting or transmitting gas, gasoline, oils, or motor fuels by means of pipe lines, whether such pipe lines be owned or leased, shall be taxed as herein provided.

Sec. 2. The words "pipe line company" as used in this act shall be deemed and construed to mean any person, co-partnership, association, corporation or syndicate that may own or operate or be engaged in operating or utilizing pipe lines for the purposes described in section one (1) hereof.

The word "board" wherever it appears in this act shall mean the state board of assessment and review.

Sec. 3. Every pipe line company having lines in the state of Iowa shall annually, on or before the first day of April in each year, make out and deliver to the state board of assessment and review a statement, verified by the oath of an officer or agent of such pipe line company making such statement, showing in detail for the year ended December 31 next preceding:

1. The name of the company.
2. The nature of the company, whether a person or persons, an association, co-partnership, corporation or syndicate, and under the laws of what state organized.
3. The location of its principal office or place of business.
4. The name and post office address of the president, secretary, auditor, treasurer and superintendent or general manager.
5. The name and post office address of the chief officer or managing agent of the company in Iowa.
6. The whole number of miles of pipe line owned, operated or leased within the state, including a classification of the size, kind and weight thereof, separated, so as to show the mileage in each county, and each lesser taxing district.
7. A full and complete statement of the cost and actual present value of all buildings of every description owned by said pipe line company within the state and each lesser taxing district, not otherwise assessed.
8. The number, location, size and cost of each pressure pump or station.
9. Any and all other property owned by said pipe line company within the state which property must be classified and scheduled in such a manner as the board may by rule require.
10. The gross earnings of the entire company, and the gross earnings on business done within this state.

11. The operating expenses of the entire company and the operating expenses within this state.

12. The net earnings of the entire company and the net earnings within this state.

Sec. 4. Every pipe line company required by law to report to the state board of assessment and review under the provisions of this act shall, on or before the first day of April, 1932, make to the state board of assessment and review a detailed statement showing the amount of real estate owned or used by it on December 31, 1931, for pipe line purposes, the county in which said real estate is situated, including the rights of way, pumping or station grounds, buildings, storage or tank yards, equipment grounds for any and all purposes, with the estimated actual value thereof, in such manner as may be required by the board.

Only one such detailed statement by any pipe line company shall be necessary, and when received by the board, it shall become the record of the pipe line lands of such company, and be deemed as annually thereafter reported for valuation and assessment by the board.

On or before the first day of April of each subsequent year, such company shall, in like manner, report all real estate acquired for any of the pipe line purposes above named during the preceding calendar year; and also, a list of any real estate, previously reported, disposed of during the same period, which disposition shall be noted by the board in an appropriate column opposite to the description of said tract in the original report of the same in the record of pipe line land.

The board shall, by some convenient method of binding, arrange the statements required to be made by this section, so as to form a consolidated list of all real estate reported to it as being owned or used for pipe line purposes within the state of Iowa.

Sec. 5. For the purpose of making reports to the state board of assessment and review, the gross earnings of a pipe line company, owning or operating a line or lines within this state, shall be computed and reported by said company upon such bases as the board may by rule require.

Sec. 6. The state board of assessment and review shall have power to prescribe such rules and regulations with respect to the keeping of accounts by the pipe line companies doing business or having property in this state as will insure the accurate division of the accounts and the information to be reported, and uniformity in reporting the same to said board.

Sec. 7. The rules, regulations, method and requirements herein provided to be made by the state board of assessment and review, shall be made and communicated in writing or printing to the said several pipe line companies, and shall be and become binding upon said pipe line companies from the time they are so communicated; provided, however, that the said board shall have the power to prescribe supplemental or additional rules, regulations and requirements at any time, and communicate them to the several pipe line companies in the manner aforesaid, and with respect to such additional supplemental rules, regulations and requirements, they shall be and become binding upon the said pipe line companies within thirty (30) days from the time they are so communicated.

Sec. 8. If any pipe line company shall fail or refuse to obey and conform to the rules, regulations, method and requirements so made and prescribed by the state board of assessment and review under the provisions of this act, or to make the reports herein provided, the board shall proceed to assess the property of such pipe line company so failing or refusing, according to the best information obtainable, and shall then add to its valuation of such pipe line company twenty-five per cent (25%) thereof, which valuation and penalty shall be separately shown, and together shall constitute the assessment for that year.

Sec. 9. The board may demand, in writing, detailed, explanatory and amended statements of any of the items mentioned in section three (3) of this act, or any other item deemed to be important, to be furnished it by such pipe line company within thirty (30) days from such demand in such form as it may designate, which shall be verified as required for the original statement. The returns, both original and amended, shall show such other facts as the board, in writing, shall require.

Sec. 10. The said property shall be valued at its actual value, and the assessments shall be made upon the taxable value of the entire pipe line property within the state, except as otherwise provided; and shall include the rights of way, easements, the pipe lines, stations, grounds, shops, buildings, pumps and all other property, real and personal exclusively used in the operation of such pipe line. In assessing said pipe line company and its equipment, said board shall take into consideration the gross earnings and the net earnings for the entire property, and per mile, for the year ending December 31 preceding, and any and all other matters necessary to enable said board to make a just and equitable assessment of said pipe line property.

Sec. 11. The state board of assessment and review shall on or before the third Monday in August of each year determine the value of pipe line property located in each taxing district of the state, and in fixing said value shall take into consideration the structures, equipment, pumping stations, etc., located in said taxing district, and shall transmit to the county auditor of each such county through and into which any pipe line may extend, a statement showing the assessed value of said property in each of the taxing districts of said county. The said property shall then be taxed in said county and lesser taxing districts, based upon the valuation so certified, in the same manner as in other property.

Sec. 12. At the first meeting of the board of supervisors held after said statement is received by the county auditor, it shall cause the same to be entered on its minute book, and make and enter therein an order describing and stating the assessed value of each pipe line lying in each city, town, township or lesser taxing district in its county, through or into which said pipe line extends, as fixed by the board of assessment and review, which shall constitute the assessed value of said property for taxing purposes; and the taxes on said property, when collected by the county treasurer, shall be disposed of as other taxes. The county auditor shall transmit a copy of said order to the council of the city or town, or the trustees of the township, as the case may be.

All such pipe line property shall be taxable upon said assessment at the same rates, by the same officers, and for the same purpose as the property of individuals within such counties, cities, towns, townships, and lesser taxing districts.

If said tax is not paid, the county treasurer shall collect the same by whatever method may seem proper. If said tax is not paid within the calendar year in which the same is due, the company shall not be permitted thereafter to use the public or private property of the state of Iowa, or to operate in Iowa for any purpose.

Sec. 13. The provisions of this act shall not apply to a gas distributing plant or company located entirely within any city or town and not a part of a pipe line transportation company. Such local municipal plant shall be taxed in the municipality where located.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE BY AVERY

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: On Feb. 11th. 1931, Representative TePaske introduced, and the House adopted resolutions of sympathy, and directed the Chief Clerk to send me a telegram informing me of your action.

The telegram was received, and I want to assure you that Mrs. Avery and myself were deeply touched by your action.

I don't know what folks would do in times of great sorrow if nobody cared. The expressions of sympathy on the part of our friends is the one thing that makes it possible for us to endure the burdens we are at times called upon to bear.

In behalf of Mrs. Avery and myself, I take this occasion to extend our deepest appreciation and gratitude.

MOTION

MR. SPEAKER: At the opening of the Forty-fourth General Assembly I introduced a resolution providing for suitable uniforms or jackets for the pages. I now move that the pages who have served in the Forty-fourth General Assembly be permitted to retain as their private property the uniform jackets provided for them at the beginning of the session.

VETO OF HOUSE FILE NO. 576

To the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly of Iowa:

SIRS: I return herewith, without my approval, House File No. 576 to your Honorable Body, in which it originated.

I have carefully examined this bill and make the following objections thereto:

1. It is provided by section thirteen (13) thereof as follows:

"In addition to the primary roads designated for paving in Article XIII of the Constitution of Iowa, interstate primary roads, primary roads now connecting county seats of adjoining counties, and at least ninety per cent (90%) of those primary roads which were a part of the primary road system as of April 9, 1929, and not designated for pavement by Article XIII of the Constitution or as the same may have been relocated since that date, shall be surfaced with paving. Payment of the costs of such additional paving shall be made from current primary road funds."

In connection with the said section thirteen (13), and to carry out the provisions thereof, it is provided by section fifteen (15) as follows:

"Until ninety per cent (90%) of the road construction program as provided for and outlined in this act shall have been completed, at least sixty-five per cent (65%) of the primary road fund available for construction purposes in any year shall be used for paving in accordance with the provisions hereof."

It is provided in the constitutional amendment that certain designated roads shall be surfaced with paving. It is then provided (section three-b, Chapter 400, Laws of the Forty-third General Assembly) as follows:

"By grading, draining, bridging and surfacing with gravel, sand clay, or other type of surfacing: All other primary roads."

This bill provided for a mandatory addition of over eighteen hundred (1800) miles to the paving program and the expenditure of approximately $50,000,000.00 in addition to what was contemplated in the original program. This tying up of the funds for a specific purpose by mandatory edict to pave these roads is, in my opinion, contradictory in spirit at least, of the constitutional mandate contained in Article XIII of the constitution above specified, as it is now pending before the electors.

It would also postpone for years, by reason of this mandatory feature, the development of a system of farm to market roads so necessary to utilize the system of highways now developed and provided for in the constitutional amendment.

My objections are to these mandatory provisions of the bill which appropriates and pledges the funds for and make mandatory the addition of an extensive paving program beyond that contemplated by the constitutional amendment.

For these reasons I herewith return to your Honorable Body House File five hundred seventy-six (576) without my approval so that you may have the full opportunity to amend the same, if you so desire, along the lines herein suggested.

Respectfully submitted,

CONSIDERATION OF BILLS

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

I offer the following explanation of my votes on House File No. 8, a bill providing for the repeal of Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly (The legislative expense act). I favor the repeal of this act for the following reasons:

I

Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly, is unconstitutional.

In discussing this subject it is conceded at the outset; that the constitution is a limitation and not a grant of power; that the general assembly as the legislative department of the government, has complete power in the field of legislation except where that power is specifically limited by constitutional provision.

The constitution of Iowa contains the following provisions:

Article III, Sec. 25. Each member of the first general assembly under this constitution, shall receive three dollars ($3) per diem while in session; and the further sum of three dollars ($3) for every twenty (20) miles traveled, in going to and returning from the place where such session is held, by the nearest traveled route; after which they shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by law; but no general assembly shall have power to increase the compensation of its own members. And when convened in extra session they shall receive the same mileage and per diem compensation, as fixed by law for the regular session, and none other.

Article IV, Sec. 15. The official term of the governor, and lieutenant governor, shall commence on the second Monday of January next after their election, and continue for two (2) years, and until their successors are elected and qualified. The lieutenant governor, while acting as governor, shall receive the same pay as provided for governor; and while presiding in the senate, shall receive as compensation therefor, the same mileage and double the per diem pay provided for a senator, and none other.

Chapter I, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly is as follows:

Section 1. Each member of the general assembly and the lieutenant governor shall be paid his actual necessary expenses incurred while in attendance at a session of the legislature, which shall in no case exceed five hundred dollars ($500) for any regular session. The members of the Forty-third General Assembly, including the lieutenant governor, shall be entitled to the benefits thereof.

This act of the Forty-third General Assembly provides for the payment of actual and necessary expenses of the members and the lieutenant governor, (in no case to exceed five hundred dollars ($500) for any regular session) and further provides that members of the Forty-third General Assembly and the lieutenant governor, shall be entitled to the benefits thereof.

Section 25 of Article III of the constitution quoted above, provides that no general assembly shall have power to increase the compensation of its own members. It will be conceded at once that the act in question violates this provision of the constitution unless it can be shown that the expenses provided therein are not included within the meaning of the word "compensation." That is its only defense. Our inquiry is therefore narrowed down to this: Are the expenses provided for in Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly an increase in compensation?

We note first that in constitutional interpretation words have their ordinary meaning.

"In construing a constitutional provision we seek to ascertain and give effect to the intent of the framers and of the people who adopted it. Words which have no well-established technical or legal signification are to be given their plain, natural and ordinary meaning. A constitution is dependent upon ratification by the people. Its language should, therefore, be considered in the sense most obvious to the common understanding of the people at the time of its adoption. It is no time to indulge in subtle or ingenious reasoning. The constitution must be viewed in the light of the spirit of the times when it was enacted. 6 R. C. L. 51. What did those conservative pioneer citizens have in mind relative to the matter of compensating those who represented them in the legislature? Did they visualize and provide against the changed conditions in this age, where the cost of living is so high? Or, was the compensation and mileage as expressed in the constitution intended as a limitation beyond which the legislature could not go?"

Jones v. Hoss, 285 Pac. 205.

We note in the second place the distinction made between personal and official expenses.

"All legislative expenses may be properly paid. The expenses that may be paid are not those that are incurred by a member of the legislature because he is at the capital city; they are those that are incurred by him in the performance of his duties. They are legislative expenses, not personal expenses. The distinction between expenses that are legislative and those that are personal is that legislative expenses are those that are necessary to enable the legislature to properly perform its functions, while those that are personal are those that must be incurred by a member of the legislature in order to be present at the place of meeting—expenses for his personal comfort and convenience, which have nothing to do with the performance of his duty as a member of the legislature. Personal expenses are those incurred for rooms, meals, laundry, communications with their homes, and other things of like character."

State v. Turner, 233 Pac. 510.

The expenses provided for in Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly are clearly personal expenses and the question before us is narrowed down to this: "Is the payment of personal expenses to the members of the general assembly an increase in compensation?"

The word "compensation" is used three times in Article 3, Section 25 above quoted, and once in Article 4, Section 15 of the constitution as follows: "... The Lieutenant governor, ... while presiding in the senate shall receive as compensation therefor, the same mileage and double the per diem pay provided for a senator, and none other." The word "compensation" in these four cases refers to exactly the same thing in each instance and the meaning in all cases is identical. Any meaning clearly shown in one case must be applied in all.

Taking them up in order we find the first "compensation" evidently includes everything a member of the general assembly may receive as a remuneration for his service in the general assembly. "They shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by law." Nothing else is authorized. Compensation clearly includes all.

The second "compensation" is identical in use and meaning with the first.

The third "compensation", from the structure and punctuation of the sentence in which it is used, clearly includes the two items of mileage and per diem pay.

The fourth "compensation" found in Section 15, Article IV quoted above, positively includes in its meaning mileage and per diem pay. "The lieutenant governor—while presiding in the senate shall receive as compensation therefor the same mileage and double the per diem pay provided for a senator." The statement here is clear and positive. Compensation is definitely stated to include mileage and per diem pay.

Thus it appears that the word "compensation" includes more than per diem pay. It includes also the expense of traveling to and from the place where the general assembly holds its session. If the meaning of compensation is broad enough to include mileage, it will include any other item of expense incident to service in the general assembly, for which payment is legally authorized.

In further proof of this meaning of compensation we need only to refer to any standard dictionary and there find the meaning always applied to this word. Such reference will show that the original meaning of compensation was a "weighing or balancing of accounts." Webster defines compensation as follows: "To make equal return to: to remunerate, to recompense: to give an equivalent to: to requite suitably: as to compensate a laborer for his work or a merchant for his losses."

The members of the general assembly were to render to the state their personal services in the work of legislation. The framers of the constitution were providing for such payment to the legislators as would balance the account; such payment as would completely satisfy the demand the legislators could make upon the state in return for their services as legislators.

The framers of the constitution were very careful in the selection of every word. They provided that the members of the general assembly shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by law. Here in this sentence which is the sole authorization for payment to the legislators for their services they used the one and only English word that carried the meaning of a complete balancing of the account. They shall receive compensation—Not compensation plus expenses: not compensation plus something else: They shall receive compensation—This compensation was to be a complete return to them for their services rendered; a complete balancing of accounts. Then they provided that no general assembly shall have power to increase the compensation of its own members.

From the above we must conclude that the expenses authorized to be paid by Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly are included within the meaning of the word "compensation."

In further proof of the contention that the payment of personal expenses to the members of the general assembly is an increase in compensation, we now turn to the supreme court decisions. The supreme courts of five (5) states have ruled on this exact point.

Supreme Court of Illinois, 1915. Fergus v. Russel, 110 N. E. 887.

"No change shall be made in the compensation of members of the General Assembly during the term for which they may have been elected."

If the appropriation in question had not been made, the members of the general assembly would necessarily have been obliged to pay their railroad fares from their salaries or private means. The appropriation in question was, in effect, to change and increase the compensation of the members who voted such appropriation. The reasons moving the members of the constitutional convention in adopting this provision and the one limiting all allowances and perquisites to $50, as above set out, appear from the debates and committee reports of that body, briefly, because it was charged that members of former general assemblies had increased the pay allowed under the constitution of 1848, ($2 a day for the first forty-two (42) days' attendance and $1 a day thereafter, and ten (10) cents for each necessary mile traveled in going to and returning from the seat of government, and no more) by appropriating what was considered a large sum for various incidental expenses, such as news-papers, postage, etc., and the intent was to prevent any increase in compensation by making appropriations under the guise of allowances."

Supreme Court of Kansas, 1925. State v. Turner, 233 P. 511.

"The constitution fixes the compensation of members of the general assembly at $3 per day, and provides that such compensation shall not be more than $150 each for each regular session, nor more than $90 each for each special session. This compensation, fixed by the constitution, cannot be increased. Any law which in any way, either directly or indirectly, increases the compensation of any member of the general assembly, must be held invalid.

The constitution provides that the per diem allowance for each member shall not be more than $150 for each regular session, nor more than $90 for any special session. Stronger language to limit the amount of compensation could not have been used. The constitution could very well have left the pay of legislators to the judgment of each legislature, but that has not been done. The salary or compensation of no other officer is fixed by the constitution. Why was this provision placed in the constitution? There is but one answer—that the members of the legislature should not have the power to increase their own compensation.

Few, if any, of the members of the legislature will use as much as expenses incidental to the performance of their duties. What will be done with the remainder of the $5 a day after each member pays all expenses incidental to his duties? If he keeps the money, and it is presumed that he will, it adds to his compensation; it cannot do otherwise. The constitution says $150 and no more; $1 more violates the constitution."

"The act in question provides for the payment of $5 a day expense money to the lieutenant governor. His salary is not fixed by the constitution, but Section 15 of Article 1 provides that his compensation shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected. The effect of the act is to increase the compensation of the Lieutenant Governor during his present term of office. That cannot be done. Of course, the legislature may increase the compensation of future lieutenant governors in any way or to whatever extent may be thought best."

Supreme court of Oklahoma, 1927. Dixon v. Shaw, 253 P. 500.

"A rule well recognized and often quoted in latin terminology is:

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius." When said provisions are called in question as here, we reach no conclusion, but the language used is to be measured by such a well-recognized rule existent at the time of the adoption of the constitution. But irrespective of rules of interpretation, we think that the language employed by the makers of the basic law of the state should not be given a strained or subtle meaning, but such meaning as the average citizen would conclude the language imports. This for the reason that the electorate, in ratifying the document and thereby breathing life into the same, considered the provisions as the language used fairly imports. Compensation, as used in said section, refers to both the per diem and the mileage, and no other personal to the member is permitted. The place of performance of service is at the capital. The living expenses in the performance of the duty of the members cannot be added to the compensation expressly allowed."

Supreme Court of Tennessee, 1928. Peay v. Nolan, 3 S.W. (2d) 815.

"To sustain an appropriation in gross as an allowance for expenses and not a forbidden increase of compensation, the sum must be within such reasonable limits as to authorize the conclusion that the sum in gross might be covered by a certified statement of the official expenses incurred by the designated beneficiary. An appropriation in gross so large as to suggest that it would not be covered by an itemized statement of official expenses, and so appropriated as to make it the absolute property of the official without regard to actual expenses, is an increase in compensation.

Supreme Court of Oregon, 1930. Jones v. Hoss, 285 P. 205.

"Such allowance for personal expenses is, in effect, additional compensation which the constitution expressly forbids. It seems to the writer that much ingenious reasoning is required to reach any other conclusion. If A pays B $5 per day for his services for a period of 30 days, and then for the next 30 days pays him $5 per day and board, will it be argued that B's compensation has not been increased? This is a common sense view which we think would have appealed to those pioneer citizens who had to do with the making of the constitution. It is an interpretation which the legislature itself recognized from the adoption of the constitution in 1859 until the passage of the first resolution for incidental expenses in 1927. Such an interpretation by the legislature extending over a period of time in excess of half a century should and does have great weight with the court.

The implied limitation against personal expenses has no application to official or legislative expenses. As said in State ex rel v. Turner, 117

Dan. 755, 233 P.c. 510-511: "All legislative expenses may be properly paid. The expenses that may be paid are not those that are incurred by a member of the legislature because he is at the capital city; they are those that are incurred by him in the performance of his duties. They are legislative expenses, not personal expenses. The distinction between expenses that are legislative expenses and those that are personal is that legislative expenses are those that are necessary to enable the legislature to properly perform its functions, while those that are personal are those that must be incurred by a member of the legislature in order to be present at the place of meeting—expenses for his personal comfort and convenience, which have nothing to do with the performance of his duty as a member of the legislature.

We have here the positive statement of the supreme courts of five states that the payment of personal expenses to the members of the general assembly is an increase in compensation. There are no supreme court decisions to the contrary.

Legislative expense acts have been enacted in nine (9) states and found unconstitutional in all of them as follows:

1913	Rhode Island, Opinion to Governor, 85 At.....	1056
1924	Arkansas, Ashton v. Ferguson, 261 S.W.....	624
1915	Illinois, Ferguson v. Russell, 110 N.E.....	887
1925	Florida, Opinion to Governor, 107 So.....	366
1927	Washington, State v. Clausen, 253 Pac.....	805
1925	Kansas, State v. Turner, 233 Pac.....	510
1927	Oklahoma, Dixon v. Shaw, 253 Pac.....	500
1928	Tennessee, Peay v. Nolan, 7 S.W. (2d).....	815
1930	Oregon, Jones v. Hoss, 285 Pac.....	205

In only two decisions have legislative expense acts been held constitutional.

1920	Tennessee, State v. Thomason, 221 S.W.....	491
1920	South Dakota, Christopherson v. Reeves, 184 N.W.....	1015

Neither of these cases is in point with the Iowa law.

1. In 1919 the general assembly of Tennessee passed a law authorizing the payment of $150 to each member of the general assembly for "stenographic hire and other necessary expenses." This act was brought before the supreme court of Tennessee in 1920, State v. Thomason, 221 S.W. 491. In this case the court held that the expenses provided for were legislative expenses and therefore the act was constitutional. This decision has no bearing upon the Iowa law in view of the fact that the expenses therein provided were held to be legislative expenses. Besides, any effect it might have had is entirely destroyed by the later decision of the same court in Peay v. Nolan, 7 S.W. 2d, 815. This case involved the constitutionality of an act of the general assembly of Tennessee providing for the payment of $750 to each member of the general assembly for "stenographic hire and other expenses." In this decision the court said, as I have already quoted:

"To sustain an appropriation in gross as an allowance for expenses and not a forbidden increase of compensation, the sum must be within such reasonable limits as to authorize the conclusion that the sum in gross might be covered by a certified statement of the official expenses incurred by the designated beneficiary. An appropriation in gross so large as to suggest that it would not be covered by an itemized statement of official expenses, and so appropriated as to make it the absolute property of the official without regard to actual expenses, is an increase of compensation.

The constitution having fixed the compensation of members for the discharge of their official duty, by implication forbids an allowance for their personal expenses. Official expenses only could be allowed, and all that the members could claim under the statute would be the expenses incurred in the performance of official duty to the exclusion of personal expenses."

2. In 1920 the supreme court of South Dakota rendered a decision—Christopherson v. Reeves, 184 N.W. 1015—finding an expense act of the general assembly of South Dakota constitutional. This is not a case in point with the Iowa Expense Act because the word "compensation" is not used in the South Dakota constitution and the question whether the payment of personal expenses would be an increase in compensation was not decided in that case. Any effect however which this decision of the South Dakota court might have had is completely destroyed by the later decisions in other states.

The South Dakota decision has been cited in cases before the supreme courts of no less than four states and has been followed in none of them.

Kansas, 233 P.c. 510; Washington 253 P.c. 809; Oklahoma, 253 Pac. 505; Oregon 285, P.c. 205.

The South Dakota decision has been repudiated in every case where it has been cited. Commenting upon this decision the supreme court of Washington said:

"Realtor's main reliance seems to be placed upon Christopherson v. Reeves, 44 S. D. 634, 184 N. W. 1015, and it is indeed an authority for his position, if persuasive enough to convince us. We have carefully considered the case, and to us it seems to violate the fundamental rule herein before quoted from 6 R. C. L. 46."

Commenting upon it the supreme court of Oregon said:

"For reasons stated in Dixon v. Shaw, supra, we refuse to follow the supreme court of South Dakota in Christopherson v. Reeves, 44 S. D. 634, 184 N. W. 1015."

Speaking of the same decision the supreme court of Kansas said:

"We cannot follow a decision of a court in which each member is financially interested and upholds his side of the controversy."

From this study of the meaning of the word "compensation", its uses in the constitution itself and the supreme court decisions, we can reach only one conclusion: that the payment of personal expenses of members of the general assembly is in fact an increase in compensation. Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly which provides for such payment to members of that general assembly is in direct conflict with the provision of the constitution that "no general assembly shall have power to increase the compensation of its own members" and is therefore unconstitutional and void.

II

The unconstitutionality of the "Expense Act" will be shown by a study of the purposes of the constitutional provisions relating to compensation of members of the general assembly. In any fair interpretation of the constitution, its various provisions must be given the meaning that was intended by the framers of the constitution. I quote here from the supreme court of Oregon. Jones v. Hoss 285 Pe. 205.

"In construing a constitutional provision we seek to ascertain and give effect to the intent of the framers and of the people who adopted it. Words which have no well established technical or legal signification are to be given their plain, natural and ordinary meaning. A constitution is dependent upon ratification by the people. Its language should, therefore, be considered in the sense most obvious to the common understanding of the people at the time of its adoption. It is no time to indulge in subtle or ingenious reasoning. The constitution must be viewed in the light of the spirit of the times when it was enacted. R. C. L. 51. What did those conservative pioneer citizens have in mind relative to the matter of compensating those who represented them in the general assembly? Did they visualize and provide against the changed conditions in this age where the cost of living is so high? Or was the compensation and mileage as expressed in the constitution intended as a limitation beyond which the general assembly could not go?"

There is a fundamental principle woven into our scheme of government, that no public official should be allowed to have direct interest or profit in his own official act. All legislative authority in the state is vested in the general assembly. A part of this legislative authority is the power to fix the compensation of all public officials including its own members. This latter authority unless restricted in some way would be unwise, dangerous and contrary to the principle set out above.

To remedy this situation the framers of the constitution placed in the constitution two provisions; First, that the first general assembly should have authority only to fix compensation for future general assemblies, the compensation of members of the first general assembly being definitely and unalterably fixed in the constitution.

Second, that no general assembly shall have power to increase the compensation of its own members.

Now what was the purpose of these two provisions of the constitution? It was to remove from the members of the general assembly the temptation and the power to increase their own compensation. It was intended to make it impossible for them to have direct financial interest in their own official act.

Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly did exactly what the constitution intended to prevent. It permitted the members of that general assembly to receive direct financial benefit from their own official act. The fact that the benefit was in the form of an expense account instead of some other form of pay makes no difference in the practical result. The whole plan was a deliberate attempt to do by indirection what could not be done directly. It was an attempt to do by subterfuge or technicality what the constitution plainly was intended to prevent.

It was well known that the Forty-third General Assembly could provide for an increase of compensation for future general assemblies. The provision in the bill that members of the Forty-third General Assembly shall be entitled to its benefits simply provided that these members should benefit by their own legislative act; a power which the framers of the constitution clearly intended to take from them.

If it was not the purpose of these constitutional provisions to prevent the taking effect of such an act, then they have no purpose and should never have been placed in the constitution. Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly is in direct conflict with the plain intent of the constitution and for that reason is unconstitutional and void.

III

Having demonstrated that the "Expense Act" is unconstitutional in its application to the Forty-third General Assembly, let us now inquire concerning its constitutionality as applying to the Forty-fourth and future general assemblies.

It will be freely admitted that any general assembly may fix the compensation of members provided that any increase authorized shall apply only to future general assemblies. This power to authorize increases in compensation of the members of future general assemblies is absolute and unlimited unless restricted by constitutional provisions.

There are two provisions in the constitution bearing on this very point. The latter part of Section 25 of Article 3 provides that members, when assembled in extra session shall receive the same mileage and per diem compensation as fixed by law for the regular session and none other. This constitutional provision strictly limits the compensation of members of all general assemblies when convened in extra session to two items, mileage and per diem compensation.

Again, Section 15, Article 4 of the constitution, provides that the lieutenant governor while presiding in the Senate shall receive as compensation therefor the same mileage and double the per diem pay provided for a senator and none other. This constitutional provision definitely limits the lieutenant governor's compensation when presiding over any session of any general assembly to the same two items, mileage and per diem pay. These two provisions of the constitution will positively prevent the payment of expense money either to the lieutenant governor or members of any general assembly.

What did the lieutenant governor receive for presiding over the regular session of the Forty-third General Assembly? He received first, ten dollars sixty cents ($10.60) mileage, just as the constitution provides; second, he received two thousand dollars ($2,000) or double the per diem pay of a senator, just as the constitution provides; third, he received five hundred dollars ($500) expense money which was absolutely contrary to the provision of the constitution, Article 4, Section 15. The lieutenant governor in this section, is absolutely limited to the two items of compensation, mileage and per diem pay. All other items of compensation are barred.

From this conclusion there is no escape. Unless it can be shown that the expenses provided in Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly may be included in one or the other of these two items, the expense payment would be absolutely barred. It is clearly evident that these expenses cannot be a part of the mileage. Then, if paid at all they must be included in the meaning of per diem pay. Let us examine the facts in this matter.

Per diem pay is defined by Webster's dictionary as "By the day; an allowance, or so much by the day."

48 Corpus Juris, Page 807, defines per diem "as synonymous with salary."

The supreme court of Tennessee in Peay v. Nolan, 7 SW (2d) 817 quotes the definition from Corpus Juris and then states:

"The term 'per diem' as used in Article 2, Section 23 is synonymous with 'salary'. The term salary imports the idea of compensation for personal service, and not the repayment of money expended in the discharge of the duties of the office."

"These principles touching the duty of the citizen in serving the state are derived from the common law and were understood when the constitution of 1870 was promulgated, and when the provision therein was made to compensate members of the general assembly, and the allowance for compensation was intended to cover the personal expenses of members, that is expenses incident to their personal comfort, convenience, and taste, and so as to be distinguished from official expenses."

Thus it appears, per diem pay was always regarded as a fixed sum of money in payment for personal services rendered with the definite understanding that the person rendering the service would provide for payment of his own personal expenses.

The best interpretation of the meaning of the constitution is the constitution itself. "The lieutenant governor while presiding in the Senate shall receive as compensation therefor the same mileage and double the per diem pay provided for a senator and none other." Three different words denoting some form of payment are here used in the same sentence, compensation, per diem pay and mileage. "Compensation" is the all inclusive word, "mileage" is pay for time and expense of going to and from the seat of government, "per diem pay" is salary. Now when we find compensation and per diem pay used in the same sentence, and one that was framed with great care, we must know that there is a distinct difference in meaning. Per diem pay is the fixed definite amount we call salary, while compensation is the all inclusive word that includes payments of every kind made for purposes of remuneration. In this case it includes the two items of mileage and per diem pay.

Beyond all doubt the framers of the constitution intended that the compensation of the lieutenant governor should be strictly confined to mileage, a partial expense item, and per diem pay a definite fixed salary, just as they provided that the members of the first general assembly (the only ones whose compensation they did definitely fix) should receive a mileage of three dollars ($3) for every twenty miles traveled and a fixed definite salary of three dollars ($3) per day. This intention is clearly shown in all the provisions of the constitution dealing with compensation of the members of the general assembly. We have already seen that it is the rule of the courts to follow the intention of the constitution as stated by the supreme court of Oregon: Jones v. Hoss, 285 Pac. 205:

"In construing a constitutional provision we seek to ascertain and give effect to the intent of the framers and of the people who adopted it. Words which have no well-established technical or legal signification are to be given their plain, natural, and ordinary meaning. A constitution is dependent upon ratification by the people. Its language should, therefore, be considered in the sense most obvious to the common understanding of the people at the time of its adoption."

Following that invariable rule our supreme court if called upon, must hold that the lieutenant governor may receive first, the same mileage as a senator; 2d, double the per diem pay of a senator which at the present time would be twice one thousand dollars ($1,000) or two thousand dollars ($2,000), to which two items of compensation he is positively limited by the three words, and none other."

The payment of expenses to the lieutenant governor provided in Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly being in addition to the constitutional limitation are constitutionally barred, therefore Chapter 1, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly must be held unconstitutional, as was held by the supreme court of Kansas, State v. Turner, 233 Pac. 510.

"The act violates Section 3 of Article 2, and Section 15 of Article 1 of the constitution of this state and is therefore invalid. That part of the act providing for five dollars ($5) a day to lieutenant governor is so connected with the remainder that no part of the act can be upheld."

It may be worth while to note that should the arguments set out above be disregarded and the expenses regarded as a part of the per diem pay, the final result would be the same. On this supposition the present per diem pay of a senator would be one thousand dollars ($1,000) plus actual and necessary expenses not exceeding five hundred dollars ($500). The constitution provides that the lieutenant governor shall have double the per diem pay of a senator. In arriving at the amount the lieutenant governor would receive, it would be necessary to double both the thousand dollars and the actual necessary expenses. This would give the lieutenant governor double the amount of expenses provided in the expense act and would therefore invalidate it. Thus it appears, that the advocates of the expense act will always find themselves hooked on one or the other of the two horns of a serious dilemma. Either the expense allowance is not a part of per diem pay and therefore unconstitutional, or it is a part of per diem pay and therefore must be doubled in payment to the lieutenant governor, which would also invalidate the law. From this conclusion there is no escape.

IV

There is another reason for the repeal of the Expense Act, perhaps more compelling than its unconstitutionality. We have here in America what we consider the best government in the world—a government "of the people, by the people and for the people." This form of representative government has met every test of the past. Whether it will meet the problems of the future under the swift changing social and economic conditions no one can now say. The future success of representative government depends upon two things.

1. The wisdom and integrity of the representatives of the people, legislative, executive and judicial. 2. The confidence of the people in their representatives. It is my judgment that the passage of the "Legislative Expense Act" by the Forty-third General Assembly did more to weaken the confidence of the people of Iowa in their legislative assembly than any other act ever passed by a general assembly in Iowa, and that a clean cut and prompt repeal of this act by the Forty-fourth General Assembly would have done more toward restoring the confidence of the people in their representatives and in representative government generally, than any other thing that could have been done at this session.

V

The Expense Act should be repealed because there was never adequate reason for the enactment. While the one thousand dollars paid to each member for attendance at a regular session of the General Assembly is not a large sum, it is not an unfair compensation for one who seeks political honor with the desire to render patriotic service. Certainly there was not such immediate need for an increase as to justify its application to the members of the General Assembly that enacted it. Making the increase in the form of an expense allowance was at once unfair as between members and conducive to abuses. The fact that sixty members of the Forty-third General Assembly collected the full five hundred dollars, while no less than fifteen members collected an average of less than three hundred dollars is sufficient proof of this statement.

It is well known that the Forty-third General Assembly had complete authority under the constitution to increase the pay of the members to any amount they might desire, provided, that the increase should apply only to future General Assemblies. The only possible excuse for making the increase in the form of an expense allowance was an attempt to circumvent the constitutional provision, "That no General Assembly shall have power to increase the compensation of its own members." That is why the people have called it the "Salary Grab" and have so generally condemned it. If it be true, that no question is really settled until it is settled right, the "Expense Act" will be a political issue until it is removed from the statute books of the state.

REMINISCENCE OF THE 44th G. A.

The last day in sight
And adjournment is near.
We welcome its coming
With right good cheer.

We have loved the work
The discouragements few
With a fine group of men
And a fine lady, too.

The debates are soon o'er
But still there's a ring
Methinks 'twill be hushed
By the voice of the spring.

We've tried to be fair
And have given our best;
Our record is now made
We'll wait for the rest.

We have voted her Yes
And have voted her No.
Sometimes when in doubt
We've just let her go.

The friends we have made
We will never forget;
Our foes they are nil
And have not showed up yet.

Our friends we have counted
There are one hundred seven.
Methinks that our enemies
Have all gone to Heaven.

The force at the desk
And the clerks and others
They are counted by us
Just as sisters and brothers.

Fond memories we'll cherish
And with kindness of heart
We bid all our friends
Good luck when we part.

You have our best wishes
And lots of them, too,
Here's health, wealth and pleasure
And good bye to you.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

MR. SPEAKER: I voted "yes" on house resolution providing for the appointment of the committee to investigate the acts and conduct of Arch W. McFarlane, Lieutenant Governor of Iowa for the following reasons:

1. Official records of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States show that the Lieutenant Governor wrote a letter during the 43rd General Assembly to the Illinois Central Railroad Company suggesting that it order coal from his company and as a basis for such orders he stated that he had done much in a legislative way for the railroad companies. That record further shows that he had impressed upon officers of that company that he was in position, as Lieutenant Governor, to affect railroad shipments to state institutions and that he was assured coal contracts by the Chicago, Great Western Railroad Company and others, particularly public utility companies. Upon these coal contracts he stated that he was to receive a commission of ten cents (10c) per ton. I sincerely believe that such use, of political office, particularly of his high office was highly improper and that he stands condemned in the eyes of all good citizens of the state of Iowa for such improper use of his high office. It is my belief, that it was the solemn duty of this house, to investigate the extent of such operations and to perform its constitutional function fearlessly and without favor.

2. The records, of the joint legislative committee, appointed by the 44th General Assembly to investigate the affairs of the State University of Iowa, show that Mr. McFarlane has used his high office to demand and receive a commission upon coal sold at the University of Iowa and at the State Teachers College: That he organized a fictitious company, the O'Hagan Coal Company, for the expressed purpose of bidding through it upon coal at the State University of Iowa and that he also sold coal under the name of that company at the State Teachers College; and that he demanded and received a commission of ten cents per ton upon coal sold to the State University by other companies than his own. (See testimony of Lucille O'Hagan transcript 3502 and testimony of W. A. Chapman beginning page 3577 of said transcript and the testimony of David C. Page, beginning on page 4515 of said transcript, now on file with this house.)

3. That he organized this fictitious company without complying with Chapter 429 A1 of the Code and that he has done business under the name of said company at least since July 23rd, 1927, which makes the said company in operation for a period of over three and one-half years. The minimum fine to which he would be subject would be over $25,000.00 and, the maximum fine over $100,000.00.

I believe, that such vicious practices on the part of one enjoying next to the highest office within the power of the State of Iowa, will pollute our citizenry, disgrace our institutions, create disrespect for law, and that it brings his high office into the lowest form of disrepute. In my humble opinion, he should not, as he has admittedly done, drag the robes of his high office through the dregs of political corruption and chicanery. One holding such high office should set the highest standards of honesty, integrity and loyalty to his state and set an example of public service, not only to this generation but for those that are to come. I sincerely believe that it is only through such high standards that the republican form of government can continue to exist and serve mankind in the science of self-government.

In my opinion, these charges should have been investigated and if they were found to be true, the severest penalty as adopted out of the wisdom of our forefathers in the constitution of Iowa and the statutes which have been made in conformity therewith; and if untrue that they be so declared in order that the citizens of this state might be saved, the conception of dishonesty, lack of integrity and disloyalty to his trust which must, under the present record, forever be lodged in the minds of men, and the name of the Lieutenant Governor be cleared of such charges, not only for his own sake, but for the sake of posterity.

P. H. DONLON.

HON. OLEY NELSON ADDRESSES THE HOUSE

Torgeson of Worth moved that Hon. Oley Nelson be permitted to address the House at this time.

Motion prevailed and Mr. Nelson addressed the House as follows:

MR. SPEAKER, GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE, AND THE LADY FROM JACKSON:

Some times in my life I have been surprised, or taken by surprise. This morning came a little surprise to me that I didn't expect,—to have the honor to stand before this august body in the closing hours of this session to say a few words of farewell.

The little bill—an innocent bill—that was placed on your desks here the other day, was nothing more nor less than the result of a historical research that I tried, but was unable to make two years ago. At this time, with the assistance of Mary Rosemand, the librarian, I got the facts in regard to what was put in that leaden box when I stood beside the man who presented those silver tools: the trowel to spread the mortar, and the silver hammer to lay the stone.

Sixty-four years ago, gentlemen, I was here in the City of Des Moines. Sixty-three years ago I was a teamster hauling brick for S. A. Robertson, who had then the contract to make a new foundation under the old capitol building, long before this building was contemplated. I was interested in a man by the name of John A. Kasson, living then in the City of Des Moines, and became personally acquainted with him. When the time came that the cornerstone of this capitol building was to be laid, I understood from conversations that I had with people at that time that probably John A. Kasson would take part in the laying of that cornerstone. I walked up here on the hill that November day the cornerstone was laid. At the reading of what was placed in that leaden box in that cornerstone, the first item appealed to me. If you will look at the little leaflet that was put on your desk, gentlemen, you will see the first thing deposited in the laying of the cornerstone of this building, as of any building for the state, was the Holy Bible, wrapped in the American Flag.

The other day when you celebrated Saint Patrick's Day, two of the Gentlemen of the House referred to the Irish coming to America and taking part in the Civil War. For the information of those two gentlemen I will state, on authority, that 150,000 young men born in Ireland, came to America and enlisted in the Civil War to protect Old Glory and the Union from dismemberment, and of that number, 100,000 were under twenty-one years of age.

The boys in the Spanish-American War carried Old Glory to victory on San Juan Hill in Cuba, and in the Philippines they again crowned Old Glory with success.

In the World War the boys in khaki, who went overseas, and those who were in training here in camp and didn't get overseas, had Old Glory with them. When the boys landed in France what did you see? As they marched along in the streets and in the country, old men and old women and boys and girls stood at attention, holding their hands and looking up to the Heavens in supplication and prayer, to salute Old Glory as the saviour of France.

I am told when General Pershing landed with his staff, he requested that he might visit the tomb of Lafayette, and as he stood at the tomb, with his staff and Old Glory beside him, the command was given: "Attention, Parade Rest". He took a wreath in his hands and went over to the tomb and as he stood there in silence, one of his staff said in a low, but distinct tone, "Lafayette, Lafayette, we are here."

When the 11th day of November came, and news came to the boys and to us that the World War had ceased, you came home, you World War Boys, with another crown for Old Glory, which has stood and stands today as a beacon light to the nations of the world when the crowned heads in all directions are tottering. The constitutional form of government is the proper form of government for the human race, and the nations of this earth. And Old Glory goes with our boys wherever they go to represent the United States and to represent us as a nation, one and inseparable.

And on behalf of the employees, Mr. Speaker of the House, may I say to you and your lieutenants here: thank you, Mr. Speaker, for the courtesies that you have shown us as employees of this House, and when all of you go home may you remember the Forty-fourth General Assembly and the courtesies that you have shown to us as employees, and may I not forget to include our clerks. I want to thank you on behalf of the employees in the bill room for the courtesies every morning you show us when you go in and get your work in the bill room, and may you all go home to your loved ones and associates, not only with honor, but with health and strength, and God's richest blessings be on you all, is my prayer. Thank you.

SPEAKER ANNOUNCES INTERIM COMMITTEE ON HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 6

Said resolution provides for a commission to study the corporate laws of the State of Iowa and to make a report to the Forty-fifth General Assembly.

(a) Allocation and Apportionment of Net Income. If the trade or business of the corporation is carried on entirely within the state, the tax shall be imposed on the entire net income, but if such trade or business is carried on partly within and partly without the state, the tax shall be imposed only on the portion of the net income reasonably attributable to the trade or business within the state, said net income attributable to the State of Iowa to be determined as follows:

(1) Interest, dividends, rents and royalties (less related expenses) received in connection with business in the state, shall be allocated to the state and where received in connection with business outside the state, shall be allocated outside of the state.

(2) Gains from the sale of capital assets or property held, owned or used in connection with the trade or business of the taxpayer, but not for sale in the regular course of business, shall be allocated to the state, if the property sold is real or tangible personal property situated in the state; otherwise, such gains shall be allocated outside of the state. Gains from the sale of intangible property shall be allocated upon the basis hereinafter provided for the allocation of net income.

(3) Net income of the above classes having been separately allocated and deducted as above provided, the remainder of the net income of the taxpayer shall be allocated and apportioned as follows:

Where income is derived from business other than the manufacture and sale of tangible personal property, such income shall be specifically allocated or equitably apportioned within and without the state under rules and regulations of the board.

Where income is derived from the manufacture or sale of tangible personal property, the portion thereof attributable to business within the state shall be taken to be such percentage of the total of such income as gross sales within the state bear to the total gross sales of the corporation.

The gross sales of the corporation within the state shall be taken to be the gross sales from goods sold and delivered within the state, excluding deliveries for transportation out of the state.

For the purpose of this section, the word "sale" shall include exchange and the word "manufacture" shall include the extraction and recovery of natural resources and all processes of fabricating and curing.

(b) Allocation in Special Cases. If any taxpayer believes that the method of allocation and apportionment hereinbefore prescribed as administered by the board and applied to his business has operated or will so operate as to subject him to taxation on a greater portion of his net income than is reasonably attributable to business or sources within the state, he shall be entitled to file with the board a statement of his objections and of such alternative method of allocation and apportionment as he believes to be proper under the circumstances with such detail and proof and within such time as the board may reasonably prescribe; and if the board shall conclude that the method of allocation and apportionment theretofore employed is in fact inapplicable and inequitable, it shall redetermine the taxable income by such other method of allocation and apportionment as seems best calculated to assign to the state for taxation the portion of the income reasonably attributable to business and sources within the state, not exceeding, however, the amount which would be arrived at by application of the statutory rules for apportionment.

(c) The words "tangible personal property" shall be taken to mean corporeal personal property, such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise, and shall not be taken to mean money deposits in banks, shares of stock, bonds, notes, credits, or evidence of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

3. Taxable year. The tax imposed by this act shall be levied, collected and paid with respect to the net income received during the calendar year 1931, or during that portion of any tax year included within the calendar year 1931 and annually thereafter.

4. Exemptions. The following organizations and corporations shall be exempt from taxation under this act:

(a) All state, national, cooperative and savings banks, title insurance and trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies and/or insurance associations, railway companies, equipment car companies and pullman car companies, now or hereafter organized and incorporated by or under the laws of this state or lawfully operating in the state of Iowa.

(b) Fraternal beneficiary associations.

(b1) Insurance companies organized under the laws of the state of Iowa and existing by reason of the law as it appears in sections eighty-seven hundred eighteen (8718) and eighty-seven hundred nineteen (8719) of the code, 1927.

(c) All domestic companies described in sections 6994-6995 of the code, 1927, engaged in the business of loaning money to deserving persons whose business or circumstances are such as to make it desirable or convenient for them to accumulate funds with which to repay such loans.

(d) Cemetery corporations and corporations organized for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

(e) Business leagues, chambers of commerce, or bonds of trade not organized for profit, and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

(f) Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit, but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare.

(g) Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other non-profitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member.

(h) Farmers' associations and fruit growers' associations, or like organizations organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of produce furnished by them.

5. The tax imposed by this act shall apply to and become a charge against estates or trusts, which tax shall be levied, collected and paid annually upon and with respect to the income of estates or of any kind of property held in trust, including:

(a) Income received by estates of deceased persons during the period of administration or settlement of the estate.

(b) Income accumulated in trust for the benefit of unborn or unascertained persons, or persons with contingent interest.

(c) Income held for future distribution under the terms of the will or trust.

(d) Income which is to be distributed to the beneficiaries periodically, whether or not at regular intervals, and the income collected by a guardian of an infant to be held or distributed, as the court may direct.

(e) Income of an estate during the period of administration or settlement permitted by subdivision seven (7), to be deducted from the net income upon which the tax is to be paid by the fiduciary.

(f) The net income received during the year by deceased individuals who have died on or after the date a return was due to be filed without having made a return.

6. The fiduciary shall be responsible for making the return of income for the estate or trust for which he acts, whether such income be taxable to the estate or trust or to the beneficiaries thereof. The net income of an estate or trust shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as provided in this act for individual taxpayers, except that there shall also be allowed as a deduction any part of the gross income which, pursuant to the terms of the will or deed creating the trust, is, during the taxable year, paid to or permanently set aside for the United States, any state, territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any corporation or association organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; and, in cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, the fiduciary shall include in the return a statement of each beneficiary's distributive share of such net income whether or not distributed before the close of the tax year for which the return is made.

7. In cases under paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of subdivision five (5) of this section the tax shall be imposed upon the estate or trust with respect to the net income of the estate or trust and shall be paid by the fiduciary, except that in determining the net income of the estate of any deceased person during the period of administration or settlement there may be deducted the amount of any income properly paid or credited to any legatee, heir or other beneficiary. In cases under (a), (b) and (c) the estate or trust shall be allowed the same exemptions as are allowed to single persons under section twelve (12), and in cases under paragraph (f) the same exemption as would be allowed the deceased, if living.

8. In cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of sub-division five (5) of this section, if the distribution of income is in the discretion of the fiduciary, either as to the beneficiaries to whom payable or as to the amounts to which any beneficiary is entitled, the tax shall be imposed upon the estate or trust in the manner provided in subdivision seven (7) of this section, but without the deduction of any amounts of income paid or credited to any such beneficiary. In all other cases under paragraphs (d) and (e) of subdivision five (5) of this section, the tax shall not be paid by the fiduciary, but there shall be included in computing the net income of each beneficiary his distributive share whether distributed or not, of the net income of the estate or trust for the taxable year, or if his net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the estate or trust is computed, then his distributive share of the income of the estate or trust for any accounting period of such estate or trust ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such beneficiary's net income is computed.

9. A trust created by an employer as a part of a stock bonus, pension, or profit-sharing plan for the exclusive benefit of some or all of his employees, to which contributions are made by such employer, or employees, or both, for the purpose of distributing to such employees the earnings and principal of the fund accumulated by the trust in accordance with such plan, shall not be taxable under this section, but the amount contributed to such fund by the employer and all earnings of such fund shall be taxed to the distributee in the year in which distributed or made available to him.

COMPUTATION OF TAX

Sec. 5. Net income defined. The term "net income" means the gross income of the taxpayer less the deductions allowed by this act.

Sec. 6. Gross income defined. 1. The term "gross income" includes gains, profits and incomes derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service, of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, business, commerce of sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit; or gains or profits, and income derived from any source whatever and in whatever form paid. The amount of all such items shall be included in the gross income of the tax year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under the methods of accounting permitted under this act, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period.

2. The term "gross income" does not include the following items, which shall be exempt from taxation under this act:

(a) Amounts received under a life insurance contract paid by reason of the death of the insured, whether in a single sum or in installments (but if such amounts are held by the insurer under an agreement to pay interest thereon, the interest payments shall be included in gross income);

(b) Amounts received (other than amounts paid by reason of the death of the insured and interest payments on such amounts) under a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, but if such amounts (when added to amounts received before the taxable year under such contract) exceed the aggregate premiums or consideration paid (whether or not paid during the taxable year) then the excess shall be included in gross income. In the case of a transfer for a valuable consideration, by assignment or otherwise, of a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, or any interest therein, only the actual value of such consideration and the amount of the premiums and other sums subsequently paid by the transferee shall be exempt from taxation under paragraph (a) of this paragraph;

(c) The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent (but the income from such property shall be included in gross income).

(d) Interest upon the obligations of the United States or its possessions, agencies, or instrumentalities, which is or shall be exempt from state taxation by federal law.

(e) Salaries, wages and other compensation received from the United States by officials or employees thereof which are or shall be exempt from state taxation by federal law.

(f) Any amounts received through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of damages received, whether by suit or agreement, on account of such injuries or sickness.

(g) Stock dividends of a corporation distributed to its own stockholders.

Sec. 7. Basis of return of net income. 1. Taxpayers, who customarily determine their income on a basis other than that of actual cash receipts and disbursements, may, with the approval of the board return their net income under this act upon a similar basis. Taxpayers who customarily determine their income on the basis of an established fiscal year instead of on that of the calendar year, may, with the approval of the board, and subject to such rules and regulations as it may establish, return their net income under this act on the basis of such fiscal year, in lieu of that of the calendar year.

2. A taxpayer may, with the approval of the state board, and under such regulations as it may prescribe, change his income year from the fiscal year to the calendar year or otherwise, in which case his net income shall be computed upon the basis of such new tax year.

3. An individual carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in his individual capacity and shall include in his gross income his share of the net income of the partnership during the income year, but when the partner's net income for such taxable year is computed upon the basis of a period different from that upon the basis of which the net income of the partnership is computed, then his share of the net income of the partnership for any accounting period of such partnership ending within the fiscal or calendar year upon the basis of which such partner's net income is computed.

4. Every individual, taxable under this act, who is a beneficiary of an estate or trust, shall include in his gross income the distributive share of the net income of the estate or trust, received by him or distributable to him during the income year. Unless otherwise provided in the law, the will, the deed or other instrument creating the estate, trust or fiduciary relation, the net income shall be deemed to be distributed or distributable to the beneficiaries (including the fiduciary as a beneficiary, in the case of income accumulated for future distribution) ratably, in proportion to their respective interests.

Sec. 8. Determination of gain or loss. 1. For the purpose of ascertaining the gain derived or loss sustained from the sale or other disposition of property, real, personal or mixed, the basis shall be, in case of property acquired on or after January 1, 1931, the cost thereof, or the inventory value, if the inventory is made in accordance with this act.

2. In case of property acquired prior to January 1, 1931, and disposed of thereafter:

(a) No profit shall be deemed to have been derived if either the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, exceeds the value realized.

(b) No loss shall be deemed to have been sustained if either the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, is less than the value realized.

(c) Where both the cost and the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, are less than the value realized, the basis for computing profit shall be the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, whichever is higher.

(d) Where both the cost and the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, are in excess of the value realized, the basis for computing loss shall be the cost or the fair market price or value on January 1, 1931, whichever is lower.

(e) Any distribution to the taxpayer of the assets of a corporation in partial or complete liquidation thereof shall be treated as a sale of the stock or securities of the corporation owned by him and the gain or loss shall be computed accordingly.

Sec. 9. Exchange of property. 1. When property is exchanged for other property having a readily ascertainable market value, the property received in exchange shall, for the purpose of determining gain or loss, be treated as the equivalent of cash to the amount of its fair market value, if any, but even if property received in exchange has a readily ascertainable market value, no gain or loss shall be recognized (1) when in the reorganization, recapitalization, or other change in identity, form, or place of organization, however affected, consolidation or merger of one or more corporations a taxpayer receives in place of any stock, or securities owned by him, stock or securities in a corporation a party to or resulting from such reorganization, consolidation or merger, or (2) when a taxpayer or taxpayers transfer any property, real, personal or mixed, to a corporation for stock and securities in the corporation and immediately after the transfer is or are in control of such corporation by stock ownership.

2. When property is exchanged for other property and no gain or loss is recognized, the property received shall be treated as taking the place of the property exchanged therefor.

3. Installment Basis.

a. Dealers in personal property. Under regulations prescribed by the board, any person or corporation who regularly sells or otherwise disposes of personal property on the installment plan may return as income therefrom in any taxable year that proportion of the installment payments actually received in that year which the gross profit realized or to be realized when payment is completed, bears to the total contract price.

b. Sales of realty and casual sales of personalty. In the case (1) of a casual sale or other casual disposition of personal property (other than property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year), for a price exceeding $1000, or (2) of a sale or other disposition of real property, if in either case the initial payments do not exceed 40 per centum of the selling price, the income may, under regulations prescribed by the board, be returned on the basis and in the manner above prescribed in this section. As used in this section the term "initial payments" means the payments received in cash or property other than evidences of indebtedness of the purchaser during the taxable period in which the sale or other disposition is made.

c. Change from accrual to installment basis. If a taxpayer entitled to the benefits of subsection (a) elects for any taxable year to report his net income on the installment basis, then in computing his income for the year of change or any subsequent year, amounts actually received during any such year on account of sales or other dispositions of property made in any prior year shall not be excluded; provided, however, no tax shall be imposed on any income accrued from sales made prior to January 1, 1931.

d. Gain or loss upon disposition of installment obligations. If an installment obligation is satisfied at other than its face value or distributed, transmitted, sold, or otherwise disposed of, gain or loss shall result to the extent of the difference between the basis of the obligation and (1) in the case of satisfaction at other than face value or a sale or exchange—the amount realized, or (2) in case of a distribution, transmission, or disposition otherwise than by sale or exchange—the fair market value of the obligation at the time of such distribution, transmission, or disposition. The basis of the obligation shall be the excess of the face value of the obligation over an amount equal to the income which would be returnable were the obligation satisfied in full.

Sec. 10. Inventory. Whenever, in the opinion of the board, the use of inventories is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the board may prescribe, conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and most clearly reflecting the income.

Sec. 11. Deductions. In computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions:

1. All the ordinary and necessary expenses, paid or incurred during the tax year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal service actually rendered, traveling expenses while away from home in pursuit of trade or business, and including rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for the purpose of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity.

2. All interest paid or accrued during the tax year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities, the interest on which is exempt from taxation under this act.

3. Taxes paid or accrued within the income year, imposed by the authority of the United States or of any of its possessions or of any state, territory or the District of Columbia or of any foreign country; except inheritance taxes, Federal estate taxes or estate taxes of this or any other state, and except income taxes imposed by this act and taxes assessed for local benefits, of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed.

4. Losses sustained during the tax year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in trade or business.

5. Losses sustained during the tax year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the trade or business.

6. Losses sustained during the tax year of property not connected with the trade or business, if arising from fires, storm, shipwreck or other casualty, or from theft and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

7. Losses deducted under the foregoing paragraphs four, five, and six shall be ascertained and computed upon the same basis as provided in section seven of this act.

8. Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the tax year; provided, however, that such deductions shall not exceed the value of such debt on January 1, 1931.

9. A reasonable allowance for the depreciation, exhaustion, wear and tear and obsolescence of property used in the trade or business, and in the case of mines or other natural deposits and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion; provided, that in computing the deductions allowed under this paragraph the basis shall be the cost (including in the case of mines and other natural deposits, the cost of development, not otherwise deducted), and in the case of property acquired prior to January 1, 1931, the fair market value of the property on that date shall be taken in lieu of cost up to that date. The reasonable allowance under this paragraph shall be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the board. In the case of leases the deductions allowed may be equitably apportioned between the lessor and the lessee.

10. Contributions made within the taxable year to or for the use of:

(a) The United States, any state, territory or political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusive public purposes;

(b) Any corporation or trust, or community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals;

(c) The special fund for vocational rehabilitation authorized by section seven of the vocational rehabilitation act;

(d) Posts or organization of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of any such posts or organizations;

(e) Fraternal societies operating under the lodge system, if such contributions are to be used exclusively for religious charitable or educational purposes. This deduction is limited to an amount which, in all of the above cases combined, does not exceed fifteen per cent (15%) of the taxpayer's net income, computed without the benefit of such deductions.

11. If for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1930, it appears on the production of evidence satisfactory to the board that any taxpayer has sustained a net loss, the amount thereof shall be deducted from the net income of the taxpayer for the succeeding year; and if such net loss is in excess of the net income for such succeeding tax year, the amount of such excess shall be used as a reduction in computing the net income for the next two succeeding tax years, the deduction in all cases to be made under regulations prescribed by the board.

12. Dividends received within the year from stock in any corporation, the income of which shall have been assessed, and the tax on such income paid by the corporation under the provisions of this act; provided, however, that the taxpayer shall not be allowed a credit upon his income tax in excess of the amount of the tax paid by the corporation upon the earnings from which the dividend was paid; and provided further that such corporation has reported the name and address of each person owning stock and the amount of dividends paid each such person during the year.

Sec. 12. Items not deductible. In computing the net income no deductions shall in any case be allowed in respect to the following:

1. Personal, living or family expenses.

2. Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments, made to increase the value of any property or estate.

3. Any amount expended in restoring property or in making good the exhaustion thereof, for which an allowance is or has been made.

4. Premiums paid on any life insurance policy covering the life of any officer or employee or of any individual financially interested in any trade or business carried on by the taxpayer, when the taxpayer is directly or indirectly a beneficiary under such policy.

Sec. 13. Exemptions. 1. There shall be deducted from the tax after the same shall have been computed as set forth in this act a personal exemption for individuals as follows:

(a) For an individual, fifteen dollars.

(b) For husband and wife or head of a family, fifty dollars.

For the purposes of this chapter, the term "head of a family" means an individual who maintained a household and supported therein himself and one or more persons who were dependent upon him for support.

(c) For each child under the age of eighteen years who is actually supported by and dependent upon the taxpayer for his support, an additional four dollars.

(d) The personal exemptions provided by this section shall be determined by the personal status of a taxpayer on the last day of the tax year.

RETURNS

Sec. 14. Individual returns. 1. Every individual having a net income for the tax year from sources taxable under this act of fifteen hundred dollars or over, if single, or if married and not living with husband or wife; or having a net income for the tax year of thirty-five hundred dollars or over if married and living with husband or wife; and every partnership doing business in this state shall make a return under oath, stating specifically the items of gross income and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act.

2. If husband and wife living together have an aggregate net income of thirty-five hundred dollars or over, each shall make such a return, unless the income of each is included in a single joint return.

3. If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by a guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer.

4. Provided, also, that every individual having a gross income of five thousand dollars a year or over, shall file a return.

Sec. 15. Fiduciary return. 1. Every fiduciary subject to taxation under the provisions of this act, as provided in section three (3) hereof, shall make a return under oath for the individual, estate or trust for whom or for which he acts, if the net amount thereof amounts to one thousand dollars or more or the gross amount thereof amounts to two thousand dollars or more.

2. The return made by a fiduciary shall state specifically the items of gross income, and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act and such other facts as the board may prescribe. Under such regulations as the board may prescribe, a return may be made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries.

3. Fiduciaries required to make returns under this act shall be subject to all the provisions of this act which apply to individuals.

Sec. 16. Corporation returns. 1. The return by a corporation shall be sworn to by the president, vice-president, or other principal officer and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer. Before a corporation shall be dissolved and its assets distributed it shall make a return for a settlement of the tax for any income earned in the income year up to its final date of dissolution.

2. When any corporation, liable to taxation under this act, conducts its business in such a manner as either directly or indirectly to benefit the members or stockholders thereof or any person interested in such business by selling its products or the goods or commodities in which it deals at less than the fair price which might be obtained therefor, or where a corporation, a substantial portion of whose capital stock is owned either directly or indirectly by another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products, goods or commodities of the corporation so owning a substantial portion of its stock in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, or where a corporation, owning directly or indirectly a substantial portion of the stock of another corporation, acquires and disposes of the products, goods or commodities, of the corporation of which it so owns a substantial portion of the stock, in such a manner as to create a loss or improper net income for either of said corporations, the board may determine the amount of taxable income of either or any of such corporations for the calendar or fiscal year, having due regard to the reasonable profits which, but for such arrangements or understanding, might or could have been obtained, by the corporation or corporations liable to taxation under this act, from dealing in such products, goods or commodities.

3. Where the state board has reason to believe that any person or corporation so conducts his trade or business as either directly or indirectly to distort his true net income and the net income properly attributed to the state, whether by the arbitrary shifting of income, through price fixing, charges for services, or otherwise, whereby the net income is arbitrarily assigned to one or another unit in a group of taxpayers carrying on business under a substantially common control, it may require such facts as it deems necessary for the proper computation of the entire net income and the net income properly attributable to the state, and in determining the same the board shall have regard to the fair profits which would normally arise from the conduct of the trade or business.

Sec. 17. Consolidated Returns. 1. Any corporation capable of exercising directly or indirectly substantially the entire control of the business of another corporation doing business in the United States either by ownership or control of substantially the entire capital stock of such other corporation or otherwise may, under regulations to be prescribed by the board, be permitted, and upon demand of the board shall be required, to make a consolidated return, showing the consolidated net income of all such corporations, and such other information as the board may require in order to compute the net income properly attributable to the state and to impose the tax upon the taxpayers concerned.

2. The board may permit or require the filing of a consolidated return where substantially the entire control of two or more such corporations liable to taxation under this act is exercised by the same interests. Any corporation liable to report under this act and owned or controlled, either directly or indirectly, by another corporation, may be required to make a consolidated report showing the combined net income, such assets of the corporation as are required for the purpose of this act, and such other information as the board may require.

3. In case it shall appear to the board that any arrangement exists in such a manner as to improperly reflect the business done, the segregable assets or the entire net income earned from business done in the state, the board is authorized and empowered, in such manner and under such rules and regulations as it may determine, to equitably adjust the tax.

Sec. 18. Information at source. 1. Every person or corporation being a resident of or having a place of business in this state, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors of real or personal property, fiduciaries, employers and all officers and employees of the state or of any political subdivision of the state, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of interest (other than interest coupons payable to bearer), rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income, amounting to one thousand dollars or over, paid or payable during any year to any taxpayer, shall make complete returns thereof under oath, to the state board, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by it.

2. Every partnership, having a place of business in the state, shall make a return, stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this act, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributed, and the amount of the distributive share of each individual. The return shall be sworn to by any one of the partners.

3. Every fiduciary shall make, under oath, a return for the individual, estate, or trust for whom or for which he acts, and shall set forth in such return the items of the gross income, the deductions allowed by this act, the net income, the names and addresses of the beneficiaries, the amounts distributed or distributable to each and the amount, if any, lawfully retained by him for future distribution. Such return may be made by one of two or more joint fiduciaries.

with the board within ninety days after the expiration of the tax year. In case of sickness, absence or other disability, or whenever, in its judgment, good cause exists, the board may allow further time for filing returns. There shall be annexed to the return the affidavit or affirmation of the taxpayer making the return to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. The board shall cause to be prepared blank forms for said returns and shall cause them to be distributed throughout the state and to be furnished upon application, but failure to receive or secure the form shall not relieve the taxpayer from the obligation of making any return herein required.

Sec. 20. Failure to file returns; supplemental returns. If the board shall be of the opinion that any person or corporation required under this act to file a return has failed to file such a return, or to include in a return filed, either intentionally or through error, items of taxable income, it may require from such taxpayer a return or supplementary return, under oath, in such form as it shall prescribe, of all the items of income which the taxpayer received during the year for which the return is made, whether or not taxable under the provisions of this act. If from a supplementary return, or otherwise, the board finds that any items of income, taxable under this act, have been omitted from the original return it may require the items so omitted to be disclosed under oath of the taxpayer, and to be added to the original return. Such supplementary return and the correction of the original return shall not relieve the taxpayer from any of the penalties to which he may be liable under any provisions of this act whether or not the board required a return or a supplementary return under this section.

Sec. 21. Return by administrator or executor. 1. The return by an individual, who, while living, was subject to income tax in the state during the tax year, and who has died before making the return, shall be made in his name and behalf by the administrator or executor of the estate and the tax shall be levied upon and collected from his estate.

Sec. 22. Change of tax year. If a taxpayer, with the approval of the board, changes the tax year on the basis of which his net income is computed, he shall, at such time and in such manner as the board may prescribe, make a separate return of his net income received during the period intervening between the end of his former income year and the beginning of his new income year.

COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT OF TAXES

Sec. 23. Time and place of payment. 1. The tax may be paid in two installments, each consisting of one-half of the total amount of the tax. The first installment shall be remitted with the return and the second installment shall be paid on or before six months after the date fixed for filing the return; provided, however, that in case the total amount of the tax shall be ten dollar or less, then, and in that case, the whole amount of the tax shall be paid at the time of filing the return.

2. When, at the request of the taxpayer, the time for filing the return is extended, interest at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum on one half of the total tax, from the time when the return was originally required to be filed to the time of payment shall be added and paid.

Sec. 24. Examination of returns. 1. As soon as practicable after the return is filed the board shall examine it and determine the correct amount of the tax, and the amount so determined by the board shall be the tax. If the tax found due shall be greater than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be paid within ten days after notice of the amount shall be mailed by the board.

2. If the return is made in good faith and the understatement of the tax is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty added because of the understatement, but interest shall be added to the amount of the deficiency at the rate of one half of one per cent ( $\frac{1}{2}\%$ ) for each month or fraction of a month.

3. If the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency five per cent (5%) thereof, and in addition, interest at the rate of one half of one per cent ( $\frac{1}{2}\%$ ) per month or fraction of a month.

4. If the understatement is found by the board to be false or fraudulent, with intent to evade the tax, the tax on the additional income discovered to be taxable shall be doubled and an additional one per cent (1%) per month or fraction of a month shall be added.

5. The interest provided for in this section shall in all cases be computed from the date the return was originally required to be filed to the date of payment.

6. If the amount of tax as determined by the board shall be less than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be refunded with interest from date of payment at six per cent per annum under the provisions of such regulations as may be prescribed by the state board.

7. All payments received must be credited, first, to penalty and interest accrued, and then to tax due.

Sec. 25. Additional Taxes. 1. If the board discovers from the examination of the return or otherwise that the income of any taxpayer, or any portion thereof, has not been assessed, it may, at any time within two years after the time when the return was due, compute the tax and give notice to the taxpayer of the proposed assessment, and the taxpayer shall thereupon have an opportunity, within thirty days, to file an appeal with the board and a hearing shall be granted and a final decision thereon shall be made by the board as soon as possible. The limitation of two years to the assessment of such tax or additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent returns. After the expiration of thirty days from such notification, if no appeal has been filed or after such hearing if such appeal has been filed, the board shall assess the income of such taxpayer or any portion thereof which it determines has not theretofore been assessed and shall give notice to the taxpayer so assessed of the amount of the tax and interest and penalties, if any, and the amount thereof shall be due and payable within ten days from the date of such notice. The provisions of this act with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to a tax so assessed. No additional tax amounting to less than five dollars shall be assessed.

Sec. 26. Warrant for the collection of taxes. If any tax imposed by this act or any portion of such tax be not paid within sixty days after the same becomes due, the board shall issue a warrant under its official seal directed to the sheriff of any county of the state commanding him to levy upon and sell the real and personal property of the taxpayer found within his county, for the payment of the amount thereof, with the added penalties, interest, and the cost of executing the warrant, and to return such warrant to the board and pay to it the money collected by virtue thereof by a time to be therein specified, not less than sixty days from the date of the warrant. The sheriff shall, within five days after receipt of the warrant, file with the clerk of the district court of his county a copy thereof, and thereupon the clerk shall enter in the judgment docket, in the column for judgment debtors, the name of the taxpayer mentioned in the warrant, and in appropriate columns the amount of the tax or portion thereof and penalties for which the warrant is issued and the date when such copy is filed, and thereupon the amount of such warrant so docketed shall become a lien upon the title to and interest in real property of the taxpayer against whom it is issued in the same manner as a judgment duly docketed in the office of such clerk. The said sheriff shall thereupon proceed upon the same in all respects, with like effect and in the same manner prescribed by law in respect to executions issued against property upon judgment of a court of record, and shall be entitled to the same fees for his services in executing the warrant, to be collected in the same manner.

Sec. 27. Tax a debt. Every tax imposed by this act, and all increases, interest and penalties thereon shall become, from the time it is due and payable, a personal debt from the person or persons liable to pay the same to the state of Iowa, and all property of the taxpayer, whether exempt from execution or not, shall be liable for satisfaction of the debt.

Sec. 28. Action for recovery of taxes. Action may be brought at any time by the attorney general of the state, and shall be brought by him upon the request of the state board, in the name of the state, to recover the amount of any taxes, penalties, and interest due under this act.

Sec. 29. Tax upon settlement of fiduciary's account.

1. No final account of a fiduciary shall be allowed by any court unless such account shows, and the judge of said court finds, that all taxes imposed by the provisions of this act upon said fiduciary, which have become payable, have been paid, and that all taxes which may become due are secured by bond, deposit or otherwise. The certificate of the board and the receipt for the amount of the tax therein certified shall be conclusive as to the payment of the tax to the extent of said certificate.

2. For the purpose of facilitating the settlement and distribution of estates held by fiduciaries, the board may, on behalf of the state, agree upon the amount of taxes at any time due or to become due from such fiduciaries under the provisions of this act, and payment in accordance with such agreement shall be full satisfaction of the taxes to which the agreement relates.

PENALTIES

Sec. 30. Penalties. 1. If any taxpayer, without intent to evade any tax imposed by this act, shall fail to file a return of income or pay a tax, if one is due at the time required by or under the provisions of this act, but shall voluntarily file a corrected return of income and pay the tax due, within sixty days thereafter, there shall be added to and made a part of the tax an additional amount equal to five per cent (5%) thereof, plus one dollar, and an additional one per cent (1%) for each month or fraction of a month during which the tax remains unpaid.

2. If any taxpayer fails voluntarily to file a return of income or to pay a tax, if one is due, within sixty days of the time required by or under the provisions of this act, the tax rates shall be increased by twenty per cent (20%), and such increased tax shall be further increased by one per cent (1%) for each month or fraction of a month from the time the tax was originally due to the date of payment.

3. The board shall have power, upon making a record of its reason therefor, to waive or reduce any of the additional taxes or interest provided in subdivisions one (1) and two (2) of this section or in subdivisions two (2), three (3) and four (4) of section twenty-four (24), and to credit all payments received first to penalty and interest, then to tax due.

4. If any taxpayer fails to file a return within sixty days of the time prescribed by this act, any judge of the district court, upon petition of the state board or county assessor of any county, shall issue a writ of mandamus requiring such person to file a return. The order of notice upon the petition shall be returnable not later than ten days after the filing of the petition. The petition shall be heard and determined on the return day or on such day thereafter as the court shall fix, having regard to the speediest possible determination of the case, consistent with the rights of the parties.

5. Any person who, without fraudulent intent, fails to pay any tax or to make, render, sign or verify any return, or to supply any information within the time required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars to be recovered by the attorney general, in the name of the state, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

6. If a corporation required by the provisions of this act to file any report or return or to pay any tax or fee, either as a corporation organized under the laws of this state, or as a foreign corporation doing business in this state for profit, or owning and using a part or all of its capital or plant in this state, fails or neglects to make any such report or return or to pay any such tax or fee for ninety days after the time prescribed in this act for making such report or return, or for paying such tax or fee, the board may in its discretion certify such fact to the secretary of state. The secretary of state shall thereupon cancel the articles of incorporation of any such corporation which is organized under the laws of this state by appropriate entry upon the margin of the record thereof, or cancel the certificate of authority of any such foreign corporation to do business in this state by proper entry. Thereupon all the powers, privileges, and franchises conferred upon such corporation by such articles of incorporation or by such certificate of authority shall cease and determine. The secretary of state shall immediately notify by registered mail such domestic or foreign corporation of the action taken by him.

7. Any person or persons who shall exercise or attempt to exercise any powers, privileges, or franchises under articles of incorporation or certificate of authority after the same are cancelled, as provided in any section of this act, shall pay a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered in an action to be brought by the board in the district court of Polk County.

8. Any corporation whose articles of incorporation or certificate of authority to do business in this state have been cancelled by the secretary of state, as provided in sub-section six (6), or similar provisions of prior revenue acts, upon the filing, within ten years after such cancellation, with the secretary of state, of a certificate from the board that it has complied with all the requirements of this act and paid all state taxes, fees, or penalties due from it, and upon the payment to the secretary of state of an additional penalty of fifty dollars, shall be entitled to again exercise its rights, privileges, and franchises in this state; and the secretary of state shall cancel the entry made by him under the provisions of subsection six (6) or similar provision of prior revenue acts, and shall issue his certificate entitling such corporation to exercise its rights, privileges, and franchises.

9. Any person, or any officer or employee of any corporation, or member or employee of any partnership, who, with intent to evade any requirement of this act or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder, shall fail to pay any tax or to make, sign, or verify any return or to supply any information required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly. Any person, corporation, or any officer or employee of a corporation, or member or employee of any partnership, who with intent to evade any of the requirements of this act, or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder, shall make, render, sign or verify any false or fraudulent return or statement, or shall supply any false or fraudulent information, or who shall aid, abet, direct, cause or who shall procure anyone so to do, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five thousand dollars, to be recovered by the attorney general, in the name of the state, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall also upon conviction be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of from one to three years and by a fine of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars.

10. The board shall have the power to compromise any penalty under subsections five (5) and nine (9) of this section. The penalties provided by such subsections shall be additional to all other penalties in this act provided.

11. The failure to do any act required by or under the provisions of this act shall be deemed an act committed in part at the office of the board in Iowa. The certificate of the board to the effect that a tax has not been paid, that a return has not been filed or that information has not been supplied, as required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be prima facie evidence that such tax has not been paid, that such return has not been filed or that such information has not been supplied.

12. If any taxpayer who has failed to file a return or has filed an incorrect or insufficient return and has been notified by the board of his delinquency refuses or neglects, within twenty days after such notice, to file a proper return, or files a fraudulent return, the board shall determine the income of such taxpayer, according to its best information and belief, and assess the same at not more than double the amount so determined. The board may, in its discretion, allow further time for filing a return in such case.

REVISION AND APPEAL

Sec. 31. Revision by board. A taxpayer may appeal to the board for revision of the tax assessed against him at any time within one year from the time of the filing of the return or from the date of the notice of the assessment of any additional tax. The board shall grant a hearing thereon and if, upon such hearings, it shall determine that the tax is excessive or incorrect, it shall re-settle the same according to the law and the facts and adjust the computation of the tax accordingly. The board shall notify the taxpayer of its findings and shall refund to the taxpayer the amount if any, paid in excess of the tax found by it to be due with interest at six per cent per annum. If the taxpayer has failed, without good cause, to file a return within the time prescribed by law, or has filed a fraudulent return, or, having filed an incorrect return, has failed, after notice, to file a proper return, the board shall not reduce the tax below the amount for which the taxpayer is found to be properly assessed.

Sec. 32. Appeal. The determination of the board upon application made by a taxpayer for revision of any tax may be reviewed in any court of competent jurisdiction by a complaint filed by the taxpayer against the board in the county in which the taxpayer resides or has his principal place of business within sixty days after notice by the board of its determination, given as provided in section twenty-four (24) and/or section thirty (30) of this act. Thereupon appropriate proceedings shall be had and the relief, if any, to which the taxpayer may be found entitled may be granted and any such taxes, interest or penalties paid, found by the court to be in excess of those legally assessed, shall be ordered refunded to the taxpayer, with interest at six per cent per annum from time of payment. An appeal may be taken by the taxpayer or the board to the supreme court in the manner that appeals are taken in suits in equity, irrespective of the amounts involved.

ADMINISTRATION

Sec. 33. The State Board shall administer, enforce, collect, and receipt for the taxes herein imposed. Each member of said board shall give a bond in an amount to be fixed by the Governor. Said bond shall be signed as surety by an association or an incorporation authorized to do a fidelity insurance business in the State of Iowa, and the reasonable cost of said bond shall be paid by the State. The board may for administrative purposes divide the state into districts, provided, that in no case shall a county be divided in forming a district.

The board is hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations as it may deem necessary to the proper administration and enforcement of this act. Such rules and regulations shall be in full force and effect from and after their publication in two newspapers of general circulation in the state of Iowa.

Sec. 34. Board may examine books and records. The board, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any return or for the purpose of making an estimate of the taxable income of any taxpayer, shall have power: to examine or cause to be examined by any agent or representative designated by its books, papers, records or memoranda; to require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses; to issue and sign subpoenas; administer oaths and affirmations; to examine witnesses and receive evidence; to compel witnesses to produce for examination books, papers, records and documents relating to any matter which it shall have the authority to investigate or determine.

In all cases where it finds that the taxpayer has not properly reported his or its income, as provided by law, and all hearings where it decides a matter against the taxpayer, the board shall tax the costs to the taxpayer, otherwise they shall be taxed to the state.

The fees and mileage to be paid witnesses and taxed as costs shall be the same as prescribed by law in proceedings in the courts of this state in civil cases. Where the costs are taxed to the taxpayer they shall be added to the taxes, assessed against said taxpayer and shall be collected in the same manner.

In case of disobedience to a subpoena the board may invoke the aid of any court of competent jurisdiction in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and production of records, books, papers and documents, and such court may issue an order requiring the person to appear before the board and give evidence or produce records, books, papers and documents, as the case may be, and any failure to obey such order of court may be punished by the court as a contempt thereof.

Testimony on hearings before the board may be taken by a deposition as in civil cases, and any person may be compelled to appear and depose in the same manner as witnesses may be compelled to appear and testify as hereinbefore provided.

Sec. 35. Officers, agents and employees. 1. The board may appoint and remove such agents, auditors, clerks and employees as it may deem necessary, such persons to have such duties and powers as the board may, from time to time prescribe.

2. The salaries of all agents and employees shall be fixed by the board subject to the approval of the executive council.

3. All such agents and employees shall be allowed such reasonable and necessary traveling and other expenses as may be incurred in the performance of their duties.

4. The board may require such of the officers, agents, and employees as it may designate to give bond for the faithful performance of the duties in such sum and with such sureties as it may determine and the state shall pay the premiums on such bonds.

Sec. 36. Oaths and acknowledgments. All officers empowered by law to administer oaths, and all agents, auditors, and such other employees as the board may designate, shall have the power to administer an oath to any person or take the acknowledgment of any person in respect of any return or report required by this act or the rules and regulations of the board.

Sec. 37. Publication of statistics. The board shall prepare and publish annually statistics reasonably available, with respect to the operation of this act, including amounts collected, classification of taxpayers, and such other facts as are deemed pertinent and valuable.

Sec. 38. Secrecy required; penalty for violation.

1. Except in accordance with proper judicial order, or as otherwise provided by law, it shall be unlawful for the board, any deputy, agent, auditor or other officer or employee, to divulge or make known in any manner the amount of income or any particulars set forth or disclosed in any report or return required under this act. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports or returns and the items thereof, or the inspection by the attorney general or other legal representative of the state of the report or return of any taxpayer who shall bring action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against whom an action or proceeding has been instituted to recover any tax or any penalty imposed by this act. Reports and returns shall be preserved for four years and thereafter until the board orders them to be destroyed. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the delivery to a taxpayer or his duly authorized representative of a certified copy of any return or report filed in connection with his tax.

2. Any person violating subdivision one (1) of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and if the offender be an officer or employee of the state he shall be dismissed from office and shall be incapable of holding any public office in this state for a period of five years thereafter.

3. Every taxpayer shall, upon request of the board, furnish a copy of the return for the corresponding year which he has filed or may file with the federal government of the United States, showing his net income and how obtained and the several sources from which derived.

4. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the auditor may permit the commissioner of internal revenue of the United States, or the proper officer of any state imposing an income tax upon the income of individuals, or the authorized representatives of either such officer, to inspect the income tax returns of any individuals, or may furnish to such officer or his authorized representative an abstract of the return of income of any individual or supply him with information concerning any item of income contained in any return, or disclosed by the report of any investigation of the income or return of income of any individual but such permission shall be granted or such information furnished to such officer or his representative only if the statutes of the United States or of such other state, as the case may be, grant substantially similar privileges to the proper office of this state charged with the administration of the income tax law thereof.

Sec. 39. Accounting by Board. All revenue arising under the operation of this act and collected by the board shall be remitted daily by it to the treasurer of state and the same shall become a part of and be credited to the general fund of the state.

Sec. 40. Refunds. 1. The board is hereby authorized to grant a refund of any taxes erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, and all penalties and/or interest assessed or collected thereon, and all taxes that appear to it to be unjustly assessed or excessive in amount, or in any manner wrongfully collected under this act, with interest thereon at six per cent per annum.

2. Such refunds shall be ordered only after claims therefor have been filed by the taxpayer and after hearing, investigation, or such other proofs under oath, as the said board may require.

3. No claim for refund shall be allowed by the board unless a claim therefor has been filed, under oath, with the board within one year after the payment of said tax, penalty or interest thereon.

4. Upon final determination by the board that such refund shall be allowed, the said board shall certify the amount thereof and the name of the claimant to the auditor of state, who, shall, upon the receipt of such certificate, draw his warrant upon the treasurer of state therefor; and the treasurer of state shall pay the same out of any funds in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated."

Also amend by striking all of the title of Senate File No. 431 and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

"An act designating and fixing the amount of revenue for the biennium for general state purposes; fixing the amount for which levy is to be made by the state board of assessment and review and fixing the amount to be collected by a tax on incomes providing for the levying, imposing, collecting and paying of taxes on incomes, providing for rules and regulations for the enforcement thereof and prescribing for the enforcement thereof and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof."

Elliott of Scott raised the point of order that the pending amendment was out of order for the reason that the same subject matter is still pending.

Speaker Johnson held the point of order not well taken, for the reason that the pending amendment has not been disposed of either by defeat or indefinite postponement.

Bair of Buena Vista moved the previous question on the amendment and the main bill.

Motion prevailed.

Nelson of Story moved to reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered.

Motion lost.

On the question "Shall the committee amendment be adopted?" a roll call was demanded.

EXPLANATION

Brown of Polk filed the following explanation of vote:

MR. SPEAKER: I desire to explain my vote of "No" on the conference report on Senate File No. 429, known as the omnibus bill. I am opposed to bonuses in any form. Those to whom bonuses have been voted in this bill were employed with the distinct understanding they were to receive certain compensation for their work, and now they are either asking for, or there has been given them in the omnibus bill, bonuses in certain amounts. They are not entitled to such bonuses or any other compensation for such services, than their regular pay, and committee clerks who have had as much work to do as they have, are not included in the omnibus bill. The system is wrong and no one should be given the state's money as a bonus, above their regular compensation.

I have talked and voted against these bonuses. Two conference committees have been appointed, and the first conference report was rejected, and the present conference report is made within a few hours of adjournment of the session. It is making added expense to continue to fight against this bonus, and I feel I should not make further open objections to the adoption of the report of this other conference committee.

ED. R. BROWN.

RESOLUTION

Donlon of Palo Alto and TePaske of Sioux offered the following resolution:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: During these closing hours of this Forty-fourth General Assembly of Iowa, the members of the House desire to take reverent note of the passing of two of the most distinguished citizens of the State, Hon. Scott M. Ladd of Des Moines and Hon. Martin J. Wade of Iowa City. Both of these men were great lawyers and jurists; both were public servants of the highest type; both were citizens of lofty character. Both lived to enjoy for years the laurels of an honored career. Both of them brought distinction to themselves, the state and nation. Over the mouldering form of all that is mortal let it be written over each of them:

"Well Done," and "He sleeps well."

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly: That to the lives and services of these two great men the State of Iowa will always be deeply indebted; that in their passing we take note of our loss.

That a copy of this Resolution be printed in the Journal of the House, and that an engrossed copy be sent to Mrs. Scott M. Ladd and to Mrs. Martin J. Wade.

April 15, 1931.

Unanimous consent having been obtained for the immediate consideration of the resolution, Mr. TePaske moved its adoption.

Motion prevailed and the resolution was adopted.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE

The following messages were received from the Senate:

MR. SPEAKER: I am directed to inform your honorable body that the Senate has amended and passed the following bill in which the concurrence of the Senate was asked:

House File No. 519, a bill for an act relative to primary roads.

Also, that the Senate has passed the following joint resolution in which the concurrence of the House is asked:

SENATE MESSAGES CONSIDERED

Senate Joint Resolution No. 7, Joint Resolution petitioning the federal government relative to farm financing.

Read first and second times and passed on file.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 7

Joint Resolution petitioning the federal government relative to farm financing.

Whereas, an acute situation has developed in the field of Iowa Farm financing due to the fact that a large number of farms are now held by banks, insurance companies and other such agencies, which have come into their possession by reason of the inability of the owners and operators thereof to meet their obligations under the existing system of farm financing, the term periods of which are too short for the farmer to meet the principal and the interest rates are higher than the industry can afford to pay; and

Whereas, owing to the state of mind of the investing public, farm loans are continually becoming more difficult to obtain even at an increased rate of interest while other businesses and industries, because of larger accumulations of money, are now able to finance themselves at a declining rate; and

Whereas, there is a positive and urgent need for an adequate and efficient credit system affording agriculture an opportunity to finance itself at interest rates commensurate with the profits of the industry, the principal to be amortised over a long time period, and secured by mortgage based upon a fair and reasonable valuation of the property, making it among the most sound and high grade types of security; and

Whereas, on account of the large accumulations of money above referred to now seeking investments and willing to accept low interest rates when properly secured, the present time is the most opportune to re-finance farm loans and give to agriculture the same, and greatly needed, advantage of the prevailing lower interest rates on investments now enjoyed by other businesses and industries; and

Whereas, unless such adequate and efficient system of credit is provided so as to restore the incentive and encourage the desire on the part of the farm operator to own his own farm and home, there is grave danger that this great industry, and the great group of American citizens engaged therein may drift into a state bordering dangerously close to peasantry; therefore

Be It Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Section 1. That the Federal Government be, and hereby is respectfully petitioned and asked to immediately take such steps as are necessary to effect such credit system for farm financing, based upon farm mortgages at reasonable values amortised over long time periods and at low rates of interest, that this great, basic industry which now is unable to finance itself in a way comparable with that of other industries of equal importance may be placed on an equal footing with such other industries.

Sec. 2. That each of the adjoining states be and they are hereby urged to cooperate with the State of Iowa to obtain from Congress the advantage of its borrowing ability for the purpose of making farm loans on a favorable basis, and to that end provide for the appointment and attendance of delegates at a conference to be held in the City of Washington and to appropriate sufficient funds to defray the expense of such delegates and the expense of carrying on, under such plan as the conference may formulate, an active, energetic publicity campaign at Washington and elsewhere throughout the United States to inform the public of the facts as to the need for and the desirability of loans made on bona fide farm land at present values and at interest rates at least as favorable as those now obtained by other industries.

Sec. 3. That the Governor be requested to transmit to the Governor of each of the adjoining states a copy of this resolution with a request that he, as soon as possible, communicate this resolution to his legislature and recommend its immediate favorable action thereon; also that the Governor be requested to fix a date for the holding of a conference with the Governors of neighboring states, to formulate the necessary plan to make this resolution effective and to appoint a committee of eight whose duty it shall be to immediately take the necessary steps to establish an office in Iowa and create an organization to do everything necessary to accomplish the purpose of this resolution.

Sec. 4. There is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay for the expense of carrying out the provisions of this resolution.

The amount of primary road funds expended for maintenance and construction work in any county in any year shall not exceed the amount which said county would have received from the primary road fund had said fund been allotted among the counties of the state on the area basis, plus an amount equal to twenty-five per cent (25%) of the total amount of county primary road bonds issued by such county.

Sec. 5. If in any county the primary road funds available in any year under the provisions of Section forty-seven hundred fifty-five b thirty-two (4755-b32), Code, 1927, for the payment of interest and principal of county primary road bonds and bonds issued to refund county primary road bonds, outstanding on April 15, 1931, are not sufficient to pay all of the interest accruing and principal maturing on such bonds in said year, then the deficiency shall be paid from the primary road fund.

Sec. 6. The state highway commission shall on or before January 1, 1932, add to the primary road system such roads as will provide the most practicable connections from a primary road to each town or village in the state having a population of one hundred fifty (150) or more as shown by the latest available state census, which additional roads shall be graded, bridged, drained and surfaced with gravel or other low cost type of surfacing. Except as provided in this section, additions to the primary road system shall not exceed fifty (50) miles in any one year until the primary road system has been graded, bridged and surfaced.

Sec. 7. Section forty-seven hundred fifty-five b eight (4755-b8) of the Code, 1927, is amended by striking all of said section after the word "projects" in line eighteen (18) thereof.

Sec. 8. Should the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Iowa, to be known as Article XIII, as set forth in House Joint Resolution number 6 of the Forty-third General Assembly and Senate Joint Resolution number 1 of the Forty-fourth General Assembly become effective, Section 4 and section 5 of this act shall be of no effect from and after the time said amendment becomes effective.

Sec. 9. This act is deemed to be separable and if any section thereof is held to be void or becomes void, it shall not void the other sections of this act.

Amend the title by striking it and substituting in lieu thereof the following:

"A Bill for An Act to provide for the improvement of the primary road system of the state, for additions thereto, for the use of the primary road fund, and for the payment of the principal and interest of the county primary road bonds, and to amend section forty-seven hundred fifty-five b 8 (4755-b8) of the Code, 1927."

EXPLANATION OF VOTE ON SENATE FILE NO. 432

We, the undersigned, offer the following explanation of our vote on the amendments relating to Senate File No. 432.

Since the beginning of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, there has been before the assembly House File No. 2, Senate File No. 2, and other tax revision measures.

The undersigned, represented the House on the interim Legislative tax committee, and have voted consistently, and presented to the House the recommendations of the Joint Legislative Tax Committee and the State Board of Assessment and Review.

We are within a few minutes of adjournment of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, and an attempt has been made to amend the millage bill by an amendment purporting to be an income tax bill. We have not read the amendment, nor were we even consulted in regard to it before it was filed.

It was admitted by some who spoke for the amendment that it was only a political gesture and it had no chance of being enacted into a law. The amendment retains the high exemptions which were opposed by every member of the legislative tax committee and by every member of the State Board. It would tax less than 1% of the entire population of the state. It was also admitted in debate, if the amendment were adopted the Senate would further amend by adopting the Assessor bill, the same as it amended House File No. 2. This bill would then be in exactly the same situation as House File No. 2 is at the present time.

This being an amendment to the Millage bill, it would necessitate setting up expensive machinery to enforce a law that could only be in operation for a period of two years.

On House File No. 2, there have been four conference committees of the House and Senate and the matter is still pending. They have been unable to agree, and at this late date, we are confident that the amendment or amendments proposed to Senate File No. 432 will only be prolonging the Forty-fourth General Assembly with great expense to the state, and without any hope of the same being enacted into a law.
Dated April 15, 1931.

H. M. GREEN,
J. H. JOHNSON,
MARION R. MCCAULLEY,

Members House Joint Interim Legislative Tax Committee.

THE END

We're waiting now for the gavel to fall.
The final gavel that will end it all.
No doubt 'twill relieve the folks at home
When we all have deserted the Capitol dome.

We started out with the best of intention
To revise our obsolete forms of taxation
But public hearings soon aroused apprehension
As we heard from this and that delegation.

The road bond amendment received early attention
No chance to amend or suggest substitution
But after it passed there is still the contention,
Will it ever fit into our state constitution?

Then came T. B. Eradication
Some farmers questioned the justification
Of subjecting their cows to humiliation
In doubting their healthful qualification.

The income tax with modification
Was passed in the House with determination
But soon was awakened the realization
The Senate was planning extermination.

The Assessor bill fixing valuation
With the end in view of equalization
Was placed in a difficult situation
Was lost in a storm of agitation.

But O! what a horrible combination
In the upper house of legislation
While some observed with admiration
Others looked on with indignation.

But what is the use of this cogitation
It may all end up in investigation
And without again speaking of transportation
Lets adjourn and return to our own vocation.

FRED W. NELSON.

THE TIE THAT BLINDS

Presented by H. S. Berry

O, some may long for the soothing touch
Of lavender, cream, or mauve,
But the ties I wear must possess the glare
Of a red-hot kitchen stove.
The book I read and the life I lead
Are sensible, sane, and mild.
I like calm hats and I don't wear spats,
But I want my neckties wild!

Give me a wild tie, brother,
One with a cosmic urge!
A tie that will swear and rip and tear
When it sees my old blue serge.

O, some will say that a gent's cravat
Should only be seen, not heard,
But I want a tie that will make men cry
And render their vision blurred.

I yearn, I long, for a tie so strong
It will take two men to tie it.
If such there be, just show it to me—
Whatever the price, I'll buy it!

Give me a wild tie, brother,
One with a lot of sins.
A tie that will blaze, in a hectic haze
Down where the vest begins.

Kern of Polk moved that a committee of three be appointed to notify the Senate that the House was ready to adjourn sine die.

Motion prevailed, and the Speaker appointed as such committee: Kern of Polk, Allen of Pocahontas and Reed of Mahaska.

Brown of Polk moved that a committee of three be appointed to notify the Governor that the House was ready to adjourn sine die.

Motion prevailed, and the Speaker appointed as such committee: Brown of Polk, Nelson of Story and Malone of Cass.

The committees retired and subsequently returned and reported that they had performed their respective duties. Committees discharged.

A committee from the Senate appeared and notified the House that the Senate was ready to adjourn.

The hour of twelve o'clock noon, April 15th, having arrived, Speaker Johnson declared the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly adjourned sine die.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE

MEMORIALS

HON. CHARLES W. BLACK

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions commemorating the life and public service of the late Hon. Charles W. Black of Mills County, beg leave to submit the following report:

Charles Wesley Black was born near the village of Brownsville, Ohio, September 27, 1843, and died October 12, 1930.

His boyhood, youth and early manhood were spent on a farm where he learned the profession of agriculture so thoroughly and liked it so well that he continued it as a life work at such times as he was not participating in the stirring events incident to the history of Iowa and the nation.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, being then seventeen years of age, he volunteered at the first call for troops to serve three months. He was not mustered into service as the company was full and the government would not accept any more three months enlistments.

On the 1st of August, 1861, he re-enlisted for three years' service as a member of Co. G of the 32nd Ohio Volunteer infantry. His first military service was in West Virginia and Maryland.

Later his company was transferred to the Western army under General John A. Logan's division at Memphis, Tenn. The company and regiment to which he belonged took a prominent part in the events incident to the Vicksburg campaign. After the capture of that city his regiment was employed in several expeditions, one into Louisiana and another known as the Meridian campaign.

In 1863 Mr. Black re-enlisted for three years more. His regiment was permitted to go home on a veteran's furlough for thirty days.

On the 8th of June, 1864, his command became a part of Sherman's army and was under almost constant fire until the surrender of the city of Atlanta. It was during the battle of Atlanta that they suffered their greatest losses. Sherman's march to the sea was participated in as was also the march up through the Carolinas. After the surrender of the Confederate army under General Johnson his command started to Washington, D. C., passing through Richmond and Fredericksburg en route. He and his comrades took part in the grand review of Sherman's army. They were then transferred to Louisville, Ky., with the army of Tennessee.

Mr. Black received his final discharge from the army July 28, 1865. He was highly favored during his military life in that he only reported once for sickness and was only slightly wounded.

In the spring of 1867, Mr. Black left Ohio and came to Tonica, Ill.,

where in September he was married to Miss Martha J. Landes. Two children were born to them, Miss Marian Landes and Margaret Aletta.

In 1872 the family moved to Malvern and located on a farm two and a half miles north of town. In November the wife and mother passed to her reward. For several years he made his home with his parents in Malvern.

On the 14th of January, 1875, he was united in marriage to Miss Hannah E. Evans. This most estimable woman is well remembered by a host of friends.

In his early youth Mr. Black united with the Presbyterian Church of Brownsville, Ohio. When he moved to Tonica, Ill., he transferred his membership to the Methodist Episcopal Church and from there to the Presbyterian Church in Malvern.

In 1874 he was elected as a ruling elder and served in that capacity until his death.

Throughout his entire life Mr. Black was vitally interested in the work of the church and any Christian undertaking. His interests were so wide that they extended beyond the confines of his own country, reaching into many foreign regions. It was in such things that he invested a large portion of his estate during his lifetime.

Some of his principal charities were made to Near East Relief work. At the time of his death his files were filled with delightful letters from that region always thanking him for some generous gift.

One large service he rendered was the establishment of a tannery in Siam. It resulted in a great service to the country not only in the development of the cattle industry, but also through the introduction of shoes which prevented hook-worm, then prevalent in that section.

The Chiangmai Leper Asylum in Siam was another of his beneficiaries. He built Black Cottage in that institution to shelter a large group of boys and after its erection he practically endowed it by purchasing a near-by rice field for the inmates to cultivate in order that they could produce a portion of their own food. Every year his check was forthcoming to provide additional financial support for the colony.

The Board of Foreign Missions will always feel indebted to Mr. Black for his gift of a moving picture machine that was the means of bringing back to America a vivid record of Christian work in foreign nations. The fruit of that bequest was sowed broadcast throughout the land and undoubtedly yielded a tremendous return.

During the World War, Mr. Black fed a colony of twenty-nine refugees, making it possible for them to keep body and soul together. And so one might continue through a long list of similar commendable enterprises abroad.

At home "C. W." Black was the salvation of many needs and a staff for unnumbered people. At least fifteen young men and women were always in college because of his generosity. He appreciated the fact that boys and girls are a good investment. A church and a Sunday School were often indebted to him for much of their sustenance.

Mr. Black was always interested in politics and public life. His first vote cast in a presidential election was for Abraham Lincoln. He professed the republican faith and participated in affairs to the extent that his party awarded him with the nomination for State Representative. He was elected and served his county in that capacity during the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth sessions of the Iowa Legislature.

The state, the county and the community lost a notable citizen in the passing of Mr. Black. Many people in many lands will feel his loss in both a spiritual and a material way.

HON. JOHN BRADLEY

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare memorial resolutions commemorating the life, character and public services of the Honorable John Bradley, a former member of the General Assembly of Iowa, beg leave to submit the following:

John Bradley was born April 2, 1864, near Buda, Illinois. He was the fourth child of George and Ann Bradley, who came from Monmouth, England, and settled on the Illinois prairie to make a home in America.

When John was five years of age the family moved to Iowa where his father bought a farm located two miles north of Montezuma. On this farm John spent his boyhood and early manhood. He attended district school at No. 7 Scott township. Becoming desirous of further education, he attended the Academy in connection with Grinnell College and later taught for a number of years in the country schools of Poweshiek county. He took a course in the Burlington Business College and soon after formed a partnership with James Anderson of Montezuma under the firm name of Anderson & Bradley, and conducted a clothing store for twelve years.

Mr. Bradley never lost his love for farming and this desire led him to leave the clothing store and return to the farm. Here he spent a number of years before he retired to live in town.

Mr. Bradley was more than a farmer. He was a man of broad vision, foremost in every movement which he considered would better the community and of keen mind to recognize the progressive character of the times. His death has taken from Poweshiek county one of its outstanding farmers and representative citizens.

His was indeed a life of usefulness, the possessor of a great personality, strong physically, mentally, and possessed of wonderful persuasive powers and of more than average ability. There was hardly a worthy enterprise undertaken but that his name and influence were not taken into consideration.

Mr. Bradley was a republican and a worker for his party. He served six years as supervisor of Poweshiek county and was recognized as a man of rare judgment and honest to his trust.

In 1918 he was practically forced by his friends in Poweshiek county to become a candidate for representative and was nominated and elected, representing Poweshiek county in the Thirty-eighth, Thirty-ninth, Fortieth and Fortieth-extra General Assemblies.

When fourteen years of age he joined the Methodist Church. He was much interested in Sunday School work and was superintendent of the Sunday School for a number of years and was also a valued member of the official board.

He was married to Lillian Aikin of Mahaska county and by this union three children were born, two daughters, Helen and Mrs. Grace Schafbach, and one son, Harry, all living.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That in the passing of Honorable John Bradley, this assembly take this occasion to express its appreciation of his character and public services and tender to his surviving widow and children, its sincere sympathy in their sorrow, and

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be spread upon the Journal of the House and that the Chief Clerk be instructed to send an enrolled copy to the family of the deceased.

HONORABLE F. N. BUCKINGHAM

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions in commemoration of the life and services of the Honorable F. N. Buckingham, beg leave to submit the following:

F. N. Buckingham was born in De Kalb County, Illinois, on March 26, 1857. He grew to manhood in his native county and when starting in life for himself, worked in a store at Somonauk, Illinois, for two years, first as clerk and later as manager.

December 28, 1880, he was united in marriage with Miss Olive Philpott, also of Somonauk, and to this union were born three children, Mrs. Herbert Wall, the daughter, and the sons, J. A., and Almus W.

In 1885 he moved to Buena Vista County, Iowa, and located in Elk township, where he developed one of the finest farms in the county. He always took an active interest and part in public affairs and the life of the community, holding various township offices. In 1904-1905, he represented his county in the State Legislature, during the Thirtieth and Thirty-first General Assemblies, which position he filled with credit and distinction. He served on the committee which framed the drainage law of the state, making it possible to transform many acres of swamp land into some of the most fertile fields of the state.

Following a short illness he passed away on January 27, 1931, having attained the age of 73 years.

Representatives extends its sincere sympathy to the surviving relatives.

HON. LUTHER V. CARTER

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions in commemoration of the life, character and services of the Hon. Luther V. Carter, beg leave to submit the following report:

Luther V. Carter died at his home in New Providence, Iowa, early Tuesday morning, December 31, 1929, after an illness of many months. He made a gallant fight to regain his health, following a stroke in May, 1927, after the close of a strenuous session of the Iowa legislature, in which he served with distinguished honor as speaker. Another attack followed in February of the next year and the decline in general health followed.

He was born on a farm near New Providence, January 30, 1879, son of James K. and Martha Ann Carter, pioneers of Providence township. His education was received in the public schools of the county and in the old Academy in New Providence, continuing his work in Penn College at Oskaloosa from which he was graduated in June of 1904. Many honors came to him while in college. He was a stalwart on the football team and won his letter in that sport. In forensics he was a leader and was honored by a high office in the Iowa Oratorical Association. Following graduation he was principal of the Grant school at Oskaloosa, taught in Penn Academy, later coming to the farm near Lawn Hill, which he occupied for so many years.

In 1905 he was married to Myra L. Hadley. They have three children: James, an officer at the Iowa Training School; John, student at Penn College; Martha, who is thirteen years old and at home. A brother, Clinton, resides at New Providence.

In community projects he has always been a prime mover and leader. He served as the first president of the Hardin County Farm Bureau; he was an early member of the Cow Testing Association work in the county; for the majority of his adult life he has served on the New Providence school board, developing one of the model and early consolidated schools of the state. He was a birthright Quaker and a member of the Friends Church and the Masonic order. He served his Alma Mater, Penn College, as a member of the board of trustees, for years.

He was a kind neighbor, a wonderful man in the home, and a true and lasting friend and Hardin county and the state will deeply mourn his passing, for had his health remained, there is not the slightest question but that he would have been further honored by his party and the people to occupy positions of higher service.

The people of Hardin county honored him by election to the Lower House of the Iowa Legislature in 1920 and he was a member of that body during the Thirty-ninth, Fortieth, Forty-first and Forty-second General Assemblies, with membership on many important committees during that time. In 1927 he was chosen as Speaker of the House and served with rare distinction in that office. His unfailing fairness and his grasp of parliamentary procedure, struck a new high note in the conduct of the state's business. Illness prevented him from returning for the extra session in March of 1928.

The life work of Luther Carter has been written. It was one of intense action. Every good work met with his support. He loved the schools, the church, the better things of life. He sacrificed much in service to his state and county. But his record for good can scarcely be measured in its entirety, for his splendid work for the state schools as chairman of the educational committee in the House, had much to do with setting Iowa's institutions up on the plane where they can more properly function and do good.

He was honored signally and gave back devotion and service to the people and many mourn the passing of this good man, whose loss is so keenly felt by his family, to whom he was devoted so intensely.

Funeral services were held at the Friends Church in New Providence, Iowa, in charge of the pastor, the Rev. DeWitt Foster, January 3, 1930.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That in the passing of the Hon. Luther V. Carter, the state has lost an honored and valuable citizen, a man of high ideals in Christian living and useful citizenship.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Journal of the House, and that the Chief Clerk be directed to forward an enrolled copy of it to the relatives of the deceased.

HONORABLE EDWARD H. CUNNINGHAM

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions commemorating the life and services of the Honorable Edward H. Cunningham, former member of the House of Representatives from Buena Vista County, Iowa, beg leave to submit the following memorial:

Edward H. Cunningham was born December 19, 1869, at Burlington, Wisconsin. He came to Iowa as a young man, locating in Buena Vista county. While living at Newell, Iowa, he served as mayor from 1902 until 1907. He served as Representative of Buena Vista county in the General Assembly of Iowa during the Thirty-third, Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth sessions and as Speaker of the House in the Thirty-fifth General Assembly.

Perhaps Mr. Cunningham's outstanding piece of public work was the active part he took in the Farm Bureau movement from the time of its origin in 1917. He first served as Secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau for many years, maintaining headquarters in Des Moines, Iowa. In 1919 he conducted a membership drive for his organization which resulted in a paid up membership of one hundred and ten thousand members. He is well characterized by his famous remark, "Don't sell Iowa short," which typified his love of the farm and his great interest in everything relating to agriculture.

In 1923 he was appointed by President Coolidge as a member of the Federal Banking Reserve Board in Washington, D. C., the appointment in which both the late Senator Cummins and Senator Brookhart were very influential. This position he held with great honor, enjoying the fullest confidence and trust of the people of Iowa until the time of his death, November 28, 1930.

Mr. Cunningham is survived by his wife, one son, Glen Cunningham of Cresco, Iowa, and a brother of Des Moines, Iowa, W. R. Cunningham.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That in the death of the Honorable Edward H. Cunningham both the state and nation lost a distinguished citizen, endeared for his life of splendid, patriotic service and the House of Representatives take this occasion to express its appreciation of his life and work and extend to the members of his family sincere sympathy in their sorrow and bereavement.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Journal of this House and that enrolled copies thereof be sent to the surviving members of his family.

HON. W. A. DAVIE

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions commemorative of the life and public service of the late Honorable W. A. Davie of Dunlap, Iowa, beg leave to submit the following report:

W. A. Davie was born near Pontiac, in Livingston County, Illinois, October 13, 1855, a son of John T. and Hannah (Hoskins) Davie, and died at Dunlap, Iowa, April 17, 1929.

He came to Crawford county in 1861 with his parents and received his early education in the district school of Boyer township and continued at home until his maturity. In 1876 he began farming on his own account in which he was highly successful, making a specialty of stock raising. After retiring from the farm, he became manager of the Farmers Co-operative Lumber Company of Dunlap. He was one of the organizers of the company and was its first president. Mr. Davie also was one of the organizers of the Kiron Mutual Insurance Company, which was since taken over by the Farmers Mutual Fire and Tornado Insurance Association of the same place. He served as director of the latter company until his death.

On October 29, 1876, Mr. Davie was united in marriage to Miss Mary Elizabeth Fullerton, a native of Ohio, and five children were born to this union. The mother of these children was called by death on April 29, 1904, and Mr. Davie was subsequently married to Mrs. Florence (Painter) Griffith.

In political affairs Mr. Davie supported the democratic party and took an active part in its campaigns. He served in the Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Thirtieth and Thirty-first Iowa State General Assemblies, and also was elected to fill a vacancy, in the Twenty-ninth General Assembly, discharging his duties most effectively. In 1885 he was elected a member of the Board of Supervisors of Crawford County and has also held different township offices.

Fraternally he was connected with the Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges.

Mr. Davie was of a kindly and genial temperament, took an active part in public affairs and made many friends. He was a good, honest citizen, and his record stands high in the annals of his community.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Iowa, That the foregoing memorial be adopted as its appreciation of the life and public service of the Honorable W. A. Davie.

HON. C. E. DEWITT

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare suitable resolutions commemorating the life and service of the Honorable C. E. DeWitt, late of Montgomery County, Iowa, beg leave to submit the following memorial:

C. E. DeWitt, son of George S. and Sarah E. DeWitt, was a native of Iowa, having been born in Delaware county September 25, 1862. He died at his home in Elliott, Iowa, February 20, 1930.

He came to Montgomery county with his parents in 1868. They located on a farm one mile east of Elliott where they lived for a time in a log house in accordance with prevailing conditions at that time. It was there that he grew to manhood and took his place in the life of the community.

On September 5, 1897, he was married to Rachel Woodling who, with the adopted daughter, Geneva Broyles, survives him. Mr. DeWitt is also survived by his two brothers, J. F. DeWitt and W. L. DeWitt, both of Elliott, Iowa, and by a sister, Mrs. Ella Moore, also of Elliott. One brother, George, and a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Mercer, preceded him in death.

After leaving the farm east of Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt located in Elliott, where the deceased engaged in the grain and coal business. In this business as in all business relations, Mr. DeWitt was noted for his fair and honest dealing.

Mr. DeWitt was always interested in social, educational and civic affairs. He was at the time of his death a member of the Methodist church, also a member of the Masonic Fraternity and of the Modern Woodmen. For many years he was a member of the city council and at one time mayor of Elliott. In 1908 he was elected to the office of state representative from Montgomery county and served in the Thirty-third General Assembly.

No man's life can be fully appreciated apart from the time in which he lived. Mr. DeWitt found Iowa a prairie state without roads, schools, churches or other civilizing influences. He left it at a time when roads of steel and concrete and other means of rapid communication had revolutionized conditions of living; and when the individualism of the pioneer days was gradually yielding to social consciousness. In all these movements he took a leading part and consequently honored, and was honored by, his county and state.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That we extend our sympathies to the family and express our appreciation of the life and character and public services of the Honorable C. E. DeWitt.

Be It Further Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the Journal of the House and the Chief Clerk be directed to send an enrolled copy to the family.

HONORABLE JAMES W. ELLIS

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions commemorating the life and services of the Honorable James W. Ellis, former member of the House of Representatives from Jackson county, beg leave to submit the following memorial:

James W. Ellis, representative from Jackson county in the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth General Assemblies, was born in Indiana, November 25, 1848, of Revolutionary stock. Came to Jackson County, Iowa, in 1852, received a common school education and grew up on the farm which was his home until 1907, when he moved to Maquoketa. Served his country three years as a private in Company H, Fifth United States Infantry, on the frontiers. Member of Soldiers' Relief Commission eight years. Served as commander of A. W. Drips Post, G. A. R., commander of R. M. Anderson Command No. 5, Union Veterans' Union; Commander of the Department of Iowa, Union Veterans' Union, and deputy commander-in-chief of the National Command of that order. Had been secretary and treasurer of the Maquoketa Pioneer and Old Settler's Society for twelve years, and in 1903 organized the Jackson County Historical Society, which was incorporated, and was secretary and curator of the same. On October 16, 1870, was married to Miss Mary M. Forbes, who was also of Revolutionary ancestry; she died in March, 1907. They had four children who lived to grow to manhood and womanhood, one son and three daughters, Frank E., Mrs. Jesse Miller, and Mrs. Fred Albright of Maquoketa and Mrs. Orville Eastman of Clinton. He was elected representative in 1908 and re-elected in 1910. A democrat in politics. Mr. Ellis was a useful member of numerous organizations, Congregational Church, Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce and of several Masonic orders, Jackson Lodge I. O. O. F., and Peerless Lodge K. of P. During his term in the Legislature he succeeded in raising a fund to remove the body of Ansel Briggs, Iowa's first governor, from its resting place in Omaha to Andrew, Jackson county, the home of the executive when he became the governor of the state, after which he secured from the state an appropriation of $1,000.00 for the erection of a suitable monument. Mr. Ellis spent many years diligently collecting historical facts and recording them for the people of his county. His books are thorough and complete, especially his standard history of Jackson county. He realized the value of the happenings of fifty years ago—it was history—and is of vital importance as connected with the history of the present time. An active useful life has closed, but not until after great good had been done and much honor attained. The state is far better for the life of James W. Ellis.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That in the passing of the Honorable James W. Ellis the state has lost an honored and valued citizen and a man of high ideals.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Journal of the House and that the Chief Clerk be directed to send an enrolled copy to the family of the deceased.

HON. D. M. GIBSON

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions in commemoration of the life, character and services of the Hon. D. M. Gibson, begs leave to submit the following report:

D. Millard Gibson, son of E. P. and Edith Millard Gibson, was born in Osceola, Iowa, September 11, 1868, and died at his home near that city June 1, 1930. With the exception of three years during which time he resided in Nebraska, the deceased continued his residence in Clarke County, Iowa.

January 22, 1895, he was united in marriage with Ettie M. Mohler and to them eight children were born: Edith Ellen, who died at the age of three years; Elizabeth, wife of Carleton Neal of Battle Creek, Michigan; Louise, widow of Loren Crawford deceased; Beryl, wife of Charles E. Prescott of Passaic, New Jersey; Pauline, wife of Lyle Foster of Osceola, Iowa; Frank Gibson of Los Angeles, California, and Bernice and Donovan, residing at the family home.

Mr. Gibson was reared on a farm near Osceola, receiving his education in the rural school, the Osceola High School, Simpson College and a business course at Highland Park College of Des Moines. He followed the vocation of farming until a few years before his death when he moved with his family to the city of Osceola. Here he was president of the Iowa State Bank and an active Farm Bureau worker. He took a great interest and was a tireless worker in many community enterprises.

In 1920, Mr. Gibson was honored by election to the office of state representative of Clarke county to the Thirty-ninth General Assembly, and was re-elected to the Fortieth General Assembly in 1922. Here he served with loyalty and devotion the people who elected him to this responsibility. Those who knew him best loved and respected him as is evidenced by a clipping contained in a local paper—The Osceola Sentinel—from which we quote.

"Clarke county has no better citizen than was D. M. Gibson. He was an elder in the Osceola Presbyterian Church, and a member of the Osceola K. P. lodge; was prominent and active in the Clarke County Farm Bureau and other local organizations. A Christian gentleman, congenial and courteous, he met his associates on the higher plane of right living and his presence afforded an inspiration for pure thought and helpful activities.

"In his busy life he found time to contribute his portion to the public service for the greatest advancement of community and civic welfare. Whether engaged as a township official, a bank president or a member of the state Legislature he was ever found faithful, aggressive and reliable. In other words his life exemplified the higher ideals of Christian citizenship. Just how much we owe to the influence of men and women such as was Millard Gibson we can scarcely realize nor fully understand."

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That we extend our sympathies to the family and express our appreciation of the life and character and public services of the Honorable D. M. Gibson.

Be It Further Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the Journal of the House and the Chief Clerk be directed to send an enrolled copy to the family.

HON. C. B. HUTCHINS

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions in commemoration of the life, character and services of the Hon. Clayton B. Hutchins, beg leave to submit the following report:

Clayton B. Hutchins was born near Moira, in Franklin County, New York, January 11, 1849, the son of Dexter H. and Helen M. (Whitney)

Hutchins. With his parents he came to Iowa in the spring of 1855, traveling by prairie schooner and by boat on the Great Lakes from Ogdenburg, New York, to Chicago, a journey that required eighteen days to reach their destination, which was a farm near the village of National, in Clayton County, Iowa. In 1869, the family emigrated to Kossuth county, where Mr. Hutchins resided for sixty-two years. Hence this hardy pioneer became one of the outstanding men in the county's and northwestern Iowa's history.

In September, 1869, he started by stage to attend the State University of Iowa. Here he spent two years, but on account of the losses occasioned by the depredations of the grasshoppers in the early seventies, was compelled to abandon this work.

Mr. Hutchins then went to teaching school and taught in Kossuth, Palo Alto and Clayton counties. About this time he was united in marriage to Miss Eva Hamilton and to them seven sons were born, four of whom survive: Harold D., Lawrence C., Carlton B., at Algona, and Ralph W., at Gilman, Wis.

Mr. Hutchins' work for the public, and his definite ideas in regard to some of the legislation proposed at the time of the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth General Assemblies, from 1910 to 1913, resulted in his election to the Iowa Legislature as representative from Kossuth county.

He sponsored the primary election law, which changed the time thereof from the first Tuesday to the first Monday in June. He took the leadership in the effort to prevent the division of Kossuth county.

In the course of his life of over sixty years in Kossuth county, Mr. Hutchins occupied many positions of public trust and responsibility, such as school director, county surveyor, county auditor, president of the Kossuth County Farmers Institute, president of the Algona Co-operative Creamery Company, president of the Kossuth County Mutual Fire Insurance Company, vice president of the County Savings Bank, and other offices of minor character.

He espoused the religious faith of the Congregational Church, and was chairman of the board of trustees of the Algona church during the pastorate of Rev. W. J. Suckow.

He passed away March 28, 1931, in his eighty-third year.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That the House of Representatives take this occasion to present this tribute to the memory of a faithful public servant, and to express appreciation of his character and public services, and at the same time extend to relatives most sincere sympathy.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be printed in the Journal of the House and that the Chief Clerk be directed to forward to the family of the deceased an enrolled copy.

HON. JOHN F. KLINE

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions commemorating the life, character and service of Hon. John F. Kline, former member of the House of Representatives from Davis County, Iowa, beg leave to submit the following memorial:

John F. Kline was born in Wapello county, March 15, 1873, and passed away at his home in Bloomfield, on October 8, 1929.

He attended the country schools and the Southern Iowa Normal at Bloomfield, and Highland Park College at Des Moines. After completion of his college course, he taught in the country schools of Wapello and Davis counties.

On September 4, 1901, he was married to Miss Susie Darneille, of Fabius township, and soon afterward moved to Bloomfield, where he resided the remainder of his life, except for a portion of 1910, when he lived at Newton, and was owner and publisher of the Newton Herald.

During the years he resided in Bloomfield, he was actively engaged in the merchandising of fuel, flour, feed and groceries, and at the time of his death was a member of the Kline Brothers firm of grocers. He was also editor of the Bloomfield Democrat for about a year.

Mr. Kline was one of the leading citizens of Davis county and the state of Iowa, serving with distinction in the Forty-second, Forty-second Extra and Forty-third General Assemblies, as democratic representative from Davis county. In 1929, he was appointed by Governor Hammill a member of the Special Tax Commission, in recognition of his fine service in the Legislature. He was also author of the Kline Amendment to the Road Bill.

Mr. Kline was a member of the Bloomfield Christian Church, and served on its Board for many years. He was prominent in local fraternal organizations, and a real leader in all city and county progressive movements. He served as city councilman, and was chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee.

His death on October 8, 1929, came shortly after being removed to his home from the University Hospital at Iowa City, where they were unable to give him assistance. HON. J. B. McHOSE in the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, beg leave to submit the following:

J. B. McHose was born in Davenport, Iowa, August 25, 1849. His father and his grandfather were manufacturers of clay products and he spent the days of his youth working in his father's brick yard and attending the public schools. He later studied law at Washington University at St. Louis, Missouri, and was graduated in the class of 1874. Following this he went to Nevada, Iowa, and practiced law for some years but abandoned this profession in order that he might turn his attention again to the clay products industry in Nevada. In 1889 he came to Boone and established the business known as the Boone Clay Works which manufactured brick, drain tile and other clay wares and which he conducted with gratifying success for about twenty-two years. He retired from active business life in 1910.

Mr. McHose was always prominent in public life. He was a keen student of the important questions of the day and took an active part in promoting the principles of the republican party in which he believed and was in demand as a campaign speaker. He became Chairman of the Republican County Committee, for a number of years was a member of the city council of his home city and in this he took an active part in inaugurating a number of civic improvements.

In 1912, Mr. McHose was elected to become a member of the House of Representatives and during his service was a member of its most important committees and took an active part in legislative matters.

He early saw the need of improved highways and was one of the pioneers in the good roads movement in Iowa and gave considerable of his time and energy in endeavoring to obtain a state-wide system of highways upon which the public could travel safely. The Daniel Boone Trail, extending from Minneapolis to St. Louis, was located and promoted by him and he was the first president of the Daniel Boone Trail Association. His ability was recognized by his associates when he was actively engaged in business life and for several years he served as president of the State Brick and Tile Makers Association. He also was the governor of the Iowa-Nebraska District of the Lions Club.

Mr. McHose was always a lover of nature and for a number of years was a member of the Board of Park Commissioners of his home city. Realizing that adequate park facilities was a necessity and would become more necessary in the future, he acquired a tract of beautiful woodland adjoining the city of Boone and presented it to the city upon the condition that it be used forever as a public park. It was named after him and now the citizens of Boone are justly proud of the benefaction which has made McHose Park a beautiful playground. In addition to this generous gift he provided in his will that practically all of his estate would be spent in making permanent improvements in the park.

On March 16, 1876, Mr. McHose married Miss Ella Hamor who survived him but is now deceased. They had no children.

Mr. McHose passed away at his home June 17, 1927. At his death his city and state lost a public spirited benefactor.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That in the death of Honorable J. B.

HON. G. H. VAN HOUTEN

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare suitable resolutions commemorating the life and service of the Hon. G. H. Van Houten of Taylor County, Iowa, beg leave to submit the following report:

George H. Van Houten was born near Rockport, Missouri, Atchinson county, February 24, 1847, and died at Lenox, Iowa, October 17, 1930. In the year 1848, with his parents, he came to Madison County, Iowa, about five miles east of Winterset, moving to Cass county in 1850 near Lewis, then the county seat of Cass county, again in 1855 moving to Taylor county near Conway.

In the year of 1864 he volunteered his service and was accepted in Company E, 4th Missouri Cavalry, United States Service, at Sedalia, Missouri, and was honorably discharged at St. Louis, July 5, 1865.

In 1866 he was married to Salina A. Jenks, a playmate of his childhood days. They began life together near Lenox, Iowa, where twelve children were born to them who grew to maturity, besides helping to raise eight orphan children. On account of poor school facilities and impaired eyesight caused by measles, his education was neglected until when his children were attending school, he again entered school with such success that he later became a teacher.

He followed the occupation of farmer, stock raiser, nurseryman, publisher and lecturer. He had an enviable reputation as an orator and public speaker. One of his greatest assets was his wonderful memory of what he had observed and read. He was county treasurer 1884-1885; was once postmaster of Lenox; secretary of Southwestern Iowa Horticultural Society, secretary of Iowa State Horticultural Society, secretary of Iowa Agriculture, secretary of American Association of Fairs and Expositions. In the year 1891 he was the chosen nominee of his party for lieutenant governor. He served as a member of the House of Representatives in the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-sixth Extra, Twenty-seventh and Thirty-second General Assemblies from the Eighth District where he became known as a parliamentarian.

As a publisher, he published the Lenox Time Table, the Industrial Record and Argus of Bedford, and the Rural Northwest in Des Moines. The New Times, later consolidated with the Lenox Time Table, was the last newspaper he owned and published. He had been a contributor to many other publications. He was a charter member of Excelsior Grange near Lenox, the Sunday School, M. E. Church, Masons, I. O. O. F., K. P., Good Templars, Order of Eastern Star, Sons of Veterans, G. A. R., all of Lenox, and the Consistory of Des Moines. In politics, he was a republican, taking great interest in political affairs of his state and nation.

As a world traveler, historian and lecturer, he had few equals and no superiors. In the year 1927, he made a trip to Europe, Asia and Africa, when more than 80 years of age, visiting the Holy Land on that trip. In recent years he had been employed as a lecturer at KMA and KFNF Radio Stations at Shenandoah, Iowa.

His widow; one brother, Oscar, Yakima, Washington; four sons, M. B. and V., Bellingham, Washington; W. C., Lenox, Iowa; A. W., Davenport, Iowa; four daughters, Marge Barrens, Lenox, Iowa; Abi L. Dawson, Veradale, Washington; Bessie McEleern, Maryville, California; Clara Myrtle Boyer, Creston, Iowa; Mary D. Bell, Bellingham, Washington, survive him.

Be It Resolved, That in the passing of the Hon. George H. Van Houten, the state has lost a valuable and honored citizen, a man of high ideals in Christian living.

Be It Further Resolved, That these resolutions of respect and appreciation be printed in the Journal of the House and that the Chief Clerk be directed to forward copies to the surviving relatives.

HON. WILLIAM MANSFIELD WALKER

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, appointed to prepare resolutions commemorating the life and public service of the Honorable William Mansfield Walker, state representative, reports as follows:

Mr. Walker was born in Van Buren county, Iowa, August 22, 1852, and died in Keosauqua March 19, 1930. His parents, Dr. Peter Walker and Christiann (Schuyler) Walker, having died when Mr. Walker was a small boy, he made his home with relatives, and attended country school, later teaching. He took up the study of law, was admitted to the bar in 1881 and in 1884 located in Keosauqua as a member of the firm of Lea, Wherry & Walker. In 1885 he was elected representative and served in the Twenty-first General Assembly. After the death of Mr. Lea in 1885 the firm remained Wherry & Walker until the removal of Mr. Wherry to Los Angeles, California, when the firm became Walker & McBeth, and so remained until Mr. Walker was elected a judge of the Second Judicial District in 1922. He was re-elected four years later and was serving in that position at the time of his death.

Mr. Walker was greatly interested in his profession in which he gained distinction for his thorough knowledge of the law, his professional rectitude, his fairness of judgment and his courage. Nothing can demonstrate more clearly the quality of his mind and spirit than the fact that a man who had none of the advantages of law school or college could be elected as a member of the General Assembly and twice elected judge of the district court.

He was a man of broad human sympathy, charitable in his judgments, kindly and unselfish in his dealings with his fellowmen.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That in the death of Honorable William Mansfield Walker, the state has lost a worthy and influential citizen; and

Be It Further Resolved, That this resolution of respect and appreciation be printed in the Journal of the House.

Report of University Investigation Committee

To the Governor of Iowa and the Senate and House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly of Iowa:

The mandate of the Legislature in House Concurrent Resolution number eight providing for the appointment of the Committee was to thoroughly investigate the conditions of the management and administration of the affairs of the State University of Iowa, "both by the officials and employees thereof and the State Board of Education." It was made the duty of the Committee to investigate charges and claims of mal-administration of the affairs of the University which had been made "and also all other matters in connection therewith as they may arise, and in connection with the administration of the State Board of Education and the institutions under its control, and make written report of its findings and a recommendation to the Governor and the General Assembly of the State of Iowa."

The Committee believes that its task has been a most difficult one inasmuch as they have been called upon to conduct an investigation of the affairs of the State University of Iowa covering a long period of years. This has made necessary the inquiry into scores of activities, ranging from building enterprises and financial affairs to inter-collegiate athletics. Approximately seventy-five (75) witnesses have been examined, over four hundred (400) documentary and photographic exhibits have been introduced, books and records over many years of time have been studied and the Committee has been busily engaged in hearing testimony and receiving evidence in daily sessions for a period of six (6) weeks. The transcript of testimony covering the sessions of this Committee contain more than six thousand (6000) typewritten pages and a copy of same is filed herewith in the offices of the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate of the Forty-Fourth General Assembly, and by this reference all of the testimony contained in said transcript is hereby made a part of this report.

gation have been under the erroneous impression that the Committee was sitting as a sort of legislative grand jury to make a presentment charging the stealing of specific items of money or property and are disposed to measure the success of the investigation in accordance with the report of this Committee as to whether or not it has discovered evidence of such specific larceny. Contrary to this impression, it is the view of the Committee that their chief duty was to investigate matters generally pertaining to the administration and management of the affairs of the University; to ascertain and determine whether it was in accordance with good business practice or was lax in any respects, and to justly weigh and criticise what they found amiss and make recommendations for betterment. This investigation has not been intended to be and should not be considered as inimical to the best interests of the University, in which the members of this Committee have the same interest as other citizens of this State.

Though finding laxity in many things, we begin by disclaiming the purpose to charge any specific crime or offense against the Board or other executive officers. We make herein no finding or presentment of larceny of any specific items of money or property. We report no basis for criminal prosecution of any person. The criticisms hereinafter contained are confined to the methods followed in the administration and management of the business and affairs of the University. Obviously where that is lax, there is more opportunity for misappropriation, particularly by subordinates, than where the highest standard of business practice has been applied.

In response to the mandate from the General Assembly, the Committee begs leave to submit the following report of its findings, based upon the investigation made:

FINDINGS

I

The Committee deems it necessary to refer to certain statutes, not for the purpose of presenting findings of law or of presenting the Committee's view of their interpretation (which it does not consider is within its province), but as a basis for its findings as to the performance of duty upon the part of those whose acts are under investigation. The duties of officials and employees and of the Board of Education, in respect to management and administration of the affairs of the University cannot be intelligently reported without some reference to laws prescribing the duties of officials and employees entrusted with such management and administration.

a. The principal powers and duties of the Board of Education are now defined in Section 3921 of the 1927 Code, and prior to 1924 were defined by Section 2682-f of the 1913 Code Supplement.

The Finance Committee is selected by the Board from outside the board membership, and certain duties are conferred upon it by law, principally with respect to loaning funds of the institution and (as a Committee) attending each institution monthly for the transaction of its business and the performance of its duties. (1927 Code, Sections 3926 and 3932; 1913 Code Supplement, Sections 2682-s and 2682-k.) In addition to the prescribed statutory duties, the Finance Committee "shall make such investigations and reports and perform such ministerial duties as the board by resolution may direct." The statutes also provide that the Finance Committee may make any recommendations to the Board it may deem proper. 1927 Code, Section 3924; 1913 Supplement, Section 2682-h.

The present statutes, in existence since the 1924 Code has been in effect, forbids the purchase of real estate "save upon the order of the Board made at a regular meeting or one called for that purpose." 1927 Code, Section 3922. The following section (3923) requires that the acts of the Board "relating to the management, purchase, disposition or use of lands and other property" shall be entered of record, which shall show the members present and how each voted upon each proposition.

The corresponding provision of Section 2682-h of the 1913 Supplement (in effect prior to the 1924 Code), did not require the recorded vote of each member of the Board on such matters unless a roll call was demanded, but indicates the necessity for Board action on all such matters, and that such action must be "entered of record." Complete records are required to be kept by the Secretary (1927 Code, Section 3925; 1913 Supplement, Section 2682-h). "All acts of the Board relating to the management, purchase, disposition or use of lands or other property of said educational institutions, shall be entered of record, and shall show who are present and how each member voted upon each proposition when a roll call is demanded."

b. The Committee reports that real estate has been purchased and paid for with State funds without any other action entered of record by the Board of Education than is indicated herein. Board Minute Book 4, page 360, contains the following, adopted in April, 1923:

“Purchase of Land. The balance on hand June 30, 1923, of income from tuitions and fees is to be expended for additional land under the directions of the Finance Committee.”

In 1918 (Volume 3, page 187, of the Board minutes), is found the following:

“Condemnation of Land. Upon the recommendations of President Jessup, the Finance Committee was instructed to purchase certain lands which will be needed by the University, but if the properties cannot be bought at reasonable prices, condemnation proceedings are to be commenced.”

There is a similar minute to that last quoted, under date of November 22, 1923 (Board Minutes 4, page 543), viz:

“Purchase of Additional Land. It was moved and seconded that the Finance Committee be instructed to purchase certain properties for the use and benefit of the State University provided satisfactory prices can be secured and if the prices are considered too high, the said committee was authorized to commence condemnation proceedings.”

No further designation or description of the “certain properties” appears anywhere in the records of the Board.

From time to time the Secretary of the University (W. H. Bates) at the direction of the Finance Committee, at meetings attended often only by W. R. Boyd, negotiated for the purchase of many parcels of real estate, for which in the aggregate several hundreds of thousands of dollars were paid. One such transaction is referred to, the Finance Committee minutes bearing date March 7, 1924 (all members of the Finance Committee present at this meeting). The Record is as follows:

“President Jessup and Secretary Bates submitted a list of the property which the University wishes to acquire by purchase together with appraisals made by the appraisal committee of the Iowa City Association of Realtors.”

The list contains a description of parcels, for which the following prices were to be paid, viz: $7,950, $4,600, $3,850, $5,480, $3,600, $4,950, $7,600, $5,600, $2,450, $4,000, $4,500, $11,500, $10,350, $2,800, $17,221, $16,500, $1,200, $24,000, $26,000, $9,000, $6,600, $19,780, $3,500, $2,800, $7,250. At another Finance Committee meeting (6 Finance Committee minutes, 576-7), Mr. Bates was authorized to negotiate for the purchase of other parcels at prices as follows: $5,600, $3,250, $1,100, $20,000, $14,300, $14,000, $10,000, $3,600, $5,000, $3,750, $2,500, $14,750, $10,000, $300, $11,500.

And at the meeting last mentioned the purchase by Secretary Bates of parcels at prices indicated below, was approved by the Finance Committee, viz: $5,600, $9,000, $20,780, $3,500, $2,800, $16,500, $17,221, $2,800, $7,960, $4,600, $8,500 (Tr. 1863).

The 1926 Biennial Report of the Board of Education, page 17, refers to "the expensive methods we have been compelled to work under when buying additional land for the State University," and appears to recognize the fact that the prices thus paid were more than moderate. Many of the parcels purchased have not been utilized as sites of buildings erected for the use of the University. Some thirty-five are rented to tenants, and after deducting the cost of repairs and maintenance, afford a very inadequate return upon the capital invested. Many of the parcels so purchased, because they consist of small tracts, are unsuitable as sites for University buildings without the purchase of contiguous tracts. Legislative authority for an expansion of the University campus to embrace all the lands so purchased, has not been granted, and it is the finding of the Committee that the funds expended for the purchase of scattered parcels of real estate not required as sites for any buildings or improvements authorized by legislative act or appropriation, was at least in excess of the powers conferred upon the Finance Committee, and was not done in the manner required by the statutes referred to for authorized purchases.

c. In connection with the foregoing paragraph, the Committee further reports: More than $500,000 paid for real estate was paid, not out of legislative appropriations for the purchase of real estate but out of student tuitions and fees.

"The secretarial officer" of each institution is required by statute to make a report in such detail and form as the Board of Education prescribes, which must set forth "the funds available each fiscal year" from all sources, for (1) erection, equipment, improvement and repair of buildings; and (2) the interest on endowment and other funds, tuition, state appropriations, laboratory and janitor fees, donations, rents and income from all sources affecting the annual income of the support funds. This report shall also show under separate headings how the funds were expended. (Doubtless this requirement refers to the funds available for the preceding biennial period.) Code, Section 3937.

With these reports before it, the Board of Education is by statute required to report to the Governor and the Legislature all facts, observations and conclusions which the Legislature should consider. And this report must itemize receipts and expenditures, and must submit the report of the executive officer or summaries thereof: “and shall submit budgets for biennial appropriations deemed necessary and proper to be made for, (1) the support of the several institutions, and (2) for the extraordinary and special expenditures for buildings, betterments and other improvements.” Code, Section 3938.

These reports are similar to the reports which are required of other State agencies having the management of other funds or property of the State. Code, Section 246. An essential feature of the State policy is this system of required budgets in order that the Legislature may decide as to the needs of each institution or agency, and appropriate accordingly. The budgets to be submitted by the institutions under the control of the Board of Education must distinguish between what is budgeted as required “for the extraordinary and special expenditures for buildings, betterments and other improvements,” and what is required “for the support” of the several institutions.

When tuitions and other fees are paid to one of the institutions under the management of the Board of Education, the funds so augmented belongs to the State and is “available” only for a purpose authorized by the State through its Legislature. The Legislature has indicated that such income is classed with “the support funds.”

A tuition fee is recognized in Code, Section 4273 as a payment “to cover the costs of instruction” received by the student who pays the tuition charge.

The Committee finds that the investment of funds paid for tuition in real estate was not contemplated by the statutes, and that tuitions being in their nature “support funds” should not be diverted to capital investment purposes without express legislative authority.

The Committee also recommends that the practice of taking notes for tuition from students be permanently discontinued.

d. In addition to the purchase of real estate without proper record in the Minutes of the Board, the Committee finds that the Finance Committee at a meeting at which only W. R. Boyd, the President, was present, a residence property was purchased from W. J. McChesney, Treasurer of the University. The record of this purchase is made in the Minutes of the Finance Committee of December 19, 1924, and states that the purchase was made upon the recommendation of President Jessup. The minutes of said meeting of December 19, 1924, state that the purchase is made in accordance with the resolution of the Committee adopted June 19, 1924, but no record of such meeting of June 19, 1924, appears in the Minute Book of the Finance Committee. The deed to the McChesney property is dated June 19, 1924, and is recorded on July 24, 1924.

The statute in effect on December 19, 1924, prohibited the purchase of real estate from any member of the Board, or Finance Committee, or any officer of any institution. Section 3922, Code of Iowa, 1924, effective October 28, 1924.

In addition to this prohibited purchase of real estate from the Treasurer of the University, the title to the property is defective. The deed is signed by W. J. McChesney for himself and by W. J. McChesney as trustee for Cornelia McChesney. While it does not appear that they are husband and wife, such is the fact. The property purchased was occupied as the home and homestead of W. J. McChesney and his wife and although W. J. McChesney had been appointed as Trustee for his wife by the District Court, no order of court was obtained authorizing W. J. McChesney to execute the deed in behalf of his wife and to release her dower and homestead rights, and, therefore, the same did not convey valid title to the real estate. The Committee recommends that steps be taken immediately to perfect the title to this real estate.

The consideration paid by the University of Iowa for this property was $20,000.00. The deed was executed on July 19, 1924. On or about the month of November, 1922, Mr. McChesney filed in the office of the Treasurer of State a verified statement in the settlement of his father's estate that the value of the property was not in excess of $10,000.00. It was appraised at about the same time for inheritance tax purposes but the inheritance tax appraisers appraised it at $14,000.00. Mr. McChesney testified that he had received an offer of $25,000.00 from a sorority shortly before he sold the property to the University. Mr. Bates or Mr. Cobb testified that the McChesney house was not suitable for a fraternity or sorority occupation and gave this as a reason for the differential in rental between the McChesney house which is rented and has been rented to Mr. McChesney since its purchase at $100.00 a month, and an adjoining house which is rented to a fraternity at $200.00 per month.

In addition to this, abstracts of title to many of the properties purchased have not been filed with the Auditor of State who, under the statute, is the custodian thereof, and although a diligent search was made at the business office of the University, complete abstracts have not been found.

II

(a) For about twenty (20) years J. M. Fisk has been the head of the Building and Grounds Department of the University of Iowa. His previous experience was as an electrical engineer and manager of an electric light plant where some construction work was done under his management. A considerable percentage of the new construction of buildings at the University and all, or practically all, of the remodeling of buildings, large and small, has for many years been done under his supervision. He furnished to the Committee a list of buildings "built or added to" at the University between 1910 and 1930, containing fifty-three separate structures, constructed at a total cost of $8,670,637.96. Of these it was stated, "The University Grounds and Building Department has done work in the amount of $2,796,535.70," exclusive of the Memorial Union building.

He also furnished the Committee another list showing that what was called "the job cost system" was begun November 27, 1923, since which date 9,843 jobs at a total cost of $1,666,934.76 were executed, and that there are now 110 jobs in process, the total cost of which is $51,616.56. It was indicated there might be some overlapping of some of these jobs with the list of fifty-three buildings first above referred to. No information was furnished of the number or cost of similar jobs between 1910 and November 27, 1923. The Committee finds that State funds have been expended for construction carried on by Mr. Fisk's department to the extent of not far from $5,000,000.00, the bulk of which was expended during the past seven or eight years.

(b) At the business office of the University, where the principal books of account are kept, an accurate statement of the cost of construction carried on under Mr. Fisk's department is obtainable only by a detailed examination of the vouchers and perhaps the underlying warrants or checks paid for labor and material, a task which could not be completed without more time than was at the disposal of the Committee. The accounts are kept on vouchers and are not posted into ledger accounts, grouping the expenditures upon a particular work of construction in the manner in which similar expenditures would be shown upon a complete set of books kept by a private contractor, builder or capitalist who desired to accurately show on his ledger his capital investment in lands and buildings. No complete statement in any ledger was therefore, accessible, in which all costs of acquiring sites and erecting buildings appear for ready inspection. More complete information was obtainable as to the cost of the construction work carried on in Mr. Fisk's department and differentiating that cost from costs of that done under contract from such records as were kept by Mr. Fisk than from those at the business office.

(c) Much the largest and costliest building constructed at the University is the new general hospital, for which plans were drawn by architects employed by the Board. Originally a contract was let to construct this building in all details to contractors who signed contracts and furnished bonds for completion in accordance with the plans. The extent to which the Building and Grounds department has figured in carrying on the actual work of construction is illustrated by the fact that, even as to this building, Mr. Fisk furnished the Committee a list of numerous items, large and small, built under his direction, in completing this structure, at an aggregate expenditure of $190,228.14. This includes certain large items, among them the following: "All work in new hospital main kitchen, $35,934.68;" "Painting door frames, window frames and general painting at new hospital, $12,240.25;" "Any wall painting in new hospital ordered by Neff, $15,797.64." Even as to buildings let to the low bidder, parts of the structure—sometimes the footings or basement, sometimes the painting or other portion of the construction work planned—has in fact been built under Mr. Fisk's supervision, without any systematic check by the architect upon that portion of the undertaking.

(d) The painting of the New Hospital was included in the general contract let to a building firm—Elliott and Company. The general contractor sublet the painting to one Roy Anderson, who was induced to surrender his sub-contract for painting after performing a small part thereof, for a consideration of $4,000 ($500 for work done and $3,500 by way of bonus). The arrangement included abandonment by Anderson of a nearly finished contract on another building (the Nurse's Home), nearing completion. Mr. Fisk thereafter proceeded to complete both contracts. The architect at the direction of a committee of the Board of Education eliminated the painting work from the contract and the net result was that the State paid $3,500 to cover the estimated profit and expense of Anderson. No new advertisement for bids was had and as the painting cost far exceeded $10,000, the committee reports that the acts done were in contravention of Section 3945.

(e) At the request of the committee, the firm of Proudfoot, Rawson, Souers and Thomas, of Des Moines, Iowa, who were the architects for the Board, furnished (Exhibit 160) a list of twenty-one buildings for which said firm prepared the plans under their last five years' contract, expiring in 1928. They list seven buildings as erected under the superintendency of Mr. Fisk and fourteen built by contract (which includes the Field House and Stadium, paid for largely from funds borrowed by the athletic council). As reported heretofore, the committee finds that portions of the work upon the buildings listed by the architects as built by contract were in certain instances taken over and done by Mr. Fisk. A representative of the firm of architects testified that in such cases the architects treated the further work of construction as done by the "owners" and hence as not requiring further supervision from the architects unless called for. The committee finds that this resulted in at least the case of constructing the building known as the Addition to the Men's Dormitory in material changes in the plans in process of construction. The list furnished by Mr. Fisk includes many more buildings than were designed by the architects and as to such structures constructed under Mr. Fisk's management and not designed by the firm of architects referred to, any plans for their construction were prepared by someone in Mr. Fisk's department and no letting was had or bids taken preliminary to the work of construction undertaken under Mr. Fisk's supervision.

(f) With respect to three of the seven buildings listed by the architects (Exhibit 160) as built by Mr. Fisk in accordance with plans drawn by the architect (Addition to Men's Dormitory, West Approach to Old Capitol, Addition to Chemistry Building) plans were prepared and bids were taken but no contract let. Subsequent to such advertising for bids the plans with respect to these three buildings were revised and material changes made in the structure or improvement. As to one, the basement floor was eliminated. Subsequent to such revision, Mr. Fisk's department proceeded to construct a building. The committee reports that the revisions so made were of a character and extent to require a re-advertisement for bids under the provisions of Section 3945, 1927 Code.

Both with respect to work done by Mr. Fisk on the New Hospital and the construction of the three buildings last referred to, the committee reports there has not been compliance with the requirements of the law. The amount of the cost of many structures and improvements built without the required advertising for bids, exceeded $10,000 and hence should have been advertised for letting to the lowest responsible bidder upon the plans finally adopted before the Board of Education was authorized to proceed with the work of construction. While the Board could reject bids and proceed with the construction or improvement, the committee finds that after a letting is accepted, or plans are materially revised, a new advertisement for bids is required before there would be authority to proceed with the work of construction. 1927 Code, Section 3945.

(g) The officials have in certain cases taken the initial step for the construction of public improvements required by statute (Chapter 23, 1927 Code) in giving published notice of a hearing upon a proposal to construct a public improvement costing $5,000 or more. Complete compliance was however made in no case. The statute requires that upon the completion of the improvement "the executive officer or governing board" shall file with the budget director a verified report showing among other things the location and character of the improvement; the total actual cost of the completed improvement; by whom, if any one, the construction was supervised; by whom final inspection was made; whether or not the improvement complies with its contract plans and specifications. No such reports are on file or appear ever to have been prepared.

It also appears, and the committee reports, that in the case of construction carried on by the Building and Grounds Department, in those instances where plans were drawn by the architect employed by the Board, the usual practice of issuing "blue orders" for alterations and changes in the improvement as planned was not followed where the construction was carried on by Mr. Fisk, and no record made of inspection, either during the progress of the work or when finally completed. The result is that Mr. Fisk has been able to report that he has effected savings in building operations carried on by him below the cost if let to the low bidder, and there is no record from which it may be ascertained whether the reported savings are due to cheaper construction by elimination or alteration of matters required by the plans and specifications upon which the bids were taken. In the construction of the Addition to the Men's Dormitory, built by Mr. Fisk, The Master Builders' Association made inspections during the progress of the work and have furnished the committee with estimates purporting to show that, taking into account the cheaper construction of the building as constructed, instead of a saving as reported by Mr. Fisk, the cost to the State was more than if built by letting the contract to the low bidder.

(h) Without definite basis of comparison, except in respect to the building known as the Addition to the Men's Dormitory, it is not possible for the committee to report the extent in dollars and cents of the advantage or disadvantage to the State by reason of the large amount of construction done by the department of Buildings and Grounds of the University, instead of by public letting to the low bidder. Mr. Fisk appears to have been permitted a wide discretion in carrying on the work of construction and in altering plans and substituting methods of his own of executing the work. It was common practice for Mr. Fisk to report that he could complete the work to advantage over the contract bid, and thereupon the bids would usually, if not always, be rejected and Mr. Fisk directed to proceed to build. In fact, for a period of seven or eight years, the University or the State, through Mr. Fisk, has carried on an extensive business, such as is ordinarily carried on by a building contractor. When a building contractor chooses to engage in that business he is under the pressure of necessity in respect to organizing his business, of adopting methods and providing equipment adequate to accomplish results. A contractor could hardly hope to keep down his costs who did not keep a system of books adapted to the business in which he was engaged. He hazards losses, even though he hopes for profits. Penalties will be imposed upon him if he does not comply with the plans and specifications. The cost of the construction carried on by Mr. Fisk appears upon no system of account books in the business office such as a contractor would keep, and is entered there only on a disbursement voucher system designed to account for the disbursement of legislative appropriations, tuitions and fees. The committee reports that the books of account of the business office were not adapted to the keeping of an accurate and easily accessible record of the business of building construction such as was carried on by Mr. Fisk. That the construction of large structures undertaken by Mr.

Fisk required an organization personnel that the committee believes was not available. That a failure to comply with the requirement of the statute for reporting the total actual cost of completed improvements costing $5,000 or more, with other information, viz: whether the improvement as completed, complied with its contract plans and specifications, and its actual cost, makes it impossible for any one to accurately estimate the net results in cost to the State of the methods adopted. The single instance of the Addition to the Men's Dormitory, with respect to which more accurate information on these points is available, including Mr. Fisk's estimate of a large saving, opposed by the calculation made by inspectors for the Master Builders' Association of a substantial sum lost over cost if let to the low bidder, leads the committee to report as its findings: That contracts for building construction should be let to the low bidder with the right of course to reject all bids and readvertise, but without authority of the officials and employees of the Board of Education to engage in the name of the State in an ambitious building business as has been done at the State University. The character of the accounting, together with the fact that the primary business of the University is teaching and not building construction, are considerations which lead the committee to report that the practice of undertaking construction is ill-advised.

(i) The practice was followed in some cases of inserting in the plans and specifications provisions requiring the successful bidder to enter into a contract agreeing to purchase specified material from "the owner." In the case of the addition to the Men's Dormitory this included a specified quantity of lumber which the successful bidder would be required to buy at a fixed price. This price, although quoted by one material dealer to Mr. Fisk of the Building and Grounds department, was in fact higher than the same lumber had been quoted to him by another material dealer from whom it was actually purchased by Mr. Fisk and later used in the construction of the building built under his supervision. An addendum to the specifications for the New Hospital required the contractor to purchase his sand "from the University" at the price of $1.85 per cubic yard. As elsewhere reported in these findings, J. P. Langford or the City Sand Company (a corporation organized by J. P. Langford) was the tenant of a small parcel of land and sand pumping equipment which had been purchased in the name of the University from Langford, leased back to Langford with a provision in the lease that sand would be furnished to the University at not more than the prevailing market price and at the rate of ten cents a yard under the amount charged to other customers. The committee reports that provisions inserted in the specifications, such as are herein referred to, were improper, and that the general effect of such provisions was to put the University and its officials in the business of buying material.

III

One of the matters of investigation involves the "management and administration" by the Board of Education, Finance Committee, and officials, including the University Treasurer, respecting the claim, if a valid claim exists, against the First National Bank of Iowa City (depository of University funds) for interest at the rate of two and one-half per cent upon the average daily balance of funds in the depository bank, contributed by the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board, referred to in the record generally as "the Rockefeller funds."

(a) Two and one-quarter millions of dollars of Rockefeller funds were contributed to match an equal amount appropriated by the legislature to be employed to construct and equip the new general hospital and other buildings of the medical group. These moneys were payable at the rate of $450,000 per year, beginning with July 1, 1923. The first $450,000 was in fact remitted in two equal installments, $225,000 about December 26, 1923, and $225,000 in the early part of January, 1924. Subsequent payments were advanced about August of each of the years 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927. Drafts came to the office of the President of the University, were by him sent to the business office, and from thence to W. J. McChesney, Treasurer of the University. All officials who have been witnesses before the committee agree that there was a plan to use the funds from the State appropriation, available commencing July 1, 1923, at the rate of $450,000.00 per year, before using the Rockefeller funds, permitting the investment of the Rockefeller funds at interest until the principal was needed to complete the medical building program. The contract for the principal building (the New Hospital) was not let until May 25, 1926, hence there was no reason to anticipate when the first of the Rockefeller funds reached the Treasurer about the first of 1924, an early call upon the principal for disbursements in payment for buildings. The greater part of the Rockefeller funds from the time they were received, were in fact available for investment until 1928, or, roughly, for four years from the date the first $450,000.00 was advanced.

(b) All the officials examined upon the point agree that the Rockefeller moneys constituted trust funds, the principal of which was expendible for the special purpose for which it was contributed but which was in the meantime available for investment and the committee finds such to be the character of the funds.

(c) The issue at this point has to do with the position taken by the officials in endeavoring to relieve the First National Bank of its obligation, if any, to pay interest upon an uninvested balance which, equal to an average amount of $227,000.00, remained uninvested in the First National Bank of Iowa City, during the period that the remainder of the funds available for investment (over and above said average amount of $227,000.00) was invested in government securities.

(d) The committee finds that the officials were not in any manner derelict in their duty because they chose government securities as the medium of investment rather than put the funds available for investment out at interest in banks of the State. Though often mentioned in the course of the investigation, this question seems to the committee beside the point. The investment should of course have been made on order of the Board and by the Finance Committee, rather than by the Treasurer. The Statute provides it shall be made "by the Finance Committee on order of the Board." 1927 Code, Section 3926. Had the method of the statute been followed the Board would have ordered the whole or a part invested, and if a part, the balance would have gone into the designated depository at interest as a matter of routine. If the designated depository declined to act longer as depository, another could be selected.

(e) Had the investment been ordered under the plain letter of the statute, the Board of Education would have ordered the whole or some designated part of the investible funds in bonds of the United States and directed any balance not invested to be held awaiting its employment for building purposes and thereupon the portion not invested would automatically have borne interest at the rate fixed by law and the resolution of the Board of Education, viz: two and one-half per cent. The portion thus invested would have appeared, if the law was observed, upon a register (kept by the Secretary as required by law) as an investment made by the Finance Committee and ordered by the Board. Sub-paragraph 4, 1927 Code, 3926. It was not for the Treasurer, who was also an executive officer of the depository bank, to determine whether the funds should be kept in substantial part uninvested at all times. His position as an officer of the depository bank having an adversary interest disqualified him from exercising discretion in the matter. The law did not contemplate that the Treasurer should decide.

(f) An anomalous condition exists in that W. J. McChesney, the University Treasurer is also the president of and acts for the depository bank, and necessarily, in dealings between himself as Treasurer and the bank in which he acts for it, he acts in a dual capacity, and the interests respectively represented are adversary. Apparently there was no actual order of the Board of Education in regard to this investment. Mr. McChesney mentions a talk with the President of the University and Mr. Boyd of the Finance Committee, in which Mr. McChesney (apparently then acting for the bank) stated (Tr. 4108-9): "I want it distinctly understood that our bank will not take this money and pay two and one-half per cent because we are not large enough," and in which he refused to be responsible for its distribution among Iowa banks, and in which he recommended (Tr. 4110): "If I am to be responsible for these funds, I will insist that government securities be purchased." Apparently the point to which these remarks were addressed was not whether to invest a part or all, but whether all should be kept in the depository bank. He further says that it was understood the securities would have to be purchased in the name of the First National Bank as it was desired to obtain the securities and leave them for safekeeping with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, of which the depository bank in Iowa City was a member bank. Mr. McChesney also related (Tr. 4111) a declaration on his part at the time that he wanted it distinctly understood he would at all times "carry along a substantial balance." The inference, to say the least, was not clear that he was bargaining for a change in the matter of the obligation of the depository bank to pay interest upon the balance so uninvested, even if it was competent to change the obligation as to interest by any such declaration.

(g) The committee finds that there was no contract entered into by which it was agreed in advance upon the part of the State or the Board of Education (even if the obligation to pay interest could be thus changed) that any uninvested balance with which W. J. McChesney, acting either as Treasurer or for his bank, decided to leave uninvested and of which the First National Bank of Iowa City had the benefit, should not draw interest at the rate of two and one-half per cent upon daily balances. The committee finds that the fact that the moneys invested in United States securities produced interest upon the investment has no bearing upon the question of whether the uninvested balance of which the First National Bank of Iowa City had the benefit, should not pay interest at the rate of two and one-half per cent upon daily balance. This may not apply to funds reinvested from time to time upon the maturity of securities in which funds were previously invested, and which funds could not always be immediately reinvested to good advantage, but does, we find, apply to any balance withheld from investment pursuant to a policy or plan of retaining a substantial part of the fund uninvested, of which the depository bank had the same benefit it had from deposits generally. The argument that a loss might be sustained in the sale of securities because of some unexpected demand for the funds for disbursements for building costs, does not appear to be applicable to the facts of the situation as shown in the record. There was no apparent difficulty in anticipating for weeks or perhaps even months ahead the amounts which would probably be required for payment upon building contracts. It was known that the invested funds must be converted into money at some stage. This did not imply any imprudence in buying the securities bought. It would be just as prudent to invest the whole amount available for investment.

(h) The First National Bank of Iowa City did not follow any such policy in regard to its own investible funds but kept its surplus as the evidence shows, throughout the whole period, largely invested in government securities, upon which it apparently earned a rate of return equal to the return upon the invested Rockefeller moneys and had the benefit for that purpose of the balance which Mr. McChesney elected not to invest in those securities earmarked as the property of the University. The evidence shows that except for the cash reserve by law required to be kept the remainder of the depository bank funds were profitably invested; and that the funds so invested were augmented by the uninvested balance of the Rockefeller funds. The same proportion of the uninvested balance as of other funds in the bank was therefore invested and produced earnings for the bank.

(i) It was to the interest of the State and the University to enforce any obligation of the First National Bank of Iowa City to pay interest upon the daily balance of State funds in its hands. Unless the facts were so clear that reasonable minds could not differ, the question should have been submitted to the Department of Justice of the State. Instead of asserting an obligation an effort has been made to foreclose the question by a record of the Board of Education which would exonerate the depository bank from liability. The first resolution to that effect, presented upon the recommendation of President Jessup and upon the basis of the letter of W. H. Cobb, dated March 21, 1929, before a Board meeting in April, 1929, proposed a waiver of interest upon the ground that the services of W. J. McChesney as Treasurer in attending to the investment of the funds without brokerage charges and safety deposit charges were of a value equal to, or in excess of, the amount of interest waived. Six months later after the matter had been called to the board's attention another resolution was adopted, declaring that no obligation to pay interest ever accrued as to that part of the Rockefeller funds which remained uninvested, because in advance of the time the funds were placed in the depository bank there was an agreement that interest would not be paid upon the uninvested balance. There is an obvious inconsistency between the positions thus taken at different dates, and agreement only as to the results sought to be accomplished. In view of the inconsistent positions taken, there is a suggestion that those who were concerned with the details of the transaction were more anxious as to the result to be accomplished than they were scrupulous as to the accuracy of the grounds recited to bring about that result.

After all evidence bearing on the Rockefeller Fund had been introduced, the Committee adopted a resolution requesting an opinion from the Attorney General as to the liability of the First National Bank of Iowa City for the payment of interest on the average daily balance of the Rockefeller money on deposit, and the following is a copy of the opinion received from the Attorney General in response to the request of the Committee:

"April 14, 1931.

Honorable H. B. Carroll,
Chairman, Investigating Committee of the State Board of Education,

BUILDING

Dear Senator:

I am in receipt of your communication of the 11th instant, requesting the opinion of this Department upon the question of whether the State of Iowa is entitled to receive interest on daily balances in the bank on what is commonly known as the Rockefeller Foundation Fund.

In your Resolution requesting the opinion you do not give to me the facts which you have discovered with reference to conditions under which this Fund was deposited in the bank. Hence, I am basing this opinion upon facts which I have gathered from the institution records on file with the Board of Education.

From the records which I have gone over in the office of the Board of Education, and from the report of the Budget Director's office as to average daily balances in the bank, I am satisfied that the State of Iowa is entitled to interest upon the daily bank balances in this Fund.

Yours very truly,

John Fletcher,
Attorney General."

JF:HWG

Subsequent to the request of the aforesaid opinion from the Attorney General, the committee places at the disposal of the Attorney General's office a complete file of the transcript of testimony taken before the investigating committee, a part of which contains testimony concerning the deposit of funds known as the Rockefeller Foundation funds in the First National Bank of Iowa City by the Treasurer of the State University of Iowa. We urge that the Attorney General make a study of this testimony, as well as the report of this Committee, and that if then, in his opinion, the interest on said deposit in the First National Bank of Iowa City is due the State of Iowa we suggest that he take steps to recover the same in the name of the State.

IV

The law requires that the Secretary keep a register containing a complete abstract of each loan and investment and showing its actual condition. Sub-paragraph 4, Sec. 3926, Code, 1927. The Secretary of the Finance Committee failed to keep any register in his office. At the business office of the University at Iowa City is kept a register of mortgage loans only. No register containing an abstract of investments such as the Rockefeller funds, and showing the actual condition of the investment, was kept. When through the business office the Rockefeller funds were turned over to W. J. McChesney as Treasurer, no immediate entry upon even the books of account appears to have been made. It was stated by W. H. Cobb, University Auditor, that there were reports made by the Treasurer of the business office from time to time. The earliest of these reports that could be produced in writing is quite informal, bears date in April, 1926, considerably more than two years following the receipt of the first of the Rockefeller moneys. The information contained in this report and in subsequent reports made at irregular intervals appears to be spread upon the general ledger kept at the business office of the University. This, the committee reports, was not a register containing an abstract of each investment, showing the condition of the investment and required by law to be kept by the Secretary of the Finance Committee. In fact, it appears that the usual practice of the Finance Committee is in disregard of Section 3926 of the Code, enjoining upon that committee the duty of loaning and investing funds. Its duties appear to be delegated to W. J. McChesney as Treasurer of the University. Nor does W. J. McChesney as Treasurer keep a register or record of investments. It is not the function of this committee to make comparisons between the practice which prevails and the method required by law. We report that the law is not observed in the particulars pointed out in this report. Upon a single sheet of paper kept in a drawer at the First National Bank of Iowa City was entered by the cashier of the bank the only record of the Treasurer with regard to the investment of the Rockefeller funds. More than two years after the first moneys were received (at which date $1,350,000.00 had been advanced), an informal statement was sent to Mr. Cobb by the bank, apparently compiled from the sheet of paper kept in a drawer at the bank. In the meantime no order had been made upon the Board records in regard to the investment of the funds, and none by the Finance Committee. Except for Mr. Boyd, the other members of the Finance Committee appear to have participated in no official action in regard to the investment.

V

The statute, Section 3933, 1927 Code, Section 2682-m, 1913 Supplement provides:

“The members of the Finance Committee shall devote their entire time to the work of said institutions.”

W. R. Boyd is a member of the Finance Committee and its chairman, which position he has held since July 1, 1909. Mr. Boyd is a director and the president of the Perpetual Savings and Loan Association of Cedar Rapids, which position he has held since 1918 or 1919. As president of said association he originally received a salary of $600.00 per year, which five or six years ago was increased to $1,800.00 a year and remains at that figure now. As a director he serves upon a considerable proportion of the committees designated by the Secretary of the association for the appraisal of properties upon which the association's loans are secured. Each year he appraises several hundred separate parcels for loans, making a personal inspection, together with other committee members, of each parcel for which an application is pending with the association. He stated that the appraisals in which he participates are usually made by him and one other director starting at eleven to half past eleven, usually on Friday of each week, and completing the appraisal in an hour to an hour and a half. For his convenience the appraisal work is sometimes done on Thursday or Saturday instead of Friday, and there are usually several appraisals to be made at each week-end, and that the average number of properties so appraised is about five per week. The properties are located in different parts of Cedar Rapids, and the work of appraisal consists of an inspection of the property, including the interior of the houses. He signs all checks drawn upon the association funds, releases of mortgages and certificates for stock. He presides at weekly meetings of the Board, which are usually held at four o'clock on Friday and take about an hour. He also presides at special meetings, which are held at night and that often last for hours. That if the date for the meetings interferes with his duties on the Finance Committee, the date is often changed to Thursday or Saturday. That the special meetings are usually for the purpose of checking up on delinquents and discussion of what ought to be done, the special meetings being held perhaps six times a year. At the board meetings each loan application is passed upon. The association has aggregate assets of close to $6,000,000, the pay-ins being around $60,000.00 per month, with an equal sum going out in dividends or credits on the stock. That the foregoing outlines his performance of duties for the building and loan association except that he has considerable voice in the determination of the institution's policies, and that it is for that reason that he was asked to take the presidency. The association owns a central building, where its business is carried on, and Mr. Boyd occupies an office in the basement below the main floor, where the association's business is transacted. That office is his headquarters when in Cedar Rapids. At one time he sold some preferred stock in a Cedar Rapids corporation, having previously published advertisements calling the attention of the public to the stock which he had for sale, and fixing the hours he might be found at his office. That the time occupied in giving attention to this was only a few minutes in the case of each of a few prospective purchasers. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of a Farms Company, owning twenty-three thousand acres of land (whose preferred stock was the subject of the advertisements referred to) but remembers to have attended but one of the meetings of the Board. He may also be vice-president of this company. Mr. Boyd is also a member of the Board of Directors of a Cedar Rapids bank having about $3,000,000.00 or $4,000,000.00 of aggregate footings. In this bank he serves on the examining committee every three months and was called upon to serve upon the loan committee once. As a member of the examining committee he checks with his fellow members all of the assets of the bank at the periods indicated and signs the official report of his action as a member of the committee. He is also upon the Board of Cornell College at Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and chairman of the Building Committee of a dormitory, but took this position upon the condition that meetings would be held only at night, and has given very little time to it.

The committee reports the facts as it finds the facts to be with regard to the employment of W. R. Boyd in work other than that of the institutions under his management. They find that he receives a salary as president of the Perpetual Building and Loan Association of Cedar Rapids as compensation for the services rendered by him as above described, to which a part of his time is given each week. The committee finds that the time so given to work other than that of the institutions is a relatively small amount of time in proportion to that devoted to the work of the institutions.

VI

In the spring of 1924, J. M. Fisk suggested to President Jessup of the University and President Baker of the Board that he, Mr. Fisk, desired the purchase on behalf of the University of property owned by Charles Schmidt, consisting of a small parcel of land abutting upon the Iowa River and certain machinery and equipment owned by Schmidt and employed by him in pumping sand from the bed of the river and conveying in barges to the site of his sand washing plant, where it was put in condition for sale to builders. Mr. Fisk states that Mr. Baker and Mr. Jessup told him to see if he could make a deal with Mr. Schmidt, nothing being said at first about the price. Mr. Fisk obtained a price quotation of $17,000, and was then told to take an option at that price and submit it to President Jessup and President Baker for further action if they should decide to close the deal. Schmidt then increased his asking price to $20,000.00.

One J. P. Langford, connected with W. J. Block Company of Davenport, retailers and wholesalers of coal and of sand, was intimately known to Mr. Fisk and Fisk informed Langford of the pending deal and suggested to Langford:

“Now we have made an offer and it has been rejected and perhaps you can buy it for us and we can in turn rent it to you.”

That he did this because he still thought that the State should acquire the property. After Langford was authorized to obtain the option, he came back to Fisk with an option at $18,000 and this was shown to Fisk and Secretary W. H. Bates. Fisk called Mr. Bates into the negotiations because “I certainly wanted a partner to the transaction when I went to see Mr. Schmidt.” Fisk promised Langford nothing for his services in getting the option and imagined Langford spent his own $10.00 for the option. Mr. Fisk explained that he thought that at that stage that the University should have the property and explained that he wanted his department to operate the same for the institution.

He explained that the President (Mr. Jessup) and Mr. Baker and perhaps Mr. Schoentgen did not want him to run it himself and hence it was necessary to arrange for someone else to run it. Mr. Fisk also stated that the sand pump was an eyesore to the community, was very noisy and had a great nuisance value. That while the land upon which the plant was located was shown in the deed as only one-tenth of an acre, the filling in along the river bank from the operations enlarged the area (apparently by encroachment upon the river) so that a survey now shows six-tenths of an acre. That no one, Doctor Jessup, Mr. Bates, Mr. Schoentgen or Mr. Baker raised any question of the propriety of the University's carrying the deal through.

That the plan of renting it out was an alternative to taking Mr. Fisk's own time to run the business.

Adjacent properties were purchased about the same time from Peter Wyjack and Milo Dimity, one for $2,500 and the other for $5,000. Of the entire $18,000 paid, $15,000 was allocated as the purchase price of the small parcel of land and $3,000 for the equipment. The former owner, Charles Schmidt, paid $1,300 for the property; at the time of his purchase the property was improved with a dwelling house, which had been removed before the sale to Langford and the University, and it was the opinion of Charles Schmidt that the ground itself taking into consideration the filling that had been done at the time it was acquired by the University, might have been worth $600 or $800. Charles Schmidt considered that the $18,000 paid was for his sand plant, equipment and the business.

The machinery and equipment was later sold to J. P. Langford for $1,500.

The committee finds and reports that the plan of purchasing this sand plant and property was ill-advised and that the State should not have been entangled in the name of the University in a commercial enterprise of this character. That the price paid for the property was grossly out of proportion to its actual value.

J. M. Fisk was the moving spirit in the venture and the fact that his superiors with whom he consulted did not veto his plans to acquire the property should be considered as it throws light upon Fisk's building construction program. The head of the Building and Grounds Department was apparently subject to little or no restraint in his ambition to put the University into business enterprises. The want of business acumen displayed by Mr. Fisk in this transaction suggests grave doubt as to the wisdom of the action of officials in permitting him to exercise the wide discretion which he has enjoyed in carrying on building operations and in the purchase of coal for the use of the University.

VII

Certain charges against officials and employees relating to administration of State property are next referred to.

(a) While J. M. Fisk was at the head of the department of Buildings and Grounds, commencing with the year 1920, he engaged in the construction of several small apartment buildings and remodeling of one residence into an apartment building. During the time that these structures were being erected, he was carrying on an extensive program of building construction for the University. Most of his own building was done by day's work, and many of the employees engaged by him were chosen from the force of workmen then engaged under his supervision in the services of the State. In most cases they were relieved from University work and by him assigned to his private construction jobs. Afterwards when their tasks in his service were completed they were taken back into the State service if there was at the time State work in their respective trades. Mr. Fisk himself drew the plans for his own buildings and gave his own work some supervision during its progress. Mr. Fisk admits that while constructing the first of these apartment buildings in 1920, he had the dealer from whom he purchased lumber from which the interior trim was to be fashioned, deliver this lumber at the University carpenter shop where it was processed or milled for use as baseboards, window trim and door trim and from the University shop he conveyed the finished trim to his own building then under construction. Mr. Fisk stated that most of the work in the University shop (which was done with the University equipment) was done at night by himself with the assistance of one man, a University workman named Kemr and that on November 22, 1920, he delivered Kemr a check of $25.00, in compensation for his services.

(b) Mr. Fisk also stated that for use in his private construction he obtained small amounts of material used in the wiring of houses and for plumbing, from the University stores and supplies at the department in charge of Roy J. McGinnis (his own subordinate), which he paid for either directly to Mr. McGinnis or upon bills rendered from the University business office. It appears that no entry was made upon any book of account of the charge but that checks were given either to McGinnis or to the University office for all merchandise referred to by Mr. Fisk in his testimony.

(c) Mr. Fisk also stated that lumber from government cantonments was purchased to the extent of eighteen carloads, some of which was immediately used in construction work then in progress and a part stored in a yard from which it was drawn from time to time for University work as occasion required. Some of this lumber was used in concrete form work incident to the construction of some of the University buildings.

(d) Mr. Fisk asserted that he thought it was his right to use machinery of the University in getting out the trim for his own private building projects under the circumstances. And that with reference to the use of some of the form lumber from the University lumber yard, a cement mixer and engine belonging to the State in the construction of a retaining wall upon the property of W. H. Bates, University Secretary, that while not remembering the incident, (testified to by anyother witness) he saw no reason why if his attention had been called to it, he would not have directed the use of the lumber and the mechanical equipment as a matter of accomodation to the secretary of the University, and that in substance he saw no impropriety in doing so.

(e) Roy J. McGinnis is employed in the department of Buildings and Grounds and is a subordinate of J. M. Fisk. McGinnis is, and since 1915 has been, the chief electrician for the University. His ordinary day is from seven-thirty to four-thirty but he is subject to call at any time during the twenty-four hours. As chief electrician, he is in charge of the stores and supplies pertaining to his department. He engages upon his own account in handling electrical supplies to the extent as stated by him of handling them "in a small way." He did not contradict other testimony that he has delivered such supplies as he deals in from the University storehouse where the same class of material belonging to the State is stored. He also states that he has purchased a small amount of material through the University for his own use and has given the privilege of doing so to a few others, besides Mr. Fisk. Mr. McGinnis justifies this upon the ground that it is a standard privilege for clerks in stores to be permitted the privilege of purchasing from the store. Mr. McGinnis also testified that he had some years ago engaged in wiring houses in private contract but not very often.

(f) The practices referred to in the foregoing paragraphs are reported by the committee as improper practices in handling the material of the University. The impropriety is apparent whether any loss has been suffered or not. These stores are not carried or equipment owned, for commercial purposes or to engage in competition with commercial dealers. If Mr. Fisk or Mr. Bates is entitled to accommodation in that respect, others are entitled to the same privilege. The example of favoritism is itself a ground for condemnation of the practice. This is particularly true in the case of Mr. McGinnis and Mr. Fisk, both of whom are in the same department. Obtaining for private University stores and supplies from a subordinate, (assuming the same are always fully accounted for) except in some emergency, is obviously bad business practice. Carrying on a private business at the employer's store, in the same line of merchandise or materials carried in University stores, is also open to grave challenge and should not be permitted.

VIII

It was impossible in view of the shortness of the time to thoroughly go into the activities of the purchasing department of the University. However, the purchasing agent was called and testified that when he called for bids upon supplies to be purchased for the hospital and for other departments of the University that he opened those bids as they came in but that he proceeded to let the bids to the lowest responsible bidder.

This is subject to criticism because it opens the door to favoritism and gives an opportunity to convey information to privileged bidders. Mr. Humeston, purchasing agent at the University, denied that he had ever given such advantage to favored sellers of supplies, but his testimony was somewhat in conflict with one of the members of the Iowa State Medical Association's investigating committee which within the last two years conducted an investigation pertaining to the purchase of supplies and equipment for the University Hospital.

The Committee recommends that the purchase of all supplies be on sealed bids and that such bids designate the hour at which the bids will be opened and that said bids be opened at that hour, strictly in accordance with the provisions of section 1170 of the code of Iowa, 1927.

What has been said above refers only to purchases made by the Purchasing Agent of the University.

Prior to 1930 all coal was purchased by the Department of Grounds and Buildings and during the year 1930 official action was taken requiring that coal be purchased by the University Purchasing Agent, but, in fact, this official order has not been adhered to and coal is still being bought through and by the Department of Grounds and Buildings as shown by purchases made as late as March, 1931.

During the progress of the inquiry and while investigating the purchase of supplies, coal, etc., the testimony of several witnesses was introduced pertaining to the connection of Arch W. McFarlane with the sale of coal to the University. From the standpoint of the University there was no evidence presented to the Committee which would show anything wrong or improper on the part of the University or any of its officials in the many purchases of coal through the brokerage firms known as the Arch W. McFarlane Fuel Company or the O'Hagan Coal Company, in both of which organizations Lieut. Governor Arch W. McFarlane has served as an officer.

Under the mandate and authority given this Committee by the Forty-fourth General Assembly, this Committee is authorized and empowered to investigate the administration of the State University of Iowa and the institutions under the Board of Education. Therefore, to make findings pertaining to Lieut. Governor Arch W.

McFarlane's personal activities or the activities of the companies with which he has been associated would be beyond the sphere and jurisdiction of this Committee and the Committee having knowledge of the introduction of House Resolution No. ...., respectfully refers the members of the House of Representatives to the testimony pertaining to Arch W. McFarlane in the transcript of testimony, which transcript is on file with the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives.

IX

For a number of years the University has made a practice of employing attorneys to handle various legal matters in connection with the purchase of real estate and the management of the University. Statements submitted by Mr. Cobb, auditor of the University, show that sums aggregating several thousands of dollars have been paid from various funds of the University for this purpose. Nothing in the record shows that the employment of such attorneys was made by the executive council of the State of Iowa, upon request of the attorney general as provided by statute, Section 152 of the Code of Iowa 1927.

The Committee recommends that this practice be abolished and that all legal matters be referred to the attorney general's office, or when practical, to the staff of the University's own College of Law and that no outside counsel be employed, except when in strict accordance with the statutes cited above.

X

On account of the shortness of time, it was impossible for the Committee to fully investigate the resignation of several outstanding members of the faculty of the College of Medicine in May of 1927, or to investigate the causes which led up to their severing connections with the institution.

The records of the statements made by these members of the medical faculty at the time an investigation was conducted by the faculty committee of the State Board of Education were destroyed, according to the testimony of Henry C. Schull, a member of the Board and of the committee. This destruction of the shorthand notes and transcript of testimony taken was done in accordance with an agreement between the witnesses and the said faculty committee.

Mr. Schull testified that the only criticism which could attach to President Jessup in connection with the matter, might possibly be that he (the President) "stood behind Dr. Dean (the Dean of the Medical College) too long."

In the judgment of the committee, the medical college and University Hospital are both now under careful, competent and skilled management, according to testimony of representatives of the Iowa Medical Association, and according to the published report of their special investigating committee.

XI

For many years the State University of Iowa has been a member of the Western Intercollegiate Conference commonly known as the "Big Ten." This conference was organized Feb. 8, 1896 for the purpose of producing "fair competition" in athletics.

From time to time since the organization of the conference, committees representing the member institutions have met to formulate rules and regulations governing their athletic relations. These rules have frequently been liberal enough to be termed, in many instances, "gentlemen's agreements."

In an effort to further the cause of fair competition the conference employs a commissioner of athletics, Major John L. Griffith, whose salary and office expense is borne equally by the Universities of Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Chicago, Northwestern, Purdue, Indiana, and Michigan.

According to the testimony of Major Griffith the conference has for many years been confronted with the problem of subsidizing and proselyting and for that reason a conference of six representatives from each of the 10 institutions in the intercollegiate conference was called into session during the month of January, 1927. This meeting became known as the meeting of the "Committee of Sixty."

At this conference the University of Iowa was represented by President Walter A. Jessup, Professor Pelzer, Rush Butler, Doctor Belting and Mr. Ingwerson. At this meeting the Committee of Sixty did prepare a set of rules and regulations which, according to testimony of Director Griffith, were but slightly amended by the Faculty Conference, or governing board of the big ten organization, and were then prepared and distributed as a guide to the conduct of faculty members, students and alumni and friends of the various member institutions and become known as the "gentlemen's agreement."

According to the testimony of Director Griffith, "in the spring of 1929, it appeared clear that certain institutions in the conference were not successfully administering the rules proposed in the Committee of Sixty, and later adopted by the faculty conferences, relative to aid given athletes." For that reason the conference, through its director began an investigation into the affairs of four or five institutions which were apparent violators. In the usual course of events the offending institutions were forewarned of apparent discrepancies and in the case of University of Iowa considerable correspondence was sent from Major Griffith's office to Dr. Paul E. Belting and President Walter A. Jessup of the State University of Iowa.

The rules, or gentlemen's agreements, under which athletic relations were maintained by the member institutions of the Conference in the spring of 1929, were published and distributed and read in part as follows:

"No scholarships, loans or remissions of tuition shall be awarded on the basis of athletic skill."

Also the following:

"And no financial aid shall be given to students by individuals, organizations, alumni, or otherwise, with the purpose of subsidizing them as athletes, or promoting the athletic success of a particular university."

The Committee further understands that it was permissible, under the conference agreements, for the University to administer loan funds to students, including athletes, if the same were administered officially by institution and no preference given to students because of athletic skill. For that reason, the Committee finds that there was no violation or irregularity in the fact that athletes in attendance at the University of Iowa were permitted to sign tuition notes at the business office, since this practice was extended to the benefit of athletes and non-athletes alike.

The Committee finds that the suspension of athletic relations with the University of Iowa, which was voted by the Faculty Committee of the Western Conference at the meeting in Evanston, Illinois, on May 25, 1929, (and in this connection it should be remembered that the University was never ousted from the Conference and never lost its membership in that organization) was rather specifically due to the fact that the faculty committee believed that certain individuals in executive and business office positions at the University were aware of an illegal alumni fund being at that time administered by W. W. Mercer with the knowledge, consent and urge of University officials. This, according to Major Griffith and Director Stagg of the University of Chicago was borne out in the documentary "Cobb to Mercer letter." The original fell into the hands of conference officials, and a copy of the same has since been filed with the Committee.

The letter above mentioned sets forth the fact that tuition notes given by many athletes were long past due at the time the letter was written, and the Auditor of the University, Mr. Cobb, therein called the attention of Mr. Mercer, alumni administrator of illegal loan funds, to the fact that the business office of the University expected the alumni organization to make good the payment of the notes.

This, the Committee finds, was a direct cause of the suspension of athletic relations with the University of Iowa under the Conference rules, which read in part, as follows:

"That if any Conference member does not observe the Conference rules in full, the other Conference members will not schedule athletic contests with that member." (Chi. Tr. 28.)

The actual suspension or severance of athletic relations was made in accordance with the following rule:

"Members of the Conference shall sever athletic relations with any member that does not conform in full to the Conference rules." (Chi. Tr. 29.)

The Committee further finds that the reporting of possible irregularities relative to proselyting and subsidizing of athletes by coaches, directors, faculty members, high school coaches, alumni, students and friends of Big Ten Conference institutions was in accordance with the procedure adopted for the administration of the affairs of the Conference in their effort to promote fair competition between rival institutions.

The Committee further finds that the source of such information as is received by the Conference Director, Major Griffith, remains a confidential matter between the Director, representatives of the Faculty Conference, and the person or persons sending such information to the "clearing house" or office of the Conference Director.

The testimony discloses that Mr. Mercer, prior to the suspension of the University of Iowa from the Conference, consulted with Dr. Belting, the Director of Athletics at the University, and President Jessup. It was disclosed that the funds administered by Mr. Mercer were loan funds intended only for the use of athletes, but that this practice has since been discontinued by him and his associates and the notes taken by them and the cash on hand delivered to responsible University authorities who administered the regular student loan funds of the institution.

After the severance of athletic relations, the University of Iowa made application for reinstatement to the Faculty Conference on two different occasions, and that between the time of this severance of relations and the first application to reinstate, President Jessup presented to the Conference, through Major Griffith, evidence of the so-called "Belting Fund." This fund is one which was set up in the First National Bank at Iowa City by a transfer of some $1,500 from the athletic department funds, gained through gate receipts, etc., the transfer being made through the business office of the University to an account in said bank. This fund was not known of at the time of Iowa's suspension and was not one of the causes for such suspension.

According to the testimony of Dr. Belting, who subsequently resigned his official position at the University upon the request of President Jessup, and the testimony of Mr. Simmons, who was then his assistant, this transfer of funds was made by Dr. Belting and the business office because of the inference drawn from the statement made by President Jessup to Dr. Belting that "You've got to get the money." This suggestion by the President came about while the University Director of Athletics and the President were discussing the necessity of making possible the taking up of student tuition notes made by athletes and then held in the university office.

Shortly before this disclosure by President Jessup to the Conference, Dr. Belting's resignation had been requested by the President and accepted by the Athletic Board of the University. The Committee finds there was apparent grounds for this request for the resignation of the Athletic Director, but also finds that Dr. Belting has suffered an injustice which unfairly causes him to bear the burden for violations of Conference regulations which he is but little, if any, more responsible for than those with whom he was associated in the affairs of the University. In the testimony of at least three witnesses the Committee finds that Dr. Belting inherited a bad situation at the University, relative to the proselyting and subsidizing of athletes, when he assumed his duties as Athletic Director in 1924 quoting the testimony of Major Griffith, Dr. Belting made a strenuous effort to correct evils at the University of Iowa.

The suspension of the University of Iowa was rescinded by official action taken by the Faculty Conference at their meeting in February, 1930. This followed a fall sport schedule in which several athletes at the University participated—athletes who had during the spring of 1928 and the fall of 1929 been the unwitting beneficiaries of the so-called "Belting Fund," and 14 of these athletes were later disqualified by the University.

There is conflicting testimony as to whether or not the University of Iowa might have been made an institution in good standing in the Western Conference without the disqualification of the aforesaid athletes. However, the rules of the Conference set forth that no student shall be eligible for competition in intercollegiate athletics who has been a violator of the strict rules or ethics of the Conference relative to proselyting or subsidizing.

The Committee finds that the fourteen students and athletes at the University of Iowa who were disqualified from participation in intercollegiate athletics were, in a sense, sacrificed that the University might be reinstated on the schedules of other Conference institutions. We find that though these students participated in what might be termed an illegal fund set up for the purpose of subsidizing athletes and to protect the business office of the institution from criticism for carrying large and long-time tuition loans, that they did so violate the rules unwittingly. These students, according to Mike Farroh, Irvin Nelson, and Oran Pape, when informed of the necessity for paying their tuition notes at the business office received the suggestion of university officials that they might secure loans for the payment of their tuition by applying at the First National Bank in Iowa City, and to W. J. McChesney of that institution, for loans with which to meet their obligations at the business office.

It is conceded by the officials and faculty of the University of Iowa and the officials of the Intercollegiate Conference who testified before the Committee, that the fourteen students who borrowed from the so-called "Belting Fund" at the First National Bank, and were later declared ineligible for further competition in intercollegiate athletics, were not knowingly guilty of the infraction of Conference rules governing amateur athletics.

It is the hope of this Committee that the University of Iowa and the Western Intercollegiate Conference will see fit to clear the names of these boys from the public's belief and the inference that they were wittingly the recipients of an illegitimate subsidy set up and administered by officials of the University of Iowa.

XII

In making the findings and recommendations above set out, we have in each instance referred to testimony in support thereof. Without going into the details of the testimony, prompting and supporting same, we desire to make the following additional findings and recommendations.

(a) That the office of the Treasurer of the University of Iowa be made a part of the business office and that the Treasurer devote his entire time in performing his duties and that he have no connection in an official way with any banking institution.

(b) That all sums received from tuitions be used only for educational support.

(c) That the bookkeeping system in use at the University is properly adapted to the expenditure of appropriations, or other fixed sums, but it is not, however, adapted to the efficient recording of business details connected with the commercial enterprises of the institution, viz: building operations, handling of dormitories, cafeterias, laundries, bakeries, etc.

(d) That some other and more economical method be used in the matter of employing services of architects for the preparation of designs, plans and specifications for buildings to be erected, remodeled or repaired for the institution under the State Board of Education.

(e) That the functions of the Department of Grounds and Buildings should be limited to the upkeep and maintenance of the properties of the institution, and that the large force of employees maintained for new construction work should be eliminated and only a sufficient force be retained for the maintenance, repairs and minor alterations of the properties of the institution.

(f) That the further expansion of the campus be suspended and the building of additional structures be limited to absolute necessity until the financial condition of the state of Iowa improves and the people of Iowa receive some relief from the present tax burden.

(g) We believe that the legislative branch of our government should not be hampered by the activities of departmental or institutional lobbies, which too frequently seek to influence legislative action in the matter of appropriations, statutory regulations of administration, and in the conducting of legislative inquiry in the affairs of the various departments of state government.

(h) That as the educational institutions are administered at the present time there is too much delegation of power and too many of the functions of the Board performed by the Finance Committee.

Changing the plan of administering the educational institutions is too large and important a matter for the Committee to pass on in the short period of time within which they have to prepare this report, the Committee suggest that the Governor of Iowa, the present Board of Education and the retiring members of the Board give the matter some study and make recommendations for changes in the matter of the administration of the educational institutions of the state.

(i) For the guidance of future General Assemblies, we recommend that Committees of Inquiry set up as fact-finding bodies should not be hampered by provisions for opposing counsel, because the very nature of such a condition inevitably forces the position of prosecution and defense. The process under such an arrangement consumes considerably more time and brings in unessential evidence and testimony of no material value to a fact-finding body, thereby making the conduct of such an inquiry more laborious, expensive and difficult than is essential or necessary.

We believe that inquiries of the sort conducted by this Committee would be more beneficial and successful in the ascertaining of reliable information if the Legislature would permit part of the hearings to be conducted in executive session, at the discretion of the Committee in the same manner as the State Board of Education conducted its investigation of the conditions leading up to and resulting in the resignation of prominent men connected with the medical faculty, in 1927.

Throughout the investigation this Committee has been embarrassed and hampered by the failure of the Forty-fourth General Assembly to finally act upon the appropriation bill which accompanied the investigation resolution, and we believe that a legislative committee entrusted with an inquiry should not be so hampered and that sufficient funds should be provided for the payment of legislative expenses.

It has been the purpose and intent of the Committee at all times throughout the investigation to conduct same in a fair and impartial manner, to do no injustices to any state institution, or employee thereof, to not unduly criticize or put in a wrongful light the usefulness of many public servants who have rendered service to the state and its educational institutions. Rather, it has been our purpose to carry out the mandate of the Forty-fourth General Assembly for a thorough and impartial investigation within the time allotted to us, to summarize and report the facts now to be found in the Committee's transcript of testimony taken before the Committee, and to make such recommendations as we believe will be helpful to those responsible for legislation, administration, and operation of the affairs of state educational institutions.

All members of the Committee are sincerely interested in the best interests and future welfare of the University of Iowa, and it is our chief concern and desire that this investigation will have a wholesome effect on the future welfare and usefulness of the University. We believe that a proper public attitude toward this inquiry and the recommendations of this Committee will serve to improve conditions relative to the administration of the affairs of the University and other institutions under the management of the State Board of Education, will result in economies to the people of the State of Iowa, and that it will eventually be to the best interests of the institutions and people of the state.

I concur in the foregoing report, except as to paragraph "h" of Division XII, in regard to the reorganization of the present legal setup of the Board of Education and Finance Committee. I recommend the following:

THE PLAN OF MANAGEMENT

In the course of the investigation, the committee found it difficult to locate responsibility for many of the irregularities found to exist, not so much because of conflict of authority as outlined in the statutes, but because of a lack of centralization of both authority and responsibility. That which is "everybody's business is nobody's business," has, I believe, been clearly demonstrated. The present system of government of our educational institutions is complex and cumbersome, and instead of providing for a central office from which the affairs of the several institutions is directed and controlled we have a system by which it is impossible to determine from the general office of the board much about the real condition or situation with reference to the various schools. Furthermore, I find that while the state board of education is composed of nine members and the finance committee of three members, the business of the university, in the way it is carried on, has been directed and dominated by three individuals, viz., the President of the University, the Chairman of the Finance Committee, and the President of the State Board of Education. Other than these three, and perhaps a very few others, no one seems to have anything but the most superficial knowledge of the affairs of the institution, or of what has been done, much less to know how it has been done.

The legislature has, twice within the last ten years, found it necessary to investigate the management and conduct of the affairs of the University, and practically all of the time between the investigations, complaints have been rife as to conditions alleged to exist. These complaints, while centered about the university, have to a less extent, been directed at other institutions and at the board and the finance committee. They have, in my opinion, to a considerable extent, worked to discredit the present system of management of the educational institutions of the state. I believe that whatever of success has been attained under the present system is due rather to the high standing and qualifications of the active members of the board under which the system was inaugurated and has been maintained than to the system itself, which, in my opinion, is cumbersome, involved, and fundamentally weak. Equal success with much greater economy and much less complaint and abuse has resulted from the more simple, efficient and practical form of organization of the Board of Control than that of the State Board of Education.

We therefore recommend that the law be so amended as to place the management and control of our educational institutions under a single board of three or five members who shall devote their entire time to duties of their offices and whose compensation shall be such as to enable the services of the most capable and able men to be obtained. That the handling of the finances of the various institutions be through the office of the treasurer of state on a plan similar to that now in vogue with reference to institutions under the management of the Board of Control, and that a comprehensive and uniform system of accounts be provided for the several institutions under the State Board of Education.

Respectfully submitted,

H. B. CARROLL.

Minority Report

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Forty-Fourth General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Your Joint Committee, appointed pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution Resolution No. 8, duly organized for the purpose of taking testimony in the manner provided for by said Resolution on the 23rd day of February, 1931, and thereafter did continue its sessions and deliberations from day to day and concluded the taking of testimony on April 11, 1931.

The mandate of the Legislature in said Resolution was that the Committee thoroughly investigate the conditions and management of the affairs of the State University of Iowa, "both by the officials and employees thereof, and the State Board of Education." It was made the duty of the Committee to investigate the charges and claims of mal-administration of the affairs of the University and also other matters in connection therewith as they may arise, and in connection with the administration of the State Board of Education and the institutions under its control, and make written report of its findings and recommendations to the Governor and the Forty-fourth General Assembly of the State of Iowa.

There appeared before said Committee during the investigation approximately seventy-five witnesses, which included members of the Board of Education, President, members of the faculty and employees of the State University and others, whose testimony was taken down in shorthand by the reporters and daily transcribed. The transcript of the record, exclusive of four hundred four exhibits offered, consists of eight volumes, containing six thousand twelve pages, which transcript is submitted herewith and is hereby made a part of this report by reference. In addition to other matters and rumors which were investigated, the Committee also investigated twenty-one charges made by Verne Marshall of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, which were read into the record and are found on pages 21 to 32 of Volume I of the transcript.

The Committee in its investigation conducted hearings at the State University at Iowa City. While there it had occasion to examine the records of the business office, the buildings and grounds of that great educational institution, the progress, growth and expansion of which has been unusual.

From the testimony thus adduced, and the exhibits offered during the hearing, two members of said Committee submit the following minority report:

1.

We fail to find from the evidence that there was any larceny of any property of any kind or character belonging to the State University or the State of Iowa by any members of the Board of Education, members of the faculty or employees of the University.

2.

That it has been the policy of the Board of Education and the Finance Committee and the officials of the State University, in the development of the expansion program of the University, to purchase real estate out of the funds derived from tuition and fees paid by students.

3.

That it has been the policy of the Board of Education and the officials of the University of Iowa to permit the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds of the University to build, construct and repair certain buildings on the campus, and that in the carrying out of this construction program it has been necessary to carry a large number of employees upon the payroll and that this construction program has brought about criticism from the Master Builders Association of the State of Iowa and others.

That the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds of the University has purchased large amounts of building material in the construction and expansion program of the University, and that as a result thereof the University has been placed in competition with those engaged in private enterprise.

5.

That a few employees of the University have occasionally used the workshops, machinery and tools of the University in matters pertaining solely to the private business of such employees.

That a few employees have purchased through the departmental stores of the University materials and merchandise for their own private use, although the employees did pay for the same out of their own private funds.

7.

That there are some thirty-five residences purchased by the University in its expansion program now occupied by tenants. That in the extension of the heating mains, for the purpose of providing heat for the various dwellings, the facilities of the heating plant were extended to a private property belonging to the Dey Estate, and that the tenants of said properties pay to the University the cost of the heat so furnished.

8.

That in the construction program of the University, since 1924, the state has paid out in architect fees vast sums of money, in excess of $150,000.00, but the evidence shows that the fees were lower than the established architectural rate.

9.

That in the development and expansion of the University, the Rockefeller Foundation and General Education Board contributed for the erection of the medical and hospital units at the University the sum of $2,250,000.00, which said sum was equalled by an appropriation made by the Legislature of the State, and as a result there is now situated upon the campus a medical school and hospital second to none in the great middle west.

10.

That the Treasurer of the University, W. J. McChesney, is President of the First National Bank of Iowa City, and that, as Treasurer, he receives no salary, and his books and records are kept by the University auditor and secretary in the business office of the University.

11.

That the Finance Committee did purchase of W. J. McChesney, Treasurer of said University, a residence property, the legal title of which appears defective, but that the said W. J. McChesney has entered into a bond with the state in the sum of $20,000.00 conditioned upon the correction of said title.

That the funds donated by the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board were paid in advance of the time needed for the construction of said medical and hospital units, through the requests and solicitations of W. R. Boyd of the Finance Committee and W. A. Jessup, President of the University, and that the greater portion of said funds were, pending the time of the use thereof in said construction program, through arrangements made by W. R. Boyd and W. J. McChesney, Treasurer of the University, invested by the said Treasurer through the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago in government bonds and securities, which resulted not only in the conservation of the principal sum thus donated, but in the accumulation of interest for the benefit of the University the sum of \$161,808.30, and that in the investment of said funds the said W. J. McChesney, as Treasurer, retained in the First National Bank of Iowa City, Iowa, a portion of said funds which were uninvested, and which portion so uninvested, from the time of the receipt thereof up until the time the same were expended, would have earned, with interest at  $2\frac{1}{2}\%$ , on an average 90% daily balance, a sum amounting to approximately \$28,762.00.

It is further found, however, that at the time of the receipt of this fund the general banking conditions of the State of Iowa, due to the depression, were not the best, and that as a result of the investment by the Treasurer of that portion of the funds so invested in government bonds and securities the University has benefited to the extent of \$2,941.49 over what it would have benefited had said funds been invested in banks and interest paid thereon at the rate of  $2\frac{1}{2}\%$ . (That as to whether the University or the State of Iowa is entitled to interest upon that portion of the funds kept by the Treasurer in the First National Bank at Iowa City, Iowa, and which were not invested, at the rate of  $2\frac{1}{2}\%$ , this Committee makes no finding.)

That the accounts of the business office of the University have been audited yearly since 1924 by auditors of the Budget Director's department of the State of Iowa, and by a firm of certified public accountants, namely Arthur Young and Company of Chicago, Illinois.

14.

That the University is a member of what is known as the Big Ten Conference in athletics. That during the year 1929 the University was suspended from its athletic relations with said Conference because of the claim of alleged violations of the rules of said Conference respecting the payment of tuition of athletes, and that as a result of such suspension, in order for said University to be reinstated in said Conference in its athletic relations, certain athletes, through no fault of theirs, were disqualified and suspended from further athletic participation; that action was taken upon the part of University officials with said Conference seeking to have said athletes so disqualified reinstated so as to be eligible for further athletic participation, which efforts proved to be of no avail; that the President of the University was not responsible for the suspension of the University from the Big Ten, nor for the disqualification of the athletes; that changes were brought about in the athletic department correcting what was claimed to be a violation by the University of the rules of said Conference respecting the payment of tuition of athletes. That said University has complied with the rules of said Conference, has been reinstated in its athletic relations with said Conference, and a harmonious athletic situation now prevails at said University.

That the books and records of the business office of said University are kept upon what is known as the voucher system, and that in the carrying on of the instructional program of the University, together with the construction program in the development and expansion of the University, as hereinbefore referred to, the system of book-keeping thus prevailing has resulted in confusion to those not entirely familiar with the system, and misunderstandings have arisen as a result thereof, notwithstanding the audit so made by the Budget Director's department and the certified public accountants.

We find that none of the charges made against the President of the University have been sustained by the evidence.

17.

That the institutions under the Board of Education have been developed to a high point of efficiency and are a credit to the state.

SUGGESTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

That the policy of the Board of Education in entering upon a construction and building program with the superintendents of buildings and grounds or any other employees thereof in charge of construction and building should be discontinued, except where the cost of construction or building is less than $10,000.00, and that all construction, painting or repair of buildings, where the cost thereof is in excess of $10,000.00, should be let by contract under competitive bidding in the manner provided by law.

That the policy of purchasing additional real estate in the expansion program of the institutions under the Board of Education, from tuition and fees, be discontinued during the present economic depression and until such time as the same has been approved by the Legislature of the State of Iowa.

3.

That the Board of Education be requested to suggest, in its next biennial report, any changes or recommendations for changes in the law, if any, to be made respecting the formation of, and the duties of the Board of Education and the Finance Committee; that the Board be requested to make its suggestions and recommendations, if any, respecting the employment by the Board of full time architects at a fixed salary, whose duty shall be to prepare plans and specifications for all buildings or improvements at the institutions; and that said Board be further requested to make a report respecting in any way the administration of the affairs of the Board of Education and the institutions thereunder.

That the use of the workshop, machinery or tools of said institution for private purposes be prohibited.

5.

That the purchasing power and facilities of the institutions should be used exclusively for the benefit of the institutions under the control of the Board of Education.

That the Attorney General's department of the State of Iowa should be consulted in all matters of a legal nature pertaining to the affairs of said institutions where the same is practical. That in the case of the employment of private attorneys, the same should have the approval of the Attorney General of the State.

7.

That the primary object of the institutions under the control of the Board of Education is the teaching and instruction of students and not the construction of buildings or improvements, and that the best policy for the state to follow in carrying out its primary objective is to continue to cultivate the goodwill and cooperation of those engaged in private business.
