ELECTION OF SPEAKER

Simmer of Wapello presented the name of Hon. Francis Johnson of Dickinson county, as candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives, preceding such nomination with the following remarks:

GENTLEMEN: I desire to place in nomination the name of Hon. F. Johnson of Dickinson County as Speaker of the Forty-fourth General Assembly.

We come together with definite instructions from the voters of Iowa to do a given piece of work, that of revising our tax laws. Everything else pales into insignificance and it is most fitting that the foremost and most ardent advocate of that tax program should be chosen to guide the proceedings of this body in the carrying out of that program. Francis Johnson, long before most of us were ready to undertake the task of tax revision, was introducing bills to that end. At a time when to mention an income tax, was to be branded as a radical, he was signing his name to income tax bills, and so I say, Gentlemen, it is most befitting now that the rest of us have caught up to his vision, that he be given the position of honor that is justly due him.

That fact was one of the controlling factors that caused me at 3:00 last Saturday morning, to forego my own ambition, and accede to the granting of this honor to Francis Johnson. I am glad I did it.

Now Gentlemen, sometimes in the heat of battle bitter things are said, hostile feelings are aroused, but now that the battle is over, our people expect us to be as big as the trust they have imposed on us. Let us lay aside our personal differences and let us unite back of the chosen leader and work for the good of Iowa.

What we accomplish in this, the Forty-fourth General Assembly, depends wholly on the spirit with which we enter upon the task before us and upon the co-operation we give our leader.

Gentlemen, again I place in nomination the name of Francis Johnson as Speaker of the Forty-fourth General Assembly.

Elliott of Scott seconded the nomination of Mr. Johnson.

Wearin of Mills presented the name of Hon. Otto J. Reimers of Lyon county as candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives, preceding such nomination with the following remarks:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE FORTY-FOURTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY: When a General Assembly of Iowa convenes we can well believe the words of Thomas Huxley when he said, "Politics and religion are the most important things in life." No less than one of those elements appears to be uppermost in the affairs of those who have gathered to formulate the laws of so great a commonwealth as Iowa.

In every such assembly at least two if not more schools of political thought are represented and rightly so. The very form of the American government has made necessary the development of such units that they might serve as vehicles for transporting the state toward a goal of more pronounced perfection. Throughout the brief span of years that have marked the history of this nation experience has taught us, while we sometimes bent our backs beneath the flail of inefficiency, that the existence and the expressions of at least two schools of political thought on a plane of variable fortunes have inevitably served as a stabilizer in the vessel of Americanism.

In the light of such political experience that has come down to us through more than a century and a half of enterprise and that is to be found upon every hand to-day in the annals of surrounding commonwealths it is a satisfaction to note sufficient strength in a minority school of thought in an Iowa Assembly to warrant the selection of a candidate for Speaker of the House from their number.

It seems peculiarly fitting and proper that such a selection should be from the ranks of those who are closely identified with the soil for in Iowa we pride ourselves upon our farms and upon our farmers.

We have followed in the well defined furrow of precedent in selecting a man who has long been in the service of the legislation, having been four times elected to the Iowa Assembly, twice without opposition, in a district where political faith of opposite views has usually prevailed.

The necessity for variations in political thought in order that we may have efficiency in government and the ableness of the candidate who has an enviable economic and political background, leaves a feeling of pride and satisfaction in the minds of the minority group when they present their candidate to the members of the Forty-fourth General Assembly.

Mr. Chairman, I nominate the man of whom I have been speaking for Speaker of the House, Hon. Otto J. Reimers of Lyons County.

OTHA D. WEARIN.

Stiger of Tama seconded the nomination of Mr. Reimers.

HONORABLE MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: It is with a feeling of the deepest gratitude mingled with an overwhelming sense of responsibility that I accept this trust.

Although the General Assembly of Iowa has met in regular session forty-three times I doubt if ever it faced more complex problems with urgent need of immediate solution.

Not least among these are the necessity of prudent expenditure of public funds and the equitable distribution of that portion of the tax burden which we still find necessary for the proper exercise of governmental functions.

To the solution of these and all other issues I pledge my earnest endeavor and solicit your suggestions and friendly criticism.

Early introduction of necessary measures and prompt and careful consideration by committees is essential that we may be able to complete our work in the usual allotted time. It is my purpose to accord to each of you equal privilege and consideration in our deliberations.

Let us be earnest and diligent in our endeavors that the state may be proud of the record we make here.

I thank you for elevating me to this position among you and assure you I deeply appreciate the honor.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 1

Whereas, A vacancy exists in the membership of the Federal Reserve Board by reason of the death of Hon. E. H. Cunningham, of Iowa, who was looked upon and who was a representative of the agricultural interests of the country, and

Whereas, The President of the United States has under consideration as a successor to Mr. Cunningham Hon. Ernest R. Throughout his adult life Mr. Moore has served his country, his state and his community with unselfish devotion, both as a soldier and as a citizen. His outstanding characteristics are honesty, courage, and fidelity, both in private life and in public station, and

Whereas, Mr. Moore has for many years been one of the successful bankers of our state and at the same time actively, not theoretically, interested in agriculture as an owner and operator of farms, and is thoroughly conversant with, and sympathetic toward our great basic industry, and at the same time a financier of wide knowledge and experience, therefore,

Be It Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That we heartily endorse and recommend to the favorable consideration of the President of the United States Hon. Ernest R. Moore for the vacancy above referred to on the Federal Reserve Board, believing him to be at once thoroughly competent for this most important office and a true representative of all the interests of the territory wherein he was born and in which he has spent his entire life.

Lady and Gentlemen of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the distinct honor that you have conferred upon me in electing me your Speaker Pro tempore for this session. I realize that it is an honor to be elected to this position. It is especially an honor to be elected over the votes which were cast for the capable and honorable Mrs. Pendray. I realize that I am fortunate that I had a majority of Republicans in the House, or I never could have been elected over those votes. I think that it is an especial honor to be elected in spite of the splendid and eloquent address given by the gentleman from Palo Alto in support of his nomination.

I want to pledge to you, Mr. Speaker, my complete cooperation in your work and every assistance that I can give when called upon. I want to ask the indulgence of the members of the House in my shortcomings, if I am called upon, and I want to tell you that I sincerely hope that I shall be seldom called upon to serve in the Speaker's chair. I thank you.

REYBURN L. RUTLEDGE.

Speaker pro tempore in the chair.

"ARTICLE XIII"

"Section I. Such act shall pledge to the payment of such bonds and interest thereon such rates or amounts of motor license fees and/or gasoline or other motor fuel license fees as may be determined by the General Assembly to be sufficient to meet both principal and interest as they mature and accrue; and shall provide for the levy, imposition, collection and pledge of such general property tax as may be required to supply the deficiency, if any, between the amount of principal and interest due on the bonds during any year or years and the funds produced by said pledged license fees during such year or years; and it shall be a sufficient statement of such tax that such act direct the Executive Council annually to compute such deficiency, if any, and fix the rate necessary to produce such amount. The provisions of such act pledging funds and levying taxes for the payment of principal and interest of bonds issued thereunder shall be irrepealable so long as any of such bonds are outstanding, unpaid and uncalled. President McFarlane announced a quorum present and the Joint Convention duly organized.

Senator Clearman moved that a committee of three, consisting of one member from the Senate and two members from the House, be appointed to notify the Governor that the Convention was ready to receive him.

Motion prevailed and the President appointed Senator Clearman of Johnson on the part of the Senate, and Representatives TePaske of Sioux and Durant of Hancock, on the part of the House.

Senator Hager moved that a committee of two, consisting of one member from the Senate and one member from the House, be appointed to extend an invitation to the National Commander of the

G. A. R., James H. Jewell of Colorado, and his official party to attend the Joint Convention.

Motion prevailed and the President appointed Senator Hager and Representative Hesse as such committee.

The Committee waited on Commander Jewell and his official party and escorted them to the hall of the House of Representatives.

The committee waited upon the Governor and escorted him to the Speaker's station.

GOVERNOR HAMMILL'S MESSAGE

To the Senate and House Members of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

In accordance with the mandates of the Constitution of Iowa, I submit to you the following message:

The Constitution makes it my duty to present to you the conditions of the State. The reports of the various departments and officers of the State are now ready and will be placed on your desks. These reports will outline to you more in detail than it will be possible for me to do in this message without extending it beyond a reasonable length. A clearer understanding of what the State is doing can be obtained from a study of these reports and in no better way can you qualify yourself for an intelligent, satisfactory discharge of your duties.

There is no outstanding obligation against the State except the bonus indebtedness and on January 2, 1931, there remained in its treasury an unencumbered balance of $7,440,661.07.

In pursuance of the responsibility reposed in me by the Legislature under the provisions of Code Section 334, I herewith transmit to the Senate and the House of the General Assembly the detailed report of the Budget Director concerning the cost of the State government including expenditures for the support of the various State institutions during the past two years, together with his recommendations for their continuance for the ensuing biennium. The same has received my careful attention and my approval as provided by statute.

The report and recommendations of the Budget Director are now available for your examination, and they command your careful study.

EFFICIENCY IN GOVERNMENT

Extravagance in expenditures of money received by the State has not been permitted.

The State government in all of its departments should be conducted in the same economical and efficient manner as obtains in the best conducted private enterprise.

I summon to this task every person in the public service and all other good citizens of the State.

In advocating economy I do not do so to the extent of hindering advancement and progress. In the business of government we must have economy but not at the expense of efficiency. We must continue to advance. We must have revenue to carry on the building programs of our public institutions. We are a growing state and if the people demand, and get, from their government more and more service, they must expect a greater cost for governmental functions and consequently higher taxes.

Iowa has advanced along the line of human endeavor. We face the future with confidence in our ability to keep abreast in the march of present day progress and civilization. To do so we must have a sound economical policy which will continue to bring new capital into the State and make Iowa a greater industrial center that will invite sound investment and will produce legitimate business that gives employment at good wages to honest labor.

ELIMINATING DUPLICATION

As an aid to reducing taxes, duplication in governmental offices should be abolished. The grouping of agencies devoted to similar major purposes would greatly reduce expenses.

Governmental affairs in like classes of business should be regrouped and centralized. This consolidation would mean a greater saving of public funds.

For example, the creation of the State Board of Assessment and Review necessitated employees for the listing of property and its assessment, who could also serve advantageously in the collection of the inheritance tax, and the duty of the collection of the inheritance tax should be transferred from the Treasurer's Department to the Board of Assessment and Review. This will result in a saving to the state as the same men charged with investigation and listing of property under the Board of Assessment and Review could likewise advantageously list the property which is necessary and essential in the collection of the inheritance tax.

Recommendation for this transfer is concurred in by R. E. Johnson, Treasurer of State, who regards the transfer in the interest of economy and service.

Another example: The power to purchase equipment and supplies of every sort paid for out of the State Treasury could be conferred on one agency. A board or commission for such a purpose could be created by the Legislature out of the offices already authorized without adding to the expense of government. Such a board could also salvage thousands of dollars worth of discarded or obsolete equipment, machinery and supplies. Purchases are now made independently by the various departments without consultation. Standard specifications and centralized purchasing would be at least a step toward the goal of lessening the expense of government.

In my Inaugural Address of 1927 I called attention to the fact that further consolidation in our various departments of government could be carried forward in the interest of efficiency and economy in the conduct of the State's business, and in that address, I stated:

"After a survey of the Division of Accounting under the direction of the Auditor of State as provided in Section 113, Code of 1924, pertaining to the examination of accounts of all counties of the State and of cities and towns within the State having a population of 300 or more, it is my belief that the examinations authorized by said section can be more efficiently and economically conducted if the accounting department, as designated in line 13, page 202, Acts of the 41st General Assembly, and the municipal department, as designated in line 14, page 202, be combined and the work done by one Chief Clerk of Accounting; the duties of the departments are similar and when combined are not of such volume as to require the services of two chief accountants."

I recommend their consolidation.

The office of Fire Marshal is charged with the investigation and enforcement of the law against incendiarism, and this work properly belongs under the direction of the Bureau of Investigation. It is not necessary to have a separate and distinct department. Investigators under the direction of the Chief of the Bureau of Investigation would be adequate and eliminate an unnecessary department. There is no reason why this department should not be consolidated under the department charged with the enforcement of law.

I recommend that this office be abolished and the duties transferred to the Bureau of Investigation.

I further called attention in my Biennial Message of 1929 to the fact that the office of School Treasurer in the various school districts should be abolished, and the County Treasurer should be authorized to pay all warrants out of the school funds. If this provision is not adopted, the law as to the audit of school treasurers should be extended so as to include rural districts. The abolishment, however, of the office of School Treasurer would be a saving to the taxpayers and would eliminate an unnecessary office.

My investigation of the hospital situation at Iowa City convinces me that it would be in the interest of economy and efficiency to combine the psychopathic hospital with the general hospital, as it is difficult to administer what are essentially two independent hospitals. To accomplish this purpose, there should be a greater degree of integration between the two. To this end I would suggest minor alterations in the wording of the present law as follows:

(1) Section 3955 should be amended to read "It shall be known as the state psychopathic hospital, and shall be located at Iowa City, and integrated with the college of medicine and hospital of the state university."

(2) Section 3956 should be omitted, since the following section (3957) duplicates it.

(3) Sections 3972 and 3973 should be deleted altogether, for if the two hospitals are integrated there will be no difficulty in arranging transfers to and from all services.

(4) Section 3982 should be omitted, save for the final clause ("all moneys collected from said patients shall be used for the support of the said hospital") and this clause should form the final sentence of Section 3963. As it is now, the hospital feeds and houses private patients, supplying them also expert medical and nursing care, and must then deduct the cost of doing so from what is already a distressingly small sum allotted to the treatment of indigent mental cases.

TAXATION

During the entire period of my administration I have constantly urged the necessity of an improvement in our taxation system to bring about a more equitable assessment, and to relieve from real property some of the excessive share of the public burden it is bearing.

Despite the general trend everywhere toward increasing taxation, the state millage levy, which was fixed at eleven and one-half mills when I assumed office, is eleven mills as I leave it. In addition to a reduction in the millage levy, the assessed valuation of property has been reduced.

The progress made during my administration has resulted among other things, in the creation of a State Board of Assessment and Review, which has already added millions to the assessment roll and is now at work on the equalization of the tax burden on property subject to taxation. It can be said that sufficient progress has been made by this board, by its efforts since its creation, to justify the belief that without any material changes in existing tax laws justice will be worked out by the Board, which will result in a substantial reduction in our present tax levy.

The Board is functioning in a satisfactory manner, and has drafted a program for taxation reform in Iowa which will be presented for the consideration of this General Assembly.

The State has already adopted the policy of constructing its primary roads entirely without direct property tax. A competent committee of your own members reporting unanimously in conjunction with the State Board, now lays before you recommendations dealing both with the elimination of existing assessment irregularities and with the possibility of reducing or eliminating entirely the present direct tax for state purposes. These recommendations, based as they are upon two years of research, are worthy of your most sincere consideration.

The student of governmental costs sees possibilities of reducing existing expenditures for government projects in many ways but he also sees that the sum total of these reductions will not to any appreciable extent stem the rising tide of expenditures and he finds no evidence to indicate any considerable permanent abandonment of the modern functions performed by government.

To give practical relief, taxation reform of necessity must, to meet the major problem, be directed toward discovery of sources of revenue, creating sources which are now avoiding their proper share of the tax burden, or the adoption of methods which will permit the fairest spread under all circumstances of the cost of government among the people and on property selected to carry it.

The use of the general property tax, applying alike to all real and personal property, has in practice resulted in only real estate being reached for the major part of the tax burden.

This tax, as more and more money has been expended, grows more burdensome in cases where all the property owned is real estate, and so far as the individual is concerned, is less burdensome where large amounts of personal property are owned but not fully taxed.

The time has come when real estate of certain classes is subjected to an almost confiscatory burden of taxation. The relief of this class of property is the immediate concern that prompts the attempt to reform the tax system.

The immediate problem is to relieve real estate and in individual communities the equal need of relieving the tax strain on the mechanical part of the industry, which represents about all the tangible personal property tax, other than motor vehicles and live stock, that the local assessors seem inclined to impose, prompts most investigating commissions to direct attention to the many forms of intangible wealth.

The taxing of intangible wealth through an income tax is generally looked upon as the only means of effectively reaching intangible personal property. Yet, it should be borne in mind that the Federal government raises the greater portion of its four billion annual expenditures from an income tax, and while it is desirable that relief should be given to the small property owner, we should remember that the Federal income taxpayer is now paying the small property owners' share of Federal taxation. A state income tax could easily be made so burdensome as to drive wealth from the State of Iowa.

Everyone realizes the importance of increasing industry in Iowa. Every addition of an industrial plant furnishes additional property, subject to taxation and an added market for Iowa farm products.

Every such addition automatically reduces taxation on other property. Great care should be taken that no legislation is passed which will drive out existing industry or raise a barrier against new.

If we are also to retain our existing tax upon moneys, credits and other intangibles the law should be made as workable as possible and rigidly enforced.

The tax problem cannot be settled by merely considering local conditions. Business being on a national scale and the thought of the people being nation-wide, the tax problems are influenced by the same nation-wide tendency. Iowa should not, and cannot, adopt taxation laws placing its residents on an unfair basis with those of other states.

No tax reform will be of value unless there is builded in connection therewith a good administrative practice.

So long as human nature manifests a desire to shift burdens of taxation and is not anxious to assume any new ones, there will be demands for tax changes and excursions will be quite common into fields of tax reform.

There is only one certain way to bring about tax reduction and that way is to reduce expenditures. There is only one way to reduce expenditures and that is to hold the budget of the local government within safe limits.

Our efforts should be bent toward increased efficiency rather than increased expenditure of public money. Instead of studying new methods of spending more money let us study new methods of spending less.

Indirect pressure from the Board of Assessment and Review might be helpful but it will not be decisive.

The fact is noncontroversial that high taxes are the result not altogether of the legitimate cost of government but to some extent to political waste and inefficiency.

In the State about ninety-one cents out of every dollar of taxes collected is controlled by county boards, school boards, village boards and town boards, whereas only nine cents out of every dollar of taxes collected is under the control of the legislature. You are closely associated with all of these people. If taxes are running rampant, talk to them and curtail your expenses.

Public spirited citizens protest against the waste of millions of dollars in the mismanagement of the school system. Similar waste is found in other important branches of the local government. The crippling taxes on real estate would be substantially reduced by simplified, economical and efficient administration of public affairs. Yet persons complaining of excessive taxes as a rule do little if anything to bring about good local government. They are prone to leave the choice of public officials to the very spoils machines that plunder them.

A fit school board, a fit mayor supported by a fit council majority would order a thoroughgoing survey of all school and municipal service and would reorganize them on a basis of lessened cost and increased benefits. The resultant savings would be translated into tax reduction or needed improvements.

A friend of the taxpayer is the conservative official who provides a dollar's worth of public service for every dollar spent under his direction. Property owners who have learned to "keep their eye on the ball" know this.

Once the money has been appropriated, all that the assessors and reviewers together can do is to apportion the budget among the property owners. They cannot keep taxes down. That can be done only by the tax appropriating and tax spending officials.

All who have looked carefully and impartially into the tax situation are now agreed that unless appropriations for next year are held to the figures which the Budget Director has made, they will find themselves in a position wherein the tax levy will have to be increased.

The budget makers for local government must also realize their obligation in this matter. The great bulk of our taxes are levied by local authorities. Many of such governmental units are bonded almost to the constitutional limit. The members of the Legislature, the Budget Director for the State, and the various departments of government must realize the responsibility which rests upon them.

I hope that the members of the Legislature and the officials of the various departments of government will rise to their opportunity.

EQUALIZATION OF PUBLIC SCHOOL FACILITIES

Education must enable the individual to meet the real problems of actual experience as he finds them in daily life. It must definitely adjust him to his place as a citizen of the State and Nation and cause him to grow in it, accomplishing the most for himself and for society.

The betterment of the rural school is a vital problem. The rural school, too frequently, has not had adequate financial support. There is good reason for this in sections of the country where farm property has had a low valuation, where the land was sparsely settled, or covered by heavy mortgages. As these conditions have gradually disappeared, the school has shared to some degree in this prosperity; but not fully. An equalization fund for the support of the schools should be provided by state aid where other funds are not adequate. Again, the concentration of the wealth of our Nation has presented some very perplexing problems to school administrators in the matter of financing public education.

A tax levied on the property of the community was equitable when the wealth of our country was vested principally in real estate. But since this wealth has been shifted to other types of investment it has become necessary to make changes in the method of financing public education.

States having equalization funds are making an effort toward equalizing educational opportunities, and these funds as a whole are distributed to the different school units on the basis of their effort and need.

It may be added that State aid to schools has proven a wonderful incentive in local communities to become more liberal in their support of schools. I would suggest that the State school fund might be increased from a tax on cosmetics, tobacco, soft drinks, gum, and other articles considered as nonessentials. All are paying large dividends and a portion thereof could be well turned into the State school fund. We are of the opinion that an increase of taxes on farm lands should be avoided.

Expensive buildings are not essential in order to conduct all the various activities of the school. Many of the present rural school houses do need remodeling in order to make the rooms attractive, properly lighted and better heating and ventilation installed. We cannot help but feel that the erection of expensive one-teacher buildings in rural communities is a mistake. Our system of rural schools is undergoing a change. Perhaps the most progressive states in providing better school facilities in rural communities are Indiana and Ohio. The one-room school is fast disappearing in these states. Eventually, the movement is sure to spread to other states. The objection, which may have been well founded, that the transportation of pupils is difficult on account of bad road conditions is quite rapidly being overcome, especially in Iowa. This has been the chief objection advanced by many patrons against the establishment of central schools. Again does it not seem that the erection of expensive one-teacher schoolhouses on paved and graveled roads will become a troublesome problem and necessarily a waste of funds? Sentiment, prejudice, and penury must not be allowed to deprive the country boys and girls and those living in small towns of their right to secure the best possible education, including the high school, where the children may be at home while attending the public schools. Whatever the causes or opposition to consolidation may be, this opposition must cease before the rural school can fulfill its function and provide the rural child with educational opportunities approximating those given the children in well graded town schools. It is generally conceded that the consolidated school provides better educational advantages for children. It is an established fact that the enrollment as well as regularity of attendance are very much improved in these districts.

The school premises should be beautified and playground equipment provided. The school should be amply equipped with devices used in connection with modern methods of teaching. The school library should be made an important factor in every school where convenient access to public libraries is impossible.

The rural school building is the natural place for community activities for the benefit of all in the district. To successfully carry out these activities requires the finest kind of directorship to secure the interest and cooperation of all who should be concerned.

The efficiency of the rural school is seriously handicapped because of frequent change of teachers, and because of lack of experience of the rural teacher.

The rural schools should require especially trained teachers to the same extent that especially trained teachers are being required for the elementary grades and high schools in approved town, city and consolidated districts. The field is a broad one, covering the work of the first eight grades. Specialization to the extent that the grade teacher is a specialist may be impossible. However, the rural teacher must be prepared to select the better and approved methods of instruction for each of the eight grades in her school, not simply for one or two grades as organization may be carried out in the grade schools. Problems of classification and organization place additional responsibilities on the rural teacher. Necessarily there always has been and always will be too many classes in order to cover eight grades of work for one person to handle well. True, there may be classes with only one pupil, but such a class must necessarily be lacking in interest and enthusiasm. The provision by law for the closing of small schools having attendance of five or less pupils is well taken.

We believe the next step in advancement of teacher qualification requirements should be two years of normal training above a four-year high school course. Every other profession, including medicine, law, and the ministry require at least this amount of special preparation. The work of the teacher is fully as important as any of the professions. Should not the preparation of the teacher be made commensurate to the importance of the calling?

HIGHER EDUCATION IN IOWA

In common with all the states in the Union, Iowa has always considered the education of her people as of paramount importance. If the sacrifices made for education in Iowa when the State was well nigh destitute of taxable wealth could be celebrated in song, it would constitute one of the noblest epics ever written. We have kept the faith of our fathers and we have kept pace most wisely—not extravagantly—with the best educational thought of the nation and the world, alike as to secondary and higher education.

In this connection it might not be amiss to say a word about the plan which Iowa originated twenty-two years ago for the government of its higher institutions of learning. It is a system of unified control which at the beginning was looked upon askance in many quarters. But it has proven itself as worthy of the confidence of the people and is now being adopted by not a few of our sister states.

Not long ago, a man whose name would find a place among the very foremost authorities on educational matters, regardless of by whom the list was compiled, stated that the Iowa system of unified control of state-supported institutions of higher learning had come to be looked upon as ideal—due to two things: the structure of the State Board of Education and the fact that each succeeding chief executive of the State from the beginning had “in the matter of appointments taken the system wholly outside the realm of partisan politics and free from all personal considerations whatsoever.”

This Board has always taken its work seriously. This year it has been mindful of our economic situation and has exercised great restraint in its askings of the Legislature—showing a willingness to await a more convenient season before even so much as making a request for certain capital improvements the need for which is apparent to everyone.

The State Board of Education has frankly talked over all its problems with the Director of the Budget and myself. The details of its askings will be set forth in the several official reports which will be submitted for the consideration of the Legislature. Iowa cannot afford to take any backward steps in education and I am confident it has no desire to do so. The progress of our State institutions since 1909 justifies the high opinion in which our system of government of these institutions is held and argues well for the future.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

One of the essential factors in the future welfare of our country is the permanent and efficient employment of our people in gainful and worthy occupations. To provide food, shelter, clothing, and the other requirements of life is a problem that has been common to mankind during all ages from primitive time to the present day. In order that each individual may have the necessities and the finer things of life he must be capable of following successfully some worthy remunerative occupation.

That there is a growing need and demand for vocational training in Iowa is evidenced by the progress which has been made in the program during the past two years.

During the fiscal year closed June 30, 1930, there were 12,772 persons enrolled in Iowa vocational schools and classes organized under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes and George-Reed Acts. This number represents the largest enrollment in the history of vocational education in the State.

The enrollment for the year ended June 30, 1930, was approximately thirty per cent greater than the total enrollment for the previous fiscal year of 1928-29. The total enrollment for the past year was also double that for the year ended June 30, 1925.

Perhaps one of the most important features of the entire vocational program of the past year is that more than forty-seven per cent of the total attendance consisted of men and women enrolled in evening industrial, agricultural and homemaking classes. Of the total enrollment of 12,772 persons, 6,044 attended adult evening classes as compared with 1,535 part time school students and 5,193 regular high school vocational pupils.

Although vocational education in Iowa has made marked progress during the past biennium, there is a great need for further expansion of the program. There are approximately 869 fully approved high schools in the state. During the past year vocational work, organized under the provisions of the national and state vocational education acts, was offered only in the following number of centers:

	Number of districts offering work in 1929-30	Approximate per cent of fully approved high schools
Agriculture .....	109	12.5
Homemaking .....	49	5.6
Trades and Industries.....	27	3.2

Many additional school districts need and desire to establish vocational departments but cannot do so because of lack of available funds.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, a total of $173,097.57 of federal funds were expended for vocational education in Iowa. This amount includes an expenditure of 98 per cent of all available federal funds appropriated under the provisions of the national vocational education acts. During the last fiscal year Iowa ranked in 17th place among the various states in respect to the amount of federal aid received for vocational education. However, Iowa is one of the lowest ranking states in the union in regard to the amount of state support for vocational training. During the past fiscal year every bordering state appropriated from four to twenty-seven times as much state aid for vocational education as Iowa.

If the State of Iowa expects to meet the need and demand for vocational education it is imperative that state funds be appropriated for this important phase of our public school program.

Due to the development of science, invention, and the effect of the machine upon agriculture, commerce, industry and the home, our civilization is passing through a series of changes, the complexity of which is unparalleled in the history of the world. Occupations are constantly changing in their demands and opportunities. Likewise, new occupations are arising making new demands.

At the present time there are approximately 4,000,000 men in the United States who are unemployed. Without an opportunity to adjust themselves to these new conditions, to new demands of industry, calling for new skilled hands and new technical information, many individuals will fall by the wayside and become idle parasites living off the work of others, or dependents, criminals, and unnecessary victims of the "iron man." Therefore, the state and national governments should work out a cooperative program which will help solve the pressing and momentous training problems incident to:

a. The continuous vocational re-training of wage earners, temporarily unemployed, unsteadily employed, or likely to be, because of increasing mechanization, progress in business and industrial efficiency and changing economic demands, into operators of the newer machines and processes or into new and expanding occupations, similar to the occupations in which they are experienced.

b. The continuous vocational improvement of wage earners, temporarily unemployed, unsteadily employed, or likely to be, because of their lack of the hand and technical efficiency increasingly demanded of the occupations in which they are attempting to earn a livelihood.

c. The vocational training of older tradesmen into the lighter and more skilled branches of their respective crafts in which their past experiences will be continuing assets and declining strength will be no bar.

d. The training of the nation's increasing number of apprentices in the skilled trades, and learners in other occupations, to a high degree of all-round hand and technical efficiency in their chosen occupations as insurance against future unemployment and loss of wages, and as assurance of an adequate supply of thoroughly skilled workers for the nation.

In the early times young workers acquired the skill and knowledge of a given vocation by watching, imitating and copying fathers, mothers and other elders. That is, they were trained by methods of "followership." For complicated and restricted vocations "followership" methods were in time superseded by "regularized apprenticeship" methods. At present the followership methods of vocational training are precarious, poorly led and in such cases as farming and homemaking, utterly inadequate to keep pace with the scientific developments in these fields. Likewise, the old type of apprenticeship training has become entirely or partly inadequate to meet the demands of today in certain industries. Consequently the demand has become insistent for vocational education programs to perform the service which is no longer secured under these old methods.

The United States Bureau of Education is responsible for the statement that of all the boys and girls who enter the fifth grade in the public schools, only 14 per cent finish high school and get their diplomas. Only 7 per cent enter college, and only 2 per cent graduate. The 98 per cent who quit or dropped out are scattered all along the journey of life from the fifth grade to the graduating exercises in college, but take no part in those exercises.

What becomes of the 98 per cent? Some of them no doubt enter some gainful occupation, but the great majority have been turned loose on the world inadequately prepared to meet life's problems. It is essential that our public school program be so organized that it will meet the needs of this group. Such a program must include adequate provisions for vocational training.

Hence vocational education has become legitimately a matter of public concern and is an activity which is just as important a public enterprise as are the building of roads, the erection of public buildings, or the building of battleships.

The rehabilitation division of the state board for vocational education is commended to the citizens of Iowa as a humanitarian and economic measure worthy of their investigation and support. Persons with physical defects or infirmities are disadvantaged in their efforts to earn a livelihood. Unless unusually endowed with fortitude and persistence, there is danger that they will become disheartened and give up the unequal struggle to maintain their self-respect. Not the least of the evils to follow is the economic loss to society, but to this must be added the unhappiness and desperation born of their despondency.

The efficiency demanded by present day employment conditions demands an equal efficiency on the part of the handicapped. These people do not fall into a class but represent a collection of individuals. Many of these can become unusually efficient in suitable employment. The rehabilitation service undertakes to help them as individuals to organize and direct their efforts toward suitable employment and assist them in their preparation for the job objective. Many times, after this sympathetic but scientific preparation, these persons, despite their physical handicaps, are in better position to meet modern competition than their more fortunate fellows.

The greatest obstacle in the employment of disabled persons is the prejudice of prospective employers. This often comes from judging one from another of similar appearance or considering them as a class. If the people generally could appreciate the social and economic advantages of their employment, their difficulties would be lessened. Their greatest desire is to prove that they can be successful if given an opportunity within their limitations.

No bureau or department of the state can accomplish the rehabilitation of our disabled citizens without the sympathy and support of the public. The public should be interested if for no other reason than that of self-interest. The enormous saving between the cost of maintaining a person in idleness and his earnings in employment is at once apparent. His contribution to the community as a self-supporting citizen for a single year often amounts to more than the entire cost of his rehabilitation. When this is multiplied by his probable usefulness of 20 to 30 years, it is evident that the economic value of a state rehabilitation service is worthy of consideration. To these considerations should be added the vast improvement in happiness, in living standards, and in useful citizenship.

COUNTY LIBRARIES

The Iowa Library Commission has recognized the importance of progress in connection with the activities of their Department.

Paved roads and easier means of communication, developed as they are in our state, the efficient library in the future will consist of a county library with one large collection of books centrally located, and branches scattered throughout the county. This system will mean every resident in the county can have available for use any book in the county.

It will also be a time-saver to the busy reader for the reason that a trained librarian will be stationed at the county library who will be in a position to readily find the material desired and thus place it in the hands of those desiring knowledge on a particular subject.

The idea of a county library is worthy of your earnest and serious consideration.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

President Hoover, in his address to the members called in conference on Child Health last month, said: The questions of child health and protection are a complicated problem requiring much learning and much action, and we need have great concern over this matter. Let no one believe that these are questions which should not stir a nation; that they are below the dignity of Statesmen or Governments.

"If we could have but one generation of properly born, trained, educated and healthy children, a thousand other problems of government would vanish. We would assure ourselves of healthier minds in more vigorous bodies to direct the energies of our nation to yet greater heights of achievement.

"Moreover, one good community nurse will save a dozen future policemen."

Since Iowa may be considered a rural State, our President's remarks pertaining to rural child life is pertinent. To quote:

"We have grave responsibilities to the rural child. Adequate, expert service should be as available to him (as to the city child) from maternity to maturity. Since science discovered the cause of communicable disease, protection from these diseases for the child of the farm is as much of an obligation to them as to the child of the city. We must find ways and means of extending these influences to the children of rural districts.

Iowa has the permissible County Health Unit law, and also an optional county public health nursing law. This carries forward the principle our President called to the attention of his conference members. Five Iowa counties have adopted the county health unit plan and several others are now contemplating its adoption. Two counties not in the county health unit have full time public health nursing service. The township or town as a unit for public health work has long since been relegated to oblivion by our progressing methods of transportation.

The State Department of Health, during my administration, has developed into a well functioning department of state which will prove of much benefit to our people. Only a short time ago the State Department of Health consisted of a licensing and a recording division, consisting of a personnel of five or six full-time and a few part-time employees. Now the Department consists of the following Divisions: Administration, Licensure, Sanitary Engineering, Public Health Education, Public Health Nursing, Nursing Education, Vital Statistics, Preventable Diseases, Rural Sanitation, Laboratory, Barbering, Cosmetology and Law Enforcement, employing forty-three trained, full-time employees.

Finding some duplication of activities the Department of Health joined with the Dean of the Medical College and the late Commissioner of Health, Dr. Albert, in soliciting the Surgeon General of the United States Public Service, to detail a competent employee to make a complete survey of all health activities now being carried on in the State by official, semi-official and lay organizations. Dr. A. J. McLaughlin, who has had world-wide experience in public health work, was detailed for the work and after several weeks reported his findings, with recommendations.

Much information and many facts pertaining to plans and procedure toward the further development of state-wide public health activities may be found in his report.

No governmental funds will yield the percentage of return upon the investment as the money expended in public health.

Iowa, economically, spends hundreds of thousands of dollars annually for protection of live stock and rightfully so, but money for the improvement of human kind should be met with favor since science has given us facts sufficient to guide and direct our expenditure with profit.

Recent General Assemblies have seen fit to add to the usefulness of the State Department of Health.

The last session of the Legislature gave the Department a specialist in the science of control of preventable diseases.

Since the Department is charged with law enforcement as it pertains to the several professions, money was appropriated for a Division of Law Enforcement.

Most professions through their licensure pay all the expenses incidental to their being legalized by the State, but the laws governing the professions are made with the thought in mind of protecting the public and public welfare, so therefore illegal practice, or the law enforcement, is a matter in which the State as a whole should become interested.

The last session of the Legislature made it legal for the Department to accept outside financial aid.

The Rockefeller Foundation and the Rural Sanitation Division of the United States Public Health Service has made it possible to assist financially in the organization of County Health Units.

This financial aid is given for a period of years, to be withdrawn as soon as the organization is adjusted and the local authorities can take over the expenditure.

The United States Public Health Service has given personnel as well, in detailing one whose salary is paid by the Service, to assist in advising those interested in the organization and benefits of a county as the unit for all health activities. County surveys indicate that the monies now expended in strictly public health work in most counties is almost, if not fully, enough to finance a county-wide organization which is much more effective in service.

The policy of the Department of Health should be to avoid a great central, paternalistic Department, but to advise and assist local officials in giving their constituents service.

The control of communicable disease is best when scientifically and promptly handled by local officials.

All public health activities are handled more successfully if the administration is local and governed by sound public opinion.

Iowa, in the interest of humanity, could afford to adopt, in addition to the work already being carried forward by the Health Department, a division of maternity and child hygiene together with a Director of Public Health Nursing.

These measures tend to relieve suffering, prevent death, and insure a future generation healthier and better than the one preceding it.

I have not yet found any woman against these measures. Its chief opposition lies among professional men who feel their field is being invaded. The doctors have a great fear of what they call state medicine; that is, of government operated hospitals and clinics, but they need have no such fear in this case.

The maternity and child hygiene act should be passed and the division made a bureau in the Health Department. The actual administration would be wholly in the hands of the medical officer of the State. Our people are indebted to many non-official agencies which have been contributing factors in this great work.

Every child in the United States has the right to be well born; and every mother in the United States has the right to be safeguarded in bearing her child.

These activities as a part of the State's program, would not only be beneficial to the people of Iowa but to the nation generally, and would sustain the President in his well thought out program for rehabilitating the child, thus affording him a real opportunity in the race of life.

CONSERVATION

Iowa has made progress in conservation. Before we can effectively complete a conservation policy in keeping with our State we must have a definite program. This program must be based upon definite knowledge. To obtain this knowledge there should be a scientific survey of our parks, our rivers, our lakes, and our forests, to ascertain the effect the cutting of our forests, the draining of our lands, and the building of our highways, is having upon the water level.

The water level of Iowa soil needs watching. The practice of past decades in draining all of Iowa's lakes and sloughs which could possibly be drained has been unwise. Every lake, no matter how small or how shallow, plays an important part in the plant and animal life of this State, and should be preserved. Marginal lands should be planted to forests and trees should be placed along our highways; thus adding beauty and comfort.

The State's natural resources should be conserved, and such resources dedicated to the benefit of all the people of the State.

Reforestation is a necessity.

INSTITUTIONS UNDER THE BOARD OF CONTROL

The duties of the Board of Control have been increased materially during the biennium on account of the ever increasing population.

The total number of wards in State Institutions, June 30, 1928, was 12,325, and the average for two years ending June 30, 1928, was 12,039. The total number in residence December 1, 1930, was 13,375, an average of 12,592 for the period from June 30, 1928, to December 1, 1930. This increase of 721 inmates at an average cost of $25.00 per month per patient amounts to $18,025 per month or $432,600 for the biennium.

For the year ending June 30, 1929, the gross expenditures for salaries, support and maintenance was:

	Expenditures .....	$4,180,784.67
	Less collections and refunds.....	274,801.90
	Net cost support, 1929.....		$3,905,982.77
Year 1930
	Gross expenditures .....	$4,235,515.82
	Collections and refunds.....	266,456.99
	Net cost support, 1930.....		$3,969,058.93
	Total net support for biennium.....		$7,875,041.70
	Special appropriations expenditures for betterment and improvements,
	1929 .....	$ 159,039.70
	1930 .....	437,592.58
	Total .....		$ 596,632.28
	Total expenditures, support and specials.....		$8,471,673.98

This does not include expenditures from the Industry Funds which includes cell house at State Reformatory, $150,000; dairy barn and creamery at Clive State Farm, and cell house and water tank at State Penitentiary at Fort Madison. The improvements for which capital appropriation was made have all been completed or are in course of completion.

The industries maintained at the Penal Institutions are all in a prosperous condition and constant efforts are being made by the Board to increase the State use industries. During the two year period an average number of 1,313 inmates were employed in the nineteen industries at the Men's Reformatory and the State Penitentiary at Fort Madison. The total sales from these industries was $2,119,111.85. The prisoners were paid in wages $282,975.32. The net profit of the above industries to the institutions for the period was $407,824.22.

Splendid herds of pure bred dairy cows are maintained at each institution supplying sufficient whole milk for the inmates at a very moderate cost of production. The dairy herds under this department are second to none in the United States and consist of many 1,000-lb. cows that are known to breeders throughout the nation.

In addition to the dairying industry, large acreages of splendid farm land are being operated, producing food for the herds as well as meat and garden products for the support of inmates.

The net profits to the State from the 12,348 acres of land owned by the State and 3,335 acres rented by the various institutions, including the profits from the dairy herds, was $509,035.28.

TREATMENT OF CRIMINALS

Failure to provide suitable productive occupations for prisoners is today breaking down the morale of hundreds of men and women. From the practical business viewpoint, idleness means that these people are a net loss to the state, whereas the majority of them could be converted into productive workers.

The enforcement of the Hawes-Cooper Act in 1934 will in effect destroy the contract system under which prison labor was "let out" to private contractors. The Hawes-Cooper Act will close markets previously used under the private contract system. It is necessary, however, to transpose the work of men and women who were laboring under this contract system to other lines of work. The prison authorities must act quickly for the alternatives are riot or re-organization.

The results of idleness do not all appear while the prisoner is under detention. It is a corrosive that destroys the will to work. It affords the opportunity for morbid introspection. It opens the doors to pernicious communion with other convicts. All these factors result in the breakdown of men and women whose criminal propensities might be wiped out and creative ones substituted if the prisoners were supplied with adequate industrial equipment.

Overcrowding, lack of classification, old prison buildings and idleness, it must be remembered, constitute the four great prison problems. Out of them can grow bloodshed, degradation and an appalling waste of human life and tax monies, or they can be handled in a clear, constructive manner so that the opposite results will be realized.

Receiving Bureaus in which prisoners are studied and analyzed should be established.

The mentality, physical condition, moral attitude and causes and nature of crimes committed by those sent to our penal institutions should be carefully analyzed and subsequently a proper classification into groups for service, treatment and character of confinement should be carried out.

The mental attitude of the prisoner is the most important single factor in his prison life and should not be overlooked. When prison officials can appreciate this fact and adjust the prisoner's life accordingly, disciplinary problems will be reduced in a marked degree and the morale of the entire institution maintained at a higher level.

This is not a plea on behalf of criminals. It is rather an indictment of conditions which continue to breed both inside and outside the prison. And it shall not improve until some saner and more intelligent method is pursued in the understanding and handling of some of these problems from the psychiatric standpoint.

Until then we can expect to see the same grotesque spectacle of men constantly being sentenced to serve terms in prison for the same offense and constantly growing more hardened, more bitter and more relentless in their hatred of society. We shall continue to see the germ of insanity grow and flourish, and we shall see the anti-social traits etched deeper and deeper into their character, without a single step to remedy it so long as we adhere blindly and stubbornly to old ideas.

There should be a close relationship between the courts and the Receiving Bureau. The Receiving Bureau, if functioning properly would lessen the number of prisoners who would finally be committed to prison.

Whatever the system adopted, prison management gets down to a question of character of the system. There is no fixed formula for dealing with prisoners. Those who work as wardens and deputies in our prisons have as difficult a task as there is in this world.

Fortunately, more and more men and women are going into institutional work, inspired with the belief that their vocation is a noble one of the same class as that of the great teaching force of the country. More and more people are realizing that our prisons are a part, and an essential part, of the administration of justice in the land. We are also beginning to realize that the highest jurisdiction is found in a deep and intelligent sympathy with erring and straying men.

Crime means suffering and oftentimes an injustice is visited upon the innocent when the bread winner is taken away from the children and their support is thrown upon the mother and her wash tub, or some poor, faithful and loyal man, father of the convict.

Such convicts should be employed at wages which might and should be diverted to keep the family hearth warm. It appears to me that a vast reformatory influence would be exerted if the convict, by his labor, could support, partially at least, his family and return to a home that had been maintained by his efforts when he had served his sentence.

Ofttimes it is neither justice, economics or advantage to the state when this bread winner is taken from his family or his dependents, possibly an aged mother, and no return made to those dependents to keep them from the poor house, public charity, the wash tub, or, in some cases, from prostitution.

It is imperative from the standpoint of statesmanship in a Christian Nation and a Christian State that we who are thus perpetrating a serious injustice to the innocent through the power of the State should seek and find a remedy. There is no question of greater importance today than the study of the cause and treatment of crime.

The social status of the next generation of adults is the direct outgrowth of the training and environment of the present time.

We must become awakened to the fact that the extent of crime has become alarming. Let us remember that punishment has a two fold purpose: first, the punishment of the offender; second, the rehabilitating and re-establishing of the convict as a useful and self-sustaining citizen.

PARDONS, COMMUTATIONS, SUSPENSIONS AND REMISSIONS

I have endeavored to deal justly with the prisoner and the public in the matter of pardons, commutations, suspensions and remissions; each case presented has received my personal attention and reviewed with care and caution. A detailed report setting out each case fully is presented to the General Assembly in a separate report, as provided by law.

The Board of Parole has given me excellent cooperation in the investigation of all cases which have been submitted to the Board by me.

CRIME: CAUSES AND PREVENTION

I would suggest that a thorough study of the causes of crime and a follow-up with a systematic plan of public education is the most practical method of solving the crime problem. A study of causes and prevention of crime is the best method of combating crime.

1. The greed for gain by individuals, by business organizations and corporations develops an attitude of mind that is responsible for much of the crime tendency of the time. The inordinate desire to get business at the expense of human energy reflects the spirit of the day. In its worst form this greed for money is shown in bank robberies, kidnapping for ransom, bootlegging, misrepresentation in quality of merchandise and the demands and deception of the laborer and labor organizations.

2. People have gone amusement mad. Waste and extravagance to satisfy a desire for pleasure at the expense of securing and maintaining reasonable needs of the home is in large measure responsible. Frequent attendance at movies, in some instances, two, three or more times a week; even to the extent of daily waste of time and expenditure of money, over use of the automobile at the expense of paying for homes, for clothing and for food are cases too prevalent.

3. A third factor is the neglected child. Every child's birthright is right example and training in the home. Club and society life occupy too much of parents' time. The home must ever remain as having the major attention of parents. Civilization will fail and decay without this. An examination of the lives of those who commit crime shows a lack of proper home conditions and surroundings. The divorce evil separates families and the child grows up without proper parental affection and guidance. Social ideals gradually become lax as the child develops into manhood and womanhood. Respect for order, respect for law and the rights of others suffer.

4. Improper parentage is a factor in criminality. Physical and mental deficiencies of parents is a tragedy that will destroy the virility, virtue and sense of honor of the family and ultimately of a nation or race of people.

5. The decline in regular attendance at church is partially responsible. Religious instruction is the highest type of ethical training. Devotion to the Sunday newspaper, automobile trips, catching up the left-over details of office work interfere with attendance at church.

6. Abandonment of discipline in the home and the school is productive of lawlessness and disrespect for authority. Discipline to the extent of crushing individual initiative is not to be commended, but discipline that promotes orderly activity and that insists on proper conduct is essential in the making of a law abiding citizenship.

7. The responsibility for law enforcement rests upon both State and Federal authorities. It is likewise the duty of each citizen to observe the law and to assist and encourage the observance of law by others. It is as important that the elective and appointive officers charged with the enforcement of the State and Federal laws, who are selected within the State, be just as courageous, fearless and honest in the performance of their duties, as it is that the officers charged with the wider authority in enforcing the Federal law, possess those qualifications. Public officials appointed for the purpose of enforcing the law must themselves be law abiding citizens and must have respect for all laws and be personally in favor of their enforcement, if we are to have a discharge of duty that meets the standards which law abiding citizens have the right to expect. Iowa with her boast of the greatest per cent of literacy of any State and a code of laws of the highest type, should be an example to other states in the matter of law observance and law enforcement.

8. I denounce all propaganda against the Eighteenth Amendment as vicious. Evils of every sort were never remedied by compromise. Return to State control of the liquor problem would simply be a return to a system that makes control of the liquor traffic impossible. It must be obvious to every one who stands for temperance and sobriety that no state can remain dry when surrounding states are wet. The ineffectiveness of State control was demonstrated beyond dispute prior to the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Henry Ford is right, "An industrial order that has discarded the reins, dashboards and a team-that-knows-the-way-home can't afford to line its highways with 'regulated liquor shops'—not with a forty horsepower motor under the toe of a drinking citizen."

Let us have observance and enforcement of the law—not repeal.

SOCIETY'S OBLIGATION TO PROTECT ITSELF

The Forty-third General Assembly passed a law providing for the sterilization of defectives. The law remains idle on the books. It has no appropriation clause and without an appropriation the intention of the legislators in the framing of the measure cannot be carried out.

The Iowa sterilization law offers the operation to inmates of State institutions who have been singled out by the Board of Eugenics consisting of the superintendents of these institutions. Among those who will be recommended for operations will be advanced syphilitics, feeble-minded, epileptics, and chronic sexual perverts. The law exists in nineteen states at present.

This State owes it to itself to protect future generations. Without eugenic perspective, we are in danger of raising a race of idiots.

Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme Court in holding the sterilization law constitutional, said: "We have seen more than once that the public welfare may call upon those who already sap the strength of the State for these lesser sacrifices, often not felt to be such by those concerned, in order to prevent our being swamped with incompetence. It is better for all the world, if instead of waiting to execute degenerate offspring for crime or to let them starve for their imbecility, society can prevent those who are manifestly unfit from continuing their kind. The principle that sustains compulsory vaccination is broad enough to cover cutting the fallopian tubes. Three generations of imbeciles are enough."

An ineffective law is equal to no law.

NO GOVERNMENTAL COMPETITION

There is a tendency in recent years for governments to engage in certain lines of business in competition with its citizens. Such competition is unfair, tends to socialism, and makes more and higher taxes. Some of the institutions of the State are continuously reaching out and engaging in business. This aggrandizement should be avoided for it is the duty of government to see that every citizen has equal opportunity to engage in any lawful enterprise without the handicap of governmental competition. We should have the right to the rivalry of life on a footing of equality of opportunity, for of such has been the upbuilding and glorifying of America. The door of opportunity must stand ajar so that all who wish may enter, rich or poor, native or foreign born. There will be no office-holding oligarchy in Iowa.

President Hoover in a recent public address well said:

"Every expansion of government in business means that government * * * is driven irresistibly without pause to greater and greater control of the Nation's press and platform. Free speech does not live many hours after free industry and free commerce die. * * * Every step in bureaucratizing the business of our country poisons the very roots of liberalism—that is, political equality, free speech, free assembly, free press, and equality of opportunity."

STATE FISH AND GAME DEPARTMENT

During the past years the Fish and Game Department has been placed upon a sound business basis. Rapid strides have been made by the department in its activities of the past biennium. At the close of the two year period, June 30, 1930, the balance in the Fish and Game protection fund was $132,045.23.

The demand made upon fish, game and fur bearing animals is increasing each year. More people are seeking out of door recreation and employment. As the demand increases so must the supply increase. To this end the department has increased the number of nursery ponds where game fishes are held until they attain a size of from four to twelve inches before being distributed. During the biennium new nurseries have been established at Diamond, Welch and Clear Lake. The feasibility of this plan is readily seen as there is practically no loss when fishes of this size are distributed.

One hundred and thirty-five acres of land have been purchased adjoining Wall Lake in Sac County for fish nursery and game refuge purposes. Bass hatchery ponds have been built in the Palisades State Park near Cedar Rapids. New trout ponds are now in use in Dalton Lake which has been turned over to the State. This lake is near Preston.

Brood bass have been supplied to sportsmen organizations wherever they were found to have suitable waters for their propagation. The capacities of the various fish hatcheries have been very materially increased. More fishes have been rescued from land locked ponds and distributed than ever before. The total of all fishes distributed during the biennium was 130,177,709.

Two State game farms are now maintained at Clive and Lansing, Iowa. Distributions of ringneck pheasants for the biennium were 7,231 birds and 19,052 eggs.

Due largely to protective measures enforced by this department, the fur industry in Iowa brought trappers during the last season more than $780,000.00 for furs of animals trapped by them.

The department has received better support from sportsmen's organizations throughout the State than ever before. Many men have given of their time and labor gratuitously to assist in emergency cases where fish were stranded.

The present system of assistant game wardens should be discontinued and a field force established of scientifically trained men in addition to the present fish culturist whose duties it shall be to make a complete scientific, biological survey of the lakes and streams of Iowa, including the effect of algae in Iowa lakes upon fish and provide for its treatment and control, in addition to the duties now carried forward by the deputy game wardens. The field force should also be granted power as police officers.

STREAM POLLUTION

The causes of pollution are many and virtually all of them can be removed. Many Iowa towns are dumping the refuse from their sewage disposal plants into their nearest lake or stream. No purification plant has ever been made which will totally eliminate impurities in water—these plants simply reduce the impurities.

After nearly six years of experience with the Iowa law in attempting to remedy Iowa's pollution problem in the lakes and rivers of the state, the only conclusion possible is that further material progress cannot be expected until a broader and more intelligent view of the whole problem is adopted.

The development and maintenance of the sewage system is dependent upon securing adequate funds in competition with more popular undertakings, such as schools, developments of parks, highways, police and fire departments and welfare work.

As few are concerned with what becomes of sewage as long as it is removed from the individual's premises, the sewerage system is provided for only after the wants of all others are met, with the result that it is neglected and always lagging in its development many years behind the general development of the community.

Our experience in Iowa indicates that unless this question of disposal of sewage is looked upon as an essential public utility, just as is the supply of pure and wholesome water, no improvement in the present unfortunate situation can be expected.

On the other hand, if we admit that the supplying of pure water and the removal of that water after it has been converted into sewage by the householder is one continuous operation, and that each part of this operation is as important as the other, then it would be logical to admit that each step in the operation should be financed in the same manner.

A proper conception of the whole subject would be to provide that the householder should pay for sewage removal in exactly the same way as he does for the water supplied him, and on the same basis; that is, by a rate so fixed that it will bear the cost of the service so rendered.

Other causes of pollution are live stock wading in the waters stirring up mud and destroying vegetation; low waters which expose vegetation and mud bottoms; breaking the soil and clearing woods, resulting in silt running out into the waters; oil-discharging motor boats; refuse left by tourists and picnickers; and industrial refuse which is worse in streams than in lakes.

Much investigation has been made as to the most scientific plan to stop the present pollution of streams and lakes, and to prevent the further destruction of same by natural and artificial pollution.

Our statutes charge the Department of Health with the work incidental to stream and lake pollution. We find other Departments of State vitally interested; viz., the Fish and Game Department and the Department of Conservation.

In fact, the lake and stream pollution as a direct public health problem is of minor importance, but indirectly is of public health significance, and also has a direct significance to the Fish and Game and Conservation Departments.

The work of lake and stream pollution is of such a nature that it necessitates the employment of Sanitary Engineers. With the efficient corps of engineers now employed by the Health Department, they should and can be employed to do the engineering necessary to the project, thereby avoiding the necessary expense of employing another corps of engineers.

The Fish and Game Department, the Board of Conservation and the Department of Health have agreed upon a bill to be presented to the Session, co-ordinating and correlating all activities pertaining to stream and lake pollution to be directed by the heads of the aforementioned departments.

All State Departments whose endeavors bring them into association with the same problems, might well follow the example of these three departments in dealing with the monster problems of lake and stream pollution, that whatever their problem, it may be handled efficiently and economically.

THE CONTROL OF BLUE GREEN ALGAE

The presence of blue green algae in a body of water is evidence that the waters of the lake are polluted, for this type of algae feeds upon the impurities of the water.

There should be a scientific study to determine the source of the pollution upon which algae feeds, coupled with measures to control it until its causes are determined, and the natural conditions restored as much as possible which formerly controlled this type of plant life.

Copper sulphate has been used for four seasons at Storm Lake. There can be no doubt that the physical characteristics of the lake have been improved by this treatment. Likewise it has been demonstrated that copper sulphate, properly handled, can be applied without poisoning the fish or destroying the plant life to the extent of endangering fish life.

All agree that copper sulphate at best is a palliative treatment and does not remove the cause of the trouble, and this should be kept in mind. On the other hand, since physical benefits have been derived at Storm Lake, and since the effect of the copper sulphate treatments on plant and animal life is only a negligible quantity, the use of copper sulphate could well be recommended in the control of blue green algae.

If it should be found that the removal of the blue green algae in the lakes be economically unfeasible, then palliative measures which prolong the usefulness of the lakes for recreational purposes should be carried forward.

If palliative measures, such as copper sulphate treatment, are definitely found to be injurious to fish propagation (as some contend) it may then be necessary to make a choice between fishing lakes or lakes free from objectionable concentration of algae.

Some lake should be selected for this treatment for the purpose of further study and comparison with untreated lakes and in order that this might be accomplished, I recommend that there be appropriated by the Legislature the sum of $10,000.00 annually to carry forward this program, to be expended under the direction of the Board of Conservation.

AGRICULTURE

During the past six or eight years, farm relief has been a much discussed subject throughout the country and in legislative halls. This period has witnessed attempts on the part of politicians of every shade of belief to climb upon the farm relief legislative band wagon. Others have been working more or less quietly, but nevertheless effectively, for the benefit of agriculture.

I came into office about the time the Iowa farmer was feeling most keenly the result of the general post-war economic depression. I realized that legislative action was necessary, but instead of rushing into vague promises and impossible farm relief programs, I surrounded myself with a group of engineers, economists and farm organizations, and with this group, after a study of the farmers' ills, actually laid the foundation for many of the legislative benefits that have come to the farmers within this period.

It was the Iowa Industrial and Agricultural Commission created by me in these early days of farm relief agitation which made an expert study of the farmers' difficulties and pointed to tariff inequality, to improper marketing conditions and to transportation handicaps which are today recognized by the National administration as the greatest obstacles to be overcome before the condition of the farmers can be rectified.

This Iowa Commission which has heretofore received very little public acclaim, produced economic data which convinced Eastern interests and business leaders of the country that more legislative assistance was necessary for the farmer. This groundwork was one of the initial tasks before farm relief advocates, and only until this was accomplished was it possible to center attention upon the condition of agriculture to the extent that the farmers' cause received consideration in Congress.

Information gathered by this Industrial and Agricultural Commission constituted the evidence which finally led to a revision of trading regulations on the Chicago grain market, to adoption of rules protecting grain shippers from improper grading practices, and to the ousting of certain commission firms which had abused their Board of Trade privileges.

In the second year of my administration, I personally went to Washington and played a part in the Federal Tariff Commission's consideration of higher tariffs on certain farm commodities. Through these efforts an increase of the tariff on butter from 8 cents to 12 cents a pound was secured, thus achieving a prohibitive duty for the protection of the Iowa dairy industry.

Through work with this Commission we were able to lay before the Tariff Commission the most valuable data that body obtained during its consideration of the corn tariff. At that time, I was requesting a corn tariff of 25c to 30c per bushel. My position is borne out by the fact that the present tariff bill raises the duty on corn from 15c to 25c.

Back as far as 1924, I was working along another line for the relief of farmers. I realized that there were two phases of the movement to be dealt with;—one, the producing of facts for the guidance of legislative bodies, and the other the task of arousing public sentiment in behalf of the farmer. For this latter purpose, the idea was conceived, which later was known as the "Committee of Twenty-two," including the governors of eleven states, farm leaders, legislators, eminent professors and others familiar with the farm situation. This organization functioned throughout the period that farm relief legislation was before Congress, arousing the legislative support and public sentiment in behalf of various farm relief projects.

Throughout this whole agitation, I have been content to study the problem and to work quietly, but none the less effectively.

Two years ago the people of Iowa, proud of their native son, and confident of his ability to fill the high office of president, turned to Herbert Hoover with a record vote.

I am today a sincere supporter of President Hoover's farm relief program. I am cooperating in every way possible with the Federal Farm

Board and other agencies devoted to farm welfare. The facts are, however, that up to date the efforts to bring about a substantial improvement of agricultural conditions by legislation, either state or nation, have been of little avail.

It is, in my opinion, necessary to face the fact that there must be a more substantial guaranty of reasonable prices to the farmer for what he produces than has yet been afforded. Certainly if we are to accept the theory that the state owes an obligation to its employees, which we admit, it also owes a like obligation to see that its farmers are assured fair compensation for their labors.

The state or nation cannot, of course, protect agriculture from overproduction, but it can, by proper tariff regulations and better marketing machinery, insure to the American farmer the right to enjoy a profitable market.

Agriculture is not yet on a basis of equality with other major industries of the nation.

An economic inequality between agriculture and industry exists. Back of this inequality is the tariff. The question never will be finally settled until adjusted on the basis of fairness and equality, upon which depends the happiness and prosperity of the people engaged in these major pursuits.

It is fundamental that something be done to revive a fair relationship between farm prices and the prices of industry and labor. This in my opinion constitutes the crux of the matter. There can be no satisfactory settlement of the question by misrepresentation and masking of the situation in tariff revision.

As long as American business men, workers, and farmers go on submitting to the inequalities of our present tariff legislation, there will be no permanent relief for the depressed cycle.

COAL INDUSTRY

Although Iowa ranks 16th in population and 23rd in area of land, she ranks first in the production of corn, oats, horses, hogs and poultry, also first in the total value of farm products, and first in the percentage of farm land improved.

According to the 1925 state census, the Iowa Manufacturers Association and the Department of United States Commerce find that the factories in Iowa have an annual output of over $800,000,000.00 and have over $450,000,000.00 invested in plants and machinery, yet there are many who fail to recognize that the coal industry is second only in importance to agriculture.

In 1917 the peak of the production of Iowa coal was 9,049,806 tons and there were employed in the production of the same 15,464 miners. In 1910 there were actually engaged in the producing of Iowa coal, 18,005 men, although the tonnage for that year fell short somewhat of the tonnage in 1917, with approximately 2,500 less men working.

There are 201 coal mines in Iowa, according to information received from the State Mining Inspector's Office, and in 1929 there was produced 4,337,013 tons of Iowa coal, valued at $11,938,000.00. It is estimated that approximately 70 per cent of this value went to labor alone, or approximately $8,000,000.00.

The estimated annual fuel requirements for Iowa is approximately 16,000,000 tons, therefore it can be seen that only about 25 per cent of this amount was Iowa coal for 1929, yet it is encouraging to note that the production in 1929 over that of 1928 was increased approximately 600,000 tons and over 900 more men were engaged in producing coal in 1929 over that of 1928.

According to the Iowa Geological Survey, Iowa coal ranks high in heat units, and computed on a dry basis, the average Iowa coal ranks 12,045 B. T. U.'s while only a few of the far eastern coals even approach 15,000 B. T. U.'s, the maximum heat content of the very best coals. It has been determined therefore, that Iowa coal is the most economical and that a saving can be made of from 20 per cent to 50 per cent by using this home product.

Those connected with the Iowa coal industry and in particular with the Iowa Coal Institute, see no reason why the coal industry in our state should not be placed on a plane with the various bureaus in the State Department of Agriculture. The Institute therefore made application through the State Mining Inspector's Office, for the nominal sum of $6,250.00 to be devoted for promoting and encouraging the use of Iowa coal by Iowa citizens. The State Budget Director and myself have approved this application. If this recommendation is approved by the Legislature and an appropriation so made, it will enable the Institute to carry on its educational campaign to acquaint the citizens of our state with the true merits of Iowa coal, and directly benefit the industrial situation.

A definite sum should be set aside in the appropriation to be allotted the research departments of the two state schools, namely Iowa State College and the State University of Iowa, which sum could be used entirely in the chemical engineering departments to determine the various means and methods whereby Iowa coal can be used in the manufacture of various commodities produced or manufactured in our state. The Department of Ceramic Engineering of Iowa State College, under the direction of Paul E. Cox, has suggested that a fellowship would cost about $900.00. This Department is working along the lines of research work, studying clay products, and is trying to design kilns to burn Iowa coal. This Department has not forced itself to the attention of Iowa coal, but is willing to cooperate if sufficient means are provided for further research. Dr. O. R. Sweeney of Iowa State College is very anxious to have a definite sum set aside to his department for technical study of the Iowa coal industry and states that under the present plan their funds are so limited that very little constructive work can be done on account of the lack of funds, or lack of a certain stipulated amount that will assure them of carrying on their work, there being so many departments that cut in on the same.

The present unemployment situation in Iowa could be largely met if Iowans would burn Iowa coal, for it would mean that if we could even get our tonnage back to 9,000,000 tons, as it was in 1917, that over $16,000,000.00 would be added to labor alone. Money kept in Iowa enables the coal miners and others connected with the industry to buy Iowa products produced on the farm or in the factory.

The Iowa Preference Law should be strengthened to the point that a penalty would make it mandatory for all Iowa public officers to buy and use only those products that are produced or manufactured in our own state, for buildings under their supervision. In other words, the so-called Iowa Preference Law should have "teeth" inserted in this statute. In fact, if all public buildings in our state, including state institutions, county and municipal buildings and schools, were to use Iowa coal exclusively, the mines would be required to devote their entire time to producing coal for this demand. Yet over $55,000,000.00 is sent out of the state annually for foreign fuels.

Cement, brick and other materials that go into the construction of public buildings and highways should be prepared with Iowa coal.

The present difficulties in the bituminous coal industry are general over the nation. Iowa alone is not the only state in which this industry is suffering; however we are having more than our share of competition for other states have a very favorable freight rate, particularly from Western Kentucky, Indiana, West Virginia and Illinois, that enables coal to be hauled at several times a greater distance, for even a lower freight rate than coal can be shipped to various points in Iowa from Iowa mines. For a concrete example: coal can be shipped from Illinois and Western Kentucky to Davenport for 78c per ton less than from the Appanoose county field to Davenport, although the differential is only about one-third in distance. Actually, consumers in Sioux City can procure coal from Colorado, Arkansas or Missouri, for a considerable amount less on freight rates, although the differential in miles is twice to three times as great as compared to the distance from Iowa mines. The Interstate Commerce Commission should equalize the rates granted coal companies in foreign states, or the Iowa Distance Tariff should be revised.

The demand for coal has been reduced due to the development of electrical water power, of natural gas and oil, and of improvements in consumption, which have operated to slow down the annual demand for coal, leaving a most excessive production capacity.

Our competitive system should not be permitted to produce a competition which destroys stability in an industry and reduces to poverty all of those within it. The ideal is rather to maintain that degree of competition which will tend to induce progress and protect the consumer. Regulatory laws should be enacted or revised to the extent that this ideal may be reached. Proportionate taxation upon those interests that have tended to compete with the coal industry should be enacted, thereby placing the responsibility upon competitors to pay their just share of the tax burden. I refer to natural gas and oil pipe lines which are being installed by companies, and which should be properly regulated and supervised so as to co-ordinate with our existing industrial system.

There should be a revision of our tax laws as to utilities so that all of our utilities, including railroads, telegraph, telephone, express companies, transmission lines, electric, gas and water companies, be assessed by the State Board of Assessment and Review with proper provision in the law so that local communities may have the benefit of the tax on local property owned by these companies. This legislation could properly include the natural gas and oil pipe lines.

Railroads operating within our state borders should be impressed with the importance of burning and using Iowa coal on their various lines, operating and depending upon the people of our state. These companies should recognize that they cannot be prosperous unless industry and agricultural interests are likewise granted reciprocity, namely by burning Iowa coal and using Iowa products in so far as they possibly can.

Summary of suggestions presented under this caption :

1. Preference law with penalty.
2. Relief to unemployment by using Iowa coal.
3. Support of Iowa industries by all state institutions.
4. Regulatory laws to protect encroachment of electrical power and natural gas.
5. Importance of the coal industry.
6. Sound economy.
7. Provision of Interstate Commerce Commission on freight rates.
8. Appropriation for further definite research upon coal and its qualities.
9. Appropriation to enable Iowa Coal Institute to be placed on a plane with other industries.

BANKING

In my previous messages to the legislature I have at various times outlined certain fundamental principles necessary and essential to the strengthening and modernizing of the banking code of our State. At the last session of the legislature many of these provisions were written into our code and without question constituted the most comprehensive re-codification of the banking laws that Iowa has ever undertaken since banking was set up in this State. That re-codification of banking laws has served to point the way for other states that have taken under consideration the re-vamping of their banking statutes.

Under the provisions of this act the banking situation has shown steady improvement during the past biennium. The better banking practices which have been put into effect by the State Banking Department during the past five years have produced good results in building better and safer banks in Iowa.

The economic administration of the closed banks under the Banking Department has been an outstanding achievement in the handling of trusts of this kind in the United States. It has been commended by well known authorities in many states.

The judges in our District Courts handle these receivership cases every ninety days. A complete report of all funds received and paid out is filed and a public hearing held on each report in their respective counties. A continuous check is thus had on the accounts in every receivership. In the case of bank receiverships the Banking Superintendent, as receiver of closed banks, should be required to publish a list of all debtors and the amounts owed by each in the county newspaper within a reasonable period of time but not to exceed three months from the date that said banking institution goes into receivership, and at the end of each three months thereafter until such receivership is finally liquidated, in order that the public may be informed as to the assets of the institution.

Many of our smaller communities, in which banks have closed, being unable to support a regular bank, are asking for some kind of banking accommodations. The feasibility should be considered of permitting state incorporated banks to open up offices (not branches, for the Iowa law already prohibits branch banking) in those communities that do not have any banking facilities. If such a policy is adopted, no office should be opened in any town having a bank, and if a bank is organized in a town where an office might have been established, the office should then be discontinued. The State Banking Department and the State Banking Board should administer and prescribe rules and regulations under which such offices might be opened and conducted,—the operations thereof to be confined to the work of accepting deposits, paying checks, and any other necessary clerical work. All loans should be made at the parent bank and the office should be restricted to the county in which the parent bank is located.

AERONAUTICS

In general, the Iowa laws enacted in 1929 are very satisfactory. Any general altering of them is needless and would necessarily make them less satisfactory. They are simple. They provide for uniformity with other states and the Federal government. They involve the State in no large expense and the aeronautic industry in no red tape.

Would suggest, however, as possible improvements of our aeronautic laws, the following:

1. The regulatory statute.

The licensing provisions of this law are wholly sound. That part of the law which quotes the Federal air traffic rules as they were in operation in the spring of 1929 and makes them Iowa laws, could well be amended to bring it up to date. The purpose of this part of the law of course is to establish uniformity of air traffic rules.

2. The airport enabling act.

This act gives cities and towns adequate powers. It should be amended to give the state government or some appropriate branch of it similar power to establish airports. It might also be well to extend the power to counties and to allow two or more cities or towns, or a city and county, jointly to acquire and develop airports. Development of airports by the State itself on any large scale is unlikely in the near future. There is at least the possibility that usable ports could be established in existing State parks, on land already owned.

3. Zoning.

Cities should be given power of regional zoning over territory contiguous to municipal airports, though those airports be, as they usually are, outside the cities' corporate limits. This power of regional zoning should extend to territory within two miles of the airport in every direction.

There is need for the granting of this power.

4. Gasoline tax.

The revenue from this source would not be great at present. It seems only fair that Iowa cities and towns should have available for partial support of their airports and airport facilities such sums as could be produced by a reasonable tax on aviation gasoline sold at such air ports. This could be provided by amendment of the gasoline tax law. A tax on aviation gasoline in the same amount per gallon as that now levied on automobile gasoline would not be unduly burdensome. Regularly established air transport and air mail lines operating across Iowa could be exempt from this tax, which would seem to be a real encouragement in the development of such lines.

INSURANCE

Iowa owes much to its insurance institutions and the value of the protection they provide for the individual citizen.

Personally I am a great believer in insurance. In the light of the numerous business failures—during the past six years, many have changed their views on insurance. There are people who have lost everything and all that remains between their families and the necessities of life are their policies of insurance. It is sound business and no man can afford to be without it in order that his family may be provided for and saved the hardships incident to being left without the sustaining influence of a husband or father. I am more and more satisfied that insurance should be an essential element and a part of the assets of the head of every family.

It is the obligation of the State to see that our insurance laws remain adequate and that they are safely and properly administered.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

One of the important developments of modern times for the general good of the whole community has been the adoption of the principle of workmen's compensation for industrial accidents in lieu of the old principle of employer's liability for injuries due to the negligence of the employer. The idea of workmen's compensation was wholly foreign to our country before the twentieth century. The doubtful means of recovery based on proof of negligence, which existed prior to the twentieth century, has gradually been replaced in the vast majority of states by the right to relief based on the fact of employment. Workmen's compensation aims to alleviate the financial distress of the injured workman or his dependents by making good to a considerable extent the wage loss which results from his disability or death. Moreover, it promotes industrial safety by giving employers a pecuniary incentive to reduce accidents and to restore the earning capacity as far as possible of injured workmen.

The modern idea of industrial accidents is not that the employer is to be made to pay damages, nor that the employee is to carry the burden of accident to his person, rather such accidents and their recompense are considered as part of the costs of production. This represents an advance upon the practice of earlier days, when employees sought to hold employers responsible and sometimes collected very heavy damages and when, on the other hand, the employer sought to escape ruinous liability.

There is a tendency and properly so, to liberalize the compensation law. Liberalization of benefits received the sanction of more than twenty states during the past two years. Employers and employees generally are greatly concerned about the continual legislative tinkering with the workmen's compensation acts. It makes uncertainty and what they desire is stability.

Much can be done to bring about a measure of stability by employers and employees taking an active interest individually in the trend of legislative amendments and rulings that affect compensation benefits and costs.

This department is being ably administered and the policies of the administration have the approval both of employees and employers.

LABOR DEPARTMENT

Iowa is in need of a boiler inspection law carrying an adequate appropriation to make the same effective, establishing requirements similar to those of the A. S. M. E. Code so as to prevent parties owning second hand or faultily constructed boilers which are unsalable in other states from shipping them to Iowa and disposing of them within the State.

The present employment agency law is highly discriminating. The fee limitation section should be rewritten with a much higher limit than the present and if exceptions are retained they should be very greatly reduced in number.

The Supreme Court has practically nullified the child labor law as it applies to theatrical appearances. This law should be rewritten.

Modern sanitary science regards the common towel and the common drinking cup as a means of spreading contagion. The Department of Labor should be given authority to abolish these in favor of devices which will prevent the spread of infectious disease.

There is reason to believe that Congress will pass the Wagner Bill with reference to State Federal Employment Agencies and provision should be made by this Legislature to permit the Labor Department to meet Federal requirements.

THE NATIONAL GUARD

The National Guard is composed of many of the finest men in the State. The officers in command are professionally qualified, many of whom have attended one of the many service schools of the Regular Army.

The Iowa National Guard is most fortunate in having one of the very finest training camps in the entire United States.

There are no state-owned armories in Iowa. Each unit of the Guard must provide its own armory, for which the State pays an annual rental. In the larger cities, the State should construct suitable armories on account of the fact that over long periods it would be much more economical.

The reports show that the attendance at Armory drill continues to increase.

During the past two years the Militia Bureau has permitted the organization of two additional units of Artillery, viz., a Headquarters Battery, and a Service Battery and Band.

Inspections of all National Guard Units are made each year by officers of the Regular Army.

The Iowa National Guard is an educational institution in that it teaches civic pride, respect for law and order, and the respect for the property and lives of others. It builds character and teaches the members how to care for themselves physically.

The National Guard stands ready at all times to aid with both men and equipment during a catastrophe such as a tornado, fire or flood, and the greater the efficiency of the officers and men the greater the service performed.

The excellence of the Iowa National Guard is due to the untiring and unselfish efforts of the officers and enlisted personnel, and I desire at this time to take the opportunity to express to the officers and enlisted men my sincere thanks for their hearty cooperation and support. It is gratifying in the extreme to observe the progress made from year to year, and the entire Guard personnel is to be both congratulated and complimented.

IOWA'S RECORD IN THE WORLD WAR AND ON THE MEXICAN BORDER

By provisions of the General Assembly, it is designed that a permanent and accurate record of Iowa's part in the World War and on the Mexican Border shall be prepared and published by the State. The records show 114,218 persons were called for service in the World War and 5,500 were sent to the Mexican Border. A work of this sort to be valuable requires the utmost care and diligent research in the preparation and collection of material. Its value depends upon accuracy and completeness of the assembled data.

Volume 1, consisting of brief historical sketches, is completed and awaiting an appropriation for its publication. It is important that this volume be published at an early date and placed in all libraries; public, school and patriotic orders. A copy should be filed in the office of each County Auditor and each County Superintendent of schools. It is estimated that 5,500 copies will be sufficient to meet this need and all individual requests for copies.

The task in connection with the preparation of the roster is limitless. Many corrections have been found necessary in the service records as first prepared and obtained from the departments at Washington. Congestion of work and correspondence exists in the office of the Adjutant General connected with the War Department. Some of the states have employed competent help to work under the direction of the Adjutant General to expedite securing corrections and supplying of omitted data. If cooperation can be carried out in this way the work should be completed not later than 1932. The necessity for a record as contemplated must be apparent to all.

No greater sacrifice in behalf of country can be shown than that given in time of war when the flower of our manhood is called in defense of country.

HIGHWAYS

Our highways are divided into two general classes—primary roads and secondary roads. The primary roads are under the jurisdiction of the state. The secondary roads are under the jurisdiction of the counties. The secondary roads are subdivided into two classes, "County Trunk Roads" and "County Local Roads." In relation to both the primary and secondary road systems, Iowa has taken an enviable position among the states of the Union.

Secondary Roads:

Our secondary roads were formerly known as "County Roads" and "Township Roads." The county roads were under the jurisdiction of the county board of supervisors. The township roads were under the jurisdiction of the township boards of trustees. Since we have ninety-nine counties with an average of four supervisors per county, and sixteen hundred fifty townships with three trustees per township, our secondary roads were under the control of an army of about 5,500 local officials. Naturally there was inefficiency and lack of system. This was perhaps not so bad as long as the funds expended from year to year were small. But when the secondary road expenditures increased to nearly $22,000,000 per year as they did in 1927, there arose an insistent demand for more tangible results from the funds expended.

The Forty-second General Assembly in special session in the spring of 1928 took action providing for the creation of a secondary road commission to study this problem. The report of this commission was submitted to the Forty-third General Assembly and that body enacted a measure, commonly known as the "Bergman Bill" or "The Secondary Road Law," completely revising our secondary road administrative code. The essential features of this Act were,

1. The township was eliminated as a road administration unit. The control of all township roads was transferred to the counties.
2. The number of secondary road administrative officials was reduced from fifty-five hundred to about four hundred.
3. Responsibility for all secondary roads was fixed in a few easily accessible units instead of being dissipated over a multitude of units.
4. Secondary road funds were consolidated. The use of these funds and the accounting therefor were simplified. Whereas formerly each county had four secondary road funds and each township had three road funds, there are now only two secondary road funds—a construction fund and a maintenance fund.
5. Secondary road officials must, in advance, budget their funds and lay out comprehensive construction and maintenance programs for the expenditure thereof.
6. A larger responsibility was placed on the county engineer for secondary road construction and maintenance, thus bringing his technical knowledge and experience more fully to bear on the problem.
7. The purchase of unnecessary and little-used road machinery and equipment was eliminated.

8. Haphazard and slipshod road construction and maintenance methods were done away with.

This Act has attracted nation-wide attention. The Federal Government and other states are looking to it as a model. Iowa is leading the way.

The Secondary Road Law has been in effect only a year, but already the results are most gratifying. System has taken the place of confusion. Efficiency has displayed inefficiency. Connected improvements are crowding out patchwork. Better work is being done. Hundreds of miles of secondary roads have been graded and surfaced with gravel. Great credit is due the county boards of supervisors and engineers for the tact and skill they have shown in putting this measure into effect.

Doubtless this law is not perfect. No piece of legislation is perfect. It would be a miracle if a great measure such as this were not found deficient in some respects. There will be amendments suggested. These amendments should be viewed in the light of strengthening the law, harmonizing it with other statutes, and smoothing out the rough spots. There should be no backward step.

Primary Roads:

Iowa has come into her own. After years of patient preparation in legislating, locating, grading, draining and bridging, during which we were known as the "Mud Roads State of the Union," Iowa has suddenly stepped out as one of the "best road states of the Union." This transformation could not have been effected without the patient preliminary work. We have planned wisely, built well, and realized the fruits of our efforts. Only five states have more pavement than we. Only one state ever built more pavement in a single year. Our quality is second to none.

It will help us appraise the present if we briefly review the past. Six years ago we had less than six hundred miles of pavement, and twenty-five hundred miles of gravel. Less than 47 per cent of the primary system had a surface of any kind. Now we have 3,340 miles of pavement and 2,470 miles of gravel. Forty-nine per cent of the original system is paved. Eighty-six per cent is surfaced with gravel or better. Six years ago 28 per cent of the system was unimproved. Now only 3 per cent of the original system remains unimproved.

Six years ago our primary road laws were in a chaotic condition. We were in danger of losing our allotments of Federal road aid because we had not complied with Federal statutes. We were dissipating our primary road funds by allotting them to the ninety-nine counties. In some cases we were using these funds on secondary roads. We were assessing one-eighth of the cost of paving against farm lands. Interest on bonds had to be paid out of local tax levies. We had no gasoline tax.

There were two steering wheels on our primary road car. They were interlocking. Neither could work without the other. The Highway Commission had hold of one wheel and the county boards of supervisors had hold of the other. Often they tried to go in different directions. Construction projects were initiated by the county boards subject to the approval of the Highway Commission. Contracts were let by the county boards of supervisors subject to the approval of the Highway Commission. Plans were prepared by the Highway Commission subject to the approval of the boards of supervisors. Primary roads were maintained by the county boards and bills sent to the Commission for payment. Sometimes one of our chauffeurs was looking backward and the other looking forward. We were unable to dodge the mud holes. All we could do was puddle through. We were hopelessly entangled.

This chaos has given way to order. The laws have been revised. The counties were divorced from the primary roads. The state took control. Allotment of primary roads among counties and the use of those funds on secondary roads, was done away with. Special assessments were repealed. Assessments that had been levied were refunded. Interest on bonds is being paid out of motor license fees and gas tax instead of tax levies. Refunds have been made to the counties for expenditures by them for bridges, culverts and right-of-way on primary roads. A gasoline tax of two cents per gallon was levied. This was later increased to three cents per gallon. The gas tax funds are split, five-ninths to the primary roads and four-ninths to the secondary roads. A definite plan and program has been adopted for improving our primary road system. This plan calls for 5,000 miles of pavement and the grading, bridging, and graveling of the remainder of the system. This work will be completed in 1933.

Our highway administration laws are now adequate for our needs. They comply fully with the Federal Aid road law. They are second to none.

During the past two years we have paved 1,766 miles, graveled 670 miles and graded and bridged 770 miles. In the season of 1930 we paved 1,027 miles. Only one state, Illinois, has ever exceeded this record. The present condition of those roads which were in the primary road system at the beginning of this year, is as follows:

Paved .....	3,340 miles
Graveled .....	2,470 miles
Graded .....	760 miles
Not Improved .....	216 miles
Total .....	6,786 miles

All of this vast improvement has been carried out without increasing the tax levies. In fact, the tax on real and personal property for primary roads, has been removed. The burden has been shifted from property owner to the road user. The entire bill is being borne by the gasoline tax and motor license fees, except that a small percentage comes from Federal aid. The property owner pays nothing.

But one thing remains to complete this plan and program. We should adopt the State bond issue. County bonds have been used as a temporary financing medium until such time as State bonds might be available.

Eighty-three of the ninety-nine counties have voted primary road bonds. At the present time there are $86,257,000 of such county bonds outstanding, and $12,933,000 more bonds voted and available for issue. These county bonds were voted largely on the assumption and understanding that they would be taken over and paid by the State through a State bond issue.

There is now pending and will be submitted to you for ratification, a proposed amendment to the State Constitution, authorizing the issuance of $100,000,000 of State primary road bonds. This amendment was passed by the Forty-third General Assembly and now awaits your action. It is recommended that you act promptly in order that the amendment may be voted upon by the people early in March. It would thus be possible, if the people approved the amendment, for this General Assembly before it adjourns, to pass a bill authorizing the issuance of such bonds.

I wish to make it clear that this State bond issue is not in addition to, but in lieu of, the county primary road bonds. If these State bonds should be authorized, the funds derived from the sale thereof will be used to call in and pay off the county primary road bonds as the county bonds become due or subject to call.

There are many reasons why this amendment should be adopted and these State bonds authorized. I will mention only two.

First: We should keep faith with the counties that have voted primary road bonds with the understanding that such county bonds will be called in and paid off by the state with state bond money.

Second: We should place a definite limit on primary road indebtedness. This proposed constitutional amendment does both of these things.

That the people of the State want this State road bond issue, there can be no doubt. The Forty-second General Assembly, in special session, passed a proposed State bond act similar to the proposition now before you. That act was approved by the people of the State at the November election, 1928, by an overwhelming vote. This is the only time the people of the State as a whole have had an opportunity to express themselves on this subject. The Forty-third General Assembly, which was in session at the time the Supreme Court declared the State bond act invalid, immediately adopted this amendment to the Constitution and referred it to the present General Assembly for approval and submission to the people.

Without a definite, comprehensive program of highway improvement such as was outlined in connection with the State bond plan, we could not have made the progress we have in the improvement of our primary highways. Now that the present program is nearing completion, it is hoped that this General Assembly will formulate and adopt a comprehensive plan for the extension and further improvement of our highway system, as current funds are available.

TOLL BRIDGES

We have no toll bridges located within the State of Iowa. There are, however, some fourteen toll bridges spanning boundary streams on our main highway connections with states to the east and to the west of us. We have spent many millions of dollars for the building of toll-free highways. We have done nothing toward the elimination of toll bridges that separate us from other states.

The toll bridges should go. Iowa, in cooperation with her neighboring states, should provide free highway bridges across these boundary streams. Naturally, the principal problem is one of finance. There are three general methods in which Iowa could finance her portion of the cost of these structures:

(a) By the issuance of revenue bonds for each bridge, and levying tolls on the traffic crossing such bridges until such time as the tolls collected shall have retired the bonds. The bridge should then be made a free bridge.

(b) By authorizing the State Highway Commission to set aside each year a small percentage of the primary road fund (say three or four per cent) to constitute an interstate bridge fund.

(c) By combining the above two methods; that is, by authorizing the setting aside of a small percentage of the primary road fund from which the cost of such bridges can be paid, tolls being collected on the traffic crossing each bridge, until such time as the tolls so collected shall have reimbursed the primary road fund for the expenditure made, on account of such bridge.

It is recommended that you take steps at this session of the General Assembly to solve this problem.

You will note that three methods of financing are suggested. Personally I would prefer the method outlined under (b); that is, pay for the bridges out of the primary road fund.

SPECIAL LEGAL HELP ON HIGHWAY CASES

Pursuant to Chapter 236 of the laws of the 43d General Assembly, a special assistant attorney general has been assigned to handle the legal work of the State Highway Commission. The large highway program under way necessarily involves a vast amount of legal work. Many court actions arise out of right-of-way matters. These cases frequently involve large sums of money. It would be physically impossible for one attorney to handle all of these cases. In each of these cases it is necessary to have a local attorney, who knows local people and local conditions, to assist the special assistant attorney general.

Employment of such special attorney is by law subject to approval by the Executive Council. The cost thereof is paid out of the general revenue of the state. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, a total of $6,637.95 was spent out of the general revenue of the state for this purpose. It is recommended that the law be amended so that in the future such special legal help on highway matters will be paid out of the state highway commission's support fund created by Section 4755-b31 of the Code.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC PATROL

Traffic on the primary roads has increased many fold in the last few years. Ten years ago we had only about one-half as many motor vehicles as we have today. The annual mileage traveled by the average motor vehicle today is probably twice what it was ten years ago. Heavy busses and trucks are appearing on our highways in ever-increasing numbers. Highway accidents have increased at an alarming rate. We have spent many millions of dollars to build a modern road system, and will spend many more millions within the next few years. Thus far we have done nothing to supervise traffic on these roads. We have passed laws to regulate this traffic but have made no efforts to enforce these laws. We have taken no steps to safeguard the lives and property of the people who travel our roads or to protect the highways themselves from destruction under the wheels of the illegal vehicle.

Largely speaking, our traffic laws are reasonably adequate. Undoubtedly some additions thereto and some changes therein should be made, but our real need is for the enforcement of the traffic laws we now have. This can be done in a proper manner only by a state motor traffic police organization. Such organization should be under the state highway commission. The same body that builds and maintains our state roads should be vested with the authority, the responsibility and the means for supervising the traffic on those highways.

Such a state motor traffic police organization need not necessarily be large. An efficient, well-trained force of about thirty men should be able to handle the problem at this time. It is not necessary that a traffic officer cover each piece of primary road at frequent intervals. The mere fact that the state had such a force, and that a traffic officer might appear on any primary road at any time, would be a most powerful and beneficial influence.

The duties of these officers should be confined solely to the control of primary road traffic and the enforcement of traffic laws and regulations with respect to such roads. These men should not be used as general peace officers. They should be responsible for the enforcement of no laws except traffic laws.

Since the highway user would be the principal beneficiary of such a traffic patrol force, he should bear the cost thereof. Payments should not be made out of general state revenue.

STATE POLICE FORCE

Suggestions have been made to the effect that we should have a state police force or constabulary. I do not favor this suggestion. I do not believe that our circumstances demand a state police force. Such organization, to be effective, must be large. The expense would be great. Payments should be made from general state revenue and funds are not available therefor, unless new taxes or increased taxes are levied.

It has been proposed that state police officers could be used to patrol the primary road traffic when their services were not needed in chasing criminals. This proposal may sound good in theory, but in my opinion it is not practical. Neither duty would be handled efficiently. The men would be out on highway patrol duty when they were most urgently needed as peace officers, and when they were acting as peace officers, the highway work would go undone. The two lines of work are different, requiring different training, different equipment, different personalities, and a different attitude toward the people with whom they deal.

CONCLUSION

Many difficult problems have confronted us during the past six years. In each of these problems, it has been my pleasure to work shoulder to shoulder with the citizens of our state who have Iowa's progress at heart; people who are ready to make personal sacrifice without stint to better conditions under which we live. I am frank to say that whatever success we have had in readjusting matters of government, social welfare, financial or commercial progress, the hearty cooperation of every Iowan upon whom I have called has been a source of strength and encouragement.

Some Iowa achievements are enumerated as follows, in which I am proud to have played my humble part:

Six years ago, the finger of scorn was pointed at Iowa because of the condition of our highways. We then had only about 500 miles of paved road. Today, we have 3,340 miles of paving. Other states of the Union admire our progress. Some of them are adopting our methods. Within another year or two, Iowa can boast of the most complete, the most useful hard road system of any of the states. We will have achieved that goal without a property tax. This is progress.

Before giving my approval of an extensive plan of road improvement, I did consistently insist on provision for the payment thereof by other methods than direct taxation on real estate, which was already bearing a heavy burden of taxation. We believe the method adopted in Iowa is just and generally so acknowledged today, viz.; aside from the Federal Aid, the people pay for good roads in proportion to which they use them.

The fame of Iowa's educational institutions has spread throughout the world. It has long been our boast that we led the nation in literacy. We can go beyond that. We can claim educational institutions which are the equal of those of any state and we need not take a second place to any state in the movement for equalization of educational opportunity, either for the youth of the farm or the city. All departments of your state government have cooperated with local educational boards to broaden opportunity for the youth of Iowa.

Recent years have brought Iowa to a turn also, in economic development. We have passed the period where we could be called a strictly agricultural state. We have come to the point where our growth as a state depends in large measure upon the upbuilding of our industries. Agriculture will flourish at its best when we have cities filled with prosperous, industrious factory workers; when our farm products are consumed in larger measure by our own people; when the income from our manufacturing plants is turned back in larger measure to the people of our farms. A wave of de-centralization of industry is sweeping the country and Iowa has not been ignoring her opportunity. Our factories have been multiplying at a rapid pace. Factory pay rolls have been steadily climbing. The industrial income of the state is nearing a balance with the agricultural income.

And the reason for this?—simply the fact that Iowa's governmental agencies have at every opportunity, played a helpful part in interesting new industries and in promoting the welfare of those already established. We have no laws that throttle industry. We have no political trends that seriously threaten the future of industry. We have an abundance of raw materials. We have an abundance of industrious workmen. We have, at our door, a market for manufactured and processed commodities which is equal to that of any other state. We are well on our way to economic balance. We can look to the future with assurance.

This constructive attitude has been reflected not only in legislation we have adopted. It is found, too, in legislative proposals we have rejected. The post-war unsettlement created a financial disturbance in Iowa, as well as in other states. Some of our neighboring commonwealths plunged headlong into untried legislative fields. Iowa's conservatism saved her from the mistake which has been partially rectified in Nebraska only recently, by the repeal of bank guaranty legislation. There has been no trifling in Iowa, with economic laws. We have not attempted to overturn any of the fundamental foundations of our commercial system. We have, on the contrary, worked tirelessly to avoid mere panaceas; to remove the disturbing element, rather than to trifle with temporary relief measures of doubtful merit.

The ever-increasing complexities of our social and business life have greatly increased the problems facing our state government. New demands are made for governmental service. New problems must be met by our law enforcing agencies. Our penal and hospitalization institutions have had to be placed upon a new basis of operation. Yet with all these new demands upon the government, we find today that each department is functioning smoothly. The cost of state government has not mounted in proportion to the increased demands for service. It is conceded that at no time in the past has any branch of our government rendered more efficient service at a smaller public cost. This means that our governmental progress has kept pace with our growth as a state. Reduced to figures, for the benefit of the taxpayer, it means that out of the $140,000,000 expended annually in Iowa by state and local governmental bodies, the state itself requires only about ten million dollars to be raised by direct taxation.

Our state health department has reduced disease by 40 per cent. Our institutions for the care of state wards are, aside from expansion costs, largely self-sustaining. Our law enforcement agencies are functioning in a high state of efficiency, our conservation agencies are building up recreational facilities all over the state and protecting the great natural resources we possess. Our social welfare departments are acting on a broader scale than ever before. Our labor is well employed. Our commerce is thriving. Our great industry, agriculture, is looking with confidence to the future.

We rightly associate our state progress with the type of state government we enjoy. Our state government touches our daily life in many ways. It is, therefore, our sacred duty to interest ourselves in public affairs and to participate, not only in choosing our officials, but in guiding their official actions.

I am glad that I live in the greatest agricultural state in the Union and that I live among a people where standards of literacy and intelligence are unexcelled and where we are maintaining schools and churches second to none. I believe in the opportunity for rightful employment for every worker at a good wage. I believe in a nation of home owners as one of the greatest blessings to the family. I believe in public improvements to the extent of the ability of the people to pay for them.

I believe in clean politics. As Governor I have endeavored to give the people an honest, economical, and businesslike administration. My ambition has been to do right at all times and under all circumstances, and honestly and impartially, to the best of my ability, to serve all who are entitled to the protection of a righteous government.

Faith and courage should endure to the end. We should have an ideal and love for the work in which we are engaged, rather than simply a desire for the pay we receive. The foundation of free government consists in holding that public office is a public trust for the good of the state and not for the benefit of the individual holding the office.

We must have faith in Iowa, faith in our government, and faith in ourselves. I call on the citizenship everywhere to come to the aid of the officers they have chosen for the next biennial period and help them make Iowa the best in the galaxy of all the states in the Union. Let us put spirit into this task for such makes for excellence. Let us help raise humanity to greater heights of well being.

Let us all strive to advance the ideals of good will, and of law, and of peace.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN HAMMILL,

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Leave of absence was granted as follows: Thompson of Fayette for the day, on request of Hollingsworth of Boone; Rutledge of Webster for balance of week, on request of Simmer of Wapello; Matthews of Des Moines for the day, on request of Pattison of Jefferson; Craven of Jasper for day, on request of Wearin of Mills; Millhone of Page for balance of week, on request of Hush of Montgomery; Hayes of Dubuque for balance of week, on request of Rawlings of Monona; Hansen of Scott for balance of week, on request of Elliott of Scott.

RESOLUTION

Simmer of Wapello offered the following resolution:

Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That whereas it is now apparent that the committee on committee clerks has not employed a sufficient number of clerks to meet the requirements of the present session, said committee is hereby authorized to employ twenty (20) additional committee clerks to be assigned to the members of the House as deemed advisable and necessary by said committee.

Unanimous consent having been obtained for the immediate consideration of the resolution, Mr. Simmer moved its adoption, and requested unanimous consent that his remarks in support thereof be made a matter of record.

Request granted.

MR. SPEAKER: This day there prevails a condition in our nation that our President and national legislative body are doing everything possible to alleviate.

Our Governor stated in his message yesterday that there is a seven million dollar surplus in our treasury, and that being the fact, I do not believe that this body, under the conditions prevailing, is going to quibble about a few extra clerks who are needed. Now let me show you why I feel they are needed. Sometimes we come in here and find our clerks with nothing to do. We do not stop to realize they come earlier in the morning and work before we arrive, preparing our journal and bill books for the day. It is necessary to have this information ready and in proper order. Suppose a bill was before the house and you were called upon the floor and did not have the amendments made by the Senate or motions made by any member of this House on that bill, it is possible that more time and money would be spent, caused by the delay, hunting up the amendments than it would take to pay for all the committee clerks for a month. So I say we forget that this work must be done in the early morning hours, before we arrive to begin our work.

It is the duty of this House to aid in the alleviation of the unemployment situation as far as possible.

Yesterday after the report of the committee was read, I heard one young lady remark she had had no employment since last December. My wife, sitting in the corridor, overhead one clerk say being overcome and discouraged by not obtaining a position, that "There is always the river."

I want to tell you the situation is serious and if we sit here and quibble over a few dollars that may be paid for help that we really need, and at a time when our own citizens need helping, we will regret it.

We have some big problems coming up which will involve not hundreds of dollars, but thousands, and we can show our people by our actions on those matters that we intend to economize and prevent profligate spending in directions not needed. But I want to tell you gentlemen of the House that we as men are not doing our part if we fail to do our bit in alleviating the unemployment situation. I plead, gentlemen, that we be not small; that we face a situation that does not cost the state of Iowa very much; that will never be missed, and will help our state and help our citizens.

I know what you are thinking—what the folks at home will think. I want the folks in Wapello County and the state of Iowa to know that I am for helping the citizens of our state insofar as possible. I want the record to go down that I made this resolution and that I endeavored to help the employment situation.

Hollingsworth of Boone moved the previous question.

Motion prevailed.

On the question, "Shall the resolution be adopted?" a roll call was demanded. Rule 18 was invoked.

Simmer of Wapello, chairman of the contest committee, in the case of L. W. Hatter vs. J. P. Gallagher, submitted the following report.

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee on the election contest wherein L. W. Hatter is contestant and J. P. Gallagher is the incumbent, beg leave to report that they have had the same under consideration and have heard the arguments of counsel on both sides and that a sub-committee consisting of the gentleman from Harrison, Mr. Tamisiea; the junior gentleman from Pottawattamie, Mr. Mayne; and the gentleman from Keokuk, Mr. Drake, was appointed.

The sub-committee was asked:

1. To ascertain whether a representative is compelled to file a claim for expenses and to brief the law relative to the same.
2. To ascertain what constitutes a bribe as interpreted by the Iowa courts in election promises.

Said sub-committee reported the law to be that a representative is not compelled to file a claim for expenses under the law as enacted by the Forty-third General Assembly and that not being compelled to file an expense account a promise that he would not file an expense account would not be offering the voters of his county anything of value as set out in the law constituting one of the grounds of election contests.

That after a full study of the law and the facts in this case the committee unanimously agreed and do hereby unanimously recommend that this House seat J. P. Gallagher of Iowa County as a member of the Forty-fourth General Assembly.

GOVERNOR'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Members of the General Assembly and Citizens of Iowa:

By the will of its electorate, our beloved Commonwealth of the State of Iowa has conferred upon me the highest honor in its power to bestow.

One has to experience the weight of this obligation to feel the full impact of its significance. To you, who listen to my voice, it is but the witnessing of the inauguration of another Governor. To me it is the assumption of a grave responsibility. And yet, this inauguration concerns every citizen of Iowa. Realizing, that in the conscientious fulfillment of the functions of my office is involved, to some degree, the prosperity and happiness of our people, I am resolved in all my deliberations and in all my executive acts, your welfare will be the primary consideration. In virtue of my induction, I no longer belong to myself. I belong to you. Every Iowa home, and the interest of every individual Iowan, irrespective of station, color or creed, becomes my personal concern.

This day is significant to you, as to me, because it solicits your loyal participation. It serves the high purpose of impressing us with the fact that every task is an exalted one if it contributes to the common good. It brings its recurrent conviction that whilst I, as your Chief Executive, continually devote myself to your well-being, it is only as each of us performs his daily work in the true spirit of industry, patriotism, and loyal citizenship, that we shall reach the commonly coveted goal, and share a mutual benefit.

The high esteem in which I hold the people of my native state, the deep sense of a helpful comradeship in a common cause, the conviction that you worthily merit the best in leadership, increases my determined devotion to this task. The hope that the full measure of our expectations may be realized is inspired by the assurance of your valued assistance. I realize the magnitude of the official obligations with which I am commissioned. With a deep sense of humility, I am conscious of the limitations of individual human endeavor. I would be destitute of feeling if I were not deeply affected by the abundant evidence which my fellow citizens have given me of their confidence by entrusting me with this high office, the functions of which I now assume with a gratitude I profoundly feel but cannot adequately express.

To the task of guiding our favored Commonwealth in its continued growth, in the prosperity of its farms, cities and industries, and in the development of a contented people, I have been called. I shall not have fully realized the high ideals that now inspire me, nor completely achieve the ambitions that now actuate me, should I look back over my term of office with a single regret that I have, at any time, or to any person, been delinquent to the trust you have so generously reposed in me.

ECONOMY

The business of government is the concern of the people. It becomes more involved as the country grows older. As the demand for laws increase, the machinery of government becomes more complicated.

To meet the natural needs of organized society and not overburden the statute books with unnecessary legislation is your problem.

It is not my purpose on this occasion to deal in detail with the many questions that shall be considered in this session. I desire, however, to comment briefly on those problems that are imminent and of grave importance.

The cost of government has steadily mounted since the pre-war period. Taxes have increased in ratio. In many taxing districts of the state taxes are twenty per cent higher this year over last year. In fifteen years the cost of government in Iowa has more than doubled. During the years of this century taxes have more than quintupled in our state. The day of retrenchment is at hand.

Not a dollar should be appropriated out of the State Treasury unless deemed by you indispensable in carrying on the state's business. Every demand on the State Treasury should be rejected unless backed by reasons based on necessity. We cannot and will not neglect the wards of the state, but there is room for economy in many directions. You have the power to curtail expenditures. It is your stern duty to exercise it.

Consider the importance of reducing cost of government. If taxes can be reduced and the tax burden spread out equitably among the people, we are justified in the belief that the load will be lightened on real and other visible property.

County, municipal and school governments have equal responsibility with you in this effort toward economy and retrenchment.

The Budget Department, inaugurated to induce economy, has valuable features but its recommendations are purely advisory, carrying neither legal nor moral weight.

I would recommend that this Department be abolished and the power of the Budget Director be invested in the State Board of Assessment and Review. The principle of the budget is a sound principle and if consistently adhered to will have a vital influence in holding down governmental expense, not only in recommendations of appropriations necessary to be made, but in aiding us to arrive at the hoped for goal of receiving one hundred cents value in the expenditure of each dollar of the taxpayer's money. Whatever else we do, let us have economy.

TAXATION

Before entering into a discussion of possible and proposed remedies that will be brought to your attention in the effort to relieve visible property of part of the unjust burden it now bears I had thought it would not be inappropriate to set forth here some of the reasons that have prevailed with the people in the demand for tax revision.

Ninety-six per cent of all direct taxes are derived from the general property tax. Intangible property, representing approximately one-half the wealth of the state, shoulders less than four per cent of the tax burden. Out of each one hundred dollars of the farmer's income the sum of twenty-eight dollars is required to pay taxes. Tangible property, real and personal, including the farms and homes, buildings, merchandise, live stock and machinery, property the assessor can see, bears nearly ninety-seven per cent of the tax burden, invisible wealth, less than four per cent, while earnings and incomes have no share in the cost of government. Under our ancient system of taxation the citizens who enjoy incomes not derived from ownership of property are in a special privileged class, immune from taxation altogether. Let the rule of justice obtain. Favoritism for any group should be abandoned.

The total income of the people of Iowa in normal years is approximately one and a half billion dollars annually. The income from real estate is less than twenty-six per cent of this amount. This property, yielding only one-fourth of the state's income, under the present tax system, pays nearly ninety per cent of all state and local taxes. Debate is unnecessary to prove the contention that the tax laws must be revised. The tax burden should be distributed more justly among our citizens. The income tax is based on the sound principle that taxes should be paid according to the ability to pay. Provision for state income tax should be written into the laws of Iowa. The law when written should exempt wages and earnings needed to provide families with necessities, to enable them to educate their children and live in some degree of comfort. Rates ought to be high enough in the upper brackets to permit the citizens of substantial incomes to contribute their share toward the cost of government.

It is essential that you incorporate in this law a mandatory provision guaranteeing a reduction in the state millage tax, corresponding in amount to the total raised through the income tax. It must be a replacement tax.

CORPORATION TAX

Corporations should be included in such income tax.

To tax the individual and allow the corporations to go free would work a palpable injustice on the former. Such evasion of our duty cannot be justified in any effort made for genuine tax revision. I think you should earnestly consider the wisdom and fairness of a tax on the income of corporations. The corporation with small earnings will welcome this form of taxation and new industries will be encouraged to locate in our state having the knowledge that when earnings are moderate the tax is light.

The larger industries enjoying greater earning power are amply able to pay a tax that will be their just contribution to the Commonwealth, which fosters and protects them and furnishes a large share of their patronage.

Iowa is one of only six states in the Union failing to provide for some form of corporation tax. Any effort made for genuine tax revision will include such a tax.

I am confident a careful survey will convince you that earnest thought should be given to the inadequate methods now in use in the assessment and taxation of Power Corporations, Public Utilities and Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

Under the Constitution of this state Public Utilities cannot be released from the general property tax. This fact must necessarily be kept in mind in considering a tax on the gross profits of these companies, or an income tax on net income, or whatever plan in your estimation seems best.

INHERITANCE TAX

The principal purpose of an inheritance tax is to supplement the general taxes and relieve to some extent the tax burden borne by the great mass of people of the state. The fact that it is so designed, and furthermore that it is an instrument of revealing considerable property which has been concealed from ordinary taxation, has naturally caused opposition from those whom it affects.

The present Inheritance Tax Act produces an annual revenue of approximately $1,200,000.00, which is about one mill in the general tax levy. The statute as it now stands covers both direct and collateral heirs although the exemptions permitted to the direct heirs are so great that the returns from that class of beneficiaries are not commensurate with the property passing.

I recommend that these exemptions be reduced, and that the rate of tax upon the collateral beneficiaries be increased so that the more distant relatives and those who are strangers to the blood would pay a higher rate of tax. A reclassification of collateral heirs would permit this without any injustice to those who are closer related to the decedent.

The changes recommended, which include some other changes of a more administrative nature, would, according to the estimates made by the Inheritance Tax Department of the State Treasurer's office, increase the annual revenue to approximately $2,250,000.00.

The inheritance tax is eminently a just tax, so recognized by practically all authorities on taxation and should be made more thoroughly a principal source of revenue rather than a supplementary tax.

ASSESSMENTS

The laws relating to the assessment of property should be revised. Brindley's survey shows that property is assessed all the way from ten per cent to one hundred and ten per cent of its actual valuation. The law now prescribes that property shall be assessed at its actual value. In point of fact, custom has neutralized and failed to follow this rule. In the majority of the counties the attempt is made to assess property at fifty to sixty per cent of its value. As a result, glaring inequalities exist in practically every taxing district of the state. A yard-stick of measurement should be provided—some certain standard established and adhered to. I hope it will be clearly set forth in the revised law that intangible value or earning power shall enter into assessment valuation of property.

The Board of Assessment and Review created in the last General Assembly has taken initial steps to establish a standard of measurement in assessments. The powers of this Board should be amplified rather than curtailed.

The county assessment system is strongly urged by many business men, farmers and students of the tax question. It is now in operation in thirty-three states. The claim made for it is that it minimizes the likelihood of favoritism in the assessment of property and links up the units together into one uniform system. This subject deserves your earnest thought and investigation.

JOINT LEGISLATIVE TAX COMMITTEE AND BOARD OF ASSESSMENT AND REVIEW

On this whole subject of tax revision, I commend to your attention for serious study and thought the report to this General Assembly of the Joint Legislative Tax Committee and the State Board of Assessment and Review.

This Legislative Committee, working in conjunction with the Board, has been engaged over a period of eighteen months in painstaking and studious investigation of the whole tax problem.

They have devoted much time in digging to the bottom in their examination of this important subject. The result of their work is embodied in the report which will be laid upon your desks. This document represents labor—consistent, thorough and constructive.

The facts therein set forth are incontrovertible and while opinions may vary as to certain conclusions reached, particularly regarding rates and exemptions, there can be no difference in judgment regarding the substantial value brought to the discussion of the tax problem, through the efforts of your colleagues and the State Board.

REVISION THAT REVISES

I leave the subject of revision of our revenue laws with this closing thought. In the face of the present exigency, thorough and genuine tax revision is demanded. It is a "condition and not a theory" confronting us. If I am any judge of the temper of the people, nothing less than a thorough revision of the entire tax system will meet with their approval. To fail them now would be plain evasion of our duty. Half-hearted revision is little better than no revision. Let us be sure when we have finished in this session with this great undertaking that wealth and income now escaping are required to make their fair contribution to the cost of government.

PUBLIC UTILITIES

In order that the public interests may best be served, public utilities, including transmission lines and telephone and telegraph companies, must be made subject to regulation and supervision by the state. Iowa is one of the few states which have permitted the public service corporations to operate without adequate law regulating and controlling their activities. Recent Federal hearings have disclosed that in many instances the utilities which furnish electric service to the public have established rates which have been based upon inflated values. No company should be permitted to fix a rate based upon a fictitious value.

In this state rates vary in the different communities, determined by contracts made with the municipalities. On account of the utilities' elaborate and intricate financial set-up and their involved corporate structure it is obviously impossible, under our present system, to secure fair and uniform rates. A survey and study of the various rates in force in the municipalities of the state discloses the fact that there is no relation between the cost of production (plus a reasonable profit) and the rate charged. This is grossly unfair.

Public utilities are rapidly extending their services to the country-side and our rural population is required to pay for such service the price asked by the utility which is serving them. The consumers are without protection against extortionate rates, nor do they have the requisite knowledge to determine whether the rate charged is reasonable and fair. We cannot permit this system to continue longer in our state. We must see to it that the public is guaranteed a fair and reasonable rate for the services rendered.

This question ought to be given serious consideration at this session and a law enacted which shall provide for state regulation of all public utility companies so that the public shall be guaranteed just rates measured by cost of production. An adequate method should be provided for arriving at and determining the value of the properties of public utilities located within the state. This will assist in the matter of rate making and will be of benefit in connection with the taxation of these companies.

At the present time certain securities of the public utility companies are exempt from taxation and may also be offered and sold to the public without any supervision whatsoever. These are special privileges and cannot be justified, and I recommend that the law exempting them from taxation be repealed and that all securities of public utility companies be made subject to the Blue-Sky Law.

Municipal ownership of utilities should not be discouraged. Improved machinery for generating electric current on either a large or small scale, and at a low cost, make it practicable in some instances to erect municipal plants, to be paid for out of the earnings thereof. However, this cannot now be done because there is no statutory provision therefor.

A statute should be enacted in this session granting authority to cities and towns to contract for municipal utility plants to be paid for from earnings of said plants.

TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH

There is no provision in law giving either the state or municipalities within the state authority to stand between the people and the large telephone and telegraph companies now operating within the state, in the vital question of establishing fair rates for service. Eight years ago the governor of the state in his biennial message called attention to the monopoly enjoyed by these large telephone utilities and the necessity of protection for the people, but his sound advice went unheeded. The situation is even more acute now.

These quasi-public, franchise privileged corporations should be subjected to regulations in law that will insure the consumers of the service furnished, fair rates based on an intelligent survey of operation costs and capital invested.

In any instance wherein individuals or corporations hold control of public necessities it is the imperative duty of the state to establish regulation thereof. No method other than state control has been devised giving assurance of protection against exorbitant rates levied by unfettered monopoly.

PIPE LINE TRANSPORTATION

A new factor is about to enter our economic and industrial situation. Large organizations are engaged in constructing lines of pipe for the conveyance of natural gas and petroleum products from distant fields for consumption and distribution in this state. Their advent will materially affect our existing systems of transportation and other domestic industries. If legislation is sought by these organizations for the purpose of obtaining corporation and franchise privileges within the state it will be the duty of the legislature to adequately protect citizens whose property rights may be affected.

No franchise rights should be granted unless proper regulatory laws are enacted to safeguard the rights of the citizens of this state and means should be devised of exacting from these new properties such taxes as will constitute their just share of the tax burden.

ROADS

Iowa has taken a leading place among the states of the Union in the important work of designing and constructing a state-wide system of good roads. This road building program has been determined by our people and can now be considered a settled policy of the state. We should continue with that work in as expeditious a manner as is consistent with good business and sound financing.

We have adopted the plan of paying the cost of our primary roads from funds contributed by the people who use them. We must steadfastly hold to this plan. It was on this solemn promise the various counties furnished the funds to make possible the great achievement in highway improvement. By this token we shall vigorously oppose any effort made to divert primary road funds from the purposes now defined in the law. It is our absolute duty to use every safeguard insuring property owners that the cost of these improved highways shall never result in a tax on property.

In continuing with our road building program, we must ever keep in mind that the benefits to our people, for whom roads are established and maintained, must be properly apportioned. The construction cost of the main arteries of travel is necessarily high. It will be found to be impractical and financially impossible to carry that class of construction beyond the main channels of travel and down to every community entitled to improved roads. Therefore, some less expensive plan of surfacing must be employed on many of the roads in order that a more complete system of serviceable, all-season roads may be built. The value of good roads, universally acknowledged, will be more apparent when a system of all-weather highways connect farms with markets, and communities with those centers of trade and the main arteries of travel, to which they desire access.

REDISTRICTING

You will be confronted with the duty of redistricting our state into fewer Congressional districts. There is still a justifiable hope that in the Congressional reapportionment Iowa may be represented by ten members in the House of Representatives. But should Congress persist in granting aliens representation, the delegates in that body from Iowa would be reduced to nine members.

In either event there must be a reduction from the present number which will require a new districting for Congressional representation from Iowa.

In the creation of the new districts an arbitrary arrangement of the political divisions of the state, in disregard of the natural or proper boundaries as indicated by geographical position, should not be made.

Districts should be geographically compact and uniform in population to the degree of practicability.

CONSOLIDATION OF DEPARTMENTS

In the interest of economy there should be consolidation of some of the departments of state government. This can be accomplished without impairing efficiency. Early in the session I will call to your attention several possible departmental consolidations that should, in my opinion, be effected. I earnestly hope you will give careful thought, followed by action, to this matter of consolidation, involving increased efficiency and decreased cost of government.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS AND UNEMPLOYMENT

Industrial stagnation with resulting unemployment is a world condition, in which our own nation is the least sufferer, with less unemployment in Iowa than in other states. This does not mean that there is no problem confronting us and that the most serious consideration should not be given to adjustment, so that every citizen, willing and capable, should have the opportunity of a well ordered and well conditioned means of livelihood. An idle man is not an asset to a community, and of small value to its business interests. His labor power is a total loss in the creation of the material things necessary to a happy and progressive commonwealth. Continued idleness breaks personal morale, and means either state or voluntary charitable support in the end. This must be averted insofar as possible. To say that we are better off in our unemployment than other states or nations during a time of great general distress is poor consolation to people out of work.

The causes leading up to our present industrial situation and consequent problems of unemployment can be largely attributed to the mechanization and development of industry, which kept in mind the matter of production only and almost entirely disregarded distribution. New methods and means of conducting all our industries have produced economies in man power further reducing employment.

These displaced workers should be given aid in the seeking of new employment. This aid should be given without cost to either the person seeking employment or the employer. As a means to this end an extension should be made of the present State-Federal Free Employment Service so as to make possible the best attainable disposition of the willing but idle person into the employment opening fitted to his capacity.

In the meantime our great natural resources, and our industrial opportunities should be fully developed so that great employment will follow, and that our people may not only be producers but consumers and assets in a distributive market.

PRISON LABOR

Prison labor is one of our most pressing problems at this time. There is universal agreement that the prisoner should be kept busy at some productive work. Modern enlightened thought is that the work should not only be productive but that it should give a training that will fit the prisoner for employment by which he can earn a livelihood upon release.

There is no disagreement in this regard. There is, however, difference of opinion as to the method of disposal of the product and the beneficiary thereof. In this lies our major problem at this time. Contracts for the employment of approximately 1,000 prisoners are in effect. These contracts run to private persons or corporations. The Congress of the United States passed an Act to become effective during the early part of 1934, which makes impractical the shipment between states of prison made goods. This will render difficult the disposal of such goods by a private contractor, and therefore, unless provision is made for employment of the prisoners now engaged in contract work, our state will face a serious condition of idleness in prison institutions. This constitutes an urgent problem and one of immediate necessity.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Ample facilities are provided for those of our people who can afford to take advantage of higher educational privileges. It is equally important that full opportunity be provided for the efficient training of those who are to perform the manual tasks of the world. The problems of the farm are daily becoming more intensive, and more adequate training in all the elements for successful farming should be encouraged. The experiments, investigations, farm economies and sciences must, of necessity, be the task of the higher institutions, but the results thus obtained must be brought through vocational instruction to the boys and girls who do the active farm work.

The rapid changes in industry have displaced hundreds of workers who must be given an opportunity to earn a livelihood in new lines of work in which they have no experience or training. For these there must come a fundamental training along general industrial lines that will make possible a readier adaptation to other lines of work, and for the person who expects to follow more highly skilled vocations, there should be given an opportunity of training for fitness in his chosen field.

There is also the adult who had no opportunity of definite education, or who perhaps now realizes neglected opportunities, and who has sufficient energy and ambition to become a more valuable person to society. He should have his chance.

Vocational education aims to cover these fields, and has made good progress during the decade of its existence. Encouragement should be given so that its program can spread to every locality and to each person seeking its advantages.

EDUCATION

Iowa is the peer of any state in the Union in the opportunities offered our young people to obtain higher education. The many fine colleges of the state, together with the state's own renowned institutions of higher learning, afford scholastic opportunities to our sons and daughters, not exceeded by any state and equalled by few.

While we have a justifiable pride in our colleges and universities, we should not forget that the common schools deserve our utmost concern and devotion. Not only because they are the foundation of our Commonwealth, but also for the reason that the great majority of our citizens receive their only educational advantages in the common schools.

It is entirely probable that many localities have set up a more elaborate educational program than their financial abilities justify. All school officials or governing boards should conscientiously scrutinize their school costs to the end that all possible economies may be effected and that expenditures shall, wherever possible, be reduced to the minimum, without impairing the quality of instruction.

The report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction shows that during the last year 65,476 pupils were enrolled in the first grade of our public schools, while 35,925 graduated from the eighth grade and 21,011 received high school diplomas. Nearly four times as many children were enrolled in the grades as in the high school. Let no one interpret these facts as minimizing the value of high school and college training, but we must emphasize the necessity of first providing the essentials of a common school education and of making them equally available to all.

AGRICULTURE

Farming is our greatest industry. Among all the states of the Union Iowa stands first in value of farm lands, farm equipment and farm products. Our state, bounded on either side by the great rivers of the continent, comprises a valley characterized by dark loam soil, unequalled in fertility by any area of land of equal size in the world. Having been blessed by Providence with fruitful acres and propitious climate, it only remains for us to apply our energy and best intelligence to the task of working out economic justice for the farm. First, in standing back of our Congressmen in every effort to stabilize on a fair price level the products of the farm. Second, in providing an impartial tax and assessment system which should reduce the taxes upon the farm and here, this Forty-fourth General Assembly, has unquestioned authority and opportunity to render to agriculture a distinct service. In no other way can the farm be accorded equality and opportunity with business and industry. Moreover, in degree and as a direct result, when agriculture prospers all business in Iowa, manufacturing, wholesale, and retail, is stimulated and encouraged. It is a truism so trite that it needs no repetition here—that when the farmers are doing well, the beneficial result is immediately reflected in better business conditions throughout our state.

The great farm organizations under virile and sagacious leadership are rendering invaluable service to the state, through unremitting efforts, intelligently directed in behalf of our state's greatest industry. They are entitled to our cooperation, that agriculture may come into its own in the greatest agricultural state in the Union.

MANUFACTURES

Iowa has many manufacturing industries, some of them the greatest of their kind in the world. These industries add in material degree to the sum total of the state's resources. They employ our labor and purchase large quantities of Iowa products in raw material.

James A. Garfield said fifty years ago: "Place the factory beside the farm and both will prosper."

A practical way to encourage these industries and what will constitute a drawing power to influence new manufacturing industries to locate in Iowa would be for Iowans to buy whenever possible Iowa manufactured and processed products. This rule holds goods in all the fabric of business, linking up the manufacturer, the wholesaler, and the retailer with the ultimate consumer. Our economic problems are not all dependent on legislative enactments for solution. The effort to keep the Iowa dollar in Iowa depends on our realization of the value of cooperation in retaining in our state the wealth created here.

IOWA COAL

Over eight thousand Iowa citizens, the majority of them heads of families, depend upon the mining of coal for a livelihood. We should encourage this industry. We ought to strive to bring our mining population back to the 1910 basis when eighteen thousand men were mining coal in Iowa.

By tests made on a basis of thirty-six representative samples of coal from different Iowa mines, it was found that Iowa coal furnishes more heat units per cost than other coal.

Let us use every means to encourage Iowa consumption of Iowa products. The more Iowa coal used the more men employed—these miners in turn buy Iowa farm and manufactured products. They patronize the retailers, who are the customers of the wholesalers. Thus, we see forcibly illustrated the value of patronizing our own industries. A more striking example in this respect could not be given.

CHAIN SYSTEMS IN BUSINESS

The growth in recent years of chain business presents a new economic problem and one that is regarded with deep anxiety by many of our citizens.

The laws governing interstate commerce make it difficult for the state, through legislation, to deal with some classes of these large chain organizations. However, where laws do not apply, public opinion often decides issues. The individual citizen will seriously ponder the apparent lack of cooperation in community enterprises on the part of any chain system not locally controlled. These systems should not be permitted to escape their share of community responsibility. Methods of taxation should be devised also to compel them to carry their fair share of the tax burden.

CHAIN BANKING

Chain banking presents problems of a different kind. This state has been developed through extension of credit to citizens intent on home ownership and community enterprise. Any system that curtails credit to the frugal, industrious citizens who are ambitious to till the land, own their homes, or engage in business, will have a depressing effect on the development of our state. In the last analysis credit must be determined by the financial interests in the community where a bank is located and not be determined by persons outside the state.

CHAIN FARMING

Chain farming is now in its incipency in Iowa. The time may come when it will be our chief concern. I do not believe chain farming can take root in this state when conditions are such that our people are encouraged to live on the land—conditions that hold out substantial hope of a fair price for their products, and taxes that are not oppressive. I doubt the validity of the claims made of lower cost of production through corporation farming methods. But, granting chain farms will produce crops, it is an assured fact that they will not produce yeomen citizenry. The individual farmer is interested in schools, churches, and community building. The whole question of the standard of our citizenship is involved in the system that shall obtain in the business of farming. I hold to the family unit system—it has proved excellent in the production of both citizens and crops.

CONSERVATION

No state can hope to retain a devoted and happy populace which does not in due measure provide for the preservation of health and beauty in its surroundings.

The people of Iowa have a right to expect that out of nature's bountiful endowment of rivers, lakes, and wooded hills, sufficient areas may be preserved for their recreation and enjoyment. Thoughtless encroachments of commerce and private ownership have polluted many of our streams, drained our lakes and cut off our approach to those natural playgrounds of our people. Our scattered efforts toward conservation need coordination under an expertly devised state-wide and continuing program immune to the favoritism of changing political forces.

To this end, I call the attention of the Legislature to the need of a budgeted program, extending over a term of years, made by competent experts, to provide the state of Iowa with parks, game refuges, bird havens, fish hatcheries, and recreation areas, based on a complete and extensive survey of the entire state. We are in need of a program toward which all the conservation forces of the state may bend their energies and resources in a coordinated effort. Too much money is being wasted in haphazard efforts which benefit a few instead of the whole state.

Without increasing expenditures, but by coordinating and directing the funds now provided, toward a definite state-wide plan we will attain a more efficient and orderly progress toward a common goal.

The establishment of such a program is in accordance with the most successful methods employed in progressive state management.

Linked up with this subject of a definite program, we should consider that many students of conservation believe a more efficient and economical administration of the state fish and game department could be had through a Commission.

This plan has to recommend it the fact that in the states where it is in operation it has proved successful. The conservationists backing the Commission plan are animated by unselfish motives and a keen desire to improve our methods in propagation of fish and game, protection of bird life, and in preventing pollution of the lakes and streams.

Our streams are rapidly degenerating into open sewers, receiving the waste drainage of private industry and the sewage of municipalities. I trust the Legislature will make sure there is ample legislation to enable the administrative branch of government to terminate this practice of stream pollution.

Without entering into a more thorough discussion of the subject at this time, I commend it to you as deserving your careful study and thoughtful investigation.

EXPENSE ACCOUNT

Chapter One, Acts of the Forty-third General Assembly, grants each member of the General Assembly the right to file a statement of expenses to the maximum amount of five hundred dollars, the amount so listed to be paid out of the state treasury. This law should be repealed. There is a principle involved here that will be apparent when careful analysis is made of this statute. Without going thoroughly into the matter I will call attention to a contingency that might easily arise in connection with this law that I believe should cause grave concern regarding it. Any succeeding Legislature, by changing two words in the law, could raise the amount designated as a maximum to any figure desired. You can easily imagine a time when the expense money might exceed the salary. It does not measure up to our conception of what constitutes sound public policy. If I were you I would repeal it.

This law was supported, as I agree, by many honorable men with none but honest motives, the fact remains, this type of law is unsound in principle and may in future be subject to abuse.

CHILD WELFARE

The influence of women in government has been greatly widened and strengthened during the decade just drawing to a close. Their presence at the polls in equal numbers with men, proves a sincere interest in governmental affairs and attests a true perception of the obligations of citizenship. The record of their competency in many offices of public trust is undisputed. They are keenly interested in all the economic questions pressing for solution. To the problems that center about the home, that deal with child health and protection, they bring exceptional understanding and the value of experience. The character of our civilization can be faithfully gauged by the interest we evince in all questions pertaining to the junior citizens of the state and the insistent and varied problems included in child welfare work.

To promote conditions that will safeguard the health of the children and insure them opportunities of education and surround them with influences that will aid in their spiritual development, is a duty so close to the hearts of our people that it resolves itself into a sacred privilege.

I grant you that the chief responsibility is with parents, and that home influence will ever be the strongest factor in raising children to be worthy citizens of the Republic. Nevertheless the community must share this obligation by providing them with clean, wholesome environment and facilities that encourage moral and mental development.

In this connection we will give special thought to the deficient, backward and delinquent children, and wherever possible set their feet on the path toward happy, normal and useful lives.

PROFESSIONAL LOBBYISTS

The right of the people to be heard on any measure under consideration here, is unquestioned. We represent an intelligent and patriotic constituency and we should welcome their counsel and invite their opinion. The citizen, the corporation, the organized group, should each be accorded a fair hearing and equal consideration. But the professional lobbyist, prostituting his talent for hire, should be ejected from the presence of honest men with the same contumely we are prone to visit on other enemies of the commonwealth. His methods are nauseous. He has no principles. He is the paid creature of any and every mercenary interest venal enough to hire him. He is insidious enough to devise ways and means to impose himself upon every right-minded organization in his lust for gold. He is ever the agent of special privilege seeking through underground methods to stifle good measures and promote bad ones. The professional lobbyist is affable and genial, but the smooth exterior is a cloak for sinister purposes. When he approaches you he under-estimates both your intelligence and your character. He is not interested in the well being of the people whom we represent.

Our constituents for the most part will not be seen here. They are home attending to their work. We constitute their only representation during the deliberations of the General Assembly. They trust us, their representatives, to go about the business of looking after their interests, uninfluenced by the crafty inducements of the professional lobbyist.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

I feel constrained on this occasion to take up the subject of law observance, coupled with the problem of law enforcement.

When all those citizens, generally denominated good citizens, render strict observance of all laws the vexing problem of law enforcement will be well on the road to solution.

To obtain general law enforcement it is necessary in the premise to have the great body of public opinion awake to the necessity of unwaivering observance of each and every law. This accomplished we can deal with complete self-respect, with the vital question of law enforcement. Without going into the intricate subject of causes for the marked increase in crime, we acknowledge the fact, firmly resolved to meet it with all the forces at our command. If, in any respect, the laws are inadequate, strengthen them. If, in any locality, law enforcement officers are derelict in their duties they should be removed. The law provides machinery to obtain such commendable results. The automobile and hard surfaced roads have undoubtedly aggravated the problem. All the more necessary it is that every citizen accord moral, and, if need be, physical support to those agents of the law whose sworn duty imposes upon them the obligation to meet the crime situation with grim resolve and unwaivering courage. We are greatly encouraged by the resolute efficiency of our law enforcement machinery during the testing time of the last few months. Twenty-five bank robbers have been apprehended and in nearly all instances our officers have proved competent and courageous in the discharge of their duties. The press of the state can render a signal service in the vital matter of crime prevention by giving prominent space when criminals are apprehended equal to space devoted to the story of the commission of the crime.

The marked increase in loss of life and injury due to accidents on our highways, warrant you in taking steps to strengthen the laws regulating traffic.

PROHIBITION

The Prohibition Law is the subject of much discussion. Many pronounce it a failure whose memories do not go back to the days when legalized sale of liquor by common consent was held directly responsible for broken homes, poverty and crime. It is unnecessary for me to enter into a defense of prohibition in the presence of representatives sworn to support the Constitution of the United States, and the State of Iowa, representatives in a Commonwealth where dry sentiment has been in the ascendancy for over fifty years. I wish, however, briefly to analyze propaganda set forth that can have no effect except to encourage lawlessness and breed crime. Prohibition was placed in the Constitution of the United States by an amendment that was ratified by forty-six of the forty-eight states of the Union. It is a fundamental law of the land. Neither Congress nor a state legislature can legalize the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. A law contemplating nullification would be declared by the courts as unconstitutional and void. Moreover what Iowans should keenly realize is the fact that Iowa's prohibition laws are stronger than the Volstead Act, therefore, it is beside the question in this state to complain of prohibition. No matter how much the Volstead Law might be weakened, the situation in our state would be no different. We would still be operating under our state laws. Let us, therefore, loyally maintain our own state ideals and laws by personal observance, and render unqualified support to our officials in the fulfillment of the duties of their office.

The talk of a referendum in this connection is futile and misleading. There is now no provision in law, either Federal or state, for a referendum and no vote of the people under existing laws would bind the legislature of the state, its law enforcing officers, or its citizens.

LENGTH OF SESSION

It is my earnest hope that the work of the session will get immediately under way. Several days in time can be saved if we can eliminate the red tape which generally consumes time the first month and proceed as expeditiously as possible with the work of the Assembly.

If we wish to prevent inevitable congestion in the closing days of the session and if we hope to avoid a plethora of ill-digested legislation it behooves us to start immediately on the work of the session and in the consideration of the multiplied problems facing us.

IOWA

An address of this nature must of necessity deal with problems and emphasize responsibilities. Such a statement, however, does not alarm but rather calls us to the heroic task of determined progress. Certain injustices exist that, happily, can be remedied. We will be strengthened and heartened in this undertaking if we consider the many advantages peculiar to our Commonwealth. Our innumerable material resources, our diversified interests, both argicultural and industrial, our ability to supply the demands of other areas; all should contribute to a rapid return to stabilized prosperity.

More important than any material resource is the character of our citizenry. Sound in judgment, resourceful in action, resolute in conviction, honest in purpose, generously cooperative in every righteous cause, sternly insistent on justice where their rights are concerned, these are the characteristics of our people—the sturdy citizens of a great Commonwealth. Can we, then, doubt either the genius or ability of such a citizenry to meet and solve the problems, economic or moral, as they may arise.

I believe it is entirely appropriate here to pay tribute to the veterans of the Civil War. We honor them for their unselfish devotion to duty during the great crisis of the sixties. The youngest of them now are about 85 years of age, but the weight of years has not dimmed their love for their country. Theirs is not only a record of valor “in times that tried men’s souls,” but of nearly three quarters of a century of faithful citizenship in a united nation, so peculiarly the product of their loyalty.

Following in their footsteps of allegiance to the highest ideals of the Republic are the veterans of the Spanish War, and our younger comrades of the great World Conflict. We can but realize that the priceless possession of freedom has been won for us at an incalculable cost.

We revere the traditions of the past, the noble records written upon Iowa’s historic pages, and from them we draw the inspiration that insures the achievements of the future. The pioneers of the last century with courageous hearts, laid the abiding foundations of our state. In national crises, our soldiers defended our liberties and possessions. Forming the stable substance of our Commonwealth is that vast democracy called the people, whose collective patriotism, loyalty and industry permeates the whole social and economic structure and secures its permanency.

Members of the General Assembly, epochs of history are measured not in years, but in momentous events. We are the recipients of a clear mandate from a noble constituency, which, if faithfully carried out, will mark this an epochal session in achievement.

Grave responsibility we are impelled to shoulder, it is true, but with the obligation comes the opportunity of a great work for the common good.

In this high office, into which I am this day inducted, and in the administration of the executive functions with which I am invested, I will seek the valued counsel of my colleagues in office. I will be gratefully attentive to the voice of citizens in all walks of life, for I would understand their problems and share their ambitions. But, above all, I recognize that Divine Wisdom without which nations crumble into the dust of a forgotten past. With a humble and contrite heart, I reverently supplicate the God and Father of us all to be my Guide and Counsellor.

You, the people, are the sovereign state, and I your servant. To you, to my state, to my country, and to my God, I, this day, make my solemn dedication.

The minutes of the Joint Convention were read and approved.

Senator Booth of Shelby moved that the Joint Convention be now dissolved.

Motion prevailed.

The House reconvened, Speaker Johnson in the chair.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE

DES MOINES, IOWA, JANUARY 20, 1931.

House met pursuant to adjournment, Speaker Johnson in the chair.

Prayer was offered by the Rev. J. E. Pritchard, pastor of the Methodist Church, Chapin, Iowa.

Journal of January 15th corrected and approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Leave of absence was granted as follows: TePaske of Sioux for the day, on request of Durant of Hancock.

McCreery of Linn, chairman of the contest committee, in the case of L. W. Hall vs. Ernest H. Fabritz, submitted the following report:

MR. SPEAKER: The committee appointed by your honorable body to investigate the Hall-Fabritz election contest from Wapello county hereby submit this, their report of said contest.

Your committee feels that this contest was justified because of a situation over which no one seemed to have control and for which no one seemed to be consciously responsible.

The committee learned from evidence introduced and undenied statements made that several days after the general election on November 4th, 1930, in which Mr. Fabritz received a majority of 35 votes over Mr. Hall, the County Auditor's office found ninety (90) absent voters ballots which they had overlooked and had failed to deliver to the various voting precincts on election day.

After consulting with the County Attorney and the Attorney General's office the Auditor reconvened the election boards of the County to which any of the absent voters ballots were addressed and instructed them to count the ballots in the same manner as they would on a regular election day.

Your committee further found that four precincts refused to count the ballots delivered to them and returned them to the Auditor's office unopened. There being sixteen of these returned ballots.

However the seventy-four (74) ballots counted by the other precincts cut the majority of Mr. Fabritz to ten votes. Mr. Hall then contested the election, asking that the sixteen votes be counted, that all rejected absent voters ballots be checked and also that all voting machines be checked.

Early in the hearing the contestant and incumbent agreed, through their council, that all of the requests of the contestants should be granted by the committee with the incumbent reserving the right to object to all of the proceedings in case the count should change the result of the election.

However after checking the machines and counting and checking all uncounted ballots the results showed that Mr. Fabritz still had a majority of six votes and Mr. Hall and his counsel conceded the election.

Therefore your committee respectfully reports that in their opinion Ernest H. Fabritz was legally elected State Representative of Wapello County and recommends that he be seated and entitled to all the rights and privileges of this body.

D. R. McCREERY, Chairman,

H. F. GARRETT,

SAMUEL D. WHITING,

C. W. LAMB,

Committee.

On the question, "Shall the report of the contest committee be adopted?"

The ayes were, 103.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Senators and Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

There have been brought before the Legislative and Executive branches of the State Government, and a considerable proportion of our citizenship, a series of charges against the administration of the University of Iowa. They are grave charges, alleging irregularities too serious to be tolerated, if they are true. We must know, and quickly, whether they are true.

Charges such as have been laid before the Legislature and myself cannot be ignored, if the state is to protect its good name. Recognizing that the Assembly already faces heavy responsibilities, I nevertheless feel that I should invite your early consideration of the matter herein officially laid before you. There must be a vigorous, impartial and courageous investigation of these charges, as fair to the accused as to the accusers, but first of all indisputably fair to the citizenry of Iowa.

In justice to the situation I recommend to both branches of this General Assembly that a Legislative Joint Committee be appointed without delay to thoroughly investigate the conditions of the management of the State University. The Board of Education, which is the governing board of the institution, and the authorities who are in immediate charge of the institution, should welcome such an investigation. If the charges are unfounded in fact those accused will be vindicated by the investigation, and if the charges are true we should be swiftly apprised so that steps may be taken to remedy any wrongful condition.

Respectfully submitted,

(Sgd) DAN W. TURNER, Governor.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

Wearin of Mills filed the following explanation of vote on House Concurrent Resolution No. 6 as recorded in the Journal of January 24th, 1931:

I am of the opinion that in many cases the Gentleman from Pocahontas is correct in calling the groups sent out by the Appropriations Committee to investigate various Institutions, junketing expeditions. Sometimes they degenerate into that very thing.

There is one observation, however, that can always be made regardless of entertainment and that is to observe the condition of buildings. I voted for the resolution because I want a committee from the Forty-fourth General Assembly to go down to Glenwood and visit the State Institution for Feeble-minded located in that city. They will find it one of the most ably and economically operated in the State of Iowa, but, what is of the most importance at this time is that they observe at first hand two very evident situations; first, an excessively crowded condition, second, a non-fire proof building that is endangering the lives of a considerable number of the female inmates.

The overcrowded condition has been brought on by the continuous commitment of inmates to the Institution on the part of the Court. Quite frequently children so assigned are taken through a course of study up to a certain point beyond which they cannot go. In some cases the parents would like to have the charge returned to them after such procedure. Under present conditions it is impossible except by Court action which requires time, money, and inconvenience without insuring efficiency. A provision should be written into the Code permitting the Superintendent of the Institution, with the advice and consent of the Board of Control to return certain children to their homes when the State has done all possible for them, and it is safe to so return them. Such an arrangement would relieve some of the congestion in an Institution for unfortunates. Even so, it will be necessary for the Forty-fourth General Assembly to provide additional quarters at Glenwood in order to adequately provide for inmates.

It is also my desire that the Legislature be fully aware of the existence of a large building in use as a dormitory that is not fireproof. I want it known, in the event that a disastrous fire should occur within the next two years causing the death of several hundred inmates, that the Representative from Mills was aware of the situation and called it to the attention of the Iowa Legislature. We as law makers should remember that we have a large number of unfortunates in this State. They must be taken care of in respectable fashion. When buildings are unsafe, they should be properly repaired, or replaced and when it is evident that additional quarters are necessary they should be provided.

For the above enumerated reasons I voted to send committees to our various Instititons to investigate and observe actual conditions.

OTHA D. WEARIN.

On motion of Malone of Cass the House adjourned until 10:00 a. m. Tuesday.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Leave of absence was granted as follows: Thompson of Fayette for the day, on request of Hanson of Winnebago; Orr of Clayton for the day on request of Hayes of Dubuque.

Bair of Buena Vista, chairman of the contest committee, in the case of O. J. Ditto vs. H. C. Hattendorf, submitted the following report:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: The undersigned committee heretofore appointed by your Honorable Body to investigate contest at the 1930 general election between H. C. Hattendorf and O. J. Ditto, of Osceola County, Iowa, for state representative hereby submit this, their report, of said contest.

Your committee held their first meeting on January 14, 1931, and discussed the procedure in this contest and it was ordered by the committee that the Auditor of Osceola County be subpoenaed to appear before the contest committee and bring with him all ballots, poll books, and abstracts of record of the election held in Osceola County on November 4th, 1930, and that he deliver the same to the chairman of the contest committee.

Following this meeting of the committee, meetings were held in the Savery Hotel at Des Moines, Iowa, in room 403 on January 21st, 22nd and 23rd, 1931. The Auditor of Osceola County was present with all records as formerly requested by the committee and both the contestant, Mr. Hattendorf, and the incumbent, Mr. Ditto, were there, represented by counsel, and your committee proceeded to canvas and count all the ballots submitted in this election contest, and when the canvas was completed on the afternoon of January 23rd, 1931, it was found that O. J. Ditto, the incumbent, had a total of 1,240 conceded votes and the contestant, H. C. Hattendorf, had a total of 1,230 conceded votes. We found that the votes cast for both the contestant and incumbent in the various precincts and townships in Osceola County to be as follows, to-wit:

Precinct	Ditto	Hattendorf
Allison .....	29	54
Baker .....	114	103
Fairview .....	49	73
Gilman .....	178	86
Goeway .....	58	58
Harrison .....	30	79
Holman .....	142	104
Horton .....	22	98
Ocheyedan .....	95	206
Viola .....	25	59
Wilson .....	41	33
Sibley Holman .....	457	277
Total .....	1,240	1,230

Your committee finds that there is no fraud, neglect, misconduct or noticeable irregularity with reference to the election held in said county in the action of the election officials or the county auditor of Osceola County.

From the conceded returns for both Mr. Ditto and Mr. Hattendorf, it was determined that Mr. Ditto had a majority of ten (10) votes. During the canvassing of all the votes, the committee found eight (8) ballots that were challenged for various reasons, but in view of the fact that Mr. Ditto had a clear majority of ten (10) votes in the conceded ballots and that regardless of what decision might be made in regard to these challenged ballots the result of the election would be the same, both sides of the contest committee waived any consideration of the challenged votes. Both parties to the contest and your committee unanimously reports that, in its opinion, Mr. O. J. Ditto, having received the majority of the votes cast in Osceola County at the election held November 4th, 1930, is legally entitled to retain his seat as state representative in the Forty-fourth General Assembly and entitled to all rights and privileges of this body.

The report of the contest committee was adopted, and O. J. Ditto was declared the duly elected Representative from the Ninety-eighth Representative District of the State of Iowa.

Torgeson of Worth, chairman of the contest committee, in the case of Henry S. Berry vs. Roy Maneor, submitted the following report:

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee appointed to investigate the Berry-Maneor election contest from Representative District No. 17, Monroe County, Iowa, begs to report as follows:

That pursuant to said appointment your committee met and organized, and examined into the petition of contest filed by contestant, Roy Maneor, and the cross-petition of contest filed by Henry S. Berry.

That immediately thereafter the committee directed that all of the ballots, records, and papers connected with said election be delivered to it, which was done by the Auditor of Monroe County.

Whereupon, the committee proceeded to open, examine, and count said ballots.

That after having opened, examined, and counted the ballots in six precincts, the following statement was dictated into the record by H. M. Havner, Counsel representing contestant:

"The committee having canvassed the count of the ballots for Troy, Union Precinct No. 1, Hilton, Georgetown, Jackson and Mantua townships, and these being the townships concerning which specific complaint had been made in the petition of the contestant, and it appearing that, as a result of said canvass, no material change was made in the vote as reported by the Board of Election, in the interest of economy, and in fairness to the incumbent, the contestant waives further canvass of the votes and consents to a report, favorable to the incumbent, made by the committee to the House of Representatives."

Thereupon Henry L. Adams, Counsel representing the incumbent, dismissed his cross-petition and counter-appeal.

Wherefore, your committee respectfully finds that Henry S. Berry, having been declared duly elected and having received the certificate of election, is entitled to retain his seat as Representative from Monroe County, Iowa, in the Forty-fourth General Assembly, together with all of the rights and privileges incident thereto.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 8

The committee on State Educational Institutions offered the following Concurrent Resolution:

Providing for the appointment of an investigating committee, whose duty it shall be to fully investigate the management and affairs of the State University of Iowa and its various officers and employees and providing that said committee shall report its findings and recommendations thereon to the General Assembly and to the Attorney General of the State of Iowa, and to provide an appropriation sufficient to pay the expense of said committee.

Whereas, During the past few years, many complaints and charges have been made which seriously reflect on the manner in which the business and affairs have been conducted and handled by those responsible for the management of the State University of Iowa, and

Whereas, Among charges that recently have been made and given wide publicity are the following:

1. That it has been openly admitted in the records appearing in the minutes of the Iowa Board of Education; and in proceedings prior and subsequent to the preparation of those minutes, that Walter A. Jessup, president of the University of Iowa, W. R. Boyd, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Iowa Board of Education, and W. J. McChesney, treasurer of the University of Iowa, have connived with the bank of which W. J. McChesney is president to illegally prefer and favor that bank, and to permit it to have large sums of money on deposit for long periods of time without paying interest thereon as required by the rules of the Board of Education, and as required by the law of Iowa.

2. That Walter A. Jessup as president of the University of Iowa, W. R. Boyd as chairman of the Finance Committee of the Iowa Board of Education, and W. J. McChesney, treasurer of the University of Iowa, have connived so as to permit the said treasurer to keep an average balance of State funds, donated by the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board, in the hands of the said treasurer for approximately five years, without requiring the said treasurer to pay the usual 2½ (two and one-half) per cent interest thereon, as provided by the rules of the Board of Education, and as provided by the laws of Iowa. (See paragraph 8 section 3921 of Iowa Code, and minutes of the Board of Education.)

3. That the bank of which W. J. McChesney is president, or W. J. McChesney as Treasurer of the University of Iowa, has failed to account for the sum of $28,762.00, being the interest on the said average balance referred to above.

4. That the Board of Education on two different occasions has acquiesced in and approved the action of the said officers of the board and the University in permitting the said bank, or W. J. McChesney as treasurer, to retain the sum of twenty-eight thousand seven hundred sixty-two dollars ($28,762.00) interest on the said funds; that this interest was illegally withheld; that the alleged reasons offered by the Board of Education in explanation of its illegal waiver of this interest are in violent conflict, one with the other; and that the second explanation, which is different in toto from the first explanation, was not recorded in the minutes of the Iowa Board of Education until after the attention of the Board had been called to the complete falsity, inadequacy and illegality of the first explanation.

5. That the present administration of the University of Iowa has permitted publicly owned building materials and other property, consigned to or purchased by the University of Iowa, for its own use only, to be used by certain executives and employees of the University in the construction of privately owned buildings, said executives and employees being the owners.

6. That the present administration of the University of Iowa has repeatedly permitted the use of university labor in the construction and repairing of privately owned buildings, said buildings being owned by executives and employees of the University; and that University labor has in other ways been used to the personal advantage of certain executives and employees of the University.

7. That the president of the University of Iowa, Walter A. Jessup, the chairman of the Iowa Board of Education's finance committee, W. R. Boyd, and Charles M. Dutcher, attorney for the university and likewise that University's active political lobbyist, and others have over a period of years built up and perfected a political machine in this state by means of which they have been able to affect appointments to the Iowa Board of Education. In this way they have been able, as servants of the university and of the State, to select and dictate to their own employers.

8. That all the boards and agencies and departments of the State of Iowa except the Board of Education under the law are subject to the supervision and check of the State Board of Audit; that this political machine or lobby presided over by representatives of the Iowa Board of Education and the State University has succeeded in preventing the enactment of legislation intended to make the accounts of the Board of Education subject to the State Auditor or the State Board of Audit; that millions of dollars disbursed by the various state educational institutions and belonging to the people of Iowa are subject only to the accounting of an auditor who is selected by those whose accounts he audits, and who then select a firm of auditors from outside the State of Iowa to merely check the accounts of the auditor who is accountable to them only.

9. That the auditor of the University of Iowa, W. H. Cobb, under the influence and at the direction of those who are his superiors at the University of Iowa, has failed to properly audit the accounts of the University and has permitted funds to be used for wrongful purposes.

10. That the Secretary of the University of Iowa, W. H. Bates, has participated in the distribution of University funds for purposes contrary to University agreements and to methods of accurate and creditable accountancy.

11. That the laws of Iowa provide that the Attorney General and his assistants shall attend to the legal business of the State and its various boards and agencies and departments, and that, contrary to these laws, the administration of the University of Iowa has disregarded the office of the Attorney General and has employed over a period of years attorneys of its own selection, at a cost to the taxpayers of Iowa of many thousands of dollars. The Attorney General never has been requested by the Board of Education or the University of Iowa for authority to appoint special attorneys, nor has the Executive Council of Iowa ever approved or authorized such employment. The paying of these fees is in direct violation of section 152 of the Iowa Code.

12. That because of the lack of competent or alert business administration, executives of the University of Iowa charged with the duty of purchasing supplies have purchased quantities of such supplies at a cost higher in many instances than that at which supplies of similar grade, quality and specifications could be and were being purchased by private individuals on the open market, to the detriment and waste of the taxpayers' money.

13. That the executives of the University charged with the duty of purchasing its supplies have by unethical and unfair methods and practices prevented firms and individuals from selling supplies to the University on an open, honest market, and have shown marked favoritisms in the letting of certain contracts to certain seemingly preferred persons and corporations.

14. That W. R. Boyd, chairman of the Board of Education finance committee, is now holding and for many years has held his office contrary to the laws of Iowa, particularly Section 3933 of the code, which provides "The members of the finance committee shall devote their entire time to the work of said institutions;" that Mr. Boyd draws a salary as chief executive of the largest building and loan association in Iowa, and has generally advertised himself as being in the securities business.

15. That the law of Iowa, see code, section 3922, provides that "no member of the board or finance committee, nor any officers of any institution shall be directly or indirectly interested in such purchase or sale," this section referring to the purchase or sale of real estate by the board for the institutions under its control; and that this law has been violated in the purchase of certain properties by the University of Iowa from officers thereof.

16. That John M. Fisk, superintendent of grounds and buildings for the University of Iowa, has supervised the expenditure of many millions of dollars provided by the taxpayers; that he has exercised this supervision with astounding incompetency at frequent and glaring intervals, and by his methods and practices has cost the taxpayers of Iowa huge sums of money; that by these same methods and practices said Fisk has succeeded in driving out of competition for the structural projects of the Board of Education a great number of the large contractors whose participation in the bidding for such work would be of economic benefit to the taxpayers in the state, as well as to its state educational institutions.

17. That some of these said methods and practices of Fisk have been known to officers of the Board of Education, to Chairman W. R. Boyd of the finance committee, and to Walter A. Jessup, president of the University of Iowa, by reason of repeated charges against the said Fisk, and of affidavits substantiating several of these charges, submitted eight years ago.

18. That Walter A. Jessup, president of the University of Iowa, was largely and officially responsible for the disgrace that overtook not only the University but the whole state when, in May, 1929, the Universities of many of the neighboring states refused to longer maintain athletic relations with the University of Iowa, because of direct and flagrant breaches of good faith and common honesty by the University of Iowa, with the knowledge and consent and, at times, at the direction of President Jessup, that much of the disgrace that accrued to the University of Iowa and this state by reason of this drastic action against our University could have been avoided had President Jessup been willing to candidly admit to his accusers his share of the guilt for the breaches of good faith and honesty that caused University of Iowa's punishment.

19. That the President of the University of Iowa, Walter A. Jessup, and certain other officials there, all subservient to the orders and dictates of the president, were responsible for the disqualification of more than twenty students at the University, who were deprived of their amateur standing as athletes, and made to appear as disgraced by charges of professionalism, when as a matter of fact, these students were led by University officials, acting with the knowledge of the president, to innocently violate rules of amateurism; that these students were sacrificed and in several instances their prospective careers as athletic directors, coaches, etc., ruined in order that the part played by President Jessup in the violations might be concealed.

20. That the President of the University of Iowa, Walter A. Jessup, by his arbitrary, dogmatic, stubborn and czar-like attitude as chief executive, and his methods of administration, has driven from the University numerous of the foremost faculty members, especially those formerly connected with the University College of Medicine; that thereby these numerous eminent members of the medical and other faculties, whose reputations were nationwide and who by reason of their reputations had been one of the principal factors in inducing the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board to donate the sum of $2,250,000 to be used for a new University Hospital and Medical College, were lost to the University before the said hospital and Medical College could be completed; and

Whereas, It appears that such charges and the conduct of those responsible for the management of the State University of Iowa, and other institutions under the management and control of the State Board of Education should be thoroughly investigated.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the House, the Senate concurring:

Section 1. #### OPINION FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The opinion received from the Attorney General was read for the information of the House.

Simmer of Wapello asked and obtained unanimous consent to have the opinion from the Attorney General printed in full in the Journal.

January 28, 1931.

To the Honorable Francis Johnson, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to the Honorable Members of the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

Gentlemen:

On the 21st day of January, 1931, the following Resolution was adopted by your Honorable Body, to-wit:

*“* * * Be It Therefore Resolved, That the Attorney General be requested to render an opinion to this House, not later than January 28, 1931, advising it as to the validity of the said proposed constitutional amendment as it is contained in said House Joint Resolution No. 6.”*

A copy of said resolution was officially transmitted to the Attorney General on the same date and, in conformity with that resolution, I am submitting herewith my opinion on the subject matter of the Resolution.

OPINION

At the outset it must be understood that it is not the function of the Judicial or Legal Departments of the state government to deal with the wisdom or policy of proposed legislation. In these respects, the responsibility rests solely with the Legislative branch of government. The same rule is true where, as in this case, the legislature is acting as a governmental agency in proposing an amendment to the Constitution. Therefore, in complying with your request for an opinion as to the validity of House Joint Resolution No. 6 of the Forty-third General Assembly, and the proposed Senate and House Joint Resolution No. 1 now pending in the Forty-fourth General Assembly, we deal only with the question of whether the proposed amendment, if regularly passed by this General Assembly and adopted by a vote of the people, would constitute a valid, legal amendment to the Constitution of the state.

While it may be a commonly accepted notion among the laity that the electorate of a state alone can say what their Constitution shall contain, yet contrary to that notion, the authorities are without dispute on the proposition that in the final analysis, under our form of government, it is the province of the courts to determine whether an offered amendment is valid, not only in the procedure employed in its adoption, but in its substantive provisions as well.

In passing upon the validity of a proposed constitutional amendment, we must necessarily first have in mind the nature of a constitution, its purposes, and what fundamental principles are involved in constitution making. The courts, and many writers on constitutional questions, have defined constitutions. We cite the following definitions of a constitution:

"A 'constitution' is a Magna Charta of the people's rights, the fundamental law of the land, intended, not for short periods of time, but for all time."

Henry v. State, 39 South. 856, 893, 88 Miss. 843.

"The 'Constitution' is supreme law of state, embodying principles on which government is founded, regulating division of sovereign powers, and directing to what persons each of these powers is to be confided and manner in which it is to be exercised."

Browne v. City of New York, 211 N. Y. S. 306, 311. 213 App. Div. 206.

"A 'Constitution' is in fact a fundamental law or basis of government. It is a rule as contradistinguished from a temporary or sudden order; permanent, uniform, and universal."

State v. Roach, 130 S. W. 689 at 694.

"The very term 'Constitution' implies an instrument of a permanent and abiding nature, and the provisions contained therein for its revision indicate the will of the people that the underlying principles upon which it rests, as well as the substantial entirety of the instrument, shall be of a like permanent and abiding nature."

"This Constitution shall be the supreme law of the State, and any law inconsistent therewith, shall be void. * * *" Article XII, Section 1, Constitution of Iowa.

In attempting to amend the Constitution we must, therefore, keep in mind these fundamental principles, and any amendment proposed which violates these principles of constitution making will be held invalid by the courts.

The proposed amendment, at its beginning, reads as follows:

"Notwithstanding the provisions of article VII or any other provision of the constitution of Iowa, the state may, by act of the general assembly, contract an indebtedness not to exceed one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) * * *".

It will be observed that this language does not repeal any provision of the existing constitution. The proposed amendment, if adopted, would constitute a direct exception to, or suspension of, the provision of Article VII for a particular purpose and it would constitute an inferential exception to, or suspension of, every other provision of the now existing constitution insofar as any provision of the existing constitution might be affected by its operation.

What parts of the constitution other than the provisions of article VII are suspended by the adoption of this proposed amendment must be left to the conjecture of the electorate in passing upon the proposed amendment. If adopted by the people those parts which are inferentially suspended must still be left to the conjecture of the legislative, executive or judicial branches of government, or to the conjecture of any citizen who seeks to function under its provision. Those parts of the constitution which are thus swept aside by this blanket suspension can only be determined, if at all, when a test comes and a legislative, judicial or ministerial attempt is made at interpretation.

It must also be kept in mind in considering this phase of the proposed amendment that it does not seek to displace and suspend only those parts of the constitution that are inconsistent with its substantive purposes but it provides for its operation regardless of the interference of other substantive provisions and regardless of any provisions in procedure that might affect its enforcement. The sweeping aside of every constitutional restriction that might stand in the way of its operation affects even the procedure under which the legislature might seek to carry out the mandate of its provisions, and it leaves to the legislature alone, without the approval of the executive branch of government, the right to perform the purposes of the amendment. It sweeps aside every existing provision of the constitution which might, in any way, be construed by the courts as interfering with its operation. It is, therefore, rendered incapable of interpretation by the court, thus dispensing for its purposes with the services of the judicial branch of government.

A Republican form of government cannot thus be done away with. The Constitution of the United States guarantees to the people in each state of the Union a Republican form of government.

Eckerson v. City of Des Moines, 137 Iowa 452, 461;

Cooley on Constitutional Limitations, 628.

Cooley on Constitutional Limitations, supra, speaking of this provision of the Federal Constitution, states:

“The purpose of this guaranty was to protect a Union founded upon republican principles against aristocratic and monarchical invasions,’ that is, to prevent the people of a State from abolishing a republican form of government.”

In Eckerson v. City of Des Moines, referred to above, the court, in speaking of the guaranty of the Federal Constitution, said:

“The purpose of the Federal Constitution was to provide a form of government, republican in character, for the States as a united whole. * * * and whatever may be the form of words employed by the lexicographers—and they are more or less varied—to define what is meant by the expression ‘a republican form of government’, it is clear that it was understood by the fathers to mean a government by the people, through representatives appointed by them to the various departments—executive, legislative, and judicial.” * * *

The proposed amendment clearly suspends, not only article VII of the Constitution, but all other articles of the Constitution that in any way impinges upon its precepts and thus suspends the authority of the judicial and executive branches of our government in violation of the guaranty of the Federal Constitution.

Article X of the Constitution, provides the method by which our state Constitution may be amended. Section 2 of that Article provides that:

“If two or more amendments shall be submitted at the same time, they shall be submitted in such manner that the electors shall vote for or against each of such amendments separately.”

It is apparent by a casual reading of the proposed amendment that it contains more than one subject and more than one substantive amendment.

First: it repeals temporarily the general debt provision of the Constitution;

Second: it provides for the contracting of an indebtedness for improving certain highways;

Third: it provides for the creation of a state indebtedness to retire the obligations of the several counties of the state that have been incurred for road making purposes;

Fourth: it fixes and establishes certain described highways of the state as its primary roads;

Fifth: it prescribes the manner in which roads shall be improved;

Sixth: it seeks to delegate power to some unnamed authority to determine what roads other than those now constituting the primary road system shall become a part of that system;

Seventh: it repeals unnamed provisions of the Constitution affecting the creation of an indebtedness;

Eighth: it repeals unnamed provisions of the Constitution affecting the improvements of highways;

Ninth: it prohibits the issuance of bonds by the several counties of the state for primary road purposes.

The very terms of the provision itself separates it into different parts and subjects. It provides that:

"After bonds in the total principal sum of one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000.00) shall have been issued hereunder, all power to create an indebtedness hereunder shall cease."

Upon the happening of this contingency the power to create indebtedness and to enact laws for the creation of an indebtedness terminates but the provision with reference to the expenditure of the funds for the construction and maintenance of the roads designated in the provision remain as a separate and distinct part of the Constitution, and for all time until amended by the people.

The subject of creating an indebtedness is clearly one subject, and the subject of improving particular roads either from funds derived through the indebtedness authorized or from other funds is clearly another subject. This is made plain by the provisions of our existing Constitution. The subject of laying out and improving highways is treated in our Constitution under article III, and all the restrictions on road making are contained therein, while the subject of contracting indebtedness is treated as a separate subject under article VII of the Constitution. If these were considered separate subjects in the making of our original, permanent Constitution can we now say by adopting an amendment throwing these subjects together that they are only one? We do not believe courts will so hold.

It cannot be seriously claimed by anyone that a provision in the Constitution prohibiting the issuance of bonds by a county for a specific purpose is germane to the subject of creating an indebtedness by the state. The one is a restriction upon the powers of a municipality of the state government; the other is a grant of power from the people to the legislature of the state.

We will not prolong this opinion by pointing out the differences between the different matters which we set out in the nine points enumerated above. We believe that a mere naming of the subjects is sufficient argument that the proposed amendment contains more than one question.

The purpose of the provisions of Section 2 of Article X of the Constitution is tersely stated in the case of Jones v. McClaghry, 169 Iowa, at 297, as follows:

"Its purpose is to exact the submission of each amendment upon its merits alone and thereby secure the free and independent expression of the will of the people thereon. Incongruous matter and that having no connection with the main subject is excluded and the evil of loading a meritorious proposition with another of doubtful propriety obviated. The elector in approving or rejecting cannot be put in a position where he may be compelled, in order to aid in carrying a proposition, to vote also for another which, if separately submitted, he would reject."

The Supreme Court of Idaho, in considering a similar provision to the Constitution of that state with respect to amendment, says:

"This provision of the Constitution is a wise one, and is intended to prevent several inconsistent and conflicting propositions from being submitted to the voters in the same amendment, and forcing the voter to approve or reject such amendment as a whole. In other words, it prevents burdening a meritorious proposition with a vicious one, and alike prevents a vicious proposition from having the support of a meritorious one, and gives to the voter the right to have each separate proposition submitted to him in order that he may express his will for or against each separately without being compelled to accept a provision to which he is opposed in order to have adopted a provision which meets his favor."

Again, the Idaho court in applying the general principles, said:

"Looking, then, at the amendment submitted and under consideration, we find that the joint resolution proposed that two sections of the Constitution be repealed and that five other sections of the Constitution be amended, and the joint resolution in its terms submitted to the electors, as we read the submission, five different propositions: First, to abolish the probate court and extend the jurisdiction of the district court to all matters of probate; second, to provide for the election and appointment of judges; third, to provide for the salaries of judges; fourth, to provide for the terms of said courts; and, fifth, a system of districts."

"It thus appears that the Legislature, in providing for the submission of the proposed changes in the Constitution, recognized and considered that the questions covered thereby involved several distinct and independent propositions, and so stated in the resolution submitting such questions. In this conclusion the Legislature was certainly correct, as the particular matter covered by the proposed changes involved distinct and independent propositions; yet, notwithstanding that fact, the Legislature made no provision and gave the voter no opportunity to vote upon each of these propositions separately. The entire matter was submitted to the electors in a lump, and they were compelled to accept or reject all of the propositions—all of the proposed changes. They had no choice."

The subject under discussion by the Idaho court was a provision relating solely to the judicial branch of government, abolishing the probate court, extending the jurisdiction of the district court, providing for the elections of judges, fixing their salaries, and providing for terms of court, and a system of districts. It might be said that they pertained to one subject—the judicial branch of government, but the court held otherwise and held that each was a separate and distinct proposition to be submitted to the voters separately.

In passing upon the proposed constitutional amendment here under consideration the electorate, in voting upon the measure, might desire to vote for the creation of an indebtedness for the purpose of road building without desiring to have it expended upon the particular roads named in the provision, while others of the electorate might desire to vote to create an indebtedness for the purpose of improving the roads designated in the amendment and would be opposed to the expenditure of money from the bond fund upon roads not designated in the amendment, but which by its provisions might be brought in by some unnamed authority to the primary road system.

Part of the electorate might desire to vote an indebtedness upon the state to build highways but they might not want to vote an indebtedness to discharge the obligations of the counties of the state. Part of the electorate again, might desire to vote for any provision in the measure with the exception of that part denying to the counties the right to incur indebtedness for the improving of the primary roads. Some of the electorate might desire to vote an exception to the debt provision of Article VII of the Constitution, yet they might not want to vote for the repeal or suspension of some other section of the constitution unnamed.

Under the proposed amendment they must vote for all these things or vote against them all. They do not have the choice of determining which, if any, of the proposals shall become a part of the Constitution. Or, their desire to create an indebtedness to build roads might induce them to vote for every other provision, whether they believe it should be adopted or not. In other words, it precludes the electorate from expressing their free choice in passing upon the different subjects in the proposed amendment. Because of this duplicity of subjects involved in one proposal the instrument, if adopted, would, in the judgment of this department, be declared void.

After reciting the primary roads that are to be improved under the provisions of this amendment, stating through what cities and towns each road shall pass, the proposed amendment contains the following provision:

"Nothing herein shall prohibit the changing of the number of any road or part thereof, or the changing of the location of any primary road between the cities and towns named herein."

While this paragraph would, on its face, indicate that changes of locations might be made in any primary road between cities and towns, yet it is entirely silent, and the entire act is silent, upon the question of what authority has been designated by the provision should it become a part of the constitution to bring about such a change in location. The paragraph does not provide that roads may be changed by act of the legislature, by act of the body having charge of the primary road system of the state, or by any other authority. When a provision of the constitution provides for the performance of a duty it must determine who shall perform that duty. If it does not do so the provision is void because of ambiguity. If there is no power delegated to anyone to change the location of one of the primary roads then the act holds out to the public a void inducement for the purpose of soliciting its approval. When one section of a statute or constitutional amendment is void, and others valid, yet if it appears that the void section is a compensation or inducement for the other provisions and the connection between them is such as to warrant the belief that the valid part would not have been passed alone were it not that it was accompanied by the invalid part, then the whole enactment is void.

State v. Executive Council, 207 Iowa 923, 935.

This clause is, in the opinion of this department, void and inoperative for want of definiteness, because it is not capable of fulfillment and is an inducing clause. Being void it would nullify the act.

We have pointed out matters which we believe are legal impediments to the validity of the proposed amendment. You as Members of the General Assembly are the Judges of both the law and the facts insofar as your deliberations are concerned, and the responsibility of legislation rests alone upon your branch of government.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN FLETCHER, Attorney General.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

Short of Woodbury filed the following explanation of vote:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: I voted yesterday to print a statement in the Journal of the House for the following reason:

During the last four to six years the people of Iowa have suffered irreparable injury from mis-statements, half-truths, gross misrepresentation and flagrant falsehoods that have been dealt out to them by certain interests that profit by the expenditure of public funds, and have been utterly confused as to the facts about state business. Yesterday I voted that a statement of one of these falsifications be printed in the Journal of the House. I voted as I did because this matter is of basic and fundamental concern to the welfare of the people of the State of Iowa.

The substance of my statement was as follows:

That on January 21, 1931, an individual who has been assigned a seat in the Press Gallery as a representative of the "Iowa Press Association", sent out into the state the following:

"A test vote on the $100,000,000.00 constitutional amendment bill is expected soon—may have been taken before this reaches our readers. The necessary joint resolution has been introduced in both House and Senate. Rumor has it that an attempt would be made to kill it off by having the attorney general issue an adverse opinion declaring it unconstitutional. This would be interesting in view of that official's refusal three years ago to give an opinion on the $100,000,000.00 bill until it had been voted by the people and a test case brought. This refusal cost Iowa $100,000.00."

The facts may be found in the Journal of the House, of March 8, 1928, pages 41, 42 and 43, which record the resolution presented by Reimers of Lyon County, Forsling of Woodbury County and Lovrien of Humboldt County, requesting an opinion from the attorney general as to the constitutionality of the $100,000,000.00 road bond act, which was then before the House, and which was passed by the House and later declared unconstitutional by the Iowa Supreme Court. The Iowa House of Representatives, on March 8, 1928, voted down that Resolution by a vote of 59 to 44, and refused to request the opinion of the Attorney General. It was therefore the members of the House who composed at that time the majority, who refused to request the opinion of the Attorney General, and whose "refusal cost Iowa $100,000.00."

I have been told that the representative of the Iowa Press Association, who sent out the paragraph quoted above, claims that the Attorney General did refuse a request of the Governor of the State for such an opinion.

I wish to call attention to the fact there is no record of any such request, nor of any such refusal; and that in fact there was no such request nor any such refusal with relation to the $100,000,000.00 road bond act, which was in the early part of 1929, declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the State of Iowa.

I now request that the above protest and explanation be printed in the Journal of the House, in virtue of my right as a member of the Iowa General Assembly, as given in section ten (10) of Article three (3) of the Constitution of the State of Iowa.

WALLACE M. SHORT.

A. be amended by striking all following the word 'stock' in line two (2) and all of lines three (3) to seven (7), inclusive, and by striking".

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 9, CHAP. 402, ACTS 43rd G. A.

Whereas, there has been a proposal made to the joint committee on conservation of the house and of the senate that a state park be purchased, located, and established upon the west shore of Spirit Lake, upon what is known as the Polk-Maish land, comprising several hundred acres of land, and

Whereas, it appears to the joint committee on conservation, that it might be advisable for the state to acquire said lands for the purpose of establishing a state park thereon, and that there might be real advantages to the state in establishing such a park, and

Whereas, it is the opinion of the joint committee on conservation that the proposition should be thoroughly investigated and a full report made to the legislature relative to the matter, therefore

Senate Joint Resolution No. 9. Approved May 7, A. D. 1929.

MEETINGS OF COMMITTEE

Under the provisions of Senate Joint Resolution No. 9, the Committee was directed to investigate the advisability of establishing a State Park on the tract of land known as the Polk-Maish property situated on the west shore of Spirit Lake, in Dickinson county, Iowa.

The Committee met several times during the year 1930, spending several days at Spirit Lake, one day looking at tracts bordering on Clear Lake and the results of some dredging work at Emmetsburg, and one day with the Board of Conservation at Des Moines.

We have found it necessary, in order to intelligently study the question of a State Park at this place to give some study, in a general way, to the lake region of Iowa, to the State Parks already established, their appreciation by the public, and if possible try and anticipate the needs of the future in regard to Lake Shore properties.

We have studied the reasons that have been put forward in favor of the establishment of a park of this size and the desirability of its establishment at this particular place.

Of necessity we have investigated and formed opinions as to the value of this tract of land and its comparison with other tracts of land similarly situated. The question of some method of financing parks both as to their acquisition and as to their maintenance has been discussed. The future park problem must have some well defined plan of financing if it is to develop as it should.

It has been necessary for the Committee to get information on all of these different phases of the park idea and if in the following pages we can convey this information to the members of the 44th G. A. we will feel that the work of this Committee has been worth while.

THE LAKE REGION OF IOWA

When the stream of settlement came flooding into Iowa during the years from 1848 to 1855, the first settlers clung to the land along the streams. They seemed to think that the more desirable land was close to timber and water. This stream of civilization coming from the east, first settled the eastern and southern part of the state. The later arrivals, however, pushed on to the western and northern part of the state, finding there a more level country and a deeper soil. They found also in the north and the northwest part of the state this level country dotted with lakes. Hundreds of these were merely depressions that held water during a rainy season and for most of the year were simply swampy places. As this section of the country became settled and land value began to rise, these places were drained out and later became some of the most productive farms of the state. Yet scattered over this area were to be found many beautiful lakes, some of considerable size and depth and the state wisely adopted the policy of saving these lakes for future generations to enjoy. The state now controls about sixty-three of these, nearly all of which are situated in the northern and northwestern part of the state.

To name some of the larger of these would include Clear Lake in Cerro Gordo county, Storm Lake in Buena Vista county, and Spirit Lake and West Okoboji in Dickinson county. Of these, probably Spirit Lake has the largest area, with about nine square miles of surface, while West Okoboji has probably the greatest depth, in places reaching a depth of approximately 125 feet. Spirit Lake has a depth of about 25 feet while Clear Lake has a depth of about 15 or 18 feet.

To anyone coming from the south and southwest these lakes of northern Iowa are the first bodies of water of any consequence to be found. Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska have no lake regions and the low bottom land lakes or bayous of eastern Arkansas and Missouri are not to be compared with these beautiful upland lakes of our own state. Small wonder then that people from those states find in our own Iowa lakes the nearest opportunity for a vacation and outing, combining the pleasures of camping, fishing, boating and bathing.

The trees surrounding these lakes are the trees common to our Iowa woodlands. Of these the Burr Oak, Ash, Basswood and Elm are the ones most frequently found.

DREDGING

One of the problems confronting the state in its study of the future of our lakes is the gradual filling up of the lake beds. For hundreds and probably thousands of years and until the coming of the white man, the sandy character of the lake bed remained unchanged. But with the coming of civilization and with the cultivation of the lands surrounding these lakes, they began gradually to fill up with mud due to wind blown dirt, the washing of the top soil from surrounding fields, and the decayed vegetable matter.

This not only has raised the bed of the lakes and lessened the enjoyment of bathing in their waters but also has furnished the seed bed for growths detrimental to the lakes; and the enjoyment of them by the public. Algae, reeds and rushes and other forms of water growths have sprung up in this rich silt and today, due to uncontrolled growth, are beginning to threaten the use of these lakes as a pleasure resort and as a fish preserve. Many of those who have studied the problems are convinced that dredging is the most feasible means of restoring these lakes to their former usefulness. The cost of removing this silt and depositing it on nearby shorelines is estimated at from 8c to 15c per cubic yard.

This cost would not be entirely lost as the land thus built up, if in a place where land is valuable, might prove to be worth as much as the cost of dredging. In the north part of the town of Emmetsburg, along the shore of Medium Lake, can be seen an instance where several acres of valuable town property was thus built up out of what was formerly a marshy arm of the lake by dredging.

It might be possible for the state to acquire some shoreline of low value and by building it up above the water line and enlarging its area by dredging be able to acquire additional park area for no more than the higher priced land could be secured and have the lake bed cleaned at the same time.

From the Iowa Lake Bed Survey made by the Iowa State Highway Commission in 1917, we quote the following:

"A depth of fifteen feet of water is required to insure safe winter quarters for fish. With a depth of less than this, fish may winter safely for several years in succession, but a sudden cold snap followed by snow, will seal the lake tightly and result in their death by suffocation. With a hard bottom a contingency of this kind may be provided for by the excavation of holes of limited area. Where any considerable amount of semi-liquid mud occurs, such a plan will not prove practicable, as the first wind storm will stir up the mud and it will settle again in the deepest water."

THE IOWA STATE PARKS

The state of Iowa has at the present time 37 parks in the generally accepted meaning of public parks. These areas total approximately 7,500 acres and range in individual size from 5 to 1,280 acres. Five of these parks are over 500 acres in extent and the average area is about 200 acres.

The parks as now established are most of them located in the north one-half and the east one-half of the state, and usually include hilly, wooded areas. They are established for scenic, scientific, historical and recreational reasons; some being established for one reason, some for another, and some having a combination of reasons for their establishment.

The most outstanding historical park is the Fort Atkinson State Park of 5 acres in Winneshiek county, which is the site of an old federal fort established in 1842. Some of the block houses are still standing and a portion of the old stone barracks.

Recreational features are connected with a good many of these parks. These include picnic facilities, golf courses, baseball fields and chances for boating and bathing wherever water is to be had.

Of the state parks established on the shores of lakes there would be named the one at Clear Lake in Cerro Gordo county with 27 acres, Eagle Lake in Hancock county with 27 acres, Okamanpedan State Park in Emmet county with 19 acres, and five or six others. It is noticeable that nearly all of these state parks on lake shores are comparatively small in area. An artificial lake has been created at Eldora Pine Creek State Park with an area of about 65 acres. This artificial lake is probably responsible for much of the attraction this park has for the public. The attendance has been greater here than at any other park in the state for the past two years.

While the recreational features are not forgotten in the establishment of state parks, yet the people of Iowa are becoming more and more interested in the historical, scenic and scientific places still to be found.

As time goes on that which is regarded as commonplace now, later becomes historical. The old mill that our forefathers used is now a thing of rarity. The old fort erected still earlier is now a thing of curious interest. The Indian mounds of still earlier date arouse the imagination and lead to much speculation and research. The still earlier periods and ages of geological history are depicted by the terrain and rocks. These historical things should more and more be included in the state parks, and saved for future generations to see.

APPRECIATION BY THE PUBLIC

Anyone who visits our state parks during the summer months will realize that the people of Iowa enjoy a vacation and find in these parks a fine place to take an outing. It is estimated that there were approximately 1,700,000 visitors at the various state parks in 1929. Comparing this with the estimated attendance of 232,000 in 1923, will give some idea of the increased interest that is being taken in these parks.

Yet this interest is not alone evidenced by the attendance, but also by the many inquiries received, by the publicity given by the press, and by the interest manifested by the various communities in having state parks established in their vicinity.

The public schools of the state are making their pupils acquainted with the conservation work in all its various phases. In fact the younger generation is more capable of visiting a state park and making an intelligent appraisal, due to this education than many of their parents. Data concerning state parks is appearing in the geographies. Classes in botany make trips to the parks for a study of the specimens to be found, and classes in geology find much of interest there.

In the open season, class picnics, reunions, Boy Scout and Girl Reserve meetings are held and the members of these gatherings enjoy the pleasures of hiking, boating, swimming or golfing as these facilities are provided. But few of these parks are situated on the shore of a lake, and their shore areas are small in size. Yet a visit to them during the hot weather will often find them crowded with people.

It is becoming the usual thing for a great number of people to spend part or all of their vacation at a lake, either at some park or at one of the many Iowa lakes. Some visit them for the boating, swimming, fishing and hunting, and some for just relaxation and relief from their usual routine.

Whatever the reasons for their being at the lake, all are interested in their maintenance and the proper safeguarding of all activities and the reasonable enjoyment thereof.

There is a growing demand that the lake levels be maintained as high as practical, pollution removed, fish life encouraged, their natural attractions preserved or restored, and as much public access as possible be provided to state waters.

NEED OF LAKE SHORE PROPERTY

In saving these lakes for the people of Iowa and the future needs of the state, the men who guided our state through its earlier days acted wisely; but they did not see the need, and they failed to provide some of the land along the shores of these lakes to be saved also for the future. If the state wishes to study the problems confronting it in the control of the lakes, whether the propagation of fish, regulating the speed of boats, or fighting the injurious growths that have sprung up, it must regain title to some land along the shore or pay someone for this shore privilege. If a citizen of the state wishes to enjoy the waters of these lakes for boating, bathing, or fishing he must first obtain some of the land along the shore or pay someone else for this privilege. Because of this condition we find many of the well-to-do people, especially those living near enough to a lake to enjoy its pleasures frequently, buying a lake front lot and putting up a small cottage for their use in the summer. We find many of them who put up small cottages for rent and make quite a profitable business renting out a cottage by the day, week, or month. However, this places a serious handicap on the great majority of the people of Iowa, who because of their distance from these lakes, are then deprived of the enjoyment that should be theirs. All the people of Iowa should be entitled to free lake shore privileges. These areas should be so scattered over the lake regions of the state as to make them reasonably accessible to any part of the state. With the splendid, hard surfaced road system that is being built, any citizen of Iowa can drive clear across the state, from east to west or from north to south in from 4 to 6 hours in any kind of weather.

People in eastern and southern parts of the state, denied natural lakes, will drive long distances over these roads to enjoy the pleasures of a lake, provided the privilege is there awaiting them.

We need some large sized lake shore properties if we are to accommodate the thousands of visitors that are coming to our parks for an outing.

In outdoor recreation no area is hardly complete unless it is on some body of water or has a running stream through it or near by it. Boating, fishing, swimming and other aquatic sports are becoming attractive to an increasingly larger number of people, and nothing is more attractive to people seeking recreation than some body of water. Due to this desirability practically all of the Iowa lakes are surrounded or rapidly becoming so with summer resorts including cottages, hot dog stands, roller coasters or dance halls. As a consequence it is becoming increasingly difficult to acquire state owned land on lake shores although the demand is becoming increasingly great. It is, therefore, highly desirable that more lake shore property should be acquired by the state before it becomes any more utilized by commercial interests or divested of its natural beauty.

DESCRIPTION OF SPIRIT LAKE TRACT

Members of the Committee spent three or four days in July, 1930, looking over the tract of land on the west shore of Spirit Lake that is the subject of this investigation. We find the tract to be approximately 700 acres. Figuring up the different tracts as they appear on the records makes this area about 701.78 acres. The south line is approximately 2½ miles north and northwest from the center of Spirit Lake town, the county seat of Dickinson county. The north side of the tract is within one-half mile of the Minnesota line. The shore line on Spirit Lake is a little over two miles in length and takes up the greater part of the west shore of the lake. The greater part of the north third or half is land lying around and between the state owned lakes, North and South Hottes, Marble Lake and Robinson Lakes. At the time we visited them they were showing the effects of a dry year, and were little more than shallow, marshy, and nearly dry lake beds. Yet we were informed that this is partly due to the deepening of the outlet into Spirit Lake. If that is true it would be an easy matter to fill this outlet and raise the water level if it was thought advisable to do so. The south part of the tract is mostly open, cultivated or pasture land. The map shows small lakes over this tract yet these appeared to be nearly dry with pasture grass and cultivated crops growing over the most of the area shown as lakes. The timber growing over the tracts bordering on the lakes, were the trees common to our Iowa woodlands with perhaps the Burr Oak predominating. This timber growth extended for perhaps the entire length of the Spirit Lake shore line, yet nowhere was the timber growth so great as to kill out the native sod. For most of the length of lake shore the ground raised to heights of from eight to twelve feet above water level, the highest point reaching approximately only about twenty or twenty-five feet, and only in one or two places did it fall below five feet. From these elevations the ground either rose very gently or continued nearly level for some distance. While the character of all the land would be considered rolling yet there was none of it that would be classed as very hilly.

The lake bed extending out from the shore line is all gently sloping. We would judge that a person wading out would go for 75 or 100 feet before getting to a five or six-foot depth, yet the depth over most of the lake is given as about 20 to 25 feet. Small motor boats go all over the lake and are reasonably safe from grounding beyond 100 feet from shore. We do not know where in Iowa could be found a tract of land along one of the larger lakes that would be so desirable for a public park. Any place in the timbered part would make ideal camping ground. The lake shore would be reasonably safe for bathing for children as well as adults. The open ground in the south part would be valuable for field sports, landing fields, or it could be utilized to bring back to Iowa a natural park of earlier days with flowers, grasses, birds, and animals now nearly extinct but brought back to show the people of this and future generations a sheltered bit of the original prairie.

Several buildings are on the place and used at the present time in connection with the farming of the tract. These buildings probably could all be used in connection with a park. The lakes within its border could be used for the propagation of fish or as a refuge for wild fowl. More than anything else perhaps, this place would appeal to the average citizen of the state as a recreational spot, a place where they could go for a camp-out, to go boating, bathing, or fishing.

With the coming of the automobile and good roads, the people of Iowa will more and more avail themselves of an outing on some lake shore if places are provided.

During the last legislature, near the close of the session, a sub-committee of the joint committee on conservation, made a trip to Spirit Lake looking over this tract of land. Upon their return a report was submitted to the joint conservation committee describing the tract, and we wish to include in this report that part of their report which is descriptive of this tract.

"We find this tract of approximately 700 acres of land bordering the west side of Spirit Lake has a shore line commencing at the north end of Templar's Park and extending north for an estimated distance of  $2\frac{1}{4}$  miles, and the tract extending back for varying distances to the extreme width of a little over one mile from the shore of Spirit Lake. The tract also borders on Little Spirit Lake to the northeast, Robinson Lake on the west, Marble Lake on the west and southwest, and nearly surrounds North and South Hottes Lake, and entirely surrounds Sunken Lake. We were informed that Sunken Lake is included as a part of this tract, while the other lakes as here mentioned are owned by the state.

"The character of these lakes is as follows: Marble Lake, Robinson Lake and North and South Hottes Lakes are more or less marshy and shallow and would offer only a limited opportunity for bathing, boating, or fishing; but as a refuge for wild fowl and a place for the propagation of fish the place would probably be valuable. The area of North Hottes Lake is estimated at approximately 35 acres, South Hottes Lake at approximately 80 acres, while the area of Marble, Robinson and Little Spirit Lakes would cover between 200 and 300 acres each. Sunken Lake is a clearcut, beautiful, deep lake, and is estimated at a maximum depth of 25 feet; has an area of approximately 10 acres, and would offer opportunity for fishing and boating. Little Spirit Lake offers excellent opportunity for all of these sports to those who would not care to venture out on Spirit Lake. The character of Spirit Lake is similar to that of the larger lakes of Iowa, and we are informed that it has a moderately shallow bottom near the shore for the entire length of this tract.

"The highway running the entire length of the tract and paralleling the shore line of Spirit Lake and at a distance of 100 to 400 feet from the shore is a part of the county road system of Dickinson county. The entire tract is used as a farm at the present time, although it has five different sets of buildings.

"Outside of its value as a summer resort on the lake front the value of this tract would be little more than the value of the ordinary farm and pasture land, but your committee is unable at this time to give any definite idea as to the value of the property as a summer resort. We do believe, however, that if this tract were purchased by the state and made into a park where the public would be free to camp, fish, boat and go in bathing it would be very much appreciated by the people of Iowa. The value of this place from a historical standpoint should also not be overlooked. On this place some members of the Marble family lost their lives in the Spirit Lake massacre in 1857, and a marker has been placed by the D. A. R. at the location where the cabin stood."

RECOMMENDATIONS

In the foregoing material we have tried to set out the needs of the state regarding lake shore properties. We have tried to give you some idea as to the appreciation the public has had for the parks already established. We are not going to recommend that this legislature appropriate the particular sum of money that is being asked for this particular tract, nor do we think such a recommendation should be made by us.

We do believe, however, that if the State Board of Conservation was allowed a certain additional sum of money each year with a definite understanding that it was to be used for the purpose of acquiring shore property, either for this tract of land or for other tracts that would serve the purpose, and this sum to be spent with the approval of the Executive Council, this procedure would give the Board of Conservation bargaining power that any legislature or legislative committee could not have.

We believe the state should acquire more lake shore property. We also believe that some of this should be acquired with the thought in mind of dredging the adjoining portion of the lake, building up areas from this dredged material that would make valuable park additions.

These two plans should each be followed out under this procedure and either plan would result in more lake shore property.

While we feel that this tract is perhaps better suited for a state park of large size with lake shore privileges than any we have seen, and that it would be a valuable acquisition if secured, yet we believe that the Board of Conservation of Iowa is the proper body to do this, if in their opinion it could be secured at its proper value.

On motion of Durant of Hancock the House adjourned until 9:30 a. m. Monday.

POEM BY NELSON OF STORY

This morning the argument started to Simmer
 At the suggestion presented by the Doctor from Scott
 With fuel carried in from the county of Marion
 It soon became certain the kettle was hot.

We feared for a time the supply would run Short
 As opinions were wrecked by constant onslaught.
 Each speaker determined that he should exhort
 The views that prevailed as the uppermost thought.

By mid-afternoon 'twas done to a Brown
 The strain was increasin', in fact became Wearin
 Oh spare us the treat of being crushed down
 To the point where no one will be seriously carin'.

I lay no claim to being a Reimer
 Or judge any man his opinion or calibre,
 But I must weigh facts as they come to my Garrett
 Vote my conviction and let her go Gallagher.

Then over the Assembly there came a Hush
 As the testimony covered the County of Page
 We soon will see by watching the crush
 Whether red or Greene will control the Age.

Hayes of Dubuque moved that the call of the House be now raised. Motion prevailed.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6

Memorializing the President of the United States, and the Tariff Commission of the United States, to increase the tariff on corn to the limit of the elastic provisions of the tariff law.

Whereas, The price of corn in the United States is not remunerative to the American farmer at the present time, and

Whereas, The present unsatisfactory price is seriously threatened by importations of corn into this country from foreign lands to further depress the price of this product to the American producer, and

Whereas, The American farmer is entitled to, and should receive, the full benefits of our protective system, particularly in this time of price depression; Now therefore

Be It Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring: That the General Assembly of Iowa respectfully requests and earnestly urges that the Tariff Commission immediately recommend to the President of the United States that he, exercising the authority and power granted to him under the provisions of the flexible tariff bill, increase by fifty per cent the duty on corn imported into this country, to the end that the corn growers in the United States may be given just protection against unfair competition in the American markets by the corn growers of foreign countries, which now seriously threatens to depress still further the price of this important product of the American farms;

Be It Further Resolved, That the Secretary of the State of Iowa, be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the President of the United States, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the chairman of the Tariff Commission of the United States, and to each member in Congress from the State of Iowa.

RESOLUTION

Gallagher of Iowa offered the following resolution:

Whereas, It is a notorious fact that legislative bodies, both state and national, responding to suggestions, urgings, promptings, and demands from their respective electorates, are rapidly falling into disrepute, disfavor, and disrespect through their disposition or willingness to "pass laws" on every known subject, from the nursing of babies to the regulation of personal tastes, habits, preferences, and predilections; and,

Whereas, Out of the harsh criticisms, unstinted lampoonings and ridicule directed against legislative bodies, has grown, is still growing, and with menacing speed, a glaring lack of respect for all laws, and the right order such laws connote or imply; and

Whereas, This lack of respect for laws necessarily extends to and involves the courts and judiciary, the custodians and interpreters of the laws; therefore

Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly of Iowa, That it is the sense of this body that a profusion of laws, followed by regularly recurrent waves of more laws, is at once both foolish and futile, and tends to increase, rather than diminish, the evils and iniquities against which a torrent of legislation is being directed. But this declaration, or confessed declarative, does not imply that a diminution in the grist from the law mills would result in an increasing respect for law or a recedence of the wave of crime that is now engulfing the criminal courts of the country and filling the penal institutions with the flotsam or wreckage gathered in from social highways improperly guarded by sane and moral markings. The only merited blame here that attaches to legislative assemblies is in the presumption that the lack, in whole or in part, of proper home training may be compensated for by constantly adding to the statutes regulatory and restrictive extensions. The threatened break-down in a long line of such efforts is proof positive of the utter futility of attempting to legislate the dictates of moral ethics and the promptings of righteousness into the hearts of the sons of the children of men. Therefore, be it again

Resolved, That there can be no lasting moral or social betterment until the home and church act in concert to accomplish this end. The moral element is involved in every human thought, word and act, the trinity that constitutes the source of all our joy and happiness, all our remorse and regret, the product being contingent upon the election of the will, and this election is entirely dependent upon the character formed by parental and spiritual guidance and instruction. Feeling that the position hereinbefore expressed is invulnerable, unassailable, this body makes an ardent and earnest plea to parents and guardians of Iowa to join with their respective spiritual organizations in the only reform movement that can remedy the evils that now threaten to swamp society in a common ruin. The Christian home is the greatest legislative body in the world; as a school, it transcends in primary importance every educational agency to which we gladly contribute our countless millions. Once arouse it to a full sense of its responsibilities, obligations, and potentialities, and the prime bulwark of civilization has been reared anew, and the frantic appeals for more statutory laws will subside in that rational and right-ordered peace that can flow only from homes that properly function.

RESOLUTION

Shields of Clarke offered the following resolution:

Whereas, The Honorable D. Millard Gibson, who was a member of the House of Representatives in the Thirty-ninth, Fortieth and Fortieth Extra General Assemblies from Clarke County, died on the 1st day of June, 1930; therefore,

Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, That the Speaker appoint a committee of three to draft suitable resolutions in commemoration of his life and services to this state and nation.

Unanimous consent having been obtained for the immediate consideration of the resolution, Mr. Shields moved its adoption.

Motion prevailed and the resolution was adopted. The Speaker appointed as members of such committee: Shields of Clarke, Felter of Warren and Randall of Lucas.

Simmer of Wapello asked and obtained unanimous consent to have an editorial by Merrill Gilmore printed in the Journal.
EDITOR COURIER:

It is one of the privileges of a subscriber to differ with the editorial expressions of his newspaper, and I should like to exercise that right respecting your editorial in Saturday's Courier as to Attorney General John Fletcher.

The road bond act of the Forty-second General Assembly, which was held invalid in the case of State vs. Executive Council, 207 Iowa 923, was submitted to the supreme court by the express directions of the law itself.

In that case the court said of the attorney-general: that he had "performed the mandate upon him with sincere purpose and with signal ability."

I was one of the lawyers who helped form the constitutional amendment which provides for doing what was held unconstitutional in the case in the 207th Iowa; and the purpose of the amendment is to authorize the doing of what prior constitutional provisions did not permit. The House asked the attorney general for an opinion upon the proposed amendment, and Mr. Fletcher has given an adverse opinion. Now I hope, and I think, that the attorney general is wrong; but that is a far different thing from saying that he is wrong in fact. It was his duty to give his opinion upon the request of the House. It is a poor lawyer who gives the opinion that is wanted; if he is honest he gives the opinion that he thinks is demanded by the law and the facts. That is apparently what the attorney general has done, and I do not think he is to be criticized for doing it. He is a lawyer for the state, and the state has a right to demand an honest opinion from its highest law officer, just as a private individual has that right in his own affairs.

While I differ with Mr. Fletcher's conclusions, I recognize his ability and his honesty; and those are two traits in its law officer for which the state should be grateful.

MERRILL GILMORE.

BILL SIGNED BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker of the House announced that, as Speaker of the House, he had signed in the presence of the House, the following bill: House File No. 63.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

The following explanation of vote was filed:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: I voted on February 2nd against Senate Joint Resolution No. 1, being the Road Bond Bill and desire to explain my vote as follows:

First, because I believe that the amendment as drafted is a violation of the Iowa Constitution as well as the Federal Constitution.

Second, because having received an opinion from the Attorney General that said resolution is invalid, I believe it the duty of every Legislator as a matter of law to follow the advice of the Attorney General's office, created by the people for the purpose of advising public officials in the performance of their duties.

Because of the two foregoing reasons, to vote the amendment out to the people will cause the expenditure of approximately $300,000 to no avail and only hamper and delay our road building program in the end.

LEONARD SIMMER.

On motion of Mead of Howard the House adjourned until 10:00 a. m. Thursday.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 11

Memorializing the Congress of the United States to refrain from enacting a law placing a tariff or embargo on crude petroleum and the refined products thereof.

Whereas, The legislatures in certain petroleum producing states have passed resolutions memorializing the Congress of the United States to enact a law placing a tariff, or an embargo, on petroleum and its refined products, claiming that such a measure is necessary as a relief measure to the industry in these states, and

Whereas, Iowa's per capita consumption of gasoline is relatively high in the sisterhood of states, and the effect of a tariff, being to increase the cost of gasoline to the consumer, would only place an increased burden on our agricultural pursuits, and

Whereas, Such a law would place an additional burden on an already over-taxed industry, there being now collected as an excise tax on gasoline over four hundred fifty million dollars ($450,000,000) annually, this being in addition to the general property and production tax on petroleum, and

Whereas, Such a tariff would place an additional burden of over three hundred fifty million dollars ($350,000,000) to this burden, and would be borne by the owners of over twenty-seven million (27,000,000) automobiles and trucks, and would be a benefit to comparatively few, and

Whereas, Only four or five states produce oil to any considerable extent and their citizens comprise only a small portion of the population of the United States, and

Whereas, Petroleum and its refined products are necessary to carry on trade and commerce, and

Whereas, The condition such as now exists in the petroleum industry is only temporary and is no more serious than conditions existing in other businesses, and

Whereas, It has been the well settled policy for the past decade, both by the petroleum producers and the Government, to conserve our petroleum deposits, and

Whereas, An embargo or tariff would have the effect of hastening the depletion of our petroleum and greatly endanger our future supply, jeopardizing our national defense in time of war, and placing a heavy burden on our future commerce in time of peace, therefore

Be It Resolved by the House, the Senate concurring: That the President of the United States, and the Congress of the United States, be memorialized to refrain from the enacting of any laws imposing a tariff or an embargo on petroleum products or the refined products thereof, and

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution, duly effected, be delivered to the President of the United States, to the United States Senate, and to the House of Representatives of the United States, and

Be It Further Resolved, That copies of this resolution be delivered to the press and to each representative from Iowa in Congress.

Unanimous consent having been obtained for the immediate consideration of the concurrent resolution, Mr. Mayne moved its adoption.

Motion prevailed and the concurrent resolution was adopted.

Allen of Pocahontas raised the point of order that, by virtue of Rule 28 of the House rules, which provides that, when a question is postponed indefinitely, it shall not be again acted upon during the session, and also by virtue of the fact that the Senate has already made a final disposition of the subject matter which is now before the House; therefore it would follow that any action taken by the House with reference to House File No. 8 would be out of order.

Speaker Johanson held the point of order not well taken for the reason that Rule 28 relates only to questions arising in the House, and any Senate action with reference to the subject is not binding upon the House.

Torgeson of Worth moved as a substitute for all pending motions that the rules be suspended and that House File No. 8 be placed on its third reading.

Long of Cerro Gordo moved that a committee of three be appointed to notify the Senate that the House was ready to receive them in joint session.

Motion prevailed and the Speaker appointed as such committee: Long of Cerro Gordo, McCaulley of Calhoun, and Donlon of Palo Alto.

Long of Cerro Gordo from the committee appointed to notify the Senate that the House was ready to receive them in joint session, reported that they had performed their duty. The report was accepted and the committee discharged.

The sergeant-at-arms announced the arrival of the President of the Senate, the Secretary of the Senate, and the honorable body of the Senate.

JOINT CONVENTION

In accordance with concurrent resolution duly adopted, the joint convention was called to order, Lieutenant-Governor McFarlane, President of the Senate, presiding.

President McFarlane announced a quorum present and the joint convention duly organized.

Senator Clark of Cerro Gordo moved that a committee of three be appointed, one from the Senate and two from the House, to notify Ex-Senator A. L. Rule that the joint convention was ready to receive him.

Motion prevailed and the President appointed as such committee: Senator Clark of Cerro Gordo, Long of Cerro Gordo and Wearin of Mills.

The committee appointed to notify Ex-Senator A. L. Rule that the joint convention was ready to receive him and his visiting guests appeared with them.

REMARKS OF EX-SENATOR A. L. RULE

MR. PRESIDENT, MR. SPEAKER, SENATORS, GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE AND FRIENDS:

It is a distinct gratification and honor to meet with you on this day, for the purpose of reviewing the life of our Greatest Statesman and Martyred President.

It is, indeed, fitting and proper that each year on the Anniversary of the birth of these makers of the history of our country, we should pause from the business and strife of life to study their deeds, acts and character, that we may draw therefrom the lessons to assist us in accomplishing our best.

With the thought of the Gettysburg Address in our mind, we may well say that what we may do or say here today, will not long be remembered. What we may do or say here today, matters not at all to this great character; but what we may do or say here today is of vital importance to us in assisting and directing us along the path where we may be the most useful to our fellow-men and our country.

John G. Nicolay has said:

"Abraham Lincoln was the first typical American to reach the lonely heights of immortal fame. Before him, within the narrow compass of our history loom but two prominent characters: Columbus the Discoverer, and George Washington, the Father of our Country; the one an Italian, the other an English Country gentleman".

George Washington was an American; he was born, lived and died here, but he came from a prominent English family and was reared and educated in the atmosphere of the English nature, habits, moral and social standards. The protege of Lord Fairfax, living and thinking in the terms of the English nobility and country gentleman: reared, living and educated upon our Eastern seaboard, which was typically an English Colony, he naturally, from his position and environment, developed into the typical English country gentleman.

Abraham Lincoln never saw our Eastern civilization until he was a man grown. He never came in contact with the refinement, education and social graces of our Eastern civilization, much less, the culture, refinement and aristocracy of England. Abraham Lincoln was the product of a new life. He was of that race of hardy pioneers who had begun to push westward from our eastern fringe of civilization to wrest the land of an unknown country, from nature, the Indian and the wild animal. These hardy pioneers pushed out into the great unknown to dare its solitudes, to trace the river, explore the forest and to cross the virgin plains to build new homes under new and rugged conditions; to build a new life and expand a new country. These hardy pioneers accomplished in a century what it took the primitive Aryan thousands of years to do in Europe.

George Washington stands upon the border line of English and American history. Abraham Lincoln looms out from the very heart of the American pioneer life, a son of the great new west. In our history, Washington and Lincoln can be looked upon as two, far separated mountain peaks of the great range. In the valleys between these two peaks we see names, acts and deeds that reflect credit upon our nation, but these two great giants of character, Washington and Lincoln, stand towering far above all others and high into the clouds; and upon these two lofty peaks shines that universal and perpetual light of true fame.

Abraham Lincoln was born in obscurity, reared in poverty, and tossed and swayed upon the billows of adversity. Deprived of his mother at the age of nine years, he fell under the protecting, guiding and loving care of his step-mother, Sarah Bush Johnson, a woman of education, refinement and character, who took a keen interest in the educational ambitions of this young step-son. With seven books, the Bible, Robinson Crusoe, Esop's Fables, Bunyon's Pilgrim's Progress, Weem's Life of Washington, a History of the United States and the Revised Statutes of Indiana, as his sole source of literary training and education, until after he had reached his majority, he so developed his mind and character that he equipped himself with a command of English and such a human knowledge gained from nature, forest, stream and the sky, that he became a splendid lawyer, an orator and a statesman without a peer, a soldier of the first rank and a Christian character that is not surpassed by any man since the day of the Blessed Master Himself.

In the Preface to the Life of Lincoln by Lord Charnwood, the eminent English biographer and writer, it is said, Abraham Lincoln was one of the supreme statesmen of the last three centuries, in fact one of the greatest our race has ever produced.

In 1913, Lord Curzon, Chancellor of the University of Oxford, in speaking before the student body of the University of Cambridge on the subject of Modern Parliamentary Eloquence said, the three supreme masterpieces of oratory, are the Toast of William Pitt to the English Arms at Trafalgar, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address. I escape the task of deciding which is the masterpiece of Modern English Eloquence by awarding the prize to the American. Two of these were uttered by a man who had been a plainsman and a country lawyer before he became a statesman. But they are among the glories and treasures of mankind and today, in the hall of the University of Oxford, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, adorns the wall as one of the most perfect pieces of English ever written.

Because of the lack of time, we must pass over the early life of Mr. Lincoln; but it might be well to note, as typical of his character, that while a member of the House of Representatives, in 1847, he was to recommend the appointment of a United States Marshal. Mr. Thomas was Mr. Lincoln's choice but Mr. Bonds' appointment was urged upon Mr. Lincoln. Desiring that the appointment should be solely for the good of the service and the benefit of his country, Mr. Lincoln forwarded Mr. Thomas's papers with the endorsement:

"I solicit for his claims, a full and fair consideration. Having said this much, I add that in my individual judgment, the appointment of Mr. Thomas would be the better."

But in fairness to the other applicant, he forwarded the papers of Mr. Bond and endorsed thereon:

"I add that from personal knowledge I consider Mr. Bond every way worthy of the office and qualified to fill it. Holding the individual opinion that the appointment of a different gentleman would be better, I ask special attention and consideration for his claims, and for the opinions expressed in his favor by those over whom I can claim no superiority."

At this early period in Mr. Lincoln's political life, first we see that great characteristic of his public life, fairness to all, but above all, service to the government and the people.

At the close of his service in the House of Representatives of the 30th Congress of the United States, Mr. Lincoln retired to Springfield, declining a further nomination or election, that he might engage in his profession of the law and did not re-enter the field of politics or public life until 1854.

In order truly to estimate the character of Abraham Lincoln and his decisions upon the great questions that were to confront him in the after years, we must go back into the history of the slavery question. Prior to 1787 the great Northwest Territory comprising most of the state of Ohio, all of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan, belonged to the state of Virginia. Thomas Jefferson, that great champion of democracy and leader of its party, and one of the framers of the Declaration of Independence, advocated the ceding of the Northwest Territory by Virginia to the United States. In drawing the Ordinance of 1787 ceding this territory to the United States, a proviso was included that slavery should never be permitted therein. Thus the policy of prohibiting slavery in new territory began with the framer of the Declaration of Independence, the greatest leader of the Democratic Party, a Southerner and even a slaveholder. Later in 1803, when the same Thomas Jefferson was the President of the United States, he made the Louisiana Purchase from France for the sum of $15,000,000 which included the states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Kansas and Nebraska, as well as a part of Colorado and Montana.

In 1812 the state of Louisiana came into the Union as a slave state without opposition.

In 1819 Missouri sought admission to the Union as a slave state. This was resisted by the North and thus the first slave agitation as to new territory began.

In 1820 the admission of Missouri was again under consideration. Congress finally accepted the Missouri Compromise by which Missouri was admitted as a slave state, but in all other territory purchased from France, North of 36'—30" North, Slavery should be forever prohibited.

In 1846 during the Mexican War, President Polk asked $2,000,000 of Congress for use in negotiating peace with Mexico and with which to purchase additional territory from Mexico. Mr. Willmot of Pennsylvania added an amendment to the bill providing that, in any territory so acquired, slavery should be forever prohibited. This amendment killed the appropriation.

In 1849, Stephen A. Douglas, when a candidate for United States Senator from Illinois, said:

"The Missouri Compromise has been in successful operation for over a quarter of a century and has received the ratification of all parties—a sacred thing which no ruthless hand would ever be reckless enough to disturb."

In January, 1854, the Kansas-Nebraska Bill, providing for the admission of Kansas and Nebraska as states, was introduced. This bill provided that the Missouri Compromise was not to be affirmed or repealed, but the slavery question was to be left to the government in the new states. Stephen A. Douglas offered an amendment which provided that the Missouri Compromise should be inoperative and void, and the Kansas-Nebraska Bill with this amendment of Stephen A. Douglas was passed in May, 1854. Douglas was the Democratic Senator from Mr. Lincoln's own state of Illinois; he and Mr. Lincoln had been in Congress together as members of the House and Mr. Douglas later during the session became the United States Senator. Mr. Lincoln had been anti-slavery and had supported the Willmot Proviso. He had acquiesced in and believed in the Missouri Compromise and felt that it was a sacred thing which should not be ruthlessly set aside, as pronounced by Senator Douglas's own words. The passage of the Kansas-Nebraska Bill with the Douglas amendment fired Mr. Lincoln's soul and brought home to him the dangers that this question held for the future. In September of 1854, Mr. Lincoln took the stump for Mr. Yates, who was the Whig candidate for Congress. His clear delineation of the slavery question, and his thorough knowledge of its history soon caused his speeches to attract marked attention and he was drawn from the Congressional campaign into the State campaign. Senator Douglas was to speak at the State Agricultural Fair at Springfield and by common impulse, Mr. Lincoln was drawn upon to reply. He performed this task with such aptness, force and freshness of argument that it raised him to the leadership of the opposition to Douglas. Two weeks later Douglas and Lincoln met at Peoria in debate. In the Peoria speech, Mr. Lincoln said:

"I hate it because it deprives our Republican example of its just influence in the world; enables the enemies of free institutions, with plausibility, to taunt us as hypocrites; causes the real friends of freedom to doubt our sincerity; and especially because it forces so many good men among ourselves into an open war with the very fundamental principles of civil liberty criticizing the Declaration of Independence and insisting that there is no right principle of action but self interest. * * * Slavery is founded in the selfishness of man's nature—opposition to it in his love of justice."

In these utterances, we see the great heart-throbbings of a true humanitarian, inspired with the great love of his fellowmen and seeking above all the true Divine rule that justice apply to all equally. At the request of Senator Douglas, the debates were discontinued.

The Democrat colleague of Senator Douglas in the Senate was a candidate for re-election before the Illinois Legislature and Mr. Lincoln was brought forth as one of his opponents. The Anti-Nebraska Democrats, however, were opposing Senator Douglas and his Democratic colleague and voted for Lyman Trumbull, one of their own number, refusing to join with the Whigs and vote for their candidate, Mr. Lincoln. On the ninth ballot it became evident to Mr. Lincoln that there was danger of a new Democratic candidate who was neutral on the Kansas-Nebraska Bill. Again he put aside self and his cause for the good of his country and prevailed upon his Whig supporters to vote for Trumbull, which won Trumbull's election and gained for Mr. Lincoln the loyal support of the Anti-Nebraska Democrats.

Not long thereafter, in writing upon this subject to a friend, he said:

"The Autocrat of all the Russias will resign his crown and proclaim his subjects free Republicans sooner than will our masters voluntarily give up their slaves. Our political problem now is, can we as a nation continue together permanently—forever—half slave and half free? The problem is too mighty for me—may God in his mercy superintend the solution."

With the clear supernatural vision which had been given Mr. Lincoln, he stated the very question which was to confront him during the remainder of his life. He felt that it was a question which could not alone be solved by the individual mind, but that the finality of its solution was in the hands of the Divine Providence; that only by being guided thereby, and by remaining in close harmony therewith, could a leader be found, who could ultimately, with that Divine assistance, work out a final consummation.

In 1858 Stephen A. Douglas was a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate and the new Republican party, by resolution, made Abraham Lincoln the opposing candidate. That evening Mr. Lincoln appeared before the convention and delivered his historical speech in which he said:

"A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently, half slave and half free. I do not expect the Union to be dissolved—I do not expect the House to fall—but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing or all the other."

Then followed a critical analysis of the history of slavery, the Kansas-Nebraska Bill, the Dredd-Scott Decision, with such force, that it immediately attracted attention throughout the free states. Senator Douglas returned from Washington and immediately took the stump. Mr. Lincoln challenged Senator Douglas to a joint public debate and it was arranged that they should jointly address the same meetings at seven towns in the state on dates extending through August, September and October. It was in these debates that Mr. Lincoln propounded the question to Mr. Douglas:

"Can the people of a United States territory in any lawful way, against the wish of any citizen of the United States, exclude slavery from its limits, prior to the formation of a State constitution?"

Mr. Lincoln's friends urged him not to propound this question as it would ruin his chances for election. Mr. Lincoln replied:

"Gentlemen, I am killing larger game; if Douglas answers, he can never be President and the battle of 1860 is worth a hundred of this."

Again we have that great characteristic of Abraham Lincoln; he thought, not of himself, nor of the honor to him but only of the great question that was before the country and looking, as he always did, into the future he seemed to discern that no matter what the sacrifice might be to him, the great question involved was the welfare of his country and the happiness of humanity. At this time in his life, it never occurred to Mr. Lincoln that he was a great man or that he was even an important figure in the political world. The thought that he would ever enter the White House was apparently furthest from his mind. He failed to recognize that the great Divine force at work had singled him out as the one far seeing soul to carry out the Divine plan. The question was propounded. Douglas attempted to avoid it. If he answered "Yes", he alienated the southern Democrat; if he answered "No" he alienated the northern Democrat; but he evaded the question and lost both.

Senator Douglas was re-elected to the Senate and to this statesman and orator, let us, in due deference and lasting praise say, that he became part of the Divine plan and materially assisted Mr. Lincoln in the great struggle in the days to come. In the early days of the struggle when the fate of the Union hung in the balance, Senator Douglas took the President by the hand and informed him that the Union cause was right and that from then on, he, Douglas, would assist and support the government and the President in every way possible in the great cause in which they were then engaging. All honor to Stephen A. Douglas, he lived to his promise and loyally and earnestly assisted and supported his bitter opponent, of the early days, to the end.

The year of 1860 was the presidential campaign to choose the successor of Mr. Buchanan, the then Democratic President of the United States. Mr. Lincoln's candidacy for the United States Senate, the Lincoln-Douglas debates and his speeches in Kansas and the west had attracted much attention, yet the east did not know him. He was looked upon by the east as a rough frontiersman, capable of splitting rails and great feats of strength. As to intelligence, refinement, eloquence or character, he was considered a joke. To the effete east, he would be a great source of amusement and merriment. In New York, the younger men of the newly-born new Republican party, which had succeeded the Whig, had organized and were obtaining speakers to appear in New York. These speeches were held in the Cooper Institute in New York City. Mr. Lincoln was engaged to speak on the evening of February 27th, 1860. The poets, bankers, editors and merchants of New York vaguely remembered having read of Daniel Boone, David Crockett, the country of bowie knives, pistols, steamboat explosions and mobs together with the repudiation of state debts and to these Mr. Lincoln belonged and was one of them. These had been recalled by the incidents of the border ruffians violence and the free state gorillas, during the Civil war in Kansas and they wondered what was to be the type, the character, the language of this speaker. Out of curiosity, the culture, refinement and the educated mass of New York, turned out to be amused. Upon the platform was Horace Greeley, the great editor of the New York Tribune; David Dudley Field, the great lawyer, escorted him to the platform and William Cullen Bryant, the great poet, presided over the meeting.

As he stepped forward on the platform, they noted his apparent embarrassment, his tall angular stature, his long arms, his plain features. As he started to speak, he had a high pitched voice and his beginning foreshadowed a dry argument. He used as his text Douglas's words of evasion in the answer to Lincoln's question in the joint debate:

"Our fathers when they framed the government under which we live, understood this question just as well and even better, than we do now."

In a few short moments, his awkwardness had passed away, the figure became more interesting and pleasing; the voice took on a tone of earnestness; his face lighted up with the inspiration of his cause; unconsciously and surely the ear and heart were charmed. How was it done? Because his entire nature rebelled at the injustice of slavery, his soul was in the fight; and his clear logic and argument outlined the history of slavery, its iniquities and dangers as they had never before understood it. The audience for one hour and a half, sat spellbound and entranced until he closed with the words:

"Let us have faith that right makes might and in that faith let us, to the end, dare to do our duty as we understand it."

The interest of the factory man who listened was equal to, perhaps excelled, by the gratifying surprise of the college professors when they found that the western orator could bear the test of their professional criticism and compare with the best examples of their standard textbooks. The next morning, the New York dailies published his speech in full and gave him credit for having taken New York by storm. By this speech, he had passed from an orator to the rank of a statesman. Even then, it had not dawned upon Abraham Lincoln that he might be the choice as a candidate to succeed Mr. Buchanan. In the pure devotion to the cause in which he was engaged, he failed to recognize in himself anything but an humble servant of the people, reaching out to see the right and to assist them in grasping the truth.

The Republican state convention of Illinois was held at Decatur in May, 1860, with the national convention to be held in Chicago, less than two weeks later. The Decatur convention instructed its delegates to vote as a unit for Abraham Lincoln as a candidate for President of the United States and to use all proper means to secure his nomination.

The Republican national convention, or the Wigwam convention as it was called, opened in a temporary building erected for it at Chicago on May 16th, 1860. The five leading candidates before the convention were William H. Seward, twice governor and United States Senator from New York, Salmon P. Chase, governor and United States Senator from Ohio, Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania, Edward Bates of Missouri and Abraham Lincoln of Illinois.

Lincoln was not considered even a serious candidate. Mr. Seward and Mr. Chase were the leading candidates and both looked upon Mr. Lincoln as incompetent, a weakling with none of the qualifications for the supreme office, and above all, particularly lacking in the moral force to wield a firm hand such as required by the chief executive. Mr. Seward felt himself greatly the superior of Mr. Chase and the only candidate who could lead the Republican party to victory. On the other hand, Mr. Chase looked upon himself as the only candidate before the convention capable of sustaining the high office and looked upon Mr. Seward as only a politician lacking in the high qualifications required for the office. There were 465 ballots in the convention and 233 votes were necessary to a choice. Mr. Seward went into the convention with 173 votes and was so positive of the nomination that he remained on his front lawn, where a large company had assembled, awaiting the happy moment when they might congratulate him on his nomination for President. A cannon loaded, stood at the gate ready to announce the nomination of William H. Seward. On the first ballot Mr. Seward received 173½ votes, Lincoln 102 votes. On the second ballot Mr. Seward had 184½ votes, Mr. Lincoln 181 votes. When the telegram announcing this ballot reached Mr. Seward on his lawn, he announced, "I shall be nominated on the next ballot." The third ballot came swiftly. Mr. Seward had 180 votes and Abraham Lincoln 231 votes. David K. Carter of Ohio sprang upon his chair and changed four of Ohio's votes from Chase to Lincoln. Mr. Evarts, speaking on behalf of New York and Mr. Seward, moved to make the nomination of Abraham Lincoln unanimous. To the everlasting credit of Mr. Seward, it may be said that even in the fact of his defeat, his loyalty to the party was not diminished and he stood loyally by Mr. Lincoln and gave an impetus to the campaign by writing to the Republican Central Committee, his hearty endorsement of the platform and his loyal support of the candidate. Mr. Seward immediately took the stump on behalf of Mr. Lincoln and made his addresses in no half-hearted manner, but gave both the party and the candidate his good faith and utmost effort.

In the presidential contest of 1860 there were four tickets: the Republican, with Abraham Lincoln of Illinois for President and Hamblin of Maine for Vice President; the Douglas wing of the Democratic party, Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois and H. V. Johnson of Georgia; the Buchanan wing of the Democratic party, John C. Breckenbridge of Kentucky and Joseph Lane of Oregon; Constitutional Union party, John Bell of Tennessee and Edward Everett of Massachusetts. In the electoral college, Mr. Lincoln received 180 votes, Breckenbridge 72, Bell 39, and Stephen A. Douglas 12. Abraham Lincoln had a majority of 57 votes over all others together in the electoral college and was duly elected President of the United States.

As Abraham Lincoln prepared to take the greatest office within the gift of the people, his greatness as a man, a statesman and a diplomat began to develop and show itself in its truest light. As had never been done before by any President in the history of our country and has never been done since, Abraham Lincoln put himself aside and looked only to the service of his country. Mr. Lincoln immediately set about selecting the members of his cabinet. This cabinet was to be his advisor and was to counsel with him upon all questions that were to confront him. He had a right to take the men in whom he had confidence. He had the right to select men of his personal choice who would be pleasing to him, both in friendship and personality. He knew that Mr. Seward and Mr. Chase looked upon him as having usurped the high office to which they were entitled and which they were so eminently qualified to fill and which, they felt, he was so unfitted to hold. They both looked upon Mr. Lincoln as having no firm character which could be depended upon in the hour of crisis. That he would be easily swayed and moulded and would be under the complete domination of the strongest characters that were around him. That he was unable to take a firm stand and maintain it resolutely for the best interests of the country. Mr. Lincoln felt that the country was entitled to the very best advice and judgment that could be obtained in the administration of the national affairs and here, as never before and never since in our history, was the President of the United States big enough and broad enough to put aside his individual preferences and lay aside personal antagonism and personal gratification for the benefit of his country. Mr. Lincoln showed the greatness of his character when he recognized that his opposing candidates before the Wigwam convention were the leading men, not only of the party, but also of the country. Mr. Seward and Mr. Chase had held office of great honor and great responsibility and had rendered great service to their country. Notwithstanding their attitude toward him; knowing that they would be antagonistic to him: That they desired the place which he held and felt that he had cheated them of their just desserts; still he was so animated by the best interests of his country that he put aside prejudice and personal preferences and made William H. Seward of New York, Secretary of State, Salmon P. Chase of Ohio, Secretary of the Treasury, Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania, Secretary of War, and Edward Bates of Missouri, Attorney General.

Of the five leading candidates of the Republican party for the nomination of President, all of them, by the act of Mr. Lincoln, were placed in the cabinet at the head of the government and gave their best services in the great struggles that followed. After this cabinet had been appointed, Mr. Seward said to the President you have placed four Democrats in the cabinet as against three Whigs. Mr. Lincoln replied, and do I not count in the cabinet? Mr. Seward later found that the President did count. When a man can so far rise above self and look only to the good of his country, in such a selection as this, he has passed almost beyond the realm of the human and into the realm of the Divine.

Abraham Lincoln was a man who had a most sublime faith in the Almighty and believed thoroughly in the efficacy of prayer. We may justly assume that it was by the medium of prayer and faith that Mr. Lincoln reached out, under the Divine assistance, and selected these personally antagonistic men to carry on the great struggle that was shadowing the downfall of our government at Washington.

After the nomination, Mr. Lincoln opened his headquarters at the State House in Springfield. As the days came forward, after he was elected, when he was to leave the state where the fruitful years of his life had been spent and from whence he was loath to depart, he went about his work with the conscientious devotion to his duty and the earnest desire that he, as only a weak mortal with the assistance of the Divine Being, might avert the great struggle which the threatening secession of the South was making eminent. Still not realizing that he was a great man; still not realizing how important he was; he went about his task of departure with a sad, fearful heart, and yet with his own hands was making the preparation. With his own hand he placed the ropes about the boxes and trunks that were to accompany him to Washington. With pen in hand he wrote upon simple cards—"Abraham Lincoln, White House, Washington,"—and tacked them upon the boxes and trunks.

Then the eventful 11th day of February, 1861, came and he was leaving for Washington. It was a chilly, damp February morning. His special train, to carry Mr. Lincoln, his family and associates to Washington, was to depart at 7:45. The train was standing at the station. It was still dark and a heavy mist, almost a rain, was falling. Mr. Lincoln stood in the little waiting room by the stove with a few of his friends gathered around and engaged in conversation. Already that wonderful face had begun to take on the lines of responsibility and the heart was heavy. Again he seemed to be looking into the future as he seemed to sense that there was a great seriousness in the occasion of his departure; he felt an awful something, he knew not what, and yet he may have vaguely felt that he might never return. Outside the station, the friends of many years had gathered to watch the train depart. Mr. Lincoln emerged from the station door; slowly walked across the platform and mounted the front steps of the car. Knowing that his many friends would expect a few words at parting, he stood on the platform looking into the faces of the friends of many years. The conductor of the train reached for the bell-cord, but Mr. Lincoln in that quiet way of his, lifted that beloved voice that had brought fame to Illinois; to be heard for the last time in Springfield, and said:

"My Friends: No one not in my situation can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return. * * * Without the assistance of that Divine Being, who is always with us, I cannot succeed. With that assistance, I cannot fail. Trusting in him who can go with me and remain with you and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will yet be well. To His care, commending you as I hope in your prayers you will commend me, I bid you an affectionate farewell."

Was there ever a more farseeing foreboding? Was there ever a more sublime faith in the Almighty than was here shown? This was the religion of a man who was not a member of a church, but who believed thoroughly in the Divine principle and the efficacy of humble supplication. These last words, the last time his voice was ever heard in Springfield, were a benediction never to be forgotten by those who heard them and were an utterance almost equal to the Gettysburg Address.

The trip to Washington was disappointing to his political friends. The Baltimore Riot was disheartening. The arrival in Washington was noticeably unfriendly and the President was made to feel a sense of loneliness with the forebodings of the future difficulties due to the secession and the attitude of the South.

In his Inaugural Address of March 4th, 1861, President Lincoln endeavored to impress the South with his earnest intent for an impartial adherence to the constitution and the protection of their property, peace and personal security; that the administration would not interfere with slavery where it then existed and in closing he said:

"We are not enemies but friends.

We must not be enemies."

On April 1st, 1861, less than thirty days after his inauguration, the Secretary of State, Mr. Seward, handed him a note, entitled: "Some thoughts for the President's consideration," in which Mr. Seward practically said, we are at the end of a month's administration and yet without a policy; so far the administration has been a failure; certain policies must be adopted immediately and apparently the President cannot carry on the work; if you cannot do it yourself you must devolve it on some member of the Cabinet. I neither seek to evade nor assume responsibility. Mr. Seward practically said the President is a failure and he, Seward, will now take over the office. This memorandum was unknown until years after Mr. Lincoln's death; but on the same day Mr. Lincoln without rebuking, without taking offense, but putting aside self and looking only to the good of the country, replied in a letter to Mr. Seward, which in closing said: upon points arising in the progress of our duties, I wish, and suppose I am entitled, to have the advice of all of the Cabinet; and signed the letter, Your Obedient Servant, A. Lincoln. Again the character, the foresight, the understanding of the President surpasses human understanding or even human endurance.

On April 12th, 1861, Fort Sumter was fired upon and on April 14th, Major Anderson surrendered. Mr. Seward advocated demanding an explanation from France, Russia and Spain as to their conduct toward the secession and if satisfactory explanations were not received, convene Congress and declare war. Mr. Seward wrote a dispatch to Mr. Adams for delivery to the British Government which would have insulted that government and immediately brought on war with England at this crucial moment. Mr. Seward, the great statesman, the great diplomat of the Cabinet, the man who deemed himself the real head of the Administration, schooled in diplomatic relations, handed the rail-splitter of Illinois a dispatch which the rail-splitter, in his ignorance, immediately recognizes as bringing on war. Without reflection, without criticism, the President accepted the note and suggested a few changes. Taking his pen in hand, the Frontier Lawyer, in a careful revision of the dispatch, amended and changed the work of the trained and experienced statesman so as to eliminate entirely its offensive crudeness and brought it within the dignity and reserve of the most studied diplomatic courtesy.

It began to dawn upon Mr. Seward that the President was master both of himself and the Administration, with diplomatic judgment surpassing that of anyone associated with him in the Administration. From that day on, Mr. Seward recognized in the President, a statesman, a diplomat and a man of iron and steel. Is it a wonder Abraham Lincoln has been called one of the supreme statesmen of the last three centuries?

With the Civil War breaking upon the Administration, Mr. Lincoln spent his spare time in applying himself to the study of the Art of War. He obtained books upon this subject and with General Scott, he began an intensive study of military strategy, minor tactics and allied subjects with the result that at the close of the war, he was recognized by European military authorities as one of the great soldiers of the Civil War. French, German and English military authorities all recognized him as one of the best strategists. A European military authority has said that Robert E. Lee was the greatest military genius our country has ever produced, but, as a strategist, Abraham Lincoln was his equal. Early in the struggle and after his study, Abraham Lincoln outlined to General George B. McClellan the battle grounds that would be decisive of the war. McClellan would not follow Lincoln's advice and the President did not override the General's authority, but within three years the decisive battles of the war were fought and won upon the very ground that Lincoln had pointed out to McClellan.

General McClellan was in command of the Army of the Potomac and had created a great enthusiasm among his soldiers and the people of Washington; but he would not fight; always over-estimating the strength of the enemy and underestimating the strength of his army. Mr. Cameron resigned as Secretary of War and was made Minister to Russia. Mr. Stanton, the bitter opponent and enemy of Mr. Lincoln, the man who constantly referred to Mr. Lincoln as the "Gorilla" and to his acts as "The imbecility of Lincoln," was appointed Secretary of War because he had been the strong man, as Attorney General and Secretary of War, in the Cabinet of President Buchanan and was the most competent advisor and statesman to be obtained; a lawyer of ability and a splendid organizer.

Again putting aside personal feelings and preferences, he looked only to the best interests of his country.

Late one evening, the President and Mr. Stanton, the Secretary of War, deemed it important to consult General McClellan upon important matters; but as General McClellan believed that he was destined to be the Savior of his country and the head of the government, the President, knowing McClellan's feeling of supreme importance, the President and the Secretary of War decided to call upon General McClellan at his home. Upon arrival they were informed that General McClellan was out and they consented to wait for his return. Upon General McClellan's return, he was informed that the President and Secretary of War were waiting for him, but the General went to bed. Finally, when the President sent a servant to tell the General who was waiting for him; the General sent back the reply that he had been out to a wedding and had gone to bed. So the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and the next in command went away, Stanton angry, but the great President only pitying the egotism of the man.

General Scott, by reason of his age, had asked to be relieved and General McClellan was placed in command of the Army of the Potomac. General McClellan was 34 years old, of physical vigor and of fine appearance and bearing. He was a graduate of West Point and had served in the Mexican War under General Scott. General McClellan had resigned from the Army and was at one time chief engineer of the Illinois Central Railroad Company and later became its vice-president. During the Lincoln-Douglas campaign, he opposed Lincoln's candidacy and supported Senator Douglas, even to the extent of loaning his private car for the use of Mr. Douglas. At the outbreak of the war, President Lincoln commissioned him a major general in command of the Department of Ohio. Unfortunately General McClellan became greatly impressed with his own importance which was augmented and increased by the admiration of the people of Washington. General McClellan looked upon President Lincoln as incompetent and upon himself as the Saviour of his country.

He assumed command in Washington on July 26th, 1861, and in the first letter to his wife, he says:

"The President, Cabinet, General Scott and all defer to me. By some strange operation of magic, I seem to have become the power of the land."

On July 30th, he wrote to his wife:

"Who would have thought when we were married that I should so soon be called upon to save my country?"

On August 9th, he wrote her:

"I would cheerfully take the dictatorship and agree to lay down my life when the country is saved."

On the other hand, Mr. Lincoln knowing the egotism of General McClellan, made the statement:

"I will hold McClellan's horse for him if he will win victories."

Mr. Lincoln here, as before, took from his opponent's camp, men who were personally antagonistic to him and personally objectionable to him and placed them in positions of high responsibility on account of their eminent qualifications.

By November of 1862, General McClellan, by his inactivity, forced the taking of the command of the Army of the Potomac from him and command was given to General Burnside. There had crept into the army, a freedom to criticize the commanding general by those general officers under him and this had undermined the efficiency of the army. In January of 1863, it became necessary to remove General Burnside and General Hooker was placed in command. President Lincoln recognized the infringement of discipline and on January 25th, 1863, in writing General Hooker of his appointment said:

"I have placed you at the head of the Army of the Potomac. * * * yet I think it best for you to know there are some things in regard to which I am not quite satisfied. I believe you are a brave and skillful soldier which, of course, I like. I also believe you do not mix politics with your profession, in which you are right. You have confidence in yourself which is a valuable, if not, an indispensable quality. You are ambitious, which, within reasonable bounds, does good rather than harm; * * * I have heard, in such a way as to believe it, of your recently saying that both the army and the government need a dictator. Of course, it was not for this, but in spite of it that I have given you the command. Only those generals who gain successes can set up dictators. What I now ask of you is military success and I will risk the dictatorship. * * * I much fear that the spirit which you have aided to infuse into the army of criticising their commander and withholding confidence from him, will now turn upon you."

Could anything be more frank and kindly? The great President desired only to make him most efficient and with that keen, farsighted, intelligence, he knew and called attention to the faults and dangers in the kindest, fatherly way that they might be guarded against.

In July, 1862, the President in the strictest confidence submitted to the Cabinet an Emancipation Proclamation which he had prepared and it was freely discussed. Horace Greeley, the editor of the New York Tribune, who sat upon the platform at the Cooper Institute Speech and who was a foremost abolitionist, was urging the President to free the slaves as a war measure. Mr. Lincoln did not inform Horace Greeley that this matter had been discussed with the Cabinet, nor did he inform him that a Proclamation had been drawn and had been submitted to the Cabinet. August 19th, Mr. Greeley addressed an open letter to the President, which was published in the New York Tribune of August 20th, 1862, criticising him upon his position on the slavery question. On August 22nd, the President, replying in his usual forbearing, kindly way, said:

"Dear Sir: I have just read yours of the 19th addressed to myself through the New York Tribune. If there be in it any statements or assumptions of fact which I may know to be erroneous, I do not now or here contravert them. If there be in it any inferences which I may believe to be falsely drawn, I do not now or here argue against them. If there be perceptible in it an impatient and dictatorial tone, I waive it in deference to an old friend whose heart I have always supposed to be right. As to the policy I 'seem to be pursuing' as you say, I have not meant to leave anyone in doubt. I would save the Union. * * * If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it; if I could save it by freeing all the slaves, I would do it; and if I could do it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that. What I do about slavery and the colored race, I do because I believe it helps to save the Union and what I forebear, I forebear because I do not believe it would help to save the Union. * * * I intend no modification of my oftexpressed personal wish that all men everywhere could be free. Yours, A. Lincoln."

Again the President was supposed to be a weakling and to be easily influenced, but in this letter of August 22nd after prayer and earnest meditation and earnestly seeking of the Almighty a solution of the great problem, he had made his decision and in that kind, friendly, willing to overlook spirit, he defined his position and left no one in doubt as to where he stood or what he was going to do.

On September 22nd, 1862, the President called a Cabinet meeting and submitted a new draft of the Emancipation Proclamation for consideration as to substance, not subject. Again on December 30th, 1862, he gave each member of the Cabinet a copy of the draft he had made for suggestion as to minor points and said:

"I do not wish your advice about the main matter, for that I have determined for myself."

These copies were returned to him on the next day.

On January 1st, 1863, at three o'clock p. m. he signed and published the Emancipation Proclamation as a war measure and liberated the colored people.

In 1864, Mr. Greeley condemned the President because he did not send a Commission to Canada to negotiate peace with certain parties who claimed to represent the Confederacy. Mr. Lincoln knew that it was not time for peace. He knew that peace could not be obtained without dissolution of the Union and that could not be done until there was no other alternative. In July of 1864, he issued a commission to Mr. Greeley as the chief commissioner to confer with the Confederate commission in Canada, if they were authorized to act on behalf of the Confederacy. Mr. Greeley found that the commissioners, Clay, Thompson, Holcomb and Sanders had no power and that it was simply a self-appointed commission emanating from its own desire, just as Mr. Greeley, without foundation, had deemed himself appointed to stir up the conscience of the President. But again the great statesman and diplomat used the effective method of giving the troublesome party an opportunity to prove himself a failure, yet without venom, without antagonism and without revenge.

Mr. Lincoln's understanding of men and their reasoning seemed to surpass human understanding. When some of the members of the cabinet had become antagonistic to Mr. Blair, the Postmaster General, and had quietly prepared a round robin to present to the President and the cabinet, when Mr. Blair was not present, asking that he be removed from the cabinet, the President appeared at the cabinet meeting and before calling it to order, in his kindly tone remarked to the cabinet; after the Senate of the United States has confirmed a member of the cabinet, how long he shall remain is a matter purely personal with me. I would be greatly grieved to find that any member of my cabinet was encouraging, counseling or endeavoring to secure the resignation or removal of any member of the cabinet. This matter will not be mentioned again, here or elsewhere, now or hereafter.

Again that superior intuition; that knowledge of men and their conduct; quieting them in that kindly, friendly unoffensive way, and yet so firmly, that it left it open to no further argument.

The year of 1864, Mr. Lincoln would come before the Republican National Convention as a candidate for renomination. Mr. Chase the secretary of treasury, who, from the first, had felt his superiority and his fitness to be the president, and considered Mr. Lincoln a failure, but believed that he could take up the work and carry it out successfully. Therefore, together with some of his western friends, he began a quiet campaign. It finally reached the ears of the president; but he paid no attention to it and when his friends remonstrated with him and urged the removal of Mr. Chase from the Cabinet, he said:

"Mr. Chase makes a good secretary and I shall keep him where he is. If he becomes president all right. I hope we may never have a worse."

Senator Pomeroy of Kansas was managing the campaign of Mr. Chase, as a rival candidate of the president in the Republican Convention to be held at Baltimore in June, 1864. Senator Pomeroy issued a circular on behalf of Mr. Chase and sent it to the enemies of the administration. The circular bitterly assailed the president and extolled Mr. Chase as the only available candidate. Some of these circulars reached the hands of the president. When Mr. Chase learned that the president had knowledge of these circulars, Mr. Chase felt obligated to leave the Cabinet and sent his resignation to the president. In the letter accompanying the resignation, Mr. Chase stated that 'he was not responsible for what his friends did'. Mr. Lincoln replied by letter:

"I was not shocked or surprised by the appearance of your letter. * * * I have known just as little of your candidacy as my friends would allow me to know. * * * Whether you shall remain at the head of the Treasury Department is a question which I will not allow myself to consider from any standpoint other than my judgment of public service, and, in that view, I do not perceive occasion for a change."

Again, the greatness of the president. Even with a member of his Cabinet a candidate against him, still the president saw only the service to the country. After the convention, Mr. Chase submitted his resignation, and insisted upon its acceptance, which was done.

Shortly after, Chief Justice Taney of the United States Supreme Court died. Mr. Lincoln with his own hand wrote out the nomination of the Chief Justice and sent it to the United States Senate for confirmation and within one hour, Mr. Chase, the political antagonist of the president, was confirmed as Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. When Mr. Chase returned to his home for dinner that night, he was greeted at the door by his daughter as "Mr. Chief Justice" and to his surprise his daughter informed him that the president had appointed him Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court and that he already had been confirmed by the Senate. At the second inauguration of Abraham Lincoln, Chief Justice Chase administered the oath.

Mr. Lincoln stands out as the pre-eminent statesman of our country and of our race. A man whose great kind heart, his love of right, his devotion to his country and the good of his fellow countrymen makes him the greatest that we have known. Mr. Lincoln is the outstanding example of the difference between a statesman and a politician. A statesman is a man who will do anything to himself for the good of his country; a politician is a man who will do anything to his country for the good of himself.

No president has probably been so thoroughly held up to ridicule, hatred and contempt as was Abraham Lincoln. His political opponents ridiculed his appearance, his personality, his habits and his conduct. Even the men who were later associated with him in the Cabinet, used no hesitancy, while opposing him, in hurling ridicule and sarcasm at him. Mr. Stanton referred to him as the "Gorilla" and referred to his acts as the "Imbecility of Lincoln". The newspapers attacked him from almost every angle. In this, the foreign newspapers equally indulged, particularly the London "Punch" whose criticisms were particularly vindictive and sarcastic and being a humorous paper, its humor at his expense was often cutting and bitter. But when his work was finished, Punch was one of the first to recognize his ability and made apology to the country by a beautiful tribute to him in the following words:

The Stars and Stripes he lived to rear anew,
Between the mourners at his head and feet,
Say, Scurril-Jester, is there room for you?

Yes, he had lived to shame from me my sneer,
To lame my pencil and confute my pen—
This rail-splitter, a true born King of men. . .

Good Friday, April the 14th, 1865, dawned clear and bright. It was a happy day for the President. Lee had surrendered, the war was practically over and on that very morning General Grant and the President's son, Robert Lincoln, had arrived from the front. A morning of visit with General Grant and his son had been most enjoyable. In the afternoon, Mrs. Lincoln and the President went for a drive. They talked of the days of peace that was to come; the reconstruction; the binding up of the wounds of the war; the healing of the scars; of returning to normal and when his office had ceased and he could lay down the burden of government, to return with wife and family, to a happy peaceful life after the tumultuous years that had just preceded. The evening came and they departed for Ford's theatre. Then as the darkness of night came on, the assassin's bullet stopped all of the kind thoughts and closed the great mind that thought only of his country. As that bullet did its damage, it left the great man still believing that he was only a weak tool in the hands of the Divine Providence. He never felt that he had been a great man or had done anything wonderful or had any place in history but that he had simply lived a life of service and had simply tried to do the best he could in his feeble way; and therefore he was the greatest. A few hours later, his one-time bitterest antagonist, Edwin M. Stanton, stood beside the couch and as the soul passed out into the great deep of the hereafter, he uttered those prophetic words, "Now he belongs to the ages".

If you will pardon the personal opinion; to me, the life of this lawyer, soldier, great orator, greatest statesman and wonderful Christian character is described in that anonymous verse entitled, "A Prayer".

"Let us do our work each day; and if the Darkened hours of despair overcome us,
May we not forget the strength that comforted us
In the desolation of other times. May we Still remember the bright hours that found us
Walking over the silent hills of our childhood,
Or dreaming on the margin of the quiet river,
When the light glowed within us
And we promised our early God to have Courage amid the tempests of the changing years.
Spare us from the bitterness and the sharp passion
Of unguarded moments. May we not forget
That poverty and riches are of the spirit.
Though the world knows us not,
May our thoughts and actions be such
As shall keep us friendly with ourselves.
Lift our eyes from the earth and let us
Not forget the uses of the stars.
Forbid that we should judge others, lest
We condemn ourselves.
Let us not feel the glamour of the world,
But walk calmly in our path. Give us a few friends who will love us for what we are:
And keep ever burning before our vagrant steps
The kindly light of hope; and though Age and infirmity overtake us, and we Come not within sight of the castle of our dreams,
Teach us still to be thankful for life,
And for time's olden moments that are Good and sweet; and may the evening twilight

Senate File No. 15.

C. J. ORR,

BILLS SIGNED BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker of the House announced that, as Speaker of the House, he had signed in the presence of the House, the following bills:

Senate File No. 15.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

The following explanation of vote was filed:

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE: On February 12th, I voted against House File No. 154, "An Act providing the means whereby any taxpayer may challenge the legality, validity or constitutionality of any proposed constitutional amendment", for the following reasons:

1. House File No. 154 purports to be an effort to require the Supreme Court of the State of Iowa to pass upon the constitutionality of the proposed 13th amendment to the Constitution of the state, the purpose of which proposed amendment is to authorize one hundred million ($100,000,00.00) dollars of bonds. The Iowa General Assembly is passing hundreds of laws at every session, with no thought of requiring the Supreme Court to pass upon their constitutionality, before they are enacted into law. The principle of House File No. 154, if carried out, would make the Supreme Court of the State a part of the legislative branch of the Government of the State. The Supreme Court is not designed to be made thus a branch of the legislative department. I do not believe that the Supreme Court will consent to such a procedure.

2. For the last several years, the Iowa General Assembly has been passing the sort of enactments whose constitutionality has been and is questionable. These acts of questionable constitutionality have all been passed under the urge of the desire of some one, either inside or outside the membership of the General Assembly, to profit by these acts of questionable constitutionality. In 1928, there was the hundred million dollar ($100,000,00.00) road bond act, which was later declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. In 1929, there was the act which some of the gentlemen of the House prefer to call the "expense" act and which the people of the state of Iowa call the "salary grab". It would seem that any school child should know that this act is unconstitutional. But in the case of both of these questionable acts, the spirit of the General Assembly has been, "to the junk heap with the law and the Constitution; we have the votes, and we are going to put it through."

3. I believe that the members of this House have the brains to enact measures whose constitutionality are not questionable, just as soon as we rid ourselves of the urge of cupidity on the part of those who are in haste to profit by the expenditure of public money, or on the part of those who are in haste to increase their own compensation for public services.

WALLACE M. SHORT.

Hayes of Dubuque moved that the House now adjourn until 1:15 p. m. today.

Torgeson of Worth moved to amend the motion by changing the hour from 1:15 today until 9:00 a. m. Saturday.

Amendment adopted.

Motion of Hayes of Dubuque as amended prevailed and the House stood adjourned.

RESOLUTION

Hollingsworth of Boone, Van Buren of Jones and Bair of Buena Vista offered the following resolution:

Whereas, Changed economic conditions, stagnation in all commercial lines, large and growing urban unemployment and general dissatisfaction with everything done and to be done, has created a trend toward paternalism and a movement back to the soil, which is having a tendency toward displacing real, honest-to-goodness dirt farmers with careless, indifferent and incompetent city chaps who will surely bring the ancient and honorable vocation of farming into disrepute and ridicule; therefore

Be It Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly of Iowa, That on and after the taking effect of this Act no person shall perform the work of a farmer within this state unless he has first procured a license. to be procured as hereinafter provided.

Resolved, That within the meaning of this Act, the work of a farmer shall constitute any and all disturbances of the soil by plow, shovel, spade, cultivator, disk or any other instrument by which the surface of the ground is broken for the purpose of raising any crop of corn, oats, wheat, rye, barley or any other crop requiring cultivation; or feeding or otherwise giving aid or comfort to horses, cows, hogs, sheep or any other domestic animal, provided that for the purpose of this Act dogs and cats shall not be considered domestic animals; or giving Wall Street, the Federal Reserve Bank, the railroads and the money power generally the proper and necessary oral chastisement for puncturing the balloon of Middle West prosperity.

Resolved, That a license board is hereby created in each county. The board shall consist of the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the largest town in the county, and two others of the county to be selected by lot among those who were either born on a farm or who have had at least three weeks experience in farm work.

Resolved, That the board shall prescribe the necessary rules and regulations for such examinations as it may require before granting of licenses, provided that any applicant for a license will be required to furnish evidence of good moral character, certified by his township justice of the peace or constable and provided further, that the applicant must be able to pass an examination in each and all of the following subjects, to-wit: Theology, law, medicine, social service, plumbing, blacksmithing, cosmetology, teaching, banking, and such other subjects as the board may prescribe.

Resolved, That except as otherwise provided, each person issued a license must pay an annual fee of one dollar ($1.00).

Resolved, That no fee shall be required of land owners, who shall be conclusively presumed to be unable to pay it. No fee shall be required of a farm hand, who shows by affidavit that he drove his automobile at least ten thousand (10,000) miles during the preceding twelve (12) months.

Resolved, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as requiring a farmer who builds or repairs political fences only to procure a license on account of such necessary work.

Resolved, That any person violating any of the provisions of this Resolution shall be punished by a fine of not less than one dollar ($1.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty (30) days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Fines may be paid in grain or produce at the market price, and thus reduce the agricultural surplus.

Now Therefore, In the event doubts may arise as to the constitutionality of the foregoing resolution;

Under regulations prescribed by the Board with the approval of the Secretary, a person who regularly sells or otherwise disposes of personal property on the installment plan may return as income therefrom in any taxable year that proportion of the installment payments actually received in that year which the gross profit realized or to be realized when payment is completed, bears to the total contract price.

(b) Sales of realty and casual sales of personalty. In the case (1) of a casual sale or other casual disposition of personal property (other than property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year), for a price exceeding $1,000, or (2) of a sale or other disposition of real property, if in either case the initial payments do not exceed 40 per centum of the selling price, the income may, under regulations prescribed by the Board be returned on the basis and in the manner above prescribed in this section. ## COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Senators and Representatives of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

In my Inaugural Message I brought to you what I believe to be a strong conviction with the people of Iowa regarding taxation and the expenditure of public money. I gathered this information from personal contact with the people in every section of our state. In that message I said to you:

"The day of retrenchment is at hand. Not a dollar should be appropriated out of the State Treasury unless deemed by you indispensable in carrying on the state's business. Every demand on the State Treasury should be rejected unless backed by reasons based on necessity."

I feel it imperative on me by reason of some proposed legislation to again bring the subject of economy in public expenditures to your attention. No appropriation should be made, increasing a public expenditure unless it can be positively shown that the increase is saved by retrenchment in another direction. The askings this year are more than in any past session. As a matter of sound public policy, the appropriations must be definitely reduced.

Furthermore no new sources of revenue should be added simply for the purpose of raising additional money to be spent. If new sources of revenue are found by you the revenue so derived should replace revenue now derived from direct taxation. This applies not only to the proposed Income Tax but to all other form of new taxes to the end that the burden of taxation may be equalized, with expenditures reduced, rather than increased.

The people not only expect, but are demanding that these principles be applied in our conduct of government and I ask that in all your deliberations you keep them in mind.

Respectfully submitted,

3. Installment Basis.

(a) Dealers in personal property. Under regulations prescribed by the Board, a person who regularly sells or otherwise disposes of personal property on the installment plan may return as income therefrom in any taxable year that proportion of the installment payments actually received in that year which the gross profit realized or to be realized when payment is completed, bears to the total contract price.

(b) Sales of realty and casual sales of personalty. In the case (1) of a casual sale or other casual disposition of personal property (other than property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year), for a price exceeding $1,000, or (2) of a sale or other disposition of real property, if in either case the initial payments do not exceed 40 per centum of the selling price, the income may, under regulations prescribed by the Board with the approval of the Secretary, be returned on the basis and in the manner above prescribed in this section. As used in this section the term "initial payments" means the payments received in cash or property other than evidences of indebtedness of the purchaser during the taxable period in which the sale or other disposition is made.

(c) Change from accrual to installment basis. If a taxpayer entitled to the benefits of subsection (a) elects for any taxable year to report his net income on the installment basis, then in computing his income for the year of change or any subsequent year, amounts actually received during any such year on account of sales or other dispositions of property made in any year on account of sales or other disposition of property made in any prior year shall not be excluded.

(d) Gain or loss upon disposition of installment obligations. If an installment obligation is satisfied at other than its face value or distributed, transmitted, sold, or otherwise disposed of, gain or loss shall result to the extent of the difference between the basis of the obligation and (1) in the case of satisfaction of other than face value or a sale or exchange—the amount realized, or (2) in case of a distribution, transmission, or disposition otherwise than by sale or exchange—the fair market value of the obligation at the time of such distribution, transmission, or disposition. The basis of the obligation shall be the excess of the face value of the obligation over an amount equal to the income which would be returnable were the obligation satisfied in full.

Sixty per cent of such revenue shall by the State Treasurer be semi-annually distributed to the counties from whose residents the tax was collected, and the County Treasurer shall distribute the same to the county, city, school and township funds in the same proportion as though the taxpayer had paid the same in said county as ordinary taxes."

I voted "No" on House File No. 2, known as the Income Tax Bill, for the following reasons:

I believe that there is a great deal of merit in raising revenue through a proper income tax. I further believe that in the matter of a very few years practically all revenue in all the States will be raised through an income tax.

In the adoption of House File No. 2 there was created a new and additional method of raising revenue, in other words, an additional form of taxation.

Proponents of the tax have maintained, and do maintain, that the income tax is a replacement tax. I am entirely satisfied that that fact is true and that the tax will become a replacement tax. That is to say, the revenue derived through the income tax will replace certain revenue which has in the past been raised by a direct levy. One of my objections to the income tax is that it secures additional revenue from certain communities in the State of Iowa which will replace reduced revenue from other parts of the State.

I introduced an amendment to the bill which provided that forty per cent (40%) of the receipts from the income tax should be retained by the State and sixty per cent (60%) should be returned to the counties from whose residents the tax was collected, same to be distributed by the County Treasurer to the county, township, city and school funds.

Prior to the adoption of the income tax, the revenue raised in the State of Iowa was raised on a uniform basis over the entire State, that is, each county paid its proportionate share according to its population and its wealth. I feel that the bill as passed is unfair to the larger populated counties, such as Linn County. The amendment which I offered would correct this objection and give the larger populated counties a fair deal.

The State of Wisconsin has had an income tax for several years. As I understand it, the Wisconsin law was originally adopted in about the form that has been adopted by the Iowa House of Representatives, but after they had had same in operation for several years and had some experience in the operation of same the Wisconsin income tax law was amended so that at the present time forty per cent (40%) of the revenue raised through same is retained by the State and sixty per cent (60%) is returned to the counties and cities where it is raised.

A large portion of the revenue which will go to the State of Iowa from the income tax will come from the larger populated counties, such as the one I live in. A large portion of this new and additional tax will, therefore, come from the larger populated counties. Every cent of it goes to the State of Iowa and, as stated at the beginning, I do not consider that the state revenue will be raised upon a fair and equitable basis.

If my amendment had been adopted, I would be heartily in favor of the income tax and would feel that it was being used for the purpose of replacement at the place where replacement is really needed, as we all realize that the real tax burden is the local county, township, city, town and school tax.

FRANK C. BYERS.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

Elliott of Scott filed the following explanation of vote:

I voted "no" on House File No. 2, as amended, for the following reasons:

We have come to the consideration of a bill, the title of which starts with these words: "An act providing for property tax relief * * *", meaning, of course, property tax reduction.

The first section of this act states that its short title shall be "Property Tax Relief Act of 1931".

Just that much of this bill, and no more, promises relief to the property owner of Iowa. From that point on, it is as truly a revenue raising measure as any other tax measure in the statutes.

This is probably the first time in the history of Iowa that any group of politicians or legislators has brazenly brought out a proposition to raise more tax revenue and called it a tax reduction measure. The wonder of the success of this misleading statement can be explained only by the gullibility of the voters of the state.

As the House of Representatives starts its consideration of this bill, I am proposing an amendment which brings us down to a yes and no vote on the question, whether we intend to compel a reduction of property taxes in Iowa or whether we have so little courage that we will, in this session as in many past sessions, simply shout economy from the house tops and leave the same old loopholes in our law for reckless spending of public funds by the state, the counties, the cities and towns and the school boards.

A vote of yes on my amendment, which proposes that all tax levies in the state must be reduced by a certain percentage in each succeeding year, will register each member so voting as a sincere advocate of the kind of public economy that will mean an untold number of dollars in the pockets of Iowa property owners.

Every member who votes no on my amendment will thereby admit that he is one of the thousands of Iowans who has been duped into believing that we can save money by spending more money; that we can lower taxes by raising them; that we can reduce our economic suffering by increasing the number of our economic burdens.

This is not intended as criticism of the purposes of anyone, but those who will, may take it as criticism of their methods of reasoning. There can be no excuse for a man of reason calling black, white.

Either you are for tax reduction and against additional tax levies, or you are willing that we go on and on adding to the long list of taxes to be collected and forever increasing the public funds to be expended by our tax spending bodies.

Neither Gov. Turner nor any member of the legislature, nor any taxpayer in the state, can deny the fact that in the past the more money we raise by taxation, the more we spend.

No matter how much our public officials urge public economy, it cannot be had in that way. There is only one way. That is to compel it by law and it is rather surprising that in all this frenzied call for economy we have heard in Iowa for two years, it has not been proposed heretofore, that we enact a law compelling the official groups that levy taxes and make up budgets to effect certain definite reductions, year by year, until we are back on a sound financial basis.

One reason this has not been done, is, perhaps, that it would not make such an alluring campaign issue as does the statement to one group of taxpayers that another group of taxpayers hereafter must bear the bulk of the tax burden.

That is the history, in brief, of the income tax act for which a substitute has been offered.

The income tax advocates have glibly talked of public economy and tax reduction from one end of the state to the other and here they are in this house today, proposing, not a tax reduction measure; not a measure to compel reduction of public expenditures, but a measure which creates still another tax the people must pay. And they have the temerity to call it an act for taxation relief.

Let me present some taxation statistics, which, to my mind, constitute something more than matters for idle campaign year talk; to me they are so serious as to suggest that the man in this present legislature who hedges on the economy issue and votes for a mere subterfuge economy bill, such as House File No. 2; a man who votes for a mere empty title such as the one that heads this bill, must prepare to suffer the consequences next year.

In 1927 the average was 99.64 mills, in 1928 it was 101.25 mills, in 1929 it was 103.09 mills, and in 1930 it was 111.15 mills.

Up and up it has moved. During the past five years it has increased 12.12 mills.

Is it reasonable to believe that if the legislature adds five or six million dollars to public revenues through another tax, that this upward trend of the average tax levy for the state as a whole will suddenly turn downward; that the spending bodies will not know what to do with the additional money? We seem to have lost out reasoning powers entirely, and to be blindly groping for some measure that will appease the cry of the people for relief from our confiscatory taxes.

That list of average tax levy increases during the past five years should, in itself, impel this legislature to adopt the most drastic measure we can frame to curb the orgy of spending in this state.

Let us look at the total millage rates for all purposes levied by the counties. I have the tax board's statistics on the county millage rates under which the 1930 taxes were collected.

Out of our 99 counties, 61 levied more than 100 mills; 29 levied between 90 and 100 mills; 7 levied between 80 and 90 mills; and in only two was the rate lower than 80 mills.

Fourteen of the 61 counties having aggregate tax levies above 100 mills levy more than 125 mills.

Some of the highest levies are: Polk County, with 194.91 mills; Black Hawk with 148.29 mills; Wapello with 145.87 mills; Des Moines County with 137.39 mills; Woodbury with 131.63 mills; Clinton with 129.98 and Cerro Gordo with 128.30 mills.

The counties listed are those including some of our largest cities. In these cities are thousands of workers on modest, sometimes meager salaries, and they are struggling against odds just as great as those facing the residents of smaller communities.

Are the masses of these struggling wage earners in the cities, with their modest salaries, clamoring for a new form of tax? They are not. They are clamoring for some measure to protect them against constantly mounting taxes, in order that they may have a fighting chance to retain their humble homes and rear their families in decency. It is up to this legislature to give them such a protective law, rather than to heap added burdens upon them in the form of a new tax.

As a final illustration of the necessity of enacting a law that will protect our citizens against their own reckless spending of public funds, let us turn to the school levies.

Statistics compiled within the past few months by the department of public instruction show that in townships constituting school districts, the millage levies range from nothing up to 128 mills, that in rural independent districts the levies range from nothing to 100.5 mills, that the range in consolidated districts is from 4.1 to 128.3 mills. In towns and villages the range is from nothing to 169.9 mills. In second class cities it runs from 11.6 to 217 mills and in first class cities, the range is from 49.7 to 130.2 mills.

In the face of those high figures can we vote a bill through this legislature which will give these local tax levying bodies more leeway? Was not the legislature made supreme over these subdivisions in order that it might enforce uniform policies upon these subordinate governing bodies for the welfare of all the people of the state?

We shirk our plain duty here unless we order by law, at this session, and in the definite way proposed, that this orgy of spending shall cease.

So the bill having received a constitutional majority was declared to have passed the House and the title was agreed to.

The House resumed consideration of House File No. 38.

Brown of Polk offered the following amendments and moved their adoption:

Also amend section two (2) of the bill as amended by striking the comma (,) following the word "not" and the remainder of the sentence, and inserting in lieu thereof, a period (.).

Also striking the word "but" in the sixth line of section two (2) and the word "only" in line seven (7) of said section two (2), as it appears in the Journal.

Also amend section two (2) by inserting after the word "delinquent" in line three, the words "and or suspended".

The Speaker ruled that the amendment offered by Brown of Polk was out of order, because it should have been offered to the amendment offered by Allen of Pocahontas and considered before the adoption of Allen's amendment.

Allen of Pocahontas asked and obtained unanimous consent to have the amendment offered by Brown of Polk incorporated in the amendment offered by him and adopted by the House.

Amendment incorporated, so that section two (2) reads as follows:

Sec. 2. "The treasurer shall, each year, upon receiving the tax list, enter as a separate item in the same column provided for the entering of former delinquent and/or suspended real estate taxes, the amount of such suspended taxes, whether then subject to be enforced, or not. To preserve such liens, it shall be necessary to enter such taxes, as aforesaid, opposite any tract upon which they are liens. Any sale for the whole or any part of such delinquent taxes not so entered shall be invalid."

Also, amend House File No. 38 by striking out the words and figures "Section sixty-nine hundred fifty-one (6951)" in line one (1) of section one (1) and inserting in lieu thereof the words and figures "Section sixty-nine hundred fifty (6950)".

BILLS SIGNED BY THE SPEAKER

The Speaker of the House announced that, as Speaker of the House, he had signed in the presence of the House, the following bills:

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

The following explanation of vote was filed:

My negative vote on House File No. 2 as amended by Riemers, Hush and Nelson did not indicate that I am opposed to an income tax. It has always been my opinion that the theory of such a revenue measure is correct. It is only reasonable to presume that an individual should pay for the privileges of his government in proportion to the amount of his income.

I do not believe that an income tax providing for a graduated rate is fair. The theory of democratic government, equality for all and special privilege for none should be dominant in all legislation. To penalize superior ability is wrong in principle. An income tax that says to one who earns $25,000 a year that he must pay more per thousand over and above a certain amount than that paid by a man who earns $5,000 a year or less is equivalent to penalizing his exceptional qualities as a business man, or saying to him that he shall pay for the inefficiency and the lack of energy on the part of his five thousand dollar neighbor. A sum of money is a sum of money regardless of who possess it. The privilege of earning it is worth no less and no more to one individual than another. The commonwealth and the nation should recognize that all men are equal before the law.

Consequently I am for an income tax that recognizes such a simple and long established principle of equality. A flat rate income tax would apply equally to all incomes of over $2,000 and would be in harmony with such a vital principle in American government. It would provide, for example, that every individual would pay the same tax on every thousand dollars over and above a certain uniform exemption. Such a provision of equality would exercise no discrimination against any individual who's superior ability rises above that of anybody else. The original theory of an income tax was that a man should pay according to what he earns and the flat rate plan incorporated in such a system of taxation would recognize that principle. The plan is not complicated but is simple and plain. Simplicity is an asset in explaining a law to the people. The better they understand it the better it will please them. Any complicated procedure in the application of a legislative act has a tendency to breed discontent. Eventually Iowa will recognize the flat rate theory of an income tax as the most simple fair and equitable system of raising funds for the support of its government.

OTHA D. WEARIN.

The following speeches were delivered at the meeting of the Iowa Pioneer Lawmakers' Association held in the House Chamber February 18th:

We are mighty glad to have you with us this afternoon. Your work and your lives have been an inspiration to those who followed you.

We almost envy you the thrilling experiences that you have had. You were real trail blazers leading the way to better legislation. You wrote some mighty fine laws. The one relating to township rural schools has stood the test of more than eighty years, and is a challenge to present lawmakers to make a better one. You made a very lasting property tax law. It is liked so very well that it will take the united efforts of the suffering taxpayer to improve it. It has been your privilege to work with many of Iowa's great lawmakers, John A. Kasson, James F. Wilson, J. B. Grinnell, S. J. Kirkwood, James Wilson, John Y. Stone, Samuel Merrill, George D. Perkins, John H. Gear, William Larrabee and many others.

I wish to briefly speak of the life of my boyhood hero, Hon. John A. Kasson. Born in Massachusetts, he acquired a well rounded out education; gave the address of welcome to Louis Kossuth at St. Louis; was one of the founders of the Republican party; located in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1857; was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in Chicago, 1860, and wrote the platform on which Abraham Lincoln was elected president; served as first assistant postmaster general, 1861-62, and served three terms in Congress; was appointed delegate to the international postal parley at Paris, 1863, and was one of the most influential delegates there. This was the first international postal agreement. As minister to Germany, he became one of Bismarck's most respected friends. After returning from Berlin he served three more terms in Congress. His remaining life was devoted to the Department of State as special negotiator of reciprocity treaties, being a worthy successor in that respect of James G. Blaine. During his period of activity he was Iowa's greatest scholar, statesman and orator.

Des Moines wanted a new capitol building. Polk county elected Mr. Kasson to the legislature. He introduced the resolution for a new capitol building and after a terrific parliamentary struggle secured the necessary appropriation. Later the capitol extension program was put over and resulted in giving Iowa's capitol a most beautiful setting.

After the capitol had been completed an appropriation was made by the legislature to get Iowa's most noted men's pictures painted to adorn the walls of the governor's rooms. Word was sent to Kasson, then in Russia, that his picture was wanted. Accordingly he employed an artist to paint it. It was shipped to the state house, C. O. D. The charges amounted to several thousand dollars and further, the painting was so very large that it occupied altogether too much space. This created a great amount of controversy. In order to relieve the situation, Mr. Kasson's picture was taken to the attic of the capitol. When the historical building was completed Mr. Kasson's picture was taken out of the attic and placed in the art gallery to the delight of his admiring friends.

We are glad to have you here and talk over events of the pioneer lawmaking days, of which we have profitably learned by your good laws and good work. I want you to feel, as your shadows are falling far towards the east, that the lawmakers of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, love, honor and respect you.

Senator L. H. Doran also expressed welcome in the following address:

Mr. President, gentlemen of the Forty-fourth General Assembly and Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association:

It is indeed an honor this afternoon, on behalf of the Senate of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, to extend to you Pioneer Lawmakers of Iowa a hearty welcome home. As I stand before you this afternoon I see many familiar faces of men whom I observed here when I came as a boy to visit the session while my father had the privilege of serving with you. You have labored long and served well. The records of your achievements still live and are apparent here and throughout the state.

When I think of the pioneers of Iowa, I am reminded of that beautiful poem:

"There are loyal hearts; there are spirits brave;
There are souls that are pure and true.
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

"For life is the mirror of king and slave.
It is what you are and do.
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you."

As pioneers, you have given the best you have to the great state of Iowa, and the best has come back to you, because you see evidences on every hand of the results of your labors in this great state of Iowa, which is in the greatest nation of the world.

Since your labors here, the economic structure of the world has been thrown out of balance as a result of the World War. History tells us in that war that over ten million men and women were killed; and a committee recently appointed by the League of Nations, in its report to the league, tells us that as a result of that war there has been lost to the world thirty-seven million unborn. With all the financial depression that we have had, this government is now paying the price of victory in that war. Then, it would seem, great as the problems are that are facing us today as members of this Forty-fourth General Assembly, and other legislative assemblies throughout the United States, the greatest problem confronting all of us is not the problem of taxation or tax revision. Is it not well at this time that each one of us should ask ourselves, "What are we doing in order to prevent another such a catastrophe as the World War?" As a result of that war, the problems confronting this Assembly have been made more complex and difficult of solution. In your day and in your grandfathers' day, it was the desire on the part of everyone at some time to own a home that they could call their own, while today the greatest desire seems to be to own a better and more high-powered car than that of our neighbors. When Henry Ford put the world on wheels and provided a method by which people could pay for their automobile as they ride, it was the means of the springing up of finance companies of various kinds, until today a large per cent of our problems can be traced to the abuse of credit.

However complex and difficult of solution as are the problems confronting this assembly, they are no more difficult than the problems that confronted you gentlemen in these halls when you labored here. We of the Forty-fourth General Assembly realize the value of experience. We not only welcome you as Pioneer Lawmakers this afternoon; we welcome you here at any time. We need and will appreciate your counsel. We of the Forty-fourth have a rich heritage as a result of your labors. May we prove faithful to the trust thus imposed upon us. As for you, Pioneer Lawmakers of Iowa, may the wreaths you have won never wither, nor the star of your glory grow dim.

Hon. George M. Titus of Muscatine gave the following address on behalf of the association:

Mr. President, members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association and the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

On behalf of the pioneer lawmakers I wish to thank the Senator and member of the House who have so ably expressed your cordial welcome to us. We are pleased to be here. We appreciate your stopping the mills of legislation long enough to greet us. For the last two years I have served as the "Kingfish" of this organization. That, you know, is the new name for the presiding officer. While serving in this capacity, I have been asked a great many questions about the association. I find that it is not generally understood. Before introducing the first speaker in our part of this afternoon's program, I will take a few moments to explain the objects and purposes of the association. It was organized in 1886. We are not "incorporated". We are simply an association and have no dues. We are held together by brotherly love and mutual admiration. Requisites for membership are as follows: Twenty years after you first serve in a state office or in the General Assembly, you automatically become a member of this association. Just why that period was established I am unable to say, but I think it probably means that, figuratively speaking, during that period you are to enter into the Chamber of Reflection, where your conscience will be cleared and you will, in twenty years, ripen into the wisest period of your life. By reason of our superior legislative and public office experience, we are sometimes called the third house, or House of Lords. That is the reason you are asked to rise while we enter the House chamber, and remain standing until we are seated. This is a delicate compliment to our superior wisdom. We meet biennially during the session of the General Assembly in order that we may be convenient to give you free counsel and advice. At this point I might say that if the Forty-fourth General Assembly has some very serious legislative problems, we will be most willing to assist you. We think it is quite generally conceded that the pioneer lawmakers are beyond doubt the wisest body of men in the whole state. This being true, it is not surprising that practically all the governors of Iowa are chosen from our association. The present governor, Dan W. Turner, John Hammill, Nate Kendall; I cannot remember, when a governor served as such without being a member of our association. This may be a little disappointing to some of our younger men that have ambitions on that line. I am simply mentioning the condition that may be necessary if your ambitions are to be gratified.

I think it will be entirely proper for me to say in this presence that most of the pioneer lawmakers were chosen under the old convention system, when the women did not vote and it was not necessary to consider personal appearance. That probably resulted to our advantage.

At a similar meeting with the Forty-second General Assembly, I stated I thought it was rather the best looking assembly I ever saw in the Capitol. I am forced to admit that the Forty-fourth compares very favorably with them. If it were not for fear of criticism from my Republican brethren, I might say if you had a few more Democrats you might be 100 per cent. I am not in favor of overwhelming majorities. The state of Iowa has suffered politically from its reputation of being rock-rooted Republican. Under other conditions some of the prominent men mentioned by the senator in his address of welcome might have served as President of the United States if they had not lived in Iowa.

As I look over this assembly today, I recall my experience in the other chamber over thirty years ago. That does not mean that I am so very old at this time. I was very young when I came. Some people are embarrassed after middle life when asked their age. I am not. I am past fifty-two and I do not care who knows it. In the days when I served, as well as now, most all the members had young lady secretaries. These young ladies, in their idle moments, constituted themselves a committee to classify the members as to personal appearance, legislative ability, etc. I learned through my secretary that Senator Funk and I were by them placed in Class A on this line. I served on the appropriations committee at both sessions. The responsibility placed upon members of that committee and assisting in spending other people's money served to seriously affect my physical condition. As a result, under the head of personal appearance I think the young ladies reduced me to Class C, and I question whether I ever returned to "normalcy" since.

We have cycles in politics as well as in business. Some forty-two years ago a Democratic cycle swept over Iowa. Governor Boies, a Democrat, was nominated at Sioux City in 1889 and was duly elected. The campaign was on the wet and dry issue, prohibition and anti-prohibition.

We have with us today a gentleman from Muscatine, who served as chairman of the Democratic convention in Sioux City when Governor Boies was nominated. This gentleman was elected to the Twenty-third General Assembly from Muscatine county and was chairman of the Democratic caucus in that General Assembly that was deadlocked for six weeks, being evenly divided. He was also elected to the Twenty-fourth General Assembly. He served as United States consul-general to Switzerland under President Cleveland. Recovering somewhat from all these handicaps, he drifted into the literary field and has written several books that have secured national reputation. Among them is the history of the state of California, the history of Rhode Island, and in a few weeks the history of the State of Iowa, written by him, will appear.

I take great pleasure in introducing to you the Honorable Irving B. Richman, of Muscatine.

Hon. Irving B. Richman of Muscatine was then introduced and addressed the Joint Convention as follows:

President of the Iowa Pioneer Lawmakers' Association and Gentlemen of the Forty-fourth General Assembly:

As preliminary to the few words which I am to address to you today, let me quote from a Muscatine County newspaper of the long ago.

"Thursday, October 31, 1889.

"So you are going to vote for I. B. Richman, are you? Can you tell why? Is it because he is a representative Democrat? It can't be that, for you will remember that he's a newcomer in that camp, who didn't climb the fence until he thought the 'cherries were ripe.'

"Because he is a Republican? No, for he tore up his certificate of membership in that organization when he went over after the cherries.

"Because he is a representative man? Please run over the 'elements' which go to make up our citizenship and find, if you can, the one of which he is representative.

"Is it because he is the farmer's friend? the merchant's friend? the friend of the people? or the disinterested friend of his party? You know he is none of these, then why, in the name of common sense, will you cast your ballot to send this specimen of unripe egotism—this fledgling lawyer—this inexperienced boy to Des Moines as the chosen representative of the progressive, pushing, sensible, industrious voters of this grand county of Muscatine? Gentlemen, you won't do it."

But they did; wherefor the "boy's" appearance before you this afternoon before you, "boys" along with himself.

"We're twenty! We're twenty! Who says we are more?
Gray temples at twenty?—Yes! white if we please;
Where the snow flakes fall thickest there's nothing can freeze!
Yes, we're boys,—always playing with tongue or with pen,—
And I sometimes have asked,—Shall we ever be men?
Shall we always be youthful, and laughing and gay,
Till the last dear companion drops smiling away?

Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray!
The stars of its winter, the dews of its May!
And when we have done with our lifelasting toys,
Dear Father, take care of thy children,

THE BOYS!"

My topic, gentlemen, is:

"Pioneer Iowa Lawmakers Who Were Democrats."

"Fifty Equals Fifty"

Only once in the political history of Iowa since 1855, when Augustus Caesar Dodge as United States senator was superseded in office by James Larlan, and since 1859, when George Wallace Jones as senator was superseded by James W. Grimes, has it been true that the Democratic party in the state has stood on anything like a legislative equality with the Republicans. The time referred to was 1890 when the lower house of the Iowa General Assembly was equally divided between the two parties, the democratic membership (helped out by an Independent or two) being fifty which was likewise the membership of the Republicans.

At this time not only was the lower house of the Iowa Assembly half Democratic but the Democrats had the (for them) unique experience of possessing the Iowa governorship.

For four years prior to 1888 the national democracy had held the presidency of the United States in the person of Grover Cleveland of the state of New York. In 1888, however, Cleveland had been displaced by Benjamin Harrison of Indiana, and the success in Iowa of the Democrats in 1889 marked the interim reaction against the party in power.

In Iowa this reaction was reinforced by a reaction against the prohibitory liquor law of the state effective in 1889. It was as a strong exponent of this particular reaction that in 1889 Horace Boies was made Iowa's governor. Boies, it is unnecessary to remind this gathering, was a distinguished lawyer of Waterloo, a man of the highest character, ability and dignity.

In 1889 it befell your speaker of this afternoon to preside at the preliminary session of the Democratic State Convention, held in Sioux City, which placed Horace Boies in nomination. How far back this event now seems may be realized from the circumstance that the period was that of Gilbert and Sullivan in light opera. When therefore the preliminary chairman of the Sioux City convention (your speaker) made reference in his convention address, to the rapidity with which James S. Clarkson of Iowa (first assistant postmaster general under Harrison) was severing the political necks of holdover Democratic postmasters, and when, in particular, the chairman improvised the Gilbertian stanza—

And you, my dear postmasters all,
He's got you on the list,
You'll shortly be dismissed,

the response in the form of cheers and laughter was all that could be desired.

But to recur to the Iowa House of Representatives in the (for Iowa Democrats) annus mirabilis of 1890. The first important business was the election of a Clerk and a Speaker. The Democratic candidate for Clerk was none other than the broad minded and scholarly Frederick W.

Lehman of Des Moines, later Solicitor General of the United States.

At this period, too, Albert B. Cummins of Des Moines had political aspirations, and it was common remark that, if the Republicans of Iowa did not soon awaken to this interesting fact, Cummins, infected as he already was, by anti-Republican virus, might have to be reckoned with as a Democrat. The Republican awakening, he it said, took place and what followed for Mr. Cummins, in the way of brilliant political service, is too well known to require mention.

The membership of the Iowa House in 1890 being, then, an even thing as between political parties, the choice of Clerk and Speaker, especially of Speaker, became a protracted struggle. Fifty votes for John T. Hamilton of Linn County, the Democratic candidate; fifty votes for Silas Wilson of Cass County, the Republican candidate; such (without deduction for pairs) was the unvarying outcome of each call of the roll.

One thing only (except fiery declamation) wrought for diversion and that was influenza which in the winter of 1889-90 (a winter of noxious weather) raged mercilessly in Des Moines, reducing the hall of Representatives to something not unlike a hospital ward.

II

Democrats of the Iowa House of 1890.

Just here your speaker may be pardoned reference to an acknowledged fact of the time of the fifty-fifty deadlock, namely, the high standing, in point of character, ability and sartorial correctness, of the fifty who were Democrats. From Linn County there was the handsome, courteous, resolute John T. Hamilton of Cedar Rapids, Speaker of the House. From Iowa County there was the versatile and astute N. B. Holbrook of Marengo. From Allamakee County, the solid yet winning John Dayton of Waukon. From Keokuk County, the upstanding, outstanding J. C. Beem of What Cheer. From Woodbury County, the good looking and worth-while W. G. Clarke of Sioux City, newly graduated from Brown University. From Plymouth County, the alert, faultlessly groomed and sartorially exquisite William H. Dent of Le Mars. From Clinton County, the youthful appearing and capable George S. Gardiner of Lyons. As for the Republicans, they as a body (may I whisper the fact) failed to compare with the Democrats, although here and there among them were men not only intellectually capable but also sartorially minded. There was, for example, John W. Luke of Franklin County, long-headed and circumspect; James E. Blythe of Cerro Gordo County, dashing and resourceful; and Daniel Cady Chase of Webster County, young, aggressive, and the wit of the entire House.

But the Democrats of the Iowa House of 1890, how did they break the deadlock, for break it they did. They did it by introducing the following Resolution:

Resolution to End Deadlock

February 18, 1890

"Whereas, it has been demonstrated beyond all cavil by five consecutive weeks of daily balloting that upon the question of organization this house is a tie, and that neither side thereof will voluntarily yield the permanent speakership to the other, and

Whereas, the present deadlock is manifestly being perpetuated to the detriment of the public business and the exhaustion of the public patience, and

Whereas, it is a method provided in the statutes of this State for determining the election in the case of a tie vote, that lots shall be cast, therefore, be it

Resolved, that it is the sense of this house, regardless of party, that the question, "to which side shall the speakership fall?" be determined by lot in accordance with some plan to be agreed upon by the Conference Committees."

The Resolution was so fair, giving no advantage to either side, that the Republicans of the Iowa House, fearing the popular voice, felt themselves forced to concede to the Democrats the speakership, and so bring the deadlock to an end.

Gathered in Des Moines this February day in 1931 we, members (aforetime) of the Iowa lawmaking body, look back, some of us, forty-one years. We are regarded as legislative pioneers. The term pioneer, however, is relative, no Einstein is needed to tell us that. In 1890 the members of the Iowa General Assembly looked back upon the period of Dodge and Jones, of Harlan and Grimes, as in Iowa the period of the genuine legislative pioneer; and forty years hence, in 1971, it will be ourselves who—dust though we, many of us, will then long have been—will hold the position of pioneers, legislatively, of the genuine breed.

In this connection let me be a bit daring and speak for a moment on a topic which, a living topic in Iowa and the nation in 1889, is even more a living topic in the nation (whether so in Iowa or not) today, I mean liquor control. Today in the nation and in Iowa we have the spectacle of a law absolutely deleting (more absolutely in Iowa than in the nation) the manufacture and use of intoxicants, yet a law, which, whatever of lip service it may command, is by multitudes secretly despised and by multitudes deliberately set at naught.

Today, in a word, conditions in Iowa in respect to the consumption of liquor are surprisingly as they were in 1889. Addressing the Iowa Democratic State Convention of 1889, your speaker said: "We of the Democratic party heartily concur in the dominant sentiment in favor of temperance. We oppose prohibition because we have seen that as a temperance measure it is a consummate failure." And, in 1889, looking back into the time then called pioneer—the time of the 1850's—there were to be met with appraisals of prohibition (for even in the 1850's prohibition was the law in Iowa) such as this from the Muscatine Journal: "Now (1856) that the Supreme Court of Iowa has pronounced our prohibitory liquor law constitutional, why is it not enforced? Is it to remain a dead letter upon our statute books? Is the great cause of temperance thus to be scandalized and brought to open shame?"

The aim of prohibition, be it at no time forgotten, is not temperance but total abstinence—an aim never in all likelihood susceptible of attainment by man. Unsuccessful nevertheless as prohibition in Iowa and elsewhere was in the 1850's and again in the 1880's, and little successful as it is in the same quarters today, there is perhaps this to be said for it. By the agitation (agitation, be it noted, not coercion) brought with it, it may have advanced temperance in lands like Great Britain—the latter a land in certain of its classes of a sodden inebriety which now shows signs of abatement.

But—and this, regarding liquor control, is my principal point—were prohibition to be repealed (XVIII Amendment, Volstead Act and all); and were there to be substituted for it the plan of liquor control advocated by Governor Alfred E. Smith or Senator Dwight Morrow; and, furthermore, were the Smith or Morrow plan to prove in practice as little of a success as prohibition; the Smith or Morrow plan, by virtue of the agitation sure to attend it, might well accomplish for temperance all the little that thus far prohibition itself has accomplished; and this without the meddlesomeness and murderousness of prohibition—a meddlesomeness and murderousness subversive of Anglo-Saxon justice and repellent to the Anglo-Saxon spirit. As I have said, the attainable goal of anti-liquor legislation of any sort is probably never anywhere to be total abstinence. Temperance it may be. Temperance through progressive enlightenment—as in Great Britain.

The Pioneer and the Domination of Private Wealth

Thus far I have spoken chiefly of the pioneer lawmaker in America as a lawmaker of 1890 or earlier. But the pioneer lawmaker may be a lawmaker of 1931. In this role he is giving, and may wisely continue to give, attention to issues known specifically as economic.

As our nation has grown in population and in wealth, there has developed a domination by private capital ("big business," we call it) upon which the pioneer lawmaker,—and for the most part the pioneer lawmaker alone,—has shown a disposition to lay a restraining hand. Among the States of the Union which today, in a sense, are yet pioneer may be named Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas. These states, through such representatives of them as, in Wisconsin, the La Follettes; in Minnesota, Henrik Shipstead; in North Dakota, Gerald P. Nye; in Iowa, Smith W. Brookhart; in Nebraska, George W. Norris are making in Congress a stiff fight against domination on the part of private wealth—a domination often ingeniously camouflaged,—which threatens the public weal. Exploitation of national natural resources; the enactment, in favor of high prices, of absurdly high tariffs on manufactured goods, these are some of the things, actual and political, which are now being combatted by lawmakers still to be called pioneer.

The Middle West a Holding Concern for the Nation

Having pointed out that yet today in America it is the pioneer—the pioneer lawmaker—who of all lawmakers seeks most ardently the common weal, let us not fail to take account of the fact that the states already named as yet pioneer are states of the middle west. In all our history as a nation, since the rise of the middle west as a distinct factor, this section has operated politically as, so to say, a national holding concern. It was so in the 1840's when Iowa was admitted to the Union; when the great issue was not prohibition but (absit omen!) Slavery. It was so in the 1870's when, groaning under tyranny by the railroads, Illinois and Iowa passed their memorable Granger laws. May it not be that a holding concern—a concern moderating between extremes—will the middle west be in the days for America to come? In the matter of exorbitant tariffs the middle west (even Iowa) will not forever support the east. In the matter of liquor control, the middle west (even Iowa) may break with the fanaticism of the south.

Long, therefore, live the middle west—land of the lawmaker still a pioneer! As the heart of the middle west, long live Iowa! As a badly needed element in the politics of Iowa, long live the Iowa Democrats—and may their tribe increase!

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Forty-fourth General Assembly and Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association:

I recall with some amusement that twenty years ago when I first attended a meeting of this character and saw those ancient gentlemen march in as we did a few moments ago, I felt that it was a bit reckless for men so advanced in years to be so far from home. Learning that twenty years must pass before I would be eligible for membership in the Pioneer Lawmakers Association I felt that day to be very far indeed in the future, but now that it has passed the time looking backward seems very short. A thousand years in the sight of the Lord is but a day, and twenty years when it has passed seems as but half a day to the members of this association.

The distinguished gentleman who has just spoken described a deadlock that lasted five weeks. I attended such a deadlock myself. Twenty years ago the death of Senator Dolliver imposed upon the legislature the duty of electing a United States senator. From the opening day of the session to the last day the struggle continued. Every day we marched over here, the Honorable Representative standing in deference to us. At the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour of that last day we elected to the Senate of the United States that distinguished citizen of Iowa, William S. Kenyon.

In all the years since I left the Senate I have been interested in legislative work, and have watched your deliberations, often with envy, for I never enjoyed any work more than that during my years here. Whenever I have been in other states I have always visited their legislatures but I have never found such real interest in their work and such determination to accomplish good for the people as in the legislatures of Iowa.

I may be violating all rules of decorum at a meeting of this kind, but I shall speak briefly upon two public questions of great moment to the people and taxpayers of Iowa. I shall offer you a lot of valuable advice wholly without charge.

Sixteen years ago I presented to the Senate a public utilities bill. After a long struggle it passed the Senate but was defeated in the House. It lost there almost wholly because it contained a provision making franchises indeterminate. The members were afraid of a franchise that did not expire at some specified date.

You have before you at this time a new public utilities bill. It also contains an indeterminate franchise provision. That clause will meet intense opposition and it should unless the bill contains proper safeguards. Those safeguards are three in number and if they are broad and ample the public will be fully protected.

The first is the right given the municipality or state to purchase the utility. The language used in conferring that right should be carefully considered by the lawyers of the assembly.

The second is the right to regulate the service to be rendered. This is the least important of the three, as self preservation will demand reasonable service and yet it should be carefully provided for.

The third is the most important of all—indeed it is the vital thing in any utility bill. I refer to the fixing of rates. One of the most important questions today is the regulation of rates fixed by public utilities. A species of insanity seems to grip the average man about the time he is placed in control of any form of public utility. He seems obsessed with the idea of milking the public to the very last drop. And if he has a monopoly he is often able to do exactly that. For more than a decade the railroads of our nation have taken advantage of every opportunity to increase rates. The result is competition by bus and truck that is giving alleged captains of industry sleepless nights. But with such utilities as telephone, electric light, gas, water, etc., competition is impossible and regulation of rates is the only protection the public has.

Much litigation has developed over the question of valuation of utility assets and the Supreme Court of the United States has adopted a rule that apparently recognizes replacement cost as an element in fixing values. Of course the value of the utility is vital in fixing rates for the rate so fixed must be such as will give to the utility a fair return (usually 6%) upon such value. It is at once clear therefore that a utility bill to be of any benefit whatsoever to the paying public must be most carefully drawn in the last particular especially. The bill I have before me is wholly defective in this respect. I take the liberty of offering a paragraph covering the question of fixing rates. I have drawn this with the utmost care and believe it covers the entire field. With that paragraph in the bill there will be no occasion to fear the indeterminate franchise, and when the commission acts there is little probability of reversal by the courts. I read the proposed paragraph as follows:

"The commission shall fix a rate that shall bring to the utility furnishing the service a fair and reasonable return upon its investment, giving due consideration to the original cost of all elements and things used and useful in furnishing such service, repairs thereon, depreciation thereof, the then value of such elements and things so used and useful in their condition at the time such rate is fixed, the then replacement cost of such elements and things as under then existing conditions and efficient practice would be used and useful in rendering such service, the just and necessary expense of giving such service, the value of such service so rendered and all other facts and matters required in determining what is in fact such fair and reasonable rate and return, and the finding of the commission shall be presumptively fair and reasonable and the party attacking same shall have the burden of proving that the rate so fixed is not fair and reasonable."

I wish to speak briefly upon another subject close to the hearts and pocket books of the people—TAXATION. Taxes have reached a point making the ownership of property almost prohibitive. In the years since I ceased to be with you taxes have increased many times over. Spending the public money has ceased to be merely an avocation—it has become an art. Every legislature adds new departments, creates new offices, new judges, new something that costs money, but no departments are ever abolished or consolidated.

The Fish and Game Department collects more than a Hundred Thousand Dollars each year and after twenty years what have we to show for it? You create a Highway Commission and give it autocratic power. It spends around Two Million Dollars each year in salaries—overhead if you please—mostly for engineers, and who gives it a thought?—there is more money where that came from so who should worry? And there are other instances I might mention if time permitted—plenty of them.

You have before you a number of bills the purpose of which is to reduce taxes. Upon those bills I offer no opinion but I do say to you most emphatically that there is just one way to reduce taxes—AND THAT IS TO REDUCE EXPENSES.

Governor Carroll very wisely remarked in his address to us this morning that in his observation almost every man appointed to head any department or project immediately made every effort within his power to secure an increase appropriation. I think I know the reason for this—it is EGOTISM—he feels that he is a bigger man if he has more people under him.

For more than a year the Committee on Retrenchment and Reform created by the Thirty-fifth General Assembly gave careful consideration and intensive study to reduction of expenses by simplification of governmental affairs. That committee consisted of ten men then well known over the state. A report was prepared and published. Today but one copy remains and I hold it in my hand. The chairman of the committee was Senator J. H. Allen of Pocahontas. I think that report should be preserved for it is even more fitting to conditions today than when it was prepared. I had the pleasure of writing that document and I shall hand it to the son of our chairman, the brilliant young representative from Pocahontas county, with the request that he have it printed in your journal. And I ask that every member of this body read that report. You will find it very difficult, as did we, to legislate any one out of office—much easier to legislate them in—but the people cannot and will not always bear these ever increasing burdens uncomplainingly and a remedy must and will be found and used. And all that is suggested in that report relative to state affairs will apply to county business. And to schools.

I regret that time forbids further discussion. It is a pleasure to appear before you, gentlemen of the Forty-fourth General Assembly, and to renew the happy acquaintances of years ago. I wish you unlimited success in your work here this winter. And from your deliberations may there come to the people of Iowa relief from burdens that are too heavy to longer bear.

Read first and second times and referred to committee on police regulations and suppression of crime.

Allen of Pocahontas asked and obtained unanimous consent to have the following statement printed in the Journal:

MR. SPEAKER: As a member of this House of Representatives and as one carrying out a delegated task for the people of the State of Iowa, I rise to a point of personal privilege.

A joint legislative committee is engaged in an inquiry into affairs concerning the State University of Iowa.

This inquiry was decided upon by the general assembly after attention had been directed to details of administration which seemed to warrant investigation, for the good of Iowa's educational institutions.

Since this inquiry opened, it has been apparent to members of the committee that hostility to the investigation existed in certain circles and among certain members of the Iowa press.

The so-called university lobby has been in evidence about the state house and in the committee sessions since the investigation was requested by Governor Dan Turner and since the inquiry formally opened.

It is my belief that the actual opening of the Committee's sessions was delayed several weeks by this lobby, while the investigation resolution was being re-drafted in the Senate, and that some persons closely allied with the university administration would, even now, hamper the committee in the free and impartial discharge of its duty.

In this connection, I desire to call the attention of the House to a signed editorial, written by Roland White, editor of the Daily Iowan, a University of Iowa publication, and that publication's representative at the press table in the committee room. An editorial in which it is stated that the state university is being treated as a "political football" rather than an educational institution. This editorial also states that a faction composed of enemies of the administration of the university (I am quoting now) "controls, includes or influences Governor Dan Turner, Attorney General John Fletcher, the Iowa House of Representatives, and four of the six members of the investigating committee." It is also intimated that unfair methods have been permitted by the committee in the taking of testimony.

As stated, this article appears in the Daily Iowan, date of Friday, Feb. 27. This university publication is conducted for the purpose of assisting aspiring journalists in the practice of their profession, for the purpose of publishing news of the state university and news of a general nature.

I submit that since the Board of Education and officials of the university have joined its critics in demanding an investigation of the charges filed, they might be assumed to desire fair and impartial handling of the news of the inquiry.

I submit that fair and impartial handling of the news of the investigation should be expected by the board members, university officials, and the general assembly, especially in the university's own publication used as a medium for teaching impartial and honest journalism.

An editor of a country newspaper and as a member of this general assembly, I am a sincere advocate of the freedom of the press.

I believe there is no disposition on the part of any committee member to dictate to the press of the state, or to influence its attitude on the matter under investigation. However, the committee and the general assembly, and the state officials of Iowa are entitled to fair treatment at the hands of the press; to treatment in keeping with their sincerity of purpose and their desire to protect the best interests of all departments and agencies of government.

It is my desire to go on record with a denial that the investigating committee has been influenced by enemies of the state university, if there are such enemies, and a denial that any consideration, other than a desire to assure Iowa the best possible administration of her educational institutions, has prompted the inquiry now under way.

RESOLUTION

Short and Forsling of Woodbury, and Mayne and Greene of Pottawattamie, offered the following resolution:

Whereas, The Congress of the United States in the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1927 authorized a navigation project on the Missouri River from Kansas City, Missouri, to Sioux City, Iowa, and the sum of Twenty-seven million dollars authorized appropriation has already been approved for such development, and

Whereas, The lower Missouri River project from St. Louis to Kansas City will be completed and open for barges at the end of the present year, or in any event in 1932, and

Whereas, While great relief will be given to both the agriculture and industry of the lower part of the Missouri Valley with the completion of the navigation project to Kansas City, we regard it as a matter of economic justice and necessity for the government to speedily carry forward in a larger way than at present, the upper Missouri River development work, and concurrently with the work on the lower Missouri river.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the State of Iowa, the Senate concurring, that in the interest of transportation relief and the future development of both the agriculture and industry of the upper Missouri River valley, which has the longest haul and the highest freight rate of any agricultural country in the world, we urge upon the administration at Washington, the Secretary of War and the Army Engineers to immediately make sufficient allotments and provide for such immediate expenditure thereof as will carry out the mandate of Congress contained in the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1930 that at least five million dollars a year shall be expended for this part of the approved national system of inland waterways.

Be It Further Resolved, That in addition to said expenditure of at least five million dollars annually on the upper Missouri River as directed by Congress, and in pursuance of the declared policy of the Administration expressed in an interview of the Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, in December, 1930, additional allotments should be provided for the upper river improvement as fast as the requirements of the lower river project are diminished.

Be It Further Resolved, That this resolution, duly certified, be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of War, and to the Chief of the United States Army Engineers.

Motion prevailed and the resolution was adopted.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 9

Whereas, Economic authorities in the United States and Canada, after officially both as Joint Commissions and severally, have repeatedly and unanimously declared that enlarging the connecting channels of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River to admit uninterrupted movement of ocean borne commerce from and into the Great Lakes, is economically sound and necessary to raise the competitive position, establish economic equality, permit future development and effect the return of prosperity to the vast continental areas of both countries, and

Whereas, Over the past five years diplomatic correspondence has brought the two nations into agreement on the assignment of tasks and division of costs, said correspondence having allocated to the United States the construction and cost of all improvements in international waters—which includes the deepening to 27 feet of the connecting channels of the upper Great Lakes, a new lock at the Soo corresponding in dimensions to the locks in the New Welland Ship Canal and the improvement of the international stretch of the St. Lawrence River from Lake Ontario to the 45th parallel (opposite Cornwall), where the river ceases to form the boundary line between the two countries, and allocating to Canada the completion of the New Welland Ship Canal and the improvement of the river from the 45th parallel aforesaid to the sea, and

Whereas, Approximately one-half of the tasks assigned to each Government has either been completed, is in process of completion or already authorized by one or other of the two Governments, and approximately one-half of the total cost of the through Seaway has either been expended, in process of being expended or involved in authorizations already made, all of which has been carried out and is capable of being completed without any treaty, and

Whereas, Engineering authorities in Canada and the United States, acting officially both as Joint Boards and severally, have agreed upon engineering plans and costs and unanimously declared that the International Rapids Section (48 miles) of the St. Lawrence River, extending from Ogdensburg to the International Boundary must, for economic reasons, be developed for navigation and power jointly, and

Whereas, The State of New York, with the clear intent of delaying or obviating the completion of a through Seaway, via the St. Lawrence, and advancing a deep water route across the State of New York, has caused to be prepared engineering plans—which if permitted to be carried out—will, under the most favorable conditions postpone through navigation seventeen years, but predictably a generation, and in the meantime afford New York opportunity to transfer its barge canals to the Federal Government and—under the pseudonym “all-American”—embark the Government upon the staggering and almost useless expense of deepening or widening them for the passage of lake ships down to the port of New York for transfer to the ocean carrier, but not admitting the ocean ship to the Great Lakes, thus denying to mid-continental areas direct access to the sea, and

Whereas, No development of this International Rapids Section of the River can be undertaken by either country or any agency in either country without an agreement or treaty appropriate thereto, having first been entered into between Canada and the United States, and

Whereas, The landlocked interior of the United States is deeply concerned and in emergent need of the relief which would accrue to that area by the opening of such Seaway and the citizens of New York state also are directly interested in the improvement and early utilization of the large reservoir of cheap power which would be made available by such joint development, and

Whereas, The need exists for a formula or plan that will effect the development of this section of the river for navigation and power at the earliest possible date, by employing the most practical, the most expeditious and best agency or agencies for that purpose,

Therefore Be It Resolved, By the Senate of the State of Iowa, the House concurring, that the President of the United States be and is hereby memorialized to proceed to a treaty with Canada for the development of the aforesaid International Rapids Section of the St. Lawrence River at the earliest possible date and in accordance with the plans agreed upon by the Joint Board of Engineers, or such amendment to or changes in said plans as may be subsequently adopted by such Joint Board, and

Be It Resolved, That in such improvement all permanent works such as dams and navigation works be constructed by the Governments of the United States and Canada, along the general lines of assignment of tasks and division of costs outlined in the correspondence between the two countries, but not the power house, super-structures or installation of power machinery, and

MR. SPEAKER: I am directed to inform your honorable body that the Senate has passed the following bill in which the concurrence of the House is asked:

Senate File No. 284, a bill for an act to make provisions of Section seven (7) of Senate File One Hundred Seventy-nine (179), of the Fortieth Extra General Assembly applicable to special charter cities.

Also, that the Senate has adopted the following concurrent resolution in which the concurrence of the House is asked:

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 12, relative to speedily carrying forward the navigation project on the upper Missouri river concurrently with that on the lower Missouri river.

WALTER H. BEAM, Secretary.

SENATE MESSAGE CONSIDERED

Senate File No. 284, a bill for an act to amend Section Sixty-seven Hundred Seventy-eight, (6778), of the Code, 1927, to make provisions of Section Seven (7) of Senate File One Hundred Seventy-nine (179), of the Fortieth Extra General Assembly applicable to special charter cities.

Read first and second times and referred to committee on cities and towns.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 12

Whereas, The Congress of the United States in the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1927 authorized a navigation project on the Missouri River from

Kansas City, Missouri, to Sioux City, Iowa, and the sum of twenty-seven million (27,000,000) dollars authorized appropriation has already been approved for such development, and

Whereas, The lower Missouri River project from St. Louis to Kansas City will be completed and open for barges at the end of the present year, or in any event in 1932, and

Whereas, While great relief will be given to both the agriculture and industry of the lower part of the Missouri Valley with the completion of the navigation project to Kansas City, we regard it as a matter of economic justice and necessity for the government to speedily carry forward in a larger way than at present, the upper Missouri River development work, and concurrently with the work on the lower Missouri River.

Therefore, Be It Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That in the interest of transportation relief and the future development of both the agriculture and industry of the upper Missouri River Valley, which has the longest haul and the highest freight rate of any agricultural country in the world, we urge upon the Administration at Washington, the Secretary of War, and the Army Engineers to immediately make sufficient allotments and provide for immediate expenditure thereof as will carry out the mandate of Congress contained in the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1930, that at least five million (5,000,000) dollars a year shall be expended for this part of the approved national system of inland waterways.

Be It Further Resolved, That in addition to said expenditure of at least five million (5,000,000) dollars annually on the upper Missouri River as directed by Congress, and in pursuance of the declared policy of the Administration expressed in an interview of the Honorable Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, in December, 1930, additional allotments should be provided for the upper river improvement as fast as the requirements of the lower river project are diminished.

Be It Further Resolved, That this resolution, duly certified, be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of War, and to the Chief of the United States Army Engineers.

in any event exceed ten (10) tons for a single unit gross weight with a wheel base of eight (8) feet or less and five hundred (500) pounds additional for each additional foot or fraction thereof increase in length. The wheel base of a combination of vehicles shall be construed to mean, in this section, the over-all distance between the first and last axles of the vehicle or combination of vehicles. Forsling of Woodbury, chairman of the committee on judiciary, filed the following amendment to House File No. 57:

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee on judiciary to which was referred House File No. 57 by Wearin, move that said bill be amended as follows:

By striking all after the enacting clause and substituting therefor the following:

Section 1. The ownership or right in or to an unoccupied cemetery lot or part thereof shall upon abandonment revert to the person or corporation having ownership and charge of the cemetery containing such lots; the continued failure to maintain or care for a cemetery lot for a period of twenty (20) years shall create and establish the presumption that the same has been abandoned. Abandonment shall not be deemed complete unless after such twenty (20) year period there shall have been given by the reversionary owner to the recorded owner, or if he be deceased or his whereabouts unknown, to the heirs of such deceased, notice declaring the lot to be abandoned. The notice may be served personally on the owner or his heirs, or may be served by the mailing of the notice by registered mail to the owner, or his heirs as the case may be, to their last known address. In the event that the address of the owner or his heirs cannot be ascertained, then notice of such abandonment shall be by one publication in the official newspaper of the county in which the cemetery is located.

Sec. 2. If within one year from the time of serving such notice the recorded owner or his heirs shall in writing give the reversionary owner notice that in fact there has been no such abandonment, then shall the presumption of abandonment no longer exist.

In case the abandonment has been complete as herein provided the reversionary owner of the abandoned lot may sell the same and convey title thereto. Any funds realized from the sale of such lots shall constitute a fund to be used solely for the perpetual care and upkeep of such lot or portion of lot so sold and likewise any occupied portion thereof.

This law shall not apply to a cemetery lot or tract for which perpetual care has been provided by will, by order of court or by contract with the original grantor.

And further amend by striking the title of House File No. 57 and substituting the following:

"An act to provide for the declaration of abandonment of rights to unoccupied and abandoned cemetery lots and reversion of ownership after abandonment."

EXPLANATION OF VOTE

The following explanation of vote was filed:

MR. SPEAKER: I voted "no" on Senate File No. 54, relating to the granting of a permit to construct the so-called "Moscow Dam" because I believe the principle of state operation of such projects is inimicable to our form of government. I voted "no" on the Allen amendment for that reason.

With the amendment, the bill was robbed of any virtue it may have had when introduced. Another undesirable feature was a defective clause added by the Senate, attempting to provide an excise tax of doubtful value and incapable of collection.

I had intended to vote for the bill as originally introduced.

FRANK W. ELLIOTT.
