TUESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 3, 1850.

Mr. Casady, from the committee appointed to examine credentials, reported that they had performed that duty, and found them formal and correct.

Whereupon the following gentlemen were sworn for the faithful discharge of their duties:

Messrs. Baker, Everson, Hendershott, Hepner, Leffingwell, Lewis, Lowe, of Des Moines, Lowe, of Keokuk, Morton, Sales and Spees.

Mr. Hepner nominated ENOS LOWE, of Des Moines, for President.

The vote being taken it appeared that Mr. LOWE received 17 votes, and GEORGE G. WRIGHT received one vote, whereupon Mr. LOWE was declared duly elected President of the Senate.

Upon being conducted to the chair by Messrs. Cook and Shields, a committee appointed for that purpose, the President elect returned thanks in the following address :

Gentlemen of the Senate:

This mark of distinction unanimously bestowed, is the more highly appreciated because it has been bestowed freely, and without solicitation.

In electing me as President of this honorable body, from among Senators of superior qualifications and greater experience, you have given proof of confidence and personal kindness which calls for my cordial and sincere thanks.

Surrounded as I am, by those who could better discharge the duties with which you have so generously honored me, I undertake their performance with diffidence, which is in some degree relieved by the reflection that I may rely upon your friendly aid in moments of doubt and perplexity.

On motion of Mr. Sales,

The Senate then proceeded to the election of a Secretary.

Mr. Sales nominated PHILIP B. BRADLEY, of Jackson county, who was unanimously elected.

The Senate then proceeded, and, in like manner, made choice of JOHN D. EVENS for Assitant Secretary.

It was decided in the affirmative.

A committee from the House of Representatives was announced, composed of Messrs. Summers, Preston, and Negus, who informed the Senate that the House was permanently organized and ready to proceed to business.

Mr. Lewis moved that a committee of two be appointed, to act with a similar committee on the part of the House, to wait upon His Excellency the Governor, and inquire if he had any communication to make to the General Assembly.

TWO O'CLOCK, P. M.

Mr. Lewis, from the committee appointed to wait upon His Excellency, the GOVERNOR, reported that they had performed that duty, and received from him a message in writing, which was as follows :

Gentlemen of the Senate, and

House of Representatives :

Since the close of the last session of the General Assembly, it can with propriety be said that, as a people, we have enjoyed the blessing of general health. It is true, some portions of our State have, for a short period, been visited by a malignant disease, which, in other States of our confederacy, has carried thousands to the tomb, yet within our own borders, through the mercy of the sovereign Ruler of the Universe, its fierce ravages have been stayed, and but a small number of our people have fallen victims before the destroyer ; though that number, small as it was, embraced some of our most prominent and distinguished citizens. While we deeply sympathise with those who are filled with sorrow for the loss of relatives and friends, our hearts should overflow with gratitude to Him who directs the pestilence, for the evidence he has given us of his kind care and consideration, and for the many and great blessings which he has showered upon our State and country.

Notwithstanding the prevalence of the disease as above mentioned, Iowa has steadily increased in population and wealth; her energies have been strengthened; her resources are being constantly developed; emigration is rapidly pouring in upon and spreading over her broad and fertile domain; and the evidence of enterprise and prosperity can be seen on every hand. Should we continue to be blessed by the smiles of Providence, we have every reason to believe that our course will continue to be onward and upward.

The following statement exhibits the amount of the receipts and disbursements of the Treasury, from the report of the Treasurer, bearing date October 31, 1848, up to November 4th, 1850.

By the Auditors Report of December 4th, 1848, it will be seen that the liabilities of the State on outstanding warrants, at that time amounted to $22,651 62. From that period up to November 30th 1850, the receipts of the treasury were $90,444 12, and the expenditures $90,442 94. This latter sum embraces the interest paid on the State loan, and $11,685 75 of the liabilities on the 4th of December, 1848; thus decreasing our liabilities on outstanding warrants, on the 30th of November, 1850, to $10,965 87. The resources to discharge these liabilities, and to meet the expenses of the coming year, are 24,154 83, due from the counties, prior to the year 1850, and the revenue assessed in 1850, amounting to $56,538 33. The revenue for State purposes in 1848, amounted to $36,129 05, consequently, the assessment of 1850, shows an increase of the revenue from taxable property within the State, of $20,409 28. Should the revenue continue to increase in the same proportion, we may reasonably expect that our State will, in a few years, be freed from all incumbrances. For further information in regard to our financial condition, I respectfully refer you to the Auditor's Report.

By an act approved Jan. 16th 1847, I was authorized to agree with the State of Missouri, for the commencement and termination of such suit as might be necessary to procure a final decision by the Supreme Court of the United States, in regard to the southern boundary line of the State; and I was also required to employ counsel to conduct the suit on our part, and to do whatever might be necessary to maintain our rights in the premises. In pursuance of the authority thus granted, I did, in the following February, appoint the Hon. Charles Mason of Burlington, to act as counsel on behalf of the State; and I also immediately afterwards notified the Governor of Missouri of the passage of the above mentioned act, and of the appointment of Mr. Mason. On the 2nd Monday in June, 1847, the counsel on both sides met and agreed to institute an amicable suit. The cause come on for argument before the Supreme Court in February, 1849. It appears from the fact set forth in the decree of the Court, that in 1816, the United States caused to be run and marked two lines as part of a boundary between the United States and the Great and Little Osage Nations of Indians; the first line beginning on the eastern bank of the Missouri river, opposite the middle of the mouth of the Kansas river, and extending north one hundred miles, where a corner was made by Mr. Sullivan, the surveyor acting on behalf of the United States, and the Osage Nations, that from that corner a second line was then run and marked by the Surveyor, which was intended to be run due east, on a parallel of latitude, but which, by mistake, varied about two and one-half degrees towards the north of a due east and west line; that that portion of territory west of Sullivan's first line, and between the same and the Missouri river, was added to Missouri by an act of Congress of June 7th, 1836; and the court accordingly decreed that "the true and proper northern boundary line of the State of Missouri, and the true southern boundary of the State of Iowa, is the line run and marked in 1816, by John C. Sullivan, as the Indian boundary, from the north-west corner made by Sullivan, extending eastwardly, as he run and marked the said line, to the middle of the Des Moines river, and that a line run due west, from said north-west corner to the middle of the Missouri river, is the proper dividing line between said State west of the aforesaid corner; and that the States of Missouri and Iowa are bound to conform their jurisdiction up to said line on their respective sides thereof, from the river Des Moines to the river Missouri."

Our State now embraces the territory lying between the line run by Missouri in 1837, as her northern boundary line, from the river Des Moines due west to the Missouri river, and the line established by the decree. Every citizen of the State must feel gratified that the vexatious question concerning our southern boundary, is at length settled. The condition and wants of the territory acquired will, I trust, receive your early and earnest attention.

Joseph C. Brown of the State of Missouri, and Henry B. Hendershott of the State of Iowa, were appointed Commissioners by the United States Supreme Court, to survey and mark the line fixed by the decree, and make returns to the Court on or before the first day of January, 1850. Mr. Brown having died previous to executing his duties, Robert W. Wells, of Missouri, was appointed in his place. The Commissioners were further ordered by the Court, to correspond with the Chief Magistrate of Missouri and Iowa, and request the cooperation and assistance of the State authorities, in the performance of their duties.

In a communication received by me from Mr. Hendershott, under date of May 57th, 1848, he suggested the propriety of the authorities of Iowa and Missouri immediately making some arrangements by which the Commissioners would be furnished funds to enable them speedily to prosecute their duties. The suggestion appeared to me both reasonable and proper; and as the legislature had made no provision for such services—as the Commissioners had been ordered by the Court to request the aid of the State authorities—and as it was of the highest importance that the boundary line should be marked as speedily as possible, I conceived it my duty to furnish Mr. Hen-dershott with a portion of the means necessary to prosecute the duties assigned the Commissioners.

Being unable to obtain the funds in any other quarter, I was compelled, though with great reluctance, to solicit from the Superintendent of Public Instruction, a loan from the School Fund, which I obtained to the amount of $2,000, and gave my individual promissory note, (secured by bond,) for its repayment—which note bears interest according to the law in regard to the loaning of the School Fund, and is due and payable on the 15th of September, 1849—and placed the money in the treasury, subject to the order of Mr. Hendershott.

Should you coincide in the opinion that the pressing emergency justified the course pursued by me, I would recommend that an appropriation be made to replace, as speedily as possible, the money thus withdrawn from the School Fund.

In a communication from Mr. Hendershott, under date of October 23d, 1850, I have been informed that the Commissioners completed their work on the 18th day of September last, and that a return of the survey was filed by him in the office of the Secretary of State, on the 17th day of October following. Mr. Hendershott further informs me that "the amount of money expended by Iowa is $2,180 33, and the amount expended by Missouri is $2,099 86 cents. These sums, ($4,280 19,) include every expense incurred, except for instruments, (which are yet on hand) and such compensation as may be made to the Commissioners, and such further compensation over and above $3,00 per day, as shall be allowed to the Surveyors, whose duties were arduous, and faithfully discharged. This matter should also receive your attention.

The communications of Mr. Hendershott, one bearing date May 27th, 1849, and the other October 23d, 1850, are herewith submitted.

Great credit is due Mr. Mason for the zeal, industry and ability shown by him in the management of the suit on the part of the State. He thought proper to secure the services of a distinguished lawyer of another State, as assisting counsel, informing him at the same time, that he had no authority to employ additional counsel, but that if he would undertake the case, the Legislature would, no doubt, grant him a reasonable compensation. From the magnitude of the case, and the great interests involved, this step on the part of Mr. Mason was, most unquestionably, dictated by prudence and sound policy. It would therefore be proper that such an appropriation be made, as in your judgment will be a reasonable and adequate compensation for the services thus rendered.

The act for the settlement of the boundary line, appropriates $1,000 to carry the same into effect. That amount has been drawn from the treasury by Mr. Mason. By reference to his report—which is herewith submitted—it will be seen that his expenses in travelling to different points to take depositions, collect testimony, etc., and his expenses at Washington, amount to $980 00, which nearly covers the sum appropriated, and leaves him a mere pittance for his time and labor—justice would seem to demand that an additional appropriation should be made in his favor.

It is to be hoped that a very considerable portion of your time and attention will be expended in efforts to perfect our system of Common School education. The law passed at the last session of the Legislature, cured many of the defects existing in the previous law; but there are deficiencies in the present law which demand your action. It is expected that the Commissioners appointed to revise the code, will examine the School Law, and either present a new one, or prune away the excrescences, and supply the wants of the one now on the statute book. The report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, together with the report of the Commissioners will, doubtless, materially aid you in determining what measures are necessary to advance the interests of Common Schools.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his last report to the Legislature, takes the ground that some plan ought to be adopted whereby the expenses attending the management of the School Fund may be decreased. To remedy the evil, he recommends that the law providing for county Fund Commissioners be abolished, and the office of State School Fund Commissioner created. The labors of the county Fund Commissioners are arduous and complicated, and it may be questionable whether a State Fund Commissioner could properly attend to them. The Superintendent may, possibly, submit a different plan in his forthcoming report to you. Any scheme which you may adopt, whereby the objection may be wholly, or in part removed, would certainly be desirable.

The Constitution provides, in the second section of the tenth article that “the General Assembly shall encourage, by all suitable means, the promotion of intellectual, scientific, moral and agricultural improvements.” No steps have been taken by the Legislature, since the adoption of the Constitution, for the advancement of agriculture. This portion of the Constitution is as obligatory and binding as any other. It was probably inserted for the reason that our State has every facility for becoming, in an eminent degree, an agricultural State. The best method of cultivating the soil is, and it is believed ever will be, a subject of the first importance to a large majority of the citizens of the State. The greater portion of those who attend our Common Schools will become agriculturalists, when the term of their education expires; and consequently, any knowledge which they may obtain, touching that branch of industry, will be to them of the most essential service. It would therefore seem to become your duty to enquire whether books relative to agricultural science, can, with propriety, be introduced into our Normal and Common Schools. I feel confident that, if introduced, the most beneficial results may be anticipated.

The formation of agricultural societies should also be encouraged; and I trust that any facilities which you can supply, for the promotion of such societies, will be cheerfully granted.

A law was passed at the last session for dividing the State into three districts, and for the establishment of a Normal School in each district, for the education of school teachers and others. The State has been thus divided, and a board of trustees appointed for each district, as required by the act. The law further provides that the Schools shall be established at Andrew, Oskaloosa and Mount Pleasant. The school at Andrew commenced on the 21st of November, 1849. It is now under the Superintendence of teachers who are graduates of the New York State Normal School—a respectable number of pupils attend the institution, and its prospects are flattering. The trustees are erecting a building for the use of the school, at an estimated cost of $2,500 about $1,000 of which has been already expended. A very commendable zeal is manifested in that quarter for the support of the school. It is understood a similar feeling exists in each of the other districts, although I am not able to state the progress of those schools. That information you will probably obtain from the Report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Wherever the Normal system has been in operation, in other States, the most fortunate results have been experienced. By the annual report of the executive committee of the State Normal School of the State of New York, made to the Legislature of that State, on the 11th of February, 1850, it appears that the first term of that school began on the 18th of December, 1844. From that period up to the time the report was made, four hundred and twenty-eight pupils had graduated, and a large proportion of them had accepted situations in Common Schools; and, with few exceptions, had acquitted themselves in such a manner as to do honor to the school. The committee are of the opinion that these teachers have caused great improvement in the schools where they have taught, and that they have been highly instrumental in advancing the cause of Common School education.

Permit me to express the hope that the Normal Schools established in our State, will receive the fostering care of the Legislature. If there exists any opposition to them, it would seem to spring from a misapprehension of their objects. It is understood that there are two features characterising them which are not found in other schools or academies: First, the State pupil is required to devote his attention exclusively to obtaining an education, and to such studies as will qualify him to perform, in a superior manner, the duties of a Common School teacher; and, secondly, he is required to learn the best mode of communicating to others the knowledge which he has obtained. As experience teaches that these schools are productive of much good, any measures adopted by you which will conduce to their permanent prosperity, will, I feel assured, meet with the hearty approbation of the friends of education throughout the State.

Hon. Josiah H. Bonney was appointed by me to procure a suitable block of marble, to be furnished by the State of Iowa, for the Washington Monument. He has discharged the duty assigned him, as will be seen by his letter to me of November 30th, 1850, which is herewith submitted.

The Commissioners to revise the Code, have informed me that their labors are nearly completed. A portion of their report is herewith submitted.

The Board of Public Works have not made their report to me, as required by the statute. Some justifiable cause has, undoubtedly, produced the delay.

The first section of the seventh article of the Constitution, provides that the militia of this State shall be composed of all able bodied white male citizens, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years; except such as are or may hereafter be exempt by the laws of the United States, and shall be armed, equipped and trained as the General Assembly may provide by law.

In my last Message I presented the number of all able-bodied white male citizens, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, subject to military duty, in each of the counties which had been reported to me, in accordance with an act entitled "an act requiring the assessors to take lists of persons subject to military duty, approved Jan. 25, 1848, and urged an organization of the militia as speedily as practicable. No steps, however, were taken by the last General Assembly to effect that object. The 3d section of the above mentioned article of the Constitution provides that "all commissioned officers of the militia (staff officers excepted) shall be elected by the persons liable to perform military duty, and shall be commissioned by the Governor." The militia law is at present a dead letter upon the statute book. Some measures should be taken to arrange the militia into divisions, brigades, regiments, &c.; to provide for the election of officers in accordance with the Constitution; and to provide further for such an enrollment as will enable the State to draw her quota of arms from the General Government.

At the last session of the Legislature, joint resolutions were passed instructing our Senators and requesting our Representatives in Congress to procure from the Government of the United States grants of land to aid in the construction of a Rail Road from Dubuque to Keokuk, and also one from Davenport to some suitable point near the Council Bluffs, on the Missouri river. Our delegation in Congress have labored faithfully to obtain these grants, but their efforts have, as yet, been unsuccessful. The attention of that body has, in a great measure, during the last session, been directed towards the adjustment of difficulties which threatened to disturb the harmony of our Union. I conceive it the duty of the Legislature to press upon Congress the necessity and importance of these works. Further applications, seconded by the exertions of our Senators and Representatives may, and undoubtedly will, secure the desired donations.

The Legislature appropriated the sum of three thousand dollars towards the completion of the public buildings in this City. The money to be expended under the superintendence of Hon. Joseph T. Pales. Most of the improvements specified in the act have been made, and they add much to the appearance and convenience of the buildings. A further appropriation will be needed to finish the work according to the original plan.

By an act entitled "an act relative to the Penitentiary," approved January 13, 1849, Mr. A. H. Haskell was appointed Superintendent of that institution, and entered upon the discharge of the duties of his office on the 16th day of March following. His report of April 28d, 1849, exhibits an inventory of the property pertaining to the prison, amounting in value to the sum of $825 60. The act appropriates $6,000 for repairs upon the building, which sum has been drawn by Mr. Haskell, and expended, as will appear from his report of November 28th, 1849. In April last, I received information of his death, and by virtue of the authority granted me by the 16th section of the act, I appointed Mr. John Scott, of Lee county, to fill the vacancy. For information concerning the condition of the Prison, at the time Mr. Haskell became Superintendent, and the progress which has been made in repairing the same, I respectfully refer you to his reports, and to those of Mr. Scott, which are herewith submitted.

The Supreme Court has appointed Hon. George Greene, one of their number, to prepare and report the decisions of that tribunal. The first volume of his reports has already been published. The manner in which this work has been executed, is highly creditable to Mr. Greene, and will favorably compare with the law reports of our sister states. I have subscribed, on behalf of the State, for fifty copies of his first volume, which were deposited in the Secretary's office. A large portion of them have however been subsequently exchanged for the reports of the several states and territories. It will become your duty to make an appropriation to meet the expense incurred on behalf of the State.

From the formation of the Constitution to the present time, there has been no subject which has so seriously threatened the dissolution of the Union, as that of Slavery. That instrument recognizes the system, and provides for the restoration of such slaves as shall escape from their masters, and find refuge in other, or non-slaveholding States. This clause was inserted as a compromise measure, to conciliate and harmonize the differences of opinion existing at the formation of the Constitution, relative to this subject, and to induce the southern States to enter into the federal compact; consequently its letter and spirit should receive a steady and unflinching support from every friend of the Union. Congress, at its last session, passed an act by which that clause of the Constitution could be more effectually carried out. One great object leading to the passage of the law was to exhibit to the slaveholding States, a determination on the part of the National Legislature to protect and enforce all of the rights guarantied to them by the Constitution, and thus allay any apprehensions which they might experience concerning the security of those rights. Since the passage of that act, a disposition has been manifested in some of the northern states to resist its provisions. No good citizen of Iowa can, for a moment, sanction or countenance such proceedings. I think I may assert, without fear of contradiction, that the people of this State are a law-abiding people. One of the prominent reasons urged for resisting the law is that it violates that portion of the Constitution of the United States which provides that "the privilege of the writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it." It may be well for every citizen to remember, that Congress can pass no law prohibiting the issuing of this writ, unless the contingencies specified should occur. As no "rebellion or invasion" exists now, and did not exist at the time of the passage of the act, the writ of Habeas Corpus is in no manner suspended by its provisions.

But whatever differences of opinion may be entertained in regard to this law, it is now our duty to support it so long as it remains the law of the land; and I trust that every citizen of the State will, although he may be opposed to some of its details, as an American citizen and a lover of the Union, stand firmly by it.

I am now about to retire from the office of Chief Magistrate of this State. Four years ago the people thought proper to elect me to that office, and I assumed its duties and responsibilities, distrusting at the same time, my ability properly to discharge those duties. We were then entering upon our career as an independent State; the support which we had heretofore received from the General Government was withdrawn, the machinery of our State government was to be set in motion, and the means obtained to support it. Relying upon the assistance of the General Assembly, and the various officers of the State, I entered upon the discharge of my duties. You are familiar with the course which I have pursued. Whether it has been calculated or not to advance the interests of the State, you and the people are the judges. During my administration I may, and undoubtedly have, committed errors; but if, such be the case, I shall ever be supported by the reflection that they sprang from no vicious or wrong motive. The courtesy and assistance extended to me by the Legislature, and by all connected with the government, will ever be a subject of grateful remembrance. In laying down the reins of government, I feel an additional gratification in the assurance that they are to be transferred to more able and competent hands. Permit me, in retiring, to express the fervent desire that this, my adopted State, may ever be distinguished for virtue, intelligence, and prosperity, and may she ever receive the care and protection of that Being who governs the Universe.

ANSEL BRIGGS.

Iowa City, December 3, 1850.

DOCUMENTS ACCOMPANYING THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

BURLINGTON, August 30, 1850.

His Excellency Ansel Briggs:

SIR: In pursuance of the act of January 16th, 1848, you did me the honor of appointing me to conduct, on the part of our State, an anticipated controversy with the State of Missouri in the Supreme Court of the United States, relative to our southern boundary. Although my appointment was dated in February of that year, and although every thing was done which was in the power of the counsel on either side to expedite the business for which we were appointed, it was not till the second Monday in June following that we were enabled to have a meeting to agree upon preliminary measures relative to the manner of conducting the controversy. I had, however, previously visited St. Louis and St. Charles for the purpose of acquiring information necessary to enable me to act more understandingly on this subject. I spent several days in each of those cities, with a reasonable degree of success.

At our meeting we agreed upon the institution of an amicable suit and the course of proceeding. Circumstances, however, for which I was not responsible, prevented any testimony from being taken till the month of November following. I had, however, taken every step which seemed advisable, for looking up the testimony, and being prepared to take it at the proper time. I visited the Des Moines river country to gather up and arrange all the facts within reach, relative to the rapids on that river. I had researches made in Washington. I commenced a correspondence in every direction which seemed to promise the least advantage.

Early in November I repaired to St. Louis again, in order to make further searches for testimony previous to taking depositions. In this I was successful to as great an extent as could have been expected, considering that at the commencement I had to grope my way in darkness, and that most of those who possessed information could not be expected to be forward in communicating it to me.

Depositions were at length taken in St. Louis, Jefferson City, and St. Genevieve, and some valuable documentary evidence was procured at those places. This occupied our time industriously until December, and as I still wished to take the testimony of persons residing in Wisconsin, Illinois, Louisiana, and at Davenport, and different places on the Des Moines river, it became evident that the testimony could not be taken in time to have the argument heard at the then next term of the Supreme Court, and that the case must lie over till another year, contrary to our earnest desire and previous intention.

Late in January, however, I received a communication from counsel on the opposite side, proposing that we should proceed to Washington and have the case tried at once; professing at the same time that they would receive letters, or ex parte affidavits, from any of our witnesses, as legal testimony.

Believing that in this manner I could be prepared to safely go to trial, and deeply anxious to expedite a decision, I lost no time in closing with the proposition. I employed Messrs. Wright and Knapp to take the depositions of those witnesses living in Van Buren county, whose testimony I had ascertained to be material. I wrote letters to the other witnesses whose statements I wished to secure, and started at once for Washington, taking Keokuk, Palmyra, St. Charles, and St. Louis on my route, in each of which places I expected to obtain useful information. In this I was not disappointed so far as regarded some of those points.

I arrived in Washington about the end of February. Our case being the only one on the docket in which the Supreme Court had original jurisdiction, they agreed to give it a preference as soon as it was ready for argument. The Court, however, adjourned about the tenth of March, and too soon for the trial of our cause. It was, however, the general expectation at the time of adjournment that there would be a special term of the Court in April—a bill to that effect having passed the House of Representatives by a large majority. It was understood on all hands that if the bill passed, our case should be tried without fail. After various vicissitudes of fortune, the bill was at length, towards the close of April, finally defeated in the Senate, and I left forthwith for home.

During the vacation I took all the steps necessary to perfect the testimony as far as was in my power. I visited the Des Moines river valley for the purpose of taking additional testimony. I met the antagonist counsel, at various places in this State and Missouri, for the purpose of taking further depositions, and about the middle of December started again for Washington.

As soon as some further preliminaries were settled—a little additional testimony taken at Washington, and the whole records and briefs arranged and printed—the cause came on for trial a little after the middle of February. With the result of that trial you have already been informed. I have only to add, that all the time spent by me in Washington during both the periods of my residence there, were industriously, and, I trust, not uselessly employed in the business which took me thither.

During my first stay in Washington I sought and secured the aid of the Hon. THOMAS EWING, believing it the dictate of prudence to avail myself of his legal ability and experience in conducting the cause. I fully informed him that I had no authority to employ additional counsel, but stated to him that if he would undertake in the business, I had no doubt the Legislature would make him a reasonable, though not an extravagant, compensation. Upon these terms he consented to proceed, and did render us very essential service, for which I hope he will be fairly compensated. I advanced him at the time the sum of $50 00, for which, if the Legislature should disapprove of my course, I hold myself individually responsible.

The case, as your Excellency is aware, is not entirely ended. The Court has appointed Commissioners to place monuments along the boundary line fixed by them; and to report their doings to the Court. The want of funds, as I am informed, prevented their performing that duty last year, and perhaps the same cause will operate with the like effect until after the next meeting of the Legislature. As nothing remains to be done by the Court, or by counsel, except the making of a more formal entry after the Commissioners have reported, my duties may be regarded as substantially ended, and I make report of my proceedings accordingly.

I have been thus particular in stating the proceedings of this case, that your Excellency may judge whether I have performed my duty in a diligent and proper manner. I have never spared pains or money where I thought they would prove available, nor have I expended a moment or a dime where I did not think it requisite in order to accomplish the purpose of my appointment.

The time during which I have been absent from home in exclusive attendance upon this business, amounts in the aggregate to about eight months. Besides this, the pleadings, the correspondence, and much of the business of arrangement and preparation was transacted at home.

The subjoined statement of my expenditures will show that they have not exceeded the amount appropriated by the General Assembly. I endeavored to keep a general account of those expenditures, but this was frequently omitted, from inadvertance or other causes. The statement is not therefore precise, though not far from truth.

Hoping that the manner in which this business has been conducted may meet with the approbation of your Excellency and the General Assembly, I remain,

Very Respectfully, Yours, &c.,

CHARLES MASON.

OTTUMWA, October 23d, 1850.

SIR: I have the honor to inform your Excellency that on the 17th instant I filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Iowa, my return of the survey of the boundary line between this State and the State of Missouri. This work was commenced by us on the 28th day of April and concluded on the 18th of September.

The amount of money expended by Iowa is $2,180 33, and the amount expended by Missouri is $2,099 86. These sums ($4,280 19) include every expense incurred, except for instruments (which are yet on hand) and such compensation as may be made to the Commissioners, and such further compensation, over and above three dollars per day, as shall be allowed to the surveyors, whose duties were arduous, and faithfully discharged.

For a fuller account of the said survey I most respectfully refer your Excellency to my report on file in the secretary's office.

ees in taking testimony on the Des Moines river, about $12 00 which I paid for procuring a copy of the French Constitution of Missouri, and other similar expenses, besides witnesses and Commissioners' fees, &c.

OTTUMWA, May, 27th, 1849.

SIR: On the 25th inst. I received a copy of the decree of the Supreme Court of the United States in the boundary case between Iowa and Missouri.

In accordance with said decree (a copy of which you have ere now received) I have to request, that you address the Executive of Missouri on the subject of our boundary, and that you agree between yourselves, in behalf of your respective States, as to the character of posts which are to be placed every ten miles on the line;—whether they shall be of stone, or whether they shall be of cast iron, and what dimensions.

The dimensions, as also the materials of these posts, should be selected by the authorities of the States concerned, as the expense of their procurement and erection is to be borne by the States.

This selection will be made, of course, with a view to durability and economy.

I would suggest the propriety of the authorities of Iowa and Missouri immediately making some arrangement, by which the commissioners will be furnished means to enable them speedily to prosecute their duties. It will not be expected, by the authorities of the States concerned, that the commissioners shall employ all the assistance necessarily incident to the carefully establishing a boundary between two independent and growing States at their own immediate expense. It is for the Executives, of Missouri and Iowa to adopt such measures in aid of the commissioners, as to them may seem proper.

Any instructions which your Excellency may please to give to the commissioners touching their duties, will be kindly received.

An early reply to this is requested: I have this day sent to his Excellency the Governor of Missouri, a counterpart of this letter.

I am, most respectfully,

Your Excellency's most ob't humble serv't,

HENRY B. HENDERSHOTT.

His Excellency, ANSEL BRIGGS, Governor, &c.,

IOWA CITY, Iowa.

IOWA CITY, November 30th, 1850.

To his Excellency, ANSEL BRIGGS, Governor, of Iowa:

The undersigned, appointed by your Excellency an agent to procure a suitable block of marble or other stone, to be furnished by the State of Iowa, for the Washington Monument, would respectfully report—That after having examined all the quarries in the State now worked, from which it was supposed such stone could be obtained, succeeded in procuring a block of the proper dimensions from the quarry of Moses B. Root, of Van Buren county.

The stone is now at the shop of Mr. Root, in Keosauqua, blocked out of the proper size and shape, ready to be finished in such manner and with such inscription thereon, as the General Assembly may direct.

Mr. Root looks to the liberality of the General Assembly for such compensation for his services in this matter as they may think him entitled

I have the honor to be

Your Excellency's ob't serv't,

JOSIAH H. BONNEY.

To his Excellency the Governor of Iowa :

SIR : The commissioners appointed by the act of January 25th, 1848, to draft, prepare and revise a code of statute law of a general nature, for the State of Iowa,

Respectfully report,

That their work is substantially done, and in doing it they have complied with the manner prescribed by the act, substantially and as nearly as was practicable.

They submit herewith an analysis of the subjects contained in the first part or division of the work, together with the first titles or subdivisions opening the same. The papers constituting the remainder of the work will be submitted in their order, as speedily as they are arranged and put into a form adapted for submission, and at as early a day as the General Assembly may have need of them.

They do not propose to enter into a detail of changes made by them as this can be better ascertained from a regular examination of the work, and can be better pointed out and explained in a different manner hereafter.

A few chapters have been left yet unfinished, for consultation with the officers of the Government, or for information to be derived from their reports, and such portions will be soon completed and reported.

Whereupon, Messrs. Lewis was appointed teller.

The Senate preceded by their PRESIDENT, Secretaries, and Sergeant-at-Arms, then repaired to the Hall of the House of Representatives for the purpose of opening and publishing the votes given for Governor at the last General Election.

The two branches of the Legislative Assembly having met in the Hall of the House,

A call of the members was had, when it appeared that all the members of both Houses were present, and answered to their names, except John J. Selman, of the Senate, and William G. Haun, of the House of Representatives.

The PRESIDENT announced the purpose of the Convention.

The SPEAKER of the House of Representatives proceeded to open and publish the official abstracts of votes for Governor, in presence of the two Houses, when the same were duly canvassed, Mr. Lewis, on the part of the Senate, and Mr. Negus, on the part of the House, acting as tellers.

The following is the result:

	VOTES.
STEPHEN HEMPSTEAD received,	13,486
JAMES L. THOMPSON "	11,403
WM. PENN CLARK "	575
SAMUEL THOMPSON "	4
JAMES THOMPSON "	5
WILLIAM BRIGGS "	1
S. B. HEMPSTEAD "	1

Whereupon, STEPHEN HEMPSTEAD was declared duly elected Governor of the State of Iowa.

The PRESIDENT appointed Messrs. Hepner and Summers, a committee to inform the Governor elect, that the two Houses were ready to receive him in joint session, in order that he might receive the oath prescribed by the Constitution; which duty having been performed by the committee, the Governor elect, accompanied by the Governor, the Judges of the Supreme Court, and officers of State, entered the Hall of the House, and having been duly announced, and taken the seats assigned them, the Governor elect delivered the following Inaugural Address :

Called to the executive chair of the State of Iowa, by the free suffrages of my fellow citizens, a frank expression of gratitude is due to them for the distinguished honor which they have conferred upon me, and of the leading principles which will govern me in the discharge of my official duties under the Constitution and laws, with the assurance on my part, that those duties shall be discharged to the best of my ability.

Knowing the fallibility of human nature, let me claim that indulgence for unintentional errors which as reasonable men we should extend toward each other. Elected by one of the great political parties of this State, I cannot expect to escape censure from those who differ from me in political sentiment, and rejoice that we live under a government where every citizen has the right of freely discussing the conduct of public men, and public measures. From this rule I claim no exemption, and ask nothing but justice.

The principles by which I shall be governed in the administration of your affairs, are distinctly marked out in the Constitution of this State, a Constitution which in my judgment is eminently calculated to secure to us the enjoyment of life, liberty, equality, and the pursuit of happiness, or in other words, to secure the great objects for which governments should be established among men; and the prosperity of the State from its organization to the present time, is a forcible commentary of the justice and wisdom of the policy thus adopted.

By the restriction of State debts, the prohibition of banking and of special acts of incorporation, except for political or municipal purposes, we are secured from many evils which exist in older States, where, in consequence of the establishment and continuance of those institutions, their governments have become complicated, oppressive, and subversive of civil liberty.

With no banks among us to create distress or panic by their failures, contractions, and expansions, with but few corporations except those formed under general laws, our citizens relying on their own industry and frugality, are advancing steadily to competence and wealth, showing to the world that bank indulgences, paper money, and special privileges, are unnecessary to secure to a people happiness and prosperity.

With a soil of great richness and productiveness, a climate salubrious and invigorating, and citizens possessing enterprise and industry, we require nothing more than what is secured by our Constitution; and let me say, if we desire a continuance of that prosperity, the stability of the State and the happiness of our citizens, it can only be accomplished by the enactment of equal and expedient laws, and not by those which are designed to build up and enrich a few at the expense of the many, or by giving one class of citizens privileges not possessed by others. The leading principles of a republican government, as I understand them, are "a perfect equality of political rights, a strict construction of constitutions, no monopolies, moderate legislation, a revenue meeting the wants of the people, and no more; strict responsibility of public officers, simplicity of the laws, and the least possible restraint upon the mind, person, energy and industry of every man, consistent with the rights of his fellow men."

The best form of government that can be devised, is an abridgment of the natural rights of the citizen, and the laws necessary for the purposes of such government are sufficiently complicated and burthensome without adding to them those designed to regulate the conduct of persons upon mere questions of morality, when such objects can only be reached by the force of public opinion, and that alone; yet such laws are not unfrequently placed upon the statute books, where they remain without being enforced, or if exercised, can only be carried into effect when and where a temporary excitement prevails, and then frequently to gratify malice or revenge. If such laws are necessary, they should be enforced and sustained; if they cannot be enforced and sustained, they are unnecessary and should not be enacted.

It is made my duty by the Constitution, to see that the laws are faithfully executed. Experience shows us that in just proportion to their observance, is the peace and prosperity of our government. This extends not only to such laws as we believe to be right, but to all such as are lawfully enacted, until they are repealed, or declared unconstitutional by the judicial tribunals. While we have the ballot box and the courts, whatever may be the private opinion of any citizen, or class of citizens, upon such law, obedience to its requirements is an unavoidable duty. So far as any responsibility may rest on me, or power be entrusted, I shall neither hesitate to assume the one, or exercise the other, if necessary to ensure their prompt observance; and in this I am satisfied that I would have the countenance and support of my fellow citizens. My hope and confidence however is, that there will be no occasion when it will become necessary to assume or exercise the power thus given.

I cannot doubt that a prompt obedience, in all cases, and a fair construction, according to the purpose intended, of every law, whether state or national, will be yielded by every good citizen. So far as our national laws are concerned, we are bound further to such observance by a solemn compact with the other States of this Union, and no citizen who loves that Union will violate its laws, or permit others to do so, if in his power to prevent it. It is that Union which gives to the American people rank and power among men and nations—it is that union which protects our commerce, adjusts the difficulties between States, and defends us from the aggressions of foreign powers. Without union, our independence and liberty could not have been achieved; without union, and the observance of the laws, they can never be maintained.

Desirous of seeing a continuance among us of a republican government, in fact as well as in name, I have thus briefly given my views as to the policy which should be pursued to secure those results, having no other object than to advance our best interests, maintain the honor and dignity of the State, and secure to every citizen the enjoyment of civil liberty.

After which the Governor elect intimated his readiness to take the oath prescribed by the Constitution, which was administered in due form by Chief Justice Williams.

Thereupon, Messrs. Hepner and Summers, the committee of the Convention, attended the Governor and Ex-Governor from the Hall of the House.

The purposes for which the Convention assembled, having been accomplished, the Senate returned from the Hall of the House, to the Senate Chamber in the same order in which they had left it.

Resolved, That the Commissioners of Revision be requested to report to this House, at an early day, the result of their deliberations, on the subject of the lands belonging to this State, and the reorganization of a Board of Public Works.

Mr. Wright, from select committee, to act with committee of the House, and ascertain what part, if any, of the code should be printed, reported

That they have found the duties assigned them difficult, it requiring great care to properly discriminate between those parts which required printing, in order to an intelligent consideration thereof, and those which proposing no great change in provision from present laws, could well be considered without printing. Actuated, however, by a sincere belief that we would meet the general desire of the Senate, we have dispensed with the printing of at least one half of the report, so far as we have yet examined it, and have been influenced, in many instances, in dispensing with printing, by the strong conviction, that there is a general disposition to adopt the code without material change.

Your committee found that the code had been divided into different parts, being four in number; that these parts were again divided into titles, and the titles into chapters.

We have examined the first three parts, and the amount of printing here recommended, in the part examined, we believe to be more in proportion than will be necessary in the remaining part. With this general statement of the character of the code, and the manner in which they proceeded to the discharge of their duties, your committee would recommend that the following portions of the said code be printed:

Of part first (1) so much of title 3 as is contained in chapters 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 12 and 13.

Of Title 4, so much as is contained in chapters 1, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12.

All of titles 7 and 8.

Of title 5, chapters 1, 2 and 3.

Of title 11, chapter 1.

Of title 12, chapter 1.

Of title 13, chapter 8.

Of title 14, chapter 2.

Of part 2d (II)—title 1, chapter 7.

Title 2, chapter 1.

Of part 3d (III)—all of titles 2 and 4.

Of title 5, chapters 1, 4, 5, 6 and 8.

And that the remaining portions of said three parts be not printed. As will be seen by the foregoing, your committee have not yet fully discharged the duties assigned them, but in order to the expedition of business they have deemed it advisable to report their progress, as above, and having so done they ask for further time to make a final report.

And on motion of Mr. Lowe,

The report was accepted, and further time given the committee to complete their report.

Mr. Espy moved to take from the table resolution relative to the appointment of a committee to examine and report, to each branch of the General Assembly, the code of laws submitted by the Revising Commissioners, which was agreed to. And

On his motion,

The blank in said resolution was filled with the word "four."

I beg leave to say, that the remainder of the code has this day been placed in my hands, with the exception of the chapters mentioned in the report of the commissioners, to which I respectfully call the attention of the Senate, as explanatory of the reasons why that part of the work has been retained for farther consideration. As those parts are separate and distinct, and may be examined and passed upon at any time, it will not prevent the General Assembly from proceeding with the remainder of the code which is herewith transmitted.

STEPHEN HEMPSTEAD.

December 12, 1850.

To His Excellency, the Governor, of Iowa :

SIR:—The undersigned beg leave to transmit to the General Assembly, through you, the accompanying papers constituting the finished work of the commissioners of revision.

In our former report we alluded to the fact of certain chapters or subjects being unfinished. We desire to explain what these are and some of the reasons of their delay.

The delay has not been for the convenience of the commissioners, but on the contrary, it has been much to their inconvenience. It arose from a desire to render those portions more complete, when done.

Title five, relating to the property of the State—the public lands, funds, &c.

Title six, of the revenue, and title seven, of schools.

Embracing in all six chapters relating to subjects upon which the commissioners felt anxious to obtain the reports of the public offices, and to consult the officers of those several departments. In the case of the school law, the head of that department has expressed a desire to render his assistance, which his position and acquaintance with the operation of the system renders exceedingly desirable to the undersigned. But these objects have not been attainable until since the session of the General Assembly commenced.

The chapters containing the road law, and licenses for railroads, &c., which also have been somewhat delayed, are ready for engrossment, which however need not take place should they be ordered to be printed.

The chapter relating to, and prescribing fees and costs, from its nature and relation, cannot well be prepared until near the conclusion of the whole.

Finally a concluding provision relating to the effect of the revision upon past and existing transactions, can be better prepared and apprehended toward the close of the examination of the work, and has for this reason been postponed.

These chapters might have been prepared earlier, but to the probable inconvenience of the General Assembly and of the people. We believe that the common good required the course which we have pursued, however inconvenient to ourselves.

These chapters will be prepared in their order and will be in readiness at an early day.

W. G. WOODWARD,
CHARLES MASON,
Commissioners of Revision.

That the above petitions referred to, ask the legislature to grant two individuals ferry charters across the Mississippi river at the same place, that the only question to be decided seems to be, which of the applicants shall have the charter.

In the opinion of your committee, the parties should have applied to the commissioners of said county, who have ample powers to determine such questions, under the act entitled an act for extending the powers of the board of county commissioners, in regard to the licensing and regulating ferries, approved Feb 24th, 1847.

That the legislature should interfere in no case, with the powers conferred in the act aforesaid, unless it can be shown one or more of the commissioners, or the county, is interested in granting the charter.

I herewith return Senate file No. 11, A bill for an act granting the Burlington and Mt. Pleasant Plank Road Company the right of way, which has passed the House of Representatives with one amendment, in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

Mr. Wright introduced Senate file No. 12, memorial to Congress.
To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States :

Your memorialists, the General Assembly of the State of Iowa, respectfully represent, That a preliminary survey has been made, and a company organized for the construction of a railroad between the cities of Dubuque and Keokuk in this State. That the projected road will commence at the commercial center of the mining region in this State, pass through a country in its whole extent unexcelled in fertility by any portion of this State—a country already overspread to a great extent with cultivated farms, and filled with thriving towns, all requiring augmented facilities for interchanging their commodities with those of other States of the Union and of the world. That the southern extremity of the road is on the Mississippi river, below the last great obstruction in that stream, and from whence the communication with St. Louis and the South is obstructed by ice but a small portion of the year.

Your memorialists further represent, that various lines of rail roads are proposed between different points on the Mississippi and some point on the Missouri river.

That those proposed routes are intended but as continuations of responding lines of railroads now rapidly making their way from the Atlantic seaboard, some of which will soon find their terminus on the Pacific.

That the face of the country through our State is evidently adapted to the construction of railroads running in that direction. That the necessity of intercommunication between the towns and settlements of the two great rivers of our State will soon render a work of this kind necessary for the use and convenience of our people themselves; and that the geographical position of our State, taken in connection with the various other works of like character, already in progress, or soon to be commenced, point to some one of the proposed routes through the State as one of the links of the great chain that is soon to span the continent.

In view of the want of means, incident to the condition of things in all new countries, and this increased in no small degree by the drain required for the purchase of our new lands, it will be impossible for us, if unaided, to construct either of these lines of rail road for a long period of time.

These roads will be of great importance to the Federal Government by furnishing the means of ready and rapid transportation for troops, supplies and mails and also by augmenting the value of, and thereby causing more ready sale of large districts of the public domain.

Your memorialists therefore ask of your honorable bodies a liberal contribution of the public lands to aid in the construction of the Dubuque and Keokuk Raid Road, on the route the company or the State may select, and for a like contribution for the rail road, across the State from the Mississippi to the Missouri river, on such routes as may be deemed by the State most conducive to the general good.

Resolved, therefore, that our Senators be instructed and our Representatives requested to exert their combined and unremitting energies, to secure the appropriations or grants of land asked for above, and that the Secretary of State be directed to forward a copy of this memorial and resolution, to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

Which was read a first and second time.

Mr. Cook moved to lay the memorial on the table.

Mr. Wright, from the committee on federal relations, to whom was referred so much of the message of his Excellency the Governor as relates to the subject of slavery; as also Senate file No. 16, preamble and resolution in reference to the compromise measures passed by the Congress of the United States, submitted the following report;

Which was laid on the table, and fifteen hundred copies of the same ordered to be printed for the use of the General Assembly.

The committee on federal relations, to whom was referred so much of the message of his Excellency the Governor, as relates to the subject of slavery; as also Senate file No. 16, "Preamble and Resolution in reference to the compromise measures passed by the Congress of the United States," have had the same under their consideration, and beg leave to submit the following

REPORT:

To the mind of every citizen the subjects submitted to your committee are invested with an importance scarcely equalled by any other that could be presented for consideration. Your committee need not refer to the deep and universal interest felt throughout our country during the past protracted session of Congress. As the result of certain important negotiations and treaties the United States had become possessed of a large territory;—a portion of the people of that territory were applying for admission into the Union as independent States;—others were seeking the establishment of territorial governments; one of the States in the south was claiming a portion of this same territory; the northern portion of our Confederacy was demanding one peculiar provision in relation to the governments, State and Territorial, to be formed from said territory, as likewise the abolition of the slave trade in the District of Columbia; the south was demanding other and different peculiar provisions in said governments so to be formed, as also more effective provisions for carrying out the provisions of the constitution relative to "fugitives from labor;" and thus at one and the same time was this vexed question of slavery connected with a variety of measures, important in themselves, all of which were to be settled, if possible, so as to give peace and quiet to an excited public mind, and place the government in its wonted safety and prosperity. We say, we need not refer to these things. They are part of the history of the country—a part too full of interest to the present and equally so to the future.

As to the propriety of all the provisions contained in the different measures so passed by Congress, we do not know that it is necessary for us to speak. Your committee regard the measures passed upon as legitimate subjects for legislation by the National Assembly.—While some of your committee might not coincide with all the provisions contained in these different enactments; yet having been past by the constitutional tribunal, by statesmen whose ability all acknowledge, and whose sincere devotion to the Union and our common country, their many previous acts so clearly demonstrate--and from the further consideration that having just passed a session of unexampled excitement and agitation, the public mind naturally enough seeks to avoid like scenes, your committee deem it inappropriate to here enter into their discussion. Indeed your committee do not know that these matters are within the province of the duties assigned to them. A question vastly more important—one that more intimately concerns our position as a State and the good of our common country would seem to demand more appropriately our attention, and come within the sphere of our duties.

In that portion of the message of His Excellency the Governor, referred to us, we find the following language, to-wit: "But whatever differences of opinion may be entertained in regard to this law, it is now our duty to support it so long as it remains the law of the land." From this it will be observed, that in the opinion of the executive, there is but one of the series of compromise measures (so called) upon which there is any doubt as to the action of the people, so far as the northern or free States are concerned. In the south while much is said and written against these measures, yet we know their complaint is founded upon causes entirely different from those existing north. This measure referred to by the executive is the "act to amend and supplementary to the act entitled an act respecting fugitives from justice, and persons escaping from the service of their masters, approved, Feb. 2, 1793."

That it was the duty of Congress in the general consideration that was being given to this vexed and important question of slavery—to regard the voice of the south in this particular, while they were complying with some of the demands of the north, we think is clear. In view of what had been the action of some of the free states, it was to be expected that the south, in the general attempt to settle controversies, should demand more efficient process and proceedings to enforce the "claim" of their citizens when made for fugitives. In the minds of those who are willing to carry out in good faith the provisions of our national constitution, this demand would reasonably meet with no objection—and as to all others there was a necessity for close, careful and effective legislation.

Before referring to the duty of the citizen under this and all other laws passed by the constitutional tribunal, your committee beg leave to refer somewhat more at length to what they regard to be the duty and constitutional power of Congress—and this they will do generally and not with reference to the specific provisions of this bill. This duty and power your committee regard to be well settled by numerous decisions by the highest judicial tribunals of the states; as also by the Supreme and inferior courts of the United States, in which the “judicial power” of the government “is invested by the Constitution.” We only refer to a few adjudications to establish this.

In the celebrated case of Prigg vs. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 16, Peters 539, we find the following:

FIRST—“A claim to a fugitive slave is a controversy in a case, “arising under the Constitution of the United States,” under the express delegation of judicial power given by that instrument, Congress may call that power then into activity, for the very purpose of giving effect to the right; and if so, then it may prescribe the mode and extent to which it shall be applied, and how and under what circumstances, the proceeding shall afford a complete protection and guarantee of the right.”

SECOND—“The natural if not the necessary conclusion is, that the national government, in the absence of all positive provisions to the contrary, is bound through its own proper departments, legislative, executive or judiciary, as the case may require, to carry into effect all the rights and duties imposed upon it by the Constitution.”

THIRD—“It cannot well be doubted that the constitution requires the delivery of the fugitive “or the claim of the master; and the natural inference certainly is that the national government is clothed with the appropriate authority and functions to enforce it. The fundamental principle to all cases of this sort would seem to be, that where the end is required the means are given; and where the duty is enjoined, the ability to perform it is contemplated to exist on the part of the functionaries to whom it is entrusted.”

Other authorities might be referred to, establishing the same position, but this we deem sufficient.

Having said this much as to the duty and power of Congress to legislate on this subject, we now come to the duty of the citizen in relation thereto.

The great distinguishing feature between a well regulated, prosperous and permanent government, and that which affords no safety to the citizen and no protection to property, is that in the one case the citizen abides by the law, and seeks its repeal or modification, if obnoxious, by proper constitutional and legitimate means; and in the other he sets the law at defiance—acts from his own convictions of right, irrespective of the controlling obligation imposed upon him the moment he becomes a citizen of the government. To say that each man shall be allowed to prescribe his own rule of conduct, in violation of law, and in so doing shall be protected and justified, necessarily destroys all ideas of government, and as necessarily destroys the government that may be established. Government pre-supposes obedience to law. Not an obedience, it is true, that destroys freedom of speech and of the press—nor that obedience which would hush argument, or prevent the proper demand for the repeal or modification of law; but that obedience which disavows resistance by force, to the execution of the law, and which while deeming the law unjust and impolitic, seeks only constitutional means for its change. To recognize any other rule, throws us into a wide field beset by danger on every side—presents anarchy and confusion instead of law and order—gives us the most cruel of despotisms instead of well regulated government.

Upon a proper view of this question and consequent proper action thereon, your committee hesitate not to say, depends the peace, the prosperity, the happiness and even perpetuity of our government. It is a question as they conceive between the supremacy of the law, the constitution and the government, and individual opinion, and a consequent spirit of defiance to law and the constitutional tribunals of the land. This issue they regard as clearly presented in the issue now before the American people. And let this spirit of resistance and the claim of right to be guided by each man's own rule of conduct—originate north or south—in free or slave states—your committee say unqualifiedly that it should meet with unreserved condemnation from all good citizens—fraught as it is with untold evils to our Union and its institutions.

Under these circumstances, your committee will not believe that any citizen of Iowa can hesitate in his action but are bound to believe that he will always be found on the side of safety to his country and in opposition to that doctrine which leads to its destruction. As citizens of a young but prosperous State—situated aloof from those portions of our union in which great excitement has prevailed and still prevails, our voice should be heard on the side of law, order, the constitution and the Union, and we fondly hope that such voice will not be without its influence. By every motive that binds us to our country—by every feeling that can prompt the American heart—by all the love that we owe to that government, which, commanding the admiration of the world, shields and protects our life and liberty and ensures our happiness—we should feel bound not to evade the requirements of that government or “nullify” its commands. So doing we uphold the supremacy of the law—quell that spirit of forcible resistance which, encouraged, destroys all that we love best in our country, and ensure, as we fondly hope, the perpetuity of that government, upon the existence of which depends not only our own welfare, but even the fate of the citizen, and the civil liberty of all the nations of the earth.

In conclusion, your committee would recommend the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions :

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States, at its last session, adopted a series of acts, known as the compromise measures, and whereas there has been manifested throughout portions of the north and south, a disposition to set a portion of said acts at defiance, and thereby declare open resistance to the power of the government and its laws :

And whereas, in view of our duty to the government, and for the purpose of showing to all portions of the Union our firm and unyielding devotion to its cause and its institutions, we deem it proper to make some public demonstration of our views and feelings. Therefore,

1. Resolved, That in the opinion of this General Assembly, “the Constitution of the United States is a compact, a fundamental treaty.”—and that in order to our continued prosperity and happiness, that constitution and the laws of the land must be respected and obeyed.

2. Resolved, That we will give no countenance or aid to those, north or south, who would set up “their own rule of conduct” in opposition to and as being higher than the constitution—and while we would give the largest latitude to thought, speech and action, yet such an avowal we regard as meriting unmixed condemnation—its inevitable tendency being hazardous to that Union which we hereby declare ourselves bound to maintain by any and all means in our power.

3. Resolved, That whatever may be the opinions of individuals as to the policy or details of said compromise measures, yet it is the duty of every good citizen to conform to their requisitions and carry them out in good faith—seeking their modification or repeal, if such should be necessary, in the manner contemplated by the constitution and laws.

4. Resolved, That the constitution should be our guide, “and in questions of doubt we should look for its interpretation to the judicial decisions of the tribunal which was established to expound it, and to the usages of the government, sanctioned by the acquiescence of the country”—that “all its provisions are equally binding”—that it is the will of the people expressed in the most solemn form.”—that no pretence of utility, no honest conviction even of what might be expedient can justify “the assumption of any power not granted” or the violation of its provisions and that we deem it our first duty not to “evade its requirements or nullify its commands.”

5. Resolved, That the Secretary of State is hereby directed to forward a copy of these resolutions to the Governor’s of each State and Territory, and to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

Mr. President submitted to the Senate, the report of the State Librarian.

IOWA CITY, January 9th, 1851.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

In compliance with the thirteenth and fourteenth sections of an act entitled “An act to provide for the management of the State Library, and the election of a Librarian”—

I submit to you the following statement of facts required to be brought to your notice; together with a statement of the contingent expenses of the same for the years 1849 and 1850, with the exception of the last quarter; which does not expire until the 24th February, 1851.

The number of volumes in the State Library is about 1670, besides a number of books in pamphlet form, journals, reports, &c., about one third of the books are law books, the remainder consists of statutes of the different States, miscellaneous works, American State papers, congressional documents, &c.

There has never been any appropriation for the increase of the library, consequently the only increase (which is very small) arises from the exchange of books between the States; and some books sent by Congress, being laws of the United States, Journals, &c.

I received last summer, from the Department of State, a very fine copy of Wilkes' Exploring Expedition, consisting of ten volumes, got up in the best style; with this exception the library is entirely destitute of late works that have been issuing from the press for the last ten years.

The Library was purchased in 1839, and up to this time the State has not made any addition to it.

The books composing the Library are mostly broken sets, that want the filling up to make them useful, especially is it the case with the law reports, the sets of which need completing in order to derive advantage from those we have.

I would respectfully suggest to your consideration the propriety of making a small appropriation for the increase of the library; a small appropriation of, say one thousand dollars, would make it respectable, and an ornament and honor to the State; such appropriation, with a small yearly one of two hundred dollars, would keep it up with the progress of the age.

The Library is greatly in want of some good new maps, as there is not a decent map belonging to the State. There has not been any books lost since the meeting of the last Legislature.

The following is a correct statement of the contingent expenses of the Library, for the years 1849 and 1850:

For wood, candles, stationary, fixing shelves, removing, freight on boxes, painting, carpeting, stove pipe, &c. - - - - $138 83

The last quarter, ending on the 24th of February, 1851, is not included in the above.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

LEMUEL B. PATTERSON.

State Librarian.

Resolved, That the committee on public buildings be instructed to enquire into the expediency of making an appropriation for the purpose of enclosing the square of the capitol, with a good and substantial fence, and otherwise improving the same; and that they report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Leffingwell, from the committee on county boundaries, to whom was referred the petition of citizens of Clayton and Alamakee counties, praying for the formation of a new county out of a part of those counties, have had the same under consideration and have instructed him to report,

That the alteration prayed for, will result to the disadvantage of the county of Alamakee, and will be ruinous to the county of Clayton. Yet, at the same time, the new county proposed, will be one of the finest in our State, selected as it is proposed to be, from all that portion of Clayton and Alamakee which characterizes them as the finest agricultural counties in the State. Your committee deem the demand upon these counties too unjust to receive from them a favorable consideration; the effect of which would be to enhance the interests of some private individuals, at the expense of the great mass of the citizens of said counties.

The policy of altering the boundaries of any county, is looked upon with distrust by this committee, and unless the advantages will be greatly superior to the disadvantage secured by the result, your committee will accordingly oppose any attempted alteration.

The petition praying for locating the county seat of Decatur county, is reported back with the accompanying bill, and a recommendation that it pass.

The petition of citizens of Boone, asking an alteration of the boundaries of their county, is reported against for the same reasons that apply to the above petition of Clayton and Alamakee.

And the petitions of Blackhawk for the same reason.

W. E. LEFFINGWELL, Chairman.

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 17, 1851.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Wright presented the petition of June Suttan, and eighty-seven others, citizens of Van Buren county, praying the removal of the seat of government to Fort Des Moines, which Was referred to the committee on public buildings.

Mr. Hendershott presented the remonstrance of Robt. Ralster, and ninety-five others, against the passage of a law establishing a State road from Ottumwa to Centreville, in Appanoose county, which Was referred to the committee on roads.

Mr. Hendershott from the select committee, to whom was referred the petition of Heman P. Graves and forty-nine others, members of the Methodist Episcopal church of the State of Iowa, setting forth among other things, that the present law entitled "An act to authorize general incorporations for other purposes than those of pecuniary profit," approved February 24th, 1847, does not afford that church, in consequence of its peculiar organization, the same facilities for holding and securing their church property that it does to other churches, and asking the passage of a special act of incorporation for the "Methodist Episcopal church of the United States for the State of Iowa," have had the same under their consideration and have instructed me to report, that from an examination of the provisions of the above entitled act—a full knowledge of the peculiar organization of the said church, and from all the lights before your committee, they cannot conceive that any other or further legislation is necessary on the subject set forth in the said petition, but every facility is afforded the said church or any association of persons comprising a part of the said church in any particular locality, to acquire, hold and secure their church property, that could be desired. It is provided in the act above referred to that any number of persons desiring to incorporate themselves together for the establishment of any church or other lawful purposes, unconnected with motives of pecuniary profits, may do so by adopting articles of association, not incompatible with the constitution and laws of this State, containing the name, object and location of their association, which said articles are to be recorded. It will thus be perceived that the most simple and easy mode possible is afforded to all persons so desiring to perfect an organization for the purpose set out in the petition.

When thus organized the association has power to purchase, hold and manage their property by and under such corporate name as they may select.

Inasmuch, therefore, as the said petitioners do not set out in their said petition what particular legislation is desired, and inasmuch as your committee, in view of the provisions of the above recited act, do not conceive that any other or different facilities could be afforded to the petitioners than those already afforded, they would recommend that no further legislation be now had on the subject, and that the said petitioners have leave to withdraw their petition.

The committee ask to be discharged from a further consideration of the matter.

HENDERSHOTT, Chairman.

Which report was concurred in and the committee discharged.

The preamble and Joint Resolutions, may fairly be presumed to contemplate a grant of land conditioned for the completion of said roads by the State within ten years, as passed by the Senate of the United States at the last session of Congress. Your committee doubt the propriety of the acceptance on the part of the State of a grant of lands so conditioned and restricted by the general government inasmuch as such grant might be the means of involving the State unintentionally in debt to the general government.

Your committee are therefore of opinion that no action should be taken by the General Assembly requiring the selection of lands for internal improvement purposes, granted by the Congress of the United States, until the State has accepted said grant and conditions or restrictions if any such should attend such grant. The selection of the lands as contemplated in the Preamble and Resolutions (should such grant thereafter be refused by the State) would be attended by a useless expense on the part of the State.

We therefore recommend the postponement of further action on said Preamble and Joint Resolution until the grant of lands contemplated be made and the same accepted by the State.

THOMAS S. ESPY, Chairman.

Mr. Shields, from the committee on ways and means, to whom was referred Senate file No. 49, submitted the following

REPORT.

The majority report of the committee on ways and means, to which was referred Senate file No. 49, a bill for an act to allow the people of Iowa to express their opinion upon the subject of a convention to amend the constitution of this State.

The committee have carefully examined the bill under consideration, and are of opinion that the passage of such a law is not expected, required or demanded by the people of this State. This alligation is based upon the fact that no petitions have been presented to the General Assembly, asking or advising that the question of calling a convention to amend the constitution should be submitted to them. The result of the election in August last, when this question was made a direct issue by the Whig party, for State officers and members of the General Assembly, ought to be sufficient evidence to them that their ideas of amending the constitution are not sustained by a ma-majority of the people of this State. The political party to which they belong, were opposed to the adoption of the constitution, and have continued that opposition to the present time, and from whence in the opinion of your committee originates the bill under consideration.

It is presumed that if a majority of the people of this State desired a convention to amend this constitution, that they would have made known their wishes to their Representatives, that they might act understandingly upon a question of such great magnitude and importance. Yet without any evidence from a majority of the people (as in fact any evidence at all) that they are in favor of the proposition, it is proposed by a small minority in the General Assembly to thrust the question upon them, and if possible to excite local animosity and civil discord. Your committee have good reasons to believe that a large majority of the people are in favor of the provisions of the present constitution, and that there is no necessity or justice in this General Assembly raising the question of a convention to amend the constitution, unless a majority (or at least some portion of the people) evince dissatisfaction and desire a change. In view of the foregoing facts a majority of your committee do respectfully but earnestly recommend the indefinite postponement of the bill.

J. G. SHIELDS, Chairman.

Mr. Morton, from the minority of the committee on ways and means, to whom was referred Senate file, No. 49, A bill for an act to allow the people of Iowa to express their opinion upon the subject of a convention to amend the constitution of this State, submit the following

REPORT:

The undersigned, members of said committee, beg leave to report that they cannot coincide in the conclusions of the majority of the committee.

That in any view of the case, they can perceive no impropriety in submitting to the people a proposition to call a convention to amend the constitution.

That the vote thereon, being taken at a general election, no expense would be incurred thereby, and a full, definite, and deliberate expression of the will of the people would be obtained.

That in the opinion of the undersigned, the organic law of the State should be in conformity with the will of the people; that this proposition is so reasonable and just, and in such accordance with the principle of democracy, that it cannot be successfully denied or consistently evaded; that the only method by which the will of the people can be ascertained with certainty, is by a direct vote as provided by the constitution.

That it is evident that until a decision of the question at the ballot box, as contemplated by this bill, the agitation of the subject will continue, both before the people and the legislature.

In view of the facts then, that a submission of the question to the people in the manner proposed by the bill now before the Senate is strictly republican—that it acknowledges in a proper and becoming manner, the sovereignty of the people: that it can be productive of no evil results: that it is a measure contemplated by the constitution itself—that no objection, even on the score of economy, can be urged against it; and that in any event it will settle for a considerable time at least, the question of a vexatious and often exciting controversy. The undersigned the minority of the committee, report in favor of the principal propositions of said bill, and of taking the sense of the people upon the question of calling the proposed convention.

In view of the case thus taken, we have not deemed it necessary to discuss the merits or demerits of the constitution; the acknowledged fact that a great difference of opinion exists upon the subject, and that a large and respectable number (if not a majority) of the citizens of the State are in favor of an amendment, being in our opinion a sufficient reason for the action of the General Assembly in the matter.

In thus sanctioning the proposition to submit the question to the people, the undersigned, believing that it will be found inconvenient, and perhaps impossible, for the next General Assembly to call a convention within six months after the August election, in 1852, (in case the vote is in favor of a convention,) as the General Assembly will not be in session until four months after said election will have elapsed, (and as the constitution requires that said convention shall meet within six months after said vote is taken,) report an amendment to said bill, and with that amendment recommend the passage of the bill.

J. T. MORTON.

J. B. SPEES.

On motion of Mr. Morton,

The reports and bill were laid on the table.

Mr. Baker, from the committee on public buildings, to whom was referred,

"Strike out the word "Warden," wherever it occurs, and insert Superintendent.

Which report was concurred in; and

On motion of Mr. Espy,

The joint resolution was laid on the table.

Mr. Shields, from the committee on ways and means, to whom was referred,

Substitute for H. R. file No. 33, A bill for an act to provide for a State loan, made the following

REPORT:

Your committee have had the same under mature deliberation, and would beg leave to submit the following report:

Article eighth of the constitution of this State, it may be found that the General Assembly shall not in any manner, create any debt or debts, liability or liabilities, which shall singly, or in the aggregate, with any previous debts or liabilities, exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, except in cases as therein stated. Your committee are well satisfied that the purposes for which the bill under consideration proposes to borrow money, is not such as is contemplated by this article of the constitution; and after a thorough examination in reference to the liabilities of the State, according to the auditor's report submitted to the General Assembly at its present session, find it to be ninety thousand two hundred and thirteen dollars and sixty-seven cents. This amount, together with the ten thousand dollars proposed to be borrowed, you will readily perceive, would swell the amount beyond our constitutional limits, without having first submitted the same to the qualified voters of this State for their sanction.

And further your committee are of opinion that if such loan was warranted under the constitution, that the money could not be obtained at the rate of interest as specified in the bill.

In view of these facts your committee recommend the indefinite postponement of the bill.

J. G. SHIELDS, Chairman.

Mr. Morton moved to lay the report on the table.

Which motion was lost.

And the question being on concurring in the report of the committee, it was decided in the affirmative.

Which report was concurred in and the committee discharged.

Which report was concurred in.

REPORT:

In section twelve, strike out all after the words "companies" in the second line and insert the following:

"Must be valued at their current rate, and credits must be valued at such sum as the assessor believes can be collected thereon, and annuities at such sum as he believes them to be worth in money."

In the fourteenth section, strike out after the word "thereof," in the eighth line, the word "merchant" and insert the word "assessor."

Same section, ninth line, strike out the word "his" and insert the word "the," and insert in same line after the word "control" the words "of the merchant."

Same section, tenth line, strike out the words "he have" and insert "the merchant has."

Same section, eleventh line, strike out the word "he" after the word "them," and insert "the assessor."

In same section, second subdivision, strike out the words "and their value" whenever they occur.

In section twenty-one, strike out all the form of the oath from the word "knowledge" where it first occurs to the word "and" in the last line of said form.

Strike out all of section twenty-five, after the word "personalty" and insert "whether listed or not."

The Committee to whom was referred so much of a recent message of the House of Representatives, as relates to the appointment of a joint committee for the purpose of prefixing an enacting clause to each chapter of the revised code, and taking other steps for the purpose of rendering each chapter a complete act in itself, beg leave to

REPORT:

That they have fully considered the subject, and are satisfied that it is wholly inexpedient to make the change contemplated by the message of the House of Representatives. It would be attended with much trouble, would consume time that is needed for other purposes and would greatly disfigure the appearance of the work. It is also unusual in modern revisions. Within the last twenty years, we know of no instance, in which a work intended as a complete and entire revision of the laws of any State in the Union, has been drawn up in such a manner.

But we are aware that the main argument in favor of the contemplated course, grows out of a supposed requirement of the constitution to that effect. The constitution requires that "every law shall embrace but one object, which shall be expressed in its title." We do not believe this requirement renders the proposed course necessary.

Without straining any rule of legal construction, we think the revised code may be regarded as a law with but one object, the title of which would be fully expressed by declaring it to be, "an act for revising and consolidating the general statutes of the State of Iowa." In other words, it is an act for the government of the State. It is true, that it includes within itself many subjects, but they all tend to the accomplishment of that one object.

The intention of the constitution was doubtless to prevent several independent matters, having no natural connection with each other from being incorporated in one act. It was aimed particularly at acts of special legislation, and was intended to prohibit incongruous measures of that character, from being carried by force of combination, when singly and each standing upon its own merits alone, they would not meet with the approval of the legislature. But it certainly was never designed to prevent one entire law from being adopted as a whole. The revised code is of this very character, very few if any of its chapters could be annihilated without essentially effecting the symmetry of the whole. It is like one of those pieces of machinery composed of many parts, but where the removal of any one would prevent the harmonious action of all. Must we create these independently and in detail? Must we adopt one absolutely without any reference to the kind and character of all the others? Your committee is clearly of the opinion that the constitution is not liable to the charge of intending so great an absurdity.

It is true that there are many provisions of the revised code, which if either of them had been made the subject of an independent enactment, could not under our constitution have been united with any of the others. But the case is changed when each is made a portion of one general law which properly embraces both. Thus, a law for punishing a person for peddling clocks without license, has no apparent connection with one exempting burying grounds from taxation, and an act which should embrace these two objects and nothing else, would be a violation of our constitution. But when both are made portions of a revenue law the objection vanishes.

Upon the same principle, under our constitution an act allowing the claim of A, could not be united in the same special law with a provision allowing the claim of B, but a general appropriation bill which allows the claims of all persons generally, may embrace both.

We believe this distinction to be clear and just, and that its observance will enable us to avoid inextricable difficulties. If a contrary view be adopted, the constitutional provision will not be complied with by prefixing the enacting clause to each chapter, but the chapters themselves must be dissected, re-written and enacting clauses prefixed to the different portions. The school law, revenue law, probate law, road law and justice's law in particular would be liable to this constitutional objection. Most of the other chapters of the code would, to a greater or less extent, be in a similar predicament, nay if the idea is to be carried out in all its strictness, many of the sections of the code must be split into fragments, as they are for convenience and brevity made to contain two or more independent ideas.

But perhaps the examples best adapted to illustrate the views entertained by your committee, are furnished by acts of incorporation of cities and towns, some of which have without question on the score of constitutionality, been passed at this very session of the General Assembly. These embrace to no inconsiderable extent the same range of provisions as are to be found in the revised code. These provide for an executive, a legislative and sometimes a judicial department and prescribe the functions of each, they provide for roads or streets, and schools, and for revenue and police regulations. They even make regulations relative to criminal jurisprudence. They in fact create a government on a smaller scale than that of the State, but embracing nearly all its essential features. If it is competent to provide in one act for the government of a city, cannot we in one act provide for the government of the State? Cannot the latter law be said to embrace but one object as well as the former? Your committee believe these questions can only be answered in the affirmative and so believing they recommend that the Senate do not concur in the action of the House and that the further consideration of the subject be indefinitely postponed.

Which report was concurred in.

Mr. Hepner moved that the report be laid on the table and one hundred copies be printed.

TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 28, 1851.

Resolved, That the committee on ways and means be instructed to enquire what further legislation is necessary to provide for the payment of the interest on the State debt, and that they report by bill or otherwise.

Which resolution was adopted.

Mr. Hepner, from the committee on incorporations, to whom was referred Senate file No. 65, A bill for an act to authorize Samuel Chandler and his associates to construct a dam across the Maquoketa river, in Jackson county.

Made the following report:

That the third section of an act of Congress, entitled an act for the admission of the States of Iowa and Florida into the Union, approved March 3d, 1845, provides among other things. "That the said river Mississippi and the navigable waters leading into the same, shall be common highways and forever free as well to the inhabitants of said State, as to all other citizens of the United States, without any tax duty, impost, or toll therefor, imposed by the said State of Iowa.

The first question to be considered is whether the Maquoketa sought to be damned, is a navigable stream, if so the legislature is not authorized to obstruct its navigation. Your committee are aware it has been meandered in making the survey by the government of the United States, which would seem to be prima facie evidence of its being susceptible of navigation to some extent, otherwise the bed of said stream would have been surveyed and sold as so much land.

That if the Legislature cannot authorize an obstruction, then it would seem the applicant can do without just what he can do with the right sought, that is, to build the dam and lock without obstructing the navigation of the stream.

The power to build dams across the Des Moines as well as other streams has been given (or attempted) by the Territorial Legislature, the grantee being required by the terms of the grant, to build good and sufficient locks, but unfortunately for the country, and particularly the Des Moines Valley, the grantees have built the dams, but the locks never or seldom, so as to let the boats pass and re-pass according to the requirements of the grant by the Legislature, thereby creating an obstruction in said streams that otherwise would afford an outlet for the produce of the country, to the great advantage of the agriculture portion of the community.

Your committee therefore ask that the bill be indefinitely postponed, and the committee discharged from further consideration of the same subject.

Mr. Cook moved that the bill and report be re-committed to the committee on incorporations.

Mr. Espy from select committee to whom was referred Senate file No. 55, A bill for an act to provide for the establishment of a State Lunatic Asylum.

Reported the same back with sundry amendments, and asked the concurrence of the Senate to the amendments.

Which motion was lost.

Mr. Espy moved to amend by adding to the first section the words: "Provided, that in making selection for the location of said Asylum, they shall not purchase any lands about which there is an existing legal doubt relative to the title.

Which amendment was agreed to.

Mr. Selman moved to amend by adding:

"Which location shall not be more than forty miles from the geographical centre of the State."

Which was lost.

Reported that the act which said bill proposes to amend provides that the normal school for the third district shall be located at Oskaloosa, in Mahaska county. From the information received by your committee, the citizens of said town have provided a house for said school, consequently it would operate as a hardship upon the citizens aforesaid; and as your committee can see no good reason for a change they would respectfully report said bill back to the Senate and ask its indefinite postponement.

Mr. Shields, from the committee on ways and means, to whom was referred a resolution in relation to the salaries of State officers, made the following report :

That they have adopted generally the estimates made by the Auditor in his report to the present session of the General Assembly.

The committee, however, beg leave to recommend that the several items of contingent expense for the several State officers, as also the Governor, should be increased. When we consider the rapid increase of our population, and as inseparable therefrom, a corresponding increase and importance of the various duties incumbent upon these officers, we perceive a strong argument in favor of a liberal contingent fund in each case; that the duties of the several officers are daily increasing and becoming more important, cannot be doubted, while a sufficient safe guard is thrown around such appropriations, by requiring the several officers to report to the General Assembly what amount of said fund has been drawn, and to what purpose applied.

The executive, being considered the head of the state government, necessarily requires a liberal appropriation to meet the contingent expenses of its proper department, corresponding with other States.

The transfer of mail matter required to be met promptly by the department, requisitions for fugitives from justice, as well as many others now not to be foreseen, demands such liberal action by the General Assembly as will meet all necessary contingencies; the same might appropriately be said of all of the departments of our state government.

We therefore recommend the following appropriations for the purposes contemplated in the resolution of instructions.

Compensation of the Governor,.....	$2.000 00
Contingent expenses of the Governor,.....	600 00
Compensation of Secretary of State,.....	1.000 00
Contingent expenses of Secretary,.....	400 00
Compensation of Auditor of State,.....	1.200 00
Contingent expenses of Auditor,.....	400 00
Compensation of Treasurer of State,.....	800 00
Contingent expenses of Treasurer,.....	400 00
Compensation of Superintendent of Public Instruction,...	2.400 00
Contingent expenses of Superintendent,.....	500 00
Compensation of Judges of Supreme Court,.....	6.000 00
Contingent expenses of Supreme Court,.....	1.000 00
Compensation of Judges of District Court,.....	10.000 00
Compensation of the Librarian,.....	300 00
Contingent expenses of Librarian,.....	125 00
General contingent fund,.....	2.000 00

Mr. Espy, from the select committee, made the following report :

The select committee appointed to enquire into and report whether the appendix, so called, is part and parcel of the revised code as reported by the board of revision, and also by what authority the same was printed therewith, have had the subject under consideration and would respectfully present the following report.

The majority of your committee are of the opinion that said appendix does not constitute any part of said code as reported, and further that without express action of the General Assembly affirmatively making it part and parcel of the code, the said appendix, nor any part thereof, can properly be considered as incorporated in said code of laws.

By reference to the act of the General Assembly entitled "an act to provide for the appointing of commissioners to draft, revise and arrange a code of laws" approved January 25, 1848, we find that the said commissioners, (naming them.) Sec. 1, "Be and they are hereby appointed a committee to draft, revise and prepare a code of laws for the State of Iowa." and again, in section three of same act, we find the following directions: "Each bill, as it is prepared, shall be examined and considered by them when in session, and altered or amended as a majority of them may decide, and when finally acted upon shall be recorded by them, or under their direction, in a plain legible hand, in a book to be provided by them for that purpose, with plain marginal notes to each act."

Without entering further into the details of said act above quoted, your committee deem the caption to said appendix as conclusive that it was not adopted by said committee of revision as required in section three above referred to. The said caption or preface, reads as follows: "The adoption of the following chapters was deemed by some of the committee of doubtful propriety; at the same time they were deemed of sufficient importance to merit the consideration of the General Assembly."—This language in the opinion of the committee is sufficiently clear to warrant the conclusion that the appendix was not reported by the board of revision as part of the code of laws.

The next enquiry is, has the General Assembly made it part and parcel of such code by any action had upon it? In the first place we refer again to the law appointing them and regulating their duties. Section five is as follows: "Said commissioners shall prepare a complete and perfect code of laws, as nearly as may be, of a general nature only, and furnish a complete index to the same when completed." This appendix your committee deem a law if passed, one of a general nature, but cannot come to the conclusion that it is part of the code: First, because not reported by a majority of the committee: Secondly, because its provisions conflict directly, in some respects, with portions of the code as reported, therefore rendering the whole inconsistent with itself should the appendix be adopted as part of the same; and lastly, because it has not been expressly incorporated by the action of the General Assembly. Is this necessary? Your committee believe it is; otherwise any law of a general nature passed at this session of the General Assembly would necessarily become part and parcel of the code under consideration, and its success made to depend on the passage of the code as an entirety. Take for instance, the general law or bill pending, regulating the laying out and opening state roads, although standing alone, yet it is general in its character and objects, but to say that because it is general in its operations, it is necessarily part of the code, and the code being an entirety, it must stand or fall with it, your committee cannot concede.

How is the appendix difficulty situated, unless necessarily connected with the code to prove its consistency? But we have above adverted to this, as inconsistent with portions of the code. The conclusion therefore necessarily follows, that the appendix, like any other bill, stands alone, so far as any action yet has been had upon it, and no action being taken to incorporate it into the code as part of the same it ought not to be so considered.

So far as authority to have the said appendix printed with the code, your committee have not been to procure the original resolution of the House ordering the printing, but it is conceded that the House of Representatives ordered the printing of a certain portion of the code; but it is not conceded by your committee that such order incorporated the appendix as part of the code—and this being the case the appendix was printed without any order for that purpose on the part of the General Assembly.

Your committee would therefore, in connection with their report, recommend the adoption of the following resolution.

THOMAS S. ESPY, Chairman.

Resolved, That the appendix so called, to the report of the committee of revision to revise and report a code of laws for the State of Iowa, does not constitute a part or portion of the code of laws reported to the General Assembly.

Mr. Hepner submitted the following:

The undersigned, constituting a minority of the committee, to whom was referred the enquiry, as to whether the appendix is a part of the revised code,

REPORT:

That, by the act of January 25, 1848, commissioners were appointed, "to draft, revise and prepare a code of laws for the State of Iowa;" and they were directed to report the same to the Governor, at the earliest practicable period, for the evident purpose of having the same laid before the General Assembly for its consideration. The whole report thus to be made, was most manifestly intended as a mere proposition—possessing no vitality whatever until it received the legislative sanction.

At an early day of this present session, this report was made. It embraced among other things four separate chapters or distinct subjects, which were styled and have been known as the "appendix." In presenting this portion of their report, the commissioners state that its adoption had been deemed by some of their number of doubtful propriety. It was therefore so framed that its adoption or rejection would not derange any other part of the code, but with this modification it formed just as much a portion of the report of the commissioners as any other chapter therein contained, and was like, all the other portions of their report, submitted to the consideration of the General Assembly. If adopted it was to be law, and was so arranged as to be, in harmony with the other portions—the whole forming an unit.

With the exception of a few chapters, the report of the commissioners was by the House of Representatives ordered to be printed.

It had (the appendix included) been reported to the Governor—had been transmitted by him to this House—been considered as read a first and second time, and transferred to the other branch of the General Assembly, and from thence to the public printer.

It is well known that at the present session, a peculiar rule has been established in relation to the transmission from one house to the other of subjects under consideration when on their second reading; but that this rule was confined strictly to the revised code. Under this rule the "appendix" has several times been interchanged between the two Houses, without any question being made as to the propriety of such a course.

But the intention of the General Assembly on this subject has been expressed more unequivocally still. The two Houses have acted upon this appendix directly and affirmatively. The three first chapters were struck out of the code in the House of Representatives. Why should they be struck out, if they had not previously been in. The fourth chapter of the appendix was adopted by the House after having been amended, and that action was concurred in by the Senate. This body, however, refused to concur in striking out the two first chapters of the appendix. That action was reported to the other house, which thereupon receded from its amendment in striking out; whereupon these two chapters as well as the fourth became as much a portion of the code as any others therein contained, if they had not been so previously. After all this, to strike out the appendix or even to separate it from the body of the code, after the whole has gone to a third reading, merely on the ground that its adoption was not unqualifiedly recommended by the revising commissioners, would, in the opinion of the undersigned, be a specimen of superlative legislative trifling. The action of the General Assembly has been brought to bear directly on this subject. What matters it then whence it came, or with what intent it was presented.

As to the position that any other law of a general nature passed at the present session, is as much a portion of the code as this appendix is, the undersigned would merely reply that if any law of a general nature had been introduced and passed to its third reading, without an enacting clause prefixed to it—if it had been passed backward and forward between the two Houses, under the rule that is solely applicable to the chapters of the revised code—if it had been uniformly treated from beginning to end, as a portion of that code, it would be a portion of it. We trust that the intention of this General Assembly may be safely inferred from what it does as well as from what it says.

But it is alleged that some of the provisions of the appendix are in conflict with other portions of the code. What those conflicting provisions are we have not been told, and probably for the very sufficient reason that they do not in fact exist. The act which passed this House on yesterday, fixed the time for the taking effect of the code, on the first day of July next. One of the provisions of this act punishes murder with death. The appendix declares that from and after the fourth day of July next, such punishment shall be mitigated. The law then which takes effect on the first, is modified on the fourth. People may be induced to wonder why a law should be enacted which was to remain in full force only four days: but the two laws are thereby rendered no more in conflict than though four years were to elapse between the times when they respectively took effect. It is at most but an impropriety. As such it results from an amendment made to the code by the General Assembly. We may indeed consider ourselves fortunate if no worse discrepancies are found to have been created by our amendments to other portions of the code.

Believing then that the "appendix" was (at least conditionally) a portion of the code as reported, the undersigned are averse to the adoption of the resolution, reported by the majority of the committee. But even if that resolution is adopted, it only covers a small and unimportant portion of the ground of discussion. It is wholly immaterial whether the appendix forms a portion of the code of laws, reported to the General Assembly, or not. It has been made a portion of the code as amended and adopted by us. We, therefore, recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That whether the "appendix" was originally a portion of the revised code or not, it has become so by the deliberate, affirmative, continuous action of both branches of the General Assembly; that it cannot now be separated without a material amendment of subjects which had passed to their third reading, and that at this late hour it is inexpedient, if not dangerous in precedent, to innovate upon the salutary parliamentary rule, that amendment can not be made to any bill on its third reading, except by unanimous consent.

That the passage of the resolution, reported by a majority of the Committee, would have no practicable effect. That to separate the appendix, or any other part of the code from the whole, would require the joint action of both houses.

GEORGE HEPNER.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Governor:

Gentlemen of the Senate—

I return, with objections, "An act to authorize the Farmington Bridge Company to build a bridge across the Des Moines river, at the town of Farmington," which was this day presented for my approval.

The act provides that certain persons "or either of them, and any person they may see proper to associate with them," under the name and style of the Farmington Bridge Company, are authorized to erect a toll bridge across the Des Moines river, opposite the town of Farmington, in Van Buren county, with the exclusive privilege of bridging said river at said point, and for one mile up and down said river, for the term of twenty years, &c.

Does this act create a corporation? To determine this question let me observe that: "a corporation may be defined to be a body of persons connected together by law, either contemporaneously or in succession, and endowed with a capacity of acting for one or various purposes, as a single person."

Apply this rule to the act under consideration, and we find a body of persons connected by law, under the name and style of the "Farmington Bridge Company," with succession for the term of twenty years, and with the exclusive privilege of bridging said river for one mile up and down the same. This act, in my judgment, is clearly intended to establish a private corporation—it has a name—succession—an object and whatever is necessary for that purpose, and is to be established upon private means.

The second section of the ninth article of the Constitution declares that "corporations shall not be enacted in this State, by special laws, except for political or municipal purposes; but the General Assembly shall provide, by general laws, for the organization of all other corporations, except corporations with banking privileges, the creation of which is prohibited."

It cannot be contended that this is a "political or municipal" corporation, because all such are of a public character, beginning with the government of the United States, and descending down through states, counties, townships, school districts and the like.

The General Assembly, in compliance with the provisions of the Constitution, passed "An act authorizing General Incorporations," approved February 22d, 1847, (now in force,) granting to every citizen the right of forming a company or association, for the purpose of transacting "any business which may be the lawful subject of a general partnership, including the establishment of ferries, the construction of rail roads, and other works of internal improvement."

The language and intention of the Constitution cannot be mistaken, it asserts a great and just principle, which is worthy of the highest consideration by those who are entrusted with legislative power—the object being to prevent special and partial legislation, and place the citizens of this State upon an equality as to those privileges which should be equal to all. Is it necessary, is it desirable, that the time of the General Assembly should be consumed, and the money of the people expended, in granting to private individuals for private gain franchises and privileges of the character of the act in question. Is it desirable, that under the plea of benefiting the public, exclusive privileges and monopolies should be granted to a few individuals. Having discharged what I conceive to be my duty, I now return the act for your further consideration.

A. HEMPSTEAD.

February 5th, 1851.

The communication having been read, and the question being, shall the act pass with the constitutional majority, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

It was decided in the negative, yeas 4, nays 13.

Messrs. Alger, Cook, Morton and Wright.

Those who voted in the negative were:

Messrs. Baker, Casady, Espy, Everson, Hendershott, Hepner, Howell, Leffingwell, Lowe, Sales, Sellman, Shields and Mr. President—13.

Messrs. Alger, Baker, Casady, Cook, Espy, Everson, Hendershott, Howell, Leffingwell, Lowe, Shields, Wright and Mr. President.

The President laid before the Senate the following communication from the Governor:

Gentlemen of the Senate—

Mr. PRESIDENT: I herewith return
Senate file Nos. 60, 68, 99 and 103.

Also, An act for revising and consolidating the General Statutes of the State of Iowa.

The same having received the signature of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Senate file No. 107, A bill for an act respecting the bridge across English river, on the military road.

And then he withdrew,

On motion of Mr. Espy,

He had leave to withdraw, from the files of the Senate, the report of Thomas H. Benton, jr. relative to the accounts of the Penitentiary.

Mr. Wright offered the following, which was adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are hereby tendered to the principal, assistant and enrolling Secretaries, for the very attentive and highly satisfactory manner in which they have discharged the duties of their respective offices during the present session.

A motion was made by Mr. Morton, to take from the table,
Senate file No. 61, A bill for an act to abolish capital punishment.

Which was agreed to.

A motion was made by Mr. Shields, to lay said bill upon the table.

To which the Senate disagreed.

The question was then taken,

Shall the bill pass?

And was decided in the affirmative.

Ordered, by the President,

That Mr. Morton notify the House of Representatives of the passage of said bill.

Mr. Shields was appointed a committee, on the part of the Senate, to act with a committee to be appointed on the part of the House of Representatives, to wait upon the Governor, and inform him that the two houses had disposed of the business before them, and to inquire if he had any further communications to make to them.

After a short time, Mr. Shields reported that the committee of the two Houses had discharged the duty assigned them, and that the Governor informed them that he had no further communications to lay before the General Assembly.

On motion of Mr. Wright,

Ordered, That a committee be appointed to wait upon the House of Representatives, and inform that body that the Senate had disposed of all its business, and was now ready to adjourn sine die.

Messrs. Wright and Casady were appointed, and in a short time reported that they had performed the duty assigned them.

Messrs. Summers and Preston of Monroe, a committee from the House of Representatives, were announced, who informed the Senate that the House of Representatives had disposed of all the business before it, and was now ready to adjourn.

A motion was made by Mr. Morton, that the Senate adjourn sine die.

When the President arose, and addressed the Senate as follows:

SENATORS—The complimentary resolution passed unanimously by you a day or two since in relation to myself, will ever be cherished by me with no ordinary degree of appreciation, as evidence of your kind regard.

But a moment more and I shall have performed the only remaining act which devolves upon me as your presiding officer, and let that short moment be devoted to a few parting words of kindness and friendship, though faintly expressive they may be of the thoughts which now impress me on this occasion.

If under the excitement of difficult legislation anything has been uttered, in its nature calculated to ruffle the uniform and calm current of our feelings, it will, I know, be consigned to the oblivion of forgetfulness,—that it will be permitted to pass with the occasion which gave rise to it.

A session unequalled in the history of our State legislation, in the magnitude of its labors, and weight of its responsibilities;—a session remarkable for patient industry, and a patriotic disregard of emolument, is now about to close.

Our laws were deranged, dispersed, and technical—in a word so incomprehensible as sometimes to deceive even lawyers themselves, and were of course much less suited to the conventional wants of the people at large, in the every day affairs of life.

To remedy this great public evil, so universally and justly complained of, has been the chief aim and business of us all, and if we have succeeded in some degree, in better adapting the laws to the wants of the people, by rendering them less ambiguous, and as a consequence more respectable, an important work has been done.

The revisory labors of the session, though assisted by the able revising commissioners who prepared the code for our action, have been arduous and tedious, and I trust your honest and faithful efforts to serve the State may be correctly appreciated and justly rewarded by your fellow citizens.

We came together some of us strangers to each other, but by daily association, governed by kindness, dignity, and a just appreciation of mutual interests, ties have been created which in the language of my own heart, cannot be severed without feelings of sadness.

It is the thought, aye, the certainty that our next separation will be to some of us final, that saddens the heart, and clouds for the moment the joyous anticipation of soon meeting the loved ones of home.

“When shall we all meet again?” is a solemn and unanswerable question, which doubtless addresses itself to each of us at this time. And it is true generally that the best of friends must part, and this is especially so of us at this time.

Soon we shall pass hence, some of us to return no more, and this Chamber, the theatre of stirring scenes and eloquent debate will be deserted and silent.

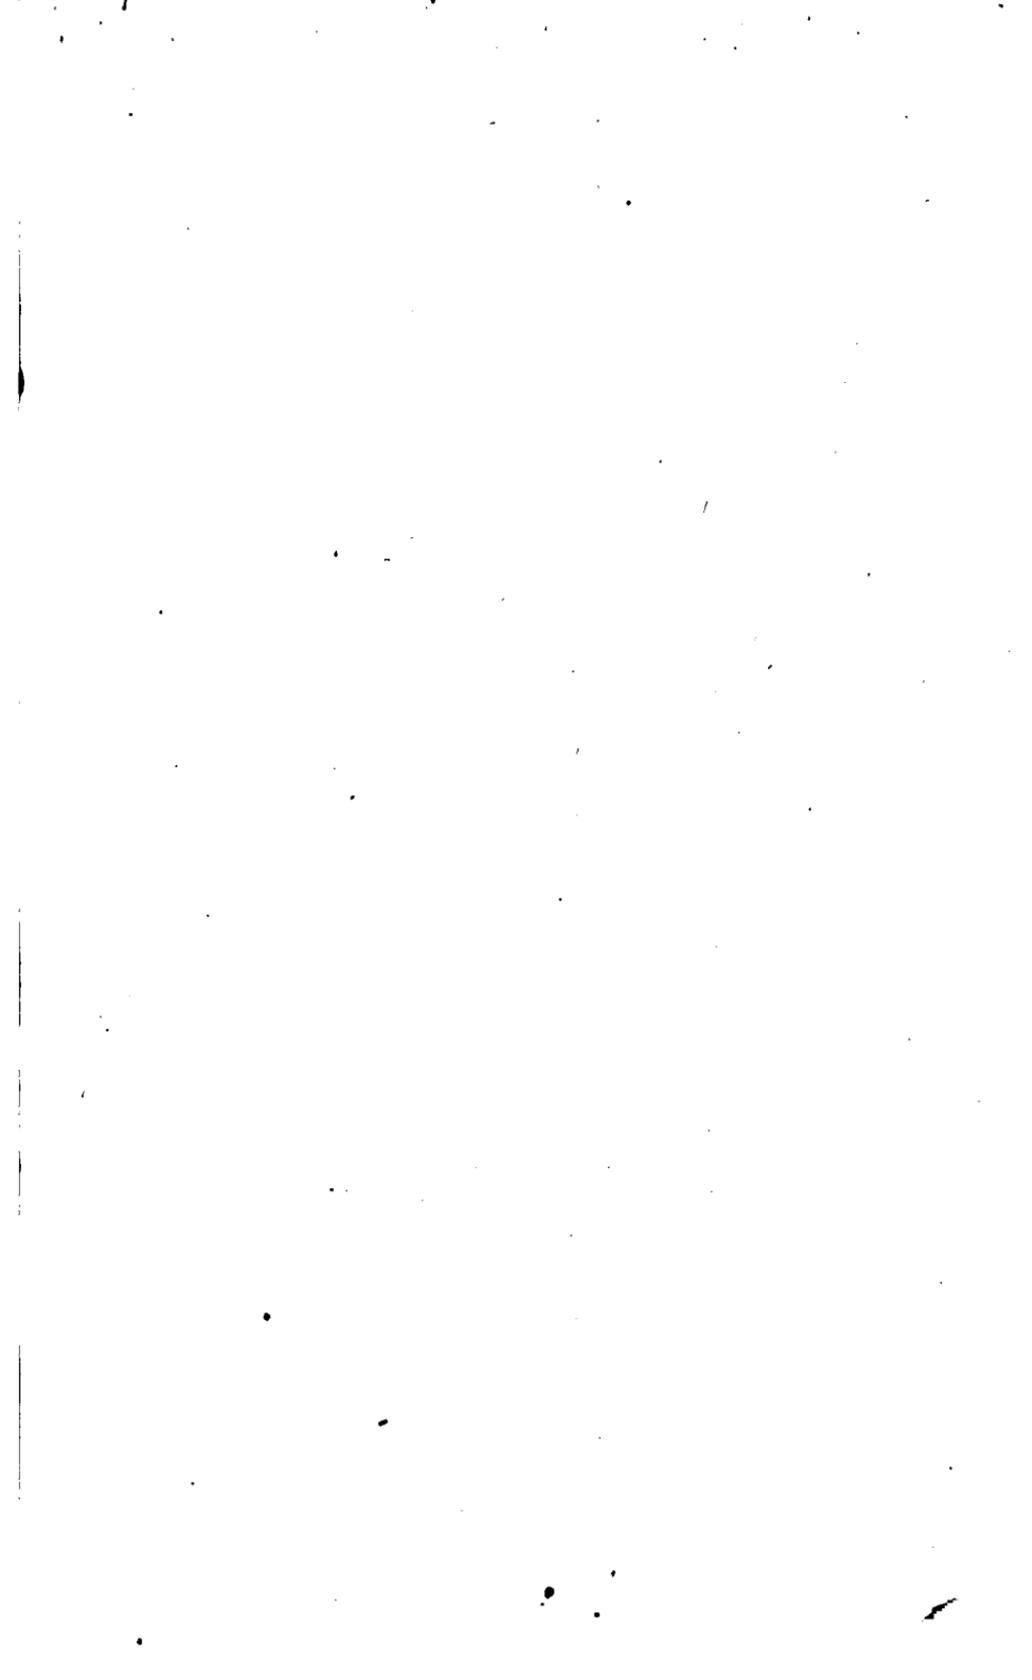

But in parting with you it is with mingled feelings of pride and satisfaction that I can look back over the field of our difficult labors, without seeing ought to mar the pleasure of the retrospect.

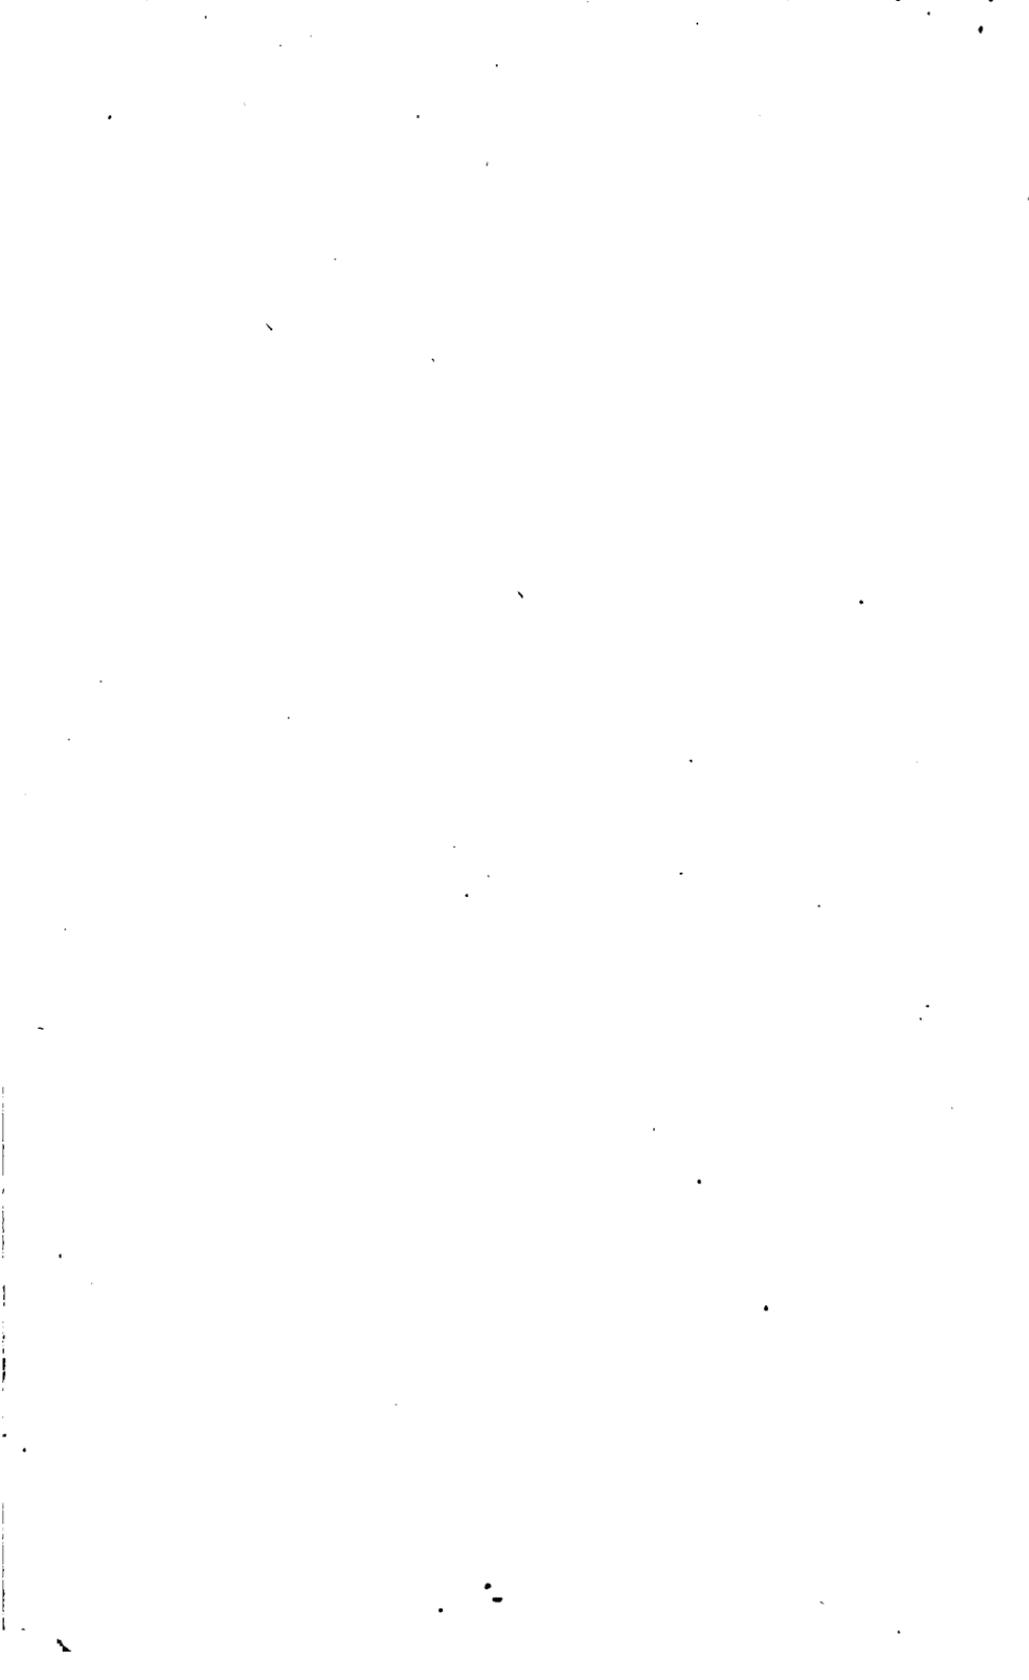

Your concession and observance of order have rendered the duties of the chair comparatively easy, and from your courtesy and indulgence not a single appeal has been taken from its decisions. For your kindness towards me personally, as well as officially, I tender you my cordial and unfeigned thanks.

In conclusion, let me congratulate you upon the prospect of soon entering the dwellings of your own homes—the quiet scene where man's greatest happiness chiefly lies, and may you ever find the road smooth and the sun bright and cheerful when returning to the joys and comforts “of wife, children and friends.”

It is in no ordinary formality that I assure each and every member and officer of this Senate, that I part with you in heart felt sorrow. You will carry with you my most earnest good wishes in all that concerns your welfare and happiness in time and eternity. I bid you an affectionate farewell and pronounce the Senate adjourned sine die.

It will be observed, from the foregoing statement, that some of the counties are in arrears to a large amount, which will be reduced the present month, in all probability, several thousand dollars; still there will be a considerable sum unpaid, which is of long standing, and ought to have been liquidated years ago, and every exertion has been used on my part to bring about such a result. In some cases I have succeeded, but in others I have been unable to bring prosecution against the delinquents from a defect in our system.

Our Prosecuting Attorneys are the legal officers of the counties and of the county officers, and cannot be employed by the State against them, yet our law seems to indicate that they shall act for the State when called upon. The State should have an Attorney General, to bring suits in all cases in which the State is interested, and to give legal advice to the State officers when necessary; by this means the State's interest would be more carefully guarded, and delinquents would know that they could be made accountable.

It is useless to levy a uniform tax throughout the State, if a portion can pay or not, as they please. It is believed that an efficient and punctual set of collectors can collect and pay into the Treasury nearly every dollar of tax levied. It is done in some few of the counties, and if it can be done by a little extra exertion in some, it can be done much better than it has been in others.

Our system of collecting is very imperfect, and it is desirable that the present session will not pass without something better being adopted. A prompt collection and payment of the revenue into the Treasury, would enable the State to meet all her liabilities at the per cent. now levied, and it would be but a short time before we could reduce the levy to a much less amount.

The funded debt of the State amounts to the sum of seventy-nine thousand four hundred and forty-two dollars and five cents, which, with the present liabilities in Auditor's warrants unpaid, makes the total debt of the State $90,213 67. The interest on the funded debt has been promptly paid at maturity, which has been the means of raising our credit in the east to as fair a standard as any of the States of the Union. A more particular description of the funded debt and the times of payment will be seen by a reference to tabular statement No. IV.

Under the act of the 12th of January, 1849, which provides for funding a portion of the State debt, in the redemption of Auditor's warrants, only two thousand dollars have been redeemed, for which a bond has been issued payable in the year 1853.

By reference to the tables of assessments of the years 1849 and 1850. it will be observed that great inequalities exist in the way property is taxed in the several counties. In the first place, I would call your attention to the county of Henry in the assessment of 1849, by which it will appear, that the value of property was less in that year than in 1848, by the sum of $145,034, or 14 per cent., when, in fact, there was no doubt an increase of that amount, if not more, as the adjoining county of Jefferson increased $162,244, or 23 per cent. In 1848 there was 184,990 acres of land placed upon the tax list of Henry county, but in 1849 there was but 178,300 acres, notwithstanding a list containing 9,146 acres of new lands was sent from this office, to be added to the original list, making a decrease of 15,835 acres. Now how can such decrepancies be accounted for, except they be attributed to gross ignorance, or wilful dereliction of duty? A decrease in the value of property can be accounted for by a low assessment, but when near sixteen thousand acres of land in one county are not assessed at any price, and consequently none of the improvements and personal property connected therewith, it is time that we had a law to prevent such glaring inconsistencies.

The necessary forms are sent from this office, to all the Assessors, similar to the headings of tabular statement VII, requesting them to conform to them, as they contain the words of the revenue law, but from some cause or other, the returns are very defective with regard to certain portion of property. A few facts will be submitted. Look at the county of Des Moines in 1849, under the head of "value of gold and silver coin, or bank notes in actual possession," which reports $65,905, and the county of Muscatine which reports nothing, not one cent. Who will believe that there is no money of any kind in Muscatine county? No one. And whilst there is the full amount of money, if not more, than is reported in Des Moines, yet under the head of "value of claim or demand for money or other consideration," there is not a dollar assessed, yet the comparatively new county of Wapello reports $96,330, and doubtless there is twice that amount in Des Moines county. Dubuque county reports $25,525, as the "value of money invested in property of any kind, secured by deed, mortgage, or other evidence of claim." Des Moines, Scott, Van Buren, Henry, and Johnson report nothing, when it is well known by every body that large amounts of money are invested in that way in all those counties. Many other facts might be submitted, but I conceive the above to be sufficient to draw your attention to these tables, which more clearly show the many discrepancies in our assessments, than any thing I can say on the subject.

The expenses of our government should be borne by all classes of citizens, and equalized, as near as possible, by the value of property each one may possess, no matter in what it may consist; but under such system of taxation as referred to above, a man in Muscatine county having $50,000 in money, and no other property, pays no tax. Let him loan his money, and take the paper of the loanee, still he pays no tax, as such property is not assessed in that county, neither would it be in some others, judging from the returns. Is this just, is it equal?

I would suggest that hereafter, each tax payer should be furnished with a list, with the proper headings of all kinds of property, let him have a certain number of days to fill it up, and when called for by the Assessor, it be made his duty to swear the owner as to the quantity and value of his property, the oath to be on the list to be signed by the tax payer, and filed in the Assessor's office, after the items are copied on to the assessment roll. By such a plan it is believed the true value will be obtained, and all the property within the State will be more fairly enumerated.

It was my intention to have carried out such a plan the last year; but I found our law gave authority to swear the tax payer only as to the quantity, and not to the value of the property, I deferred it, hoping the law might be amended the present session. Your attention is particularly requested to the comparative tables No. VI and VII, showing the increase per cent. from year to year, in the several counties, and the difference between the several counties. There is a large increase in the new counties, as a natural consequence of their rapid settlement, and the new lands brought upon the tax lists, and it would be supposed there would be a uniform increase in the older counties possessing equal advantages, but upon comparing some of them, such does not appear to be the fact.

In 1850, Dubuque county increased but nine per cent., whilst the counties surrounding it increased, Clayton forty-eight, Delaware forty-two, and Jackson twenty-eight per cent. Muscatine increased twenty-seven, Scott and Clinton each twenty-six per cent. in 1850, and Cedar only five per cent. Yet all acquainted with the circumstances will admit that there has been as large an emigration, and as much valuable property added to the county of Cedar, within the last year, as to either of the others, comparatively considered. All these facts show the necessity of a system that would equalize the assessments in a greater degree.

By reference to table IX, it will be observed, that nearly one million of acres of land were added to the tax lists in 1850. As more than one half of our revenue is derived from the tax upon real estate, it is important that it should be fairly assessed; yet it will be seen by reference to the valuation of lands and their improvements, that they are rated very low, and properly at not more than half the amount at which the owners would be willing to sell.

Statement X, will show the Treasury to be without funds at this time, but the payments required by law, to be made this day, will probably be sufficient to meet the present liabilities.

APPENDIX.

The financial condition of the State, at this time, is as follows:

Amount due from the Counties and Collectors for taxes, prior to 1850,.....	$24,164 83

The sum of eight hundred and thirty-six dollars and fifty-eight cents, has been received within the last two years, as a tax upon Pedlars, and accounted for in the general revenue, which is but a small amount, compared with the number engaged in the business. The law on the subject is all that is required, and could be made to yield four-fold what it does, if those, whose duty and interest it is to have it enforced, would see that it is not daily violated, by the large number of Pedlars that are traversing the State, "selling goods, wares and merchandize other than the growth, produce or manufacture of this State," which includes fanning mills, plows and many other articles manufactured in other States.

Three Pedlars of fanning mills, from Illinois, resisted the law, but finally, after judgment was obtained against them, compromised the matter with the prosecuting attorney of Dubuque county, by paying for licenses.

The amount of interest collected from delinquent tax payers in two years, being but six hundred and seventy-three dollars and ninety-three cents, shows very clearly, that but very little attention is paid to the law on that subject; and this is one cause why there is such a large amount of revenue uncollected.

If delinquents were required, in every instance, to pay the damages of twenty-five per cent. per annum, they would be more prompt in paying their taxes within the year for which they are assessed, but when they are allowed to settle the original tax, clear of cost, at their own convenience, they will put it off as long as possible.

This subject has been repeatedly urged upon the attention of the collectors of the revenue, and, in some cases, has had the desired effect. And here I would take occasion to say that many of the county officers have co-operated with me, and have seconded my efforts in many particulars, to equalize the assessments, and to enlarge and collect the revenue in a prompt and satisfactory manner.

The business of this office is accumulating very rapidly, and provision should be made for the payment of a Clerk.

The counties of Fayette and Warren, have made no report of the amount of their assessments for this year, though the Clerks have been repeatedly written to on the subject.

The prosperous condition of our finances will, no doubt, be gratifying to your honorable bodies, and every citizen of the State, as well as the thousands who are coming amongst us to select homes with a great and happy people.

Very respectfully submitted,

JOS. T. FALES,

Auditor of State.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS,
OTTUMWA, December 2, 1850.

To His Excellency the Governor of Iowa:

The Board of Public Works, in accordance with the requirements of law, herewith submit the following

REPORT:

The total receipts from the sale of lands belonging to the Des Moines River grant, commencing on the 11th day of October, 1847, when the Land Office was first opened in Fairfield, for receipt of proof of pre-emptions, to the 28th day of November, 1850, inclusive, as shown by the accompanying statement of the Secretary of the Board, is $211,563 58-100. The total amount of land sold, as exhibited by same statement, is 169,153 27-100 acres. The amount in said grant, lying south of the Racoon Forks, as shown by official statement from the General Land Office, is 321,868 33-100 acres, of this portion of the grant, there yet remains unsold 152,715 6-100 acres which, at $1 25 per acre, amounts to $190,398 83. That portion of the grant lying north of the Racoon Forks, and extending from thence to the source of the river, is estimated to contain at least 900,000 acres, which, added to that portion lying south, makes 1,052,715 6-100 acres; estimating these lands at the minimum now fixed by law, they amount to $1,315,693 83.

The grant of land to the State, to aid in the improvement of the Des Moines river, from its mouth to the Racoon Forks, is expressed as follows: For the purpose of aiding said Territory to improve the navigation of the Des Moines river, from its mouth to the Racoon Forks (so called) in said Territory, one moiety, in alternate sections, of the Public Lands (remaining unsold and not otherwise disposed of, encumbered, or appropriated) in a strip of five miles in width on each side of said river, to be selected within said Territory," &c.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office, under date of the 23d of February, 1848, in a communication addressed to the Board of Public Works, through the then Secretary, Charles Corkery, Esq., decided that the State is entitled to the alternate sections, within five miles of the Des Moines River, throughout the whole extent of that river, within the limits of Iowa." The language of the act is "within said Territory," which does not limit the grant to what is now the northern boundary of the State of Iowa, but of course extends as far as the Des Moines river extends into Minnesota Territory, which, from the best information we can obtain of the locality of the source of the river, is from forty to sixty miles north of the south boundary of that Territory.

Notwithstanding this decision of the Commissioner, made as it was in accordance with the plain and literal meaning of the act of Congress, a portion of the grant above Fort Des Moines was included in a Proclamation, and about 25,000 acres sold by the United States, in 1848. Immediately upon the Board being advised of the fact, that these lands had been proclaimed for sale, they remonstrated against their sale, and through the prompt attention of our Representatives in Congress, the whole matter was brought before the Secretary of the Treasury, Hon. Robert J. Walker, who, on the 2d of March, 1849, decided, that the grant extended from the mouth to the source of the river; and communicated his decision to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, for the government of that office in the premises. This construction of the grant, had, from the passage of the law, prevailed with the authorities of this State. The Board of Public Works, in adopting the plan for the improvement of the river, by means of Locks and Dams, creating slackwater, had done so in view of the donation extending to the source of the river.

In November of last year the Secretary of the Board made application through our Senators in Congress, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office for the requisite confirmed list of land belonging to the grant above the Fork, with a view of permitting claimants in that portion of the country to prove up and purchase their lands under the pre-emption law of the State during the ensuing spring, and also with the view of offering a portion of these lands, as far up as the surveys might be completed, at public sale at a suitable time during the summer. The object in view, was to be in receipt of funds from that source in time to meet the large estimates which was expected to be due as soon as the favorable season for the prosecution, of the work in the spring and summer should arrive. In answer to this application, the Secretary of the Board was advised by letter under date of the 19th of December last, that said "list is now in course of preparation, and will be ready for transmission at an early day." A copy of this letter is herewith annexed, marked "A." The promised list, however, as will appear, has never been received.— Subsequently a letter from the Secretary of the Board was addressed to the Department of the Interior, through our Senators in Congress, calling the attention of the Government to the fact of sales of the State lands under proclamation of June, 1848. In answer to this communication, the Hon. A. C. Dodge and Hon. G. W. Jones were notified that the Commissioner of the General Land Office, disregarded the decision of the former Secretary of the Treasury of March 2d, 1849, and that he decided that these lands had been legally sold by the United States. An appeal was promptly made by the Senators to the Hon. Thomas Ewing, then Secretary of the Interior, under date of March 16th last. A copy of that appeal is herewith annexed, marked "B." In answer to this appeal upon the part of the Senators Dodge and Jones, and also in answer to the several applications of the Secretary of the Board to be furnished with a confirmed list of land belonging to the grant above Fort Des Moines as far as surveyed, the Commissioner of the General Land Office, the Hon. J. Butterfield, replied under date of the 9th of April last, that the Secretary of the Interior had decided adversely to the late Secretary of the Treasury; that the grant for the improvement of the Des Moines river, under act of August 8, 1846, does not extend above the Racoon Forks." A copy of this letter, with a copy of the decision of the Secretary of the Interior, which accompanied it, are herewith annexed, marked "C," and "D."

This unexpected decision, coming as it did, at a time when we were looking to these lands to furnish the ready means, which it was evident would not be realized from the sales of lands south of the Forks, to meet current estimates of the work in progress, proved most disastrous to the reasonable expectations, not only of the Board, but to all connected with the work. A large portion of the contractors had previously to the reception of the news of the decision, commenced with renewed vigor and with largely augmented forces upon their respective contracts, with the view of completing most of them the present season. The receipts in the Land Office, for the months of March and April, it will be seen, fell more than one half short of that of any similar period since it was opened for the sale of these lands. This was owing in part to the fact that Military Land Warrants could be obtained so as to locate United States lands at a cost of from 75 cents to one dollar per acre—but may be attributed mainly to the immense and extraordinary emigration from the portion of the State where these lands are located, to California. The average receipts of the Land Office for six months, commencing with April and ending with September, was $3,838 31. To have prosecuted the work actually under contract and in course of construction during these months, would have required at least $15,00 dollars per month. The receipts from land above the Forks, first from pre-emption claimants, and afterwards from public sale, as far as the surveys might be completed, was confidently looked to to supply the deficiency which was accruing between the regular receipts in the Treasury, and the largely augmenting estimates on the works. The survey had been made from sixty to eighty miles above Fort Des Moines and settlements had extended over one hundred miles. With this source of funds in view, in addition to the receipts from the lands which had already been offered, the Board felt, during the past winter and early portion of the spring, every confidence of being able to prosecute the work under contract, nearly, if not quite, to completion during the past season.

An appeal was immediately made by our entire delegation in Congress, under date of April 16th, last, to the President of the United States, against the decision of the Secretary of the Interior of the 6th of that month. The President, with a promptness that evinced every disposition to do justice to the State in the premises, immediately referred the whole matter to the then Attorney General of the United States, Hon. Reverdy Johnson, who under date of the 19th of July last, gave an opinion in which he fully and triumphantly sustained the decision made by the Hon. Robert J. Walker, Secretary of the Treasury, of the 2d of March, 1849—and also the construction under which the authorities of this State had ever acted in the commencement and prosecution of the improvement. It yet remains for the Executive to carry out this opinion, and to restore to the State these lands which it is so clearly shown belong to her, and of which she was deprived at a time in the prosecution of the public works, so disastrous and unfortunate to her best interests.

Since the lamented death of the late President, several changes have occurred in the head of the Department of the Interior, which it is fair to presume has operated against the further and favorable action on this subject. It is reasonable to expect that, ere long, the State will be put in possession of these lands, and that the full benefits of the entire grant will, another year, be realized, as fast as they can be made available by sale, or otherwise; in the vigorous prosecution of the great improvement for which they were donated. This appeal and the opinion of the Attorney General, accompanied with a letter from the Hon. A. C. Dodge, under date of the 6th of November last, accompany this report, severally marked—"E," "F," and "G."

The decision of the Secretary of the Interior, of April the 6th, together with the unexpected diminution in the receipts from the sale of such lands as were subject to private entry, made apparent the impossibility of paying the large estimates as they became due. In view of this fact, it was deemed expedient and proper to suspend for the season, or until after the meeting of another session of the General Assembly, that portion of the work from St. Francisville to the mouth of the river—being the ten miles of steamboat canal including the locks, &c., connected with it. Previous to this determination being arrived at, the Engineer had taken the estimates upon the whole works in course of construction—and the indebtedness actually at that date, (the 13th of May,) below Farmington, was found to be $30,000 dollars, exclusive of the 15 per cent. retained to secure the fulfillment of contracts. To meet this indebtedness there was but $10,000 dollars in cash in the Treasury, which left a deficit at that date of $20,000 dollars on the work below that point, embraced in the first letting. For the accommodation of the contractors, upon that portion of the work, the President issued certificates certifying the respective amounts due them, and made payable at his office, out of the first receipts in the Treasury. These certificates were payable to order, and answered a valuable purpose in enabling the contract-ous to transfer their claims upon the State in payment of such liabilities as they had contracted in the prosecution of their work.

The work on the contracts being suspended by the inability of the State to meet her engagements, the fifteen per cent. heretofore retained on their jobs will necessarily have to be paid. The laws in relation to the improvement do not define the course to be pursued in case of a failure to pay the estimates when due. It is respectfully suggested that the Legislature shall definitely prescribe the course to be pursued in case of similar occurrences in the further progress of the work. We also respectfully recommend that the Legislature memorialize Congress to allow the proper authorities of the State to select other lands, in lieu of those sold by the United States above the "Forks." These lands, notwithstanding their sale by the General Government, yet legally belong to the State, but in view of the fact that they have been mostly located upon by military land warrants, in good faith by our own citizens, injustice would doubtlessly, in many instances, be done, were the State compelled to assert her title to them. Congress, it is presumed, would, in view of the facts under which the State was attempted to be deprived of these lands, allow others to the amount of the value of them, to be selected and appropriated to the improvement. Injustice would be done the State, were she to take instead of these lands a similar quantity of such lands as could now be selected. The lands sold, situated as they are immediately above the prosperous and rapidly advancing young city of Fort Des Moines, are intrinsically at the present time worth from four to ten dollars per acre, while a similar quantity selected in lieu of them, would never realize to the State over one dollar and a quarter per acre. It is, therefore, proper, in appealing to Congress for reimbursement, that the memorial be so framed as to ask for the value of those lands, instead of a similar quantity of much less value.

The able and full report of the Chief Engineer, GUY WELLS, Esq., which accompanies this report, shows the exact condition of the work under charge. It will be perceived by a comparison of these estimates with those of the former Chief Engineer, under whom the improvement was originally projected and commenced, that there exists a very material difference of cost. The figures of the present Engineer shows that work has already been done on the canal with its necessary appendages to the amount of $138,848 42, exclusive of the ordinary and usual contingent expenses in the prosecution of such works of ten per cent. upon that amount, which would augment it to $152,733 26. The total cost of the canal, according to the present estimate will amount to $260,938 34, of which amount there remains yet to be done $122,089 92; adding the estimates for contingent and wastage during the suspension of the work, twelve per cent., making the whole cost of the canal $275,589 13, and the whole cost of the work yet to be done $136,740 92, exclusive of the ten per cent. on the work already done. The figures of the former engineer, as shown in his report No. one, make the cost of the canal, after adding ten per cent. for contingent expenses and $5,000 00 for walls and races for mills at various points from Lock No. 0 to Lock No. 4 at Thomas' mill, $125,987 11. The present estimated cost being made at the actual prices for which the work was contracted, and the former estimated cost being made before the work was put under contract. We refer you to the present Engineer's report for the reasons for this great discrepancy in the two estimates.

The extraordinary and destructive freshets which occurred during the latter part of the winter and in the spring of 1849, occasioned considerable destruction to the works on the canal. The river, as is well known, rose higher at that time than it was ever known to have been by the inhabitants in its vicinity before or since. This misfortune, added to the prevalence of the cholera which made its appearance on the works in the early part of the season, occasioned much loss and vexatious delay to the contractors. In addition to this, expenses of conducting the work had advanced from 50 to 75 per cent. for ordinary labor, and other expenses in about the same proportion.

In November, of that year, the Board, accompanied by the Chief Engineer, made a personal and thorough examination of the whole work under contract; and in pursuance of an adjournment from a regular meeting held at Ottumwa, met at Keokuk, on the 20th of that month, for the purpose of considering the various petitions and representations of the several contractors on the line. The causes, above referred to, had induced a portion of them to desire a relinquishment of their contracts, while others asked and contended for the allowance of large damages by the destruction of embankments, &c. It was apparent to us that slight advances on most of the Canal jobs had to be made, and that some allowances were required in order to prevent an abandonment of a number of the larger contracts. This, it was desirous, should be avoided, for had the work, under the then existing circumstances, been relet, it would have cost the State much more than the allowances and alterations required to enable the present contractors to proceed under their first contracts. The first letting of the work, it is well known, was at a time when labor, provisions, &c., could be obtained at but little if any more than one-half of what they would cost at the date in question.

Under these circumstances, and in accordance with the recommendation of the then Chief Engineer, Colonel Samuel R. Curtis, the following allowances and changes were made to the contractors. Fifty cents per perch was added to the price of masonry, in consequence of its being changed from rubble to cut stone and range work. The original contractors, Messrs. Stewart & Wallace, on section No. 4, having, for a year previous, left the entire control of their work to their assignees, Messrs. Smith, Morrison & Co., the President was authorized to enter into contract with the latter, for the completion of the work at a small advance on the former contract prices. On section No. 5, for reasons heretofore stated, and in consequence of a change of location of Lock, the contractors prices on this section were advanced. On section No. 6, one hundred and twenty dollars was allowed for loss of embankment by flood. Allowances were made on section No. 8, one hundred dollars for timbers swept away and lost by flood, one hundred dollars for damages done to Lock pit, and eight hundred and ten dollars for loss of embankment. The contractor, having delivered the estimated quantity of protection stone, and it was found the work still required more, which the contractor refused to deliver at his former prices, therefore the price was advanced from one dollar to one 50-100 dollar per perch, on the balance delivered.

The contract, for constructing Culvert on section 3, having been abandoned by the original contractor, Richard Morris, was relet to Messrs E. Lindsey & Co. who completed it about the 1st of September, in a manner entirely satisfactory to the Engineer.

Messrs. Quinn, Caraher & Co. contractors at Dam No. 3, having abandoned their contract, about the 1st of April, and the Board, after receiving proposals, re-let the work to Messrs. J. C. Walker & Co. they being the lowest responsible bidders.

The President has made an arrangement, by contract, with Messrs. Thomas & Colton, mill owners, at Dam No. 3, on the south side of the river, in the State of Missouri, by which they are to remove their saw mill, and convey to the State a sufficiency of ground for all needful purposes, in the use of water power at that point. They also release to the State a quantity of timber and stone contained in the old Lock. In consideration of the above, and the stoppage of their mills for two months, to enable the contractors to put in the new Dam, the State is to pay two thousand dollars.

At Dam No. 6, Bentonsport, the contractors, Messrs. Brown & Sanford, commenced putting in the dam about the 1st of July, and it being located just above the old mill dam, it became necessary to drain the pool, thereby suspending the operations at the mills on each side of the river, for about four months. The owners of these mills, Messrs. Brown & Sanford on the north side, and Mr. Allender, on the south side of the river, claim heavy damages from the State, for loss of time in the use of their mills. They also claim that the State shall pay the expense of conducting the water from the State dam to their respective mills.

The 22d section of an act creating the Board of Public Works, and providing for the improvement of the Des Moines river, says, "and nothing herein contained shall prevent the Board from paying the proprietors of such dams, whatever they may deem reasonable, in addition to the privileges authorized by this act." The owners of the several mills and dams on the river were allowed, in consideration of lands, and of their privileges, together with the damages they might sustain, to have the use and benefit of water power sufficient to propel the same amount of machinery that they had previously been using, free of cost for the term of fifty years; the water of course to be applied to the most approved wheels now in use. Messrs. Brown and Sanford claim power sufficient to propel nine run of burrs, which at the rate at which power has been leased to Messrs. Green and brother, at that dam, would amount to $900 per annum, for fifty years. In considering these claims for damages, it is necessary to take into view the fact that the State has incurred considerable expense in the location of locks and dams to accommodate mill owners—and that the character of the work done by the State secures to them this valuable power, permanent and uninterrupted for the long time mentioned.

The claims presented are urged, First, upon the grounds that the Public Works require a stoppage of their mills: Second, that the State is bound to place them in as good a condition as they were found at the commencement of the work—and, Thirdly, upon the ground that they had always complied with the requirements of their Territorial charter, and kept the lock at that point in good condition to pass boats, &c.

These claims, together with similar ones that may be presented, are respectfully submitted for Legislative action.

Accompanying this report will be found marked No. 1, the President's account of receipts and disbursements—No. 2, the account current of the Treasurer, and No. 3, the statement of the Secretary, exhibiting the amount of lands sold, &c.,—also a tabular statement by the President, showing the State indebtedness, numbered 4.

The present system of prosecuting the work, it will be apparent, we think to all, is not the most judicious to accomplish the great object in view, to wit: the speedy completion of the improvement, at the least possible cost to the State. At present it can proceed no faster than the irregular and uncertain receipts from the sale of lands will pay the estimates, and other expenses. The irregularity of these receipts will be made apparent by reference to the tabular statement of the monthly sales during the past fourteen months. The six months instanced, from April to September, inclusive, embracing the season of the year, when such work can only be successfully prosecuted, and when the largest amount of money is required, are smallest.—Indeed at any season of the year they are entirely inadequate to prosecute even the present work under way, and render out of the question, the possibility of putting more of the improvement in progress. The incidental expenses, including salaries of Board, Engineers, &c. as established, is entirely disproportionate to the limited amount of work which can be done. About the same amount of incidental expenses, that are at present required, would superintend the judicious expenditure of from two to four hundred thousand dollars on the work per annum.

The 9th section of the act creating the Board of Public Works, provides that they shall recommend "such Legislative action as they shall deem expedient." This we are aware, imposes a delicate and responsible duty. The views entertained, in the different localities along the river to be improved are as conflicting and incongruous as are the many interests which are sought to be promoted.

The hypothecation of the lands or the proceeds of their sale, for a loan of money has been suggested, and will doubtless be strenuously used. A loan of one dollar per acre on the entire grant, would fall $213,852 short of completing the whole work to Fort Des Moines, at the present estimated cost. With that amount of available cash means to be drawn as required in the progress of the work, would in our opinion, justify the commencement and vigorous prosecution of the entire improvement to completion. Within one year a portion of it would begin to yield a revenue for water rents and tolls. The least estimate of water power, at the respective dams and the two locks in the canal, would afford a sufficiency of power, if properly applied, to propel twenty run of burrs at each. There will be, when completed, twenty-eight dams, with the two additional locks in the canal, making a power sufficient to propel six hundred run of burrs, which, were it all brought into requisition at the moderate price of one hundred dollars per annum for each, would give a yearly income from that source alone, of $60,000. But suppose that for the next ten years, water power could not be leased at each lock for more than one thousand dollars, we would then have the sum of $30,000 annual revenue from this source. A loan of sixty cents per acre on the lands, would give $621,629, which would exceed the estimated cost of the work up to Ottumwa $31,960. This amount would complete the improvement up to that point, and make ninety miles of slackwater and canal navigation, and the water power would yield a revenue in proportion as above.

To this mode of obtaining the available means requisite, there might be found to exist some difficulty. In the first place, that salutary provision in our Constitution, which limits the amount of funded debt, precludes the idea of the issue of State bonds, pledging the grant of land as a mere collateral.

Should this plan be adopted, it will be necessary for the General Assembly to authorize the Board to negotiate a loan, and if thought necessary to direct that a portion of the lands be withheld from sale.

The States of Indiana and Illinois, with improvements somewhat similarly situated to our own, have given them up to companies of capitalists, who have taken the works in their unfinished condition, and agreed to complete them within a given time, on condition of owning and controlling them, with a limit upon the amount of tolls to be assessed. These arrangements have been coupled with the condition that the State may within a given time redeem said improvements by the payment of the monies expended by the company with interest.

It appears to us that a similar disposition of that portion of our improvement under course of construction, and including the works at Keosauqua, might be advantageously made at this time, so as to secure the speedy and certain completion of that very important portion of the work.

When the difficulties shall have been overcome in this portion of the river by slackwater and the canal, a continuous steamboat navigation will have been accomplished to Fort Des Moines, for from two to four months each year, which would be productive of vast benefits.

The amount of work done and the materials furnished already, as shown by the Engineer's report, is $241,350 85 on his part of the work. The same report estimates the cost to complete it at $343,431. This estimate, it may be remarked, is reliable, from the fact that it is based upon the prices of the work already under contract, and which experience shows it will cost.

In view of the uncertainty of means to prosecute this work, as speedily as possible, to completion, we suggest the propriety of advertising it to be let to a company, provided it can be done on suitable terms, and that the lands lying south of Fort Des Moines, or the proceeds of their sales be turned over to such company as they progress with the work. These lands, it will be seen, at the present prices fixed upon them, amount to $190,894 dollars. This amount falls short of the estimated cost, $152,537. In consideration of this amount, the State could give the company the use and benefits of the work, for a term of years, and until they should be paid the full amount of their expenditures, with interest. The fact of a company having the use of the improvement for a term of years, would operate as security to the State, for they would be interested in making it as permanent as possible, so as to require the least possible repairs. A company properly constituted, with $241,350, worth of work already done—and lands, or their proceeds, to the amount shown, would be furnished with the means and credit by which they could, it appears to us, complete the work sooner, and at less expense than it would be possible for it to be done under the most favorable auspices reasonable to expect, by the State. Many of the enterprising contractors now engaged on the work, would no doubt find it to their interest to connect themselves with such company, and become stockholders, at least, to the amount of their indebtedness from the State should, in our opinion, be held subject to entry, as at present, for at least one year longer, in order that the settlers and claimants, at present holding such portions of it, as may be claimed, or improved, may have that much time extended to them, to avail themselves of the privileges which have been enjoyed by others of purchasing their homes and claims, at the price now fixed upon them of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. It would also prevent these lands from falling into the hands of speculators, whose only design would be to hold them in reserve for speculation. At the expiration of one year, these lands, or such of them as were unsold, might then all be transferred to the company, without in any way, doing injustice to any portion of our citizens, or retarding the settlement of the country.

That portion of the grant which it is proposed to pledge or convey,

Should this plan, of which but a faint outline is attempted to be given, meet the views of the Legislature, a law carefully framed, giving the Board full power to carry it into operation, should a responsible company offer, would be required.

A deficit in the account of the late Treasurer of the Board of four thousand eight hundred and forty-one dollars and seventy-five cents, is shown to exist by the books of the office. It is respectfully recommended that the Legislature take the proper steps to a full settlement, and if there shall be found to be any thing due the State, from that source, that the same be placed in course of collection, at as early a day as practicable. Mr. Brattair, with the securities on his bond, are amply sufficient to secure the amount of delinquency shown on the books against him.

At a meeting of the Board, on the 24th of December, 1849, the services of the former Chief Engineer, Colonel Samuel R. Curtis, was dispensed with. He had been employed, for the first year of his service, at a salary of $2,500, and afterwards $2,000 per annum. Guy Wells, Esq., the former first assistant, was promoted to the place, at a salary of $1,000 per annum. As to the manner in which he has discharged the important trust under his charge, with the many embarrassments which have attended the prosecution of the work, since he assumed its responsibilities; it is unnecessary to speak further than to say that it has been satisfactory to the Board. The substantial and workmanlike manner in which the work has been done, as far as it has progressed, we feel confident will compare favorably with any similar work to be found in the United States—and reflects much credit upon the Engineers in charge, as well as to the enterprising contractors, who performed the labor.

The Des Moines River Improvement is the most extensive one of the kind ever commenced in the United States; and of its vast importance to the fertile and beautiful valley through which it meanders, it is scarcely necessary to refer. The rapidity with which this portion of the State has been, within so very few years, transformed from its primeval solitude to a country already teeming with not only an abundance of the products of its rich soil for home use, but furnishing a large surplus, seeking a foreign market, is unparalleled in the history of the country—and furnishes the reflecting mind with the data upon which its future greatness may be calculated.

The agricultural capacities of the country are almost boundless; and the mineral wealth is nearly equal in importance. Hydraulic lime, coal and gypsum, are known to exist in inexhaustible quantities, and will all be important articles of commerce when the improvement is completed.

These great resources need a cheap water communication with the Mississippi, and the trade that their development will cause, is amply sufficient to justify the most strenuous exertions to push forward the great improvement in question.

Mills and manufactories are necessary to sustain and support the growth and prosperity of the State. The river, when improved as commenced, by locks and dams, will not only afford a constant navigation, but an inexhaustible water power. The country affords unrivalled advantages for manufactories. Cotton can be brought here cheaper than to the Merrimac, whilst the fruits of our own rich prairies, wood lands, and the minerals of the hills, among which the Des Moines meanders, would afford employment for thousands of workshops, mills and manufactories.

The former Engineers report, No. 3, embracing his estimate of the work from Ottumwa to the forks of the river, accompanies this report.

In conclusion we would respectfully suggest, and solicit, that a committee be appointed by the Legislature, to visit and examine the work under our charge, and also the offices connected with it. We feel every confidence that a report from such a source, to the Legislative Assembly, would be productive of much good.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM PATTERSON.

JESSE WILLIAMS.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
December 19, 1849.

Sir: A letter has been received at this office from the Hon. A. C. Dodge and Hon. G. W. Jones, enclosing one from you to the former, dated the 30th ult., requesting that you may be furnished with a list of the Des Moines river grant above the "Raccoon Forks." In reply, I have to state that said list has not been furnished, for the reason that the posting of the land warrants in the Iowa City district was not completed on the books of this office until recently. Said list is now in course of preparation, and will be ready for transmission at an early day.

In the latter part of your letter, you say the "lists heretofore furnished of lands below the forks, have been furnished the Secretary of of State, instead of the Board, who are the rightful and only agents of the State for said land." In the absence of evidence showing the right of another to receive confirmed lists of State grants; it is usual to send them to the Secretary of State. Such is the case at present in relation to this grant. If, however, you will furnish this office with evidence as to your right, as Secretary of the Board of Public Works, to receive said lists, and to correspond with this office in relation thereto, they will hereafter receive the desired direction.

I am, Sir, very Respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

J. BUTTERFIELD,

Commissioner.

To JESSE WILLIAMS, Esq.,
Iowa City, Iowa.

B

SENATE CHAMBER, March 16th, 1850.

HON. THOMAS EWING,
Secretary of the Interior—

SIR: It becomes our duty to lay before you the enclosed letter from Col. Jesse Williams, Secretary of the Board of Internal Improvements of the State of Iowa, complaining on the part of the State of the sale by the United States of some twenty-five thousand acres of land on the Des Moines above the mouth of Racoon river, and belonging to the State of Iowa, by virtue of act of August 1846, and the decision of the late Secretary of the Treasury, Hon. R. J. Walker, thereon.

We appeal to you from the decision of Commissioner Butterfield, that the land so sold had been legally sold. We contend that the title is still in the State of Iowa, and that she cannot be divested thereof without her own act; but we do not ask that the patents granted to individuals be vacated. We are willing that matters in relation to those illegal sales, as we allege they are, should remain in statu quo until the Legislature of the State of Iowa shall meet, as it will during the next winter.

We further most respectfully and earnestly request, that you will at as early a day as your convenience will allow, approve the other selections recommended by Commissioner Butterfield, for your approval, above the mouth of Racoon river, to the end that the Secretary of the Board of Internal Improvement of our State, may be furnished with a list of the lands to which Iowa is entitled for the improvement of the navigation of the Des Moines river.

We are, very respectfully,

Your obedient servants,

GEO. W. JONES,

GENERAL LAND OFFICE,

April 9th, 1850.

Sir: Herewith I send you a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, dated the 6th inst., deciding adversely to the late Secretary of the Treasury—that the grant for the improvement of the Des Moines river, under act of 8th of August, 1846, does not extend beyond the Racoon Forks.

As suggested by the Secretary, no immediate steps will be taken to bring the land embraced by the State's selections, into market. The office will await the action of the present session of Congress, whose attention will doubtlessly be called to the subject by the State authorities.

I am Sir, very Respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

J. BUTTERFIELD,

Commissioner.

JESSE WILLIAMS, Esq., Secretary Board of Public Works.

OTTUMWA, Iowa.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,

WASHINGTON, April 6th, 1850.

SIR: Having considered the questions submitted to me connected with the claim of the State of Iowa to select, under the act of August 8, 1846, lands for the improvement of the Des Moines river, I am clearly of opinion that you cannot recognize the grant as extending above the Racoon Fork, without the aid of an explanatory act of Congress. It is clear to my mind from the language of the act of August 8, 1846 itself, that it was not the intent of the act to extend it further.

My construction is confirmed by the report of the committee and the accompanying papers. If in any report to Congress, you have recognized the grant as extending to the source of the river, it will be proper to correct it, that Congress; if they see fit, may extend the grant. The opinion expressed by the late Secretary of the Treasury on the subject is entitled to great respect, but I cannot concur in it; and the law not having been carried into effect by him, his opinion merely expressed, is open for reversion.

The lists of selections and other papers submitted with your letter of the 13th ultimo, are herewith returned.

As Congress is now in session and may take action on the subject, it will be proper, in my opinion, to postpone any immediate steps for bringing into market the lands embraced in the State's selections.

I am, Sir, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

T. EWING, Secretary.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, November 6, 1850.

To Col. JESSE WILLIAMS,

Secretary of the Board of Internal Improvement—

DEAR SIR: I have the pleasure to hand you herewith a copy of the appeal, taken by our delegation from Secretary Ewing's decision repecting the grant of land made to aid the State of Iowa in the improvement of the Des Moines river, and also a copy of the opinion of Hon. Reverdy Johnson, late Attorney General of the United States, upon the same subject.

The perusal of this opinion of Attorney General Johnson will, I am quite certain, afford you and your colleagues of the Board of Internal Improvement, and our citizens generally, as it has your Senators and members, the most sincere pleasure.

The high position of the author of this opinion, he being at the time the legal adviser of the Executive, and his distinguished reputation as an enlightened and able jurist, are such as confidently to induce the belief on my part, that President Fillmore will finally decide the momentous question now before him in our favor. That this may be the case, and that the great work of affording the farmers and settlers of the Des Moines a safe, economical, and ready transit to market for the surplus millions of products which their magnificent valley is destined soon to contain, be speedily accomplished, is the ardent wish of their and your friend.

A. C. DODGE.

WASHINGTON, April 14th, 1850.

To the President:

WE, the Senators and Representatives from the State of Iowa, believing that great injustice will be done the State and people they represent by an opinion and order of the Hon. Thomas Ewing, Secretary of the Interior, bearing date the 6th of April, 1850, by which the grant of land made to the State of Iowa, by the act of the 8th of August, 1846, is restricted to the "Raccoon Fork," (so called,) beg leave to enter our solemn protest against the carrying into effect of said opinion by the Executive Department of the Government, for the following reasons:

First, Because there is granted to the State of Iowa, in language clear and unambiguous, by the before mentioned law, "one equal moiety, in alternate sections, of the public lands (remaining unsold and not otherwise disposed of, incumbered or appropriated,) in a slip five miles in width on each side of said river," (the Des Moines.)

Second, Because the question of the extent of the grant under consideration, having arisen during the late Administration, was decided in favor of the State of Iowa, on appeal and argument, by the Hon. R. J. Walker, then Secretary of the Treasury, in an opinion given by him, which bears date the 2d of March, 1849.

Third, Because upon the promulgation of the decision of the late Secretary of the Treasury, it being regarded as final and conclusive, the authorities of the State of Iowa have proceeded to contract heavy pecuniary obligations, in anticipation of the proceeds of the said lands thus adjudged to be applicable to the improvement of the navigation of the Des Moines river.

Fourth, Because we sincerely believe that under the act of the 8th of August, 1846, and the decision of the late Secretary of the Treasury, before mentioned, that the State of Iowa has, for the purpose and on the conditions mentioned in said law, a vested right to the lands in question, and so believing, we do not doubt that her authorities will resent, by every proper means in their power, the sale of these lands by the United States.

Fifth, Because we humbly conceive that the Secretary of the Interior, unintentionally and with good motives we doubt not, has transcended his legitimate authority, in re-opening of his own volition and reversing a decision of the Secretary of the Treasury, in a matter of this character.

For these and other reasons, not deemed necessary to be enumerated, we appeal to you to protect our young State, and her enterprising citizens, already environed by those difficulties and hardships ever attendant upon the settlement of new countries, from the incalculable loss and embarrassment which will be entailed upon her and them should the decision of the late Secretary of the Treasury in relation to the grant of land for the improvement of the navigation of the Des Moines be reversed.

We are, with the highest consideration of respect,

A. C. DODGE,
GEO. W. JONES,
SHEPHERD LEFFLER,
WM. THOMPSON.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE,

July 19, 1850.

SIR: The questions presented in the matter of the Des Moines grant, made to the Territory of Iowa, by the act of Congress of the 8th of August, 1846, upon which, under an appeal to your predecessor from the decision of the Secretary of the Interior, he required the opinion of this office, are—First, what is the extent of the grant; and Second, had it been already finally adjudicated, before the decision appealed from, was made.

First—Is the strip “five miles in width on each side” of the Des Moines river granted, limited in length to what is called the Racoon Fork, or is the grant co-extensive with the length of the river? The grant is made by the first section of the act, and is in these words:

“There be and hereby is granted to the Territory of Iowa, for the purpose of aiding said Territory to improve the navigation of the Des Moines river, from its mouth to the Racoon Fork, (so called,) in said Territory, one moiety of the public lands (remaining unsold and not otherwise disposed of, encumbered, or appropriated,) in a strip five miles in width on each side of said river; to be selected by an agent or agents, to be appointed by the Governor of said Territory, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.”

The Commissioner of the Land Office, and the Secretary of the Interior, think that the Racoon Fork is the limit of the grant, and its northern terminus.

I do not concur in this view. In my opinion, the fork is mentioned only as the point to which, from the mouth of the river, the improvement of the navigation of the river is to be made.

The true reading of the act I think, is, that the land granted is to run the entire length of the river, within the then Territory of Iowa, and the object to be accomplished by it, the improvement of the navigation up to the Fork.

The purpose is one thing—the extent of the grant another. It is by confounding the two, in themselves, as stated in the act, wholly distinct, and considering them as limiting each other, that the error of the opposite construction consists. They have, in my judgment, nothing to do with each other. This will perhaps be made the more obvious, by transposing the language of the act. Place the terms of the grant first, and those of the purpose for making it last, and the meaning is apparent. It would then read—"There be and hereby is granted to the Territory of Iowa, one moiety of the public lands (remaining unsold, and not otherwise disposed of, encumbered or appropriated,) in a strip five miles in width, on each side of the Des Moines river, to be selected," &c. "for the purpose of aiding said Territory to improve the navigation" of said river from its mouth to the Racoon fork (so called), in said Territory."

If these were the terms of the grant, no doubt, I think, could exist, that the only limit was the river, and yet I cannot see that the meaning is not precisely the same of the terms actually adopted. The river limits the grant, although a portion of the river is only to be improved. The other interpretation requires to maintain it, that you add to the words adopted describing the extent of the grant, "five miles in width on each side of said river," the other words "from its mouth to the Racoon Fork," previously used but to describe the extent of the improvement. Where is the authority for such an interpretation? When the words of a statute are clear, it is contrary to every rule of construction, to supply others, on the conjecture that they were accidentally omitted. The inference, when those used are unambiguous, is, that the Legislature meant precisely, and only meant what those import.

But the third section strengthens I think my opinion upon the first. By that it is provided "That the said river Des Moines shall be and forever remain a public highway for the use of the Government of the United States," &c. What is the extent of this stipulation? Is it that the highway on the river is restricted to the Fork, or co-extensive with the river? I think there can be no doubt that the latter is the true meaning—and if it be, it is only because there is nothing to limit the provision to any portion of the river, and yet the words are in this respect the same as those used in the grant by the first section.

It is supposed that this construction is erroneous, because to the report of the committee of the House reporting the bill before introduced and referred to them, there is attached a letter from the then Commissioner of the Land Office, stating that it extended to the Racoon Fork. When the words of a statute are doubtful, it is legitimate to refer to such sources of information. But where it is otherwise—where there is no ambiguity, as I think is the case of this statute,—there is no warrant for qualifying them by report, or speeches or votes, which may have preceded its passage. This doctrine is clearly recognized by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Aldridge vs. Williams, 3 How. 24. Nor is there any thing in the objection, that the improvement is limited, and that that should be held to limit the grant. The fact is not so. The lands of the United States throughout the extent of the river will feel the benefit of the improvement, in an enhancement of value.

The whole river therefore participates in the advantage of the work, and upon the very policy which has heretofore governed Congress in such cases, it is fair to presume that the lands granted were limited by the whole river, and not by a part of it. Nor do I think it is consonant with the policy of such dispositions of the public lands, to bring to the statutes by which they are made, a narrow construction. It is a large and enlightened policy, ever favored by Congress, and should be executed even in cases of doubt, rather in a large and liberal, than a restricted spirit.

Second—I am of opinion that the question has been finally adjudicated by the Secretary of the Treasury before it was decided by the Secretary of the Interior.

The facts are these.—The commissioner of the Land Office, who had originally construed the grant as I do, changed his opinion, and advertised for sale in the usual way, lands above the Fork. As soon as this was known, the Senators and Representatives of Iowa, on the 8th January, 1849, in an official letter to Mr. Walker, “complained of the construction, and requested him to give the necessary instructions for the selection and approval of these lands along the entire grant of the Des Moines, as contemplated by the law,” &c. The question was carefully considered by the Secretary, and decided by him on the 2d of March, 1849. On that day he advised these gentlemen of the decision, and communicated it on the same day to the Commissioner, in an official letter now on file with the papers, for, to use the language of the letter, the “information and government of that officer, on the subject to which it refers.” From that time to the recent opposite opinion of the present Commissioner, the question was considered as closed by this decision of Mr. Walker. This appears from the report of Commissioner, Mr. Young, afterwards transmitted to Congress, and also by a report of the present Commissioner himself of the 14th January, 1850, transmitted to the Senate, by the Secretary of the Interior, on the 21st., of that month.—See Senate executive document, 1st session 31st Congress, No. 171. In this report showing the amount of public land granted to Iowa among other States, there is attached this note: "This amount in accordance with the decision of the late Secretary of the Treasury, of 2nd March, 1849, will be increased by the unadjusted portion of the grant for the improvement of the Des Moines river, situated between the Racoon Fork and the source of said river, estimated to contain 900,000 acres."

The design of the Secretary, himself, to have decided it, and his belief that he had so decided, appears by a letter from him to the Senators of the State, now on file, dated the 15th instant, and hereunto annexed.

Upon the faith of this determination, I am advised, that the proper authorities of the State, have entered into large contracts for the improvement of the river,—and it would therefore, I think, be the extreme of injustice, now to revoke it.

And I am glad to be of the opinion that it cannot be legally revoked. It was a final adjudication,—so considered by the parties,—by the Senators and Commissioner of the Land Office, and so acted upon by Iowa:—Whether right or not is now immaterial. It is beyond the control of the Secretary of the Interior, (the successor in this respect, of Mr. Walker,) and of any other executive officer. See the case of the bank of the Metropolis, vs. U. S. Pet. 401.

I have the honor to be,

With high regard,

Your ob't servant,

(Signed)

REVERDY JOHNSON.

To MILLARD FILLMORE,

President of the United States.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

ENGINEERS OFFICE, NOV. 20, 1850.

To the Board of Public Works:

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor respectfully to present you with my first report of the condition of the Des Moines river improvement.

Commencing at the mouth of Nassau Slough, and proceeding up the Des Moines River, I will describe the character and progress of the different sections, in the order in which they occur.

No steps have yet been taken to remove the drift and snags in the Nassau Slough, and in the Des Moines river between the head of the Slough and lock No. 1, located at Mott's Ferry. When this is done we have a navigation of nearly two miles from the Mississippi.

This lock is located on rock foundation (no other rock being found in the bed of the river nearer its mouth;) and has a lift of 22 feet. The contractor has built a good and substantial coffer dam, excavated about one half of the lock pit, and furnished between three and four thousand perches of lock stone, with the face stone mostly cut. This job can be completed in one season, if it be a favorable one for work of that character. Connected with this lock, and embraced in the same contract, is 5,500 lineal feet of canal, the whole being denominated as sections one and two. This portion of the canal is nearly completed. A waste weir which was never before estimated is necessary on this section, to pass over the water of a small creek, and will add to the cost of the work about $1,500.

Section No. 3, consists of one mile of canal, mostly light work, and is about one half completed. On this section a good and substantial culvert has been built, 140 feet long, with 2 spans of 6 feet each, and semi-circular arches of cut stone, with parapets, and wing walls to protect the embankment.

Section No. 4, consists of one mile of canal, which includes the heavy river embankment at the big Yellow Banks; the length of the embankment in the river, is 1,400 feet. It has been found necessary to drive a row of piles along the outer toe of the river embankment, to protect it from the drift and ice during the great freshets.

The channel of the river is contracted at this point, and the force of the current is so great against the embankment that it requires strong protection. At the great ice freshet in February, 1849, the bed of the river was washed out so that the channel was deepened from 8 to 26 feet. This will greatly increase the amount of embankment and protection stone, and add materially to the cost of the work, as the height of the embankment will be about 18 feet greater than was at first estimated. The land embankment on this section is entirely completed.

Section No. 5, includes the narrows below the mouth of Sugar creek, where will have 1,100 feet of embankment in river; similar to that at the big Yellow Bank, requiring to be protected with piles and stone. The piles are mostly driven at this point, but no embankment is yet made in the river. The remainder of the earth work on this section is nearly completed.

The location of lock No. 2, has been changed from section 8, to section 5, and will be built on a timber and plank foundation. The lock pit has been excavated, all the timber, 40,000 feet of plank, and 1,200 perches of lock stone have been delivered. The original design, before changing the location of the lock, was to pass the water of Sugar creek over the canal by a waste wier, but the matured plan of your late Chief Engineer, was to change the channel of the creek, so as to pass it under an aqueduct, which will be located above the lock.

Sections 6 and 7 are in such a state of forwardness as to render their completion practicable in one season.

Section No. 8, includes the heavy embankment in the river, similar to that on section 4 before alluded to. When the work on the canal was suspended, this embankment was left in a rough unfinished state, and not raised as high as high water mark; consequently it will be much exposed in times of very high freshets, by the water running over the embankment. I would recommend that some five or six hundred dollars be expended on this part of the work, which would place it comparatively out of danger.

Section No. 9 is completed, and was taken off the contractors hands in December 1849.

The earth work on sections 10 and 11 is nearly completed. On section 11 a guard lock, with a double pair of gates, and a chamber of the same capacity as the other locks, is necessary to shut out freshets from the canal, and pass boats up and down at any stage of water. Such locks are invariably used on similar works. The Des Moines is subject to frequent rises during the boating season, varying in height from two to ten feet, which without a water lift lock, would suspend navigation on the canal, but would not usually obviate the hazards of running on the river below St. Francisville. During the past two seasons these freshets have occurred about every six weeks or two months.

COST OF THE CANAL, &c.

From the tables which accompany this report, it will be observed that I have estimated the cost of the ten miles of canal, including three locks, one aqueduct, one culvert, and two waste weirs at $275,589 13, exclusive of the contingent expenses on the work already done. After paying off the debts (chiefly back money) due the contractors, it will still require not less than $136,740 71 to complete the canal. This sum greatly exceeds the original estimates for the following reasons: I. The character of the lock masonry has been changed from rubble to cut stone and range work, which adds fifty cents per perch to the price. II. The building of the coffer dam and bailing of lock pit at lock No. 1, was never estimated. III. The greatly increased quantity of embankment and protection stone at the two Yellow Banks and Sugar creek, and the furnishing and driving piles at those points. IV. The building of two waste weirs, one on section 2 and one on section 10, which are necessary and were never estimated. V. The changing of the guard gates on section 11 to a guard lock; and lastly and principally, by the difference in the quantity and price of work, as will be seen by reference to the two estimates, the present being made at the actual prices at which the work was contracted for, and the former at estimated prices, before the work was put under contract. The canal is the most precarious, and also the most expensive portion of the work, in proportion to its length, now under contract. When the work on the canal was suspended, it was left in such a rough unfinished state that the necessary measurements to determine the exact amount of work done were difficult and laborious, and required, during a portion of the summer, the same amount of engineering force as would have been necessary had the work been in vigorous prosecution. Now that these estimates are all taken, none of my corps are retained except Samuel Jacobs Esq., my assistant engineer.

ST. FRANCISVILLE WORK. SECTION No. 12.

The dam at St. Francisville, which is to supply the canal with water, and make navigation up to the first dam above, is located partly on rock, but chiefly on sand foundation, and is an expensive and difficult work. It will be founded on piles, (except where there is rock,) which will transfer the pressure from the spreading material on the surface, to an incompressible and confined foundation. This plan, together with protection below the dam, composed of clusters of piles filled in with bush and stones, I think will secure the work. A lock is located on the rock foundation in the south end of this dam, which will allow of river navigation, during portions of the season, and in case of a breach in the canal.

A considerable number of piles have been driven on this work, chiefly in the abutment pit on the north side of the river, but the larger part of the piling yet remains to be furnished and driven. This can be done early next season if the work goes on. A first rate steam pile boat, the property of Capt. Jacob Cram, is now lying at this work, and there is also on the river a good horse pile boat, the property of the State. During the past season we found useful employment for both of these boats. Nearly all the stone, timber, and plank for this lock and dam, have been delivered and fully prepared for the work.

The preparation for the foundation of the lock and dam was commenced under favorable circumstances last summer, but was soon suspended on account of the gloomy aspect of money affairs. Since then, nothing has been done at this point. This work will be resumed whenever funds can be procured.

DAM AND LOCK AT "COWPENS." SECTION No. 13.

A large portion of the materials have been furnished for this work and something done towards preparing the foundation for the lock. A convenient and prepared quarry can speedily be made to yield the remainder of the stone required, and the contractors have other facilities for prosecuting the work next season.

DAM AND LOCK AT CROTON. SECTION No. 14.

This work which has been under the immediate charge of M. M. Hayden, Esq., assistant engineer, has been prosecuted with vigor during the past summer, and although the persevering contractors, Messrs. Walker & Co., have been prevented by the numerous freshets and other causes from constructing their dam, yet they have borne up against the failure of the funds and completed the lock, partly on their own resources.

This lock is a strong, handsome and cheap structure, the face stone being cut and regularly coursed. The work is far superior to the rubble masonry contemplated by the specifications, and reflects credit on the enterprising contractors. The larger portion of all the materials for the dam have been furnished, and the entire work can be completed in one season.

PLYMOUTH WORK. SECTION No. 15.

The principal part of the stone for the lock and dam at this point have been procured, and if the lands above Fort Des Moines are secured to the State, this work will be vigorously prosecuted, and perhaps completed next season.

DAM AND LOCK AT BONAPARTE. SECTION No. 16.

This work which has been under the immediate superintendance of John B. Knight, Esq. is further advanced than any other work on the line. This lock was the first one completed on the improvement, in a superior style of masonry, and reflects credit on the energetic contractors; Messrs. Wm. Meek and Sons, who have furnished their own means to do nearly all the work. The numerous freshets have seriously delayed the work on the dam, and will most probably prevent its completion the ensuing winter; but it is so far advanced as to ensure it being finished early next spring.

BENTONSPORT WORK. SECTION No. 17.

The dam and lock at this point were commenced this season, and although delayed and injured by the freshets, like the other river jobs have been vigorously prosecuted by the industrious contractors, Messrs. Brown and Sanford, and are so well advanced that their completion early next summer, is entirely practicable. At this point the first lease of water power has been made to Messrs. Green and Brothers, late of Ohio, who have already laid the foundation for a paper mill, the first in the State, and the the first fruit of the Des Moines river improvement.

It will be important to go on with the locks and dams, as soon as practicable, as the timber and plank, of which large quantities have been delivered, and are the property of the State, will speedily begin to decay unless put into the work. The construction of the dams and locks now under contract, and commenced, will clear the river of the old dams, except the one at Keosauqua, furnish constant and almost inexhaustible water power, and make the river navigable several months every season, even before the canal is finished.

The following estimates of the cost of the work up to, and including the Bentonsport work, are based upon the contract prices, and the aggregate cost will be increased should the suspended work be permitted long to remain in its unfinished state. I have faithfully endeavored to show the cost of the canal by itself, and also the separate cost of the dams and locks so far as they are in progress of erection. I have not sufficient data to go minutely into the detail of each item in the dams and locks between Bonaparte and Ottumwa, but from the data which I have, comparing the quantities and prices with the contract prices on similar work below, I estimate the remaining seven dams and locks at $298,784 00. Add to this the sum required to finish the ten miles of canal and the six dams and locks which have been commenced, and we have the sum of $599,660 00, the amount it will require to complete the improvement from the mouth of the river to Ottumwa.

For the cost of the improvement from Ottumwa to Fort Des Moines I would refer you to the estimates contained in your late Chief Engineer's report, No. 3, which will not fall so far short as the first estimates below; the work above Ottumwa being estimated at prices ranging considerably higher than the same kind of work now under contract.

Although the cost of the work will much exceed the first estimates, yet the canal nor the locks and dams will cost more than similar works in other portions of the Union. The cost of the canal per mile is $27,538 00, and the dams and locks from St. Francisville to Ottumwa will cost $7,538 per mile. Including the ten miles of canal, the whole improvement from the mouth of the river to Ottumwa, will cost, according to my estimates, $9,344 per mile. A good rail road through any portion of our State, will cost about twice as much as the slack water navigation, exclusive of the ten miles of canal.

Before closing this report I must express my obligations to my Principal Assistant, Samuel Jacobs, who has faithfully labored with me during the past year in superintending the work, and making the difficult measurements and calculations necessary to determine accurately the amount of work done on the suspended canal, and the total cost of the remainder of the work. Also, to M. M. Hayden, Assistant Engineer, and John B. Knight, Superintendent, for their fidelity in superintending the work under their charge.

Respectfully submitted,

GUY WELLS,
Chief Engineer.

ENGINEER'S REPORT, No. 3.

KEOKUK, September 1, 1849.

To the Board of Public Works:

Since my last report to the Board, which was dated on the 20th November, 1848, the contractors on the Des Moines River Improvement have encountered a series of difficulties which could seldom occur on any other work during the same period of time. Up to the period of my report, the improvement had prospered with great energy and success; and no casualties had interrupted the rapid and profitable prosecution of the work: but in December the rain, and snow, and sleet came with extraordinary severity, and up to this time the contractors have been visited with a succession of reverses, which have been as incessant as they have been calamitous. Besides the loss of time experienced during such a season as the past, every thing is calculated to increase expenses. Continued storms impair the roads, injure the stock, augment the price of provisions, cast a sickly gloom over the work, and deter hands from seeking the employment. Never did contractors encounter a more unfavorable winter! This was followed in the spring by a succession of high floods in the river, accompanied with gorges of ice, which, raising a dam on section five, threw the water over the work and surrounding country, on both sides of the river, carrying away material from the contractors, fences and cattle from the farmers, and in several instances destroying human life. With the approach of summer came the ravages of cholera; and finally, when the pestilence had abated, and the river had fallen so as to admit of active operations, we were again visited with extraordinary floods of water, which have caused another suspension of the most important part of the work. I review with painful regret the accidents of a year which has left so many monuments of desolation and distress! Pursued with this train of adversities, the contractors have still contended with disasters, and faithfully prosecuted the tiresome and unprofitable work. Some have advanced with unusual success; and none of them—however much they have grieved over the loss of long and weary months of toil, and the sacrifice of private means—have despaired of final success, and turned away from the work. On the contrary, all have encountered their losses as their varied abilities permitted them, and continued their labors with increasing energy and zeal. Starting at the lower end of the work, and passing up the line of canal and river, a casual observer would see, by the miles of embankment and excavation, and the accumulation of timber, and plank, and cut stone, that the enterprise and energy of the contractors have made such an impression on the face of the country as to ensure the successful completion of the first fifty miles of the work.

Some idea may be formed of the relative success of the workmen, by submitting a statement of the estimates and payments on each contract up to the time of the last payment, which was made on the 6th ult.

The following table shows the number of the sections, the name of the contractor, the amount of work estimated, the amount deducted as security for the completion according to the contract, and the amount due the contractor and paid:

Only three of the sections—which were awarded to certain men on credit at the August letting—have been commenced. These three are in connection and continuation of the line of work contracted at the first, June, letting, as follows:

Section 15—Messrs. McCune of Ohio. This is the dam and lock at Farmington. A fair commencement has been made and extensive preparations are making for the prosecution of this work next season.

Section 16—Messrs. Meek & Sons, Bonaparte.

These contractors have progressed with extraordinary energy.—Most of their face stone is cut for the work, and a large proportion of all the material is delivered and ready to put into the work. The recent rise delays the progress of the walls.

Section 17—Messrs. Brown & Sanford, Bentonport.

The contractors at this point have also a large amount of material prepared, and should the water subside in time, they expect to put in a part of the dam and lock during the present fall.

I regret that I have not had time or assistance to estimate the value of the work done on these three last named sections, in time to insert the amounts as in the cash contracts; but I have seen enough to satisfy me that this part of the line will be completed as soon as the more precarious work which we are erecting at the "Yellow Bank" narrows below.

We have therefore under contract and in successful progress all the work necessary to carry slackwater navigation from the mouth of the Nassau slough up to Keosauqua; a distance by the meanders of the river, of 50 miles, and by the line of improvement (ten miles of canal cutting off $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles,) forty-seven and one-half miles. Enough to show the character of the work, and enough to overcome some of the worst obstacles to the present navigation of the river. All this work can be completed next season, and I confidently rely on its being open for navigation in the spring of 1851.

The accidents of the season to which I have before alluded, do not fall alone on the contractors. The river has been washed deeper at the Yellow Banks where our embankments are to be placed in the river, and a large increase of earth and protection is therefore to be added to the cost of the work.

These floods have displayed the Des Moines in its most terrible aspect, and exhibited dangers which had never before been witnessed by the inhabitants of the country. The rise above low water varied at different places from 15 to 17 feet; and by removing old decaying timber which had never before been removed from the roots or stumps where they had fallen, I infer that no greater rise has occurred on the upper portion of the river, at least for thirty years past. Though the rise of the river was extraordinary for the Des Moines, it was only about half the elevation that occasionally occurs on other rivers that have been similarly improved, and it was not so sudden and accompanied with such masses of drift, as occurs on streams draining the country east of the Mississippi. We are only apprised of the extent of the danger we have to contend against, but not deterred from the prosecution of the enterprise. Banks and lock walls, must in every instance, be made higher than I formerly anticipated. A short canal has been located at Keosauqua, which will overcome about two feet fall at that place and save two feet of elevation in the Bentonport dam.

A lock has also been determined on at dam No. 1, St. Francisville, to accommodate the people of Missouri, who very much desire it; and also to allow a passage by the river in high water, if an accident occur to the canal. All these are items of enlargement, which will add to the cost, and were not anticipated in my former estimates, except so far as they were met by the item denominated "contingent expenses." But with all these additions, after looking over and carrying out the contract prices of the various items, and including liberal estimates for the precarious work at the "yellow banks," I am not certain that the work as awarded and contracted below Ottumwa, will exceed my former estimate in round numbers of 500,000 dollars. I have urged the concentration of force at the "yellow banks" during the approaching season of low water, with a view of pushing these hazardous sections beyond the reach of another freshet. The contractors have taken the work at their own risk, yet it will be perceived the State has incidental interests which are likewise in jeopardy; and the accidents to public works are often so great as to overwhelm individuals, who invoke the generosity and magnanimity of the state and find relief when they have no remedy in the halls of justice. Every means should therefore be concentrated on these precarious points during this fall and winter, so as to place the work as far as possible beyond the influence of another spring flood.

SURVEYS AND LOCATIONS ABOVE OTTUMWA.

In my last report I informed you that the survey of the work above Ottumwa had already commenced, and that it was my expectation to reach the Racoon fork ("Fort Des Moines,") by the middle of Deember, I joined the party in the field, which in my absence had progressed about twenty-six miles above Ottumwa, in charge of my principal assistant, Mr. Wells.

Up to this period, the river had continued open, and observations of the banks and bed of the river had been limited and unsatisfactory, though the labor had been tedious and extremely disagreeable.

On the night of the 6th December, our camp was drenched with rain, covered with snow, and frozen with sleet. The thermometer fell below zero, and on the morning of the 7th, the river presented a sufficient covering of ice to admit of certain and convenient observations.

Our measurements pursued the centre line of the river, sounding, sketching, leveling, and all necessary points could be determined with ease and accuracy. The extreme cold and accumulation of snow induced me to confine my winter observations to the river proper; leaving the further examinations, and location of side cuts, to a spring and summer campaign.

Having carried the river surveys up to the Racoon Forks, I found it too late in the winter to report results which could be used before the adjournment of the Legislature, and I therefore deferred submitting any of my determinations, until by subsequent labors, executed during the past summer, I am prepared to lay before you an entire system, carrying slack-water navigation, as contemplated by the act of Congress, up to Racoon Forks.

The river gradually narrows as we proceed up the main channel, passing its numerous tributaries; it being about six hundred feet wide near the mouth, five hundred near Ottumwa, and less than four hundred at the Racoon forks. Most of the tributaries enter from the south-west; and naming them as we proceed above Ottumwa, on that side, we have the two Avery creeks, which have their confluence within half a mile of each other, between the 101st and 102nd mile, measuring by the river from its mouth; Miller's and Gray's creeks, which enter near together, and near the 109th mile; Bluff creek, at the end of 114th mile; Coal creek, near the end of the 121st mile; "Cedar river," (so called by Mr. Nicolet,) near the end of the 126th mile; English creek, 136½ miles; "White Breast," 149½ miles; South river, 174½ miles, 128 feet wide at its mouth; Middle river, 179½ miles, 90 feet wide at its mouth; North river, 188th mile, 102 feet wide at its mouth; and Racoon fork, 202 68-100 miles, 158 feet wide at its mouth. A little below the Racoon, the Des Moines measures 359 feet, and a few rods above, it measures 330 feet wide. On the North side, as we proceed up from Ottumwa, the streams which may be considered worthy of note are the Muchakinok, near the end of the 110th mile; and at the town of Eddyville, Waffachuck, 147th mile; Calhoun's creek, 157½ miles; Walnut creek, 166½ miles; and Camp creek, 173½ miles. The distances thus stated correspond to the marks on the mile trees which were made above Ottumwa, after deducting the 2½ miles gained by the side cut at the lower end of the river. In round numbers, the distance from the mouth to the Racoon, measuring the line of the river and including this 2½ miles, the distance is two hundred and four miles. The surface of water at the Racoon forks, is three hundred and eight feet above the surface of water, in the Mississippi. Mile trees are marked generally on the north side of the river, but the plan of improvement which I have to present will materially shorten the distance, and these mile trees will therefore only be useful as points of reference, to be used during the construction of the proposed improvement. The bench marks, which show the elevation of different points above the Mississippi, are more important, and I therefore attach a table of them to the end of this report. Above the Ottumwa bend, the river continues very straight about thirty miles, when commences a succession of tortuous bends, which continue to the Racoon fork. These can only be understood by referring to the map which accompanies this report, and by further descriptions which I will give as I detail the work, designed to avoid some of the most objectionable curves. The banks of the river are rather low above Ottumwa, and the bottoms are from one to two miles wide. Rock bottom is generally found at intervals of from three to eight miles, extending across the river, convenient and safe for the foundation of our dams and locks. The only exception is at Bell's bend, to which I will further allude when I speak of that link of the chain which I have denominated "Bennington Canal." All the necessary material is found convenient, and in great abundance. Masses of sand stone suitable for face work, lime stone suitable for making lime and cement, and timber suitable for cribs and gates may be procured every where along the river.

In considering the best mode of improving this upper division, the low bottoms, the long reach of sandy foundation near Bell's bend, and the irregular curves, have presented the greatest difficulties which we have to encounter, and the system of dams, locks and canals here presented, are designed as far as possible to modify and overcome these difficulties. To present the entire chain of the proposed improvement in this upper division, I will commence at Ottumwa, where my former locations ended, and adopting the usual order, follow the upward direction, giving a description of each consecutive part of the work as we proceed toward the terminus at the Racoon forks.

OTTUMWA WORKS.

The dam below Ottumwa (at Sugar creek) is designed to raise the water over the rocky bed of the river in front of this town, as I have said in my former report. Here the river makes a strong curve to the south, so that a canal one mile in length, running almost due west, strikes the river at another angle where the stream resumes its general direction north-west. The water is to be turned into this canal by a dam erected on the rocky ripple a few rods below the upper end of the canal, and opposite a large island. Making a sufficient spill to pass all the water of the river on the east side of this island, a dike is then to be extended from the west end across the west channel to the bluff, so that no water shall pass except it fall over the dam on the rock foundation which we find convenient on the east side. The canal commences at the upper end, in the edge of the prairie, where the cutting is ten feet; and following the declining surface, the line soon falls into a ravine which we pursue, so that one embankment on the south side of this ravine is all that is required to make the canal. By keeping out from the bank, which forms the natural north side, we secure near the lower end a commodious basin, which will accommodate the business of the place, and connect with the rock level in front of the town, so as to secure an excellent location for our lock, and also furnish a good foundation for mills which can be erected below the lock. This lock will have a lift, according to this arrangement, of 736-100 feet; affording an excellent water power, at a point of much importance in this part of the State.

The dam which diverts the water into the Ottawa canal, backs three feet of water up to dam No. 15, township 72, range 14, Section 9. The rock here runs entirely across the river, but the water is deep, which adds to the height of the dam. The lift at this location is only six feet, but in this, as in some other places where the water is deep, the height of the dam, which is estimated from the average bottom, is more than double the lift. In this instance, I have estimated the dam at 15 feet high, though the head, we have to contend with, will be but six feet.

BELFONTAINE WORKS.

The dam at Rocky Ripple is projected sufficiently high to carry navigation up to the terminus of the Bellfontaine canal, at Wright's Sec. 27, T. 75, R. 17. This canal leaves the river about one mile above the town of Bellfontaine, at a slough which leads down the side of the bluff on the north side of the Des Moines. By carrying the embankment straight, a large basin is left on the second mile, and the canal for a mile in length is thus made wide enough to pass several boats abreast. The entire length of this canal is three miles and forty-one hundred feet; and saves in the line of navigation three miles and two thousand two hundred and twenty-two feet. It is generally easy excavation and embankment, except at the Narrows, (2,200 feet,) where the canal runs along the edge of the river, so as to throw the embankment into the water. Earth and stone are here adjacent to the embankment, and the river has a rock bottom where the embankment is required; so that this point of Narrows is entirely different, not being so precarious or expensive as those we are now contending with at the Yellow Banks, on the lower canal; where stone has to be hauled from eight to ten miles. At Wright's we have rock bottom to terminate and erect our lock on. Here we have a lift of nineteen feet. It will furnish an immense water power (19 feet fall,) at a beautiful location on the river, where it can never be overcome by floods.

The dam (No. 20,) which throws the water into this canal, is located on rock foundation at Bellefontaine. It has a lift of 14 feet, so that a great water power may also be located at this place, which being on the south side of the river will accommodate the county of Marion. As the canal and river separate for some miles, I would recommend a lock also in the dam at Bellefontaine, so that the river will not be cut off from navigation.

The dam at Bellefontaine is unusually high, for the purpose of flowing the water up to the next good foundation. At ordinary stages, it will not overflow the extensive bottom above Bellefontaine on the south side of the river; but it will keep standing water in the slough which meanders through this bottom. If the slough were straight, it would afford another cut off which would shorten our line of improvement; but the slough is too crooked for steamboat navigation, and will only be useful to the neighborhood which may find it convenient for sending out timber into the river, and thence to the saw mills which may be erected at the dam. A little cutting would enlarge and straighten it so as to make it suitable for steamboats; and at some future day the navigation will justify the expense, for the saving of distance, which may be two miles. It can be done in the winter by draining down the water in the dam, and is here only alluded to as a matter to be considered after the accumulated business of the river will seem to require the work.

Passing through the Bellefontaine canal, we enter the pool created by dam No. 20, which carries us up to rock bottom at Wm. George's Sec. 3, T. 75, R. 18.

DAM NO. 21—WM. GEORGE'S.

This is a lift of only 4½ feet, sufficient to carry us up to another point of rock bottom. By increasing this lift at Wm. George's dam No. 21, to 10 58-100 feet, we could flow up to the mouth of white Breast canal, dispensing with the intermediate work at Amsterdam. The banks, however, on both sides, are very indifferent at dam 21; and the wide bottom above would be inundated. At Amsterdam we have a better location, and material is more convenient; so that I have divided this into two dams, making dam No. 21 a very low lift, making estimates to this effect, and leaving the matter for further examination to determine the expediency of uniting the two, by raising dam No. 21 to 10 58-100 feet lift.

DAM NO. 22.—AMSTERDAM.

This is a salient point of the river, wisely selected by the Hollanders as an important location for a town, which they have projected as an adjunct to the flourishing settlement which they have so well commenced in this vicinity. It is not however a favorable point in the line of our work to admit of a greater concentration of lockage, as the bank of the river is rather low, the bottoms wide, and adjacent works are necessary at Wm. George's below, and at the coal bank four miles above. The lift of the lock at Amsterdam will be 5.45-100 feet or in round numbers five feet and a half. This will be sufficient to afford a fine water power, which can be conveniently located and applied on rock foundation at the north end of the dam.

WHITE BREAST CANAL.—DAM NO. 23.

The dam at Amsterdam is designed to flow sufficient water, to make an easy location of the lock and mitre sill at the terminus of White Breast canal, which I shall now describe. I have named this work after the stream White Breast, an important tributary which enters the Des Moines from the south-west, immediately above the point where we design to erect a dam, and take out our proposed canal. This side cut, only one mile and 30-100 in length, cuts off a long bend of the river, and establishes our line of navigation so naturally on the general north-west direction, that after the location is determined its propriety seems so obvious, that I give myself no credit for its projection. The line of the canal follows the valley of a slough, keeping generally some distance from the bluff to avoid deeper cutting which would be the consequence of a nearer location. Approaching the lower end of the canal, the ground falls below our canal bottom, so that we approach nearer the bluff with the canal, at the same time carrying the line of embankment north, to secure a spacious basin near the lock, for the accommodation of boats. The dam is located on rock, but the north bank of the river is low, and a long dike is necessary to protect the dam, and avoid the overflow of "White Breast Prairie," which is now occasionally inundated.

RED ROCK.—DAM NO. 24.

Passing through the White Breast canal, we enter the pool created by dam No. 23, which flows sufficient water up to the bend immediately below the village of Red Rock, where we have projected another dam and lock. The river was open at this bend when I passed it in the winter, and too high when we arrived there with our instruments this summer to admit of full and satisfactory examinations. The rock bottom extends across the river, but the channel is deep and rapid; and the dam will have to be constructed in deep water. Fortunately stone of the best quality is found in isolated blocks and massive cliffs immediately adjacent, convenient for the construction of any modified plan to suit such a work. To avoid flooding Red Rock, I have located a dike up the river bank, and through the upper part of the town extending to the bluff. The lands on the south side of the river opposite Red Rock, are occasionally inundated, and our dam will unavoidably increase this tendency to overflow. At low and ordinary stages these lands will not be flooded, so they will not be destroyed but injured. Such will be the effect at other places, but not to any great extent. Our dikes and other arrangements are designed to avoid these consequences; and when the work is under full success, and lands become so valuable as to justify the expense, a part of the revenue arising from the improvement can be applied to the farther extension of dikes, so as to avoid all inundations.

BENNINGTON WORKS.

The dam below Red Rock flows the water up to the lower, end of the long and singular bend of the river known in the vicinity as Bell's bend; where we have projected another side cut denominated "Bennington Canal," from the name given to a new town commenced at the upper end of it. It will be readily seen by referring to the map, that a short canal from shoulder to shoulder of this bend, would save several miles of navigation; and it would overcome a considerable portion of the fall which is included in the canal as finally determined. My first design was to propose this short canal which I explored through deep snows with a flattering hope of an easy cut off; but I was sadly disappointed when I sought for a location at the upper shoulder, suitable for erecting the requisite dam.

The rock which is found at this point on the north side of the river, extends but a few yards into the channel, and the river bed is mainly composed of loose material. The south bank of the river is a sandy beach, which rises in the distance only to a low prairie. A poor prospect was displayed for miles below; the iron rod furnished no evidence of a suitable foundation for miles above; and we encamped on the stormy night of the 15th December; snow ten inches deep, and thermometer below zero, with gloomy prospects in view of the farther progress of the Des Moines River Improvement. Fortunately this character of the river only extends about six miles above this bend; when at the new town of Bennington—sec. 9, T. 77, R. 21—we find good rock foundation, a high bank on the north side of the river; and fair bank on the south, where we can erect dam No. 25, and carry out on the north side of the Des Moines, the longest and most expensive side cut on the upper division of the improvement. The dam at Bennington, with a short cut of eight feet, turns the water into a valley which soon acquires the form of a natural canal, sufficiently deep and otherwise suited, with a little enlarging, for a steamboat canal. The first mile following down this ravine requires but little more than grubbing and clearing. Leaving this valley on the second mile, we cross a ridge of eight feet cutting, and descend into an old channel of the river, a wide deep estero,* which we follow for near half a mile: Leaving this broad deep canal at the commencement of the third mile, we pass a summit with ten feet cut, and in four stations enter another slough, which we follow, curving out of it at the 22nd station, and passing a summit near Walnut creek with a cut of ten feet. The ground falls below bottom at Walnut creek, which will require an aqueduct of 25 feet span, with two stone abutments. Leaving the valley of Walnut creek, the cutting gradually increases till we pass a summit at Thomas Carr's, on the fourth mile, of ten feet cutting: Here the canal falls into a low bottom, and pursues the side of the bluff, requiring only one embankment on the south side. On the 13th station of the 5th mile we strike another wide estero, where we lock down ten feet into this beautiful sheet of water. The lockage of ten feet will furnish a great water power which is entirely out of danger from floods, and will be therefore uninterrupted by backwater. For half a mile we follow this estero; and thence pursue the foot of the bluff till we strike the river Narrows on the 39th station of the 6th mile. Here we have a river embankment seventeen hundred feet long, which can be formed of the earth and stone, of the adjacent bank of the river. After passing this point of Narrows, our canal pursues the foot of the bluff across Bell's Bend, where we again enter the river at the lower shoulder of this bend, descending into the pool of 14 45-100 feet lift.

*NOTICE.—The Spanish word ESTERO, is applied to lakes which connect with a river, in contradistinction to LAGOON, which has no such connexion. I prefer it here to the provincial application of the word SLOUGH, so common in this country, and which applies to every species of river bed, with or without water; while the word ESTERO applies only to a particular kind of SLOUGH, one containing water, and connecting with the river.

We thus terminate the Bennington canal, on section 28 Township 77, Range 20. It is six miles and four thousand feet long, avoids the low bank and bottom adjacent to Bell's Bend, overcomes twenty-four and one half feet fall, and saves in the line of navigation five miles seven hundred and eighty feet.

LAFAYETTE WORKS.—DAM NO. 26.

To avoid too high a dam at Bennington, which would overflow "Democrat prairie" and jeopardise our work, I have located a short canal at Lafayette, placing our lock below the fall which occurs at the bend, where we design to build dam No. 26. This is a short canal easily constructed, but the lock will require a timber and plank foundation, which adds very much to the cost. The canal is 3,400 feet long. The dam is in deep water, with similar convenience for getting stone to that named at a similar position below Red Rock.

DUDLEY WORKS.

The river at Dudley makes a long narrow bend to the North, which we cut off by a canal eighteen hundred feet long, saving three and one-third miles. The dam is located at the North extremity of the river curve, and nearly a mile and one-half below the point where we take out the canal. By this arrangement we place the dam on a good rock foundation, and have a good bank to abut against on the North side of the river.

To prevent the river from turning the south side, I have surveyed and estimated a long dike, which would be equally necessary if we dispensed with the canal. The lock at the lower end of the canal will have 8 80-100 feet lift, affording a convenient and valuable water power on the east side of Dudley.

COAL BANK CANAL.

Ascending the river above Dudley, we find it divided by "Minner Chute" and other sloughs, the main channel making a strong curve to the north, displaying a noted coal bank at the salient point, where the current is so rapid, and the river so narrow and crooked, that it is difficult for boats in high water to avoid disaster. Coal Bank Canal is designed to simplify the navigation through this complicated topography, and we have named the work after the most prominent local object in the vicinity. Some modification may be necessary at the extremities of this canal, as vegetation was so rank and dense as to render it extremely difficult to establish details. Centre stakes are driven at the end of hundred feet stations, on this as on all the other canals, and the curves are carefully protracted as sections of parabola; but clearing the ground will give an opportunity to shorten the curve at the upper end and improve the terminus below. This canal, the last in the series, is two miles three thousand feet long, and saves in the line of navigation, three miles six hundred and thirty feet. The lock at the lower end of the canal will have a lift of sixteen feet, and this is the only lock I have considered expedient at this work. If deemed necessary, another lock may be located in the dam to admit of a passage by the curve of the river; but the water is deep where the dam is located, making it difficult to establish a lock, and the route by the river is so difficult even in high water, that I have thought best to rely on the proposed canal above as the line of navigation.

The crest of the dam which turns the water into Coal Bank canal, is projected 309 79-100th feet above the water in the Mississippi river. The pool of the upper dam is 6 88-100 miles long, which carries us up to Racoon Fork. Allowing for the inclination of this upper pool three-tenths of a foot per mile, the water would be raised at the forks (Fort Des Moines,) 3 feet above the level of December 22, 1848; and therefore give from 4 to 5 feet in the two branches at Racoon Fork.

I have thus detailed all the various works which I recommend as a combined series sufficient to secure slack-water navigation "from the mouth of the Des Moines river to Racoon Fork." The distance by the meanders of the river is two hundred and four miles and sixty-eight hundredths, and by the line of the improvement as designated by the blue line on the map one hundred and eighty-three miles and sixty-eight hundredths; showing a saving in distance by all the canals, of twenty-one miles. Including the canal now nearly finished at the lower end of the improvement, we have proposed eight canals; the aggregate length of all being 27 miles.

There are 28 dams, and two intermediate locks on canals; making 30 locks on the line of improvement. All the canals are carefully located, and the center cut or fill marked on stakes driven every hundred feet. The estimates have been made at higher rates than the average contract prices of the lower or first letting, because I apprehend an increase of the price of labor and provisions as the work progresses. I have given the items of the work at each point, so that prices may be tested by persons residing in the vicinity, and are familiar with the cost of stone, timber, &c.

In determining quantities, I have taken center cuttings every hundred feet in the canal lines, and made allowances for greater quantities where the ground required on the side cuts. The material in the dams, has been determined by the application of the plan of crib dams with perpendicular tumbles applied to each particular location. As all the dams are on rock, I consider this plan (a drawing of which is here submitted,) entirely sufficient. There will be repairs needed frequently on any crib dam, but this plan is much stronger than those now erected for mills on the river, the highest of which (that at Thoms') has a lift of 7 feet, and stands very well. The lock walls are calculated for heights to admit navigation through them at high water; so that at low water, when the lift is greatest and the pressure most powerful, we have a superincumbent wall to aid in support of this pressure. Without taking into account this superincumbent wall, I have estimated the thickness of the masonry sufficient to resist the pressure of the greatest head that can occur when a pool below the lock is drawn off, so as to withdraw the influence of back water. By applying these principles I have estimated the average thickness of the walls at from 6 to 10 feet, and this average is to be so disposed of, as to increase the mass of masonry where the quion post and other causes increase the pressure; and diminish the mass where the pool of the dam or other causes remove the pressure. I name this because it is easy to augment the cost of a contract by increasing the amount of material; and it by no means follows that you increase the strength of the work as you add to the material. A bridge for instance may be broken down by needless weight of timber, and a dam may be weakened by an increase of buoyancy and additional leverage by addition to the length of timbers. States loose thousands, yes, millions, by needless waste of material, and it is here that ignorance can lavish and intelligence save the means applicable to this improvement. Engineering is a proximate science, but it constantly finds application of fixed sciences which properly understood and directed, secure the greatest economy in the work. It is the quantity more than the price that augments the cost, and it is in the use and calculations of quantities that the States and companies should fear the greatest loss. Few are competent to determine losses occasioned by errors in plan, and errors in the execution of plans; so that few can perceive the economy of science, when they do not understand the loss of wasteful experiments. I have estimated the value of the work of the Des Moines River Improvement as I think liberally; its cost depends on the management of the work. A cash letting I have no doubt could now be made below my estimate, but some items will always be suggested in the progress of a work which cannot be anticipated. If the board had the available means to apply to the work, there are many important reasons in favor of its immediate construction. Provisions are cheap, and labor can be procured low.—Material is also cheap, and other improvements have not been made, so as to require a large item to be set down for private damages. The settlement of the country would be accelerated by its early construction and the work would secure a precedence which would be of great advantage in view of other works that are contemplated and certain to be made.

When completed, according to the plan here proposed, it will be seen, that by the improvement the distance from the mouth of the Racon Forks, will be in rotund numbers one hundred and eighty-three and a half miles. The mouth of the river, according to M. Nicollett, is in north latitude 40 degrees 20 minutes and 43 seconds—and in longitude 91 degrees 32 minutes 30 seconds. The Racoon Forks are in latitude 41 degrees 24 minutes 44 seconds—and longitude 93 degrees 37 minutes 7 seconds. These observations show that Fort Desmoines is 124½ miles West, and 73 miles North of the mouth of the Desmoines, and the straight line from the mouth to Racoon Forks is therefore 144 miles; which determines the difference between the straight line and the line of our improvement to be 30 miles. The road usually traveled varies almost the same, and a rail road which may be located on the ridge parallel to the river, would not save much in the distance, compared with the river improvement. Steamboats pass the improved locks on the Kentucky river, Monongahela and Muskingum in less than eight minutes, the time therefore required for passing 30 locks on the Des Moines improvement may be safely put down at 300 minutes, or 4½ hours. Boats can run on the pools faster than they can on the Mississippi, and therefore I think at the rate of 15 miles an hour, which for the whole distance of pools and canals would be less than 13 hours add two-thirds of an hour for casualties and you have my estimate of the time required for packet boats to pass from the mouth to the Forks—18 hours. Lockage time on such an improvement is not lost time; because landing passengers and freight can always proceed during the same time, and business will assume such a form as to apply every moment of the lockage time to the business of commerce.—The time therefore which will be required to pass this improvement, will be sufficiently reduced to compete with stage travel by the road, and the business and travel of the Upper Des Moines country will justify the employment of a line of packet boats between St. Louis and Fort Des Moines, as soon as the improvement can be completed. Steamboats of 500 tons burthen run on the Muskingum improvement where the locks are much smaller than those we are constructing on the Des Moines. Transportation of freight will therefore be cheaper, even if it is made to pay the same exorbitant tolls.

Without going into details of comparison, I estimate the freight on a barrel of flour from Racoon Forks to the mouth of the Des Moines, at 25 cents a barrel, and on wheat 8 cents a bushel. Much depends on the amount of toll required to pay for work and keep up the improvement; and I make my estimate by comparing it with what it costs on public works of this kind elsewhere. By flat boats it would cost about one half this sum, i. e. $12\frac{1}{2}$ cents a barrel for flour, and 4 cents a bushel for wheat.

In time and expense, and certainty, the plan of the Des Moines improvement will compare favorably with any improvement in any State, and the more I consider the country which is likely to contribute to its commerce, the more certain I am of its great importance.

Let us suppose all the commerce within ten miles of the Mississippi will be hauled into Keokuk on wagons, and suppose ten miles from the lower end we appropriate only the business within 5 miles, and say ten miles back from the Mississippi, the improvement will carry off the surplus within 5 miles on each side. Go up to Racoon Forks, and it is certainly fair to say this improvement, with its milling and manufacturing power and other inducements, will draw in the trade within 60 miles of Racoon Fork. Indeed at sixty miles distance, there is no prospect of a rival to the Des Moines improvement, and reference to the map will show that such is the distance to the Missouri, Mississippi and all other streams from Fort Des Moines; that we cannot doubt the reasonable prospect of this point being the center of business for a country one hundred miles West and North-west of it. But assuming 60 miles, and it now commands "this extent," we have a surface ten miles wide at the east end, 120 miles wide at the Forks, and, without counting anything for ten miles nearest the Mississippi, 134 miles long. To this area must then be added a semi-circle with 60 miles radius, which lies west of Fort Des Moines; which being computed gives for the surface drained by the Des Moines improvement, 14,364 square miles, or 9,092,960 acres of land. This is what I consider the country immediately attached and tributary to this river. There is a vast country north-west of Fort Des Moines, the Coteau des Prairies, which will send a portion of its products down the upper branch of the Des Moines. The Des Moines is longer above Fort Des Moines than below. It rises, according to M. Nicolet, in the Shtetek Lakes, latitude 44 degrees 3 minutes—longitude 90 degrees 1 minute 30 seconds; a point 138 north and 144 west, and therefore in a straight line 200 miles from Fort Des Moines. Some improvement will be made to secure an outlet for the products of the country, and the most natural one will be by the valley itself, which according to M. Nicolet is peculiarly adapted to water navigation. He says "the hydrographical relations of the Des Moines with the Mankato, St. Peters and Mississippi rivers, present a geographical incident of some interest.

By referring to the map in 43 degrees 45 minutes—longitude 95 degrees 12 minutes, (a point 161 miles above Fort Desmoines,) it will be seen that there is a lake very near the Desmoines named Tchan Shetcha, or Dry Wood Lake. The Wautanwau river, which is a tributary to the Mankato, that empties itself into the St. Peters, has its source in this lake. Now the tongue of land separating the Desmoines from Tchan Shetcha lake, is not more than a mile to a mile and a half broad, so that, were a canal cut across, the water of the Desmoines would be made to communicate with those of the St. Peters." This not only shows that others have conceived the idea of improvement of the river above the Racoon Forks; but the Shetek lakes and the connection with the St. Peters are indeed extraordinary incidents in favor of the future construction of such an improvement. I have before also alluded to the proximity of the Western terminus of the Desmoines improvement to the valley of the Nebraska; and here reiterate the probability of a connection with that valley, which will draw in a share of the trade and travel of the far West. But excluding the advantages which we may derive from extended works, and confining ourselves to the surface I have suggested as the legitimate field which is destined to produce a commerce for this river, and the importance of the work is enough to command the united energies of the whole State. The county of Wayne, in the State of Ohio, produced in 1840, according to the census of that year 1,763,741 bushels of the various cereal grains, wheat, corn, rye, &c. It now no doubt produces more than 2,000,000 of bushels. The Desmoines country, that I have been considering, is decidedly richer and more capable of producing those grains than the county of Wayne, but taking this as a unit, then the area drained by our improvement would with the same culture produce 42,000,000 of bushels. This is only one item, to which may be added the wool, potatoes, hay, apples, manufactured articles; to say nothing of the coal, and the mineral products, that will swell the annual wealth of the country, and enlarge the commerce of the river. Settlements are now rapidly extending over all parts of this area, and such is the ease of preparing and cultivating the soil, that I hazard the opinion that ten years of labor in this section of country, will do more towards perfecting a farmiug district, than can be effected by 40 years of the same amount of labor applied to a heavy timbered county like the county of Wayne. Counties on the Desmoines, which commenced their settlement five years since, now send on a large surplus of cereal grains, besides a greater surplus of horses, beef cattle and hogs. These considerations demonstrate, that we cannot easily over estimate the products of this country or too soon prepare a market for its accumulating surplus.

An important item of commerce on this river will be derived from the mineral products of the valley to which I have before alluded.— Stone coal appears to increase in quantity and quality as we proceed up the Desmoines. It is found in many places in bluff banks, where it can be wheeled directly from the mine into the boat; and we may form some idea of the convenience of mining from the fact that with the imperfect arrangements now adopted, it is delivered at the mouth of the coal bank at Fort Desmoines, at two and a half cents per bushel. This is the bank belonging to Mr. Van, and I suppose is no more than a fair specimen, since I found the strata of coal in different places to vary from two to eight feet in thickness, and this stratum at the Forks is about five feet thick.

As this Desmoines coal field is the farthest west, it is of great importance to the Mississippi valley, and it will be matter of interest connected with the proposed rail road to the Pacific, since this valley will probably offer the nearest and most convenient fuel to supply the destitute country west of the Missouri river.

Gypsum (plaster paris) is found near fort Des Moines in large cliffs of inexhaustible masses, and at present prices in St. Louis, it would be a profitable article of commerce if the improvement were completed. The magnesia lime stone, and the white, red and yellow sand stone which prevail in great abundance along the entire length of the improvement, are so excellent and easily prepared for building purposes, that they will also some day be carried to towns on the Mississippi.—The rough and rocky head lands near the mouth, at "Cowpen's old mill," at "Raven Cliff," "Elk Bluff," and the beautiful mountain of "Red Rock"—all noted land marks that have stood for ages as silent and gloomy sentinels, guarding the clear bright river that flows at their base—will be rent by the blast and broken by the workmen; and their fragments will be removed and erected into mansions which will adorn the cities on the Mississippi, and the valleys and hills of the surrounding country.

Respectfully submitted,

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION,
Iowa City, Iowa, Dec. 2, 1850. }

*Gentlemen of the Senate and
House of Representatives :*

It becomes my duty under the provisions of "an act to establish a system of common schools," approved, January 15, 1849, to submit for your consideration a statement of the progress of our common school system subsequent to the date of my last report. In doing so, I do not hope to communicate anything that will be peculiarly interesting or instructive. If I succeed in presenting such facts as may serve to convey even an imperfect idea of the operations of the law, and to direct your attention to those portions of it which require legislative action, the end I have in view is attained.

In order that no serious inconvenience might result from the changes made by the passage of the act above referred to, immediately after it took effect, I had fifteen hundred copies of it, accompanied with an explanatory circular, printed in a temporary form, and transmitted to the respective counties, which, together with the circulation it obtained through the medium of the public prints, enabled the people to become sufficiently familiar with it to transact such business as was most essential at the time. Early in the following spring, I commenced the preparation of a pamphlet, of about one hundred and forty pages, embracing the several acts for the management and disposition of the school fund, the location of the State University, the establishment of a system of common schools and the instruction of the deaf, dumb and blind, with such forms, comments and suggestions as were deemed necessary to produce uniformity, and render the duties required less difficult to perform. The work was completed and delivered in the month of July following. I proceeded without delay to forward it to the school fund commissioners, with instructions to give it as general a circulation as the limited number of copies printed would permit. It soon became necessary, however, in consequence of the increased demand by the organization of new counties, to restrict the circulation to only a portion of the school officers. In the event the publication of a new edition is authorized this winter, it is hoped that a sufficient number of copies will be printed to give it a much wider circulation than it has yet had. We could not probably adopt a more effectual method of awakening that interest in the public mind, which the subject of education demands. I feel warranted in saying that such are the wishes of the people. I have met with hundreds of our citizens who knew comparatively nothing about our school system, from the fact that they had been unable to obtain the law. Every family in the State should have at least one copy.

The distribution of the law was attended with a good deal of delay. This was particularly the case with the interior counties, there being but little communication with most of them, which would admit of the transmission of the requisite number of copies without great inconvenience and expense. I have succeeded however in supplying every organized county, in which a school fund commissioner has been elected. I have out of the three thousand copies printed, only forty on hand. Five times the number could have been distributed profitably and would not more than have answered the demand.

During the present year I have travelled extensively through the State, and lectured wherever it was practicable to do so. While I did not find that degree of prosperity among the public schools which is desirable, yet I am happy to state, that in every neighborhood I visited, districts had been organized and schools established, and a desire was manifested by the people to become familiar with the duties required under the law. In the new counties the settlements are so isolated, that it is unreasonable to anticipate as much solicitude on the subject, as might be expected under different circumstances. But this inconvenience is temporary, and will soon be obviated by the rapid growth of the country.

As a matter of convenience in referring to the various subjects embraced in this report, I propose to classify them in the following order, giving under each particular head every thing that naturally pertains to it :

SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

Under the law of February 25, 1847, the power to form school districts and to alter and change the same as they might deem advantageous was vested in the school inspectors, but under the present law it is assigned to the fund commissioners. In a circular under date of June 4, 1850, I instructed them in reference to this particular duty as follows :

“Under the new school law it becomes your duty to divide your county into school districts, and to have the same organized, where it has not been done. To enable you to do this I would suggest that you make or procure a plat of the county, with the municipal townships, streams, &c., correctly delineated upon it. Then collect the books and papers from the inspectors, from which ascertain as accurately as possible the boundaries of districts formed, and the alterations subsequently made, by them and their predecessors, which you will sketch on your plat with a pencil. This will afford you an opportunity to examine the whole subject, and to distinguish between those districts which have been legally organized and those which have not, in determining which you should apply to the first section of the supplemental act of January 12th, 1849, in connection with such other information as may be gathered from the records of the inspectors. You will then mark the boundaries of those districts which you conceive have been regularly organized, with ink, record all the facts connected with your examination and decision, and proceed to divide the unorganized territory into districts as may best suit the convenience of the inhabitants, and order meetings for the election of officers as provided in the 33d section of the new school law. I conceive that authority is conferred upon you by the 29th section to change the boundaries of a district whenever you may think it expedient, without a petition, but the petition referred to in the latter clause of the section would compel you to do it regardless of your own views respecting the change. There is but one day specified in the new law for the election of district officers in organized districts, namely : the first Monday in May of each year, but in the formation of new districts, you can order the election whenever you think proper. In organized districts, therefore, which failed to elect officers in May last, the old officers should qualify and give bonds under the new law, (the moderator as president, the clerk as secretary, and the other member of the board as treasurer,) and continue in the discharge of their duties till the first Monday in May next, or "until their successors are elected and qualified." The same course should be pursued where the election in May is considered defective, or illegal. Where organized districts have been left entirely without officers, by removal or otherwise, you will immediately order an election, and post up notices, or appoint some person to do it, setting forth the particular object of the meeting, in accordance with section fifty-three of the school law. Districts composed of parts of counties, must be formed by the concurrence of the respective fund commissioners, and each of them should make a record of the fact."

In accordance with the above suggestions they proceeded to examine the district organizations of their respective counties, the result of which was that a large proportion of them were found defective. In many cases the inspectors had kept no record of their proceedings, and in others where partial records had been kept, the commissioners were unable to obtain them. Much confusion had grown out of these irregularities prior to the passage of the present law, which the facts developed by the investigation served to ripen into open hostility. Under these circumstances the commissioners determined to reject such organizations as could not satisfactorily trace their legitimate existence, and to institute new ones in their stead. Their action being generally acquiesced in by the people, harmony was comparatively restored. Subsequent to this period some doubts arose as to the effect of the petition provided for in the latter clause of the 29th section of the school law. The controversy in regard to boundaries was soon renewed, and the fund commissioners were literally besieged with petitions and remonstrances. With the hope of allaying the excitement, and of fixing some definite and general rule of interpretation, I presented my views on the subject in my circular of January 25th 1850, an extract from which it may not be improper here to insert:

"The formation and alteration of school districts appears to be a source of much perplexity. This duty is at present assigned to the fund commissioners, but their action, in a great measure, is controlled by petitions from the districts, as provided in the latter clause of section 29, page 41. For instance, if one of two adjoining districts desires its boundaries so changed as to include a portion of the territory of the other, by presenting a petition of two thirds of the legal voters to the fund commissioner, they can compel him to grant it, unless a counter petition of two thirds is presented by the other district, the effect of which would be to leave the line as it originally stood, and settle the controversy in reference to that particular change. Other changes, however, might still be proposed, each of which would be disposed of in the same manner, unless some one should be proposed to which both districts would accede. Again—the fund commissioner may make such an alteration without a petition, but even then a petition of two thirds from the district effected would compel him to restore the original line, unless a counter petition of two thirds, from the district in whose favor the change might be made, should sustain him.”

This construction was favorably received with but few exceptions, and served in a great measure to check, but not effectually to remove the evil. Indeed nothing but additional legislative provisions will do it. While authority is given to any officer or officers to alter the limits of school districts either with or without the consent of the people, it will be a source of trouble. To insure success in the establishment of schools, the boundaries of our districts must be permanently defined by law.

INTRODUCTION OF THE BIBLE.

It is well known that the introduction of the Bible into the public schools of some of our sister states has been a matter of controversy, but I am happy to say that no such controversy exists in Iowa, and I trust never will. Our law is silent on this subject, and so I think it should remain. The responsibility now rests where it properly belongs—at the door of parents and guardians. Those who wish their children to study the Bible in the district school, are indulged in that wish, and those who do not wish theirs to study it thus, are also gratified in their preferences. From this principle I think we should not depart. Should there be ninety-nine children in one of our public schools, whose parents desire they should use it, and one, whose parents are averse to it, we are bound alike in both cases to respect their wishes and protect their rights. While I venerate this sacred volume, and would that every child in our land should be taught the divine precepts which it inculcates, yet I am not in favor of forcing it upon the consideration of a single individual by arbitrary enactments: and upon the same principle, I could not consent to abridge the rights of those who may wish to study it themselves, or to have their children instructed in it. I conceive then that the correct doctrine is, neither to introduce, nor exclude it by law.

SCHOOL HOUSES.

I have uniformly urged the propriety of erecting permanent school houses, where it was at all expedient to do so. The repeated changes that have occurred in the formation and alteration of school districts have exerted a dilaterious influence in this particular. Yet many very creditable buildings have been erected. The town of Muscatine has rather taken the lead in the matter. It is divided (unfortunately I think,) into two districts, in one of which a neat edifice has recently been completed, 40 by 45 feet, two stories high, at a cost of about $2,500. The lower story is 11 and the upper 11½ feet high. In the other district a building 46 by 60 feet, two stories high—each story 15 feet—estimated cost $3,000—was commenced this fall and is to be completed early in the spring. Both houses are constructed of brick with a vestibule in front, and separate apartments assigned for recitation, library and apparatus. The seats and desks are to be constructed on the most improved plan. Thus, a town, occupying the third rank, in point of population, among those of the state, has contributed in the past year for this single object, the sum of $5,500. Such enterprise must be appreciated, and cannot fail to produce the happiest result. The citizens of Burlington have also been actuated by an equally commendable spirit, but have been much retarded in their operation by some misapprehension in regard to the formation of their district. A brick building 39 by 63 feet, two stories high, with five rooms—designed for 300 pupils—estimated cost $4,150 exclusive of the ground—is now under contract to be completed in August next. The lower story is 12½ and the upper 14½ feet high. The foundation was laid this fall, and the materials have been procured for the prosecution of the work in the spring.

The people of Dubuque moved in the matter in the summer of 1849, and during the present year completed two brick buildings, 25 by 40 feet each, and one story, 11½ feet high. Each house is divided into two apartments, intended for 40 scholars. The total cost of both buildings, exclusive of the ground, is about $1,300. It is to be regretted that a town possessing such ample resources and facilities for building, should have adopted the policy of erecting school houses so totally inadequate to the wants of the community. I am advised however that a larger and more durable building is in contemplation, and it is to be hoped that those interested will consult their own present and future welfare, in giving it such proportions as shall correspond in some degree, with the prosperity and future prospects of the place.

In the town of Ft. Madison a tax of $2,500 was voted in May last for the erection of a school house, but owing to some diversity of sentiment produced by a subsequent division of the district, nothing definite has yet been done. It is believed however, that the difficulty will be amicably settled, and the building erected in the course of the coming summer. There are other instances among the interior towns where a corresponding interest has been manifested, but it is impracticable to enumerate them in this limited notice. The towns to which I have referred are the oldest in the State, and consequently we have reason to expect more from them. Many very neat and comfortable school houses have been erected in the valley of the Des Moines, and in the northern and western counties during the last two years. In numerous instances the districts have been unable to build in consequence of the great inconvenience in procuring lumber and other suitable materials. From what has already been accomplished, it is confidently believed that the work will be resumed in the course of the next summer with renewed vigor. The impediments that now exist will gradually be removed, so that in the process of time we can accomplish in a few months, the labor of years under existing circumstances.

I cannot permit this opportunity to pass without reiterating in part what I have heretofore said in regard to the erection of school houses, and in doing so my remarks are intended to apply more particularly to those portions of the state, where the settlements are such as to admit of permanent buildings. In providing the means of education, two specific objects should be kept in view—to secure the most efficient mode of instruction, with the least possible cost and labor. That these ends are to be attained by the construction of temporary school houses, where permanent ones are required, I think no one will contend. Suppose for example, that in providing for the instruction of 2000 children, we should apportion them among 100 schools, giving to each school 20 pupils. The first step would be to erect 100 school houses, which, to be at all comfortable, would cost at least $300 each, making $30,000. In addition to this, 100 teachers are necessary, each of whom must be just as competent to govern and instruct, as though he had 100 pupils under his charge. Such teachers could not be procured for a less compensation than $20 per month, which for a term of six months would make $12,000. This added to the amount for the erection of buildings, would make $42,000, the cost of instructing 2000 pupils for six months, being $21 for each pupil. Suppose now we concentrate them in one school. A building adapted to their wants can be erected for $15,000. The children being classified, 40 teachers can instruct them, and allowing the same compensation per month as in the former case, we have for tuition $4,800, which added to the amount paid for the house gives $19,800 as the cost of instruction for 2000 pupils for six months, or $9.90 for each pupil, being a reduction of more than one half in cost, saying nothing about the labor saved by the classification of the pupils. This illustration is not designed as a correct criterion in regard to the cost of instruction, but simply to show the difference between the two modes under consideration. That the last named prices admit of a still further reduction, there is no question. I visited one of the ward schools in New York last fall, where about 1700 children were concentrated in one building, under one teacher as principal, and twenty-three subordinate and assistant teachers. The effect of adopting this plan in the eastern States is, that the pupils can be instructed in all the branches taught in the best schools, for about $6.00 per annum. Parents have frequently complained to me that they are paying $20 per annum each for the instruction of their children in our most ordinary schools, and have enquired what method they should adopt to obtain relief. My answer is—erect permanent and commodious school houses—concentrate and classify the children. And I would add for the benefit of those districts, which are hesitating in the matter, that there is a wide difference between simply beating the bush and catching the bird. In plainer terms, while some districts are wrangling about the propriety of the thing, others have consummated the work, and are reaping the benefits.

Under this head I wish to invite your special attention to a work entitled, "School Architecture," an octavo volume of about four hundred pages, with nearly three hundred illustrations, by Hon. HENRY BARNARD, at present State Superintendent of common schools for Connecticut. The retail price of the work is two dollars per volume, but I am assured by the author that we shall have it for the use of the State at the greatly reduced price of one dollar per volume. I would therefore respectfully and urgently recommend that the sum of $200 be appropriated for the purchase of a corresponding number of copies, and that the superintendent of public instruction be authorized to procure the same at an early day, and to deposit at least two copies with each fund commissioner for the use of the respective districts of the county.

Mr. B. has been connected for many years with the public schools of Connecticut and Rhode Island. He is a gentleman of high literary attainments and refined manners, possessing all those amiable and social qualities which qualify him in an eminent degree for the position he now occupies. But few men in this country—I believe, I may safely say no man in this country, has manifested a deeper interest in the cause of popular education. In addition to his labors in the United States, he visited Europe in 1836, and devoted some thirteen months to an examination of the schools of that country. He is regarded by the educational men of the Atlantic states as one of the working men in the cause of common schools. Where any thing is simply to be talked about, there are others to whom the preference is justly due; but where plans are to be originated and carried into effect, having the mind to conceive and a hand to execute, the author of the work under consideration is selected for the task. The experience of nearly the whole life of such a man we find embodied in Barnard's School Architecture. When I first entered upon the discharge of my official duties, the inadaptation and uncouth appearance of our school houses called loudly for reformation, but I knew not what source to resort to for information, until I obtained possession of this admirable volume. Indeed I was not apprised that our country was in possession of a treasure of such value. In addition to the great variety of beautiful and symmetrical plans for school houses which it presents, it contains a fund of information which cannot fail to interest and instruct the friend of education, and to direct the mind of the enquirer into the channel of useful and efficient labor. I have recommended the purchase of only two hundred copies, and in view of the advantages to be derived by giving it a general circulation, not merely in obtaining convenient plans for school houses, but in the actual expenditure of means for their erection, I am persuaded that you will not hesitate to make the necessary appropriation for procuring them. Some of the older states have provided a copy for each township; and nearly all of them have ordered a greater or less number for the counties. To show that I have not placed an undue estimate upon the work, I beg leave to call your attention to a few extracts, which embrace the views of others more competent to decide upon its merits than myself.

Hon. IRA MAYHEW, late Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Michigan, says—

“This work is worthy of a place in every township library in the State, and should be consulted by every building committee before determining upon a place for a valuable school house. If it can be widely circulated in this State at an early day, many districts and a generation of children may be saved from the curse of a poor school house.”

Hon. HORACE S. COOLEY, late Superintendent of common schools for the State of Illinois:

“In order to render general the advantages to be derived from years of continued effort to perfect these plans, I recommend that provision be made for furnishing access, by every school officer in the State, to that most valuable of books, Barnard’s School Architecture.

Hon. HORACE EATON, State Superintendent of common schools, for Vermont:

“The Superintendent has named this treatise because, for the purpose contemplated, he knows of no better work, and he is disposed to say farther—that no better one is required.”

Hon. HORACE MANN, Secretary of the Board of Education, for Massachusetts:

“If a copy of Mr. Barnard’s book could be placed by the State in the office of the town clerk of every town, to be there kept for general reference, it would greatly improve the school houses to be hereafter erected, and would save in the expense of subsequent alterations a hundred times more than it would cost.”

Hon. T. F. KING, State Superintendent of public schools, for New Jersey:

"It would be a judicious expenditure of money, amply repaid by the benefits which would accrue to the children, if the legislature should direct the purchase of a copy for each township in the State, to be preserved in the office of the town clerk, and the attention of the legislature is respectfully called to the subject."

HON. CHRISTOPHER MORGAN, Superintendent of common schools, for the State of New York:

"Such a work has been published within the last year by HENRY BARNARD, Commissioner of public schools for the State of Rhode Island. It is entitled "School Architecture," and not only contains all that is desirable upon that subject, in the way of plans, specifications, instructions, and descriptions, but is a compendium of useful knowledge and practical suggestions upon every topic relating to common schools.

I do not hesitate to recommend to the Legislature to authorize the Superintendent to contract with the publishers for a number of copies sufficient to supply one for every district, and that the expense be deducted from the next annual appropriation of library money."

HON. SETH P. BEERS, late Superintendent of common schools for the State of Connecticut:

"The Superintendent is of opinion that a copy of this volume could with great advantage to the schools be placed in the hands of the committee of each district. Besides the fullest information on the subject of which it principally treats, it contains valuable hints and suggestions, respecting the classification of schools, books on the theory and practice of teaching, and on the different kinds of apparatus needed in schools of the different grades."

From the Democratic Review.

"Reader, if, as we hope, you are a fellow-worker to any extent in the great cause of education, take Mr. Barnard's book with you when you visit your district school—examine his models for school-houses, see what may be done with a little money, a little public spirit, and careful attention to details, and then go and do likewise. The district school is the pride of our country—may the day come when it shall be its ornament also."

From the Knickerbocker.

"MR. BARNARD'S book forms a neat octavo volume. It is every way worthy of his reputation as an authority on education. It is the text book on this very important subject of school architecture, a subject of humble pretensions, but an important branch of the great subject of national education."

From the Horticulturist.

"Mr. BARNARD is already widely known as the intelligent and indefatigable school commissioner of Rhode Island. In the present volume, he has brought all his information on this subject together, in a well digested and systematic form. We have rarely met with a volume more replete with truly valuable, practicable information."

From the Vermont Chronicle.

"No other writer on the subject is to be compared with Mr. BARNARD for the fullness and variety of his materials, and the completeness of his work in regard to all the points that are to be considered in the building and furnishing of school houses. The whole book is replete with information, and we heartily recommend it as one that ought to be accessible to every school district."

Well's School Grammar, by W. H. Wells A. M.

It will be seen, however, from the reports of the fund commissioners, that but little progress has been made in regard to uniformity. I find that teachers are generally prejudiced in favor of the books with which they have been familiar in the prosecution of their own studies, and their recommendation usually governs in the matter. One teacher, upon taking charge of a school, has his favorite books, and partially succeeds in introducing them. In three or six months his term of service expires, and he is succeeded by another, who repudiates those used by his predecessor, and recommends a new series. In this way the schools soon become overrun with an almost endless variety. I do not mean to apply these remarks to our teachers without discrimination, for some of them I am aware have labored faithfully to remove the evil. I speak in general terms of a pernicious custom, that prevails too extensively in the west. Families also, emigrating to the west, bring with them the books used in the region of country from whence they came, and from necessity or preference decline purchasing others, till the old ones are worn out. Book agents and publishers too, are entitled to no inconsiderable share of the blame. I do not wish to be understood as interfering with them in the legitimate disposition of their publications, but the conduct of that class of them who endeavor to impair the credit of valuable works already in use, for the sake of introducing their own, is certainly highly reprehensible. I am persuaded that but little can be done in the way of legislation to remedy the evil, till the country becomes sufficiently settled to justify statutory provisions of an arbitrary character. In the meantime teachers can do more than any other class of persons to produce reformation, by uniting upon some good series that can be introduced with the greatest uniformity and utility. School districts too can do much; indeed the work must commence with them. Let each district institute and enforce the proper regulations on the subject, and the desired end will soon be attained.

It will be proper, in this connection to remark, that a number of publications have been forwarded to this office for examination, but being unable to give each one a specific notice, I stated to the various publishers with whom I met, when east last fall, that I purposed establishing a library of school books, to be kept at the Superintendent's office for the benefit of teachers and others who might wish to examine them, and suggested to them that the most effectual method of directing the attention of the friends of education in this State to their respective works, would be to forward a copy of each to be deposited in it. Many of them have complied with this suggestion, and we now have in the library 295 volumes, embracing every variety of elemental, scientific and classical text books.

I would embrace this opportunity of extending a more general invitation to teachers and others interested, to call and examine them whenever it suits their convenience to do so. It will afford me pleasure also to communicate any information respecting them by correspondence. The Library is designed to be connected permanently with this office, and in process of time, with a little care, we may concentrate in it all the school publications of any note in this country, which will enable teachers and school district officers to inform themselves fully on the subject before they make selections.

REPORTS AND PERIODICALS.

In June 1848 I commenced the performance of the duties of Superintendent of Public Instruction, with but one document on the subject of schools before me—the school law of our own state. The inconveniences therefore under which I labored, can be readily imagined. But by correspondence, and exchanges effected with those connected with the public schools of other states, I have succeeded in collecting some 14 volumes and about 100 pamphlets of educational matter. While visiting the schools of the Atlantic and middle states, I purchased about 70 volumes and 140 pamphlets in addition to those above referred to. So the office is now supplied with one of the best collections of educational statistics in the United States, embracing the most authentic information concerning the schools of this country, and to a very considerable extent those of Europe. The collection which I purchased is a valuable one, and was procured on reasonable terms. Though not directly authorized to effect the purchase, in view of the benefits to be derived from it in founding a school system. I should have considered myself culpable, had I permitted so favorable an opportunity of supplying the demands of the State to pass without embracing it. By having immediate access to this fund of information, the duties of my successor will be rendered less arduous, and his services will be far more valuable to the State, than they possibly could have been under different circumstances. Those only whose time and thoughts have necessarily been much occupied with the subject of popular education are prepared fully to appreciate the advantages it affords, and it may be added that the experience of the past is perhaps more necessary in the investigation of this, than any other subject.

NORMAL SCHOOLS.

Under the provisions of "An act to establish Normal Schools," approved January 15th, 1849, I proceeded on the first of October of that year to divide the State into three districts, to wit:

The counties of Lee, Des Moines, Louisa, Washington, Jefferson, Van Buren, and Henry, shall compose the first district.

The counties of Alamakee, Clayton, Dubuque, Delaware, Buchanan, Jackson, Jones, Linn, Benton, Clinton, Cedar, Johnson, Iowa, Scott, Muscatine, Tama, Marshall, and Story, and all the unorganized country north of township eighty-five north, shall compose the second district.

The counties of Davis, Appanoose, Wapello, Monroe, Lucas, Keokuk, Mahaska, Marion, Warren, Madison, Poweshiek, Jasper, Polk, Dallas, Boone, and Pottawatamie, and the unorganized country south of the northern line of township eighty-five north, shall compose the third district.

At a meeting of the trustees of the state university prior to this time, I presented the names of individuals suggested, by the people of the respective counties in which the schools were located, as trustees. The recommendations were unanimously concurred in, and the Secretary of the Board was instructed to give the necessary notice of their appointment. The names of the trustees at Andrew were forwarded accordingly, but those for the schools at Mt. Pleasant and Oskaloosa were accidentally mislaid by the secretary, and consequently never transmitted. Owing to this fact but little has been done at the two last named points. At a meeting of the citizens of Mt. Pleasant, a committee was appointed to procure subscriptions for the erection of suitable buildings, but no definite action has been had at Oskaloosa. When my attention was called to the matter some months subsequently, I made repeated efforts to convene the board of trustees with the view of supplying the deficiency, but was unable to obtain a quorum. An interest was manifested by the people of both places, but having no organization they were unable to proceed. The school at Andrew was organized on the 21st of November 1849, under Mr. Samuel Pray as principal, and Miss J. S. Dorr, as assistant. A convenient and commodious building was procured temporarily, and the first term of the school immediately commenced. The school is divided into two departments, primary and higher. The higher department is subdivided into three classes, junior, middle and senior. The course of instruction is similar to that adopted by the state normal school of New York, accompanied with lectures by the principal on the theory and practice of teaching, astronomy, natural philosophy and physiology. There are two terms of twenty-one weeks each—the first commencing on the fourth Monday in August, and the second on the first Monday in February of each year. One hundred and fifty pupils have been admitted the present year, three of whom are instructed free of charge, having obligated themselves, as the law requires, to teach in the common schools of this state for three years. In April last Mr. Pray was succeeded by Mr. D. G. Jones, and Miss Dorr, by Miss M. J. Burtoo. A permanent building is now in process of erection, the estimated cost of which when completed, is $2,000. Of this amount $1,000 has been raised by subscription, and expended under the direction of the trustees. The building is 30 by 50 feet, two stories high. The lower story is 10½ and the upper 12 feet high. The former is designed for the primary department, and will contain 75 pupils. The latter, for the higher department, accommodates 100 pupils. Provisions are made in the lower story for library, apparatus and recitation. The financial statement shows that the sum of $931,03 has been expended for compensation of teachers and contingent expenses, and $443,31 received on tuition for the current year, leaving a deficiency of $487,72. Many other facts of interest concerning the progress and future prospects of the institution are presented in the report of the secretary, Mr. J. B. Dorr, but the claims of other topics, to be embraced in this report, render it impracticable that I should refer to them more at length. No aid has yet been received from the university fund, from the fact that no portion of the university lands have been disposed of. The connection existing between the Normal schools and this fund will be further considered under a more appropriate head.

DEAF, DUMB AND BLIND

Under "An act to provide for the instruction of the deaf, dumb and blind" approved January 15, 1849, eleven persons have been reported to this office, and certificates have been issued in their favor, by the undersigned to the Auditor of State. The following is a list of their names with their respective ages, and the amount drawn by each from the Treasury.

Names	Age	Imp'd- ment	County	Date of Certificate	Amount
Helen A. Brabrook,	10	d & d	Scott	June 18, 1849	$100 00
Dennis A. Dewey,	11	"	Johnson	" 20, 1849	100 00
Saphrona Wellington,	23	"	Louisa	Oct. 2, 1849	100 00
Josephine Porter,	10	b	Johnson	Jan. 7, 1850	50 00
Rhoda Bowen,	24	"	"	" 16, "	50 00
Susannah Huston,	12	d & d	Dallas	" 25, "	50 00
John F. Wendel,	13	b	Jackson	" " "	50 00
Elizabeth Matthew,	16	d & d	Davis	Feb. 19, "	50 00
Augustus J. Garden,	19	"	M'h'ska	April 24, "	50 00
William Gunn,	14	b	Clinton	May 18, "	50 00
James Gilliland,	20	"	Johnson	Oct. 10, "	50 00

The total amount drawn from the appropriation for the deaf and dumb is $450 and from that for the blind is $250. The sum appropriated for the former was $500 and for the latter $250. Each applicant is restricted to $50 per annum, and this privilege only extends to two years. In view of the great expense to be incurred by the parents of these afflicted children, I would recommend a very considerable increase of this appropriation. At the American Asylum, for the instruction of the deaf and dumb, at Hartford, Conn., the charge for each pupil for board, lodging, washing, fuel, lights, stationery, tuition and incidental expenses of the school room, is $100 per annum, payable six months in advance. In the New York institution for the deaf and dumb it is $130 per annum; clothing and travelling expenses excepted, or with clothing furnished $100, payable semi-annually in advance. In the Illinois deaf and dumb asylum, at Jacksonville, it is $80 per session (from first Thursday of October, to the middle of July) for board, washing, fuel, lights, tuition, books and everything necessary except clothing and travelling expenses. The terms of the Pennsylvania institution for the blind, at Philadelphia, are for board, tuition and incidental expenses (clothing not included) $200 per annum. In the New York institution for the blind, the charge, exclusive of clothing, bedding and furniture for rooms, is $130 per annum, payable quarterly in advance. From five to seven years are necessary for a thorough course in either of these institutions. The above statement will serve as an imperfect criterion in making the necessary appropriation. We have but few of these unfortunate persons among us, and certainly no objection can be urged against making liberal provisions for their education, and such it will be remembered is the express object for which the appropriation now solicited is intended. Even with an education they labor under serious disadvantages, but without it their condition is truly a deplorable one. In making the necessary amendments to the present law, or in the passage of a new one, it is respectfully suggested that a specific sum should be designated for the education of each class of persons—say for the deaf and dumb, each $500, and $600 each for the blind—$100 to be paid annually. A receipt from the principal of the institution at which the child is educated, should be procured by the parent or guardian, and filed with the auditor or superintendent.

The instruction of the deaf, dumb, and blind, has recently become a matter of deep interest, and the efforts made for their relief have been attended with great success. The compositions of pupils when they first enter the Asylum, are scarcely intelligible, and give evidence that they have but a crude and imperfect idea of the structure of our language, and yet after they have been under a course of instruction for five years, there is a conciseness and beauty about their style of expression, that we seldom find in the productions of those whose faculties are unimpaired. They are also instructed in the various useful avocations of life. Some of the finest specimens of hand-craft that we meet with in the way of willow baskets, paper boxes, fire screens, brushes, door mats, toy waggons, chairs, bead baskets, reticules and purses, and the various kinds of fancy needle work, are manufactured by the blind while pursuing their studies. Thus a double end is accomplished. They are educated mentally and physically (the best kind of education by the way) and are prepared to go forth into the world and procure a livelihood by their own exertions. I had the pleasure of witnessing some of the exercises of the blind in Philadelphia and Boston, and of the deaf and dumb at Hartford, which were truly astounding, and sufficient to convince any reasonable mind that some of our ripest scholars and most useful citizens will yet be found among this class of persons.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

In regard to the literary department of this institution, nothing has been done since the adjournment of the last General Assembly. The law and medical departments were organized on the 21st of February, 1850, in the manner indicated in my last report. Prior to this time the "College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Upper Mississippi," had been established at Davenport. The trustees, considering it impolitic to attempt the organization of two institutions of this character, at so early a period, upon mutual consultation with the faculty of the one at Davenport, determined to recognize them as the "College of Physicians and Surgeons of the State University of Iowa," and the following gentlemen were appointed members of the faculty.

NICHOLS HARD, M. D. Professor of Anatomy and President of the Faculty.

JOHN F. SANFORD, M. D. Professor of Surgery and Dean.

SAMUEL G. ARMOR, M. D. Professor of Physiology, Pathology and Clinical Medicine.

GEO. W. RICHARDS, M. D. Professor of Theory and Practice of Medicine.

A. S. HUDSON, M. D. Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

D. L. MCGUIGAN, M. D. Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children.

HENRY M. MATTHEWS, M. D. Professor of Chemistry and Pharmacy.

J. C. HUGHES, M. D. Demonstrator of Anatomy.

In September last, the "Western Medico-Chirurgical Journal," edited by J. F. Sanford, M. D., and Sam'l. G. Armor, M. D., was established. It is a neat octavo periodical of about sixty pages, and is replete with useful and instructive matter. I infer, from the character of the numbers before me, that the editors design making it truly a western Journal, in which the diseases peculiar to the Valley of the Mississippi will be duly considered. The untiring zeal manifested by the Faculty, having for the present to rely for pecuniary aid exclusively upon means raised by their own exertions, warrants me in recommending that a reasonable appropriation be made at your present session for the benefit of this department of the university. The present condition of the Institution is more clearly set forth in the following report of the Dean of the Faculty to the Board of Trustees:

To the Hon. Board of Trustees of the State University of Iowa:

In response to a memorial from the "College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Upper Mississippi," your body, on the 21st day of February, 1850, recognised and established that Institution, as the Medical Department of the State University of Iowa. The act by which this connection was established, containing certain provisions, and delegating certain privileges, was transmitted to the undersigned by the Secretary of the Board of Trustees, and by him submitted to the Faculty of the Medical College, at the meeting held on the 26th day of February, 1850. The provisions referred to, were duly considered by the Medical Board, and the act containing them, with its various requisitions, was unanimously acceded to. The connection between the Medical College of the Upper Mississippi and the State University being thus consummated, the recognized board, viz; Dr. A. S. Hudson, Saml. G. Armor and J. F. Sanford, proceeded to fill the Faculty by the appointment of a sufficient number of competent Professors, and J. F. Sanford, having been elected Dean, was ordered to issue an announcement for a spring session, in the name and under the auspices of the State University. The course of lectures thus announced, opened on the second Monday in March last with a respectable number of Medical students, and after going through a prosperous session of sixteen week, conferred the regular degree of Doctor in Medicine upon nine gentlemen, and the Honorary degree upon Doctor R. D. Barton, of Van Buren county, Iowa.

Previous to the close of the session referred to, various circumstances had forced the conviction upon the minds of the Medical Faculty, that the interests of the Medical Department of the University, would be greatly enhanced, by removal to a more populous town than Davenport. The most important consideration influencing them in this respect, was the increasing demand on the part of Medical Associations and Medical men, for clinical privileges, and extended opportunities for cultivating practical anatomy, in connection with the courses of instruction in Medical Colleges. The importance of these facilities to a thorough and scientific course of Medical lectures, was deemed so great by the American Medical Association, as to justify, in their opinion, a requirement from the schools, that they should constitute essential parts of Medical instruction.

Wishing to sustain the interests of the Institution, to justify and merit the confidence of the profession, and ultimately make it an ornament and a blessing to the State, the Faculty resolved to relocate the College at a point, where the erection of Hospitals and the establishment of Infirmaries, would render clinical or practical teaching a reality, and where the opportunities for the prosecution of the fundamental branches of the Medical science would meet the demands and necessities of Medical students. One of their number was accordingly appointed and authorized to visit the cities and towns, in other portions of the State, and ascertain the comparative facilities presented, for the success of Medical teaching.

The result of his observation need not be detailed; suffice it to say, that having strictly in view the considerations above stated, the City of Keokuk was selected as the permanent seat of the Medical Department of the University, and an appeal was immediately made to the citizens, for aid in the erection of the necessary buildings. To this appeal there was the most enthusiastic response. Beautiful and extensive grounds, embracing eight full lots in the fairest part of the city, were donated by Mr. H. T. Reed, and the prompt and liberal contributions from every class of the citizens, enabled the Faculty to place under contract, an edifice, sufficient in its arrangements for temporary occupation, by the first of August.

Immediately subsequent to these arrangements, the annual circular, a copy of which is herewith transmitted, was issued, and the session opened according to resolution, on the first Monday in November, and on Wednesday evening, November 21st, the new college edifice was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. The medical class, now in attendance, is larger than was anticipated, and the catalogue for the present term, will embrace not less than fifty names.

This list will give assurance to its friends of the future eminence of the institution, and proves, contrary to what has been imagined, that the establishment of a medical institution in this State was not premature.

The city authorities, to further facilitate the success of the medical college, made a liberal appropriation, and placed under contract a commodious hospital building in immediate connection with the college, which will accommodate one hundred patients, and will be ready for inmates by the first of January.

The facts above stated will, it is hoped, elicit an early action on the part of your honorable body, approbatory of the change of location made by the faculty.

It is earnestly hoped, that the board of trustees of the State University may recommend to the favorable consideration of the General Assembly, this important part of the educational machinery entrusted to their care. To justify this recommendation, the following statements are made by the faculty, as an exhibit of the labor they have performed, and the expense they have incurred in the preparation for medical teaching.

Although a part of the collections referred to, are not immediately subsidiary to the courses of medical instruction, they are to a great extent interesting and useful to the student of medicine, who prosecutes a science having a more or less ultimate relation with every department of human intelligence.

In natural history about two thousand preparations, embracing principally specimens in ornithology and entomology.

In conchology and geology fifteen hundred specimens. These collections were made in the hope that, at no distant day, the Board of Trustees would establish, and the General Assembly endow, a chair of natural history and comparative anatomy.

The specimens and collections, more immediately connected with demonstrations in medical science, embrace about one thousand preparations, drawings and paintings in anatomy, surgery, pathology and obstetrics.

The chemical apparatus belonging to the college is one of the best in the western country. The instruments are all of the most modern construction, principally manufactured at the establishment of Benjamin Pike, of New York, and embrace every thing necessary to a complete and thorough course of demonstrative chemistry.

This exhibit will, we hope, convince your honorable body of the enthusiasm and pride that animates the medical faculty of the university. The further fact that they have twice sent delegates to the American medical association, first, to Boston, Massachusetts, and then to Cincinnati, Ohio, for the purpose of securing an honorable position amongst American schools of medicine, will, they hope, not only justify the confidence your body has heretofore reposed, but elicit further aid from the General Assembly through your recommendation, to enable them to carry out the highest objects of the institution.

The faculty beg leave respectfully to submit to your body, that some legislation, establishing their legal existence and relation with the university, would greatly benefit them. Amongst the most important provisions of this kind, are those making them an integral part of the university establishment of this State by special act, and in the same way, giving them the authority to confer the degree of doctor of medicine upon those, who, after examination, may be found worthy. Also, making the diploma, thus conferred, a license to practice medicine and surgery in Iowa.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

JNO. F. SANFORD, M. D.

Dean of the Medical Department, Iowa University.

December 2, 1850.

By the supplemental acts of January 15th and 16th, 1849, a branch of the University was located at Fairfield, and another at Dubuque.— At the latter place no steps have been taken to carry out the provisions of the law. The directors of the branch at Fairfield met in that place on the 6th of May, 1849, and organized by the election of Hon. Bernhart Henn president, C. W. Slagle, Esq., secretary, and Horace Gaylord, Esq. treasurer. The treasurer's bond was filed in this office as required by law. A site was immediately selected for the institution, and twenty acres of ground purchased on which to erect the necessary buildings. The plan adopted contemplates seven buildings, three in the rear and two on either side, forming a hollow square two hundred and forty by three hundred and sixty feet, with an open front. The main building is to be forty by eighty feet two stories high, the others thirty by sixty feet each, and two stories.— One of the smaller buildings has been erected and will be completed at an early day. The estimated cost is $2,300. The sum of $1,800 has already been expended. The directors propose to employ the necessary teachers, and commence the literary exercises of the institution next summer. For reasons heretofore stated, nothing has been received from the University fund. The degree of public spirit evinced by the citizens of Fairfield; in regard to this and other public edifices, is worthy of imitation, and shows clearly how much may be accomplished with limited means, when effort is properly directed. The term of three of the directors expires in May next, to wit—Messrs. Ristine, Slagle and Negus, the latter gentleman having been appointed to fill the vacancy occasioned by the non-acceptance of Samuel J. Bayard, Esq.

The agent appointed to select the University lands, has completed the work. I have been advised of the approval, by the Secretary of the Interior, of 35,603.30 acres, to wit :

In the Fairfield district,	12,881.00
“ “ Iowa City “	22,722.30
Total,	35,603.30.

The present law provides that these lands shall be disposed of by the board of trustees, in the manner prescribed for the sale of section sixteen, but before it can be done, some more specific legislation is necessary. The present board of trustees are so scattered over the State, that it is next to an impossibility to get a quorum together for the transaction of business. There is some ambiguity in the language used in defining the terms of sale. Whether the land is to be allotted and appraised by the township trustees and sold by the fund commissioners, or to be allotted and appraised by the township trustees and sold by the trustees of the University, or to be sold by the trustees of the University without such allotment and appraisement, cannot easily be determined. The present members of the board are H. W. Starr, S. G. Matson, T. S. Parvin, S. H. McCrory, G. Achison, W. G. Woodward, T. Snyder, H. D. Downey, J. P. Carleton, Robert Lucas, A. H. Palmer, C. Bates, D. P. Smith, C. Burnham, and Silas Foster. The term of the five first named expires during the present session of the General Assembly. The Governor is a member of the board, ex-officio. If the vacancies are filled as heretofore, it is hoped that persons will not be selected so remote from the institution, as to render their attendance upon the meetings of the board inexpedient. But the wiser policy, I am disposed to think, will be to remodel the law, and make such additional provisions as may be requisite for the permanent organization of the several departments.

As intimated in another part of this report, I now propose to notice more particularly the relation sustained by the Normal Schools to the University. By the terms of the grant, we have seventy-two sections, or 46,080 acres of land for the support of the latter institution, which at $1.25 per acre would amount to $57,600. The annual interest on this sum, at ten per cent. per annum, would be $5,760. Of this amount $1,500 ($500 to each) is to be paid annually to the Normal Schools, leaving $4,260 for the support of a University and two branches, being $1,400 for each, the parent institution and branches being placed upon "the same footing in respect to funds." Such a sum I think will not be regarded a very rich endowment for an institution dignified with the title of State University. The truth is, the whole grant is not sufficient properly to endow the parent institution, but with the necessary care would enable it to commence its labors under very favorable auspices. But it may be contended that my estimates are too low, which is probably true; for I am advised that a portion of the land will sell at five dollars per acre at this time. And I would here suggest the propriety of fixing the minimum price of the whole grant at two dollars per acre. The selections have been made with great care, and will certainly command this price in a few years. Indeed, if they had been made when the first agent was appointed, the land would now sell readily for from three to five dollars per acre.

In consideration of the foregoing facts, it is to be regretted that the normal schools and branches of the University were established in the manner above referred to. The original plan of connecting a professorship with the parent institution for the education of teachers, was certainly preferable. New York, with the experience of fifty years, and about two millions and a half of inhabitants, has but one normal school, while Iowa, with an existence of only four years, and less than one-twelfth of the population, has three. Other western States find it difficult, with the same facilities we possess, to establish one University, while we are attempting to foster three. If the existing stipulations are perpetuated, neither of the institutions can ever attain a very enviable degree of celebrity, and to abolish them unconditionally, after they have proceeded thus far in good faith, would not be equitable. I would suggest then, that a definite sum be set apart for each, of which they should have the exclusive control, without any further connection with, or claim upon the University.

In making these suggestions, I have been actuated by no feelings of hostility to either of the institutions named. Having no local preferences to gratify, they have been made more from a sense of duty, than from natural inclination. In the discharge of my official duties, I know neither north, south, east or west, but the State of Iowa, alike from center to circumference, is the object of my esteem and the field of my labors.

In my former report I suggested the propriety of providing for the collection of a Geological and Mineralogical Cabinet, for the use of the University, but as no legislative action was then had on the subject. I beg leave to renew my recommendation. The report of the superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin shows that they have already collected some four hundred and fifty valuable specimens for the University cabinet, and that arrangements have been made by which the number will be greatly increased in the course of the ensuing year. We cannot expect to compete with the older States in this particular, but it is hoped that we will not suffer ourselves to be so completely distanced by one scarcely our equal in years certainly not our superior in resources.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTES.

Teachers' institutes had their origin some years since in the city of Hartford, but were first known by their present name in the State of New York. "The special purpose of the meetings of an institute," says an eminent writer, "is, to serve as a temporary local school for the instruction of teachers. The brief course of lectures and exercises, on such occasions, is not intended to supersede a course of academic instruction, or of regular training to the vocation of teaching; whether that training be had in a special class at an academy, or in the more regular forms of professional education at a normal school. A teachers' institute proposes to its students a concise course of instruction in the theory and practice of teaching, adapted to common schools. It comprehends, necessarily, a practical review of the branches of education usually taught in such schools, and so secures, in part, the advantage of direct instruction in these branches, to all its classes. But this review is unavoidably rapid and superficial, and can never supply the place of a thorough going course of instruction in any subject. The lectures and exercises of an institute, involve an outline view of subjects, in the training of teachers to the proper modes of communicating instruction in them; and, thus far, they allow opportunity of presenting, in addition to the information contained in text books, not only the recent items of intelligence regarding the progress of knowledge, in particular departments of science, but, likewise, the systems and methods of eminent authorities and teachers, respecting the best modes of giving instruction in every department. To this extent, teachers' institutes offer peculiar advantages. But they pre-suppose a previous and well-laid foundation of knowledge acquired elsewhere." It will be seen then that they are not designed to supercede Normal schools, but simply to become their pioneers and efficient temporary substitutes—the very thing we need at this crisis. An institution of this character was organized a few years ago, composed of the teachers of the mineral region of Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa. One of its sessions was held at Dubuque. An association of teachers has also been formed in the county of Henry, and an effort was made in October last to organize a regular institute in the county of Jones, but, owing to the limited notice given, there was not a very general attendance. Several lectures were delivered, however, by gentlemen present, and arrangements made for another meeting. I regard the teachers' institute as the most effectual means that we can at present adopt to advance the prosperity of our schools, but its practicability is questioned on the ground that the expense attending it is greater than teachers, with a limited compensation, are enabled to meet. To remove this objection (a valid one I might add) therefore I would recommend that the sum of $150 be appropriated annually, for three years, to be drawn in installments of $50 each, by the superintendent of public instruction, and expended for the benefit of this institution. I propose that three institutes shall be held annually, at points designated by the superintendent or the General Assembly, and that $50 shall be applied towards defraying the contingent expenses of each, in such manner as a majority of the members may determine. In this way nearly all the teachers of the State will be brought together at least once a year for mutual consultation and improvement, and a favorable opportunity will be given for the presentation of their views in reference to text books and the best and most efficient methods of instruction. Teachers are a separate and distinct class of persons, and in order that they may be useful and successful in their peculiar profession, it is indispensable that they confer often with each other, and in no way can they do so more effectually than in the manner above proposed. Some of the older states have appropriated $2,000 per annum for this special object. The sum I have suggested is comparatively insignificant, but it will serve as the germ, or starting point of a great enterprise, and will form a nucleus, around which we hope to gather an influence that will ultimately pervade the entire State. In connection with the teachers' institutes in the several states, we now have a national organization. I allude to the NATIONAL CONVENTION OF THE FRIENDS OF PUBLIC EDUCATION, which held its first session in the city of Philadelphia, on the 17th of October, 1849. The second session was held at the same place on the 28th of August, 1850, at which time a constitution was adopted and the convention permanently organized under the name and title of the "AMERICAN ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF EDUCATION." The second clause of the constitution declares, that, "The object of the association shall be to promote intercourse among those who are actively engaged in promoting education throughout the United States—to secure the co-operation of individuals, associations and legislatures in measures calculated to improve education, and to give to such measures a more systematic direction and a more powerful impulse." The third session will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, on the 19th of August, 1851. Thus we have a complete national system of instruction—the district school, the normal school and the teachers' institute in the respective states, and the American association for the advancement of education, composed of delegates from these local organizations. It is difficult to conceive the advantages that are to result to the cause of common schools from such a combination of strength, and union of effort. There is another peculiar feature about the national association, which gives it additional weight—its archives are to be kept permanently at Philadelphia, under the care of the corresponding secretary—or in other words we have established at that place a sort of universal educational depot, in which to concentrate information from every portion of the civilized world—thus widening and deepening the channels of knowledge and increasing the avenues of light.

PHONETICS.

The imperfections of the English language have long been a source of perplexity to literary men. "Such is the state of our written language," says Sheridan, "that the darkest hieroglyphics, or most difficult cyphers, which the art of man has yet found out, were not better calculated to conceal the sentiments of those who used them, from all who had not the key, than the state of our spelling is, to conceal the pronunciation from all except a few well educated natives." About fifteen years ago Mr. Isaac Pitman, of Bath, England, being impressed with the truth of the foregoing remark, determined if possible to devise some new method of writing which would abridge labor, and at the same time convey without variation to the mind of the reader a correct idea as to spelling and pronunciation. This he accomplished quite to his own satisfaction, and published his first work on the subject in 1837. This led him to inquire into the propriety of adopting a similar method for printing. In the mean time Alexander J. Ellis, of Trinity College, Cambridge, had the same subject under consideration and was gradually maturing his plans. These two gentlemen, hitherto unknown to each other; became acquainted in 1843, and, in common parlance, by "putting their heads together," succeeded, with much labor and investigation and the aid and counsel of friends, in presenting to the world a complete system of writing and printing, now known as phonography and phonotypy—both comprehended under the general term which heads this notice. Phonography is a faithful representation of spoken language; in the briefest possible manner, consistent with perfect legibility. The alphabet is composed of a series of straight and curved lines, dots and dashes, circles and hooks, designed to represent each distinct articulate sound in the language. Phonotypy is printing according to sound: like phonography it is based on a correct analysis of the human voice, and has a sign for each sound; phonography then, is a brief and legible system of writing; phonotypy is a truthful and harmonious system of printing. A more correct idea of the system will probably be given by inserting a few extracts. The first is by Mr Pitman himself:

"The writing and printing reform consists in the introduction of a complete alphabet of forty letters, (which represent all the sounds of the English language,) and in the adoption of phonetic spelling. This alphabet is adapted to shorthand and longhand writing and to printing.

Phonetic shorthand, or phonography, is as legible as common writing; while it is written in one-fourth of the time, and with half the labour; and may be employed by the practised writer in taking verbatim reports of speeches, sermons, etc. Such is the simplicity of the art, that its principles may be mastered in a few hours; and an hour's daily practice for a month, in reading and writing, will enable the student to use it with certainty and some degree of freedom; while the same amount of practice, continued for four or six months, will enable any one who has acquired facility in ordinary writing, to take verbatim reports of lectures, etc., and to read them, after any length of time, with rapidity and accuracy.

Phonetic longhand is like our usual longhand writing, with the addition of facile manuscript forms corresponding to the new letters which have been added to the printing alphabet.

The phonetic printing alphabet is formed from the common Roman alphabet by rejecting the useless letters k, q, x; by using the remaining twenty-three letters in their most usual signification; and by adding seventeen new ones, to represent sounds which have hitherto been represented by two or more letters, each of which has an independent value of its own."

Opinion of Professor AGASIS, of Cambridge, Massachusetts:

"From an experience of one year I have satisfied myself that phonography will enable every one familiar with it to shorten far more than one half, all operations of writing or recording memoranda; a familiarity with this method will therefore double the time at our command in this respect."

Professor HART'S opinion, of the Philadelphia high school:

"Phonography has been introduced into this institution two years and a half, and has been learned by about four hundred. Two hundred are studying it now. It is one of the regular branches of the course, being attended to three times a week during the whole of the first year. I do not feel at liberty to express an absolute opinion on a subject comparatively so new, but am free to say that I have not, since the introduction of phonography, noticed any deterioration in the spelling of the pupils, or in their pronunciation. Had I not supposed it to be of much practical benefit I should not have urged its introduction, a measure which I have seen no occasion to regret."

Phonetic Printing.

That most practical of modern philosophers, Benjamin Franklin, observed in reference to the introduction of phonetic spelling, "sooner or later, it must be done, or our writing will become the same as the Chinese, as to the difficulty of learning and using it; and it would already have been such, if we had continued the Saxon spelling and writing used by our forefathers."

"The undersigned phonographers of Boston, beg leave to testify most explicitly and decidedly, that the study and practice of the art of phonography have not injured, but benefitted our spelling in the common style; that from our attention having been called to the subject by phonography, we are better able than ever to distinguish between words of the same sound, but of different spellings and significations; that nothing has conduced so much to our improvement in pronunciation as the study of phonography; that by saying a vast amount of time it has greatly assisted our progress in other pursuits; that so far from the "abundant sources of literary and scientific knowledge" being "closed up" to us, it has imparted a renewed taste for literary information and facilitated our advancement in scientific studies.

"We therefore give it as our unanimous opinion that the advantages resulting to the children of the High and Grammar Schools from the study of phonography would be much greater than any supposed injury based on speculative objections to the measure, can possibly be." Signed by Joel P. Bishop and twenty other phonographers of Boston.

"I have no hesitation in saying that I am greatly astonished! at what I have seen to-night, and am convinced that all that has been promised by Phonography may be easily performed,—that it is so clear as to be easily learned by every one of ordinary capacity,—and that the benefits to be derived from it are entirely incalculable."—John Bright, Esq., Member of Parliament.

"Phonography is a railroad method of communicating thought; a railroad by reason of its expedition, a railroad by reason of its ease."—Rev. Dr. Raffles, Liverpool.

"The present writer is prepared with facts by which he could verify the following position:—that if a child were taught at first on the phonetic principle, and, by graduated lessons brought up to a comprehension of the present orthography, his reading would be taught at half the time, half the trouble,—and consequently half the risk of having a distaste for learning engendered by the difficulties of his first studies—involved in the present system."—Dr. Latham.

From a partial examination of the system of Phonetics, and with this host of testimony before me, I hesitate not to say that I am fully convinced of its utility, and know of no reason why it may not be introduced into our schools at once. Indeed in some of them it is already successfully taught. I do not mean that we shall abandon our present system, but that the old and new shall be studied in connection, until the former is dispensed with by mutual consent. There are in this, as in all similar reformatations, quacks, but the system itself is based upon correct principles, and must sooner or later come into general use, and in order that we may have it in its most improved form, it behooves the literary and scientific men of our country to lend their undivided support in giving it the right direction in its infancy.

FIVE PER CENT FUND.

As many inquiries have been made concerning this fund, it may be well to refer briefly to its history. The "ordinance" appended to the constitution adopted for the State of Iowa, on the first day of November 1844, in which allusion is made to this fund in connection with other contemplated grants from the United States, was rejected by Congress in "An act supplemental to the act for the admission of the States of Iowa and Florida into the Union," approved March 3, 1845, and the following propositions submitted in its stead:

FIRST—That section numbered sixteen in every township of the public lands, and where such section has been sold or otherwise disposed of, other lands equivalent thereto and as contiguous as may be shall be granted to the State for the use of schools.

SECOND—That the seventy-two sections of land set apart and reserved for the use and support of a University by an act of Congress approved on the twentieth day of July eighteen hundred and forty, entitled "An act granting two townships of land for the use of a University in the territory of Iowa," are hereby granted and conveyed to the State to be appropriated solely to the use and support of such University in such manner as the legislature may prescribe.

THIRD—That five entire sections of land to be selected and located under the direction of the legislature, in legal divisions of not less than one quarter section from any of the unappropriated lands belonging to the United States within the said State, are hereby granted to the State for the purpose of completing the public buildings of the said State or for the erection of public buildings at the seat of government of the said State as the legislature may determine and direct.

FOURTH—That all salt springs within the State not exceeding twelve in number with six sections of land adjoining or as contiguous as may be to each, shall be granted to the said State for its use, the same to be selected by the legislature thereof, within one year after the admission of said State, and the same when so selected, to be used on such terms, conditions, and regulations as the legislature of the State shall direct: Provided, That no salt spring the right whereof is now vested in any individual or individuals or which may hereafter be confirmed or adjudged to any individual or individuals shall by this section be granted to said State; and, provided, also, that the General Assembly, shall never lease or sell the same at any one time for a longer period than ten years without the consent of Congress.

FIFTH—That five per cent of the nett proceeds of sales of all public lands lying within the said State which have been or shall be sold by Congress from and after the admission of said State, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be appropriated for making public roads and canals within the said State as the legislature may direct: Provided, That the five foregoing propositions herein offered are on the condition that the legislature of the said State by virtue of the powers conferred upon it by the convention which framed the constitution of the said State, shall provide by an ordinance irrevocable, without the consent of the United States, that the said State shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the soil within the same by the United States, nor with any regulations Congress may find necessary for securing the title in such soil to the bona fide purchaser thereof, and that no tax shall be imposed on lands the property of the United States, and that in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than residents: and that the bounty lands granted or hereafter to be granted for military services during the late war, shall, while they continue to be held by the patentees or their heirs, remain exempt from any tax laid by order or under the authority of the State whether for State, county, township, or any other purpose, for the term of three years from and after the date of the patents respectively."

By the second constitution, adopted on the 18th day of May 1846, this fund was applied to the support of common schools, which was at variance with the foregoing proposition of Congress appropriating it for "roads and canals." But, by the act of December 28, 1846, entitled "An act for the admission of the State of Iowa into the Union," which perpetuated "all the provisions" of the act of March 3, 1845, we were received into the Union unconditionally with the constitution of May 18, 1846. The plain inference therefore was that the conflict between the act of March 3, 1845, above alluded to, and the constitution, was reconciled by the sanction of the latter in the act of admission. A law for the management of the school fund was accordingly passed, by the General Assembly on the 25th February 1847, by which it was made the duty of the Superintendent of Public Instruction to receive the five per cent. fund. I made application for it in November 1848, but was informed by the comptroller of the Treasury, under date of January 10, 1849, that it could not be paid till he was officially advised of the passage of a law appropriating it in the manner designated in the supplemental act of March 3, 1845—for the construction of "roads and canals." I immediately addressed a letter, through Senator Jones, to our delegation in Congress requesting their interposition in the matter. Having satisfied themselves that additional legislation was necessary, they procured the passage of the declaratory act of March 2, 1849, to wit:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That by the act entitled 'An act for the admission of the State of Iowa into the Union,' approved December twenty-eighth eighteen hundred and forty-six, the United States assented to the application for the support of common schools as made in the second section of the tenth article of the Constitution of said State, of the five per cent of the nett proceeds of the sales of the public lands within the State of Iowa and of the five hundred thousand acres of land granted to said State by the act of the fourth of September eighteen hundred and forty one; said land to be selected in legal subdivisions of not less than three hundred and twenty acres."

Thus the controversy, as to the manner of applying this fund and the five hundred thousand acres of land, granted under the eighth section of the act of Congress of September 4, 1841, was terminated.

I immediately renewed the application, and received the amount due for the year 1847, $16,422 05. This sum, with the twenty dollars premium on draft added, making $16,443 05, I delivered to the Auditor of State, for which he executed his bond, dated May 1, 1849, under the provisions of "An act to provide for a loan of the school fund arising from the sale of the public lands," approved January 12, 1849. The amount apportioned to the State for the year 1848, was $9,105 52, for $6,000 of which the Governor executed his bond on the 15th September 1849, under "an act relative to the penitentiary," approved January 13, 1849. This sum it became my duty, by the seventh section of said act, to pay in installments to A. H. Haskel, Esq., superintendent of the penitentiary. On the day the bond was executed, he filed in this office his vouchers to the amount of $1,356 99, at which time I paid him $3,350. On the 2d of October 1849 he filed his vouchers to the amount of $2,458 66 and received the residue of the loan, $2,650. Before making these payments in the manner above stated, I visited Fort Madison, and at the request of Mr. H. examined his accounts and found him prepared to comply strictly with the provisions of the law in reference to the loan, and the work assigned him was progressing in the most satisfactory manner. This left in my hands the sum of $3,105 52. This sum I purposed apportioning among the fund commissioners, but being informed by his excellency, Ansel Briggs, that the General Assembly had failed to make provision for running the southern boundary line of the State, in accordance with the decision of the supreme court of the United States—that the necessary appropriation had been made by the Legislature of Missouri and placed at the disposition of their commissioner—that the work could not progress without the requisite means on the part of Iowa, I ventured to loan him the sum of $2,000 for the purpose. For this sum he executed his promissory note, to the undersigned as "Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Iowa, or to his successors in office, for the use and benefit of the common school fund," dated September 15, 1849, payable on or before two years after date with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, secured by a satisfactory bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars. This left a balance of $1,105 52. Being advised that the county school tax had been loaned, in certain counties, as part of the school fund, and that others were required to refund money paid for school lands where the selections had not been approved, and that in both cases they were destitute of the necessary means with which to refund the various amounts thus appropriated, I distributed to those counties, as follows :

Mahaska, for refunding cash payments on land,	$300 00
Jasper, " " " " " "	96 82
Benton, " " " " " "	50 00
Louisa, " " county school tax,	200 00
Clayton, " " " " " "	105 00
Total,	<hr/> $751 82

A balance of $353,70 was still left in my hands, which I advanced to Hon. H. B. Hendershott, commissioner on the part of Iowa, in addition to the sum of $2,000 above referred to, for the use of the State in the boundary survey, and took his note for the same, with approved security, dated October 15, 1850, payable on or before the 15th day of January 1851, with the same stipulations as to interest and application, as in the case of the loan to the governor. The total amount therefore loaned to the State for the boundary survey is $2,353 70, from which I deducted the interest due up to January 1st, 1851, as follows:

Interest on $2,000, from Sept. 15, 1849, to January 1, 1850,	$58 33
" " " " Jan'y. 1, 1850, " " " 1851,	200 00
" " $353,70 " Oct. 15, " " " " "	7 36
Total,	<hr/> $265 69

It is proper to state that this loan was made without the sanction of law. My uniform course has been to take the law for my guide in the discharge of my official duties, but the extreme inconvenience to which the two States (and particularly the inhabitants of the southern portion of Iowa) would have been subject by postponing the survey of the boundary line—the dispute existing in the vicinity of said line as to the jurisdiction of a large quantity of valuable school land—the conviction that the failure on the part of the legislature to appropriate the necessary means was an oversight, and the assurances of the governor that they could be obtained from no other source, appeared to justify me in departing from that rule in this single instance. It is sufficient to add that I acted after due consultation and mature deliberation, and took every precaution to guard sacredly the interests of the school fund in the matter. Should it meet your approbation, it will be necessary at an early day to make provision for the assumption of the loan by the State and for the release of those who have voluntarily obligated themselves for it.

During the month of November past, I received the dividend for the year 1849, $5,697 46—add premium on draft $10 98—making $5,708 44. From this I deducted $142 26, with which to replace this amount applied on salary by the Fund Commissioner of Monroe county. The balance $5,566 18, I apportioned among the several counties as follows:

It is proper to state that the introduction of military bounty land warrants has greatly decreased the annual dividends of this fund. We are only allowed the per cent on the cash entries. The number of acres located in the State with land warrants from the 1st of January 1847, to the 30th of November 1850 inclusive is 1,987,040 which at $1.25 per acre amounts to $2,483,800 00. Of this sum we would be entitled, by the terms of the act, to five per cent “after deducting the expenses incident to the same.” It is difficult to determine the amount of these expenses, but, without attempting an estimate, it will be readily perceived that the loss sustained by the school fund is no inconsiderable item.

SCHOOL LANDS AND SCHOOL FUND.

Of the 500,000 acre grant the Fund Commissioners have selected and sold:

In the Dubuque district,	- - - - -	6,565.82 acres
“ Iowa City “	- - - - -	8,294.92 “
“ Fairfield “	- - - - -	8,794.17 “
Total selected, approved and sold,	- - - - -	23,654.91 “

The agents appointed under the supplemental act of January 15, 1849, have selected:

In the Dubuque district,	- - - - -	240,421.27 acres
“ Iowa City “	- - - - -	69,690.00 “
“ Fairfield “	- - - - -	63,241.74 “
Total selected,	- - - - -	373,353.01 “

Of the above the Secretary of the Interior has approved:

In the Dubuque district,	- - - - -	171,294.17 acres
“ Iowa City “	- - - - -	48,599.32 “
“ Fairfield “	- - - - -	28,659.77 “
Total approved,	- - - - -	248,544.26 “

Thus it will be seen that the total number of acres selected is 397,307.92 and the total number approved 272,200.17, leaving a balance of 102,692.08 acres yet to be selected. As the present agents have become familiar with the work, I would recommend that they be continued in office, with instructions to select the remainder as early after the close of the present winter as possible. I think it desirable however that a portion of these lands should be selected adjacent to the Missouri river, and in that event it may become necessary to wait for an extension of the surveys.

The amount paid the agents for the selections already made is:

For the Dubuque district,	- - - - -	1,248 00
“ Iowa City “	- - - - -	615 00
“ Fairfield “	- - - - -	587 00
Total	- - - - -	2,400 00

The average cost of selection, therefore, is a fraction over one cent and a half per acre. In addition to the above the agents have necessarily incurred other expenses, which, though of minor importance, should be allowed. I present herewith a statement of the claims of this character which have been transmitted to this office. It will also be remembered the Registers of the Land Office receive no compensation from the general government for superintending the selection of these lands. It has occupied much of their time, and has been attended with great labor and perplexity. They are required to examine carefully each selection reported by the agent—to enter it temporarily on the plats—to retain a copy of it, and to transmit the original to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval or rejection. When they are advised of the approval, it becomes their duty to re-examine the entries upon their plats and make them permanent, and to enter the subdivisions into their tract books. It would appear reasonable that they should be compensated from some source for these services, and as the State is the beneficiary, it is but equitable that it should provide a reasonable remuneration. I feel it due to these gentlemen, and their predecessors, to say that, as far as I have had any business intercourse with them respecting these selections, they have manifested a disposition to render me every facility in their power.

When the agents commenced the performance of their duties, they found it extremely difficult, in consequence of the rush of emigration to the frontiers, to make selections without infringing upon the rights of settlers. I therefore instructed them, in view of the power conferred upon me to authorize the sale of these lands, to embrace in their selections the claims of persons residing upon the public lands, having first obtained their consent to do so, with the assurance that they should be permitted to purchase them, when approved at the valuation fixed by the selecting agent. Many persons therefore have permitted their lands to be reported as school land with this understanding, and the valuation fixed has usually been $1 25 per acre. In the month of October I notified the fund commissioners that the lands thus claimed would be sold on the first of January 1851, but that no disposition would be made of the unencumbered portion of the selections. Finding that I could not carry my purposes into effect, I subsequently deferred the sale till the 15th day of February next. In the event therefore you should find it necessary to make any changes in reference to the manner of disposing of these lands, I would recommend that ample provision be made for carrying into effect the stipulations thus entered into with the claimants. In authorizing the arrangement above referred to, I had two objects in view—to increase at an early day the revenue of the school fund, and to prevent an undue interference with the settlement of the country. I conceive that it will be wise policy to sell the entire grant without delay. That it would increase in value by withholding it from sale a few years, there is no question, but it must also be remembered that the delay will deprive us of the benefit of a handsome revenue at a period when we most need it. For instance, 476,345 acres, the portion of the grant yet unsold, at one dollar and a quarter per acre would give five hundred and ninety-five thousand four hundred and thirty-one dollars, the interest of which for five years at ten per cent. per annum would be two hundred and ninety-seven thousand seven hundred and seventy-one dollars and fifty cents. Admitting then that we defer the sale five years in view of the increase in value, we forfeit the use of two hundred and ninety-seven thousand seven hundred and seventy-one dollars and fifty cents during that period, or of fifty-nine thousand five hundred and forty-five dollars and ten cents per annum. I have intimated, that at no period of our history would the advantages arising from the school fund be more needed than at present, and it is equally true that the disposition of these lands is our only hope for raising the amount required to meet this demand. A large portion of the 16th section grant will necessarily be unavailable for many years to come, and if the policy of deferring the sale of any portion of our school lands is to be adopted, I think it will be more applicable to the latter than the former grant. In view then of these considerations, I beg leave to recommend that so much of the first mentioned grant as remains unsold and unencumbered by the claims of settlers in the manner heretofore alluded to, shall be held subject to private entry at one dollar and fifty cents per acre, in such parcels as may be deemed expedient, upon the terms at present prescribed for the sale of school lands. To this recommendation, however, I would make the following exception—that lands appraised by the agents at any sum over and above one dollar and fifty cents per acre, shall be subject to entry in like manner at the valuation fixed by said agents. I am advised from various sources that the land selected is of the very best quality, generally combining the advantages of timber, water and prairie. In many of the selections, particularly those where the valuation exceeds one dollar and fifty cents per acre, coal and plaster of Paris is found in abundance. It is believed therefore, that the land will sell readily at the increased prices proposed, which will give us at least a nett average of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre for the entire grant. The discrimination made between the claimed and unclaimed lands may be questioned, but when rightly viewed there is no injustice in it. In the former instance the settlers have incurred the risk of permitting the title to their claims and improvements to vest in the State, in consideration of which they are to have the land at a stipulated price, and by such arrangement the State procures a good selection and effects a ready sale. In the latter the State has made the selection without the aid of the claimant's personal observation, and without the assurance of effecting an early sale, while the purchaser secures a good home on reasonable terms and without hazarding any thing.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office, in his report of November 30, 1848, estimates the area of the State at 32,584,960 acres, which would give us for the 16th section grant 905,137 acres. It is believed, however, that the area, when ascertained by an actual survey, will exceed the estimate. I think then that we may fix our estimate of this grant at 1,000,000 of acres. Add to this the grant received under the act of Congress of September 4, 1841, and we have 1,500,000 acres donated to the State for the support of schools, which at $1 25 per acre will give us $1,875,000. The five per cent fund for three years past averages a little over $10,000 per annum, which will in a few years increase the amount to $2,000,000. I do not mean to indicate by the above statement that our school lands ought not to average more than $1 25 per acre. On the contrary, I am convinced that with proper management we can raise the grand total of the school fund to $2,500,000. And while I am disposed to conform in a reasonable degree to the price established by the general government in the disposition of the public domain, I cannot consent to do so at the expense of the school fund. These liberal grants should be regarded as a bequest to the youth of this State for a specific purpose, and the general assembly is made the guardian of those for whose benefit it is designed. The reduction of the price of the public lands by the introduction of land warrants, may be urged as a reason for reducing the price of school lands, but it should not be forgotten, that in the midst of the land warrant speculation, we have been selling school lands at from $1 25 to $22 50 per acre, and that the sales of section sixteen have averaged about $2 20 per acre, and I question very much whether any purchaser would now be willing to dispose of his land in an unimproved state for less than $3 00 per acre. If the proceeds arising from the sale of these lands were to be expended elsewhere, in a manner that we should derive no benefit from them, then I should be in favor of an immediate reduction; but when we consider that they are not only to remain among us, but that every individual has a perpetual interest in them, the case is materially different. Permit me then to suggest, in addition to the present provisions, the expediency of fixing the minimum price of so much of section sixteen as remains unsold, at $1 50 per acre—at least for a definite period. If future experience shows that sales cannot be effected on such terms, it will then be time to make the necessary reduction.

The interest of the school fund, apportioned in January 1849, amounted to $6,365 25, and in January 1850 to $17,027 88. The total amount of the fund now at interest is about $279,060 07. It would appear then, that we may safely count on the sum of $25,000 for the apportionment in January 1851.

It will doubtless be recollected that some twelve months since my opinion was solicited, through the medium of the press, in regard to the propriety of investing a portion of the school fund, for the construction of railroads. Being absent from the State, no answer was given at the time. I would therefore embrace this opportunity of saying, that there can be no risk in loaning money to a company, where a portion of the road has been completed and put in operation, but for the State to apply the school fund in taking stock, relying solely on the dividends of the road, after its completion, for the payment of the interest, could not be regarded a very judicious investment. But a more serious objection to this proposition, grows out of the fact, that rail roads are necessarily somewhat local, and the appropriation of the school fund for the construction of a particular road, would most probably incur the disapprobation of every portion of the State which would not be immediately benefited by it. I am induced to believe therefore, that such an investment is inexpedient.

A portion of the school fund of Michigan, under the law of 1837, was loaned for a term of not less than ten years, to such counties as might apply for it, and the remainder to individuals. Knowing but little of the practical operation of such a provision, I am not prepared to give an opinion in regard to it. The investment would certainly be a safe one, and perhaps advantageous to the counties. It is well known that a large proportion of the amount raised by taxation in many of the counties is not applied in defraying their legitimate expenditures, but in liquidating the excess of such expenditures, caused by the depreciation of county orders. In this way, some of our counties are now paying double and treble as much as their actual expenses would amount to, if paid in cash. To borrow money, and place their expenses upon a cash basis, is unquestionably the better policy.

I have made an arrangement with the Registers of the Land Office, by which they are to furnish me a transcript of the selections of school lands which have been approved, together with the University lands, and those selections under the act of Congress, of May 20, 1826, in lieu of section sixteen. By this means I shall ultimately be in possession of an authentic list of all lands granted to the State for educational purposes, and as a matter of information and convenience to the public, I would suggest that provision be made for its publication and circulation in pamphlet form.

It may be proper to mention in this connection that inquiries have frequently been made of the undersigned in reference to the saline lands and a desire expressed that they should be appropriated for the support of common schools. It is sufficient to say that the conditions upon which we have received them, render it impracticable for the General Assembly to comply with their wishes. I will be excused for suggesting, that they are likely to remain totally unavailable to the State, with the existing restrictions.

SCHOOL FUND COMMISSIONERS.

It is made my duty by the supplemental act of January 15, 1849, to examine the books and accounts of these officers. The duty has been performed only in part. The examinations were necessarily cursory. Indeed they can not be made with any degree of accuracy without referring separately and minutely to all the contracts and other papers on file in the office. As far as the investigations have extended, no material discrepancies were discovered, except in the counties of Mahaska and Jefferson. In the county of Mahaska Mr. Wesley Depew was elected fund commissioner in the spring of 1847. A large amount of business was transacted during the following summer and fall, a portion of which was rejected and the remainder confirmed under his successors. In the spring of 1848 he was superceded by Mr. P. L. Crossman, to whom he transferred his books and papers without making a final settlement. In the spring of 1849, the securities of Mr. Crossman, entertaining some fears that the business of the office was not properly attended to, made application to the county commissioners for an investigation of his accounts, which was accordingly had, and resulted in the confirmation of their apprehensions. Mr. C. immediately resigned, and Mr. John White was appointed. My attention was called to the matter by Mr. White soon after his appointment and I visited the county in July following, and again in March last, for the purpose of investigating the affairs of the office, but was unable from the partial examination then had, to arrive at any definite conclusion. In the meantime the securities determined to test the validity of the bond by legal process. The law required that it should be approved by the county commissioners, which had been neglected. The decision of the court was rendered in August last in favor of the State. I visited the county in September following, and proceeded in connection with Mr. White, fund commissioner, and W. H. Severs Esq. counsel for the securities, to a thorough and minute investigation of the matter, the result of which will be seen from the annexed statement:

The securities are entirely responsible and no fears are entertained as to ultimate loss. The balance has not yet been settled. Some diversity of sentiment exists as to the interest on the deficiency. I gave it as my opinion that interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum would be claimed at least from the day the deficiency was ascertained. I advised the commissioner, in the event of a final settlement, to take satisfactory legal counsel.

It is proper to state that the validity of Mr. Higginbottom's claim, with which Mr. Crossman is charged, is questioned. Mr. C. affirms that it was a private transaction, and that he has in part settled it.

Mr. H. contends that he paid it to Mr. C. with the understanding that it should be endorsed on his note. The total amount of the note has since been collected by Mr. White, the present commissioner. The securities do not consider themselves liable for it. If the claim is rejected, it will decrease the indebtedness of Mr. C. to the school fund fifty dollars.

The selections of the 500,000 acre grant made by Mr. Depew were rejected, and the bonds cancelled and money refunded by his successors. In cancelling contracts, I instructed the fund commissioners to refund the total amount of money paid by the purchasers, principal and interest. Some of the purchasers, however, claimed interest on the cash payment from the date of the contract, which does not appear to have been contemplated by the supplemental act of January 25, 1848. The law referred to says, that the proper officer shall cancel the bonds given, and "refund back all moneys which may have been paid by purchasers." If interest from the date of the contract was intended, it has not been so expressed. Again, individuals indebted to the school fund, having purchased the unsettled claims of others against it, demanded an offset, in their settlement with the fund commissioner, to the amount of said claims, from the day they obtained possession of them. But the fund commissioner, considering the claims only available from the time of presentation, refused to allow such offset, and proceeded to collect the interest which had accrued on the notes of such persons, between the time of purchasing and presenting said claims. If any new provisions are made on the subject, they should be sufficiently comprehensive to embrace all of the cases referred to. For want of time the examination of the affairs of the office did not extend to the accounts of Mr. Depew. From a partial examination of his books and papers, some inaccuracies were apparent, but to what extent I am not prepared to say. I directed the present commissioner to effect a final settlement with him without delay and report the facts to this office.

In the county of Jefferson, Mr. F. M. Allen was elected school fund commissioner in the spring of 1848 and succeeded by Mr. W. C. Jones in April last. I visited the office in October, and from personal observation and facts stated by the present commissioner, I became satisfied that a deficiency existed, or that the accounts were incorrect. I therefore instructed Mr. Jones to give Mr. Allen immediate notice to appear and make a final settlement. Being unable in consequence of other engagements, to superintendent the matter in person, I requested Hon. Bernhart Henn to do so for me. Mr. A. appeared in conformity with the notice. The examination was conducted with great care and to the entire satisfaction of both parties, and the following ascertained to be a true statement of the account:

The securities I am informed are perfectly good, and by last advices Mr. A. was making arrangements to have the matter properly adjusted. It is due to the two gentlemen named, Mr. Crossman and Mr. Allen, to say, that I conceive the derangement of the affairs of their respective offices more the result of bad management, than design. The circumstances do not seem to justify the imputation of impure motives. The accounts however give evidence of sheer neglect and carelessness.

The manner of conducting the business in a majority of the offices I have visited is by no means satisfactory, but as much so perhaps as the circumstances would warrant. To most of the present incumbents the duties of the office are entirely new and complicated, and being occupied the greater portion of their time with the secular employments of life, a degree of informality and irregularity in their official business is almost unavoidable. The truth is that the compensation as a general thing does not justify them in devoting that attention to these duties which is absolutely necessary. While they are not very onerous, they are sufficiently so at times to render them exceedingly difficult to perform. There is a looseness and inaccuracy about many of the reports and other documents transmitted to this office, which is to be regretted. Many essential items are not reported at all, and others are so imperfectly stated, as to leave it a mere matter of conjecture in determining their true import. My impression is that the abstracts of the fund commissioners' reports appended to this report, will not show the net amount of the school fund now at interest by some ten thousand dollars, nor is there any reliable information in this office by which the amount of interest that has been collected, and the objects to which it has been applied, can be ascertained. It will be seen that in quite a number of counties there is no statement at all of the amount paid for salary and contingent expenses. In the reports for the present year the latter item for the entire State is only $163,43, when it is quite certain that in some cases nearly half this sum has been paid by a single county. It further appears from the same reports that the sum of only $707,00 has been realized from the bonus of one dollar required on each contract, under the law of Feb. 24, 1847, and that the sum of $288,00 of this amount is reported by two counties alone—Henry and Van Buren. But it is neither my purpose nor desire to become a public censor in this matter. I wish simply to state the facts, and leave you to decide by an examination and comparison of the abstracts themselves, whether there are any grounds for the opinion I have expressed. This state of things is easily accounted for when the combined circumstances, alluded to in the former part of this paragraph, are properly considered. I conceive that the system is more at fault, than those whose duty it is to administer it. It was doubtless the design of the commissioners to make a correct statement, and it affords me pleasure to say further of these officers, that they have uniformly manifested a disposition to comply with the requirements of the law when in their power to do so.

There is delinquency somewhere in regard to the collection of fines for breaches of the penal laws. The total amount of this class of funds reported for the present year is $905,67. It is fully conceded that we are a law abiding people, but it does not appear reasonable that this sum is all that we have paid during the past year for the exercise of our belligerent propensities. The present law requires the officers who collect the fines, to pay them over to the fund commissioners. The fair presumption is, that they have been collected, but not accounted for by the collecting officer.

Some dissatisfaction arose during the summer of 1849, in regard to the compensation allowed under the new law. The law of February 24, 1847, provided that the fund commissioners should "be paid out of the school fund," but under the act of January 15, 1849, they are "to be paid out of the county treasury." The difference of opinion was simply as to the time when the salary allowed under the former act should cease, and that prescribed by the latter should commence. I decided that they should be paid out of the school fund up to the 31st of January 1849, the time when the latter act took effect, and subsequent to that date out of the county treasury. To this decision the fund commissioners of the counties of Wapello and Clayton took exception, but finally acquiesced, with the understanding that the question should be left open. They contended that they were entitled to compensation out of the school fund, till the expiration of the term for which they were elected, without reference to the provisions of the new law on the subject. I made several attempts to get a judicial decision upon this point, but having failed to do so, it remains unsettled. If the construction given by the undersigned is incorrect, it will be proper to make provision for refunding from the school fund the amount paid these officers by the respective counties from the 31st of January 1849 to the 1st of April 1850. I would remark further, that a difference of opinion exists as to the meaning of the language "paid out of the school fund," used in the law of February 24, 1847. Some contend that the principal, and others that the interest of the fund is referred to. Finding upon examination that, with but few exceptions, the salaries of fund commissioners had been paid out of the principal, for the sake of uniformity I refunded the amounts taken from the interest, in the manner heretofore alluded to. The salaries of these officers then, from the first of April 1847 to the 31st of January 1849, as far as I am advised, have been paid out of the principal of the school fund, and subsequently out of the county treasury. As this subject will be referred to again, it will be sufficient for the present to add, that it is an act of injustice both to the counties and officers in question to compensate them out of the county treasury. Most of the duties they perform are of a general character, in which the whole State has an interest.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS.

In my former report, I proposed certain amendments in regard to the management of the school fund, which did not meet the approbation of the General Assembly. Though still convinced of their utility and expediency, I am not disposed to urge them upon your attention under existing circumstances. I would remark, however, that I have heard but two objections of any force urged against the plan then submitted—first, that it would subject purchasers, and others indebted to the school fund, to great inconvenience in settling the demands against them; and secondly, that it would concentrate too much power in the hands of one man. I am nevertheless satisfied that both objections may be removed with proper legal restrictions—the former by providing that the notes given for land purchased and money loaned shall be deposited with some county officer, to whom payments of principal and interest may be made, and the latter, by requiring the commissioner to give ample security, and to register the names of those who wish to borrow money and to loan to each in the order of his application, when the necessary security can be given. I would add, that the school fund of Connecticut, amounting to 2,077,641 dollars and 19 cents, has been under the control of one officer for the last twenty-five years, and instead of favoritism and abuse of power being the necessary result of such policy, experience shows that it is the most efficient and satisfactory plan that State has yet been able to devise.

The people of Michigan also appear to have adopted the same policy with equal success. In alluding to this subject the Superintendent remarks: "The State of Indiana gives to the inhabitants of each of the townships the right of exercising over section sixteen the duties and powers of a landlord; to coerce contracts; to prevent waste and damage, and whenever five qualified voters petition, they must vote by ballot, for sale or no sale of the section, thus multiplying officers, duties and difficulties, not only in this, but in various ways. In Ohio, millions of money were long since reported from authentic sources, to have been lost from the school fund by this system. In Illinois the same difficulties have arisen, and legislation in all these States could not so frame and guard the laws, but defects existed, to weaken the sources of accumulation to the fund. Reference to their laws show a multiplicity of officers, with various powers and duties and increased expenses, as reference to their history will show for what a long series of years they were without marked advancement in the means of educating their youth."

But we have perhaps progressed too far with the present plan for the management of our school fund, to make as radical a change as the one then proposed, and alterations then applicable may not be so now. I therefore beg leave respectively to suggest, as the next best plan that presents itself to my mind, the propriety of blending the office of school fund commissioner with some one of the permanent county offices. I am not strenuous as to what particular office shall be selected, but am induced to believe that that of clerk of the district court is best adapted to our wants. It is essential that we have a faithful, prompt and competent officer, whose accounts should be kept with the utmost accuracy, and upon the most approved system of book keeping. In some of the offices the amount of business transacted already exceeds $20,000, and is liable at no distant day to be increased to more than $50,000. Only a moments reflection then is necessary to convince any one of the truth of the foregoing assertions. The experience of business men I believe is, that the most systematic method of book-keeping is the least complicated. An apparently more simple form may subserve our purposes for the present, but in a series of years it will result in a derangement of the business, which the most skillful accountant cannot explain. We have at present about as many different systems as there are officers. I should prefer having the office of fund commissioner separate as it now is, but have recommended its connection with one of the county offices on the score of economy. The salary should be fixed by law and paid out of the interest of the school fund, with such contingent expenses as may be necessary—that is to say, there should be a stipulated price for the amount of business transacted, so that the entire compensation allowed by uniting the two offices, should be sufficient to justify the officer selected in devoting his time exclusively to the duties assigned him. It is also necessary that some state officer should be designated to superintend the several county offices—to examine the books and accounts at least once a year, and to concentrate an accurate statement of the business transacted in each in a set of books kept by himself. At present this duty devolves upon the Superintendent of Public Instruction, but the numerous other duties incumbent upon him places it beyond his power to give the matter that attention which it deserves. I find while devoting my time to one class of duties, that others of equal importance are necessarily neglected. To superintend the establishment of schools, lecture in the several counties and districts, (a duty which of itself requires a journey of some three thousand miles,) confer with school officers, receive and file all papers, reports and public documents transmitted to him, apportion the interest of the school fund, prepare and transmit blanks for reports, attend to the organization of the University and Normal schools, make rules and regulations for the benefit of school officers, keep up the official and miscellaneous correspondence, record and report all the proceedings of his office, and "perform generally such duties as may tend to advance the interests of education," is about as much as one man can properly attend to. But to add to this, the selection and sale of school lands, the collection and distribution of the five per cent fund, the adjustment of land titles, the investment of the school fund, and a periodical examination of the accounts of the Fund Commissioners, and it must follow that a portion of the duties enumerated will be totally neglected, or that all of them will be but imperfectly attended to if a portion of the time allowed for the whole is devoted to each. In the event a State Land Office is established (and I may here add that the quantity of public land owned by the State, together with the grants in anticipation, render it almost indispensable) it will be proper to transfer the duties last referred to which now devolve upon the Superintendent, to that department. If, however, it is considered most expedient to require the Superintendent still to perform them, it will be necessary to provide for the employment of a clerk, who can remain permanently in the office. I seriously doubt the policy, however, of making the Superintendent of Public Instruction a financial officer, further than the apportionment of the annual dividends of the school fund is concerned. The educational duties that necessarily devolve upon him are, in this enlightened age, more than sufficient to occupy his entire time. This subject is fully considered, and placed in its true light by the Superintendent of Public Instruction of Michigan in his late able report. He says—"The creation of this officer with a slight change of name was deduced from the Prussian system. The principle upon which that system was based, was 'that every State needs a separate officer of Public Instruction, and that there should be nothing to divert the attention of that officer who has the general supervision of the peoples' education.' Under that system this officer devotes his whole time to schools and the state of education. The creation of such an officer was intended in the adoption of this provision of our own constitution. It looked to a general supervision not only of primary schools, but of the university, of colleges, academies, high schools, and all schools, public or private, established or to be established throughout the State. The field laid out in the intention of its framers was conceived to be sufficiently responsible and arduous; sufficiently vast and comprehensive in all its bearings to engage every moment of time and consideration; to employ the entire thought and labor of one man, in devising the means of bringing into perfection, a system so enlarged and commanding; embracing full knowledge of education, and its progress among the people in whatsoever form or shape it was working its way, by public grant or private endowment; by State patronage or individual exertion and munificence. The imposition of other duties of a financial character retarded the state of perfection thus contemplated. Legislation has done much in restoring the office to its proper character."

In issuing patents we have no correct means of detecting errors made in the certificates of purchase given by the fund commissioners. For want of this information, patents have been issued to different persons for the same land. By authorizing the officer, whose duty it shall become to superintend this business, to procure such plats of the school and University lands as may be necessary, the difficulty will be removed.

To provide for the management of the school fund is doubtless the most difficult task that will at any time devolve upon the General Assembly. That the system under which we are now acting is inadequate and defective, I think no one will pretend to deny, and for my own part, I have no desire to perpetuate it, either in whole or in part, if a better can be devised. I regard the safety of the fund as the chief object to be kept in view, and the plan that will be most effectual in attaining this desirable end, I am prepared at once to adopt. It is hoped therefore that no undue importance will be attached to the suggestions I have made. If a more radical change than the one proposed is deemed necessary, the present is probably the most favorable opportunity for making it, that will present itself.

I have alluded to the inconveniences consequent upon the alteration of school districts. My conviction is, that they are attributable in a great measure to the provisions of the law authorizing such alterations. Changes are sometimes convenient and useful, but upon the whole I believe they are attended with more harm, than good. I would therefore recommend that commissioners be appointed in each county, who shall be required to act under oath, and empowered, after a careful examination of the various settlements of the county and the districts already formed, to divide the same into a series of new districts, without reference to the municipal townships, of such size as in their judgment will best promote the present and future interests of the inhabitants—conforming as far as may be practicable to the government surveys. They shall then file a plat and written description, properly authenticated, of the districts thus formed and regularly numbered from one upward in the manner that sections are numbered in the survey of the public lands, with the fund commissioner, who shall immediately record said description in his office, and from and after the date of such record it shall be binding, until otherwise ordered by the General Assembly. It shall be further the duty of the fund commissioner to organize said districts by giving the necessary notice for an election, in the manner now prescribed for the formation of new districts. Special provisions should also be made for the protection of districts now organized, which may be effected by the change. No definite rule can be prescribed in regard to geographical limits, but it is certainly desirable to have our districts much larger than most of them now are. To create some half dozen petty corporations where one will subserve our purpose better, is unquestionably impolitic. This remark is not solely the result of my own observation, but is based upon the recommendations of the most experienced educators of the older States. The Hon. Horace Mann, in referring to this subject, says :

“I consider the law of 1789, authorizing towns to divide themselves into districts, the most unfortunate law, on the subject of common schools, ever enacted in the State. During the last few years, several towns have abolished their districts and assumed the administration of the schools in their corporate capacity; and I learn, from the reports of school committees, and from other sources, that many other towns are contemplating the same reform.” This is but one of the hundreds of equally reliable authorities that might be given. For myself, I think our congressional townships (six miles square) none too large for school districts, but I am disposed to yield to the wishes of the people and desire them to consult their own convenience in the matter. The prime object of the present recommendation, is to avoid the contention and strife arising from the repeated changes which occur under the present law. The commissioners should be allowed a definite compensation for their services, to be paid out of the interest of the school fund.

I have been thus minute in designating the manner of performing this duty, from the fact that we now contemplate a general, permanent reorganization, and we may just as well have some reference to order and symmetry in the matter as not. Indeed no state in the Union is better adapted for the formation of a beautiful and uniform system of school districts than our own. It is incumbent upon us then, to avail ourselves of the advantages we possess, while it is in our power to do so. That some objections will be urged against the plan proposed, and that it will cause some temporary inconvenience I have not the slightest doubt; but unless it, or some similar one, is adopted and carried into effect, our school system will utterly fail to accomplish the end for which it is designed.

It is essential that additional provisions should be made for the protection of our school and university lands against waste. Under the present law this power is confined to the organized counties, while a large proportion of our most valuable lands have been located in the unorganized counties. I have been repeatedly advised, during the past year, by petitions and otherwise, of depredations committed upon the timbered lands. My attention was particularly directed to the county of Blackhawk, where an extensive body of timbered land has been selected. Persons engaged in the lumber business, on the Cedar river, have manifested no scruples in supplying themselves liberally with saw-log^s from the school lands. Some stringent, summary provision is required, that will be applicable in any emergency that may arise.

The present law for the management of the school fund is indefinite in regard to the character of funds that shall be received. The officers having to exercise their own discretion in the matter, usually receive the ordinary currency of the country. In order to guard more effectually against loss, I conceive it important that the school fund should be placed upon a specie basis, and would therefore recommend that all payments for land sold, or for interest on money loaned, shall be required in specie. The sum of about 20,000 dollars of interest remains in the hands of the fund commissioners from the first of January to the first of March, and in case any portion of this amount, which may have been collected in current bank paper, should depreciate in value, it is questionable whether these officers could be held accountable on their official bonds. This rule may be considered arbitrary by some, but it is the only safe one we can adopt.

There are other amendments of minor importance required, but it is unnecessary to enumerate them here. The general features of the present law are unexceptionable, and as far as we can do so with propriety it will be proper to retain them. As a matter of convenience, it is desirable that the several acts and amendments now in force, for the management of the school fund and the establishment of schools, should be arranged under one general title.

A few reflections upon our present and future prospects, will close this report. To the superficial observer the subject of popular education is of but little moment, but to those who have minutely traced its history, and contemplated its bearings upon the destiny of our race, it becomes vast and comprehensive in its range—unfathomed in its depths, unmeasured in its heights, unsurveyed in its circumference. Time was when it was deemed sufficient to establish literary institutions for the instruction of those who possessed the pecuniary advantages requisite for the acquirement of a liberal education. The result was that the few, whom birth and fortune chanced to favor thus, were liberally educated, while millions remained in total ignorance and degradation. Under such a system it was natural that man, awed by superior intelligence and crushed by uncurbed ambition, should become the helpless suppliant of his brother, and the abject slave of his fellow. But the introduction of common schools has revealed a brighter era in the history of the world. Education is no longer circumscribed in its limits. The public school is designed for no particular class of mankind, but bestows its favors and sheds its benign influences alike upon all. While it seeks the mansion of the wealthy and influential, and opens to them its rich and exhaustless treasury, it forgets not the humble dwelling of the oppressed and indigent. Not quite a century of our national existence has passed, and yet we can challenge the world in point of intelligence and enterprise. The enlightened nations of Europe are forced to own our superiority, and are beginning to copy our imitations. The old world has become tributary to the new. That proud empire, which but a few years since awed kings and emperors into subjection with a nod, and virtually exercised universal sway by sea and land, has been compelled to acknowledge at least a rival and an equal in the immediate descent.

ants of a handful of down-trodden and destitute emigrants. Our navy traverses every ocean, and our armies return in triumph from every field. Our flag floats upon every breeze, and our canvass whitens every sea. Our trade and commerce have entered every port, and our wares and products are seen in every mart. Foreign powers are availing themselves of the superior skill of our engineers and machinists in the construction of their rail-roads and public thoroughfares. Our artists have crossed the Atlantic with the chisel and pencil, and our literary and scientific men have "carried the line and rule beyond the utmost barriers of creation." To the incredulous this may seem fiction, but history gives it the impress of stern reality. Fancy in its wildest flight, and imagination in its widest range, can scarcely keep pace with reality. Who can recur to our history for the last five years without being overwhelmed and astounded with the number of our transitions, and the rapidity of our strides to national greatness? Rail-roads are projected to-day as it were, and to-morrow we hear the rumbling of the cars. "The mad unchained elements," have become subservient to our wishes, and intelligence traverses our ample domain with the velocity of thought. We stand pre-eminent among the nations of the earth, destined at no distant day to rule and govern the world. To rule and govern the world did I say? No, but to teach the world how to rule and govern itself. And what, it may be asked, has produced these extraordinary results? The institution and progress of common schools answers the question. Coeval with the tree of liberty, our fathers planted the district school, and it has continued to deepen its roots and extend its branches, till its influences are felt from the coast of the Atlantic to the shores of the Pacific, and from the Rio Grande to the fountain sources of the Mississippi. Where, but yesterday, the Indian reveled in his war-dance and medicine-feast, the Anglo-Saxon is now maturing his plans for a system of moral and intellectual training, that shall reach all conditions of men. The old theory, that the parent and school-master were alone responsible for the education of the child, has been exploded, and the State is held accountable for the instruction of its youth.

Such then is the character and tendency of the institution we are now endeavoring to establish in Iowa. And where could we find for it a richer soil, a wider theatre and a more eligible sphere? Our territorial area is sufficiently extensive and productive to sustain a population nearly equal to that of the entire Union itself. Our resources are various and abundant, and our natural advantages for the construction of highways and other channels of communication are unsurpassed. The tide of emigration is still wending its way, with increased volume and velocity, to our fertile plains and luxuriant valleys. We cannot boast of our bays and harbors and forests of shipping, by which we might be brought into direct and immediate communication with the nations of the earth, but with the ample means at our disposal for educational purposes, we can rear for ourselves a monument of intelligence that will command the respect and admiration of the world. And shall we hesitate under these favorable auspices and with these brilliant prospects, to discharge with fidelity the duty we owe to the present and all succeeding generations? No, no; we must not, we cannot.

The great problem, involving the practicability of making the primary and essential parts of education universally free, has been solved; but the best and most effectual method of attaining this end is yet a matter of experiment. We can with propriety begin to boast of something like rail-road speed, but the magnetic telegraph in its flight leaves us far in the distance, and opens up before us new and extensive fields of labor. The subject has engrossed the attention of some of our sister states for centuries, and still they are occasionally crossing unknown latitudes, and entering unexplored seas. Scarcely has one provision been made, till another is needed—scarcely one obstacle surmounted, till another presents itself. It is true that we have the advantage of their experience, but it must be remembered that a long and rugged space yet intervenes between their present attainments, and the summit of perfection. And shall we quietly fold our arms and rest contented with what we have already accomplished? Permit me to repeat again, we must not. Our obligations to ourselves and to that glorious Union, of which we are an integral part, imperiously demand that we should not. Let us then, with the patriotism and philanthropy of our fore-fathers, come nobly and resolutely up to the work, and lay a broad and imperishable foundation upon which posterity may erect the proud superstructure of our future magnificence and grandeur. I fancy, while I make the appeal, that I hear the voices of twenty thousand freemen, through their legitimate representatives, join in the emphatic response—"we will."

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THOMAS H. BENTON, Jr., Supt. Pub. Inst.
