THIRTY-FIFTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY, JANUARY, 1913.
BIENNIAL MESSAGE OF THE GOVERNOR.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly:

The constitution makes it the duty of the Governor to transmit to every regular session of the General Assembly a message with reference to the conditions of the state and recommending such things as he shall deem expedient. If I shall attempt to discuss in your presence the many matters of importance to which in my judgment you should direct your attention during the present session of your honorable body, it will require a message of considerable length, and I therefore, in the beginning beg indulgence for such time as may be necessary to a proper understanding of the subjects herein referred to.

In my opinion, few, if any, sessions of your honorable body have ever been confronted with so many important measures, as will be presented to you in the course of your deliberation, and none have had better opportunity for doing a vast amount of valuable service for the state. Many of the more important subjects that will come before you, have been considered by special commissions during the time since the adjournment of the last session of the General Assembly, and have been reported upon, some in the form of bills, while other measures have been so thoroughly considered at other sessions of the legislature as to render them more easy of solution by you. I know of nothing that should in any way interfere with the work of this session. It seems, therefore, that we may reasonably expect an unusual amount of valuable legislation at your hands, and I congratulate you that you enter upon your duties under such favorable circumstances.

CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

I am pleased to be able to say to you that the finances of the state appear to be in a very satisfactory condition. On the first day of January of the present year the balance in the treasury standing to the credit of the general fund amounted to $971,672.11. Deducting the Fish and Game fund and the automobile tax, leaves the net balance, in round numbers, $730,600, as against $645,000 on January 1, 1911, after making like deduction, and $299,600 January 1, 1909.

The biennial report of the Auditor of State shows that on July 1, 1912, there was in the state treasury to the credit of the general fund $818,000 after deducting the Fish and Game fund and Automobile tax. The Auditor estimates that the receipts from July 1, 1912, to July 1, 1915. will amount to $13,482,000, making the total assets $14,300,000. He estimates the expenditures from July 1, 1912, to July 1, 1915, to be $12,350,000. To this should be added $650,000 to meet expenditures between July 1, 1915, and October, 1915, during which time the state's income will be small. These two items taken together make a total of expenditures of $13,000,000, which would leave $1,300,000 available for extraordinary expenditures during the biennial period ending June 30, 1915. It will be unsafe to appropriate a larger amount than this unless you make provision for increasing the State's income sufficient to meet any excess in appropriations.

THE CAPITOL GROUNDS.

A comprehensive scheme for enlarging the capitol grounds should be adopted by you and plans made for the eventual acquiring of the lands to be added to the present holdings of the State. I would recommend that the State buy all of the grounds lying between East Ninth and East Twelfth Streets, beginning at Capitol Avenue and extending to the railroad tracks at the foot of the hill to the south. The grounds thus acquired, lying south of Walnut Street, should be parked and beautified, and upon them should be placed the Allison monument and such other monuments as may be erected in the future, and when the state shall build an executive mansion, it should be placed upon the high point of ground to the southeast of the capitol building. Upon the block immediately east of the state house and south of Capitol Avenue, should be located a judicial building. I would also suggest that when the time comes that it is necessary to make any considerable improvement in the State's power plant, it would be wise to consider moving it to the foot of the hill, south and southwest of the state house, where it could be reached by a switch, thereby saving the large amount of money that is annually paid for hauling coal with teams and wagons, and also getting rid of the dirt and smoke and the somewhat unsightly appearance of a heating plant immediately in front of the capitol building.

In suggesting the enlargement of the capitol grounds, I wish to say that the owners of some of the lots included in that which I have referred to, have already expressed a willingness to sell the same and some have submitted a price for their holdings. I want also to say that at two or three different times efforts have been made to secure a change of grade in some of the streets about the state house, which change would have a very material effect upon the surroundings, it additional lands are to be acquired. The council has each time objected to these changes and asked the parties interested therein to wait and take the matter up with you with a view to securing co-operation between the city of Des Moines and the State in some general plan of improving the state house surroundings, and I recommend the appointment by you of a committee to take this matter into consideration and co-operate with the officials of the city to the end suggested.

In my opinion the State might profitably dispose of Governor's Square, allowing the city to purchase it for a park if so desired, and invest the proceeds in lands above suggested for purchase.

JUDICIAL BUILDING.

The demand for more room for the accommodation of the various officers and commissions of the State seems imperative. We now have the Dairy and Food Commissioner and the State Veterinary Surgeon quartered in the old brick building across the street east from the state house, which building is poorly equipped and ought to be vacated. The State Board of Education, the State Fire Marshal, the Commerce Counsel, the Rate Department and the Oil Inspector have been occupying committee rooms and are now temporarily located, some with other departments in this building and some in the Historical Building.

In order to furnish needed room it has been suggested that an office building be erected. Some such arrangement should be made, but in my opinion the logical thing to do would be to erect a Judicial Building, remove the Supreme Court and all of its correlated departments out of the state house and bring all administrative officers and commissions together in this building. By this method the Supreme Court, the Clerk of the Court, the Attorney General, the Law Library and the Commerce Counsel would be removed from this building and the quarters occupied by them would be released for the use and accommodation of other officers and commissions. The library room is of the height of two full stories and could be converted into two stories, the upper of which would be accessible from either elevator at the gallery floor.

By the above arrangement 19,000 square feet of floor space would be released for use which is practically the equivalent of a four-story building 100 feet long by 50 feet wide.

I believe the above would be the logical division of departments to make, inasmuch as it would bring the court and the legal department of the state into one building and all executive officers into the other. This has been done and is being done in a number of states. It has the indorsement of our Supreme Court and in my opinion is the plan that should be adopted.

ELEVATORS.

The old hydraulic elevators in the State House continued to give so much trouble that the Executive Council became alarmed lest some accident might result from their operation. It was deemed advisable to replace them with electric machines. In order to meet the expense incident to this change it became necessary to use the money appropriated by the omnibus appropriation bill of the last session of the General Assembly for the installation of elevators in the north and south wings of the building, the Attorney General holding that said appropriations might properly be so used. The new elevators cost $3,000 each.

SOLDIERS' HOME-COMING.

A year or more ago it was suggested to me that it would be appropriate to have a home-coming for all surviving soldiers who went from the State of Iowa into the service of their country during the war of the rebellion. The time was too short to make preparation for such a home-coming during the year just passed. It is now proposed to observe such an occasion during the present year in connection with the state encampment of the G. A. R., which encampment will be held in the City of Des Moines some time during the summer.

I most heartily and earnestly concur in this movement and recommend that some appropriate preparation be made for this occasion and that an appropriation be made by you to assist in defraying the expenses thereof. Not only men who went from Iowa into the service, but hundreds and possibly thousands of others would engage in these exercises. It ought to be made a great occasion for the old soldiers whose years, at most, cannot be many.

PROVIDENTIAL CONTINGENT FUND.

The Thirty-fourth session of the General Assembly appropriated $50,000 as a providential contingent fund to be expended under the provisions of section 170 of the Code. I recommend that you renew this appropriation. Under an opinion of the Attorney General it has been held that this fund may be used for various purposes, such as paying the expenses of the National Guard when called out to suppress riots, for the restoration of state property when destroyed by unavoidable cause, etc., so that it cannot properly be regarded any longer as a providential fund. While not calling into question the correctness of the opinion I want to suggest that the section of the Code should be so amended as to make it clear as to just what use is to be made of this fund and the term by which it is designated should conform to the uses for which it is intended. The law should also be amended so that the expenses of the Guard when on riot duty could be paid from the general fund of the treasury. A single conflagration or disaster might make it necessary to expend the entire amount of the appropriation herein referred to and leave the Governor without any means of meeting guard expenses as herein contemplated except by calling the legislature into special session. And again, since it is provided that the so-called providential contingent fund can only be expended by unanimous consent of the members of the Executive Council any one member of that body refusing to agree to the payment of guard expense from this fund could hold the claims up and prevent their payment or compel the Governor to call the General Assembly into session. While it is not probable that such a contingency as this would ever arise the possibility of it ought not to exist.

NATIONAL GUARD.

In my message of two years ago I expressed it as my opinion that the National Guard had attained to a degree of efficiency never before equalled. I think I am warranted in again saying that the efficiency of the Guard has never been so great as at the present time.

Within the last four years there has been a great revival of interest with reference to quarters for the companies so that of the forty-eight companies constituting the four regiments of the guard thirty-three are now provided with permanent quarters, many of which were erected for the exclusive benefit of the companies themselves and others have been so arranged as to meet their needs and requirements.

Early in the summer of 1910 I found it necessary to call out six companies of the Fifty-fourth regiment in charge of Major Ball under the direction of General Logan to suppress rioting in connection with the general strike among the button workers at Muscatine. The conduct of the guard was exemplary and the work done by the companies was very effective and commendable. This service covered a priod of sixteen days.

INSURANCE, BANKING, ETC.

Conditions in the State with reference to insurance and banking have been quite satisfactory during the last two years. There are now reporting to the department 1,049 banks and trust companies as against 950 two years ago, and the deposits have increased from $247,000,000, June 30, 1910, to $285,000,000 September 11, 1912.

There have been no great conflagrations during the year and the mortality among our people has been about normal.

The Auditor of State in his biennial report recently filed with me again recommends that a system of examination of county accounts and records be established and to this recommendation I want to give my approval. It seems to me that the number of defalcations and irregularities that have occurred during the last few years will impress upon you the importance of the above suggestion.

MINING AND LABOR DEPARTMENTS.

The entire chapter of the Code relating to mines and mining in the state was revised during the last session of the General Assembly and I am pleased to say that under the new law things have worked out in a very satisfactory manner. There have been no serious disasters and the merits of the statute enacted I think have fully justified the revision of the law.

The Labor Department of the State is in a most excellent condition and I commend the Commissioner upon his faithful and wise administration of the affairs of the offce. Some revision of the laws will be asked and requests will be made for extending the service of the department. One of the most important matters with reference thereto is that of changing the law with regard to employment agencies so as to eliminate what is known as the "padrone" system.

In my opinion the powers and authority to inspect hotels should be transferred to and made a part of the duty of the Labor Commissioner. It is wholly unnecessary to have two sets of men traveling over the state when the work of inspection herein referred to could be performed equally as well and at a much less expense by the Labor Commissioner and his deputies who of necessity must visit all parts of the State in the performance of other duties.

I recommend a careful consideration of the matters herein referred to.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

While the Health Department of the state seems to show a more satisfactory condition than heretofore, I am still of the opinion that the executive head of the department should be the man in immediate charge of the office. Under a system similar to that now in vogue this, of course, would be the secretary. The present incumbent in that office has proven himself to be a very capable and efficient public servant. I want again to recommend that the members of the Board be placed upon a salary and that the Board be made advisory rather than directory. I believe a plan of reorganization similar to that presented to the last session of the General Assembly would render the department more efficient.

HOG CHOLERA.

Again our State has been visited by a severe scourge of hog cholera. The value of the animals that have died during the last year is estimated at not less than $12,000,000.00. The most effective, and in fact, so far as I am aware, the only remedy that seems to check or prevent the spread of this disease, is what is familiarly known as the serum method of treatment. There has been appropriated $8,000 biennially for the manufacture of serum in this State. This has been wholly inadequate to meet the demand during the last few months so that large quantities have had to be shipped in from other states. I recommend a larger appropriation and better preparation for the manufacturing and distribution of serum to the end that in the future we may be able to avoid the great loss that has resulted from the spread of disease among swine.

Statistics also show a tremendous loss in the value of the swine produced in the State by reason of the prevalence of tuberculosis. It is generally believed that this disease among swine is largely due to its prevalence among cattle, and in order to eradicate it from the one it will be necessary to eradicate it from the other also.

Dourine has also been found to exist among the horses in a few localities of the state, but has been closely quarantined and seems fairly well under control.

You will, no doubt, be called upon to legislate so as to enable the authorities of the State to better regulate and control these as well as other diseases among animals.

BEE INSPECTION.

Most of us, I presume, have regarded the bee industry of the State as a matter of no particular consequence. I must confess that I have been surprised to learn that there are perhaps forty thousand people in the state who are more or less extensively engaged in the handling of bees, and that the value of the honey produced is estimated as exceeding one million dollars. This industry is being badly injured and in fact its existence is threatened by what is termed "foul brood." We have a law creating the office of Bee Inspector, but for some reason no appropriation has been made to meet the expenses and pay the salary of such official.

It has been suggested that the matter of bee inspection and nursery inspection be combined, that an appropriation sufficient to meet the requirements of both be made and that the work be placed in the hands of the State Entomologist. I hardly feel sufficiently informed on the subject to recommend that this be done, but the plan seems to me to be feasible and I recommend it to you for consideration. I do wish, however, to urge upon you the making of ample provision for ridding our State of "foul brood" which is prevalent in many parts of the State and which is rapidly destroying the bee industry.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The question of weights and measures is becoming of great importance to the people of our State and since the matter of testing scales has been lodged with the Dairy and Food Commissioner and other states have clothed that official with authority as to the subject of weights and measures, I recommend that he be made the superintendent of weights and measures in this State. I also recommend that the laws upon these subjects be so revised as to make them more effective and bring them up to date.

The dairy interests of the State have grown to such an extent that we now rank first of all of the states in the production of butter and are making very satisfactory progress in other lines of dairying and stock raising. Much of the work that has been accomplished during the last four years is due to the aid given by the State in the way of appropriations made.

During this session you will, no doubt, have presented to you measures intended to better the sanitary conditions of the state, not only as relates to dairying, but with reference to the health of the people of the state and with especial reference to food products. It is universally conceded that a proper observance of sanitary law is the most potent factor in the establishment and maintenance of a healthful condition, both among men and animals. I feel assured, therefore, that you will give due regard to the necessity for the enactment of better laws upon the subject of sanitation.

AGRICULTURE AND HORTICULTURE.

Without going into details with regard to the Department of Agriculture and Horticulture, I desire to say that very satisfactory progress has been and is being made in each and that as far as is consistent with other interests of the State, you should continue to aid and encourage them.

You will be asked for an appropriation for the erection of a woman's building upon the State Fair Grounds, to be used not only as an art building, but as an auditorium for lectures and for other purposes tending to the promotion of the moral, social and intellectual advancement of the people of the State. In considering improvements to be made, you should give thoughtful consideration to this request. We should not overlook the necessity and importance of promoting the welfare and strengthening the citizenship of the State. The request for the erection of a woman's building is with a view to accomplishing these results, and I desire to give it my hearty approval.

In this connection, I wish to call your attention to the fact that the Federal Government has established a Child Welfare Department or Bureau, and that the subject is being very generally considered in many states of the Union. Certainly there can be no more important subject than the welfare—physical, mental and moral—of our children, and Iowa could do herself no greater honor than to be the first state in the Union to place upon her statute book a law establishing a Child Welfare Department or Bureau as a permanent branch of our State Government.

STATE FIRE MARSHAL.

The Thirty-fourth session of the General Assembly enacted a law creating the office of State Fire Marshal. The law has been in operation now a year and a half. The results have been very satisfactory and in my opinion the vigorous manner in which Fire Marshal Ole O. Roe and his assistants are enforcing the law will greatly reduce the number of incendiary fires throughout the State. From July 1, 1911, when the law took effect, up to the present time more than 3,700 fires have been reported to the Marshal's office, of which more than 175 were suspected as being of incendiary origin, and have been investigated. As a result of these investigations four persons have been convicted and sent to the penitentiary, two were given jail sentences, one was sent to the insane asylum, one to the boys' industrial school, two to the hospital for inebriates, two were fined, one was acquitted and eleven indictments are now pending.

Nearly five hundred buildings have been inspected and many orders have been issued with regard to removing the danger of fire incident to the unsafe conditions found to exist.

STATE SHERIFF.

It has been suggested that there is need of a state official or officials who, under the direction of the Governor, could be sent into any part of the State to make investigation where crime has been committed and to assist the Governor and the Attorney General in enforcing the laws. Several occasions have arisen during the last year where such an official might have accomplished great good and some instances have arisen where, beyond question, his services would have been of value to the state. In the case of the murder at Villisca, one of the foulest crimes ever committed in this or any other state, aside from the limited reward that the Governor may offer, the State was without any direct means of assisting in apprehending the murderer. However, in order to do all that was within our power we employed for several weeks a detective from the W. J. Burns detective agency and paid him for his time and expenses out of the Attorney General's contingent fund and I reimbursed the Attorney General from the Governor's Counsel fund. While this is an unsatisfactory way to transact business we felt that we were operating entirely within the law and that every citizen of the State would approve what was done. The suggestion of a state official to act in the capacity above mentioned is worthy of your consideration and I recommend that provision be made so that the power of the State will be strengthened either as above provided or in some other effective manner.

COMMERCE COUNSEL.

The Thirty-fourth session of the General Assembly created the office of Commerce Counsel and made appropriations for the use of the Counsel and the State Board of Railroad Commissioners in matters pertaining to interstate and intrastate commerce. The results obtained with reference thereto have been much more satisfactory than in the past, and I feel assured that the creation of the office of Commerce Counsel has been fully justified. I am convinced, however, that the power and authority of that official should be enlarged. He should be made the legal adviser of the Board of Railroad Commissioners. He should also have charge of proceedings in the courts where injunctions are brought against the Commission to restrain it from enforcing its rules or orders or where actions are brought by the Commission for the enforcement of such rules or orders. He should also be clothed with authority to appear and have charge of and prosecute all cases ordered by the Board of Railroad Commissioners or brought by the Counsel himself before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In making the above suggestions there is no thought to in any way limit or interfere with the power of the Attorney General with reference to these matters. His authority being constitutional could not be interfered with by a statutory enactment, but any law to be enacted should be so drawn as to fully recognize his authority with reference to the matters under consideration.

ARBITRATION OF DISPUTES.

I want again to call your attention to the necessity for the enactment of a law requiring disputes between employer and employe to be submitted to arbitration before a strike or lockout can be ordered. This matter was called to the attention of the Thirty-fourth session of the General Assembly, but the necessity for action did not seem to impress itself upon the members of that body. Since then we have had a number of disputes and disagreements, some of which have resulted in strikes of a more or less serious character. In some instances the disagreement arose over matters of a trival nature which ought to have been adjusted without difficulty. I most earnestly urge upon you the necessity for legislation with reference to the matter herein suggested, both in the interest of the employe and the employer, and also in the interest of the general public which is often inconvenienced and injured by these industrial disturbances. This is a subject of far-reaching importance and you ought not to adjourn without enacting a law with reference to it. I can not urge this upon you too strongly. You will find both in Canada and in Australia as well as in some of the states, statutes bearing upon this subject which apparently have worked fairly well and which may be made the basis of laws to be here enacted.

AN IMMUNITY STATUTE.

Near the close of the last session of the General Assembly there was presented and passed through the House a measure designed to strengthen our laws for the prevention of combinations in restraint of trade or for the fixing of prices of commodities. The bill failed in the Senate during the closing hours of the session. Without an immunity statute it is very difficult to secure evidence sufficient to justify the bringing of an action even when it is generally conceded that unlawful combinations exist. I recommend that our laws be amended in substantial harmony with the provisions of the bill above referred to.

LAW ENFORCEMENT.

In my inaugural address of four years ago I stated that events that had recently occurred had brought forth a demand for law enforcement and that the matters referred to had reference to violations of the liquor statutes of the State.

The Thirty-third General Assembly, then in session, enacted what are commonly known as the Cosson removal statutes, which statutes, in my opinion, have done much to bring about a wholesome regard for all laws of the state, and especially for the liquor laws, so that I feel warranted in saying that perhaps at no time in the State's history have these laws been better observed than at present.

From the Iowa Official Register and from other sources, it appears that in September, 1908, saloons were being operated in forty counties of the State and that there was a total of sixteen hundred and twelve in operation. Recent statistics show that there are at present only thirteen counties where saloons generally exist, that there is one county which has saloons in two cities only and nine counties which have saloons in only one city each, while there are seventy-six counties that have no saloons at all, and the total number in the state is only seven hundred and thirty-one.

This shows the largest extent of "dry" territory and the smallest number of saloons for many years if indeed not at any time in the history of the State since it attained to any considerable size in population.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION.

Again I want to call your attention to the need of better laws with reference to regulation and control of public utilities and to the creation of a public utilities commission. It is not necessary to enter into a lengthy discussion of this subject. That you can find in my message of two years ago. What I want to do here is to urge that this question be taken up early so that it cannot be said in the closing hours of the session that "There is not sufficient time to properly consider the matter." I would recommend the Crist Bill of the last session of the General Assembly as a basis from which to work, making any changes therein that may be necessary to meet the conditions and requirements of our State. Let no man offer the excuse that he opposed a measure because it contained objectionable features unless he can, in good faith, show that he tried to secure the elimination or modification of such provisions as do not meet with his approval.

The bills considered during the last two sessions of the Legislature went to defeat largely by reason of the opposition of officials of certain cities who as an excuse for that opposition set up the false claim that the measures were designed to aid corporations. It might better be said to have been the selfish opposition of public officials who feared a curtailment of some of their powers and the removal of a convenient campaign issue. What we need in the regulation of corporations and the guarding of the interests of the public, is a commission that is well qualified for the work to be done, has the courage of its convictions and is so far removed from local influences as to be fearless in the performance of duty. With such a commission we may expect efficient service from public service corporations, and not until we have such a commission.

INSTITUTIONS UNDER THE BOARD OF CONTROL.

It will not be possible for me to go into detail with regard to the many institutions under the management of the State Board of Control, but there are some things in connection with most all of them to which I wish to call your attention and then most earnestly request of you a careful perusal and consideration of the recommendation made by the Board in its report, which is now available for your inspection and use.

I think I ought, however, to say that as compared with the educational institutions of the state, the institutions under the charge of the Board of Control fared rather badly at the hands of the last session of the legislature, consequently, the necessities of those institutions are greater at this time by reason of the fact that they were in some respects neglected two years ago. This is not stated by way of criticism, because I do not believe that the educational institutions received more than they should have had, but the institutions under charge of the Board of Control which did not receive adequate appropriations two years ago will necessarily require more liberal appropriations at your hands.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

Among other things, the Board is asking for a definite amount for the maintenance of the Soldiers' Home rather than that it should depend upon a per capita allowance as at present. This I think will readily appeal to you when you have in mind that the number of inmates of the Soldiers' Home will very soon, in all probability, decrease at quite a rapid rate so that it will either be necessary to make much larger per capita allowance or to provide for a fixed monthly amount to be used for maintenance. I cannot impress upon you too strongly the duty which rests upon you as members of the Legislature in making every provision for the proper care and support of the veterans of the Civil War and their wives, who by reason of age, infirmity or lack of funds by which to support themselves have found homes in our State Institutions.

ORPHANS' HOME.

At the Orphans' Home at Davenport appropriations are asked for to erect an addition to the hospital and also for the erection of a school building I wish to say in this connection that upon my last visit to this Institution I was impressed with the very crowded conditions of the school and what seemed to me to be an imperative demand for more school room. The work in the school and the management of the institution are of a very high order, but more room is badly needed and I urgently recommend that provision be made for at least three or four additional rooms or for a separate building for lower grades, as is recommended by the Board of Control.

SCHOOL FOR DEAF.

There is little that I need to state with regard to the School for the Deaf except that small appropriations for many purposes are requested but the aggregate is not large and the necessities of the institution in this respect are not so great as at the other institutions of the state. Two years ago I recommended that the School for the Deaf and the School for the Blind be transferred from the Board of Control to the State Board of Education. The latter was transferred but the former was not. The deaf people of the state and those persons whose children are sent to the institution feel that it ought to be taken out of the group of penal and charitable institutions and classed with the educational institutions. There is much merit in what they have to say and I suggest that you give it due consideration.

INSTITUTION FOR FEEBLE MINDED.

At the Institution for Feeble Minded Children an appropriation sufficient to complete the girls' cottage will be asked for. The foundation of this building has already been put in and it is necessary in order to complete the structure that a sufficient appropriation be made therefor.

TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM.

A medical building is asked for at the Tuberculosis Sanatorium. This is needed not only in order to meet the requirements of the institution as at present, but in anticipation of any enlargement upon our method of conducting this Sanatorium. I believe the results obtained have fully met the expectations of those interested in the management as well as those who have observed the workings of the institution. The receiving quarters are inadequate and if the best results are to be had from the maintenance of an Institution of this character it should be so extended as to furnish treatment and a home for patients in advanced stages of consumption as well as in the incipient stages. In fact the danger of the spread of disease by those in advanced stages of consumption is very much greater than those in the incipient stages. In my opinion the scope of the work at this Institution should be enlarged as is herein suggested.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

At the Industrial School for Boys an appropriation is asked for in order that the administration building may be reconstructed so as to use a portion of it for a gymnasium.

At the Industrial School for Girls at Mitchellville no large appropriation is asked for any particular item and the aggregate of appropriations is small.

HOSPITALS FOR INSANE.

At the Hospital at Mt. Pleasant and at the Hospital at Clarinda appropriations are asked for the erection of a Psychopathic Hospital.

At Independence an appropriation is asked for the erection of a cottage for patients afflicted with tuberculosis.

At Cherokee an appropriation is asked for the erection of a home for employes.

Several of these hospitals are badly crowded but it seems to me that at least two of the items herein mentioned are deserving of especial consideration. That is, buildings for the segregation of tubercular patients and homes for the employes to which they may go for rest and relaxation after their day's work in caring for the patients has been completed.

The items herein referred to with reference to the above Institutions are only a few of the many which will come before you for consideration.

I wish to add that in general our State Institutions are in a very satisfactory condition and I feel warranted in commending the supervising officers as well as those in charge of the Institutions of the State.

FORT MADISON.

Some months ago there was a good deal of complaint regarding the prison and prison management at the Penitentiary at Fort Madison. I had the complaints carefully investigated by the Board of Control, investigated most of them myself and had the President and Secretary of the State Board of Health inspect the prison as to its sanitary condition. At a still later date I asked the Attorney General, assisted by Judge M. A. Roberts of Ottumwa and Hon. Parley Sheldon of Ames to make an investigation of the complaints and report the same to me. The result of it all was that nothing was reported that justified any serious complaint except such as necessarily attached to an old, and in many respects, out-of-date institution, which the Board of Control is trying to modernize as fast as can be done with the funds and means at hand. The new cell house is being constructed and when done will afford an opportunity to reconstruct the old cell house and to a great extent remove any just cause for complaint from that source.

An appropriation is asked for by the Board of Control for the completion of the cell building. The feeling among the prisoners at this time is much better than formerly, discipline has improved, and things are moving along apparently without friction and in a satisfactory manner.

ANAMOSA.

In my general discussion of prisons and prison management and the employment of prison labor I have stated what I think ought to be done for the Anamosa Institution. I only wish to say here that conditions at the reformatory aside from what I have elsewhere stated, are quite satisfactory and the management is capable and efficient.

EPILEPTIC COLONY.

Two years ago I discussed at some length the necessity for the establishment of an Epileptic Colony. Without assuming to discuss it again I wish to say that the needs for such an institution are even greater today than ever before and in my opinion the next eleemosynary institution that is established should be a home or colony for epileptics. An appropriation is this year asked for by the Board of Control for the establishment of an Institution of this character and I want to give it my most hearty approval and endorsement.

KNOXVILLE.

Two years ago I felt compelled to say to the 34th session of the General Assembly, that conditions at the Hospital for Inebriates were so unsatisfactory that we might well consider abandoning the Institution.

Sinse that time conditions have changed so that the present management is deserving of congratulations. However, there is still opportunity for great improvement and the Superintendent believes that in order to make the Institution a recognized success and put the question of the advisability of maintaining it, beyond a doubt it should be made dual in character. That is, there should be a hospital for the treatment of those who need treatment and there should be a work house, or custodial building within an enclosure or walls for those who need reformation rather than treatment.

This suggestion is very much in line with what I proposed two years ago and I want to recommend it to you for consideration and adoption.

COMMITTEE TO VISIT STATE INSTITUTIONS.

Again I want to urge upon you the suggestion made in my message of two years ago, that you create a Committee which during the sixty or ninety days preceding the convening of the session of the General Assembly shall visit and study the needs of our various State Institutions. With due regard for the members of this body I am compelled to say that in my opinion the ordinary junket to the institutions, by committees appointed as heretofore. means little if anything more than a visit with the superintending officer and a hurried look at the Institution. It cannot result in any great amount of good or furnish any valuable information. You should appoint a special Committee and give it time to make a thorough study of the needs of the Institutions in order that you may better understand them when they come before you for consideration.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The law creating the State Board of Education took effect July, 1909. As with all other changes from an established custom there has been more or less criticism with regard to the management of our Institution under this Board and yet the Institutions themselves have prospered and flourished. The attendance at each of the schools under the control of this Board, I am informed, shows a considerable increase. The Board in its recent report, filed with me as Governor of the State, has made a number of recommendations and has announced its purpose to transfer the Engineering Department from Iowa City to Ames and the Domestic Science Department and the Liberal Arts Department from Ames and Cedar Falls to Iowa City. These proposed changes have brought many protests and vigorous opposition exists with reference to them. The Board has based its action upon its own judgment and the advice of men skilled in educational affairs and in the management of Educational Institutions.

Without expressing an opinion as to the wisdom of the proposed changes I wish to say to you that before taking such steps as will override the judgment of the governing body of these institutions the most careful and painstaking consideration should be given, not only to the immediate effect of the changes proposed, but to the ultimate interest and welfare of the State and also of the Institutions. I recommend to you a careful perusal and study of the Board's report and also of the reasons assigned for its action.

The needs of the various Educatioual Institution will be presented to you by the Board and its Finance Committee and to these needs I also ask your attenion.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

You will have no subject to deal with which demand more careful consideration than that of Public Schools.

At the session of the State Teachers Association in 1911 an appropriation of $2,000 was made from the funds of the Association to meet the expense of a Commission appointed to investigate Public School conditions in the State and report its findings to the Association. That Commission is known as the "Better Iowa Schools Commission." It has spent much time in considering what might be done to better the condition of our schools and has made its report which will be available for your use and which I most highly commend to you for consideration.

One of the strong features of the report is that bearing upon the question of consideration of territory or enlarging the unit for school purposes. I think I can do no better than to quote in part from a discussion of this subject by our State Superintendent of Public Instruction in which he says: "The existence of rural sub-districts and rural independent districts, especially the latter, is a hindrance to securing better school facilities in the State. The unit of organization should be sufficiently large in order that the taxing unit will not only support good schools below the eighth grade, but also a high school department, offering from two to four years' work bearing a close relationship to the interests and industries of the community. The small rural independent district not only affords a territorial area too small to provide a proper educational unit, but it is too small for community purposes as a school unit. A rural high school building located at the center of the township would provide a good place for the educational, social and recreational activities of the community, and our aim should be for such a center for every community in Iowa. The rural high school is just as essential to a complete system of education for the country as is the town high school to a complete system of education for the town. The rural independent district embraces too small a territory to support a high school because of the small number of resident pupils. The adoption of an area to consist of not less than the Congressional township, is the most important need of legislative action today relating to schools "The consolidated schools offer a partial solution to the teacher problem. A less number of teachers will be required and better wages will be paid. There will be better qualified teachers who will make the work of teaching more nearly a permanent occupation."

It must be apparent to all who have given consideration to school matters that we have not been giving as much attention to the strengthening of the lower grades in our schools as should be given. Perhaps 90% of the school children of the State never go beyond the eighth grade. Something should be done to keep more pupils in school until they complete the public school course. So far as the country pupils are concerned, I believe this can be done by enabling them to study the branches that relate more directly to the things in which they are interested and to which they will in all probability turn their attention in the future, viz.: Agriculture, Horticulture, Manual Training, Home Economics and Domestic Science. Both the State Superintendent and the Better Iowa Schools Commission say in their reports that answers to inquiries sent out by them indicate that there is a general demand for the teaching of these subjects in the country schools. You should make it possible to meet this demand.

Every suggestion of enlarging the size of our school districts and transporting pupils suggests the necessity for improving our highways. That subject I have discussed elsewhere and will, therefore, not further consider it here.

I want most heartily to endorse the recommendation for doing all that can be done to better equip teachers for the work which is expected of them and to induce them to continue in the work, and to this end I endorse the recommendation to authorize contracts, with teachers, not only superintendents, but other teachers as well, for a period longer than that now permitted. This of itself should tend to cause teachers to continue in the work. I know from experience that the uncertainties which arise, at the end of each school year with regard to re-employment are not only sources of worry and annoyance to teachers, but cause them to want to obtain other employment where such uncertainties do not exist.

I want also to endorse the suggestion regarding the increase of salary of the State Superintendent and the recodification of the school laws, the merits of both of which I think will be so apparent to you that they need no discussion.

It is not possible for me to refer to all of the many phases of the school question which demand attention and I therefore invite you to a careful study and consideration of the suggestions and recommendations made by the Superintendent of Public Instruction and to the report of the committee on Better Iowa Schools.

MORE NORMAL SCHOOLS.

If we are to accept the opinions of those who are engaged in school work and who make a study of school questions as to what is needed to advance the interests of the Public Schools, and especially of the rural schools, I think we will be forced to the conclusion that we need more and better facilities for the training of teachers, that is, teachers for grade work, as well as for high school work. This being true it naturally follows that we need more Normal Schools. This thought is suggested and emphasized not only by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Better Iowa Schools Commission but by the State Board of Education. I want to give my endorsement to the suggestion and to recommend that you take such steps as will eventually result in the establishment of at least two or three more Normal Schools to do that kind of work which is necessary to properly equip the common school teachers for the duties which they are expected to perform.

REVISION OF TAX LAWS.

One of the most important matters that will come before you for consideration will be that of the revision of our laws relating to revenues and taxation. At the last session of the General Assembly provision was made for the appointment of a special commission to consider the question here referred to and to report its findings to this session of the Assembly in order that you might be better able to enact such changes in our laws as would make them more just and equitable. That report has been presented to each of you in the form of a printed volume. I want to commend the Commission for the splendid work that it has done and to request of you the most careful consideration of the recommendations contained in the report. It will be impossible for me to go into detail in a discussion of the report and recommendations, but there are some features of them that I want to consider with you.

It is proposed by the Commission that property be assessed at its actual value, instead of twenty-five per cent of such value. Reference is made in the report to the fact that every State in the Union except Alabama lists property at its supposed actual value and that all other States except Illinois, Idaho, Nebraska, and Iowa assume to assess property at full value and hence the conclusion is reached that the Commission is fully warranted in recommending that a change be made in the laws of this State. However, in order to prevent a large increase in taxes by reason of the change in the basis of assessment it is proposed and provided that the levies now provided by statute for various purposes shall be correspondingly reduced.

It is also proposed to change the method of assessing bank stocks, making such stocks assessable at full value and assessing the surplus and undivided profits in such banks upon the same basis that moneys and credits are now assessed. By this means it is hoped not only to reach a more equitable assessment but to encourage banks in building up a strong surplus.

It is further proposed that the Constitution of the state be so amended as to permit or require public service corporations, especially transportation companies, to pay their taxes direct into the state treasury. This subject I called to the attention of the last session of the General Assembly. It is well worthy of your consideration. A number of states have such a law and with a law of that kind enacted in this state some of the vexing questions with which we now have to contend would be removed, especially the question of equalizing between counties, which is one of the difficult if indeed not impossible matters and from which many inequalities arise. There is not a wide difference in the amount of taxes now paid by transportation companies and the amount paid by the counties into the state treasury, so that a change of this character need not seriously disturb the state or the counties as to the amount of taxes raised.

It is proposed by the report of the tax commission and by the bill which it has prepared to change in some respects the machinery for administering the tax laws. Instead of the Executive Council of the State acting as a board of assessment and review those duties are to be transferred to a permanent tax commission with powers somewhat broader than those now lodged with the Council. After ten years of experience as a member of the Council I feel warranted in saying to you that under our present system it is not possible for the Council to perform its duties as a board of assessment and review in a satisfactory manner. The proposed commission is to consist of three members to be appointed by the Governor, confirmed by the Senate, and to serve for a period of six years. There is also to be a county assessor and local assessors but no township board of review. The county assessor is to have authority to review the work of the local assessors, making such changes or alterations therein as he may deem necessary and his work is subject to review by the county board of supervisors. The first county assessor is to be appointed by the Board of Supervisors and thereafter the office is to be filled by election as other county officers are elected.

These are only a few of the more important parts of the report and the bill that will come before you, but I desired to call them to your attention because I feel that they demand especial consideration.

The commission has re-written the entire chapter on revenue and taxation, so that when you have finished your work, if the proposed measure is adopted, you will have a single statute rather than the old law with amendments.

MONEYS AND CREDITS.

The Executive Council in fixing the levy for state purposes for the year 1912 necessary to bring in $2,500,000 required by Chapter 190, Acts of the 34th General Assembly, found it necessary to increase the levy from 3 and 3-10 mills for general state purposes to 3 and 4-10 mills. The necessity for this increase appears to be directly traceable to the change in the law with reference to the assessment of moneys and credits.

For the year 1911 the taxable value of the moneys and credits listed in the state amounted, in round numbers, to $42,500,000, which, under a 3 and 3-10 mills levy yielded to the state an income of $140,000. For the year 1912 the actual value of moneys and credits listed was, in round numbers, $188,700,000, which upon a levy of five mills, that provided for by the law enacted by the last session of the General Assembly, would yield an income of $943,500. Of this amount the state receives about 1-14th part, or an income of substantially $67,000, showing a loss to the state of about $73,000. In order to make up this loss it was necessary to add 1-10 of a mill to the general levy for state purposes.

I am not ready to say that the present statute on the assessment of moneys and credits should be repealed, as there may be advantages resulting from interest rates, etc., that compensate in part at least for the loss of taxes, but I am of the opinion that the enactment of the law fixing a flat rate of five mills upon the dollar upon moneys and credits and the repeal of the tax ferret law at the same time was of questionable propriety, for the reason that the change in the method of assessment of moneys and credits has not brought upon the tax books the added amount of these items that was predicted. The law has not, however, been tried long enough to make certain what will be its final effect.

DIRECT INHERITANCE TAX.

Again I want to recommend the enactment of a law taxing direct inheritances. So many states have adopted a law of this character that it has become a recognized legitimate source from which to derive revenue. I should exempt ordinary estates from the operation of the law and would increase the tax with the increased value of the estate.

Perhaps half of the states of the Union now tax direct inheritances. Iowa ought no longer to neglect the adoption of such a statute but should keep pace with the adjoining states, four at least of which have such a law.

LAND AND PERSONAL CREDIT ASSOCIATIONS.

I desire to call your attention to the question of land and personal credit associations as they are organized and operated in some European countries, not for the purpose of making recommendation with reference thereto but because the President of the United States regarded the subject of sufficient importance to render it expedient for him to invite the Governors of the various states into a conference with him on the 7th ultimo, to consider it. These organizations are co-operative and mutual and are instituted for the purpose of enabling land owners and others engaged in agricultural pursuits to obtain loans upon long time, at low rates of interest and payable in small amounts at stated intervals. The exact form of the organizations varies in details in different countries but all have for their purpose the same object.

In some countries the land credit associations assume the form of land mortgage banks where instead of lending money direct to the borrower the banks turn over to him debentures which he sells or which the bank sells for him in order to obtain the desired funds with which to prosecute his business pursuits.

The personal credit associations based their loans largely upon the character and industry of the borrower rather than upon his ability to furnish security. This being true it necessarily follows that the membership of the associations must be limited, both as to numbers and territory, in order that the members may have an intimate acquaintance with each other so as to determine who should and who should not be admitted to membership.

The above merely suggests the plan of operation. To go into a detailed discussion of the subject at this time would be impossible. These concerns do not, however, seem so easy of organization and operation as is the ordinary co-operative organization for carrying on other forms of business. Suffice it to say that Hon. Myron T. Herrick, the Government's representative abroad in the study of this question says, in his report: "The organization of land credit, however, is a very complicated task, especially since the idea is new in the United States, and involved in a tangle of conflicting state laws, and antiquated land registration and taxation system and foreclosure procedures. Many changes, amendments, and additions would have to be made in respect to all of these before the way could be made clear for the formation of land mortgage banks."

It is generally conceded that in order for the land mortgage banks to succeed in this country uniform laws with reference thereto should be adopted by the several states, so that as a matter of fact the first step in the process of establishing the land credit system here should be co-operation between the various states in the formation of a uniform law to be enacted by them. This is insisted upon by Mr. Herrick as being necessary before any effort is made to establish these institutions.

I do not desire to make any recommendation as to legislation with reference to this subject as I am not fully convinced that conditions in our state where we have so many banks, where so many farmers are interested in banks, and where farm and personal loans are so readily obtainable give evidence that there is sufficient demand or need for this new form of credit institutions to warrant action at this time. It is a question which needs careful and thorough investigation before being acted upon and it is with that end in view that the subject is called to your attention.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

The subject of workmen's compensation is so broad and comprehensive that the report of the Commission appointed by me as a result of the action taken by the last session of the General Assembly is entitled to your very careful consideration. The fact that a number of states have enacted Workmen's Compensation Acts and that other states and the Federal Government are considering the advisability of such enactments indicate that there is no need of discussing the advisability of enacting such a law in this state.

The comprehensiveness of the report submitted by the Commission is evidence of a thoughtful appreciation of the magnitude of the work entrusted to it and the fact that I am suggesting modification of some provisions of the proposed law must not be construed as an unfriendly criticism of the Commission's work nor a minimizing of the results of its labors. The Commission deserves the highest commendation for the faithful and able service it has rendered both in the report made and the bill prepared. However, this being an entirely new subject of legislation I feel sure that you will welcome a full and free discussion of it. To this end I have conferred with Mr. S. H. Wolfe, one of the most able and widely known actuaries of the country, and as a result of our deliberations and conclusions I submit the following:

The bill recommended by the majority of the Commission, as I understand its provisions, makes the application of the Compensation act compulsory upon all employers having more than five employes, and also to all of the employes of the state, counties, municipal corporations, school districts, and cities under special charters or commission form of government without regard to the limitation of five employes, except that either the employer or employe may decline to come under its provisions by filing a notice of rejection with the Iowa Industrial Commission. If an employer declines to come under the law he is deprived of the important defenses of contributory negligence, assumption of risk and fellow servant, in the event that suit be brought against him by an employe. If, however, the employe is the one who has rejected the terms of the act, the employer shall have the right to use any or all of said defenses.

The benefits payable to the injured workmen within the act consist of medical and hospital services during the first four weeks of disablement, and funeral benefits not to exceed in either instance, $100, compensation in the event of death at the rate of 60% of his average weekly wages, with a maximum of $12.00 and a minimum of $5.00, payable to his dependents for 300 weeks, compensation to the employe himself for temporary, partial or total disability, and specific amounts for various enumerated dismemberments.

For the purpose of securing the payment of benefits an unincorporated association, known as the Employers' Indemnity Association, is to be created, membership in which is compulsory upon all of the employers coming within the act. It will be the duty of the Board of Directors within ninety days after Part III of the act becomes effective, to call the first meeting of the members of the Association by mailing to each member at his place of business a notice in writing. The Board of Directors is charged with the important duty of grouping the members in accordance with the nature of the business and the degree of the risk of injury, and with adopting rules and regulations and premium rates subject to the approval of the Iowa Industrial Commission. The Iowa Industrial Commission is to consist of three members to be appointed by the Governor by and with the consent of the Senate from names of persons furnished and recommended by the Supreme Court.

The bill also provides for the creation of a reserve fund and for reinsuring certain amounts of the risks. These are of the salient features of the bill which I wish to discuss in order that we may have a better understanding with reference to them.

It will be noted that the act applies only to employers who have five or more employes, the reason given by the Commission for this limitation being, that where but five persons are employed the hazards are not as great, and farm hands and domestic servants would, in effect, be excluded. It would seem to me that this provision works an injustice on the operatives of many small plants who are deprived of compensation benefits because their employer does not have five employes, although the hazard and exposure may be much greater than in a neighboring plant where a larger number of employes are engaged.

Then again, an employer might have three employes for six months in the year and ten during the busy season. If this limitation as to five employes becomes a law would his employes be covered during the entire year or not? It seems to me to be both unnecessary and unwise to insert this limitation.

Although the bill provides for an enforced membership by each employer in a mutual association created by the State it would appear from section 10, part I, that the injured workman is to hold his employer directly liable for the compensation payments and for this purpose each claimant is given a lien upon all the property of his employer. If we are going to require the employer to join this association and to pay any premium which may be fixed by the Industrial Commission, why should we hazard his commercial credit by the creation of a general lien of this kind? Should not the injured workman look to the association for the payment of his benefits since he elects to come within the provisions of the act? In fact one of the great advantages of this proposed plan over the English and the New Jersey systems is that it substitutes collective responsibility (as typified by the association) for the individual responsibility of the employer. The method suggested by me has been adopted in other states.

While I believe that the act should be made compulsory, and therefore the avoidance of its provisions should be made difficult, I am not in sympathy with that provision which requires an employer or an employe to renew his rejection within thirty days before the termination of one year after it has been originally filed. The enforcement of this provision would work unintentional hardship upon the employes in that it would require them to keep track of the lapse of time for the purpose of knowing whether the employer was still under the law and whether their rights were still preserved. I am of the opinion that this provision will cause great confusion in the administration of this act, and would therefore recommend that a rejection be effective not for one year, but until waived.

The bill provides that compensation shall start on the fifteenth day after injury and that the employer shall be required to furnish surgical, medical and hospital services and supplies for the first four weeks after the injury. It is quite apparent that in order to prevent malingering, it is necessary to provide that no compensation shall be paid during the first two weeks, and it seems entirely proper that during that time the employe should receive medical and surgical attention at the expense of the employer. If, however, from the fifteenth day on the employer is required to pay a certain percentage of the employe's wages, whether the injury is the result of negligence on the part of the employer or the employe's own fault, it seems to me that a fair consideration for the rights of both parties would require that when the compensation begins the employer's liability to meet the expenses of medical and hospital services and supplies should cease. Otherwise, malingering would be encouraged and other abuses might arise.

The act provides for the payment of 60% of the average weekly wages, both to total dependents in case of death and to the workman himself in case of disability. There is danger that the payment of so large a per cent might furnish an incentive for malingering. It is my understanding that 50% of the average weekly wages is the amount allowed in most other states and has been found to work very satisfactorily.

The bill further provides that the Governor shall appoint a commission from among persons recommended by the Supreme Court after publication of the names recommended in at least six newspapers in as many different cities in the state, he being required to heed any written protest that may be filed against any person so recommended. While the purpose here no doubt is to remove from political influence the selection of members of the Commission, I fear that we may by this provision simply transfer the possible political pressure from the Governor to the members of the Supreme Court, and that we will encourage manifestations of personal prejudices by suggesting the filing of written protests. I do not think that any Governor would be found wanting in the selection of proper appointees, and to provide for the Supreme Court acting as a preliminary appointive body, would introduce an innovation which might have dangerous and unfortunate tendencies. I am therefore of the opinion that the members of the Commission should be appointed by the Governor upon his own initiative as are the members of other commissions. The bill provides a term of ten years for members of the commission which, in my opinion, is entirely too long. I would suggest a limit of four or six years at most.

By Part III the bill creates a monopoly inasmuch as it requires any employer who wants to pay compensation benefits to his injured employes to become a member of an Employers' Indemnity Association. He is not allowed to come within the act and take his insurance with any other concern. The effect of this attempt to limit the form of insurance protection will, I am afraid, defeat the very purpose of the act by encouraging the employers to retain their personal freedom by remaining without the act and securing their liability insurance from other sources.

Then too, the Board of Directors, within ninety days after Part III of the act becomes effective, is required to send a written notice to every employer of labor in the state having five or more employes, and who has not served the statutory notice of his rejection of the provisions of the law. How is this Board to know who are members of the Association? It has been estimated that the number sought to be brought under the law would be at least fifteen thousand. Assuming that the required notice has been sent and that all have come within the law, where will the Board of Directors obtain a sufficient number of qualified and experienced insurance actuaries, underwriters, managers and clerks to immediately perform the highly technical labor of properly insuring and handling fifteen thousand risks, together with the necessary scientific work of grouping them in accordance with the nature of the business and of the degree of the risk of injury, intelligently inspecting each and every one of the fifteen thousand risks, in order that no injustice may be done any employer as respects his rate of premium, attend to the usual and inevitable correspondence, collect the premiums and pay on an equitable basis the benefits prescribed? I am afraid that the first days of its existence would render the condition of the Association so chaotic that its further continuance would be a practicable impossibility. It seems to me, therefore, that for the sake of the Association, as well as the employers of the state, we should adopt a course similar to that now being followed in Massachusetts, where those who have elected to come within the act, are required to carry insurance either in the Massachusetts Employers Insurance Association, which is similar in its purpose to the Employers' Liability Association proposed by this bill, or in an authorized insurance company. In this way a practical test of the superiority of the two methods will be had, for if the Association can furnish better and cheaper protection than can the other organizations, all of the employers will eventually become members; if, on the other hand, the services of the Association are not as satisfactory as those furnished by other concerns, no employer ought to be compelled to join it.

The manner in which the concluding part of Section 50, Part III, is drawn will yield results not in accordance with usual insurance practices. It is a well recognized fact that the more distributed the risks, the less is the necessity for reinsurance. It would appear to be the intention of this section to require a larger amount of reinsurance as the membership increases. As just stated, this is contrary to the logic of insurance. The method to be followed in reinsurance is likewise vague, and it is difficult to see how it can be carried out by the Association. I am of the opinion that the matter of reinsurance could with perfect safety be left with the Board of Directors.

Section 51 states that the contingent liability of all the members shall be liable for the payment of any claim against the association or its members. I find no other reference in the bill to a contingent liability, and it seems to me that some definite limit should be prescribed for this. To leave the contingent liability unlimited would cause employers untold anxiety, would affect their credit, would be unjust, and would no doubt cause many to reject the terms of the statute.

Section 30 of Part III of the bill provides that in all cases where arbitration is resorted to a member of the Commission shall act as chairman of the arbitration committee. If the Association should assume the proportions contemplated by the act I fear that it would be wholly impossible for the members of the Commission to act in such capacity without neglecting other duties incumbent upon them. I would suggest that the Commission select the third member of the arbitration committee and that the findings of the committee be subject to review by the Commission.

Section 41 of Part II provides that members of the Commission may be removed by the Governor for becoming financially interested in any enterprise coming under or affected by this act. If that is the only cause for which members may be removed it is too limited. Members should be subject to removal for misconduct, malfeasance or nonfeasance in office, as well as for other justifiable reasons.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT.

The question of improving the highways of the state is one not only of general interest but of practical importance. Three years ago I called a good roads meeting to be held in Des Moines and to be composed of county officials, and representative men of the various counties and of the commercial organizations of the state. The meeting was well attended and much interest was manifest, but there were divergent views and a wide difference of opinion as to the methods to be pursued. However, an organization was formed and annual meetings thereof have been held with increasing interest. Great good has been accomplished and harmony of action has resulted. The recent session of this organization has with practical unanimity recommended and through its committee will present to you several important matters of which I ask your careful consideration, and among which are the following:

To submit to the people of the state at the next general election the question of a bond issue for road improvements.

The levy of a one mill tax for state aid in the improvement of highways.

The establishment of a county engineer in each county by the Board of Supervisors thereof, subject, however, to the approval of the State Highway Commission.

A classification of rural highways.

A compulsory drag law, non-divertible drag fund and simplifying and making effective our present laws on road dragging.

A recodification of the road laws of the state.

Heretofore I have emphasized the importance of properly dragging, grading and draining the roads and making use of materials at hand, because I did not believe that our people were ready for anything more; and also because those things constitute the first principles in the construction of any kind of roads. By the above means we have greatly improved the highways in almost all parts of the state, but I believe we have now arrived at a period when, without in any degree lessening our efforts along the lines of improvement above suggested, we ought to begin the construction of permanent roads of stone, gravel, etc. As evidence of the fact that there exists a great deal of sentiment with reference thereto I have had presented to me by Mr. F. J. Tishenbanner of Gilmore City, contracts signed by individuals and commercial organizations representing every city and town along the entire length of the road from Des Moines to Spirit Lake, a distance of more than two hundred miles, the signers of which agree to have hauled and deliver on the road free of charge, crushed stone sufficient to construct a stone road along the entire length of the route, if the stone is furnished to them at the various railway stations without cost. If this expression represents the feeling of the people of the state generally, and I have no reason to believe that it does not, something ought to be done to afford opportunity for using this volunteer labor. It has been suggested that bonds be issued to aid in the construction of permanent roads. There certainly could be no harm in submitting the question of a bond issue to the people to let them decide whether they want to issue bonds or not. It has also been suggested that a general tax levy of one mill be made. This would not be burdensome but would yield, on the basis of our present valuation, only about three-quarters of a million dollars. This is only about fifty per cent in excess of the amount that is now raised by the license on automobiles and inasmuch as a great deal of the value of the automobile license is practically lost because of the wide distribution that is made of it I would suggest that instead of a one mill levy you so amend the law as to place the expenditure of the automobile fund in the hands of a central authority.

If we are to undertake the construction of permanent roads it is necessary that we have a permanent and active State Highway Commission and this commission should have charge of the expenditure not only of the automobile license but of any other funds which the state may raise or provide for aid in road improvement. If the automobile license is to be thus used it would be immediately available, whereas the return from a tax levy would not be available until 1914.

In my discussion of the employment of prison labor I have suggested the use of convicts in road building and also in furnishing and preparing stone to be used in highway construction. If you will, therefore, provide for the use of the automobile license or provide some other funds for paying the freight on material with such volunteer labor as has been above suggested in delivering the stone on the roads and with convict labor for use in building them many miles of permanent road may be made at a very low cost. Means should also be provided for the purchase of asphalt or other material to be used as a binder, as it is generally conceded by those best informed in the matters of road construction, that loose stone or gravel will not resist the wear incident to automobile travel.

I trust that you will give the subject of better roads most thoughtful consideration and write into our laws some effective legislation with reference thereto.

PARDONS AND PAROLES.

In the application of the penal statutes of the state no more perplexing question arises than that with regard to the time and the circumstances under which pardoning or parole powers should be exercised. To the individual who has given but a passing thought to the subject, it may seem to be an easy matter to reach a conclusion as to when clemency ought or ought not to be extended, but no such easy conclusion can or should be reached by the public official whose duty it is to pass upon these matters and who must take into account not only the individual upon whose behalf clemency is asked, but all of the circumstances surrounding the commission of the crime, the previous record or conduct of the individual, his family history, the effect that a pardon or parole will have upon the community where the crime was committed and upon the public in general, the effect that it will have upon other convicts and indeed many other matters that often have a bearing upon the situation.

I think sometimes when criticism is directed at the pardoning power of the State or at the Board of Parole that many of the above suggestions are overlooked. I further believe that much of the opposition that exists as to the application of the so-called indeterminate sentence law is due to the fact that it is not understood and that critics have in reality not given careful consideration to the subject of paroles.

To abandon our present system and return to the old method of lodging pardoning and parole powers exclusively with the Governor, would be to return to a system under which it is absolutely impossible for the Governor to learn, in any but the most superficial and unsatisfactory manner, the real merits of most of the cases that he would be required to pass upon. Time alone would render a careful investigation wholly impossible. In addition to the great amount of time that I have given to these matters during the past year, the three members of the Board of Parole have spent an average of nearly two hundred days each and the entire time of the Secretary of the Board, the parole agent, the help of the office of the Board and most of the time of the pardon clerk of the Governor's office have been given to matters of pardon and parole.

Instead of contemplating a return to the old system I want to most urgently recommend that the entire time of the members of the Board be required and that it be equipped in a manner that will enable it to pursue its work in the most effective manner.

In my message of two years ago I said to the session of the 34th General Assembly, "I believe the time is coming when neither courts nor legislatures will concern themselves with the length of time of service of criminals, except as to those guilty of murder. Legislatures will determine the character of crimes for which criminals shall be committed to prison. Courts will determine the question of guilt and boards of parole and pardon will determine how long the convict shall be incarcerated. In other words, the Board of Parole will become a branch of the court. This I believe to be the ultimate and proper sphere of a Board of Parole, when the system reaches a degree of greater development and perfection." I want now without qualification to say to you, and in this I am strongly supported by the judgment of the Board of Parole, that in my opinion the time is now here when both the maximum and the minimum limitation as to term of sentence should be thrown off as to all crimes except as to murder, forcible rape and treason.

The minimum means little at most, for the Board can entirely disregard it, and in many instances where men have proven themselves to be habitual offenders and where the character of crime is of a serious nature the maximum is too short. The principle involved, alone, would lead me to the conclusions which I have reached. If a Board is to be entrusted with power to say that the maximum time fixed by law is too long for some prisoners to serve, it ought also to be empowered to say that it is too short a term for some other offenders. Then, too, some of the absurdities in our statutes are sufficient justification for suggesting a change. To illustrate: knowingly uttering a forged instrument, no matter of how little value, carries with it a maximum penalty of fifteen years, while embezzlement by a public official even though the amount embezzled be ten thousand times as great, carries a penalty of only ten years and the crime of manslaughter carries a penalty of only eight years. In other words, to pass a forged check, even of the value only of one dollar carries a maximum penalty of fifteen years, while to kill a man and be found guilty of manslaughter carries a penalty of only eight years. These are only suggestive of the many indefensible provisions that appear in our penal statutes.

Let Iowa be genuinely progressive and lead the way in the matter of unlimited sentences by writing into our laws a provision in harmony with what has been said and in my opinion it will not be a decade until such a law will appear in the statutes of a large majority of the states.

The Board of Parole has been much more liberal in the exercise of clemency during the last biennial period than formerly. It has paroled 337 from the penitentiary and the reformatory and has paroled three before commitment, making a total of 340 paroles granted from July 1, 1910, to July 1, 1912, as against 221 during the three years preceding July 1, 1910. The average during the former period was less than seventy-four per year, while during the last two years the average was 170 per year. In addition to the above, the Board recommended to me for pardon, parole or commutation of sentence, fifty-one cases, all of which have been acted upon in harmony with the recommendations. The increase in the number of paroles has operated to increase the number of violations of parole to the extent of something less than five per cent over what it was for the three year period heretofore referred to.

During the two years ending December 31, 1912, I granted six pardons, forty-seven paroles, twenty-six commutations, suspended fifty-five jail sentences, remitted forty-four fines and two forfeitures, restored 232 to citizenship, and revoked six suspensions. Most of the pardons, commutations and restorations were upon recommendation of the Board of Parole.

PRISONS AND PRISON LABOR.

During my incumbency in office, I have given a great deal of study to the subject of prisons, prison management and the employment of prison labor and yet I want to say to you that I approach the subject with hesitancy, fully realizing that I have by no means mastered it and also realizing that superficial information as to so difficult a matter is likely to lead to wrong conclusions.

In studying the subject under consideration, I have consulted the best prison authorities that I have been able to meet, not mere theorists, but practical men who are themselves engaged in the work that I am here considering; have advised and counseled with the Board of Control of our State and have visited many prisons, prison farms and road camps, and I feel warranted in saying that no matter what you may do, you will not be able to remove all of the objections that exist with regard to prison management and the employment of convict labor.

There are many fascinating and attractive changes that I might suggest to you, but I want if possible to outline a course of action that will not only be practical and desirable, but that is within the range of possible accomplishment.

First of all, let me say that I am not and never have been in favor of our present contract system, and yet no such abuse exists with regard to it as has been alleged. I want also to say, that the tasks required of the men employed upon the contracts are by no means as exacting and arduous as those required in some of the states where prisoners work upon state account.

I am in favor of prison farms and yet if we had a farm, no matter of what size, we would still be confronted with difficulties, and would still find unsatisfactory conditions that would have to be met. I am in favor of working prisoners upon the highways, and yet the road camp is not without its objectionable features. What then shall we do to meet the popular demand, as well as the real needs of our prisons?

Most important of all, you should make Anamosa a real reformatory. You should do that because you know it to be right and should not hesitate and falter because you fear that by the installation of the necessary industries you will be confronted with opposition. It is assumed that the labor people are opposed to these suggested changes, but the labor people of the state as a class, are not opposed to the establishment of such industries and trade schools at the reformatory as are necessary to teach and instruct convicts so that they may be able to find employment upon their release from prison. In establishing industries and schools they should not be of such magnitude as to become real competitors with free labor, but you owe it to the young men confined in our penal institutions to furnish them an opportunity to make good when they are released. The fact that we have not now a well equipped reformatory at Anamosa, is because former sessions of your honorable body have lacked courage to provide the necessary equipment.

In connection with this institution, as a part thereof and as a necessary adjunct to a reformatory, I should enlarge the present farm to one of at least one thousand acres. This, according to the best estimate that I have been able to obtain from those in charge of prison farms and from our own wardens, would profitably employ about fifty men in addition to those employed about the buildings in caring for the stock, cooking and taking care of the quarters for the men.

I should likewise equip a gang of twenty-five to fifty men from this institution for work on the highways and would thus employ them during the season of the year when it is proper to do road work.

By these means from one hundred to one hundred and twenty-five men could be employed in the fields and in the road camp for perhaps eight months in the year and be returned to the walls during the winter season to learn the trades and attend school. In my opinion that is the largest number that should be employed in work other than in the trades and industries, if we are to carry out the reformatory ideas already written into our laws with regard to Anamosa.

Ft. Madison should be maintained as a penitentiary where the older and more hardened criminals should be sent not only for reformation, but to atone for the crimes which they have committed. This institution is not well located, but with a new cell house well on the way to completion, and other improvements contemplated, in my opinion it would not be wise to abandon it at this time.

One of the first things with which you will be confronted as to this institution is what to do with the contracts now in force. Before telling you what in my opinion should be done, let me say to you that the very worst thing that could be done would be to abolish these contracts without making necessary provisions for employing the men at other work. As to the contracts themselves, they should either be permitted to continue to the date of their expiration, and then not be renewed, or if sooner abolished, the state should acquire the plant and continue the work at least of the farm tool industry on state account. The prisoners who cannot be trusted without the walls must have employment, and I do not now know of anything better than the industries already established.

I would also enlarge the farm at this prison until it shall comprise from twelve to fifteen hundred acres, thus making it possible to employ about one hundred men, including those necessary to take care of buildings, do the cooking and attend to the chores about the farm. Whatever number of convicts would then be left who could be trusted to work without the walls, I would organize into gangs of from twenty-five to forty for work upon the highways and to furnish them and men engaged upon the farm employment during the season of the year when road work cannot be done and when men cannot work in the fields, I would recommend the establishment of plants for the manufacture of farm machinery and possibly also binding twine. The warden informs me that he could very profitably employ a gang of men for about one month each winter cutting and putting up ice for commercial purposes, and this I would recommend he be permitted to do.

By enlarging the farms in connection with each of the prisons, we could, in my opinion, obtain every benefit that would be derived from a separate state farm, we would avoid the necessity for the establishment and maintenance of a separate institution with another warden and added officials, we could feed and equip the men from the present state store houses, we would have them, except those in road camps, in close proximity to the present institutions to which they could be easily and quickly returned for insubordination or infraction of the prison rules, and to which they could be assembled for chapel, Sunday school and day school work, which are usually neglected on separate state farms. It must be expected that in adopting a system that makes trusties out of a large number of convicts and gives them more freedom and employment without the walls, there will be a much larger number of escapes. This has been the experience of other states—it will be with us.

In order to encourage discipline and to reduce the tendency to run away, I would recommend that additional good time be allowed the men who work on the roads and on the farms and to the men who work within the walls upon state account, I would allow pay for overtime.

I should also authorize the Board of Control and the wardens to work out some plan by which a part of the earnings of the men could be used to support those dependent upon them.

As to the men employed in road work, they might be furnished to the counties at a stipulated amount per man to do such work as the Board of Supervisors might direct or could be employed by the state in building state highways, but in either event the counties in which the work is done should be required to pay a reasonable price therefor and the prisoners should always be in control of prison officials and superintendents in the employ of the State.

COUNTY CONVICTS.

I would abandon the county jail as a place of confinement for convicts, except as to those whose term of sentence is too short to warrant transporting them to a state jail or work house. For the purpose of punishing and reforming all other convicts, except those committed to the penitentiary or the reformatory, I would establish at least two and better three or four state work houses. In locating these institutions I would keep in mind their accessibility from various parts of the state, but would locate them where there is an abundance of stone suited to the construction of stone roads; would establish stone crushing plants and employ the convicts in quarrying and crushing rock for the construction of highways. Some of the men together with the men from the penitentiary and the reformatory above referred to, although I would not work the county and state convicts together, could be employed eight or nine months each year in building permanent roads. Thus we would establish a system of highway construction that would soon result in many miles of permanent roads in our state. I would not permit any of the stone crushed at any of the state's plants to be sold for commercial purposes or used for anything except improving the highways, unless it be for erecting state buildings, but would furnish stone free of cost to counties that would pay the freight and use the stone for road building.

I would authorize the railroad commission to permit the railway companies to fix special rates, within the state, for transporting the men engaged in road work and for hauling stone to be used for said purposes, so as to encourage as far as possible the betterment of our highways. I would equip these state work houses with land enough, but not more than would be necessary to raise vegetables, provisions, etc., to feed the prisoners.

The reasons for recommending the establishment of these work houses, it seems to me need only be suggested in order to be appreciated. Idleness breeds crime. The average county cannot furnish employment for its convicts. Many of our jails are wholly unfit to confine people in and some people are wholly unfit to be confined with others, but cannot be segregated in the ordinary county jail. Then too, the moral effect of taking the criminal to a state institution where he is compelled to work out a fine, rather than to idle his time away in a local jail, would do much to prevent repeating of offenses. Nothing would have so potent an influence for good upon the common drunk or the vagrant as to send him to a state institution, give him a good bath and require him to "earn his bread by the sweat of his face" for a few weeks or even months. I would convert the muscle that is now going to waste in idleness and laziness about the ninety-nine jails of the state, into good roads over which law abiding citizens of the state may travel, thereby making the convict earn his own living rather than to tax the law abiding citizen to support the criminal while he passes his time in idleness. Then, too, many crimes are committed for which a jail sentence does not seem to afford sufficient punishment and yet which scarcely seem to merit a commitment to the reformatory or the penitentiary. Persons guilty of such offenses, should be sent to a state work house, where in all probability they would be more readily reformed than in one of the prisons.

WOMEN CONVICTS.

In my opinion the women's prison should be removed from Anamosa, or at least it should be separated from the men's institution and be removed to such a distance as to render communication between the men and the women impossible. which is not true at present. Then too, it should be made a reformatory to which women would be sent who now escape punishment because judges and jurors do not want to commit them to the present institution. As I understand it, we now have a law providing for a woman's reformatory, but no appropriation has been made to enable the board to establish it.

HOW RAISE THE MONEY.

I have herein outlined a system of reform for our penal institutions that would require time and the expenditure of a large amount of money to bring about. The question now arises, where are we to get the funds necessary to make these changes? I would answer that for the building of the state work houses and the establishment and installation of new industries at Anamosa and Ft. Madison, I would make direct appropriations and would provide for the erection of two of these work houses at once. For the purchase of lands, I would provide a millage tax to cover a period of years such as we now have for our educational institutions. I would abolish the 1-10 of a mill levy now provided for the Iowa State Teachers' College at Cedar Falls, which I think is no longer needed for that institution, would transfer it to the purpose above suggested and would add to it at least 1-10th of a mill. I should permit the Board of Control to at once purchase lands in anticipation of this income and pay for them as the money from the millage tax is received.

WARDEN'S SALARY.

Before leaving this subject, I want to suggest better pay for the wardens. The amount of pay which they receive is less than is paid in most states, is wholly inadequate for the responsibilities and duties to be performed, and when a vacancy occurs in the office it is very difficult to get good men to consider accepting the position. I want, also, to again say that the wardens' tables should be furnished just as the tables of the superintendents of other institutions are furnished. It is wholly unjust to require the wardens to furnish their own tables and to meet the expenses incident thereto by reason of public demands, which is true, at least in part, at the present time.

RESOLUTION REGARDING ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS.

The second session of the Sixty-second Congress passed a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States for the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people. As you are aware, it is necessary for the amendment to be ratified by three-fourths of all of the states before it becomes effective. You will here find the proposed amendment set out in full and the document itself will be transmitted to you at a later date:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein.)

That in lieu of the first paragraph of Section three of Article I of the Constitution of the United States, and in lieu of so much of paragraph two of the same section as relates to the filling of vacancies, the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states:

'The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the Senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.'

CHAMP CLARK,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

J. S. SHERMAN,
Vice President of the United States and President of the Senate.

I hereby certify that this joint resolution originated in the House of Representatives.

SOUTH TRIMBLE,
Clerk."

I might here say that some states have questioned the regularity of the passage of the resolution by Congress, alleging that it should have received a vote equal to two-thirds of the full membership of each house, and that it did not receive such a vote, and also alleging that if adopted in its present form, it would interfere with the rights of the states in the regulation of suffrage, registration and elections. I do not desire to comment upon either of these points, but simply call them to your attention to show some of the reasons assigned for opposition to the measure.

I have never opposed the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, nor have I been convinced that such method of election would remove all the abuses that have been found to exist or would prove as popular as many seem to think. If, however, the plan is to be tried let it be done in the proper manner, that is, by amending the Constitution of the United States.

ONE TERM IN OFFICE.

There is before the Congress of the United States a measure the purpose of which is to extend the term of the President of the United States to six years and render him ineligible to succeed himself. I am in favor of the adoption of such a measure, and in this connection I wish also to say that in my judgment it would be wise to amend our state constitution so as to provide for a four year term for the Governor and render him ineligible to succeed himself at least without the intervention of one or more terms.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS AND THE SHORT BALLOT.

Again I want to suggest a modification of our primary election law, not with any view to abandoning the primary principle, but for the purpose of simplifying the statute and making it more effective as well as more satisfactory.

I cannot understand the process of reasoning by which men justify themselves in advocating the primary election upon the theory that the people should have the right to name each and every candidate for a public office and at the same time favor the enactment of what is known as the "short ballot" statute. The short ballot contemplates the election of only a few of the more important officers and have them appoint all minor officers and commissions. Let me quote from some of President-elect Wilson's arguments as presented by him in a paper read only a short while ago, as follows:

"We have given the people something so vast and so complicated to do in asking them to select all the officers of government that they cannot do it."

"There must be a preliminary process of selection, of nomination, of preparing the tickets as a whole, unless there is to be hopeless confusion, names put up at haphazard and nobody elected by a clear majority at the end."

"He (the voter) cannot possibly make himself acquainted with the individual claims of the men whose names appear on the long ballots."

"A few conspicuous names upon it, candidates for the greater offices, he may have heard about, a candidate for Congress or the Governorship of his state, but the rest are mere names to him."

"We actually as a matter of fact and of experience, put them (the people) in control only when we make only the chief, the really responsible offices elective, allow those whom we elect to appoint all minor officials, all executive agents."

This is as different from the primary election idea as it was presented to and adopted by us a short time ago as two theories can differ, and yet many of the advocates of the one claim also to favor the other. It clearly shows the instability of the average individual and the growing tendency to take up with anything that suggests a change.

What we should have done at first and what we ought now to do is to make the primary applicable to United States Senators, Governor and possibly Lieutenant Governor and name candidates for the remaining state offices in a convention composed of delegates selected at a primary. There is no need of the short ballot at election time if we will relieve the people of the responsibility of making nominations in the primaries where it is wholly impossible for them to acquaint themselves with the various candidates. The remedy ought to be made as to the primary and not as to the general election. There never has been a primary held in this state but what the freakishness of the system, as now applied, has been apparent, and as practical men you ought to so amend the law as to make it possible for the people to do and do intelligently what is required of them. Preserve the primary principle but make the statute reasonable and workable so that it can be successfully and intelligently applied.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

For many years the subject of extending to the women of the state the right of suffrage has been prominent in the halls of our legislature. Nine or ten states have already adopted laws granting the privilege of voting to women as well as to men. It is one of the reform movements which in my opinion will eventually be adopted by most of the states. I doubt not that sooner or later it will be submitted to the people of our own state in the form of an amendment to the constitution, and I can see no good reason why steps looking to that end should not be taken by you. If it were possible to get anything like a universal expression from the women as to their desires with reference to it, I should say let them express themselves, but since this seems impracticable, I recommend that you take such action as is necessary to bring the matter before the voters of the state for determination.

PREFERENTIAL PRIMARY.

Much has been said about a primary for the selection of delegates to the national conventions of the various political parties and to afford the voters an opportunity to express their preference as to presidential candidates. Such a provision would be in entire harmony with the primary idea of making nominations for office but, in the enactment of a law, it should be kept in mind that national conventions being voluntary associations cannot be controlled by state legislation, and in order to make such a law effective it must be made to conform to the rules of said conventions. So far as I am aware the rules of the conventions of most parties now recognize the congressional district, and not the state as the unit, so that any law to be enacted, if it is to comply with present conditions, should be so drawn as to permit the congressional district to select and instruct its own delegates rather than to attempt to instruct delegates by a vote of the state at large, except as to the delegates at large.

If, however, representation in national conventions is to be based upon the number of votes cast by the party in the various states it is difficult to understand how the congressional district can be continued as the unit unless each district is to be given one delegate and an added number if the vote in the district is sufficient to entitle it to more. This method has been adopted in many instances with reference to county and state conventions.

That the basis of representation should be changed, I think will be generally conceded and I want to assure you that I am in favor of such a change.

In view of the uncertainties as to what condition will confront us at the time of selecting delegates to the next national conventions I would suggest that you adopt some method of selecting delegates that will, if possible, meet any conditions that are likely to exist. This I believe can be done by providing that a primary be held throughout all of the counties of the state, by all parties, upon the same day and between the same hours.

Permit the voters of each party to express their preference for presidential candidates and to elect delegates from the entire state or from the state and the congressional districts by direct primary vote or to elect delegates to state and district conventions for the election of delegates to national conventions. Leave the method to be adopted optional with the party, to be determined by the rules of its national convention. If the party recognizes the state as the unit the preferential vote throughout the state should be regarded as a vote of instructions to the entire delegation, but if the congressional district is taken as the unit the vote of the district should be regarded as instructing the district delegates and the vote throughout the entire state as a vote for instructions to the delegates at large.

In my opinion either of the above methods preserves and recognizes the principle of the primary and affords an easy method by which the people can express a preference for candidates. I know of no rule of any party convention but what would be met by some one of the methods above suggested.

IN CONCLUSION.

Now that the time has come when I shall very shortly retire from office I want to thank you and through you the people of the State for the recognition that has been given me in electing me to two of the very important offices of the State and permitting me to serve therein for a period of ten consecutive years. I have endeavored at all times to render the best service that I could. Many things that I have desired to see accomplished have not been accomplished but most of them are outlined in the message which I have just read to you and I hope that they may be enacted into law during this session. In retiring from the position of Chief Executive of the State I leave with you my very best wishes, not only for a successful session of your honorable body, but for a successful administration for my successor in office.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF GOVERNOR GEORGE W. CLARKE.

Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly and Fellow-Citizens:

I acknowledge my very great indebtedness to the people of Iowa. The obligation at this moment profoundly impresses me. It is not with any sense of triumph that I enter upon the duties of the office into which I am this day inducted, but with a deep sense of its duties, the wide possibilities of its influence and my inability to approach the ideal of fitness and performance. If I can but be the servant of all, if I can with the help of others contribute something to the common good, if I can assist in making Iowa more distinguished still among the States for the desirableness and wisdom of her laws and the cleanness of her political life, that will be something. Responsibilities sober a man. A consciousness of confidence reposed in one quickens his sense of fidelity. No betrayal can come without disappointing, even wounding the finest sensibilities of life. No man can give the highest measure of service until he has lost himself. "He that loseth his life shall find it." I think this is just as true in politics as in religion. The rugged, rocky, thorny ways of life, if traveled for human betterment, are the paths upon which falls the sunshine of everlasting peace.

I am not unmindful of the circumstances of my election. It is unseemly to boast, but if it were not I should have nothing of which to boast. I want to extend to the gentlemen who contested the election with me my congratulations upon the fact that they were such men as could command the greater preference of so many, many thousands of our fellow-citizens. Nowithstanding this fact, I now venture to invoke the good will and support of all of the people of the State. Perfection of discernment and infallibility of judgment are not the endowments of any man, and, therefore, in dealing with conflicting interests and opinions I shall inevitably make mistakes. I expect to be held to a high order of accountability and that I do not shun, only let judgments be just and proceed from unselfish view-points. I shall regard myself as the servant of all of the people, without regard to factionalism or political or religious convictions. The Governor's office will be open to every one—the rich man and the poor man, the white man and the black man, the man from the mahogany desk and the man from the depths of the coal mine, the woman in rich apparel and the poor widow thinly and cheaply clad. There shall be no distinction in Iowa citizenship, except that which lies between a decent life, honest purposes, courageous effort and a disregard of all that goes to make a meritorious life. In other words, neither money nor position can confer distinction apart from character.

The thought which seems to underlie practically all present-day political discussion is the thought of the good of all. It is the thought, as it seems to me, that government is not alone for governing, but for the betterment of the conditions of the governed. It was Locke, the English philosopher, who said "government is for the good of mankind," and Herbert Spencer said that is the best definition of government I know of. It is the same thought which in this day exalts human rights above property rights, or, as it is expressed in another way, puts the man above the dollar. It is a part of the age-long fight to bring men to an equality of rights and equality of opportunity—to the point where what a man is to do or be will be determined by his own initiative, his own energy, his faith in himself and his desire to do and be unhampered by what other men are doing or by the way they do it. In still other words, to the point where men shall not take hold of life or the business affairs of the world in such way as to despoil another of his opportunity or take more from him as a reward for their superior foresight and organizing skill than is just and fair. Of course, there is always to be considered the difference in ability. "One star differeth from another star in glory," and ability, energy, masterfulness, genius must have their reward or the world will lose irretrievably. Nobody thinks of supplying brains or a remedy for natural worthlessness or viciousness. But very many think that superiority must not exploit inferiority—that advantage of position must not be used to despoil the man on the outside. As, for instance, there must be no issuance of watered stocks, men must pay fairly and justly on actual investment, that so far as may be human life must have healthful, safe places in which to work at a fair wage and reasonable hours, that in the interest of the future manhood and womanhood of the State childlife must be protected. Or that where property rights, the dollar, and human rights or justice conflict, right and justice must take precedence. That is, government, as it has been defined, must stand for the good of mankind. Not for the good of a few, not for some special interest, not for granting a particular privilege, but denying these, stand for the common good and betterment.

It would be interesting, if time permitted, to enter upon a study of the events that have brought so prominently and forcibly to the front the political, or rather, the public economic thought referred to. Perhaps I may suggest, briefly, that it seems to me to be the supplanting of Individualism by Collectivism. I say nothing here as to the desirability of such result. Individualism in its extremist phase certainly existed in the United States up to a few decades ago. Politically, the American was nothing if not an Individualist. All of his political training, his surroundings, his life, contributed to that result. He went forth to conquer a continent of unbounded resources, the depository of untold wealth. Its riches—the soil, the forests, the mines—he took them and wasted them as civilization swept across the continent. They enabled him to be sufficient unto himself. He could stand alone. Politics went in much the same way. Political standards often were not lifted very high. While the individual was moving ever further west taking what he could, the railroads were spanning the continent and reaching every part of the country. Great corporations were organizing everywhere and were laying their hands upon the resources and business of the country. Competition, unrestrained and ruinous, was crippling the railroads and depriving the country through which they ran of much of their advantage. Industrial corporations were likewise fighting the competitive battle to the detriment, as I think, both of themselves and the consumer. Then began the combinations, for no other purpose than to eliminate competition, constantly becoming greater and greater and the trust in all its tremendous strength, both in the industrial world and in government, arrived—for business had projected itself into government and laid hold of it with an ever-tightening grasp—for it was property and not human rights that had first place in the public mind at that time. New, improved and wonderful machinery was everywhere making its advent into industrialism. Humanity was astounded at the progress in this respect, within seventy-five years surpassing all the combined centuries of human history before. It was the era of rebates and discriminations between places, business and individuals on the part of the railroads. The public domain was gone, the forests had largely disappeared, the soil had been depleted as "westward the star of empire took its way." Organization was everywhere—organization to meet organization. Where could individualism find a footing as against all this? Of what consequence was the individual workman with the great trust with its thousands of employes and whose owners and managers he did not know, never saw and never could see. The individual employee of the great railway system was as nothing. The individual farmer was absolutely helpless. Finally the whole country stood abashed. We call it an awakening—a restlessness, a dissatisfaction pervading all civilized lands; for in the great countries of Europe machinery was pushing out the hand workers by thousands and combining and trust-making was going on there as here and for the same reasons. It was the departure of Individualism. The doctrine of laissez faire lost its place in political economy. Political economists who adhered to that doctrine are no longer regarded as authority. If that doctrine is to be adhered to, then the individual is to be submerged or become the victim of Collectivism. But the truth is that the general government and the State as well must add their strength to the weakness of the individual or classes of individuals, especially if unorganized, so that they may become equal to the combination with which they must deal. Otherwise, it seems to me, we lose that of which we have boasted so long, "Equality before the law." This lack of power of the individual or the local community to deal on equal terms with the combined power, and this being deemed a fundamental right, has led to the aphorisms' "Human rights above property rights." "The man above the dollar," "Social and industrial justice."

While I believe present conditions have had their genesis and growth in the way stated, I also believe any thoughtful man will say that, on the whole, conditions of human existence in this country are better than were ever seen in any country at any other time in human history. No man would change this for any other day he has ever seen or read of. We need but realize that we have come upon a new period in the unfolding of the years. Human life is under, or is rapidly passing under, new conditions. It may be said "The former things are passed away, behold I make all things new." There are men yet living who have seen all things made new. We are in a transition period. In the long flight of the years the new day has come upon us suddenly while we were eating and drinking and making merry. We are struggling to adjust ourselves to the new conditions. The overwhelming power of the "big" men, "big" in their relations to the wealth and business of the country, has called our attention to the common, the average man, to the common good. The let-alone political philosophy has become obsolete. There must be regulation and control in the interest of the public welfare. We are beginning to feel that the interest of each man is the interest of every other man. That the destiny of our country is inseparably bound up with the relations of our citizenship to each other. All must go up together or we shall all go down together. A broader, deeper and more humanitarian spirit is taking hold of the world. We are beginning to feel that we are our brother's keeper. "Every fellow for himself and the devil take the hindmost" is a spurned sentiment of a day that has gone. The sentiment of the brotherhood of mankind is beginning to pervade the world, hastened, providentially perhaps, by the events I have referred to. We have reached the point, I think, brought about by present day conditions when we realize that there never can be a contented people where there is inequality of rights or opportunity or where the work or occupation of a man or set of men is beset with hazards that they must bear alone that a common good may be enjoyed. A brief study of events and conditions enables us to understand the philosophy of current political or, rather, economic thought. The necessity for strong collective action becomes apparent. I use the word Collectivism in an entirely different sense from Socialism. The proud independence of the individual is gone. His old relation to Industrialism is gone because he faces a new Industrialism, and his relation must be a new one. The law fitting old conditions is inadequate to the new. All these things naturally suggest, for instance, which I sincerely hope will be passed at this session. The commission authorized by the last general assembly, after a thorough investigation and study of the subject, has reported a bill for consideration at this session. So far as I have been able to discover wherever the subject has had thorough and dispassionate study the same conclusion has been reached by both employer and employee, and that is that the industrial world today presents such entirely different conditions from that of say, seventy-five years ago, that the principles of law then and since for the most part applied in Iowa with reference to industrial accidents are entirely inadequate, inapplicable, unjust and wasteful to both parties. In order that we may enjoy the conveniences, comforts, even luxuries brought to human conditions by the wonderfully rapid development of modern Industrialism there is the annual inevitable sacrifice of human life and the great army of the maimed. And this sacrifice falls upon those least able to bear it from a pecuniary standpoint. The lives of these people are along dangerous, hazardous lines and they are taking the risks for us all, bearing the burdens that a common good may be enjoyed by those who assume no risks. Justice dictates, the commonest feelings of humanity demand and the sentiment of our universal brotherhood cries out, "Bear ye one another's burdens." And so they ought to be laid upon us all as a part of the cost of production. The maimed man and his family now bears it. Often he is poor. He cannot fight his damage suit on its long. long way through the courts. All he can do is to stake a large share of a possible recovery for a lawyer and start on the journey. Whatever the result, it is a great waste both to the plaintiff and defendant, this game of chance, and to the people in the maintenance of courts. And it is all with reference to a matter about which there ought to be no litigation at all. It is simply a business matter that ought to be promptly and as fairly adjusted as the nature of the matter would permit. And that is the result proposed by a workman's compensation act. It must be said that many great manufacturing industries and some public service corporations, recognizing these facts, have evolved plans for avoiding them which often seem just alike to employer and employe. While it is true, I think, that it is almost. if not quite, the settled conviction of the business world and of political economists that there should be an adjustment of industrial accident cases through such an act as proposed, yet it is on all hands admitted to be a problem most difficult indeed of solution—difficult to reach a result just and fair to all concerned. It should not be approached in any spirit of vindictiveness. Prejudice should be dismissed. There should be no striving after advantage on either side. The only question is, what is fair, just and right with reference to this great problem. Our manufacturing industries are growing wonderfully and it must be remembered that they must compete with conditions in other States. If we could have conditions that would invite manufacturing capital it would be of great advantage. But material development must not be at the expense of human rights and justice. Iowa, in line with the most enlightened thought, should make the best solution possible at this time of this question.

A WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION ACT,

The great growth of Collectivism naturally suggests also a

PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL.

The doctrine of laissez faire can have application only in the long run at the expense of the public welfare. The state has the power to control all public service corporations, but, it seems to me, that its intervention should only be to supervise and regulate in the interest of the common good. The local municipality should govern and control so far as it can. But there come times when it is not equal to the situation. It is weaker than the corporation. The smaller cities especially often cannot cope with the syndicate. It has not and cannot obtain the experts and legal ability and has no organized power. The State should add her strength to the weakness of the weak and bring about equality. No conditions should ever be allowed to exist that place an individual or group of men at a disadvantage in dealing with a combination of men and money and especially with corporate organization authorized by the State to render a public service. I believe it is the duty of the State to do that which it is impracticable for the local authorities to do and to bring to their aid efficient help in the matter of valuation of plants, reviewing of rates, examination of books, cost of maintenance and such like to the end that the public have good service at fair rates in the matter of public necessities, water, light, heat and transportation. The State ought to exist for the good of its citizenship. I think this legislature can render a great public service by passing a well-considered public utilities bill, and that it ought to do it.

THE GOOD ROADS PROBLEM.

For thirty years the discussion of the good roads problem has been going on in the State. Many of the Governors of the State within that time have called attention to the question and some of them have urged constructive legislation. Some progress has been made both in the way of better laws and in the improvement of the highways, but the most that has been accomplished is an aroused public sentiment in favor of better roads—perhaps in favor of permanent roads. Iowa will have permanent roads whenever she wants them. She will have better rural schools whenever she wants them. She will not have either before. Legislation awaits public sentiment—generally aroused, organized public demand. The next great era in the development of western civilization is going to be called by the historian The Era of Permanent Road Building. We are now at the very threshold of that era. We are face to face with the problem. No State can longer allow herself to be handicapped by mud. The economic waste is enormous. Not in the future can there be such a thing as a really great up-to-date State without good permanent roads. The great cheapening of the cost of transportation to the markets of the country waits on permanent roads. The instant great increase in the value of lands awaits the coming of the permanent road. There can be no complete solution of the country life, problem in advance of the permanent road. The consolidated rural school will go halting and crippled until the permanent road passes the door. This is an ideal that will be realized in the future. How far distant it is depends upon the people of the State. This General Assembly ought, it seems to me, to take hold of the problem with the end in view to ultimately realize this ideal. Nothing could contribute more to the greatness of the State and the welfare of all of the people. All that is done hereafter in the improvement of our roads ought to be with the view of permanency. Permanent culverts and bridges. Permanent systems of drainage. Permanent establishment of grades—all with the view of eventually receiving the permanent road. With this purpose in view the law should provide for the appointment of a county engineer. He should be thoroughly competent and not necessarily a resident of the county where appointed. There should also be created a permanent highway commission, composed of expert road men and engineers with such powers and duties in the way of the preparation of plans and specifications, estimates of costs, advertising for bids and general supervision and control as may, after careful consideration, be deemed wise. I can see no reason why provision should not be made for a referendum to the people of the question as to whether bonds of the state should be issued for the purpose of raising money for permanent road building. It would not incur a great expense to determine whether or not the people are ready to enter upon this work which would add more than anything else to the greatness of the State, and it would at least be of great value in causing universal discussion of the subject which must always precede any movement involving the change of long established methods and of thought. In the meantime our road laws, which now exist in a disconnected and patchwork form, should be revised, re-written and strengthened for the purpose of securing the best possible temporary roads and for devising methods of administration looking to the coming of the permanent road. Selfish interests clinging to old methods and advantages, may be found in covert opposition. Permit me to suggest that you look carefully to this, as I know you will, to the end that private interests may not prevail as against the common good.

COUNTY MANAGEMENT.

One cannot discuss the road question without the whole question of county management being suggested. It, however, is not intended to do more than make a suggestion. I have not had opportunity to work out any definite plan, although I feel there is much room for improvement. The administration of the affairs of the county ought to be organized with just as much skill and with just as much purpose to secure the highest efficiency as a great business corporation organizes its business. The county and the State as well are entitled to have their business conducted along the lines of up-to-date methods and such as have been demonstrated in the business world as absolutely essential to success. Perhaps it is not an exaggeration to say that thousand of dollars might annually be saved to every county in the State and much more efficiency in its affairs secured if the money and property were that of a corporation managed by its skilled and expert agents. No man having regard to his success in the management of a large enterprise would be content to give it widely separated scraps of his time, nor would he engage at the same time in other business taxing his energies and abilities to the utmost. An individual or a corporation having so much invested and such varied interests would manage them through a skilled expert giving his entire time. It is not always the fault of the Boards of Supervisors that better results are not obtained, because they have their private business and are paid to give only meager attention to the public business. Any other business conducted in the same way would be an utter failure. It seems to me that it would be well to consider the question of creating the office of business manager of the affairs of the county. After the analogy of the corporation the stockholders—the people—should elect the board of directors—the supervisors—and they should appoint a county business manager who for an adequate salary should devote his whole time to the affairs of the county under the general supervision of the directorate who should be held to the highest responsibility for his competency as a business man and an expert in connection with all matters of county business. He might be clothed with some of the powers now conferred upon the board and the township trustees. He should be the supervisor of and the purchasing agent of all supplies for the county. He should understand the use of concrete and the building of bridges. He should act in an advisory capacity in all drainage district matters so far as the county may be concerned and he might at the same time be the county engineer referred to in the good roads discussion. He should be consulted in all matters of contract requiring expert knowledge. Wherever the interests of the county go his duties should take him. Such a man would save to the county many thousands of dollars annually. No man now studies the county business to master it. No man could master it in less than all of his time. The county business manager or whatever name you might give him, would have the opportunity and every incentive to attain the mastery. Until some such methods are introduced it can hardly be otherwise than that the business of the counties will be done in an uneconomic and unsatisfactory way. The methods of fifty years ago will no longer do.

TRAFFICKING IN OFFICES.

Within the last twelve years the State has made commendable progress in eliminating money and other corrupting influences from our elections. We are insisting all the time that our democracy should become more and more democratic. There is much talk about the opportunity and right of every voter to express his choice among candidates for nomination and election. This choice ought to be the free, unbiased, unpurchased, honest choice of the elector or democracy is making no progress. There are more ways of purchasing votes than with money and some of these are more corrupting. Nothing can be more degrading to public life, nothing can be more demoralizing to the public conscience, nothing can be more destructive of public virtue than the conception that public offices or positions are something to be traded and trafficed in—used as a political asset to enable one to gain political preferment. The people have the right to demand that a candidacy proceed upon merit whether it be much or little. They have the right to insist that they be not tricked out of a high order of competent, disinterested public service by deals or that if they must accept a low order of incompetent service that they themselves be responsible for it after a fair fight in an open field. It is far more reprehensible to secure influence and preferment by promise of place than by the promise of money. When one uses money he uses that which belongs to him, but when he is trafficing in offices he is bartering with that which does not belong to him but to the people as their agencies in government and depriving them of their right, untrammeled, to select their own agents or to have them appointed for merit and not in redemption of promises to farm out the public service to whomsoever would enter into a deal or conspiracy for place. It is a part of the political creed of the country to insist upon publicity as the panacea for our troubles with "big business" and yet we go into a political contest sometimes with a number of "gentlemen's agreements" hidden away somewhere in the dark. There are compelling reasons for publicity in both cases, but no more in the one than the other. These practices are corrupt and ought to be forbidden. The law ought to make it a crime for any candidate for any county or state office prior to his nomination or election to promise, either directly or indirectly to support or use his influence in behalf of another for any position, place or office, or to promise either directly or indirectly to name or appoint another to any place, position or office, in consideration of such other supporting him or in any way using his influence to secure his nomination, election or appointment. The law requiring the report of campaign expenses ought to be amended by adding to it, in substance: And I further state that I did not at any time, either before my nomination or after, either directly or indirectly, in consideration of support, promise to support, or use my influence for, or to appoint any person to any place, position or office whatsoever. Such a statute would be as easily enforced as any other of our corrupt practices acts. The mere fact that such practices are condemned by the law would be of great value and this General Assembly ought to enact such a provision as an expression of its high political ideals.

THE SHORT BALLOT.

The results of our primary elections, and general elections as well, show that not many more than half of the voters of the state participate in the primary at all and that in both elections the numbers voting decrease as they pass down the ticket from the more to the less important offices. At the primary elections it has not been unusual to have a difference between the total vote for governor and for lieutenant governor and secretary of state, ranging from ten to nearly twenty-five thousand with the difference growing wider with the offices further down. The same result is seen in general elections. When the comparison is made with the vote for presidential electors the discrepancies are much greater. This would seem to indicate that the public interest centers around the contest for the most important offices, that the candidates for these come to be known, that these offices are representative offices and stand for or may inaugurate certain definite policies in which the people are interested. The other candidates do not become so well known, they are not seen to so great an extent in the campaign. Their offices are administrative. No public policy is involved in the administration of them. There are so many of them, State and county, that amidst the pressing duties of life it is not possible for many voters to inform themselves as to the merits of the candidates and hence thousands do not vote at all and many more thousands simply vote at a guess and let it go at that. Hence the argument for the short ballot and more appointive offices as conducive to better and much more efficient government. Students of good government are everywhere advocating the principles of the short ballot. To such an extent have they gone as to tersely express the principle in this way: "When you want representation, elect. When you want administration, appoint." Progressive thought for, by far the greater part, advocates this principle. The appointing power being made responsible for results, responsibility is located and concentrated. By electing, responsibility is dissipated, incapable of definite location. By appointment administration by experts and a high order of efficient public service may be secured. I invite your careful consideration of this subject to the end that this reform may take deeper root in this State. We already recognize the principle in that the Board of Control, Board of Education, Board of Parole, Dairy and Food Commissioner, Commissioner of Labor, Commerce Counsel and others are appointive positions. Would anybody think of making them elective or the football of politics? Does not the same or a greater reason obtain for making the office of Railroad Commissioner appointive? Is there any reason why the Supreme Court should not appoint its own clerk and reporter? Should not the Superintendent of Public Instruction be appointed? The list might be extended further as the principal grows and becomes well understood.

SCHOOLS.

When one comes to the consideration of the question of rural schools he finds he is face to face with a problem almost impossible of solution. And yet that affords no reason why we should not grapple with it. We read everywhere of the decline of the rural school and we constantly hear it deplored in public speech. From the district school of forty years ago with its attendance of forty pupils ranging in age from five to twenty-one years, the rural school has declined to the school of ten children and very frequently to less. Formerly there was the enthusiasm of numbers at least. The young men and women were there. They are no longer there. It is said that ninety-five per cent of the boys and girls never reach the high school. They never will under present conditions. This must be said especially of the country boy and girl. There are no high schools in the country and the necessities of farm life almost preclude the farm boy from the town high school. He cannot start in with the opening of the schools in the towns the first of September and if he could he could not continue after the first of March. The scarcity of farm labor and the absolute necessity of the farms in gathering crops and in preparing for them and planting and cultivating absolutely forbid. Thus deprived of several months of school at both the opening and close of the school year he cannot keep up with the classes, becomes discouraged, if he has commenced at all, and quits. If he cannot come to the high school in town then the high school must go to the country. This suggests almost necessarily the consolidation of the country schools. I see no escape from this as the ultimate result. It seems to me also that it is a "consummation most devoutly to be wished," But it cannot be brought about in a day. Such reforms require a long period of agitation and the patient efforts of men and women of large vision and devoted to the common good. The consolidated school with its work in all the grades it seems to me could be maintained at a less expense than the nine schools of the townships as now organized. In place of the little cheerless school houses, poorly equipped, no modern conveniences, have one three-to-five-room building centrally located, with an up-to-date system of heating, lighting, ventilating and water supply. Here there could be some inspiration for both teacher and pupil. Here would be the stimulus, excitement and interest that come from numbers. Here would come relief from the monotony and loneliness of the teacher with her half dozen little children by the daily association with other teachers. Here could daily come the refining influence of music and song. Here would come the daily supervision, management and inspection by the principal of the school. The grounds should include three or four acres for reasons that your mind will readily suggest. The school building could easily become the social and intellectual center of the community. Here could be public gatherings, lectures and entertainments of all kinds. No one would be far from it in this day of the automobile and in the era of good roads upon which we fervently hope we are entering. Away from the diversions of the town it would be an ideal place to lay the foundations of sturdy character, intellectual and physical strength and useful citizenship in the young men and women of Iowa. In this direction the concensus of opinion of the competent men and women who have given the subject earnest and sympathetic study, lies the solution to a considerable degree of both the country school and rural life problem. This cannot be brought about by compulsion. I fully realize that. I wish, however, that a plan could be devised by which any township could voluntarily consolidate her schools and that such plan could be enacted into law at this session. If the township as a unit, be thought to be too large, then a smaller territory might be taken as a basis, but it seems to me the township is not too large. Of course regard should be had for the course of rivers and streams through townships.

The course of study in the rural school should be related to the life of the country. It should be in terms of the things right next to the boy and girl. Everything should have interesting practical relation to what the boy and girl see done every day in the life about them and to what they see, hear and do themselves. Not abstractions but concrete applications and illustrations constantly. The training should have intimate relation to what men and women have to do in the world—this as well as cultural. There should be vocational instruction. The township school might have small side buildings for this purpose. The school should be an interesting place. To illustrate: Geography should relate to the country round about, grammar to what the boys and girls are saying, arithmetic to loads of corn, cords of wood, acres of land, tons of hay, bushels of potatoes and loans of money. I should not follow the readers; I should have Joel Chandler Harris' Uncle Remus stories, Earnest Thompson Seton's animal stories, Cooper's The Deerslayer, The Spy, The Pioneer, The Pathfinder. Roosevelt's Winning of the West, Prescott's Conquest of Mexico and of Peru and Biography in profusion as I approached the upper grades. For such schools once planted over this State good, competent teachers could be found but the rural school as it is now never will be any better. Young men and young women simply will not give themselves to teaching under present conditions for more than a few terms as a temporary makeshift. There is little use in training teachers unless we have conditions under which trained men and women will teach. It is my conclusion that the consolidation of rural schools to some extent at least with a course of study applicable to and interesting to the child and boy and girl mind and absolutely inseparable from the life we live is the only hope and must lie at the very foundation of any improvement in our rural schools. I earnestly hope, therefore, that this session will not close without the law being so written as to make such results voluntarily possible. I know that sixteen sections of land may now consolidate, but the law can be greatly improved.

May I not suggest, also, that the best thought of the day seems to have reached the conclusion that provision ought to be made for District Agricultural and Manual Training Schools, including Domestic Science. The distance from the public school to the agricultural college is a long one but if the school referred to were found on the way for a period of training it would be of inestimable value. I invite your serious consideration of this question.

OFFICE OF SCHOOL TREASURER ABOLISHED.

I am advised that we now pay school treasurers $175,000 annually. This is a needless waste of the people's money. The office ought to be abolished and provision made authorizing the county treasurer to pay all warrants drawn on school funds.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

The preservation of the public health is a matter of the greatest importance. Thirty-two years have passed since the law was enacted creating a State Board of Health. There has been little legislation since and none that makes it possible for the board to be a really efficient instrument for the public good. In the beginning $5,000.00 was appropriated annually and it has never been increased, but of this the secretary's salary, $2,400.00, all the contingent expenses of his office, the expenses of the board and all costs of printing are paid. It is manifest that there can be nothing of consequence left to enable the board to meet the demands made upon it by a great State. There have been epidemics of typhoid fever and other scourges in the state but the board when called upon could do nothing in the way of making investigations because it had no funds. I am advised that in one district there are thirteen towns now known to have impure water supply. In view of the progress made by medical science in the last ten years in the ability to detect the cause of disease, in view of the advance that has been made in sanitary engineering with reference to water supply and sewage and garbage disposal and to the end that prompt action may be taken to prevent the spread of communicable diseases and that there may be prevention of the pollution of water supplies and to the end that better sanitary conditions generally may be brought about especially in our towns, I suggest that there ought to be, after careful consideration and consultation with experts in sanitary science, a re-writing of the law relating to the whole subject and an appropriation made commensurate with the importance of it. While talking about the conservation of our soil, forests, mines and water power, we ought not to forget the necessity of conserving the lives and health of the people.

HOG CHOLERA.

Every few recurring years the state is ravaged by hog cholera. Millions of dollars have been lost by this scourge. It is estimated that fifteen millions of dollars have been lost to the farmers of the state during the last year. The hog industry is one of the greatest sources of wealth the state has. It is now claimed that this is a preventable disease. It is of great public interest that the loss of such vast sums be prevented. It is doubtless beyond the power of the individual to protect himself. The matter therefore, becomes one of public concern. I therefore urge upon you to investigate the subject thoroughly and enact such provisions and make such an appropriation as in your judgment will afford relief.

PENITENTIARY REFORM.

The question of a reform in the management of our penal institutions is one which for some time has commanded the attention of our people. Personally, I am ready to say that the contract labor system ought to be abolished. It is a system of slavery. It is an exploitation of men on the part of the State for the benefit of a contractor. It is taking hope out of the lives of men and returning them to society embittered against it. It neither cares for the health, improves the morals nor has any tendency to reform the men, but results quite otherwise. It is an economic absurdity. It is a fine thing, however, for the manufacturer to have the State furnish him a plant fully equipped with machinery, heat, light, power, clothe and feed the men, and turn them over to him for twenty-five to sixty-four cents per day. When, in addition, is taken into consideration the great cost to the State in the administration of the criminal law, the maintenance of the penal institutions, the hardships and suffering of the families of the imprisoned men the absurdity becomes more glaring. These men ought to work and so should the men committed to our jails for misdemeanors. A plan ought to be devised whereby they could be put to work. Men are saved through work and there absolutely is no other means of salvation for them. Besides, every man owes to society all that he can do whether he is in or out of prison. He ought to have the same wage in prison that he could earn if out at the same work. He ought to pay back to the state out of his wage the expense of his conviction. Then his family, if he has one, should receive a good portion, he receiving the balance. He ought to be rewarded according to his effort. Hope ought to be kept alive in him. He ought not be taught to hate the State. There ought to be classification and segregation of criminals. As many as possible ought to have outdoor work. I favor the penal farm and think this legislature ought to take steps toward the establishing of one. The experience of many States is to my mind conclusive in favor of it. Many of them are conducted at a fine profit to the State as is shown by the very admirable and exhaustive report of the committee not long ago appointed by Governor Carroll to investigate, among other things, the general management of the penitentiary at Ft. Madison. I presume it will be placed on your desks. I make it a part of what I have to say upon this subject and commend it to your thorough study. It seems to me its conclusions are sound and the evidence upon which they are based overwhelming. I commend also to your equal consideration the report and discussion of the subject by Judge Robinson of the Board of Control.

PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCE PRIMARY.

If the people are competent, and they are, to select their candidates for Governor to be voted for at the general election they certainly are equally competent to express their preference as to presidential candidates and I think they ought to have the opportunity to do so. The people, through the representatives of each of the political parties of the State, assembled in convention, have declared in favor of a presidential preference primary law. There is, therefore, so far as this question is concerned, but one thing to do and that is to enact such a law. Platform pledges should not be simply high-sounding phrases for the purposes of a popular campaign and then to be ignored afterward. I am sure after careful consideration and debate a wise conclusion will be reached as to what form this law in obedience to the demand of the people shall take.

What I have just said with reference to platform declarations applies with equal force to the question looking ultimately to in this State. The last political conventions all declared, two directly, one indirectly, perhaps, in favor of referring to the people the question of so amending the constitution as to confer upon women the equal right with men to vote. The referendum ought to be made. If these conventions have voiced the sentiment of the people there should be no trifling with it. There may be some question as to whether women in general desire the ballot, but in view of these platform declarations that is not the question before this General Assembly. If platform makers have been insincere, (I do not believe at all they have been) but if they have let them be taught the great virtue of sincerity. Go to the voters on the question. Let them speak at the next general election.

REFORM OF COURT PROCEDURE.

The question of reform in the matter of both the civil and criminal procedure of our courts has become a matter of the greatest importance. It is engaging the attention of the best legal minds of the country. The procedure, as it is witnessed every day in our courts, as the trial drags along its weary way before a helpless judge is such as almost to create a feeling of disgust. As to civil procedure it suggests what a relief a conciliatory court, such as they have in Germany, would be. What a saving of time and money. On notice the parties might appear before a judge, or voluntarily submit to his jurisdiction, who without reference to technical procedure or technical rules of evidence, or even lawyers, might in an hour or two or a half day at most elicit the facts, tell the parties what the law applicable to the facts is, what they ought and what they ought not to have done and what the judgment is and, if no settlement accordingly, enter up the judgment. Little expense, little time, no burden to the people. In this way could be done in a few hours what would take the machinery of our courts as the law is now administered, several days to do. Such a court might be established with a proper jurisdiction it seems to me to the great relief of our present courts and I am sure in other ways.

As to the examination of jurors for the trial of a cause: Every lawyer has seen days of time taken, has heard of months being consumed. And yet I doubt if a lawyer of experience could be found who would not say that in nine cases out of ten the jurors finally selected were no better than those first called into the box. The absurdity of examining minutely into the life of a man from childhood must be apparent. It should not be permitted. The court should be given control and as but few questions are pertinent and necessary but few should be allowed. Indeed I incline to the opinion that perhaps it would not be unwise to place the whole matter of examining jurors as to their qualifications in the hands of the court.

The law ought to provide that all exceptions to instructions should be taken before they are read and no others considered or allowed.

I believe the law ought to provide for majority verdicts in civil cases.

It seems to me the time for taking appeals ought to be greatly shortened. I see no reason why the law should make the procedure of a cause through the courts interminable.

On appeal prejudice should not be presumed on slight error. The rule should be that there should be no reversal unless the court could say the jury was probably mislead by the error of the trial court. Perfection in the statement of the law, clear, precise technical nicety of statement is sometimes difficult and doubtless never disturbs the mind of the juror. He views the case as a whole, observes the instructions in their general drift and renders his verdict. Close, critical study of instructions seldom, if ever, I presume, takes place. The law should provide that no judgment shall be set aside or reversed or new trial granted on account of error of the court or error in any matter of pleading or procedure unless it shall appear that the error complained of has injuriously affected the substantial rights of the parties.

I have for many years thought that there is no longer any justifiable reason for the existence of the grand jury. It should be abolished.

The law forbidding counsel to comment on the fact that the defendant in a criminal case declines to become a witness in his own behalf and give such explanation as he can of the facts produced tending to establish his guilt should be repealed. It is entirely just to him to suppose that if he could explain he would do so.

TAXATION.

In view of the thorough investigation and exhaustive report made by the commission provided for by the last General Assembly with reference to the subject of taxation which will be before the legislature for careful consideration little need be said. That there is need for a thorough revision and re-writing of our laws on the subject I think is conceded by every one who has given the matter consideration. With what the commission has recommended I am in thorough accord and sincerely hope that this session will not adjourn without accomplishing much along this line of much needed legislation. The deficiency, indeed the practical failure, of our laws on this subject has been the occasion of recommendations by Governors and discussions by state treasurers for very many years. It is time to act. Our system has broken down. There is no such thing as uniformity. There are glaring inequalities everywhere. Equality of sacrifice is the very first demand of a just system of taxation. But there is no equality between individuals, or taxing districts. No equality between counties in payment of State taxes. A farm of equal value to another in the same county will be assessed at two or three times the value of the other. Horses and cattle, after years of improvement, often are not assessed as much per head as were the "scrubs" of forty years ago and in some counties will be assessed at twice as much as in others. It follows that some are bearing double the burden of taxes borne by others on the same actual values. Property should be assessed at its fair actual value. It is not possible to reach the ideal but so far as possible there should be equality in the bearing of public burdens. That is not even approached in our State. Our method is a failure which might be demonstrated in many other ways. It is not that the burden of taxation shall be increased but that as nearly as is practicable there shall be equality of sacrifice. If property were assessed at actual value and methods were adopted for finding and assessing hundreds of thousands of dollars that now escape, the rate of taxation could be greatly diminished. Our rate of taxation because of our methods is very high. Capital may have been frightened away from our State on this account. Here is matter to be kept in mind in considering the matter of taxation. We must build up our State. It should be an inviting field for capital under just conditions. Conditions in Iowa should not be such as to place our industries and our capitalists at a disadvantage when compared with conditions in other States with which they must compete. If I could say anything that would add to the weight and influence of the report of the commission I would do so. I sincerely commend it for its thoroughness. I commend it for the new methods it proposes for the administration of our tax laws. I commend it because its conclusions have been proved to be wise and workable by the actual experience of other States.

"BLUE SKY LAW."

I said in the beginning that government is for the good of mankind. It would be for the good of thousands of our people if their savings were protected from the fake promoters, the confidence men, who sell to confiding people stocks in airy, worthless, far-distant schemes that have no semblance of real value. Every man knows from his own observation that hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost to the people annually in this way. I have seen estimates placing it at $10,000,000. Kansas was wise ahead of her sister States in providing in substance that when stocks and bonds are offered for sale the banking department must be satisfied that they are a reasonably good investment and a permit secured before they can be offered to the people. I commend this wise law as a basis for similar legislation here.

THE CAPITOL GROUNDS.

The subject of the extension of the capitol grounds is a matter that should have consideration. The day is now here when these grounds surrounding us should be more spacious and they should be made more beautiful. They do not meet the material demands of the present and for the future they will be entirely inadequate. The future should ever be in mind. We build for those who are to come after us. We should have a vision of what Iowa is to do and be. In the extension of the grounds regard should be had for a better setting of the capitol. The whole question of the enlargement and location of buildings and monuments should at once be placed in the hands of the best landscape artist that could be found with instructions to prepare a plan commensurate with the needs and ideals of a great, progressive and cultured people. It cannot all be done at once but a beginning can be made. Every day of postponement only makes the realization more expensive and difficult. What is done should be in accordance with a plan to end in both utility and great artistic beauty.

AGRICULTURE AND DAIRY INTERESTS.

It is the land that must sustain all other interests. Iowa is unsurpassed in the fertility of her soil and there lies one of her greatest future possibilities. All that has been done in the past is but a beginning. Anything intended to promote our agricultural interests should command serious attention. Public lands are gone. The population of the country is increasing more than a million annually. The soil must meet the demands of the oncoming millions. Earnest, sincere patriotic men are trying to devise ways and means. If legislation will assist—lend a hand. Here I want to say that I have been requested to call attention to the weed law, I gladly do so. It should be strengthened.

The encouragement given to our dairy interests heretofore by the legislature has wonderfully stimulated that industry. No other single industry has made such rapid progress. Its product in the last few years has doubled over and over to the enrichment of the people in money and productivity of soil. If further legislation is needed to protect it, spare it not. The benefit is to all the people.

MANUFACTURING.

Our manufacturing industries are growing rapidly. Already I am advised by the Secretary of the Manufacturers' Association we have $225,000,000 invested in 6,000 factories, employing 72,000 wage earners and using 220 million dollars worth of material annually with an annual output worth $335,000,000. Located in the heart of the American continent between two of the greatest rivers in the world, with a soil not excelled by any other of equal extent on the globe, surrounded by the teeming millions of the not distant years, Iowa as an agricultural and manufacturing State, great also in her citizenship, appears in the vision of the future in inspiring and indescribable splendor. Down yonder at Keokuk where her civilization first began to take root is nearing completion one of the greatest triumphs of engineering which human history has yet recorded. The great Father of Waters which for unmeasured ages has wasted his vast energy as he swept on to the sea has been harnessed and his power captured for the lighting and heating of cities, for giving power to manufacturing plants, for the whirling of unnumbered spindles, the grinding of the grains of the Great Valley and the rapid transportation of the people. Manufacturing in Iowa will receive a great impetus there.

The 35th General Assembly has before it the opportunity to make for itself a most distinguished place in Iowa history. I doubt if ever before a more inspiring program ever presented itself in this State. The subjects for consideration nearly all go to the matter of the betterment of human conditions. They touch the life of the people. They suggest the passing of the old day and the bright dawning of the new. They suggest the loosening of the grasp of human selfishness and the extension of the hand of sympathy and brotherhood. I think the State should concern itself about the betterment of human beings, about the protection of human welfare. I feel that the State ought to be humane. The state ought to be a great moral force in the world. "Righteousness exalteth a nation." The State must be a positive good. It must have a conscience. Our prosperity must be built upon the happiness, education and welfare of each man. Business and human betterment can increase together if these problems are rightly taken hold of. What an impetus can be given to the State this winter. Why not move Iowa to the head of the column? It can be done if every man will lose himself in his devotion to the common good. He that would be great must be the servant of all. "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted"—exalted in the strength and consciousness of right things done. It is up to the men of this legislature. The people have trusted you. They have believed in you. It is demanded of a servant that he be faithful. The people want these things done. Will the 35th General Assembly rise to its great opportunities? So far as the Executive can properly do so I want to lend a hand. And so dismissing factionalism, forgetting party, remembering only the common good, let us enter upon the work before us.

The minutes of the joint session were read and approved.

Senator Clarkson of Monroe moved that the joint convention be dissolved.

Motion prevailed.

The Senate returned to Senate Chamber and resumed its sitting.

Senator Cowles moved that a committee of three be appointed to escort Lieutenant-Governor William L. Harding to the chair.

Carried.

President Savage appointed as such committee: Senators Cowles, Ames and Crist.

The committee escorted Lieutenant-Governor Harding to the chair and President Savage said:

"Lieutenant Governor Harding, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to this chair in the Senate.

"Members of the Senate, it gives me pleasure to introduce to you Lieutenant Governor Harding as presiding officer of this body."

President Harding, upon assuming the chair, responded as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND SENATORS—It is with a feeling of my own weakness and inability that I come here and assume the duties of this office. I ask your indulgence. I realize, as you all do, that the gentleman who filled this place during the past two sessions had previous training for the position. He is, also, naturally endowed with a mind that is fair and impartial. Lieutenant Governor Clarke gave the State of Iowa one of the best administrations that it is possible to have in this place; and when I attempt to fill the place, knowing my shortcomings, I ask the senators to bear with me.

It is not my purpose at this time to make extended remarks. I have prepared no speech for this occasion; it is my purpose to assist as best I can the Senate and the Legislature of Iowa in passing during this session such laws as I believe the people of Iowa demand of the Legislature.

We have this afternoon listened to a very able, learned and eloquent address by the newly elected governor of this state. He has pointed out to you some of the things that you ought to do. It is not my purpose to enlarge upon them; but I desire to say that I am in hearty accord with the message that the governor delivered this afternoon.

I want, in my humble way, to be of assistance in carrying out this programme. I ask the senators to be as kindly toward me as they can for a few days until I am accustomed to the harness. My edsire is to do everything I can to assist in making your work pleasant and agreeable, and at the same time, to push the work along. I am your servant and the servant of the people of Iowa.

My first task, as I understand it, is to make the committee assignments. Some of you realize that this task is a hard one, especially for one who has not had the privilege of serving as a member of the Senate. I crave your indulgence. Not all senators were able to secure the position that they would like to have. My purpose was to place each senator where I thought he would be able to do the most good for the whole people of Iowa. I know I have failed in many cases in this purpose.

The secretaries will read the list.

The list of standing committees of the Senate was then read by the Secretary as follows:

STATE OF IOWA.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO THE MEMBERS OF THE THIRTY-FIFTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF IOWA.

In view of the fact that our industrial interests are rapidly developing and that as the State grows older our manufacturing and public utilities interests will much more largely enter into and affect the life of the people, and in view of the fact also that the relations of employer and employe in the State are now by far the greater part satisfactory and amicable so that a fair, just and unprejudiced consideration of the subject may be had, I have thought it best to especially call your attention to the necessity and wisdom of enacting at this session what might be termed an industrial disputes act.

It seems to me that only slight reflection is necessary to convince any intelligent person of the necessity and great usefulness of such a law if just and wise in its provisions. Strikes and lockouts inevitably entail loss upon both parties to the controversy and often lead to violence and much suffering. The public, in no wise to blame, is frequently put to great inconvenience and loss. The public, therefore, has an interest in the matter and the subject becomes at once of great public concern. While the right to strike is everywhere recognized as a lawful right, on the other hand it must be recognized that it is the duty of the State to protect the public welfare and that it cannot allow any of its citizens on either side of the controversy to conduct themselves in such a way as will necessarily bring loss and suffering upon the public, which is in no wise to blame for the conditions and facts bringing about the dispute. The wise thing therefore, to do, in my judgment, is to prepare for the unsatisfactory condition before it arises and thus avoid, if possible, all the loss, the suspension of business and work, the bitterness and hatred engendered and possible violence to property and persons which is incompatible with any just and proper administration of government.

If a law can be enacted by which labor can at once have a full and fair consideration of its grievances by an impartial tribunal, it seems to me that in its own interest and in the interest of the public and good citizenship such a law would meet with its approval. The employers, I think, would regard it as a natural and proper result of modern industrial conditions. There may be some question as to whether submission of disputes should be compulsory but public opinion would be a very powerful compelling force. So it would also in enforcing the judgment of the tribunal. If labor desires to be fair, if employers desire to be just and fair, if neither fears investigation upon the merits of the question at issue, then both ought to unite in helping to secure a law that would first of all proceed to an informal hearing before a disinterested tribunal and thus avoid by an amicable and just settlement the unhappy consequences so often experienced. I invite the support and good will of these classes of our citizenship. I urge upon legislators to give this subject prompt consideration. Consider what are to be future conditions in this State. Let us be wise in time. For its great helpfulness I suggest a close study of the Canadian Industrial Disputes Act. It has proved to be workable and of great value. I urgently recommend that you enact such a law.

Respectfully submitted this 21st day of January, A. D. 1913.

The committee appointed to notify Senator Kenyon of his election returned, and Mr. Kenyon was escorted to the Speaker's station, and after being introduced by President Harding, made the following remarks:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN OF THE JOINT ASSEMBLY—I have not come fifteen hundred miles for the purpose of making a speech, but merely to express to you my deep appreciation of the honor conferred and the confidence reposed in me by this election, and to return my heart-felt thanks to you and through you to the people of the State of Iowa.

Two years ago, upon a similar occasion, which it seems to me was marked by rather more deliberation than this election, I made the only pledge for that campaign on my part; and that was, to serve the people of this state to the best of my ability, regardless of faction, and regardless of politics. And I have tried faithfully to keep that pledge; and the pledge of the past is likewise my promise for the future: To serve the people of this state, regardless of politics, and I may say absolutely regardless of political party.

Partisanly narrow is he who refuses in legislative halls or in the halls of Congress, to vote for good measures, because forsooth they do not originate in his political party, or to vote against good measures because they may originate in the opposing party. Public welfare in this country is vastly more important than party welfare, and in the next four years, speaking for myself alone, I propose to do everything in my power to help make the administration of Mr. Wilson a success. (Applause.) I do not mean by that a partisan success, but a success where he stands for those things that make for human welfare and for human rights; that which brings about the greatest happiness to the greatest number. And when he is right upon those propositions, he is going to have my active support.

You men are engaged in a great work, as we are in Congress, and in the next few years are to be worked out great problems that will challenge the best thought of this nation; fortunate is that man who, even in a humble way, can be a part of this great work that is going forward in this nation for social and industrial justice. It may as well be recognized that there must be, and every thinking man must see it, a broader participation in the prosperity and industrial welfare of the land by the average every-day toiler; a larger share in the wealth which his labor creates; and in the halls of Congress, and in legislative assemblies, human rights and human welfare are to be the chief concern of legislation in the next few years.

Just one thing more: I want to make another pledge to the people of Iowa. It is true ofttimes in national politics and in the halls of Congress, that men spend a part of their time in doing things to bring about their re-election. That is never true in state legislatures, but it is true in Congress; that is one of the baneful facts of our political life, and I want to say that I am going on in a course mapped out in my own mind, to fight a battle in legislative halls for human rights, for moral laws, for decency in our political affairs, against every species of graft and corruption, and for laws that will help the toiler of the nation, absolutely regardless of whatever effect it may have upon me in the future. (Applause.) I take no thought and shall take no thought for any political tomorrow. I had rather be in the Senate six years absolutely thoughtless of my future, than to be there twelve or eighteen years worrying about what may happen in political life.

I did not intend to make a speech. I intended to utter the sentiment of thanks in my heart. Having done that, I will not delay the proceedings longer.

The Journal of the joint convention was then read and approved.

Senator Webber of Wapello moved that the joint convention be dissolved.

Motion prevailed.

The Senate returned to the chamber and resumed its sitting.

Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That, WHEREAS: A bill, entitled "An act granting to the Des Moines River Power Company right to construct and maintain for the improvement and development of water power, fourteen dams across the Des Moines river below Des Moines, Iowa," is now pending in the Congress of the United States; and,

WHEREAS: Said act grants to said Des Moines River Power Company an absolute monopoly of water power rights along the Des Moines river, and by its terms binds us and our descendants for three generations; and,

WHEREAS: Full development is not required for nine years after the passage of said act, thus tying up and retarding development of water rights of inestimable value with only partial present development; and,

STATE OF IOWA.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

DES MOINES.

Hon. W. L. Harding,
President of the Senate.

DEAR SIR—I herewith transmit to you the report of the Secretary of the Iowa State Board of Health for consideration by the Senate.

Very respectfully yours,

G. W. CLARKE,
Governor.
JANUARY 23, 1913.

To His Excellency, the Governor of Iowa, and to the Honorable President and Members of the Senate of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly of the State of Iowa, Now Assembled:

GENTLEMEN—As the Secretary of the Iowa State Board of Health, I desire to submit to your honorable body a report made to the Iowa State Board of Health, herewith attached.

It is earnestly requested that it be carefully considered by your honorable body.

Very respectfully,
GUILFORD H. SUMNER,
(SEAL.) Secretary.
JANUARY 21, 1913.

To the Members of the Iowa State Board of Health:

I wish to submit a report upon the condition of the water supply of the city of Des Moines, examination of which has been made by myself and assisted by Prof. C. N. Kinney, State Chemist of the Board of Health, and Prof L. S. Ross, Assistant State Bacteriologist.

We find the same to be potable and safe to use for drinking and other purposes. In view of the fact that two years ago the water was reported in a bad condition, I deem it wise that you submit this statement to both branches of the legislature now in session in order that they may know its true condition.

I deem it also best to state in this connection that there is no meat, milk or food inspection in the city of Des Moines, and consequently great care should be exercised in the use of meats, unless they are thoroughly cooked, and milk which should either be pasteurized or should come from cattle which have been tested and known to be free from tuberculosis.

The above suggestions are most respectfully submitted for the approval of the Board and the careful consideration of the members of the legislature during the present session of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly.

Very respectfully,

A BILL FOR AN ACT to Legalize a Special Election Held in the City of Carroll, Iowa, at Which Was Submitted the Question of Granting a Franchise for the Establishment of Gas Works and the Use of the Streets, Alleys and Public Grounds of Said City in Connection Therewith; and to Legalize An Ordinance Passed by the City Council of Said City Granting Said Franchise; and Legalizing All Acts of Said City, and Its Council, in Connection With the Grant of the Same.

WHEREAS: At a special election for that purpose held in the city of Carroll, State of Iowa, on the 7th day of August, 1911, the qualified electors of said city did vote in favor of granting to C. I. Tenney, his successors and assigns, a franchise to establish, maintain, and operate gas works in said city for the manufacture, sale and distribution of gas for illuminating and other purposes, and to use the streets, alleys and public grounds of said city for such purposes, with certain rights, duties and powers. All as set forth in a proposed ordinance then on file in the office of the city clerk of said city; and,

WHEREAS: The city council of said city did subsequently adopt and publish said ordinance granting said franchise to said C. I. Tenney, his successors and assigns, for the purposes before mentioned; and,

WHEREAS: In the giving of the notice required for said special election, and the publication of the same, and in the ballots used at said election, there were certain irregularities and omissions as to the manner and the time of the giving of said notice of election, and the publication of the same; and in the statement upon the ballot of the proposed measure to be voted upon in a general way, and not in detail as set out in the proposed ordinance; and,

Senators DeWolf and Spaulding introduced the following concurrent resolution:

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

Resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That the attention of the Iowa State Board of Education is respectfully called to the following:

First. That since the action of the State Board of Education ordering the removal of Domestic Science from the State College at Ames to the State University at Iowa City; the elimination of Engineering from the State University and centering the same at the State College at Ames and the discontinuance of the last two years of the work at the Teachers College a Cedar Falls, there has arisen much opposition to such action of the State Board on the part of the people of Iowa, and many educators and persons of wide experience and devotion to the educational interests of Iowa have expressed the opinion that the Board erred in its action and that the effects of such action will be injurious to the several institutions and the cause of education in Iowa;

Second. That grave doubts also have arisen as to the legality and constitutionality of the action of the Board and many legal authorities of a character to command respect and consideration have expressed opinions holding that such action on the part of the Board is without legal authority and in some particulars is in conflict with the organic law of the state;

Third. That if the General Assembly should adjourn without action and later the courts should hold that the action of the Board was illegal and without constitutional authority, these several colleges and departments affected by the action of the Board would be without financial support for the ensuing two years and on that account would be demoralized and irreparably injured; therefore,

Be it further resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That the Iowa State Board of Education be advised and is respectfully requested to rescind its action of October 8, 1912, as cited above, relative to such colleges and departments of the three institutions, and to so amend its budgets and recommendations to the governor and to this General Assembly as will give to such colleges and departments such support as they would have received if such action had not been taken.

Senator Francis moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on Educational Institutions.

Motion carried.

So the resolution was referred to committee on Educational Institutions.

Senator Webber introduced the following concurrent resolution:

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

Be it resolved by the Senate, the House concurring, That, WHEREAS: Doubt has arisen as to the wisdom of the action of the State Board of Education in its purposed changes affecting the State University, the State Agricultural College, and the State Teachers College, wherein it is sought to center graduate courses in engineering at the State Agricultural College, and at the same time remove the same from the State University; and,

WHEREAS: It is proposed to remove from the State Agricultural College, the Home Economics department and center the same at the State University; and,

WHEREAS: It is proposed to remove from the State Teachers College the graduate teachers courses; therefore,

Be it resolved, That the General Assembly ask of the Board of Education, that it rescind its order heretofore made and as above outlined, and that when the same has been so rescinded that the proper committees of the Senate and the House, be by this resolution instructed to draft a bill wherein any unnecessary duplication of courses, between the institutions named, will be eliminated, and in which the field and purposes of the respective institutions will be defined and outlined, and under which rivalry may be removed, as far as possible, and under which we may make the State University a great university, in all the name implies, the State Agricultural College the greatest agricultural college in the country, and the State Teachers College the greatest training school for teachers in the United States, and in which there will be no conflict, with the constitution or laws, under which the State University was provided for and organized, and under which there will be nothing at the State Agricultural College which will conflict with the Morrill Law of July 2, 1862, under which the State of Iowa accepted the land grant for the purposes of establishing the State Agricultural College, and in which its duties and purposes were outlined and under which there will be nothing at the State Teachers College to conflict with making it, what was intended by the laws under which the same was organized, the greatest teachers' training college in the United States.

Be it further resolved, That it is not the sense of this body to criticise the action of the Board of Education, whom we recognize as unselfish and as trying to do a thing that will be for the best interests of the future students of Iowa, but in as much as doubt has arisen as to the wisdom of some of the changes suggested and their authority to make them under the law, we deem it wise that the order be rescinded and that when so done a law be made outlining the field and defining the purposs of their respective institutions, and under which unnecessary duplication of courses and rivalry will be eliminated, and under which there will be no conflict with the law, either national or state, and under which the respective institutions may, to the best advantage, serve the purposes for which they were intended.

Referred to committee on Educational Institutions.

President Harding announced the joint convention duly organized, with a quorum of members present.

President Harding introduced Mrs. Trout, president of the Illinois Women Suffrage Association, who addressed the joint convention as follows:

MEMBERS OF THE IOWA LEGISLATURE—You have a great many things in Iowa to be proud of, and you have a splendidly governed city here in Des Moines, but it has always seemed strange that Iowa, so progressive and so intelligent, seemingly—I know because I am a native of Iowa—should have been so slow about granting equal suffrage to its women. The explanation, however, is simple. We are so much like that profound looking gentleman, who when asked the source of his seeming tremendous wisdom, said: "Sometimes I sit and think and think and think, and sometimes I only sit." Alas! too many of us only sit; sit in darkness, surrounded by old prejudices and old ideas, and never brush them aside and let in the light.

Some good natured, thoughtless people say they would be willing to grant equal suffrage to women when all the women asked for it.

As a matter of record, a larger proportion of women have already asked for the ballot than of any class of men who have ever been granted the franchise, but the masses of the people seldom ask for things. We are, as a class, conservative, fearful and perhaps a little lazy, and we would rather drift along old ways than to make the effort to turn aside into new and better ones.

It is often stated that women's place is in the home. No one denies it. And no stronger suffrage argument was ever uttered. There is nothing in the world a woman loves so much as her home, unless, perhaps, it is the man who with her helps to make that home. Then, why in the name of common sense and of justice is she not given the power to help protect that home? And the only weapons that can be used for that purpose in a democratic form of government, is the ballot.

We women in asking for the ballot, do not want to take away any rights from the men, but we know that we could help them and give so much better and more valuable service to our state and to our nation, and to our homes if they would give to us the ballot. It is only a case of reciprocity, after all.

Some people object to equal suffrage because they claim women should not vote because they cannot go to war. It is unnecessary, perhaps, to state what a certain general said not long ago—"If all of the men who are physically unable and who do not or cannot go to war, were disfranchised, our polling places would be as lonesome as a sea-bathing resort in December."

Putting all this aside, if every man in the country could go to war, we women do not want to go to war, but we do not want to be forced to send to war our fathers, our brothers, our husbands, our sons, those who are far dearer to us than our own lives. We do not want to be forced to send them away by government in which we have no voice.

Some people object to equal suffrage because they fear that if women were allowed to handle that dangerous piece of paper called a "ballot," they would grow coarse and masculine. because they would be associated in such a horrible and degrading way with men. Still women ride in our cars and in our autos every day, side by side with men, and seem to enjoy it. They work in our stores, teach in our schools, side by side with men. They go to church, side by side with men. They even live under the same roof with men, and yet this constant asscoiation has failed to make them either coarse or masculine. But, voting is, of course, different.

Some people are opposed to equal suffrage because they fear the so-called bad women's vote. As a matter of record in the states and countries where women can vote today, very few of these poor women of the underworld want to register and let their names and places of residence be publicly known. Then they constitute such a small proportion of all the women. They constitute a fractional part of one per cent of the women of Denver. They constitute about that same percentage of the women of Chicago. Some say, however, bad men vote. Then why not bad women? Those who have studied the situation claim that many of these poor women—thirty-three and one-third per cent of whom commit suicide every year—under the privacy and protection of the Australian ballot system, as an atonement, perhaps, and with the hope of saving other women a fate like their own, would vote for good men and good government. Some of us are willing to trust them, for no amount of sin, disease and suffering can ever entirely obliterate a spark of divine in either man or woman.

Some say, however, they object to equal suffrage because they claim that women might grow quarrelsome and inharmonious if they were given the ballot, because they lack the perfect self-control of man. This argument is unanswerable. We all know the perfect harmony that has prevailed in our political world during the recent presidential campaign. Some of our political leaders today emulate the "lion and the lamb" of the prophecy, and "lie down together." At least they accuse each other of doing so. Women might possibly draw their own conclusions from such inspiring examples. Many people condemn the English suffragists for demanding their freedom in a rather forceful way. How much better, instead of condemning, it would be to deplore the conditions that make the present situation in England possible. We must not forget in looking at this English problem that the English women who are today struggling for their liberty, are the daughters of Englishmen who resorted to similar methods, not in the far distant past, in order that English men might be free.

With eighty thousand young girls, thousands upon thousands of them sacrificed every year in a horrible and atrocious white-slave traffic—with industrial conditions in many places that cripple and destroy human life, with human woe and human suffering on every side, shall woman, the mother of the race, remain forever silent? No, a thousand times, no. For she knows that back of all of this misery, all of this disease and suffering, there is a cause, and that cause directly or indirectly is a sin. And what causes a large preponderance of the sin of the world? The double moral standard for men and for women, and no amount of medical science, no religion, no philosophy of any kind, can save the world until men and women stand equal in the sight of man, as they do in the sight of God, and we have common political and common moral standard for women and for men. But old rotten beliefs falling to pieces—thank God—from their own corruption, cry out to us, "this is impossible." Men and women are so different. Men are intellectually stronger than women, but women are morally stronger than men. If men are today intellectually stronger than women, it is not because they are naturally or inherently stronger, but because they have had centuries of opportunity and education denied to women. And, if women today are morally stronger than men—and it is quoted to prove this, that less than five per cent of all the criminals are women—but if this is so, it is not because they are naturally or inherently better, but because the world has for centuries demanded higher moral standards of the women than it has of men. But, what right has the world to establish this double moral standard?

It is absolutely impossible for men and women to be fundamentally different. They must have similar hopes; similar aspirations; similar ideas of purity. For every man is just as nearly related to his mother as to his father, and every woman is just as nearly related to her father as she is to her mother, and we are all children of the one Infinite Father.

Lack of equal suffrage is a menace and a danger to the growth and permanent prosperity of any nation. Granting equal suffrage will not bring the millenium, not all at once. Women are not angels. Think how homesick they would be if they were. But in a government of the people, by the people, for the people, people can be translated only as fair-minded men and women, and many of our greatest men have stood for qual suffrage. Lincoln said, "I go for all the people, sharing the privileges of this government, to assist in bearing its burdens, by no means excluding women." Good never can come out of evil, and we are never going to be even approaching towards permanent better conditions while we have a fundamental wrong at the core of our government. Equal suffrage is the next step forward.

It does not really matter so far as ultimate results are concerned whether or not I believe in equal suffrage, because it is coming anyway. But it does matter to us individually whether or not the right or wrong side of any great vital moral can be within every suffrage state. With Montana, South Dakota and New York just passing suffrage amendments, with a world-wide interest in this movement everywhere, why should Iowa wait until the very last minute to jump into the "band wagon?" Why does not Iowa make history today that it will be proud to point to in the years that are to come? Why does not Iowa, this great state of Iowa, lead the way, and be the first state bordering the great Father of Waters, to grant equal suffrage to women?

Senate returned to the Senate chamber and resumed its sitting.

Senator Cowles moved that Senate do now adjourn until 10 o'clock A. M., tomorrow.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

Memorializing the Members of Congress to Use Their Influence for the Conservation of Fish and Regulation of the Fish Industry.

WHEREAS: The United States government has not granted to the states bordering on the navigable lakes and rivers, any rights of ownership or control of ice, water or fish contained therein; and,

WHEREAS: A profitable and important industry has grown up; engaged in by substantial men of means, who furnish equipment and employment to a very large number of well-paid laborers, who are industrious, respectable and worthy citizens and who are bread-winners for large families dependant upon them for support; and,

WHEREAS: There is an abuse and profligate waste in this great source of food supply, on account of the present methods of catching fish with seines and nets of various kinds with too small mesh, thereby taking young fish that are too small for profit and should be left in the water to grow, also by drawing seines over spawning beds and destroying spawn and young fish; and,

WHEREAS: The small lakes, sloughs and bayous in which the young fish are bred, and in which the young fish stay are usually shallow in the fall and partially land-locked at the outlets, so that when winter comes the young fish are shut up and many millions of them smothered, frozen and killed in these land-locked outlets, causing a much greater destruction on the Mississippi river alone than could be replaced with a thousand government hatcheries; and,

WHEREAS: The United States Fisheries Department are now seining from these waters many carloads of small fish, and transporting them to the smaller inland lakes and streams; and,

WHEREAS: Some states have passed prohibitive laws against fishing, other states have licensed fishing in the same waters, on account of which an injustice is done to those engaged in fishing and to the people who need the supply of fish for food; and causing continued expensive litigation; and,

WHEREAS: The laws, rules and regulations for the conservation and catching of fish should be uniform over the entire boundary river or lake; and,

WHEREAS: By the use of less than one-third of the present appropriation for propagating and distributing fish, these lakes, sloughs and bayous can be ditched and opened so that young fish can escape to the deeper water and be saved; and,

WHEREAS: We deem it for the best interest of all the people of the states that Congress shall pass suitable laws for the protection and preservation of fish as a food supply and regulating the time and methods of catching fish for market; and,

WHEREAS: We believe that if the United States Congress will enact a law forbidding the use of seines, nets, etc., with less than two and one-half inch mesh for catching fish, and prohibiting the use of seines and nets of all kinds during spawning season, such laws will be easily enforced for the reason that a large majority of the people engaged in catching, buying and selling fish desire such a law and will comply with it, and will for the protection of their business assist in the enforcement; now, therefore,

Be it resolved, That we urge our senators and representatives in Congress to pass laws for the regulation of the fish industry and the preservation of fish on all navigable boundary lakes and rivers.

Providing for a closure during spawning season, in the various latitudes. Providing for ditching small lakes, ponds, sloughs, and bayous to a depth sufficient to allow young fish to escape into deep water, and providing that no seine or net of any kind shall be used for catching fish that is less than two and one-half inch mesh except minnow seines, which shall not exceed twenty-four feet in length.

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial and resolution be forwarded to each of the Iowa senators and representatives.

Laid over under the rules.

SENATE RULES.

REGULAR ORDER OF DAILY BUSINESS.

1. The following order shall govern:

1. Presentation of petitions and memorials, addressed to the Senate or the general assembly.

2. Introduction of bills.

3. Resolutions.

4. Communications on the president's table, including House messages.

5. Reports of standing committees, in order in which they stand in the rules, except the committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills, Rules and Printing.

6. Reports of select committees.

7. Unfinished business before the Senate.

8. Third reading of bills.

9. General order of the day.

PRESIDENT AND HIS DUTIES.

2. The president shall take the chair at the hour to which the Senate is adjourned and call the Senate to order; and if a quorum be present, he shall proceed with the regular order of daily business, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate or unless a special order for the day shall interfere therewith. He shall preserve order and decorum, and decide all questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Senate. He shall appoint all committees, unless otherwise especially ordered. Immediately preceding the adjournment of each morning session, or, in case it cannot be done during that session, then as soon after the convening of the next following session as he may find most convenient, the president shall call for corrections of the journal of the last day's proceedings. He shall then cause any mistakes therein to be corrected by the secretary, and the journal shall then be approved.

PRESIDENT PRO TEM. ELECTION AND DUTIES.

3. The Senate shall, at its pleasure, elect a president pro tem, who shall hold his office during the remaining portion of the time for which the president was elected; and when the president shall from any cause be absent, the president pro tem, shall preside, except when the chair is filled by appointment by the president.

MESSENGERS.

4. There shall be appointed by the lieutenant governor, at each session of the Senate, to hold their positions during such session, but subject to be discharged by the president of the Senate for inefficiency or misbehavior, or other reasons in his judgment justifying such discharge, six messengers for the Senate. And the president may appoint other messengers in the place of any discharged.

CALL OF SENATE AND ATTENDANCE.

5. One-fourth of the members may have a call of the senate, and absent members sent for and their attendance enforced.

MANNER OF SECURING RECOGNITION. ....

6. When a member is about to speak, in debate, or deliver any matter to the Senate, he shall rise from his seat and respectfully address himself to "Mr. President," and shall confine himself to the question under debate, avoid personalities, and the imputation of improper motives.

VIVA VOCE VOTE. DIVISION.

7. When the vote is taken viva voce, questions shall be distinctly put in this form, viz.: "As many as are of the opinion (as the case may be) say 'aye'." And after the affirmative voice is expressed: "As many as are of the contrary opinion say 'no'." If the president doubt, or a division be called for, the Senate shall divide—those in the affirmative of the question shall first rise from their seats, and afterwards those in the negative.

VOTING.

8. Every member present when a question is put shall vote, unless he shall, for special cause, be excused by a vote of the Senate; but no member shall vote on any question in the event of which he is directly and personally interested, or, except by consent of the Senate, in any case where he was not present when his name was called in the taking of the vote. Provided, that any member who was absent by leave of the Senate may vote at any time before the result is announced.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS. WHEN IN WRITING.

9. All motions (except to adjourn, postpone, or commit) shall be reduced to writing, if required by any member of the Senate. Any motion or resolution may be withdrawn by the mover, provided the same has not been amended by the Senate, and that no amendment is pending thereto.

DEBATE. WHAT MOTIONS IN ORDER. PRECEDENCE.

10. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lay on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a day certain, to commit or amend, to postpone indefinitely, which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are named; and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit or postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill or proposition. A motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill shall have the precedence of a motion to amend; and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to the rejection of the bill.

MOTIONS NOT DEBATABLE.

11. A motion to adjourn, to lay on the table, and for the previous question, shall be decided without debate, and all incidental questions of order arising after the motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided—whether an appeal or otherwise—without debate.

PREVIOUS QUESTION.

12. The previous question shall be in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present, and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate, and bring the Senate to a direct vote upon pending amendments and then upon the main question unless otherwise indicated by the motion and ordered by the Senate, except that the member in charge of the measure under consideration shall have ten minutes in which to close the discussion, immediately before the vote is taken upon the main question. If the previous question is decided in the negative, the Senate shall proceed with the matter before it, the same as though the previous question had not been moved.

DIVISION OF QUESTION.

13. Any member may call for a division of a question which shall be divided, if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that one being taken away substantive propositions shall remain for the decision of the Senate. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible; but a motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither amendments to the matter attempted to be stricken out, nor a motion to strike out and insert.

WHO MAY MAKE MOTION TO RECONSIDER.

14. When a motion or question has been decided, any member having voted on the prevailing side may move a reconsideration, on the same or next legislative day.

PRINTING IN RECORD.

15. A motion to print any paper presented to the Senate may, on motion, be referred to the committee on Printing, whose duty it shall be to report at the earliest time practicable, on the propriety of printing.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS, READINGS. HOW WRITTEN.

16. Every bill shall be introduced on the report of a committee, or by leave, and shall at once be given its first reading. Every bill and joint resolution shall have received three several readings previous to its passage; but no bill or joint resolution shall have its second and third readings on the same day, without a suspension of this rule; and every bill and joint resolution shall express in its title the object thereof. All rules of the Senate applicable to bills shall apply with equal force to joint resolutions. Each bill and proposed joint resolution, when introduced, shall be type-written double-space, and accompanied by two copies thereof.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS, ENDORSEMENTS. PRESENTATION.

17. Before the same is presented, there shall be endorsed on each petition a brief statement of the subject matter thereof, and on each bill and joint resolution the title thereof, and in either case the name of the senator presenting the same. In presenting a petition, the senator shall briefly state from his place in the Senate chamber the subject matter to which the petition relates.

FIRST READING OF BILL OR A JOINT RESOLUTION. OBJECTION.

18. The first reading of a bill or joint resolution shall be for information, and, if objection be made to it, the question shall be: "Shall the bill (or joint resolution, as the case may be) be rejected?" If no objection be made, or the question to reject be lost, the bill or joint resolution shall go to its second reading without further questioning.

SECOND READING. COMMITMENT. CONSIDERATION ON.

19. Upon the second reading of a bill or joint resolution, the president shall refer the bill to an appropriate standing committee unless otherwise ordered by the Senate. If ordered by the Senate to be considered by the committee of the whole, the Senate shall fix the day for its consideration. If the bill or joint resolution be ordered to be engrossed, it shall be in order for its third reading any session after that day. No bill or joint resolution shall be committed or amended until it shall have been twice read.

APPROPRIATION BILLS. DUTIES OF COMMITTEE. TIME TO REPORT.

20. After the third legislative day prior to said Monday, House bills shall be reported back by said committee within three days from the reference thereof.

WHEN INTRODUCED.

(b) No bill shall be introduced in the Senate after March 30th except such bills as may be reported from standing committees as committee bills.

THIRD READING OF BILLS. ENGROSSING. VOTE ON.

21. When a question is lost on engrossing a bill, or joint resolution for a third reading on a particular day, it shall not preclude a question to engross it for a third reading on a different day. After a third reading of a bill or a joint resolution, no amendment (except to fill blanks) shall be received, except by unanimous consent of the members present; and the vote on its final passage shall be immediately taken without debate.

COMMITTMENT.

22. A bill or joint resolution may be committed at any time previous to its third reading.

AMENDING.

23. In filling blanks, the largest sum and longest time shall be first put.

HOUSE AMENDMENTS. CONCURRENCE IN.

24. On the return of a bill or joint resolution from the House, with an amendment, it shall be placed with the third reading of bills, unless the Senate shall otherwise order. On the question of adopting the amendment the vote shall be taken on the final passage of the bill, and if the amendment be adopted by a constitutional majority, no further vote is necessary.

PRINTING OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS.

25. All bills and joint resolutions introduced except local or legalizing bills, shall be printed, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate, and committees may order to be printed any bills under consideration by them, and any substitutes for bills or resolutions reported by them.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES. WHEN IN ORDER.

26. It shall be in order for the committee on Engrossed and Enrolled Bills, on Rules and on Printing, to report at any time, when no member is addressing the Senate.

SPECIAL ORDER. WHEN CONSIDERED.

27. When any special order of the day is not proceeded with on the day assigned, it shall stand as a general order on each succeeding day until disposed of, unless otherwise ordered, but its consideration cannot be moved until that order of business is reached, when it shall be taken up in order of its file, and shall be taken up in the order of precedence.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS AFTER SPECIAL ORDER.

28. When the pending question is interrupted by a "Special Order," it shall, upon the disposal of the special order, be before the Senate in the same stage as if it had not been so interrupted.

COMMITTEE CLERKS. QUALIFICATIONS.

29. Committees are permitted to employ clerks by the majority vote of the whole committee. All applicants for the position of committee clerkship shall be examined by a committee of three appointed by the president of the Senate. The clerk shall be selected by such vote, and in like manner may be discharged for inefficiency, or when the services of the clerk become unnecessary. All committee clerks shall be competent stenographers and of good moral character. Any clerk may be discharged for inefficiency, immorality or indecent or unbecoming conduct, whether in or out of the Senate chamber; and, upon the request of any senator or the president of the Senate, made to the chairman of a committee, a meeting of the committee shall be called for the purpose of considering the question of the discharge of such clerk upon any of the grounds above specified.

DUTIES OF COMMITTEE CLERKS.

30. Clerks of Senate committees, when not engaged in duties pertaining to such committees, or work assigned them by the committee chairman, shall be subject to the discretion of the secretary of the Senate for any labor connected with the duties of his position or his assistants. The secretary shall, from time to time, make detail from said clerks to assist in preparing copy or correcting proof for the daily journal.

31. All reports of committees on bills or resolutions shall be made in duplicate and be accompanied with the original bill or resolution to which the report relates. Provided, that this rule shall not apply to the reports of committees on Enrolled and Engrossed Bills.

Senator Thomas filed the following explanation of his vote favorable to the consideration of Senate File No. 19:

First: I am not in the slightest degree hostile to the colored race, and do not so regard this bill. It is aimed equally at both races. The inter-marriages which this bill seeks to prohibit are invariably among the lower types of the two races, which is in itself the best possible reason for its passage.

Second: These marriages always arouse race prejudice to the great injury and injustice of the great masses of the colored people who do not themselves believe in them. If the bill is any reflection upon either race, it is not more so upon one than the other. I yield to no man in earnest good will to the colored race, and all its highest and holiest aspirations as a people, and I am willing to aid them by every just and proper means within my power.

But it is my conviction that this bill, if enacted into law, would serve the highest good and all the best interests of both races and of civilization.

C. H. THOMAS.

MR. PRESIDENT—Your committee upon the contest of Clemant F. Kimball vs. Mack C. Goodwin of the Nineteenth Senatorial District, having had the matter under advisement and having heard the evidence, examined and counted all of the ballots cast in said district, beg leave to report that by reason of a mistake made by the judges of the first precinct of the first ward in the city of Council Bluffs, a part of the votes cast for Clemant F. Kimball, contestant, and counted by the judges, were not carried out in the poll book, it appearing that the votes when cast were tallied on a sample ballot and the clerks of election failed to tally or copy into the returns all of the votes counted by the judges of election for said precinct for said contestant, that these votes so cast and counted for the said Clemant F. Kimball, give him a majority of seventy-four (74) votes in said district. While there are some legal questions involved in the contest, concerning which the members of the committee might disagree, the plain intention of the majority of the voters being to elect the contestant, Clemant F. Kimball, and the other matters considered in the contest having no effect upon the final result, if the votes for the first precinct of the first ward of Council Bluffs are counted as cast, your committee recommends that Clemant F. Kimball, the contestant, be declared elected as senator and be seated as senator from said district. We further recommend that the contestee be allowed the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) as attorney's fees.

So the bill having received a constitutional majority was declared to have passed the Senate and its title was agreed to.

Upon request of Senator Allen, unanimous consent was given to have the following communication from the attorney general read, and asked that same appear in the Journal:

STATE OF IOWA.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

DES MOINES.

DEAR SIR:—I am in receipt of your communication of the 11th instant, requesting an opinion on behalf of the joint committee on Retrenchment and Reform as to the right of holdover senators to receive the increased compensation as provided in section 1, chapter 1, acts of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly.

The only constitutional provision covering this question is found in section 25 of article 3 of the constitution of the state of Iowa, and only so much of said section is applicable which provides as follows: "No General Assembly shall have the power to increase the compensation of its members."

It is significant that the constitutional provision does not prohibit the increased compensation to members of the General Assembly during the time for which said members shall have been elected, yet in section 21 of article 3 of the constitution, the inhibition on a senator or representative being appointed to any civil office of profit under this state which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which shall have been increased, except such offices as may be filled by elections by the people, expressly refers to the time for which he shall have been elected.

It is clear then that the language used in section 25, viz: "That no General Assembly shall have the power to increase the compensation of its members," is capable of but two constructions: The term "its members" either refers to the members of the particular session then sitting, at which session the increase was voted, which is known as the Thirty-fourth General Assembly, or else it refers to the members of the General Assembly as a continuing legislative body; that is to say, the term "General Assembly" as used in section 25 of the constitution either refers to that particular session, or else it refers to the General Assembly of Iowa whenever in session, and would apply to the members of the General Assembly at the time the increase was voted, or at any time thereafter, regardless of the number of times such men might be re-elected.

Under this latter interpretation, no member of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly could ever receive any increase in compensation, no matter how many terms he might be returned by his constituents. This construction is so untenable and illogical that a mere statement of the proposition is sufficient to indicate its fallacy. It follows then that the words "its members" refer to the members of the particular General Assembly at the time the increased compensation is provided.

I am therefore of the opinion that while the Thirty-fourth General Assembly could not increase the salary of any member of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly, an amendment to the law increasing the salary of the members of the General Assembly would not in any way prohibit members of succeeding General Assemblies from accepting the increase, and that a holdover senator is as much entitled to the increase in salary as members of the lower House of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly who have been re-elected and are now members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly, and that all members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly are entitled to the increase.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE COSSON,
Attorney General of Iowa.

February 14, 1913.

Hon. J. H. Allen, Chairman,

Committee on Retrenchment and Reform,

State House.

SEC. 6. Individuals or corporations operating transmission lines conducted by authority of a decree of a district court as herein provided, shall have reasonable access to said transmission line for the purpose of constructing, reconstructing, maintaining, enlarging, repairing or relocating the poles, wires or other devices used in and upon said transmission line, but shall pay to the owner of any lands or crops all damages to said lands or crops caused by entering or occupying any lands for said purposes.

"Hard, hard, indeed, was the contest for freedom, and the struggle for independence. The golden sun of liberty had nearly set in the gloom of an eternal night ere its radiant beams illumined our western horizon. Had not the tutelar saint of Columbia hovered round the American camp and presided over its destinies, freedom must have met with an untimely grave. Never can we duly appreciate the merits of a Washington, who with but a handful of undisciplined yeomanry triumphed over a royal army and prostrated the lion of England at the feet of the American eagle. His name—so terrible to his foes, so welcome to his friends—shall live forever upon the brightest page of the historian and be remembered with the warmest emotions of gratitude and pleasure by those whom he contributed to make happy; and by all mankind when kings and nobles for ages shall have sunk into their merited oblivion. Unlike them he needs not the assistance of the architect or the sculptor to perpetuate his memory. His deeds—his worthy deeds—alone have rendered him immortal."

SEC. 6. When the consignor and consignee of the same shipment both claim to be entitled to the damages, if any, due from the carrier on account of loss or injury to a shipment, then the time within which said settlements are to be made by the carrier shall be computed from the date that the consignor and consignee notify the carrier that they have agreed as to which of said parties is entitled to receive the damages claimed.

SEC. 7. In those cases where the claimant is indebted to the carrier, the time within which the carrier shall be required to settle with the claimant as hereinbefore provided shall be computed from the date that the claimant either pays his indebtedness to the carrier, or states to the

ADDRESS OF PROF. COOLEY.

Mr. President, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives and General Assembly.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—I appreciate fully the compliment of being asked to address this assembly of my native state on the important question of vocational education. You have conferred a great honor upon me and the body of men I represent by calling upon me to address you. I feel my inability to satisfy your expectations, but I could not refuse your kind invitation tendered in so complimentary a way. I hope I may be able to answer some of the questions you are asking about the future of the coming generations. I am profoundly interested in the question and my experience both as a teacher and as a mechanic and a business man give me some advantages in considering this question. I have tried to supplement this experience by an investigation of other peoples whose situation compelled them to study the question when we were driving blindly ahead relying upon our almost limitless natural wealth and native energy and ability. The time has come, however, to us—as it will to all others—when we must conserve both our natural and our human resources. This means we must develop a system of vocational schools that will be as much concerned with the education of our mechanics and farmers as we are with the training of our professional men. This is not only a duty to the state you represent, but a right of the rising generation in this great democracy.

Odin, a Servian sociologist, a representative of the rising Balkan state that is now fighting for "a place in the sun," for a right to develop her natural and human resources free from the horrible tyranny of the Turk, demonstrated to the world that the percentage of ability in a people was the same in each and every class thereof; that the apparent differences were due to differences in environment, in education, using the word in its broadest sense. The correlary of this demonstration is that it is the duty of every society to offer advantages to every class in society sufficient to conserve and develop this ability; that no nation can succeed in the industrial and commercial competition of this world who neglects this duty. I found the Germans quoting Odin and urging that they could never hope to succeed in their struggle for industrial and commercial supremacy while they continued to neglect this conservation of human ability in all classes of society, both in the world of learning and the humbler walks of life among their mechanics and their farmers. My study abroad convinced me that the Germans are fully as much concerned with opening a way to the top as we in America are, in this "land of the free and home of the brave." Their way of meeting this problem is different from ours, has less of "the devil take the hindmost" about it, but is fully as intelligent. This will explain my apparent enthusiasm for German systems of education, where efficiency is considered a necessary complement to democracy.

Lester Ward says: "Each age of the world's history stands on a platform erected by all past ages. It is true that all the members of society use to a certain extent of the products of past achievements, but in no other sense do those members stand on the elevated platform who do not actually possess the heritage of the past. Now, as a matter of fact, it is only the intelligent classes who really possess what I have called this heritage."

The results of the meditations and investigations of past ages form an inheritance for the whole human race. Some of this inheritance does inevitably filter down through and reach the lower strata of society; but much remains practically the inheritance of the few who have the time and the means to enter into their inheritance through education of various sorts, including that of the schools. Many do not avail themselves of opportunities to share in this inheritance on account of lack of time, lack of means and lack of inclination for serious study, due to a failure to appreciate the value of this inheritance; many on account of actual inability, mental, moral or economical.

The whole human race is interested, however, in the equitable distribution of this inheritance as its greatest benefits result from its general distribution, rather than from its monopolization by the few. Knowledge is power, but it is social power only when society generally is in possession of it. When confined to a few it may be a social curse, as the monopolization of material wealth often is. Society is sound to the core only when all parts are equitably nourished from this common fund and no organ, however humble, is starved into weakness and inefficiency.

This conception of society as an organism does not presuppose that all its members will be able to utilize these opportunities to the same extent or in the same way, but it does presuppose that all have an access to this common fund of the race long enough to enable them to get the substance they require for their healthy development and to enable them to perform their functions efficiently. Society as a whole must provide such opportunity for all its members as a means of self-preservation.

This means as a practical proposition that access to this common inheritance must not be closed to ninety per cent of our children when they are barely fourteen years of age, just at the time when they most need guidance and instruction, just at the time when character building really begins, and just when they should be objects of special attention in our educational plans. Whether the youth appreciates the need of further education or not is not the question. Society must appreciate it and provide for it by extending the compulsory period of education to cover the years of development between fourteen and eighteen, even for those compelled to devote most of their time and energy to bread-winning. One of the blunders of civilized countries, a blunder that has led to an enormous increase in the number of youthful vagabonds and criminals, has been to neglect him and to act as though there were a sharply defined line separating the child from the man; as though it were a wise educational policy to care for him systematically up to fourteen and then leave him abruptly and absolutely to the tender mercies of the factory and street.

Society cannot, therefore, continue to expend vast sums of money for high schools and universities and neglect the ninety per cent who go into vocational life with only elementary school training without repudiating the reasons usually given for having schools of any sort as a public charge. If self-preservation through the training of the character of the future citizen is the justification for spending public money for schools, the state must enter the entire field of vocational education, and must provide for all—the artisan, the professional man, the farmer and the merchant. Justice to the individual, as well as self-preservation of the state demands it. As Frederick Paulsen puts it: "We must build upon our elementary schools as a fundamental form of schools a new finishing educational institution, or give to the elementary school instruction its necessary conclusion in a vocational high school, a school whose problem will be the carrying of general education for vocational activity forward and making it fruitful." We have already done this for the professional and managerial classes by means of high schools and colleges and universities, but we have not provided for the great mass of our youth who enter vocational life at fourteen. It will be the educational problem of the twentieth century—as Frederick Paulsen says—to do this, to complete our system of common schools.

The problem of legislation is, therefore, to provide a system of schools which shall give opportunity to all our youth during the years of development between fourteen and eighteen, during the years of adolescense. A small per cent of our youth do now continue school in high schools and colleges until maturity and later, sometimes too long for their own and their country's good, as they postpone their entrance into vocational life until their power of adaptation begins to wane and their success in practical life is imperiled. Our problem is to extend the opportunities for vocational education to all during this adolescent period, a problem which we cannot longer defer if we hope to conserve our human resources and to hold our place in the van of civilized nations.

It will be impossible under present conditions to offer opportunities covering an equal amount of time to all members of society. A great majority must begin their vocational life at about the age of fourteen, although many begin this life sooner than necessary. For such youth the most important type of vocational schools will be the vocational continuation school, which demands from six to ten hours a week of the time of youth between fourteen and eighteen. Such schools should be day schools, well equipped and well managed by teachers and officials who will adapt them to the needs of all. They can be made to fit each trade or occupation, and can be organized both in country and city. They constitute the most universal useful form of vocational school, and are more important to us as a nation than any system of secondary schools as they reach from five to ten times as many of our youth at this critical point.

It will be the problem of these continuation schools to use the short period of time at their disposal to prepare the pupil for vocational life, including both technical and general training. In these schools we shall consider first the newly awakened needs and interests of the youth. We shall recollect that there is a limit to the amount of instruction along academic lines that they are ready to receive; that if we attempt to keep them in this new type of school and repeat the same kind of instruction as they received during eight years of childhood, we shall disappoint a majority of them, and leave them bored, sullen and obstinate. If we wish to hold them longer, we must arouse their interests by connecting the school instruction with their vocation. Through this interest, we may hope to succeed in giving them an all-around training that will not only make them more efficient bread-winners, but better men and better citizens.

These schools then must unite themselves as closely as possible to the vocation. The mountain-moving desire for earning money—as Dr. Kerschensteiner has excellently expressed it—is the best means of attracting the young at this age. When we have their living interest we can work upon them in an educational way. Ennui is ever one of the worst sins in our schools. We must grasp real life vigorously in our continuation school; we must proceed from observation, from experience; and we must not separate, as is often necessary in the elementary school, the development of the capacity in our pupils from its application to practical work, but must seek directly to develop the powers through activity and practice.

From this it is clear that we shall not teach subjects as subjects. We are not organizing a school of learning. The question before us is always what material will advance the youth in his vocation; how can it be made useful for his education; how can we heighten his joy in work and his consciousness of duty in connection with the petty problems of daily life and create a fruitful foundation for his moral and civic development. This moral and civic education must grow out of his work in vocational life, of his life in the community. It is to be developed out of the simple relations of the family, of the school and the workshop. Work of this character is all important from the standpoint of citizenship and it cannot be given during the years of childhood on account of immaturity.

These schools should be administered with the distinct purpose of developing personal efficiency in the vocation, and through efficiency and joy in work to develop social efficiency—to train the man and the citizen. They should cover the period between fourteen and eighteen, be compulsory in the daytime, free, practical and covering all kinds of vocational activity.

A system of vocational schools should include voluntary continuation schools for youth over eighteen who wish to pursue technical training further in either day or evening schools, which should provide opportunities for preparation for high schools of all sorts, as well as for practical industrial business life. They should aim at the development of ambitious youth into efficient workmen, good men and women, and good citizens.

Part-time schools should be provided wherever desired where the student is employed part of the time (usually about one-half), in a factory, the remainder of the time being given to instruction in a school furnished and supported by the state. The shop will provide the severely technical part of the training, the school supplementing it by such instruction in English, mathematics, art and science as will develop industrial intelligence and make better all-around men and citizens. Such schools will be successfully in specially favored communities where employers take a deep and practical interest in the education of their employes, but such schools cannot be depended upon to provide vocational instruction for the great majority of our youth.

America should have schools providing vocational instruction for the full time of the students, and undertaking in a course of two years to prepare for apprenticeship or for practical work in the various occupations, such as agriculture, commerce, or home-making. They may include:

1. Schools which offer courses to youth who are unable to enter apprenticeship on account of immaturity, but who wish to acquire such preliminary knowledge of some vocations as will enable them to shorten the time of actual service as an apprentice. In America there are many who believe that one or two year courses, preparatory to entrance into the shop or factory, are especially important, as they bridge over the gap between the time of leaving school at fourteen and the usual time of entering into apprenticeship at sixteen.

2. Schools which will impart vocational instruction to both boys and girls between the years of fourteen and sixteen who enter the industries without the training of an apprenticeship. Such schools—especially those for the women's trades—have already demonstrated their efficiency in the east. The Manhattan Trade School in New York and the Boston Trade School for Girls have been very successful in preparing girls between fourteen and sixteen for practical vocational life.

3. Schools for youth of both sexes who wish to enter upon commercial pursuits. A practical course of two years should enable them to take good positions on leaving the school. Courses far superior—both from a cultural and a practical point of view—to those given in our modern business colleges can be offered and be completed in the time proposed. The public should provide them.

4. Schools should be opened which offer courses in home-making, including sanitation, cooking, sewing, care of children, care of sick, and subjects related to home economics. In many communities special subjects—such as care of a dairy, and preserving of fruit and vegetables, may be taught. "Home-making" should not be taken in any narrow sense of the word, but must be as broad as the field of the home in modern life. In the judgment of the writer this should include some training in art and music.

5. Agricultural winter-schools. There are some special features to be mentioned in connection with this special type of schools as planned for youth in the country. These youth are not able to attend school during the entire ten months of school instruction in the ordinary town or city. They must put in the summer months in work on the farm. These schools should be open for five or six months of the year, in the daytime, and should furnish industrial, business, and agricultural training.

The courses should be two years in length, and the vocational subjects should be taught by men and women, trained technically and practically in agriculture. During the summer months such men or women should be employed as itinerant teachers in visiting the students of the school at their home work on the farms, in consulting with and advising parents on scientific and business questions, and in giving lectures and demonstrations on practical subjects connected with farming.

In addition to the itinerant teachers from the agricultural winter-schools, there should be a permanent staff of itinerant teachers who give special scientific advice and instruction to the farmers of the district served. These teachers should specialize in some line of agricultural work, such as live stock, small grains, swine, dairying, horse-raising, bee-keeping, garden vegetables, fruits, or business. One of the principal advantages of this system of schools over the ordinary agricultural departments in high schools is the close touch between teachers, pupils, and parents—both in the school and on the farm.

In connection with such agricultural winter-schools there should also be conducted evening agricultural continuation schools for persons older than eighteen. Such classes should be under the same general management and direction as the agricultural winter-schools, and should be supplied with practical teachers. The courses, in addition to some academic work, should pay especial attention to the academic, technical and business needs of the pupils to be served.

These schools will necesarily be day schools, managed by specially trained teachers seeking special practical ends, and treating subjects as they are related to the vocational life of the pupils. They must, therefore, be administered and controlled largely by men and women from practical life for whom and with whom the youth will be associated in vocational life. As these schools are radically different from the ordinary ones in purpose, methods and scope of work, special machinery must be provided for organizing and administering them. These schools aim at vocational efficiency and can secure it only by the closest possible co-operation of the persons carrying on the vocation—the employers and employes. As the vocation is the center of interest, rather than any subject or subjects, persons must administer these schools who know the vocations from the standpoint of both employer and employe.

It will be futile to expect the ordinary teacher who has been trained to teach subjects in a systematic throrough-going way, to select and teach the portions of these subjects that have a direct practical bearing upon vocational life. Such teachers cannot possibly select these portions of the subject. Experience has shown, however, that no such controlling body has been entirely successful in the past that has not included teachers. There is no place in any educational institution—whether school or shop—where skill in handling youth, skill and facility in analyzing and developing subjects is not important. Then, too, the educator will be the one who will be most apt to look beyond the immediate practical aim of securing mechanical efficiency to the ultimate end of training the man and the citizen. Without the practical man the school will not keep in touch with actual life conditions; without the educator, they will waste the time and strength of the pupils by ill-considered methods of instruction, and will be dominated too completely by the vocational aim. We require men and citizens as well as workmen, and we cannot secure them without the united effort of both the practical men and the educators.

To recapitulate, in legislation providing for vocational education we should aim first at reaching all members of society, should attempt to offer opportunity for a finishing education to every one—both men and women. Second, such a scheme should take into consideration that the period covered is that of adolescence, when the enormous physical, mental and moral changes are taking place in the youth, and when the standards of social and personal efficiency will be made or marred.

It is the period of idealism, of adventure, of criticism, of restlessness under control. Through the activities of the vocation and the theoretical instruction related to it we must secure both economic and social efficiency, must attempt to train the man and the citizen as well as the mechanic.

We must realize in administering these schools the economic as well as the cultural value of the training in the ordinary school arts. Third, in organizing and administering these schools we should include both the man from the industries and the man from the school. We must have both. The practical men and women, however, should be given the more prominent place as experience shows that such schools have been successful only when they have been administered by the class of men and women for whom and with whom the youth will be associated during his vocational life.

It is plainly impossible to provide in the present system of elementary and secondary schools the instruction recommended. Separate schools are necessary whose equipment, corps of teachers, and board of administration must be in the closest possible relation to the occupations. In such schools the application of general education to vocational work can be made only by men who know the vocations. The boards of education administering such institutions must give them far greater attention on the practical side than the ordinary boards of education need to do in the case of academic schools. No corps of teachers can be expected to keep up with all the latest developments in vocational life. This must be the special problem of the boards of practical men administering the schools.

These schools must not in any way be regarded as substitutes for the present forms of schools. The present system is doing a necessary work, and ought not to be disturbed, except to perfect it. The new type of school is a supplement to the old one, an attempt to carry further and apply general education to the practical problems of life.

Such a system of schools will require a special tax to support it. The present school revenues are insufficient for the present needs of the schools. No part of this general school revenue should be set aside for the support of a system of vocational schools. A special tax one-half raised by the community served, and one-half provided in the shape of a state grant when authorized by Commission on Vocational Education, should be provided for the support of these vocational schools.

Such schools should be separate, independent, compulsory day schools, supported by special taxes, carried on usually in special buildings, administered by special boards of practical men and women, taught by specially trained practical men from the vocations, and securing the closest possible co-operation between the school and the factory, the school and the farm, the school and the counting room, or the school and the home. Adaptation and co-operation are the watch-words for the new type of schools.

Albert City, Iowa, March 4, 1913.

Senator Joseph H. Allen,

Pocahontas, Iowa.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 4th inst. at hand. In reply will say that I enclose herewith the letter accompanying the petitions against the permanent tax commission. This letter will give you the information that I got.

Yours truly,

C. J. BLOMBERG.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 13, 1913.

Dear Sir—

The General Assembly of Iowa two years ago (34th) created a temporary tax commission whose duty it should be to investigate the revenue system or tax machinery of the state and report to the present General Assembly.

Said report is now before the Assembly and in the hands of a subcommittee of the Ways and Means committee of both branches. It incorporates an elaborate bill, which, if enacted into law, will create a permanent tax commission of three members at $3,600 each per annum; secretary $2,400; statistican and all clerks, office expenses and mileage required, also a county assessor for each of the 99 counties at salaries ranging from $1,200 to $3,000, with power to appoint deputies.

This will pile up a grand total of a quarter million new taxes just to pay for running the new tax machine, while we discard the old (executive council, county boards of supervisors and township trustees) which has given us solid credit and plenty of money. Is there demand for this radical change? What is there for this commission to do commensurate with this outlay? Certainly no farmers are asking for it.

This measure takes from the people the sacred right of self-government and offers instead "taxation without representation." On that ground our forefathers licked the British to a fare-ye-well. More than nine-tenths of all the taxes levied are for local purposes, schools, roads, bridges, charities, cities and towns, and county administration. Why take away from the local communities the right to take care of their own tax business in their own way, and centralize it in a high salaried commission appointed by the governor (one man power) with, practically, the power to perpetuate itself? Are the people ready to surrender this important function of self-government, displace township trustees as reviewing boards, in fact, give to this commission the initiative and final decision in everythng pertaining to the assessing and equalizing of taxes?

This commission may institute proceedings to enforce penalties, liabilities and punishments and summary removal from office, against any assessor or other officer, including boards of supervisors connected with the revenue work, for neglect of duty, and shall require the attorney general and the various county attorneys to prosecute where there is violation of the law or their rules and regulations, and represent the commission in any litigation. Such authority is far in excess of what the conditions warrant.

The commission plan, in one form or another, has been tried in several states, but there is greater lack of system or uniformity as yet, than there is in the present revenue system of Iowa. Besides, where it has been tried, as in Kansas, the result, in many ways, is far from satisfactory. Farmers' and land owners' taxes (property in sight—see the point?) under the commission have been radically increased, while city taxes have been proportionately diminished. Kansas farmers are now taxed on their hay, corn, wheat, oats, seed, hens and goats! You see, they are trying to discover all of the farmer's belongings, though he is at present paying about three-fourths of the taxes of that state.

We have plenty of tax money. Why install a gigantic tax machine to add to our burdens without improving conditions? If our township and town assessors, county auditors and supervisors, and executive council, all chosen by direct vote of the people (let the people rule) are not competent to do this work, how can any commission, far removed from local conditions and surroundings, do it?

If you will circulate the enclosed petitions (one for House, the other for Senate, same names on each) just as soon as possible, and mail to your members in Des Moines, accompanied by a personal letter from yourself (and others) asking his active opposition to the tax commission, you will do the farmers of Iowa a great favor.

Your name was suggested to the undersigned by a former official of the National Farmers' Alliance.

Respectfully,

J. W. JOHNSON,
Former State Organizer of National Grange,
Box 219, Des Moines, Iowa.

Senator Mattes moved that the committee on Retrenchment and Reform be authorized to issue subpoenas to bring the author of the above letter, J. W. Johnson, before the committee on Retrenchment and Reform.

Carried.

On request of Senator Sullivan, leave of absence was granted Senator Boe for the day.

On request of Senator Sullivan, leave of absence was granted Senator Gillette for the day.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment at 2 o'clock P. M., President Harding presiding.

The following message was received from the governor and read:

STATE OF IOWA.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly:

The state of Illinois has a commission of four senators appointed to investigate the "white slave" traffic in that state. The lieutenant governor is the chairman of the commission. I am advised by him that it has been "found that rings existing in Chicago work hand in hand with similar rings in Iowa." It is apparent that the Illinois committee can do little, if anything, with its information wth reference to "white slavery" in Iowa. Much, however, might be done to stamp out the evil, if it actually exists here, if this state would make thorough investigation through a like commission. It could co-operate with the Illinois commission and, indeed, with other states that might enter upon a crusade against the vice. The evil is a most revolting one. Every effort should be made to obliterate it.

I recommend, therefore, and urge upon you that you authorize the appointment of such a commission, with, if you think best, a tenure of two years, and that you clothe it with such powers as will enable it to thoroughly investigate the whole subject, directing it to ultimately report its findings and recommend such legislation as it may deem advisable and do any and all such other things as you may think wise in the premises.

Governor.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

Section 1. The board of educational examiners shall be the board of trustees of the teachers' annuity fund herein created. They shall annually, at the proper time, certify to the state executive council the amount of tax, not exceeding two-tenths of a mill on the dollar, necessary to meet the requirements of the fund; and the state executive council shall levy such tax upon all the taxable property within the state at the time, and in the manner, of the levy of other state taxes. All moneys derived from taxes so levied and all moneys received as dues hereinafter provided and all moneys received from grants, donations, and devices for the benefit of such fund shall constitute a fund to be known and designated as the teachers' annuity fund, which said fund shall be under the control of the board of trustees, and shall be devoted exclusively to and for the purposes herein enumerated. The fund shall be a state fund, and shall be deposited with the treasurer of the state. The board of trustees shall upon the retirement of the annuitant certify to the auditor of state, the name of the teacher, the amount of the annuity and the amount said teacher has contributed to the teachers' annuity fund. The auditor of the state shall draw on the said fund, warrants payable to the annuitant for the amount certified as provided herein.

Sec. 2. The teachers' annuity fund shall be kept and preserved as a separate fund. The auditor of state with the advice and consent of the board of trustees created hereby shall invest any surplus left in the fund at the end of the fiscal year not necessary for immediate use in carrying out the provisions of this act, in interest bearing bonds of the United States, of the state of Iowa, or of any county, township or municipal corporation of the state of Iowa, or in mortgages on unincumbered real estate within this state. Said fund may be loaned by the county auditors on lands within the county where application for such loan is filed.

Each loan shall be made for at least one year and not more than ten years, evidenced by promissory notes bearing not less than five (5) per cent interest per annum payable annually. Delinquent interest or principal to draw interest at the rate of eight (8) per cent. The amount loaned to any one person or company shall not exceed five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars and in no case shall exceed fifty (50) per cent of the appraised value of the real estate, exclusive of improvements, by which such loan is secured. All applications to borrow from the teachers' annuity fund shall be made to the auditor of the county in which the land is situated with which it is proposed to secure such loan. The county auditor shall cause an abstract of title to be prepared and the lands to be appraised at the borrower's expense, by three disinterested freeholders of such county. The said appraisers shall be paid as compensation for their services the sum of two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) per day and mileage. The county auditor shall be paid by the borrower the sum of three dollars ($3.00) for each loan made. The lands shall be appraised at their value in the market in the ordinary course of trade and the appraisers shall make return to the county auditor under oath. Such return shall show the value of the land without improvements, the kind of buildings thereon, and the value of any such buildings and the value of any other improvements upon such lands. Upon receipt of an application to borrow from such fund, the county auditor shall make requisition upon the auditor of state for the amount desired. The auditor of state, if there be sufficient funds available, shall so notify the county auditor and upon receipt of a proper application return of the appraisers, note and mortgage securing such loan, together with an abstract showing a good and perfect title to the lands to be vested in the proposed borrower as herein provided, issue his warrant upon such fund to the treasurer of state in favor of such borrower, provided, however, that no such warrant shall be issued except when the attorney general, after examination of the abstract of title, shall have found the borrower to have good and perfect title to the lands securing the proposed loan. Any officer, trustee or other person using or misappropriating any part of such funds, or any interest therefrom, shall be deemed guilty of felony and punished as in case of embezzlement of any other public funds, and any such person and any bond conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties of any such person shall be liable for any such funds misappropriated with legal interest and costs.

The trustees created by this act shall cause to be prepared blank forms for application for loans, forms of bonds or notes with interest coupons attached, blanks for return of appraisers, mortgage and release blanks, also blank record books wherein the auditor and treasurer of state shall record all loans, which record shall show the name of the borrower and his post office address, a description of the real estate securing such loan, the date and amount of the loan, and the date when such loan becomes due, the rate of interest, the date when interest payments become due and the amount of such payments, and such other information as will give a full description of such loan.

Upon payment of any interest, the treasurer of state shall report such payment to the auditor of state, giving the name of the payee, number of the loan and coupon paid, and upon payment of any part of the principal of such loan, the treasurer of state shall issue a receipt for such payment and file a duplicate thereof with the auditor of state.

Whenever any such loan shall have been redeemed the treasurer of state shall certify to the auditor of state such payment, giving number of the loan redeemed and the name of the person making such redemption. Upon receipt of such certificate the auditor of state shall prepare a release of such loan, which release shall be signed by the auditor of state and countersigned by the treasurer of state and forwarded by mail to the party making such redemption with the auditor of state's warrant for the amount of the necessary recording fee.

Sec. 3. The board of trustees may take by gift, grant, device or bequest, any money or property, real or personal, or other thing of value for the benefit of the teachers' annuity fund, and such gift, grant, device or bequest, shall be invested and held as a permanent fund unless otherwise specified by the grantor, and the interest or income from such investment shall be added to the general annuity fund for the payment of annuities.

Sec. 4. There shall be deducted one per cent from the monthly salary of every teacher who may come within the provisions of this act, and who may be credited with not more than ten years' service, and two per cent from the monthly salary of all teachers of more than ten years' service, who may come within the provisions of this act, for the benefit of the annuity fund, and the sum of said deductions shall be forwarded monthly to the county treasurer, who shall on the 15th day of each month forward to the state treasurer all moneys belonging to said fund in his hands. The amount of said deductions shall be a part of every teacher's contract unless otherwise provided in this act and shall continue until retirement, or until a total sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00) shall have been contributed and the deductions shall then cease. There shall, however, be an additional sum paid by such teacher upon retirement equal to the difference in the amount already contributed and the amount of the annuity to be paid such teacher. This additional sum may either be paid in a lump sum or deducted from the first year's annuity. In determining the first ten years of service for which the one per cent deduction shall be made, the time served outside of the state shall be counted.

After the passage of this act every teacher employed in the public schools of this state during the school year of 1912-1913 upon renewing his or her contract shall be conclusively deemed to undertake and agree to have such assessments deducted from his or her salary, as provided herein, unless said teacher shall file with the board of trustees a written declaration of intention not to come within the provisions of this act. Upon the filing of such declaration the teacher may have until September 1, 1914, but not thereafter, the right to withdraw said declaration and accept the benefits provided herein. No teacher shall be discriminated against on account of refusal to come within the provisions of this act in renewing his or her contract.

Sec. 5. The required term of a service to entitle a teacher to share in the benefits of the annuity fund shall be twenty-five years, eighteen years of which service shall have been spent in the state of Iowa. The remaining seven years of the twenty-five may have been spent in the public schools of any other state. After the required twenty-five years of service no credit shall be allowed for time thereafter spent in other than the public schools of Iowa.

Sec. 6. In computing the time of service of a teacher the length of the school year in the district taught shall constitute a year, provided said term shall not be less than six months. In a calendar year beginning July 1st and ending June 30th, credit shall be allowed for one school year only. If a teacher teaches only a fractional part of a year, credit shall be given for such fractional part of a year as the time taught shall bear to the school year of such district.

Sec. 7. No period out of school work shall be counted in computing time of service unless such period was, or is, a leave of absence duly granted by the board of directors, and such leave of absence may consist of a whole year, or may consist of periods of leaves of absences but the total sum of such periods shall not exceed one full school year.

Sec. 8. The board of directors shall give to such teacher a certificate at the close of each school year certifying the time of service for that year and the amount contributed to the annuity fund as herein provided, and shall record the same in the records of the district, and such certificate shall be evidence of term of service and contribution to the annuity fund.

Sec. 9. Proof of term of service shall be the certificates given from year to year by the boards of directors as provided herein, or it may be established by an affidavit from the teacher and one from the superintendent of schools or a member of the board of directors of each district in which such teacher was regularly employed. In case the superintendent or the members of the school board are deceased, or cannot be reached, the term of service may be established by the affidavits of reputable persons who were residents of the districts at the time of the service and can testify from their personal knowledge, or by such other evidence as the board of trustees may consider conclusive.

Sec. 10. Upon the completion of twenty-five or more years of service as herein provided the teacher shall have the right to retire upon a life annuity equal to fifteen dollars ($15.00) for each year of accredited service, said sum to be paid in twelve equal monthly payments, but such annuity shall not in any case exceed the sum of six hundred dollars ($600.00). Any teacher who has taught not less than twenty years in the state and has reached the age of sixty years, or any teacher who has taught not less than five years in the state and who has become permanently disabled, shall have the right to retire upon a life annuity of fifteen dollars ($15.00) per year for each year of service accredited, but in estimation such term of service time taught outside of the state shall not be counted.

Sec. 11. Any teacher who desires to retire as an annuitant, and who has complied with the provisions of the law, must make written application to the board of trustees, and must have been regularly employed in school work in the public schools of Iowa for a period of five of the seven years next preceding the date of such application. No teacher, however, who has the right to retire shall lose said right by being discharged from his or her position, and may make application and prove his or her rights. Adopted.

Senator Smith offered the following amendment and moved its adoption:

I move to strike out the words and figures, "having a population of five thousand (5,000) inhabitants or more", from section 2 and substituting therefor, "and towns".

Adopted.

Senator Heald moved that the rule be suspended, the bill be considered engrossed, and read a third time now, which motion prevailed, and the bill was read a third time.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Iowa:

Your petitioners, citizens and tax payers of Muscatine county, Iowa, respectfully show: That the legislation of the last General Assembly of the state of Iowa, placing a flat rate tax on moneys and credits and repealing the effective laws for the discovery of concealed and omitted moneys and credits is having the effect of burdening the owners of homes and farms or other real estate with taxes both unreasonable, oppressive and unjust, occasioning a deficiency in Muscatine county alone, of over $26,000 in taxes recoverable on moneys and credits, and which has to be made up and paid by the owners of other classes of property. This discrimination in favor of capitalists and to the detriment of all other tax payers is an evil that calls for speedy remedy by your honorable body. We respectfully ask for relief; and that those that see fit to live on interest and usury be made to pay the same amount of taxes on the value of their holdings as other citizens.

The president announced the following communication, which was ordered printed in the Journal:

March 13, 1913

The Honorable Members of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly:

Gentlemen: In compliance with the Concurrent Resolution, passed by both houses of the General Assembly, March 11th and 12th, we hereby submit to you the following description of the duties of, and cases handled by, the Commerce Counsel of Iowa during the past biennial period, and his relation to the Commission.

In the cases hereafter described, the Commission co-operated with the Commerce Counsel in handling the following:

Advances in rates on butter, poultry and eggs;

Western Classification No. 51;

Mississippi River case;

"Interior" Iowa case (affecting shipments between Iowa points and the East);

Iowa-Western Rate Case; and the

Sanborn Rate Case.

The Advanced Rate Case is described because it was concluded during the past two years and had the Commerce Counsel been in existence, it would have been the duty of this official to have co-operated in handling the case or to have taken charge of the same.

The Commerce Counsel had charge of all of the other cases hereafter described.

FUNCTIONS OF THE COMMERCE COUNSEL.

The Commerce Counsel is attorney for the consumers, shippers and producers generally throughout this state in cases involving rates and services before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Iowa Board of Railroad Commissioners. The Commerce Counsel is not attorney for the Commission any more than are the lawyers who appear for the railroads and express companies; on the other side of these same controversies.

The State Board of Railroad Commissioners is primarily a tribunal for the determination of opposing interests on intra-state matters, including rates and services.

In the past it has been customary to find the railroads represented in these cases by lawyers and traffic men of very great capacity and long expert training, while the people were usually represented by amateurs, who worked under tremendous disadvantages.

It has been our plan to develop a department whose special duty it was to care for these matters, which would be composed of capable lawyers and rate experts devoting their entire time to these matters, and thereby becoming experts capable of meeting the experts on behalf of the railroads.

Our State Railroad Commission, the Inter-state Commerce Commission and practically every state commission in the country, is empowered to act practicaly as a judge, deciding controversies as to rates and services between the public and the railroads; and at the same time they are empowered to take the initiative on behalf of the public. In other words, they are expected to act as judge, jury, lawyer and witness, all at one and the same time. This is an absurd combination and was bound to fail. What has been the result? Every commission in the country, including both the strong ones and the weak ones, have dropped their prosecuting functions and have confined themselves almost exclusively to deciding cases brought before them. You cannot name a case decided in the entire history of the Inter-state Commerce Commission where an advance was denied or a rate reduced affecting Iowa, in which some person outside of the commission did not initiate and prosecute the case.

Up to two years ago, no department of the Iowa state government had ever successfully prosecuted a case before the Inter-state Commerce Commission. During the past two years Iowa has handled cases before the Inter-state Commerce Commission involving several millions of dollars. As yet we have not lost a case. This is due simply to the remarkably fruitful field for work which awaited this department; and the fact that we have tried to carefully select only such causes as were just.

The field for the work of the Commerce Counsel is tremendous, and almost inexhaustible, depending wholly upon the capacity of the man who fills the place.

The railroad earnings from Iowa traffic last year amounted in round numbers to $80,000,000.00; of this sum approximately $70,000,000.00 was earned on inter-state traffic, and $10,000,000.00 on state traffic.

It is impossible for any one not thoroughly in this work to have a conception of the magnitude of the field of work properly belonging to the Commerce Counsel.

Yesterday a bound volume naming over a thousand changes in rates and weights, proposed by the railroads, reached our office. A hearing will be held on them, at St. Louis, commencing April 1st. April 3d, we must be represented at Washington, D. C., in oral argument affecting the rates on over seven thousand articles from over a thousand Iowa towns to all points in sixteen states west of the Missouri river.

The Commerce Counsel department has been and can be many times more than self-sustaining. Many rate cases involve very small amounts of money, and on the other hand, there are a few that involve vast sums of money. For instance, the money involved in the Butter, Poultry and Egg Case, described herein, amounted to over three hundred and fifty thousand dollars annually,so far as Iowa alone was concerned. And the sum involved in the Feeding Cattle Rate Case, so far as it affected Iowa, amounted to more than two hundred thousand dollars annually. These cases, in addition to Western Classification No. 51, are by far the most important which have been concluded since the office of Commerce Counsel was created. All of these cases terminated in our favor. Had the advances proposed in these three cases gone into effect it would have cost Iowa more than a million dollars a year. The record in the Advanced Rate Case shows the sum at stake in the entire country in that case amounted to more than fifty millions of dollars annually. This case was concluded in February, 1910. The advance was denied.

Changes in rates are going on constantly at the present time. Last week, for instance, 113 tariffs affecting Iowa Inter-state traffic were filed with the Inter-state Commerce Commission, each one of them including from a half dozen to several hundred changes in rates. This is a typical week. The regular routine task of keeping a constant check on these changes, and guarding Iowa's interests, is tremendous. Any month we are also liable to be confronted with a case of great importance similar to the Western Classification Case, or the Advanced Rate Case, both of which were concluded during the past two years. The great task of compelling a general revision of Iowa interstate rates, now in progress, will be worthless unless you follow that up by carefully guarding the rates which we secure.

The size of the record in these cases is enormous. In the Eastern Iowa case there were over four hundred exhibits filed and eleven hundred pages of testimony. In the Sanborn rate case the record covered a little over eight thousand pages. In the Advanced rate case, the record consisted of ten thousand, (10,069, to be exact) printed pages.

It is perfectly proper that more than one attorney should work on cases of this magnitude. In private business if you had a case involving a hundred thousand dollars you would not hesitate to employ more than one counsel. The railroads always have pursued this policy. For instance, in the case before the interstate commerce commission, involving the class rates from Iowa, to eastern points, the following lawyers appeared and represented the railroads:

T. H. Norton (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway company.

R. B. Scott (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad company.

C. C. Wright (Chicago, Ill.), general solicitor for the Chicago & North Western railway company.

Garrard Winston (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Chicago Great Western Railroad Company.

William Ellis (Chicago, Ill.), commerce counsel for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company.

W. F. Dickinson (Chicago, Ill.), general attorney for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company.

A. P. Humburg, general attorney for the Illinois Central Railroad Company.

George W. Seevers (Minneapolis, Minn.), general counsel for the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company and the Iowa Central Railway Company.

M. S. Connolly (Pittsburgh, Pa.), general attorney for the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway Company, Pennsylvania Company and Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Douglas Swift (New York City, N. Y.), attorney for the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company.

O. E. Butterfield (Detroit, Mich.), general attorney for the New York Central lines.

The chairman of this commission has gone beyond his duties absolutely required by law in handling six of the important interstate cases. But during the early tentative stages of the growth of the commerce counsel department, it was thought wise to do everything possible to help to get it on its feet and make it an unqualified success. Under the law the commerce counsel on interstate cases must do what is required of him by the board. More and more the commerce counsel has been given charge of interstate cases.

It is absolutely necessary on intrastate cases that the commerce counsel shall be entirely independent of the state board so that he can be truly the advocate of the public before the commission with power to take the initiative on behalf of the public. This serves two purposes. First, it lets him fight his case as he pleases without the embarrassment of representing the tribunal which makes the decision. Second, it serves as a check,—if he becomes lax, the commission is still there to guard the public interests; if the commission becomes weak and ineffective, the commerce counsel can do some very effective prodding. A check of this sort is well, where such large interests are involved.

On interstate cases I think it wise for both departments to be able to co-operate, as at present, on important matters. Both must use the rate department, the tariff files, etc.

I think it well for the state to be able to hold this department responsible for results. We have tried to bring results. If we have failed, you should make a change. If we have succeeded, you should leave things as they are, and encourage us to further work and success, and not try to cripple or to hamper us.

Respectfully submitted,

CLIFFORD THORNE,

Chairman State Board of Railroad Commissioners.

ORGANIZATION OF THE RATE DEPARTMENT.

The Rate Department of the Iowa Commission was organized about July 15, 1911. At this time there were less than one thousand effective tariffs in the files, and such tariffs were those of the roads passing through the state. The department has now over 20,000 effective tariffs and supplements which affect interstate traffic from Iowa pointts. This file has been of great value in quoting rates to shippers in the state, and, of course, has been of great assistance in preparing and prosecuting the interstate rate cases. This file is open to the public at all times.

The department has compiled a set of rate charts covering various important commodities, such as live stock, grain, coal, lumber, etc., showing rates from Iowa stations to the principal markets; for example,—grain rates are shown from the Iowa stations to Chicago, Kansas City, Peoria, St. Louis and St. Paul. These tables are revised daily as the rates are changed by supplements or re-issues of the tariffs.

IMPORTANT INTERSTATE CASES CLOSED.

WESTERN CLASSIFICATION NO. 51.

Western Classification No. 51 is a tariff published by the railroads causing changes on over a thousand items affecting interstate traffic to and from every town in Iowa and all points in Illinois, Wisconsin and all points west of the Mississippi river to the Pacific coast. A member of the Iowa Commission as chairman of the committee representing sixteen western state commissions protested against the advances proposed.

This single case is equivalent to more than a thousand cases because each one of the thousand advances would be applicable between all Iowa points and all of the territory above described.

The investigation lasted over one year, resulting in one of the most important decisions ever rendered by the commission. Next to the opinion in the express case, it is the longest ever made by the commission.

The carriers, in compliance with the orders of the commission, have filed several hundred changes effective March 31st.

Amongst the important items was an advance of 100 per cent on binding twine, 50 per cent on silos, 23 per cent on sweat pads and collars, 50 per cent on essential oils, 40 per cent on cattle and sheep dip, 150 per cent on litter carriers mixed with agricultural implements.

A few of the important phases of the decisions of the commission in this case are as follows:

First in importance are the rules and regulations. The carriers proposed many things. These are applicable to every city, town and hamlet west of the Mississippi river. The state commissions made objections to fourteen of these rules, and changes were made or ordered in twelve of them.

A concrete illustration of these concerns the dunnage allowance. Prior to the issuance of No. 51, the carriers permitted shippers to use lumber and boards to prop up machinery in a car, the railroads hauling 500 pounds of such lumber free of charge. No. 51 abolished this dunnage privilege, and the commission ordered it reinstated. When one considers the thousands of shipments that are made annually, the importance of such a ruling can be appreciated.

Another change of importance to the western half of the United States concerns green hides. The carriers put in a rule permitting them to refuse to take green hides for shipment. We pointed out that they could be stored or handled in live stock cars, and not contaminate other commodities, and claimed that the carriers should be compelled to accept same for transportation. Our position was sustained by the commission.

Second, several hundred advances were proposed by the railroads in minimum weights. They announced their policy to be the establishment of minimums upon the physical capacity of the cars, refusing to take into consideration the commercial conditions surrounding the transportation. Prior to the decision in this case the commission was divided on this proposition.

A concrete illustration of the result of this policy is as follows: Ferris wheels are never loaded more than one to a car in actual traffic, but a car will hold two wheels with a combined weight of considerably more than 24,000 pounds. This was used as a justification to raise the minimum weight fifty per cent.—from 16,000 to 24,000. Commercial conditions dictate the 16,000 minimum, and the carriers are ordered to reinstate the same. This decision crystalizes the policy of the federal government in favor of considering both the physical capacity of the car and the commercial conditions in the establishment of minimum weights.

Third. (Mixtures). One of the most important parts of this case concerns carload mixtures. The carriers have proposed the elimination of carload mixtures on 234 articles, and have proposed changes restricting carload mixtures on more than three hundred other articles. One of the most important changes affecting carload mixtures, which serves as an illustration of the effect of such changes, concerns binding twine. Prior to the issuance of No. 51, the carriers permitted binding twine to be shipped mixed with agricultural implements, all of which took carload rates. In No. 51, they proposed to apply L. C. L. rates on all shipments of binding twine made in this manner. This would have caused an advance of about one hundred per cent in the freight rates on binding twine and more than ninety per cent of all binding twine shipments, we were told by the largest shippers in the country, would be affected by this hundred per cent advance.

As indicating the policy of the carriers; thirty-two articles had carload mixtures granted to them, while over five hundred articles were totally eliminated from carload mixtures, or the mixtures were changed or restricted. The Interstate Commerce Commission in their decision has ordered the carriers to pursue diametrically the opposite course. Instead of restricting mixtures, they are instructed to make them more liberal.

On these three great phases of the case, the representatives of the nine hundred railroads who are defendants, and the representatives of the sixteen state railroad commissions clashed. The state commissions opposed the railroads on fourteen of their rules, on the proposition that commercial conditions are properly considered in the framing of carload minimum weights, and lastly, on the proposition that mixtures should be made more liberal instead of being restricted. In all three of these positions taken by the carriers, the tendency was against the small shipper, increasing the carload minimums, limiting the carload mixtures, and making the rules more burdensome; three matters of truly national importance.

Frequently generalizations are not nearly so instructive as concrete illustrations. For that reason, we have compiled the following itemized list of the recommendations urged by the state commissions, and the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission on all articles where specific complaint was made by us, and sustained by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

(ADVANCES DISAPPROVED IN NO. 51.)

RULES.

Rule 2. This rule, as proposed by the railroads, placed the burden upon the shipper of knowing whenever articles take different rates because of the value of said commodity, and required the shipper to prepare and sign a statement for the railroad. Our contention was that where two rates were applicable on the same shipment because of different values, it is the duty of the carrier to notify the shipper of this fact. The commission decides:

"This rule should be so reconstructed, as to place upon the carriers the positive duty to first print those conditions, and not require the shippers to write them, and upon the carrier's agent, the duty to notify the shipper of the alternative rates and present for his signature, the necessary bill of lading, to secure the desired rate."

Rule 4. This rule gave to the carriers the right to refuse to carry freight on which they have a rating. Objections came chiefly from the shippers of green hides. The commission decides:

"We think the rule should be modified so as to eliminate the carriers' right to refuse shipments of green hides when they are in proper condition for transportation."

Rule 6-A. Section 1. State commissions asked that the phrase "one loading point" should be stricken from the rule. And the commission so decided.

Rule 6-A. Sec. 4. The state commissions said.

"If this rule is allowed to go into effect, and is obeyed, the agent can, by failing to perform duties required of him, or for the purpose of discriminating, or for any other reason which may occur to him, or through carelessness or ignorance, wrongfully distribute a carload of freight, and penalize the consignor by causing said shipment to draw less than carload rate.

"We respectfully submit that the provision is exceedingly unjust and unfair, and should be stricken in its entirety from the classification, or else the clause 'on written request of the consignor, consignee or owner,' be inserted before the word 'destination.'"

The Interstate Commerce Commission decides:

"This punishes the shipper for the derelictions of the carriers' agents. We cannot approve of such a rule."

Rule 6-B. Two main issues concerning this rule had to do, first, with the unit, and second, with its application. It was suggested by the state commissions that on some articles cubical contents rather than linear feet be taken as a proper basis, and the Interstate Commerce Commission so decided. The application of this rule to agricultural implements caused a very extended discussion in the record. The carriers wanted to advance the carload minimum on agricultural implements from 20,000 to 24,000. This advance was disapproved by the commission. On the direct issue as to whether or not commercial conditions are factors to be considered in estimating minimum weights, the carriers took the position that they should not be considered, and the state commissions took the position that they should be considered; and the Interstate Commerce Commission decided as follows:

"If individual rates, with respect to which the commission is required to make orders, or which the carriers establish, may be determined as they have been, by so-called commercial conditions, why should not minimum weights be affected and established in the light of these same conditions. It is our conclusion, therefore, that carriers should take into consideration both the physical minimum and the commercial minimum in deciding upon a classification minimum to govern carload shipments throughout the country, and provide themselves with cars of corresponding sizes."

Rule 7. Par. 2. Note E. This rule required all overflow shipments, no matter how large, to be marked by the shipper.

The state commissions said:

"This rule is not complained of, nor are objections made to the same if it is to apply only when a shipper is, in fact, forwarding an overflow shipment and such overflow is not caused by the act of the carrier, and it does not exceed 6,000 pounds. However, when the overflow does exceed 6,000 pounds, or in the direct results of the failure on the part of the carrier to furnish the size of the car ordered by the shipper, it does not seem fair or just or reasonable that the penalty for such failure should fall upon the shipper."

The Interstate Commerce Commission ruled as follows:

"'Follow lot' shipments should be marked by the shipper of the 'follow lot' whenever they constitute an overflow, resulting from the failure of the shipper to designate the dimensions of cars required for his shipment. But where the shipment could be loaded in a car of the size ordered by the shipper and two cars are furnished by the carrier, the marking where necessary should be done by the carrier."

Rule 7. By this rule the carriers sought to require a certain form of tag to mark shipments, made with metal eyelets. The state commissions objected to this, and the Interstate Commerce Commission disapproved the change.

Rule 10. This is a new rule providing a change in the nested rule, requiring three or more articles to be packed in a certain given manner in order to secure interstate ratings, which are much lower than others. If this change had gone into effect, it would have caused an increase in freight rates of more than fifty per cent to the sellers and purchasers of iron tanks on the farms generally throughout this territory.

State commissions objected to the rule, and were sustained by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rule 18. State commissions protested against the rule because of the large advance in freight rates whenever the carriers load or unload a large shipment. Carriers make application of the minimum carload rate on the L. C. L. shipments wholly conditional upon the shipper loading or unloading.

State commissions claimed the charge for less than car loads should not exceed the charge for carloads, plus the reasonable charge or cost which should be allowed for the carrier to handle it. In the past, this has been one and one-fourth cents. The commission orders the continuance of one and one-fourth cents per hundred pounds, as in the past, and disapproves the change proposed by the carriers, causing the advance stated.

Rule 24. Sec. 2. State commissions objected to the phrase "one loading point,' and the same was stricken from the rule by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rule 27. This is the dunnage rule described above. Carriers heretofore have allowed 500 pounds in Western Classification, and a thousand pounds dunnage on many articles in Southern Classification, and 500 pounds in Official Classification territory.

Here there was a lack of uniformity, and in an attempt to make it uniform, the railroads attempted to remove all dunnage. The commission ordered the 500 pounds dunnage reinstated.

Rule 30. Carriers attempted to eliminate provisions allowing for returning stoves, and the transportation of caretakers. The commission ordered:

"The classification should either provide for the transportation of a necessary caretaker of perishable freight free of charge, or require carriers to take care of stoves and replenish fuel in transit when such protection is required."

ADVANCES DISAPPROVED.

In addition to these decisions upon specific cases, the commission laid down certain definite rules, outlined above, for the revision of the rest of the classification, stating:

"It is expected that carriers will revise No. 51 and direct the future development in accordance with the views expressed in this report."

If this is done in a bona fide manner it will mean more than a thousand changes. That the carriers have seriously undertaken this task in a fair manner, is evidenced by the fact that their first installment of changes in No. 51, covers three hundred and twenty-five subjects, equivalent to over six hundred items.

In addition to the establishment of the basic principles for three important factors of the classification framing carload mixtures, minimum weights and rules described in the fore part of this analysis, probably the most fundamental change resulting from this investigation is the order of the commission prescribing specifically the manner in which classification shall be made in the future.

In their decision the commission says:

"The making of a freight classification is a great public function. In the past the hearings before the classification committees have been semi-public rather than public, and in a certain sense they have been private, although in later years the tendency has been toward greater publicity. Public business can not be conducted in a private way. The failure to recognize this fact fully, and to proceed in accordance with it, has been largely responsible for the commotion centering about Classification No. 51."

As to the future, the commission states:

"Procedure in the Future.—The formal hearings of classification committees hereafter should be made public, after due notice to the interested parties, including state commissions and the Interstate Commerce Commission. A record of the facts and arguments for and against a certain classification should be kept. As rapidly as items, or groups of items, have been disposed of by the classification committee they should be published in accordance with law. In case of a protest to this commission, the record made up before the committee should be promptly transmitted to the commission. On the basis of this record, supplemented when necessary by additional inquiries, the commission will be able to decide whether or not to suspend a proposed change in the classification. We believe that this manner of procedure will obviate nearly all formal proceedings in the future, and will confine investigations on the part of this commission to the relatively few and large matters decisive of principles and possibly also affecting great material interests."

A western classification of freight fixes the relative rates on eight thousand articles throughout three-fourths of the nation. No. 51 proposed more changes than any other tariff ever filed by any railroad or railroads. And the decision in this case is the most epoch-making on classification matters ever rendered by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

POULTRY, BUTTER AND EGGS.

About July 12, 1912, the Iowa Commission was advised that the railway companies in Official Classification Territory were considering an advance from second to first-class in the freight rates on butter, eggs and poultry. The commission received numerous requests asking the Iowa Commission to intervene in behalf of the interested shippers and associations at the hearing before the Official Classification committee.

The chairman of the Official Classification committee advised that the commission could be heard at New York on July 23rd, at which time a member of the Iowa Commission and the commerce counsel appeared before the committee protesting against the proposed advances. This matter was of vast importance to the Iowa shippers. We asked the State Dairy Food department to give us a conservative estimate of the volume of traffic moving from Iowa points to the Atlantic coast, which would be affected by the change; we asked for the same figures from the State Poultry Dealers' association. With this as the basic figures, and knowing the advance in cents per hundred pounds, we find that the proposed advance in the rates would have cost Iowa approximately $356,000.00 annually. After the hearing the Official Classification committee did not advance the rates.

ADVANCED RATE CASE.

The commission was represented in oral argument of this case by a member of the commission who had been working on the case prior to his qualifying as a railroad commissioner.

The carriers in eastern territory testified that the advance would net them in round numbers $27,000,000.00 annually. The western carriers sought an advance on two hundred different commodities affecting this territory and the two combined aggregated over $50,000,000.00, as a general advance for freight rates in the United States. Probably never before in the history of the human race has such a large sum been involved between private individuals before any tribunal. The carriers failed to get this fifty million ($50,000,000.00) dollar advance. A member of the Iowa commission opened and closed the argument for the shippers of the country in this case.

Docket No. 3500, page 2: "This proceeding, which is probably known as the 'Western Advanced Rate Case,' involves the reasonableness of the rates upon some two hundred commodities which the carriers west of Chicago have attempted to increase."

IMPORTANT INTERSTATE CASES NOW PENDING.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER CASE.

On July 11, 1911, the Iowa commission instituted proceedings before the interstate commerce commission relative to class rates (this includes over 8,000 articles) between points on the Atlantic seaboard and in Central Freight Association territories, which includes all eastern points, and cities located on the Mississippi river between Dubuque and Keokuk. At the present time, St. Louis is enjoying 117 per cent of the Chicago rate on shipments from the east, while the Mississippi river cities pay 122 per cent of the Chicago rate, plus the bridge toll, which is 5 cents per hundred pounds on first-class, and graduated down for the other classes.

Hearings were held at Des Moines, Iowa, on November 1, 1911, before the interstate commerce commission, and by request of this commission, a special hearing was held at Keokuk, Iowa, on January 18, 1912. This hearing was requested at Keokuk because of the vast importance a readjustment in the rates would mean to the growth of this city on account of the industries which will be located there after the completion of the dam. A member of the commission, the commerce counsel and his assistant, attended these hearings and examined and cross-examined witnesses.

At a later date a printed brief and reply brief were filed in the name of the commission, and on March 22, 1912, this commission presented oral argument at Washington, D. C., before the interstate commerce commission.

In these cases, 159 exhibits were prepared and introduced by the rate department of the Iowa commission. The case is now submitted and is awaiting decision. In this case we claim that the Iowa cities on the Mississippi river should have the same rates to and from the east as does Quincy, Hannibal, Louisiana (Mo.), St. Louis, and East St. Louis.

INTERIOR IOWA CASE.

On June 3, 1910, the Iowa commission instituted proceedings before the interstate commerce commission regarding the class rates between interior Iowa points and eastern points.

Hearings were held at Des Moines, Iowa, on October 30 and 31, 1911, at which time a large number of witnesses were examined and cross-examined by a member of the commission, the commerce counsel and his assistant.

This commission filed a printed brief and reply brief, and on March 22, 1912, presented oral argument to the interstate commerce commission at Washington, D. C. As previously stated, the rate department of the Iowa commission prepared 159 exhibits which were filed in this case and the Mississippi river case.

The main proposition insisted upon by the Iowa Commission as to interior Iowa points is that there should be a complete revision of the interstate rates to and from these interior points. At the present time, there is a haphazard, unreasonable series of groups throughout Iowa. The Interstate Commerce Commission, in the Burnham-Hanna-Munger decision, as subsequently modified in the Warnock case, has held 55 cents to be the reasonable differential across the state of Iowa on first-class traffic from the Atlantic seaboard. In other words, this 55 cents is the amount to be added to the first-class rate up to the Mississippi river, in order to equal the Missouri river rate. It is our claim that this 55 cents should be equitably distributed across Iowa. At present, we find more than one-half of this 55 cents absorbed before we get beyond the first tier of counties west of the Mississippi river. There was a radical change in the groupings of the live stock rates throughout Iowa, and it is the desire of the commission in the present contest to affect just as radical a change in the groupings of these class rates.

This case is now submitted.

WESTERN RATE CASE.

This proceeding was instituted by the commission on its own motion. The petition was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission on October 23, 1912, and covers rates between approximately 1,000 Iowa towns, and all points in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, and all points in California, Oregon and Washington, except points taking Pacific coast rates. The case involves many thousands of rates, both class and commodity, which vitally interest and affect Iowa towns.

Hearing was called at Chicago, Illinois, on January 21, 1913, before Commissioner Prouty, at which time many shippers and traffic men of the various commercial clubs introduced testimony and filed exhibits. A member of the Iowa Commission, together with the Commerce Counsel, examined and cross-examined the witnesses, and have filed briefs, and will later appear in oral argument before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

INTERSTATE CASES HANDLED BY COMMERCE COUNSEL INDEPENDENT OF ANY ASSISTANCE FROM THE BOARD OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

ADVANCE IN COAL RATES.

The commission was advised that the carriers had issued supplements to their freight tariffs advancing the rates on coal from the Iowa mines to points in South Dakota and Montana. A representative of the Iowa Commission (the Commerce Counsel) appeared at the hearing in Omaha, on November 22, 1912, opposing the said advance.

At the conclusion of the hearing the carriers voluntarily announced that the advanced rates would be withdrawn.

FEEDING CATTLE RATE.

At the present time rate on feeding cattle on interstate traffic to Iowa points is 75% of the fat cattle rate. Last year the railroads sought to advance this to the regular fat cattle rate. If this advance had gone into effect it would have cost Iowa, according to the estimate of the president of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, more than $200,000.00 annually.

The attempt was defeated, the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission being against the railroads. In this case Iowa was represented by Commerce Counsel, Judge Henderson.

Dubuque Shippers' Association vs. C. & N. W., et al.

This case affects less-than-carload shipments from Dubuque to points in Wisconsin. On September 5, 1912, petition, or complaint was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hearing was held at Des Moines on November 16, 1912. The case is now pending.

Dubuque Shippers' Association vs. Ill. Cent. R. R. et al.

On November 11, 1912, complaint was made to Interstate Commerce Commission on account of rates on excelsior. Case was assigned for hearing at Dubuque on February 21, 1913.

Marshall Oil Company, Marshalltown, Ia., vs. C. & N. W. et al.

EXPRESS RATES, RULES AND PRACTICES.

A general investigation was made by the Interstate Commerce Commission of express rates, rules and practices. The Iowa Commission appeared in the said case through the Commerce Counsel. Different protests were filed by Iowa shippers against existing conditions and rates, the most important of which related to doubling the charge on shipments sent C. O. D. This was ordered changed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Interstate Commerce Commission rendered an epoch-making decision, completely overhauling the entire express rate structure in the country, and placing the same chiefly on a distance basis; also the commission has abolished many of the abuses and wrong practices that have been grown up about this business.

Some of the rates have already been adjusted by the railway company, and others are in the process of adjustment, which, if consummated, will remove the necessity to bring formal complaint before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

CAR FACILITIES.

During the present winter months the commission has received numerous complaints regarding shortage of cars for shipment of grain, livestock, etc., principally regarding shortage of grain cars.

On January 14, 1913, the Farmers' Grain Dealers' Association of Iowa, by R. H. McVicker, secretary, Eagle Grove, Iowa, filed a petition requesting a formal hearing upon the question as to what is an equitable distribution of cars during times of stringency. The board named February 4, 1913, in their offices at Des Moines as time and place for the hearing, and accordingly, all interested parties were so notified.

The case of the Western Grain Dealers' Association, by Geo. A. Wells, secretary, Des Moines, Iowa, regarding shortage of cars for grain shipments, was set for hearing at the same time.

At the conference a large number of interested grain dealers and managers of farmers' elevator companies testified as to the conditions existing in the state. The representatives of the carriers also submitted their testimony to the commission. The hearing was concluded on February 5th. Ninety-two appearances were made.

As practically all of the shipments concerned were interstate, the commission announced at the close of the hearing that the Commerce Counsel would be instructed to present the matter to the Interstate Commerce Commission for both the complainants in the case; also that an abstract of the testimony offered at the hearing before this board would be prepared and presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Facts are now being prepared by the Commerce Counsel for presentation as ordered by the Iowa Commission.

IMPORTANT INTRA-STATE CASES.

SANBORN RATE CASE.

At a conference of several state railroad commissions at Lincoln, Neb., on August 30, 1911, it was decided to file a brief before the supreme court of the United States, as amici curise, opposing several of the positions taken by Judge Sanborn in the decision in the Minnesota rate cases. This decision directly imperils the powers and usefulness of state commissions in fixing rates of common carriers.

On September 7, 1911, the Iowa Commission decided to join with the several states in preparing such a brief, in as much as the coal rates fixed by the commission were enjoined by the United States circuit court, on application of the railroad companies, and further action in this case was withheld, awaiting decision in the Minnesota case.

A member of the Iowa commission was chosen chairman of the committee to prepare and file the brief for the eight state commissions. Representatives of the commissions prepared the brief at Des Moines, under the direction of the chairman of the committee. The commerce counsel took active part in all consultations.

The case is now pending before the supreme court of the United States.

Amongst the most important issues at stake in this case are the following:

First.—That an order of a state commission reducing rates which may affect a competitive rate outside of the state constitutes interference with interstate commerce such as to make it unconstitutional.

Second.—That seven per cent is a reasonable rate of return.

Third.—That a railroad is entitled to a return on the value of real estate multiplied by two or three.

Fourth.—That expenses should be distributed between state and interstate traffic on a revenue basis.

Fifth.—That values should be distributed between state and interstate traffic on a revenue basis.

Sixth.—Value, new (and not present value), is the correct basis.

Several of these issues will affect many millions of dollars in the valuation of Iowa railroads. The supreme court of the United States has held repeatedly during the past two years that the volume of the railroads is the basis of all computations as to reasonableness of rates.

INTRASTATE CASES HANDLED BY COMMERCE COUNSEL.

SWITCHING CASE.

The Iowa State Manufacturers' Association, Des Moines branch, by G. A. Wrightman, secretary, filed with the board an applicaiton requesting establishment of reasonable maximum rates for switching services and a definition of industrial vicinity of Des Moines, Iowa.

The Commercial Club of Cedar Rapids, by H. F. Sundberg, traffic manager, filed a similar application regarding switching services at Cedar Rapids, and the Clinton Manufacturers' and Shippers' Association, by M. D. Smiley, secretary, filed an application for such an order to apply at Clinton, Iowa. After several hearings, these cases were submitted to the commission on July 16, 1912.

While these cases were pending before the commission the carriers advanced the rates for industrial switching services throughout the state. The rates named in these tariffs were voluntarily withdrawn by the carriers on request of the commission, until decision was reached in these switching cases.

On January 14, 1913, the commission rendered decision in the Des Moines case, in which the jurisdiction of the commission was considered. The opinion also defines switching service, industrial switching, joint industrial switching and industrial vicinity. A reasonable maximum charge for industrial switching service was found to be 3-4 cents per hundred pounds, actual weight, subject to a minimum charge of four dollars per car for a haul of three miles, or less, and $5.00 a car for a haul over three miles.

The reasonable maximum charge for a joint industrial switching service was found to be the same as described for industrial switching, for the originating road. If this service is performed by two carriers, the terminating line shall receive not to exceed $3.00 per car, and if the service is over three or more lines, the maximum charge for the intermediate carriers shall be $2.00 per car.

The opinions in the Cedar Rapids and Clinton cases, applied the findings in the Des Moines case.

The carriers were expected to comply with the findings of the commission within 36 days from the date of the order, and at this time the companies are filing tariffs complying with the opinion of the board.

LIVE STOCK CASE.

The Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, by their president and secretary, filed a letter with the commission on May 4, 1911, requesting that a date be set for hearing on Index No. 10, supplement No. 7, to Iowa Classification No. 14, which provides for the continuation for the exception to Rule 35, that 51 feet be the standard length of cars for the shipment of live stock in the state of Iowa. This exception was to expire June 1, 1911.

After several hearings and a re-hearing, the commission rendered its opinion on September 3, 1912, finding reasonable requirements as to carload minimum weights to be as follows:

In 36 ft. cars.	To-day.
Hogs	16,000
Stock cattle	20,000
Fat cattle	22,000
Sheep, single deck	10,000
Sheep, double deck	19,000

And when cars of smaller dimensions than 36 ft. in length are furnished:

	To-day.
Fat cattle	20,000
Hogs	15,000

In accordance with these findings, supplement No. 10 was issued and became effective on October 7, 1912.

The General Assembly shall determine the number of qualified electors required to propose the enactment of any proposed law or proposed amendment to the constitution when proposed by the people, but the required number of electors as petitioners for the enactment of a proposed law shall be not less than twelve per cent (12%) nor more than twenty-two per cent (22%) of the number of votes cast at the general election for the office of secretary of state, next preceding the filing of such petition and the required number of electors as petitioners for a proposd amendment to the constitution of the state of Iowa shall be not less than ten per cent (10%) nor more than twenty per cent (20%) of the number of votes cast at the general election in each of the congressional districts in the state of Iowa for the secretary of state next preceding the filing of such petition.

Senator Mattes submitted the following communication, which was ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE OF IOWA.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

DES MOINES.

Sir:—

I am in receipt of your communication of the 7th instant, requesting an opinion as to whether or not a member of the Senate duly elected to fill a vacancy and qualifying on February 21, 1913, after the first half of the salary for the session has been paid to his predecessor, who served during the first of the session, is entitled to the full salary for the term.

The statutory provision covering compensation of members of the General Assembly is found in section 12 of the Code as amended by chapter 1 of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly, and as so amended reads as follows:

"The compensation of the members of the General Assembly shall be: To every member, for each regular session, one thousand dollars, and for each extra session the same compensation per day while in session, to be ascertained by the rate per day of the compensation of the members of the General Assembly at the preceding regular session; and in going to and returning from the place where the General Assembly is held, five cents per mile, by the nearest traveled route; but in no case shall the compensation for any extra session exceed six dollars per day, exclusive of mileage."

The exact question you submit arose by reason of a vacancy created in the office of representative of the Twenty-sixth General Assembly. The question was submitted to former Attorney General Remley and in an official opinion given to the auditor of state, General Remley held that since there was no method pointed out by statute to pro rate the amount earned, that the member elected to fill the vacancy was entitled to the full compensation for the entire session and accordingly his time was certified for the full amount and duly paid by the auditor of state.

I doubt very much the soundness of this opinion but it has the force of law until overruled by legislative enactment, court decision, or subsequent opinion of the attorney general. In view of the fact that the opinion was given in 1896, it is presumed to have received the sanction of the General Assembly then in session or at least each succeeding General Assembly. This being true, I am of the opinion that it would not be improper to certify to the auditor of state the full compensation to the senator from the Thirty-ninth District for the entire session.

The General Assembly should, however, at this session pass a law making it clear just what compensation is to be received by a member of the General Assembly who is elected for the unexpired portion of the session.

Respectfully submitted.

GEORGE COSSON,
Attorney General of Iowa.

GUY M. GILLETTE.

A committee from the House appeared and notified the Senate that the House was ready to receive the Senate in joint convention.

Senate proceeded to the House under the direction of the sergeant-at-arms.

JOINT CONVENTION.

The joint convention was called to order by Lieutenant Governor Harding, president of the Senate, and president of the joint convention.

By unanimous consent, roll call was dispensed with and the president declared a quorum of members present.

President Harding then introduced Hon. William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, who addressed the general assembly.

Mr. Bryan spoke as follows:

I feel honored to be invited to address the lawmakers of this great commonwealth assembled for the discharge of the responsible duties that rest upon them. Insofar as the invitation is due to the office with which the president has honored me, I extend thanks for the administration. Insofar as the invitation is based upon the fact that I am a citizen of a neighboring state, I extend thanks for the people of my state.

I recognize that speaking to you at this period of your session there are two reasons why I should not speak at length. In the first place, I am warned by my own experience that the closing days of a session are busy days and the time is more precious then than in the opening days. I recognize too that near the close of a session it is more difficult to introduce new measures or secure consideration for new ideas, and therefore it would be less profitable to discuss questions that might come before you than it would have been had I come when your session opened, and I shall therefore confine myself to one proposition and I shall present it to you as briefly as I can, not so much with the hope that it will affect your deliberations at this time as with the hope that it may assist you in the formation of opinions on subjects that may come before you hereafter.

I might appear today in the attitude of one of the weather bureau. We have now a very complete weather bureau, a very complete system for ascertaining the things that we ought to know in regard to changes in the weather. I am connected with the political weather bureau, and it has been my business for some time to study the course of the winds and the changes in the political weather, and I think I am better able to predict now than I once was on these subjects. In fact, I am compelled to admit that I lost caste somewhat some years ago as a forecaster in politics and for a time some were disposed to throw up the fact that I had missed my guess as to what the people wanted or what they would do. I have not had so much trouble the last few years along this line. My guesses have been more accurate—at least the fulfillment of the prediction has followed more closely upon the prediction and left less time for doubt or dispute. I want now to tell you the general course of the wind and to tell you that it has been blowing long enough in one direction for us to judge something of the permanency of it. It is almost as steady now as a trade wind and yet it is not the kind of a trade wind that used to play havoc with the people's desires and prosperity.

I want to say to you that the trend of the world is in the direction of more popular government and that we now have been able to examine the direction of this wind for so long a time and at so many different points that prognostications may be based upon these investigations with great certainty. They are reliable. I can say to you that in every state in this Union and throughout the world the tendency is everywhere and always toward more popular government; that the tendency everywhere and always is towards giving the people larger control of their own affairs, and if this is true, then every legislator who recognizes this tendency and puts himself in harmony with it will find that his work will be successful and every legislator who is foolish enough to throw himself in front of this movement will be run over.

I am not asking you to attempt to do the things that will be popular but I think that every one ought to know what forces are permanent, what forces are irresistible and the forces that move toward the realization of the ideal of those who founded these institutions—these forces are permanent forces and irresistible forces.

Now, having stated this proposition as broadly as I can, I want to make an application. A general principle is not easily comprehended except as it is illustrated by applications of it. If time permitted or if this were an opportune occasion, I might review the experience of other nations. I will stop long enough to tell you that you can not go into any country in this world with any degree of civilization but what you will find there is a paramount political issue and the central element of that paramount issue is the controversy between the people who demand the control of their government and the fraction less than the people who insist upon using the government for their own personal pecuniary advantage. That is the struggle the world round between the unorganized many, but they are becoming more organized each year, and the thoroughly organized few—the many asking for their rights and the few clamoring for privilege. In the nation at large a change is taking place in the point of view from which public questions are to be examined, and after all the point of view is the essential thing to be understood. When you know a man's point of view you can estimate with considerable accuracy not only what he will say he will do but what he will say is his reason for doing it. There are just two points of view from which people look at things that affect mankind. One is the aristocratic point of view, the other is the democratic point of view, and I am not using the word democratic in a partisan sense. Jefferson drew this distinction a century ago when he said there are just two parties in every land, and where speech was free these two parties would manifest themselves. He described these parties as the aristocratic party that would draw to itself those who did not believe in the people and didn't trust them, and the democratic party who would draw those who did believe in the people and those who did trust them. I need not tell you he had no reference to our party when he used the word democratic, for at that time there was no party in this country known by the name of the democratic party, and strange to say to us the party we now call the democratic party was then called republican so handicapped were we for a name in the beginning. He used the word that described not the party names that come and go but he used the word that described the spirit that animated parties. He used the only line that can be drawn always and everywhere through society, the line that separates the man who is at heart a democrat from the man who is at heart an aristocrat. Now, you cannot go into any party and find that all of the people in the party correspond with those things suggested by the party name. For instance, in this country, you can not find in any party all who are aristocratic in spirit or all who are democratic in spirit. In fact there is no party in this country that is big enough to hold all of the people who are democratc in spirit. The great mass of our people in all parties are democratic in spirit. You want evidence of that? We have evidence at hand. It is the unanimous sentiment that is today back of the election of the senators by the direct vote of the people. You can call the roll and nine-tenths of the people are in favor of the election of United States senators by the people because at heart they are democrats—at heart they trust the people, at heart they want the people to control this government. It took a great while to get the people to understand it, and then it took them a good while to make their representatives understand it, for the representative is much slower than the people to understand democracy. Not possibly more slow to comprehend it but more slow to pay any attention to it. The reason for it is the individual has no pecuniary reason for not following his convictions, while a representative sometimes has. I do not mean to say that the representative is corrupted by money but I mean to say that the power of concentrated wealth is of so great help to a man running for office or to defeat him that sometimes a representative listens to the few who can thus actively organize for him and forgets the many who just vote the ticket without close scrutiny into the bias of the man for whom they vote. If I were going to illustrate this difference in point of view I would say that the democrat believes, and he believes it honestly, that society is built from the bottom, the aristocrat believes, and he believes it honestly, that society is suspended from the top. The democrat believing society is built from the bottom, says legislate for all of the people, believing that prosperity will surely find its way up for all classes. The aristocrat says, and he says it honestly, for he believes it, he says legislate for the well-to-do, and then be patient and let the others wait while their prosperity leaks through to those below. That is the distinction, my friends.

It so runs through this world, and I mention it because I doubt not that you have questions before you right now that illustrate this division. I do not know what questions you have before you. I did not inquire. I was afraid if I did that I might say something that would apply to these questions but if I didn't know I could discuss general principles and then let you apply these suggestions when you had occasion.

I do not know whether you have before you those reforms known as the initiative and referendum, and if they are before you I do not know what the probability is, but I want to discuss these things because they illustrate what I mean. The tendency of this government and of the world is toward larger power in the hands of the people and I can use the growth of the initiative and referendum as an illustration.

Sixteen years ago last summer we put a plank in our party platform in Nebraska for the first time declaring for these reforms, and I remember distinctly the opposition paper said when this plank was read to the convention that one delegate said to another in the convention, what is that? and the paper said the delegate answered, that is a new kind of democratic drink, and the paper stated that it went through unanimously. It is sixteen years ago last summer that that paper wittily and humorously referred to the initiative and referendum as a new kind of democratic drink, yet two years ago last summer that same paper led the fight for the adoption of that plank in the republican platform and endorsed the initiative and referendum. It was not speaking of it in witty and humorous terms then; it was intensely in earnest; and it did win its fight. Two years ago last summer every party in Nebraska endorsed the initiative and referendum, and in the legislature that convened that fall the initiative and referendum was submitted, not exactly in the form we would like to have seen but it was submitted and adopted last fall by an overwhelming majority.

Ten years ago if you said anything about the initiative down in New York you were taken to task for suggesting a very wild idea. I remember once less than ten years ago when I had the temerity to say a word about it in Brooklyn one of the New York papers had an editorial two columns long explaining how dangerous it was, and yet last fall there were three men before the people for the office of president; that is, three who polled the largest vote, two of them were in favor of the initiative and referendum and the one man who was not carried two states with eight electoral votes. The people were not afraid of the initiative and referendum. I do not say that every man who voted for Wilson or Roosevelt voted for him because he favored them and I do not mean to say that the vote that Mr. Taft received necessarily measured the strength of the opposition, but what I do mean to say is that this reform has passed the stage when it can be made a scarecrow, or when men will be afraid to trust as president of the United States a man who trusts the people with the control of their government. I do not know what you intend to do on this subject. I do not mean any reflection on you when I say I do not care. I used to be impatient about reforms but I learned patience by experience and I know if you will not do it now you will do it later. I believe that the stars in their course fight with us when we stand for those things in the line of popular government. I have faith in the triumph of this reform in this and every state because I believe the people have sense enough to run their own government and they have sense enough to retire from politics those who have not faith in them. I care not how honestly a man may distrust the people. A man who honestly distrusts the people ought to be left at home to study the genius of his government and its institutions and not be put in a place where he can misrepresent those who elect him to speak for them. An honest man has no right to embezzle power, an honest man has no right to misrepresent his constituents.

There are two theories of government—the democratic theory which looks at all questions affecting mankind from a democratic standpoint and those who look at these questions from an aristocratic standpoint or hold the aristocratic theory of government. The democratic says the people ought to think for themselves and ought to elect people not to think for them but to act for them. That is the democratic theory of representative government. The aristocratic theory is that people have not sense enough to think but still choose very wise men to think for them and do things the people do not want done. I need not tell you that the democratic theory is the theory that is growing and I need not remind you either that when you go out and ask for votes you ask for them on the democratic theory and not on the aristocratic theory. How do I know? Because you have platforms. What do you have platforms for, except to tell the people what you will do if they elect you and why tell them what you will do unless you expect that to determine their choice? If you believe in the aristocratic theory of government, if you believe the people have not sense enough to know what is to be done, why don't you run without a platform? Tell them that it is none of their business, you will do what you think is right for them. Why don't you do it? Because you are more interested in holding office than in announcing your belief in an aristocratic idea. If you are a democrat when you run, you ought to be a democrat when you are elected. Let your conscience work before election. I have not much faith in a conscience that hibernates during the campaign and blossoms out when there is a chance to betray a constituency. I believe in a conscience. I believe that no man ought to act contrary to his conscience. I do not believe a legislator ought to do what is wrong because his constituents want it. Have I stated it as strongly as I can? If a platform declares for a policy that a representative thinks is wrong he ought to say so when he accepts the nomination. He ought not to leave the people to believe by silence that he is in favor of the platform. I believe a man's conscience ought to work all of the time, and if he does not believe in a platform he ought to say so and ask judgment on his position, but if he is elected on a platform and afterwards believes on mature reflection that his platform is wrong and he ought not to carry out the same against his conscience, then let him give the people a chance to elect somebody else. That is my idea of representative government. That the representative must understand that his citizens have consciences also and that they have the right to ask the representative to do what they want done and when a man can not do what his constituents want done he ought to return to his commission and let them select somebody that will.

Why is it the demand for the initiative and referendum is growing? It is because representatives have refused to do what their constituents want done. The initiative gives the people a chance to do what they want done when the representatives refuse to do it. Under the initiative a certain per cent of the people can ask that a question be submitted, and when submitted the people vote on it, and if when submitted the people vote for it, it becomes a law, just the same as if the legislature had passed it, and do you know of any reason why the law should be more binding when passed by representatives than when passed by the people themselves? What is the referndum? It is the veto power lodged in the people. Have you the veto power lodged in the governor of this state? Does it require two-thirds to overcome it? Well, my friends, if it is right to put in the hands of the governor the power to set his judgment against the judgment of the majority of the members of both houses and thus prevent the passage of a law unless two-thirds of both houses register their approval in spite of his veto power, why deny the right of the people who elect legislators and governors to veto anything that their public servants do if the people are opposed to it? Is there anything contrary to the spirit of free institutions in this? It is a dangerous thing for a representative to suggest that his people have not sense enough to act on these subjects. For if they have sense enough to elect him, ought he impeach their intelligence? You say you can not let them act for fear they would make mistakes. You ought not suggest the idea of the people making mistakes, for it might be pointed out that the people made a mistake when they elected you. I would be the last one to insist that the people did not make mistakes, but no one will go beyond me in asserting the right of the people to make mistakes if they want to.

You cannot escape mistakes by escaping the veto power of the people. Somebody must act and somebody will make mistakes. If you have an unlimited monarchy a king will make mistakes for the people and he generally lives up to his opportunities. That is why they quit having unlimited monarchies. If you had an aristocratic government the few make mistakes for the rest of the people, and there have been many illustrations of their mistakes being made. In fact, it is sometimes so profitable for the few to make mistakes that it takes them a long while to correct them and human history is written in blood largely because of the mistakes of the few made against the many—mistakes that the many tried to correct. The tendency of the world today and nowhere is it plainer than in our own country is to let the people control their government. Let them make the mistakes, if they will. They will not make as many as representatives will make against them or for them and they will correct them as soon as they find them out. I say this in regard to the initiative and referendum.

I have just one other thought to add in connection with it. I regard it as fundamental. I think the initiative is the greatest suggestion in the improvement of the government that has come in the generation. You tell me it suggests doubt as to representative government? No. It just recognizes facts. Does it overthrow representative government? No, it simply perfects representative government. The physician who advises you to cut off a limb to save the body is not an enemy; he is a friend. So that man who would perfect representative government and cures every defect of it is a better friend of representative government than the man who would try to ignore diseases in the body politic, and reject all remedies offered. We need the initiative and referendum in order to put the government in the hands of the people and to drive the lobbyist from the halls of legislation.

Today we have great, selfish predatory interests that are seeking to secure advantage. Sometimes they want special privileges granted by law and sometimes to prevent passage of laws that ought to be passed. But whether they seek affirmative privilege or simply negative laws that permit them to trample upon the rights of others they are insistent, powerful and influential. I served in congress for a little while, long enough to know that the difference between democrats and republicans manifested themselves on few occasions but the difference between those that stood with the people and those that stood with the despoilers of the nation manifested themselves on many occasions.
