GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

In accordance with the mandate of the Constitution, I submit to you the following message:

Many of the reports of the various departments and officers of the State are now ready and will soon be placed on your desks. I think all will be within a reasonable time. The Constitution makes it my duty to communicate to you "the condition of the State." These reports will outline it to you in a very full and complete way, and much more clearly than it would be possible for me to do without extending this message far beyond a reasonable length. I, however, make them a part hereof, by reference, and urge upon you a careful study of them, because in no other way can you get a clear understanding of conditions and what the State is doing, and in no other way can you so well qualify yourselves for an intelligent, satisfactory discharge of your duties in this particular field. You will find some things to criticise. It would be very strange if you did not; but, in very many ways you will be disarmed of criticism.

I have deemed it best, however, to present to you, as clearly as I can, the financial condition of the State. This, first of all, you must know, because you cannot proceed intelligently as to the business affairs of the State until you do.

First of all, there are balances left over from appropriations heretofore made, many of them some years ago, for specific purposes which have been carried out. These balances ought to be transferred to the general fund, charged off the Treasurer's books as unexpended balances of appropriations, and the accounts closed. You should pass a bill authorizing this to be done.

They are:

Dam at Okoboji	$ 1,000.00
Executive Council, extraordinary repair.....	168.00
Executive Council, improvement Capitol grounds.....	853.00
Executive Council, storage house	221.00
Executive Council, new boilers	2,563.00
Executive Council, decorating offices	1,074.00
Executive Council, repairs to elevators.....	1,500.00
Executive Council, watchman's clock	485.00
Gray uniforms	690.00
Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument.....	3,195.00
Monument at Vicksburg	6,964.00
Monument at Keokuk	550.00

Providential contingent fund	35,000.00
Publishing Acts General Assembly	1,300.00
Retrenchment and Reform Engineers	1,000.00
Sale of Camp Grounds	4,218.00
Sale of State Square	158.00
Statue of James Harlan	500.00
Statue of Samuel J. Kirkwood.....	2,740.00
	$ 64,179.00

The taxable value of all property subject to general levies for State and county purposes is $926,900,092. The amount of monies and credits returned is $250,218,117. The State receives approximately one-sixteenth of the tax levied on this sum. The State millage levies do not apply to monies and credits. These valuations, it may be assumed, will be closely approximated for the next biennium and will enable you to determine the revenue that will be derived at present levies.

The estimated receipts of general revenue for the last six months of the present biennium, ending June 30, 1915, including cash on hand January 1, 1915, is:

Estimated disbursements for same period.....	$ 2,250,000.00	$ 2,980,079.51
To this may be added extraordinary appropriations of former legislatures undrawn, December 31, 1914	375,013.00	2,625,013.00
Leaving estimated balance on hand June 30, 1915		355,066.51
The estimated receipts of general revenue for biennium beginning July 1, 1915.....		10,078,000.00
Total revenue for the biennium.....		$10,433,066.51
Estimated expenditures for biennial period ending July 1, 1917		$ 9,477,017.46
		$ 956,049.05

From this statement it is easily discovered that after providing for the estimated expenditures there will only remain for additional purposes $956,049.05, and that these additional purposes must be kept within that sum, unless you provide for additional revenue. The State has been conducting its general revenue affairs upon the theory that no more should be taken from the people than is actually necessary to meet the expenditures to be cared for by this fund—upon the sound theory that a large surplus meant over-taxation. Good business, however, demands a reasonable surplus and this would not be a violation of the theory. The legislature, therefore, in fixing the amount of revenue to be raised, and it has sole authority in this matter, has held the fund down to the very lowest point possible to meet the needs of a rapidly developing State under modern conditions and ideals. If, therefore, the General Assembly creates large needs and demands and does not authorize a fund commensurate with them, the administrators of affairs are put to the utmost of their ingenuity in management to keep within the limit set for them.

I desire to call your attention here to the fact that the Thirty-fourth General Assembly in Chapter 201 provided for the levy annually for five years of one-fifth of a mill each for the State University and the State Agricultural College and one-tenth of a mill for the Teachers' College "for the purpose of providing for the erection, repair, improvement and equipment of such necessary buildings as shall be determined upon by the State Board of Education." The Thirty-fifth General Assembly in Chapter 17 provided for the levy annually for five years of a special tax of one-half mill for the institutions under the Board of Control "for the purpose of providing for the erection and improvement of buildings, for appurtenances and connections, district custodial farm, State colony for Epileptics and for the purchase of land and for the purpose of establishing and maintaining industries at any or all of said institutions." These levies will provide for the educational institutions $463,450.00 annually and the same amount annually for the Board of Control. Heretofore appropriations have been made for these institutions and not provided for out of the millage tax. Appropriations are always charged to the general revenue and deplete it when the expense should be cared for by the millage tax. You should see to it that all allowances made to these institutions for any of the purposes mentioned in the Statutes referred to be charged to the millage fund.

It has been suggested (and I am not sure but that the suggestion is a good one) that a better method of administering all of these institutions would be to provide entirely for them by a millage fund carried into the State Treasury and disbursed from it under your supervision and enactment after full hearings and investigations as to needs. Then every taxpayer would know exactly what he was paying for these purposes; but he cannot know where he pays through appropriations. Then the State levy could be reduced far, far below the present rate. Indeed, the State would be almost if not quite self-supporting. I believe this is a matter well worth your consideration from the standpoint of good management and business efficiency. An institution that subsists on appropriations, it has been said, dies every two years, and it does. Whereas if it has a fixed millage fund it knows exactly what can be depended upon and can plan for the future with absolute certainty.

The millage levies before referred to were fixed by the last General Assembly, based upon the taxable value of property as it then existed and as it was doubtless presumed would continue. Nobody knew at that time it would not. In view of the increased valuation you should reduce the millage levies proportionately.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

Our State educational institutions should have liberal support. The greatness of a State must, in the last analysis, be measured by the intelligence and moral force and purpose of its people. There is no path of progress except along the line of investigation and research. The world is a constant revelation from every possible angle of study. It challenges eternal consideration and denies possibility of being exhausted. It is infinite and an inspirer of growth and ideals. Intelligence elevates the standards of life and of living. Ignorance stagnates, debases. Ignorance and selfishness halt progress and stand in the way of the great things of life. Ignorance and selfishness consider not the future. They have no ideals. There can be no illumination of the mind where they are enthroned. It is, therefore, of the very first importance that a State improve and elevate her citizenship through education. There can be no distinction otherwise.

A modern, fully equipped, up-to-date institution of learning requires resources of money in considerable sums. What is just as much required is wisdom, judgment and foresight in the expenditures. The tendency is to profligacy, which is coarse and should be condemned. The substantial, solid building of a State or the life of a people lies not in the excessive display or expenditure of money but in that moderation and discriminating care which is commendable in an individual. You should inform yourselves just as fully as possible as to what these and all other institutions with which you have to do are doing. You should know what they are, what provision has already been made for them, what they ask for and what they ought to have. Then your allowances should be within the means at your disposal. You should not guess at these things. Your duties cannot be performed without the most painstaking care and study. Each one of you should set about this business as if it were his own individual business, not, however, in the spirit of parsimony, but as a man of large vision to put his affairs on a sound basis shaped for satisfactory and great results. To aid you and save you a great amount of work I have, with the help of the Secretary of The Board of Education, outlined as best I could so that you may see at a glance exactly the present situation as to each one of these institutions. I invite your careful study of the following statements:

STATE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA.

The total enrollment of students in all of the collegiate departments of the State University for the academic year of 1908-1909, excluding duplicates, was 2,202. If to this number those enrolled in the two schools for nurses and in the summer school were added, the total enrollment for that year excluding duplicates, was 2,472. These numbers were not reached again until 1913-1914, when the corresponding enrollments were 2,345 and 2,669 respectively. On November 20, 1914, the attendance in the several collegiate departments was 2,365, while the total enrollment, including the School for Nurses and the summer session, was 2,771.

The General Assembly as a rule has heretofore provided for annual appropriations for her educational institutions of higher learning, that is to say, they are continuing fixed amounts from year to year until changed. In addition to these annuals, special appropriations are made from time to time for specific purposes.

The amount now provided for the University by way of an annual appropriation is	$ 522,200.00
In addition to this is an estimated income on Endowment and other funds of	23,000.00
From fees, tuition, etc. (not including laboratory fees), estimated at	60,000.00
Special appropriations, 1914-1915 expires June 30, 1915,.....	72,500.00
The Thirty-fourth General Assembly authorized a one-fifth mill tax for building and other purposes for five years which is estimated at	180,000.00
Making a present standing income of.....	$ 857,700.00

The Board of Education is asking of you additional continuing annual appropriations—

For educational support	$ 122,600.00
For summer school	8,000.00
For repair and contingent fund.....	5,000.00
For extension work	10,000.00
For department of buildings and grounds.....	12,000.00

In addition the Board recommends the following appropriations for the special purposes named, for each of the two years of the biennium:

For equipment and supplies.....	$ 7,500.00
For equipment of buildings and buildings partially equipped	25,000.00
Purchase of land.....	15,000.00
For paving, cement walks and care of grounds.....	5,000.00
For heating plant and equipment.....	9,000.00
For tunnel.....	3,000.00
For electrical equipment.....	5,000.00

Making a grand total for the University if you approve of present conditions and recommendations, and deducting the special of $72,500.00 that expires June 30, 1915, of approximately

	$ 1,012,300.00

STATE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND MECHANIC ARTS.

An examination of the records reveals that in all departments of the College for the academic year there was enrolled in 1908-1909, not including duplicates, 1,835 students; and if to this is added those who attended the winter Short Courses, the total, not including duplicates, was 2,631. These numbers were not equalled until the year 1912-1913, when the enrollments were 2,034 and 2,882 respectively. In 1913-14 the enrollment during the academic year was 2,459, while the attendance in the Winter short Courses and the Summer School made the total 3,458. November 20, 1914, the regular enrollment was 2,542 and the 1914 Summer School 618.

INSTITUTIONS UNDER BOARD OF CONTROL.

There are sixteen institutions under the management of the Board of Control. Because of their number it is hardly practicable in a communication of this kind to take up and analyze the situation of each one as I have endeavored to do in the case of the educational institutions.

It is your duty to study carefully the report of the Board and of the executive officer of each institution. So far as I have been able to learn the management has been capable and wise throughout.

I submit herewith a statement showing exactly what each institution asks and what it wants the money for. Please note such items as should be included under the millage levies, both here and as to the askings of the Board of Education, and if you grant them let it be out of the millage levies and not by appropriations.

AMENDMENTS TO THE LAW AS TO STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

When the law creating the Board of Control was enacted the office of treasurer of each one of the institutions placed under its management was abolished and all moneys, books, etc., ordered to be turned in to the State Treasurer and all moneys thereafter derived from any source accounted for and remitted to him monthly and all funds and all bills payable thereafter drawn directly from the State Treasury.

There was opposition to this, of course, but time has demonstrated that it was a wise provision. When the law creating the State Board of Education was passed, for prudential reasons existing just at the time, the same thing was not to the same extent done as to the institutions passing under its management, but the Board was empowered to elect a treasurer for each one of the institutions. Not one word of criticism has ever been heard as to any one selected by the Board for treasurer at any one of the institutions or of his administration of his office. On the contrary, there has been universal approval. Many, however, believe that the funds of the educational institutions should be handled and administered exactly as the funds of the institutions under the Board of Control. Instead of four treasurers for the four institutions there should be but one and properly the State Treasurer that one. The accounts of the institutions should be kept substantially and so far as applicable with each institution as with the institutions under the Board of Control. For full information and by way of suggestion I call your attention to sections 13, 15, 16, 17, 37, 38, 39, 41 and 42 of Chapter 118 of the Acts of the Twenty-seventh General Assembly, to the end that you may examine into the question as to whether the law should be so amended as to incorporate like provisions in the law creating the State Board of Education. Experience has taught that the law creating the Board of Control and the methods therein provided for the administration of it were conceived in great wisdom.

Under present methods the State loses the interest that would accrue to it upon the large sums of money that might be held by the treasury as balances thereof from time to time. This should go to the State rather than elsewhere. This consideration alone would be a sufficient reason for your attention to this subject.

In this connection I desire to suggest for your consideration whether or not it would not be wise for the law to make somewhat similar provisions as to the State Highway Commission. This commission is the only one in the State that audits its own bills. Should they not be passed upon by some competent Board or Council and should not bills be paid directly from the State Treasury? It seems to me so. It hardly seems to me that it is wise that large sums can be drawn in lump amounts to be disbursed at pleasure. It must be understood that there is no criticism on the commission, but the question is are the present provisions or want of provisions of the law in this respect wise

USE OF UNEXPENDED BALANCE OF APPROPRIATIONS.

It is frequently the case that not all of an appropriation is needed for the purpose designated. Sometimes there is a surplus of several thousand dollars. Under the law as it now is this unexpended balance in many cases is not covered back into the treasury, but is used at the institution where the original expenditure was made for such purpose as the Board or Commission may please. It seems to me this ought not to be so. It is not "good business." It is a careless management of public funds. I recommend that you provide that all unexpended balances of appropriations be at once and hereafter covered back into the treasury.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX.

The law with reference to the collection of the collateral inheritance tax has, up to this time, been administered from the State Treasurer's office and by him. Many very difficult legal questions are constantly arising. The business in connection with the administration of the law is constantly increasing. During the biennium ending June 30, 1908, 905 estates paid the tax in the sum of $341,000.00. The last biennium, 1,270 estates paid $637,000.00. It is apparent that this volume of business requires very much and very careful attention, the cases extending as they do into very many counties of the State. The Treasurer feels that it is very likely that much is lost to the State, because of the impossibility of giving it the close attention from his office that the importance of the business demands. Besides, it is necessarily work that should be in the hands of one trained in the law. You are asked to carefully inquire into this condition and provide for its relief.

REFORM OF COURT PROCEDURE.

Two years ago I submitted some suggestions and recommendations on the question of some reform in our court procedure. But one of them was adopted, with some qualification, namely, that all exceptions to instructions should be taken before they are read to the jury. This does not at all deter me from referring to the same subject again. Reforms sometimes move slowly. It is often hard to up-root old practices and old forms and methods that have become woven into the life of the people although the original reasons for their adoption have long since ceased to exist.

The administration of the law in our courts is, as everybody knows, slow, uncertain and unreasonably expensive. The weak financially are not upon an equal footing with the strong because of our practice procedure. There is not equality before the law at all. When one starts in upon a suit at law there is absolutely no telling where or when it will end. The weak in purse may indeed fall by the way, powerless to proceed, his rights unadjusted or not even substantial justice achieved. If he gets through at all it may be by a long, weary way from one court to another and back and forth again and again. He learns the way and finds that toll is exacted at every step. And it is all because of errors, whether they are substantial and affect the very right of the parties or not. There is always the presumption, when the error is found, that it was prejudicial. It does not make any difference how conclusively and abidingly satisfied the Supreme Court may be that the judgment on the whole case was right, yet prejudice is presumed because of the error, the case is reversed and back it goes for a re-trial. It is upon the theory that it cannot be known what the jury might have done if the error had not been made. So, notwithstanding the conviction that the verdict was right, it goes back to take the chance of some other error being committed and another jury bringing in a verdict that is wrong. While courts are fallible and very liable to error the jury is practically infallible, their verdict almost unimpeachable and establishes the fate of the litigants as firmly and immovably as the rocks of Gibraltar.

Aside from chancery cases the Supreme Court is a court for correction of errors. As errors are always presumed to be prejudicial, the astute lawyer often makes every effort to "get error into the record." If he can succeed and the result of the trial is not to his liking he can appeal with every presumption in his favor. The error is presumed to be prejudicial to his client. It may be, but it ought not to be conclusively presumed so. The contest in the appellate court centers around the question as to whether or not there was error and the substantial rights of the parties may not be involved at all. When you get at the bottom fact about the matter the rule under consideration does not require of the trial court justice but infallibility. This whole thing appears to me to be wrong. If the court on the whole case is satisfied that the judgment is just, the one that ought to have been rendered, they ought to let it alone notwithstanding the error, and litigation should end. "Matters of practice ought not to be exalted above matter of substance." This course we pursue inevitably results in inefficiency of legal administration. It brings about disregard of the law and contempt for it among all classes of people. Convictions in criminal cases are nullified because of presumed prejudice on account of error. This General Assembly ought not to adjourn until it has enacted a law providing in substance that no judgment shall be set aside or reversed or new trial granted on account of error of the court or error in any matter of pleading or procedure unless it shall appear on the whole case that the error complained of has injuriously affected the substantial rights of the parties.

The time sometimes taken for the selection of a jury is the cause of delay, useless expense, absurd, farcical. The grounds of challenge for cause are given by statute. A few questions in a few minutes are sufficient to determine a juror's qualifications and the court should be given authority to control and limit the examination, or, better still, he should have the authority to examine and pass upon the qualifications of jurors for the trial of the cause.

I again repeat what I said two years ago, that the time for taking appeals should be greatly shortened. I see no reason why the law should make the procedure of a cause through the courts interminable.

The law forbidding counsel to comment on the fact that the defendant in a criminal case declines to become a witness in his own behalf and give such explanation as he can of the facts produced tending to establish his guilt should be repealed. It is entirely just to him to suppose that if he could explain he would do so.

While I am speaking of laws and what it seems to me ought to be done I desire to say just a word about the law enacted by the last General Assembly providing for the non-partisan nomination and election of Judges. I believe it ought to be repealed.

TREATMENT OF CRIMINALS.

To my mind our method of treatment of those convicted of many of the crimes under our statute has been absurd and without justification from the standpoint of either the convicted man or the State. I am aware that there are wide differences of opinion upon the question of the treatment of those who have violated the criminal law. There never ought to be such a thing as even a thought of punishment as a retribution. Yet there is, when you get to the center of our theory of punishment, that thought running through it. The thought of punishment as a deterrent to others, I think, is a thing to be dismissed also because the experience of the world has shown that it does not deter—that the proportion of crimes to population does not decrease but rather increases. Then there is something of the avenging spirit underlying the thought. In some cases, it seems to me, the sentence of the law is out of all proportion to the gravity of the offense. And, as an ultimate question, what good can come, in very many cases, to either the culprit or to society, by a commitment to a jail or the penitentiary. How many scores of cases does every man know of as coming under his own observation, where not only no good came to either but a positive harm to both. I cannot view it in any other way than that every man ought to see the absurdity, the uselessness, the wrong done both to the prisoner and to society, in leading a young man, and older ones as well, first offenders, off and shutting them up in a jail or a penitentiary.

Perhaps in an hour of temptation, or under stress of circumstances, as inability to get work and little children and wife cold and hungry, they have committed an infraction of the law. What hope or chance is there for a man in a jail or a penitentiary. I am not now speaking of the habitual criminal, the outlaw, the man dangerous to be at large, but I am speaking of the large number of men whom we daily see walking out of our court rooms destined to imprisonment. Taken from their families, perhaps, who need every possible help they can give them, inflicting a wrong upon them personally and upon society as well by removing them from contributing members of society to helpless dependents and burdens to the State.

Our criminal court procedure and methods are uselessly expensive, but I sometimes feel that there is little hope of relief to society there as all appeals for reform have heretofore been in vain. The burden of expense to the people in feeding, clothing and warming prisoners and maintaining penitentiaries and reformatories is very great. Well, some one may ask, what will you do with them. I should say that at any rate as to the class of men I am now speaking of I would not continue a worn out, medieval method that the experience of centuries has demonstrated is an utter failure in helping or reforming men, a dismal failure in deterring or reducing crime. I should enlarge the right and impose upon the Judge the duty to parole men upon conditions of good citizenship, to express it in a general way, upon condition that the wrong done be righted as far as possible. I would restore these men to their families and to society to support themselves and their families rather than inflict suffering upon innocent and helpless women and children and the burden of supporting them all upon the State. We can do much better than that, and do it, too, without making them hate the State or changing them into enemies of society. Is this idea of the brotherhood of man a farce or not? Is helpfulness a fine thing to be talked about and never to be seen in action? Ought not the State to have a moral sense? Ought it not to have a conscience? Go, right the wrong you have done, restore any loss you may have occasioned, pay the costs you have occasioned your fellow citizens, take your place in society, go to work, support yourself and your family if you have one and if you will and be faithful in these things your sentence will be suspended for such length of time as it may take to satisfy the court that you are a well-disposed law-abiding man. There would be your reformatory in action and without vast machinery and expense. Clothe the courts with this power to be used in their sound discretion after a full knowledge of the case and of the man and with the power of final discharge when satisfied the man merits it. If at any time after suspension he proves unworthy let the sentence be executed and let him understand that it will be. This course would save much time to the courts and costs to the people in lessening the number of expensive trials. And can any good reason be given why this thing should not be done at once rather than after several years by the Board of Parole and after a large amount of expense, constantly accumulating, is incurred, and after the wrong has been inflicted by the State upon women and children and especially since centuries of experience has demonstrated that jails and penitentiaries do no good except in keeping the vicious, the habitually bad man, the enemy to good order, from preying on society. Of such characters you will understand I am not speaking. The only reason that can be given is that society must be avenged. There must be retribution. Punish the man one, two, three years, then let the Board of Parole do what the judge should have power to do at once if you really want to do the man any good. But the theory is do him and his family and society all the harm you can first.

From what I have already said it follows that I am in favor of the custodial farm. Certain classes of violators of the criminal law should be put to work. Judges should be empowered to commit to the Farm when we have reached such a point that it can be done. The law should define what classes should be sent there and generally provide for the administration of it. You should make such provisions at this session. The jails, as I think, should be largely depopulated for service on the Farm. Every man who can be safely trusted out of jail or penitentiary ought to be a worker, a producer, and not simply a leech upon the honest efforts of his fellow men.

As many men as possible from the penitentiary and reformatory ought to be given work upon our public highways, especially since the State has entered upon the policy of permanent road improvement. The experiments made in this direction have been very satisfactory, indeed. The brief experience the State has had in allowing a few men from the penitentiary and reformatory to work out side has resulted in a profit over all expenses of $19,773.10 to the State and earnings to the men about $7,000.00. The State has turned its face toward the more modern and enlightened method of dealing with criminals and the whole subject is one that ought to have your most careful consideration. Some considerable expense must necessarily be incurred in the beginning but ultimately the methods proposed will, as I believe, reduce cost to the State. The abolishment of the contract labor system is looked upon, I think with general favor. But men must be kept at work and it will therefore be necessary that you provide by legislation some method or provide such industries as will supply the need. This can be done by the millage tax already referred to.

PARDONS AND PAROLES.

In a pamphlet separate from this message which I make a part hereof by reference I have reported in full all cases of remission of fines and forfeitures and of commutations, revocations, restorations, suspensions and pardons granted, with the reasons therefor.

Summarizing the report:

I have referred to the Board of Parole for investigation and recommendation, upon the question of granting a pardon, nine cases of life men for murder in the first degree. In each case they reported adversely to granting a pardon. I have granted a pardon in one such case.

I have granted fifty-one suspensions upon the recommendation of the Board and fifty-nine from county jails.

I have restored to citizenship from parole 53 and, upon the recommendation of the Board, 224. There have been one revocation, forty-nine commutations and twenty-four remissions of fines and forfeitures.

THE ROAD LAW.

The road law passed by the last legislature has been rapidly growing in the favor of the people within the last year. For the first time in the history of the State has real, permanent progress in road repair and road making been realized. The outlook for the future is very encouraging, indeed. It may be found necessary at this session to amend it in some minor particulars to make it more flexible and workable, but only in such features of it as experience has proved necessary. The essential principles and provisions of it have been found to be right and the solid foundations for good roads in Iowa, and ought to remain.

There are localities in the State where the question of hard surfaced roads is engaging the attention of the people to a greater degree perhaps than in others. There are also places where the improvement of the road involves the cutting down of hills, at an unusual and exceptional expense. In order that this expense may be met and the improvement made, and in order that the work of hard-surfacing roads may be undertaken at once, it has been suggested that you make provision that counties may anticipate by a majority vote their road revenues by issuing bonds. I deem the suggestion a very good one and recommend that you make such provision. It would be entirely optional with each county—a majority vote of the people authorizing it.

In some States the law has provided for special assessment road improvement after the analogy of our special assessment drainage districts. I believe it would be wise and would encourage the building of the best and most permanent roads if you would authorize the establishment of special assessment road districts. Provision could, and should, be made for a portion of the cost to be paid by the public, a portion by those whose property would be specially benefited—each property paying in proportion to the benefits received—taking into consideration the enhancement of its value, its location, with reference to the improved road, all the elements of convenience, easy access to markets, and such like. Here, again, this would be entirely optional with the people to be included in the district—the method of establishing to be carefully worked out by the law. There is nothing new in any of these suggestions. They are only in line with the progressive, up-to-date spirit of the times that wants to lift these States out of the mud, greatly enhance the value of the lands, save enormous sums of money in making markets easily and quickly accessible at all times, and especially when prices are best. I am advised by one who has made careful study of the question that there are only two States in the Union besides our own which do not provide for bond issues for the construction of permanent roads. Such portions of our State as cheerfully and enthusiastically avail themselves of the provisions of our road laws will rapidly forge ahead in wealth and community development. The last two years has already made this apparent. The next few years will make it more strikingly and astonishingly so. It is easy for a community to acquire the reputation of facing backwards, of always being against, but never for, anything. Capital never goes there. It soon becomes a melancholy remainder of the quaint, sleepy old days of an almost forgotten past and a fine place to go for dreamy, undisturbed rest and repose.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

There is no matter of greater public importance than the health of the people. To wait the appearance of the epidemic or scourge is always disastrous. When the work of constructing the Panama Canal was to be undertaken the thing regarded as of first and paramount importance was to convert the disease breeding surroundings into healthful conditions. To remove the cause of contagion is the part of wisdom. The sanitary engineer, the creation of healthful conditions, are the demands of the medical and sanitary science of the present. Many of the cities and towns of Iowa, by constantly turning filth and pollution into the streams and rivers, are transforming them into sources of disease, indeed; making them an actual menace to the health of the people. This condition will continually grow worse unless a remedy is provided. It is a subject worthy of your instant and most careful consideration. Enforceable provision for sewage disposal which would protect our streams from pollution and the health and lives of the people ought to be provided.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The Thirty-fifth General Assembly adopted and referred to you a resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution authorizing the taxation, for State revenue purposes only, such classes of property as may be deemed proper by the legislature. This is a very important and most salutary proposition and ought, by all means, in my judgment, to be agreed to by you, to the end that it may be submitted to the people at the election in 1916. If the constitution were amended as proposed, it would go far toward making a solution of some of our tax problems and removing much of the dissatisfaction that now exists on account of the practical working of our tax laws. If, for instance, our State revenue were derived entirely from the taxation of railway properties, transportation, equipment, telegraph, telephone and public utility companies in general, then local assessments of valuations and levies would have nothing to do with State revenue, pay no tax for said purpose. The incentive for low assessments to avoid the payment of State taxes would be removed. There would be an incentive to assessments at fair actual values and low rates. This would be a very great advantage to the State in its standing away from home. I think I may safely say to you that political economists who have given the subject of taxation the most thought and deepest study agree in recommending the proposition suggested.

Another constitutional amendment proposed by the last General Assembly was that favoring woman suffrage. Twice the republican party has adopted a plank in its platform declaring in its favor. The progressive party made a similar declaration. The proposed amendment ought to be agreed to by you so that this long debated question may be submitted at the next general election.

MEANDERED LAKES AND LAKE BEDS.

Among all the multitudinous duties imposed by the law upon the Executive Council none are more difficult of fulfillment than those with reference to what are called the lakes and lake beds of the State. There are constant appeals for the drainage of some of these lake beds. There is just as constant opposition to it. There is a constant demand for the preservation of the lakes. I do not think there is a man in Iowa who would drain or destroy one of them. The republican party, in one of its planks, demanded, at its last convention, that the lakes be preserved. The difficulty arises with reference to lakes which were meandered by the original Government survey, but which, as some insist, have degenerated into swamps and marshes, or practically filled with vegetable growth, and no longer have any of the characteristics of a lake. Some of our most public spirited and progressive citizens urge that these should be preserved and "improved," as authorized by the law, by dredging. This has seemed to the Council as utterly impracticable, as well as being entirely prohibited by the cost. The Council ought not to be charged with the duty and responsibility of settling the controversy; indeed, they cannot settle it. This General Assembly ought not to adjourn without enacting definite, specific legislation touching this question. I urgently recommend that there be appointed a commission from your membership, or better, perhaps, from citizens not holding any public office, to examine such lake beds, and all of them, and report definitely and fully to you the condition of each one of them, to the end that there may be definite legislative disposition of each such lake bed. Or, if this fails of approval, and it is still thought that the Council should be charged with any duty with reference to them, that the law be so amended as to authorize and direct it to survey and drain, or sell, or drain and sell, or drain and retain for the State only such meandered lake beds as no longer contain lakes but have become swamps or marshes or filled with vegetable growth and lost the distinguishing characteristics of lakes as being permanent bodies of water. The legislation should be specific as to the very lake beds to which it shall apply and should dispose of and settle the lake question.

The law also provides that where there is a sale of a lake bed under its provisions the proceeds thereof must be transmitted by the State Treasurer to the county treasurer in the county where the lake bed was situated and that it shall there be placed to the credit of the county road fund to be expended by the Board of Supervisors in the same manner as other road funds. This, it seems to me, is plainly wrong. The lake beds belong to the people of the State—to the State—and the proceeds of any such sales ought to go into the general fund of the State for the broader benefit of all the people. What belongs to all of the people should not have local expenditure only. The statute should be so amended.

We are entering upon the policy of establishing custodial farms. Some of these old lake beds contain from three to nine hundred acres of land. If the legislature orders them, or any of them drained, the land thus reclaimed should be kept by the State and some, perhaps, used in the future for such farms. It is not good business to pay probably $200 an acre for land when the State has land that could be put in cultivation for half that sum and, if properly located, utilized as such a farm. Besides, it would seem that the labor of prisoners could be used in tiling the land.

APPROPRIATION FOR GETTYSBURG DEFICIT.

The last General Assembly made an appropriation of $10,000 "for the purpose of enabling the State to assist in the celebration upon the battlefield of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg." It soon became apparent that this amount would not be sufficient to pay the expenses of the surviving participants in that great conflict who desired to attend. In this emergency Hon. Lafayette Young, a public spirited citizen of Des Moines, Editor of the Des Moines Capital, began a campaign through his paper to raise additional funds by public subscription and raised $3,338. It transpiring that there were not as many eligible under the provisions of the law as was at first supposed only $1,278.94 of said amount raised was used.

As directed by the statute the commission appointed to carry out its provisions reported fully and satisfactorily and requested that you be recommended to make an appropriation of $1,278.94 to cover the deficit in the original appropriation and to the end that the amount used from each donation be returned to the doner, the amount not used having already been returned. With the request by the commission I am glad to comply.

CELEBRATION OF NEGRO FREEDOM.

There is to be held in the city of Chicago, Illinois, during this year an Exposition celebrating the Half-Century Anniversary of Negro Freedom. The State of Illinois at the last session of its legislature made an appropriation of $25,000 in behalf of this Exposition which it was then supposed, as I am advised, would be confined simply to that State. Since then it has been decided to make it national in its scope for the purpose of showing the progress the race has made in this country since its emancipation. Iowa and many other States have appointed commissions to co-operate with the Illinois commission in making this celebration general and a success. Not in all the history of the world has any other people under circumstances at all to be compared with the condition of the negro in America fifty years ago made the progress he has made in that time. Emerging from slavery almost helpless, penniless, homeless, ignorant, they now, about ten millions of them, are taxed on a billion dollars worth of property, thousands of them have good homes, illiteracy is reduced from a total to thirty-five per cent, many of them are succeeding in very many lines of business, professional and otherwise, and large number of them are excellent citizens. The negro in the United States wants to take note of the progress he has made, to show what he has done, in the only years he has ever had a chance and to take counsel and encouragement for the future. The record is a proud one and he ought to be encouraged. There are fifteen thousand negro residents of Iowa, I am told. They will ask a small appropriation for the purpose named. If you find there is a proper organization for a proper and judicious expenditure of the money I think you ought to give it. Iowa can afford to be thus helpful to a race only so recently held under the bondage of slavery and ignorance.

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION.

The Thirty-fifth General Assembly failed to make an appropriation to enable the State to participate in the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco which will open on the twentieth of February. Some of the public spirited men of the State, believing it would be a great mistake to fail of representation there, took up the question in behalf of what they conceived would be of great advantage to the State as over against its great disadvantage in having neither name nor place at the meeting point of the world to recount the progress of humanity and gather hope, encouragement and inspiration for the future. The good that would ultimately come to the State—having as she does all the advantages of location and natural resources that have ever throughout the world's history made for human greatness, in taking her place side by side with the other great sovereignties of our own country and of the world, they believed would justify sacrifice of time, effort and money on their part. Animated with this spirit and with faith in the people some of them, on behalf of the whole, journeyed to San Francisco and selected and dedicated a site for an Iowa building. Returning to the State they took up the matter of raising funds for the construction of the building and for the general purposes of a creditable exhibit for the State. Their visit to the leading cities of the State by a special train in this behalf is a fact familiar to all. The expense of this train and the trip to the coast and all incidental expenses were paid by themselves and their time given as well. Prominent men in the cities visited pledged their assistance and upon these pledges the committee pledged their credit by promissory note to the amount of many thousand dollars. It may be said, I think, that these men believed that the people of Iowa would approve and respond through the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, although, so far as I know, it was not at that time asked that that should be done. Since that time the Executive Committee have given of their time and their money in carrying on the work thus so hopefully and courageously undertaken. They have taken charge of the work and constructed a beautiful and commodious building upon the site selected at a cost of $30,000. It compares very favorably with the buildings erected by thirty-eight other states. The work of preparing an exhibit for the State in all of her interests, agriculture, horticulture, manufacturing, animal industry, indeed, in every way, is going on under the guidance and management of these same men. They believe that for the building and for making an exhibit creditable to the State and for the expenses (not including the personal expenses I have mentioned) incident to so great an enterprise there ought to be made by you an adequate appropriation. I agree with them. The good that will come to Iowa from her representation and the exhibit she will make in my judgment will far surpass in value the appropriation. I recommend that you grant it.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT IN STATE LIBRARY.

The State Library has been extended so as to cover practically every field of library activity, professional and otherwise. The one notable exception is in the medical field. The State Medical Society in conjunction with the State Library Board will ask you for a small amount as a book fund and also that you provide the State Library with a medical assistant who should be a man "educated in medicine and surgery and familiar with the language in which the literature of his profession finds expression." I can see no good reason why this great profession as well as the profession of the law should not be represented by a well equipped department in the library. Indeed, I should think the library incomplete so long as it is wanting in this great field of human knowledge, investigation and rapid development. I hope you will give the Medical Society and the library board sympathetic hearing and grant their request.

REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

The committee on retrenchment and reform has submitted a report which, if acted upon favorably, involves a reorganization of the state government. I shall not enter upon a discussion of it. It involves questions of great interest and a discussion of them would discover, I doubt not, very conflicting views. Inasmuch as it proposes practically an entire change in the governor's office with relation to the state government I think, perhaps, it would be in better taste if I should pass it with only a suggestion. It proposes to make the governor the responsible head of all of the departments of the state government, responsible for the service and efficiency of every man throughout the entire organization, or practically so. That would be little, if any, change from the situation as it now exists for I have already discovered in my experience that the governor is held responsible for everything that is done or happens without being clothed with the powers the reorganization proposes. I don't see why two or three years should be squandered in fixing up the constitution so they can get at him. That would be a work of supererogation. They go straight at him anyhow. At any rate that has been my observation.

FOUR YEAR TERM FOR GOVERNOR.

But seriously, while there is talk about reorganizing the government, I want to say I am thoroughly convinced, both from observation and my own experience, that it would be far more satisfactory to the people and far better service could be rendered them if the governor were elected for a term of four years rather than two and made ineligible to another successive term. As it is, he enters upon his first term with the incoming of a general assembly. That ought not to be so, but I will not discuss that question. Soon, if not immediately, after the adjournment of the legislature, if the experience of recent years is to be taken as a precedent, and in view of our primary system of nominating candidates, he must begin preparations for and eventually enter upon a long speaking campaign for a renomination. Securing it he must practically continue his campaign for re-election. He must do these things or ignominiously and pusillanimously sometimes surrender all that he stood for and abandon all that he hoped to accomplish in the way of public service. All this constantly distracts his mind from his public duties, prevents him from giving himself wholly and unreservedly to the study of public affairs as they relate to the welfare of the people—prevents him from devoting all his energies to the public good. It all seriously affects his efficiency as a public servant.

If, also, he should be a timid soul, thinking more of office than of public duty, and afraid of his fellow-citizens rather than challenging them to things that make for human betterment he might move softly, gently, whisperingly through a first term in the hope of no antagonism for a second. During a second term he might become courageous when there was no enemy in view and nobody could get at him and might really accomplish something. But the first term would be lost. Whatever type of man he might be a four year term and ineligibility to a second consecutive term would enable him at once and continually for four years to concentrate all of his energies upon his duties as a public servant, studying the business of the State, the needs of the State in all her diversified interests with nothing "to molest or make him afraid."

Another potent reason for a four year term lies in the fact that two years only enables one to become thoroughly acquainted with the business of the state and reach his best efficiency and especially so if he is compelled to give himself to two campaigns in the meantime. Strong, efficient service could be better rendered in my judgment by a four year term. I invite you to consider this matter and the necessary change in the constitution.

REDUCTION OF MEMBERSHIP IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

I have long been of the opinion that legislative bodies in this country are too large for the best, most careful and most satisfactory work. This opinion has ripened into a conviction. If our house of representatives were reduced from 108 to 50 and our senate to twenty-five I believe any observing, thoughtful man, especially if he had actual experience in legislation, would agree with this view. Legislation could and would receive much more careful and critical study. It would be much more thorough, concise, clear, mature. It would be far less voluminous. Our legislature would become in fact a deliberative body. There would be better quality of debate. There would be better behavior of members. Numbers obstruct deliberation. A large number involves confusion and prevents concentration of thought and effort. The principle is not recognized anywhere else among men than in law-making assemblies. It would not be recognized anywhere else where really great things are to be done in a really great and efficient way. I am convinced that fifty men in the house could and would produce better results than one hundred and eight and that twenty-five men in the senate would be more efficient than the fifty whether in the senate or house.

I believe, too, that upon the whole such a change would result in securing better fitted, abler and more experienced men for legislators. The work would be more inviting, give, as it seems to me, better and wider opportunity for public service. It would elevate standards. Representative and senatorial districts would be enlarged, giving a greater responsibility and importance to the office. Judge Story, an eminent and perhaps the most profound American law writer, in his great work on The Constitution says:

“Higher qualifications will usually be sought and required where the representatives are few than where they are many. And there will be a higher ambition to serve where the smallness of the number creates a desirable distinction than where it is shared with many and, of course, individual importance diminished.”

Again, while still considering this subject he says, “Let the Federalist speak in its own fearless and expressive language” and quotes from it the words of James Madison, always profoundly wise, as follows: “In all legislative assemblies, the greater the number composing them may be, the fewer will the men be who will, in fact, direct their proceedings. In the first place, the more numerous any assembly may be, of whatever characters composed, the greater is known to be the ascendancy of passion over reason.” In the next place, the larger the number, the greater will be the proportion of members of limited information and weak capacities. Now, it is precisely on characters of this description that the eloquence and address of the few are known to act with all their force. In the ancient republics, where the whole body of the people assembled in person, a single orator or an artful statesman was generally seen to rule with as complete a sway as if a scepter had been placed in his single hand. On the same principle, the more multitudinous a representative assembly may be rendered, the more it will partake of the infirmities incident to collective meetings of the people. The people can never err more than in supposing that in multiplying their representatives beyond a certain limit they strengthen the barrier against the government of a few. Experience will forever admonish them that, on the contrary, after securing a sufficient number for the purpose of safety, of local information, and of diffusive sympathy, they will counteract their own views by every addition to their representatives. The countenance of the government may become more democratic, but the soul that animates it will be more oligarchic. The machine will be enlarged, but the fewer, and often the more secret, will be the springs by which its motions are directed.” If the measure of the number required should, as he says, only be sufficient to secure “safety, local information and diffusive sympathy,” not a large number would be required in Iowa. Her interests throughout her borders are practically the same. Any intelligent, well informed man fully understands them. A very moderate number of men from different sections would bring full information as to her needs and there would be perfect accord sympathetically. As it is the wonderfully diversified interests of a vast territory, not fully understood in any particular section, and extending over forty-eight states, only has one representative to every 210,415 of population, while Iowa, every part of which is intimately known by every other part, has in her legislature one member to about 15,000 of her population. No basis of reasoning upon the proper number for a legislative body has ever justified this.

Again, responsibility diminishes as members increase. The dominant thought of the present is that responsibility in public affairs should be capable of actual, definite location and that the best results cannot be attained otherwise. This reasoning has just as much force as elsewhere when applied to a legislative body. But there can be no satisfactory fixing of responsibility where the body is unreasonably large and unwieldy. Where everybody is responsible for a given action or result, nobody is responsible.

A matter of smaller consideration, and yet a thing to be considered, is the reduction of the expense of a session by, doubtless, one hundred thousand dollars,—a half million dollars in five sessions.

If these considerations are by you deemed of enough importance to submit to the people the question of an amendment to the constitution you should pass the necessary resolution looking to that end.

COST OF A LEGISLATIVE SESSION.

I have just made reference to a consideration of the cost of a session of the legislature. I think it not improper for me to say more. Based upon experience in the past it is estimated this session will cost $218,125.00. Of this amount $163,500 will be paid as salaries and mileage to the members and the lieutenant governor. The balance of $54,625.00 will be paid for supplies and "help." I think a fair estimate for supplies and sundry expenses would be $4,625.00, leaving $50,000.00 or $500.00 per day for a hundred day session for "help,"—meaning "extra help," clerks, door-keepers etc. Some of this is absolutely essential, of course, but much of it is pure—unadulterated "graft." As president of the senate in the Thirty-third General Assembly I said to the senate: "Public money is taken from the people for a public purpose only and it is intolerable that it should be used for petty graft or turned over even in small sums to persons who have rendered no equivalent of service in return. No young man or woman should be taught to feel that the state is an institution upon which it is permissible to work a graft, and no old man should be allowed to do it. Such a course cheapens the public service, dishonors the men engaged in it, and lowers the ideal of public life. It does not beget respect for public officials or for the state as an institution for the administration of government or for law; it cannot be to our credit, Senators, that doorkeepers doze in these galleries for one hundred days at the public expense, the doors not opening a half dozen days during the session, except to permit their entrance. On occasion of need men called from the extra help about the Capitol could be stationed there. A dozen doorkeepers are used in the two houses where none at all are needed. Every man of legislative experience knows that many more committee clerks and other clerks are employed than are needed. Every senator and representative knows of clerks sitting around these chambers in luxurious ease from one end of the session to the other, doing practically nothing at all, and every senator and representative knows that such a thing should fall under his condemnation."

I was criticised then for saying these things. It was said to be "small and picayune." Both the principle of the thing and the money are involved and what I said then I say again with emphasis. It is reprehensible and indefensible. The Thirty-sixth General Assembly ought to organize along different lines.

THE BEE-KEEPERS.

The bee-keepers of the state, I am advised by the state inspector, suggest that their bees ought to be taxed. I think perhaps that never before in all the world's history since the days when they went up to Jerusalem to be taxed, and that was involuntary, has it been recorded that men suggested to the government. "Here am I, tax me." "Ten stand of bees" are now exempt from taxation. Many apiarists own many more than this but only one or two have been found who say the assessors would list them. They say that by listing bees for taxation a million dollars of assessed valuation will be added. I suggest in view of all this that you repeal the bee exemption. The bee-keeping industry in its value to the state is already surprising, although it is not developed to any great extent. In his report the inspector says "it is capable of sustaining many thousands of people in comfort and adding millions of dollars to the resources of the commonwealth." The bee-keepers will ask of you a little additional appropriation and in view of the spirit in which they come to you and the possibilities of the industry, which have been amply demonstrated, I recommend that you grant it.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES.

A legislative committee has taken the place in the mind of many of us of something more powerful than the body which creates it. This, of course, is absurd unless the body has surrendered its authority by rules. Primarily a committee cannot control its creator. The legislative body never loses control over a bill or one of its committees. It may by vote sustain or defeat a committee, it is true, but the supreme authority is still there. We hear of such things as a bill being "lost in a committee" or "smothered in a committee." This need not be unless it is what is wanted by a majority of the house or senate. This all creates a prejudice and distrust of the law-making body. The committee takes on something of secrecy and every member of it is lost as to publicity and responsibility because nobody knows who was there or what was done or how it was done or who did it. This should not be so. A committee should be required to keep a full and exact record of every meeting. It should show who was there. If there was a hearing it should show who was heard and in what behalf. It should show the vote of every member upon every question voted upon and this whole record should accompany every bill coming from a committee and should also be made up into a permanent record of the committee's work for the session. The whispering secretive days—the days of dodging and gliding through the devious ways of dark back alleys are over. I venture to suggest the adoption of such a rule by you and that you make such procedure in committee statutory.

HABIT-FORMING DRUGS.

Nothing can be more ruinous than the use of habit-forming drugs. I need do nothing more than suggest their deleterious effect upon health, morals, intellect, character. Nothing can possibly be more reprehensible than the sale of them. No denunciation of the sale of them can be too severe. Strengthen the law, if you can, so as to effectually get at the evil. Make the possession presumptive evidence of intent to sell. Provide, as the attorney-general has suggested, a remedy by injunction. Make the place where the drugs are sold or kept for sale in violation of law a nuisance and abate it as in the case of liquor nuisances.

THE SHORT BALLOT.

I discussed the short ballot question in my inaugural address two years ago and the Thirty-fifth General Assembly made some progress in that direction. The question is one of even greater interest than it was then. It will continue to thrust itself to the front until there is some change that will be an adoption of the short ballot principle which is: "When you want representation, elect. When you want administration, appoint." That is all there is to it and the application of the principle solves the problem. Under our present methods everybody knows there is no such thing, and cannot be, as an intelligent selection of at least half of our public officials. But I will not re-discuss the question. It ought to have your most earnest and careful attention. I might, however, suggest that certainly the office of railroad commissioner ought to be made appointive.

PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL.

Neither will I re-discuss the question of public utilities. I also discussed that question two years ago and I now re-iterate all I then said and also refer you to what I then said on the question of

COUNTY MANAGEMENT.

I thoroughly believe that you ought to so change the law as to permit the appointment or employment of a manager of the business affairs of the county—one who will give his whole time to the duties of his office. Many thousands of dollars could be saved. What is said here applies as well to towns and cities. By your permission I refer you to what I heretofore said on this subject.

CONCLUSION.

I have presented these different subjects for your consideration only in a suggestive way and left the consideration of them exhaustively to you, if, perchance, you may consider them of sufficient moment to engage your serious attention, as I hope you may. I am sure your final judgment and action will be right and with this confidence I submit them.

The President announced that the time had arrived for the canvass of the votes cast for the offices of Governor and Lieutenant Governor at the election held November 3rd, A. D. 1914, and announced as teller on the part of the Senate Senator Hilsinger and as assistant tellers Senators Foskett and Hagemann.

Speaker Atkinson announced as teller on the part of the House Representative Coast of Johnson and as assistant tellers Representatives Kopp of Henry and Steelsmith of Osceola.

The President further announced that in accordance with the statute, tellers Senator Hilsinger and Representative Coast would constitute the judges of said canvass.

The Speaker then opened the returns in the presence of the joint convention and the tellers proceeded to canvass the vote for Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the State of Iowa, at the election held Tuesday, November 3rd, 1914.

Invocation, Reverend Charles S. Medbury, Des Moines.

Our loving Father Who art in Heaven, we are grateful for the privileges of a service so sacred as this. And we pray, Our heavenly Father, that coming into this service, the merely formal, the merely perfunctory, may be lost sight of, and the dignity of it reach the heart of every man, woman and child of our commonwealth. May we here by petition, Almighty God, have the blessing and the favor of Heaven upon the state we love. We thank Thee for a sacred history in which, Lord, are the lives of all men and women,—the named and the unnamed of earth are one record in the lowly sphere in the Lamb's Book of Life. And Our Father, we thank Thee for the recent years; we thank Thee for the years that have culminated; we thank Thee for the worthy administration of which the state may well be proud. We thank Thee today that without regard to party lines, without regard to affiliations, there is a thought of gladness in the hearts and minds of all that Iowa has taken no backward steps; that its forces are enabled by ideals to increase the worthy state of all men, by making rich the poor, by making strong the weak, by making mighty the lowly; that Thy holy humanitarianism will come to have increased emphasis.

We thank Thee for our Christian governor, Our Father. We thank Thee for the lives that have brought honor to his name. We thank Thee for the courage of his convictions. We thank Thee for the openness of his life. We thank Thee that there has become attached to him no suggestion of unworthy motives, seeking only self or personal aggrandizement.

And, O Lord, as this man, this servant of the people, comes to this position, may we recognize that it is Thee Who has called him. May the boons of Heaven's favor rest upon him, and the opportunity of industry mark every day on the pages of the history of our lovely land.

Father we pray not only for Governor Clarke, but for all his associates; for the state officers; the senators and representatives of this general assembly; and for the goodness and greatness of all our men and all our women and on our cities and towns. And when the scroll is unrolled, and we look back over the history we have made, may we find that every man has used his energy and ability, and that every woman has lent her grace and charm to make a great commonwealth. And so we pray, Our heavenly Father, as lovers of good, that the good may go on, in the name of Christ Our Lord. Amen.

Inaugural address by Governor George W. Clarke.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF GOV. GEORGE W. CLARKE

Delivered to the Thirty-sixth Session of the General Assembly, January, 1915.

Members of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly and Fellow Citizens:

While I am not insensible to the high honor conferred upon me by a re-election to the office of Governor of Iowa, yet I do not come to this day and this gathering in this chamber of the representative men and women of the commonwealth with any exaltation of spirit, but rather with a deep sense of obligation which the honor imposes upon me. I regard the ceremony of this hour to be not for the purpose of conferring distinction upon any one but an assembling of the people here through their chosen representatives to dedicate, consecrate to their service two years of the life of a fellow-citizen. A great state speaks here today in hope. I wish I could realize in service rendered the hope of an intelligent people devoted to human welfare. But ideals so far outrun realization that I know that it is impossible. While I am thus impressed with the occasion, the natural instincts of my mind and heart respond in sincere gratefulness to the people of Iowa, not simply because they have conferred upon me again the office,—there is something better in the abstract than that—but because I seem still to have in some measure their confidence.

Frequently, upon occasions of this kind, opportunity is taken to discuss matters relating to national politics. Doubtless this is because the office is sometimes regarded as having quite a large relation to that subject. I have never had exactly that conception of it. It rather appeals to me as having a very vital relation to the business of the state, to the development and up-building of it in all its great interests and to the common good of the people, not only as citizens of Iowa, but with reference to the contribution the state may make to the sum total of the Great Republic.

What may have appropriateness at this time, it is somewhat difficult to determine. The interest of the world is absorbed in the gigantic war going on in Europe. Our people are contributing to the relief of suffering occasioned by it. The people may take note of it, it seems to me, on an occasion like this, and if I say something about it, and the attitude of mind that it seems to me should prevail among our people with reference to it, I trust it may not be deemed amiss.

Two years ago when we assembled here upon a similar occasion the world was at peace. The great nations of the earth were engaged in the upbuilding of the world. Their commerce covered the seas and the ports of the world welcomed every flag. All around the earth men said mankind had reached the highest point in civilization of which history had made any record. Art, science, literature, had an appreciative world. Their devotees were in all lands. Culture and refinement—the humanities—were appealing to men as never before. Men were talking of universal peace. They were traveling to far away lands beyond oceans for peace conferences. A little later they were preparing for a great celebration among the nations of one hundred years of peace among English speaking peoples. The brotherhood of man seemed about to become a realistic conception and no longer a Utopian dream.

Suddenly, a few months ago, there were gathering armies in the great European nations where civilization after centuries had developed its finest flower and fruitage. Millions of men were marching down to the battle. The roar of the guns has not ceased since. Thousands upon thousands have fallen. The moans of the wounded fill the nights with horror. There is weeping in the homes of a continent and cries of fatherless children. Destruction of the work and toil of centuries, with relentless hand, goes on. The hidden mine explodes and millions of dollars and hundreds of men, helpless, disappear beneath the waves. Suffering indescribable follows in the wake of grim-visaged war. Insanity displaces sanity. Pestilence threatens and starvation follows in its train. The effects on the stricken countries will follow far, far down the years. Babies of today will bear its burdens on their backs through life. The world, shocked, horrified, seems losing its faith in humanity. Man, after all, at the center of him, it is said, is the same cruel, brutish being as when he lived in the forest and wielded a bludgeon. Civilization is a farce and liable to fall to pieces any day. The brotherhood of man is a weak, sickly sentimentalism. Men relapse into barbarism in a week. The foundations for nobility of life and great living crumble during a night. In vain has been the long struggle. In vain the wonderful mechanical inventions of the last century. In vain the discoveries of science. In vain everything except as engines of destruction. In vain Christianity. It is but a thin veneer—a pretense. In vain the Sermon on the Mount. In vain the perfect life and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth. So cry millions of discouraged, despondent, surrendering men and women. Should we have such an attitude of mind? I do not believe in this cry.

I deprecate this cry of failure. The day of surrender should never come. The face of every man and woman should ever be turned toward the future, aglow with hope and their minds and hearts animated with confidence in the ultimate triumph of the great ideals that have ever inspired the men and women whom all the world, good and bad alike, have pronounced blessed and the real Kings and Queens of humanity. I believe with Browning that "God is in his Heaven and all is right with the world." I believe that all things work together for good. Men and women ought to be standing out on the firing line of this faith. I don't believe in the trembling, shrinking, fearing, surrendering life. I believe in the great moral forces of this world. I believe that they are stronger than the unflinchable armies of the Kaiser and of all the artillery and siege guns of the British Empire and of the Czar of all Russia and of all navies that ever floated upon all the seas and of any and all fortifications ever built by men. I do not think this world is a failure. I think that the great, fine, beautiful, inspiring things, beyond description, beyond language, which have been implanted in my soul and yours will ultimately triumph, far away yonder down the centuries it may be. I believe with Tennyson when he said:

"I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."

I believe with the old Hebrew prophet of twenty-six centuries ago that the time will come when "men will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks and nations will not lift up sword against nation, neither will they learn war any more." If this is not so "then is our preaching in vain." If we do not camp a little higher up every day, every month, every year, we are not fulfilling our destiny, as individuals, or as a people. As a people, we should never be "Tenting tonight on the old camp-ground," but as a progressive, inspired people moving on in the line of human betterment. I think we may say:

"And fierce though the friends may fight
And long though the angels hide,
I know that Truth and Right
Have the universe on their side."

Justice, now so trampled upon and now so apparently unattainable, will ultimately prevail. Down in the rotunda of this great building we have inscribed in letters of gold the words, "Justice is the idea of God, the ideal of man." Some one has said Justice was ordained from the foundations of the world. Carlyle, one of the most profound thinkers of the last century, wrote:

"Foolish men imagine that because judgment for an evil thing is delayed there is no justice, but an accidental one here below. Judgment for an evil thing is many times delayed, some a day or two, some a century or two, but it is as sure as life, as sure as death. In the center of the world whirlwind, verily now as in the oldest days, dwells and speaks a God. The great soul of the world is just. There is justice here below and even at bottom there is nothing else but justice. Forget that, thou hast forgotten all. Success will never more attend thee. How can it? I tell thee again, there is nothing else but justice. One strong thing I find here below; the just thing. My friend, if you had all the artillery of the world trundling at your back in support of an unjust thing, and infinite bonfires waiting ahead of thee to blaze centuries long for thy victory on behalf of it—I would advise thee to call a halt. What will thy success amount to? If the thing is unjust, thou hast not succeeded. No, not though bonfires blazed from north to south and bells rang and editors wrote leading articles and the just thing lay trampled out of sight, to all mortal eyes an abolished and annihilated thing." It will rise again. It will prevail. You cannot fight justice out of this world. It is the idea of God. You cannot beat it down by laws or artillery.

So the most appalling, the most gigantic war of all history, has its roots in the wrong thing, the unjust thing. Refer it, if you will, to this incident or that in the past history of nations, yet under it all and struggling for recognition, for supremacy, is the right thing, the just thing. Out of it all I believe may come ultimate good for humanity. The progress of the world has ever been through suffering, tears, death. Truth may in some future years have an easier pathway, but up to the present it "has always ridden on a gun carriage." When the thunder of the guns has ceased, the smoke rolled away and the monuments have been erected to the memory of the fallen, humanity has often moved up a milestone. Human liberty has fought every inch of its way. Never a concession without a fight. The greater the value to the people, the more determined and persistent the contest. The truth of this statement has been realized on the floor of this House scores of times. It is an appalling price to pay, but beyond this world war lies, in all probability, the death of militarism, lies the practical disarmament of the great powers of the earth, comes the removal from the people of the crushing burdens of great armies and navies, comes the disappearance of hereditary rulers and the entrance of more perfect democracies. The world will, it seems to me, demand these things upon the settlement of this awful upheaval of the nations. It will fail of its duty if it does not. All the world will be interested in the settlement. If all these things emerge, has not good come? Will not humanity take a long step forward? Will not the brotherhood of man advance much more nearly toward actual realization? Is there not now almost in sight, as a necessary result, a federation of the world? Are there men in Iowa, or will there be in the Iowa that is to be, men who will sit in a congress of all the earth? May we not be closer than we may possibly realize to a realization of Tennyson's vision?

"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be.

* * * * *

"Till the war-drums throbb'd no longer and the battle flags were furled
In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world."

Why should any man despair? Why should any man cry out, "Civilization is a failure!" It is but crushed Justice and eternal Right coming into their own.

I think we may approve the sentiment:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord,
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He has loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible, swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment seat;
Oh, be swift, my soul, to answer Him, be jubilant, my feet,
Our God is marching on."

Human progress has not stopped. There will be a restoration upon more secure foundations. Has not mankind moved steadily forward through all the ages? Can anybody think it is going to stop now?

Men of Iowa, living in the best day God ever vouchsafed to humanity, under the best and freest government that human wisdom ever devised, at the very top of human conditions, in a land where nature ever smiles and the soil is rich to prodigality, face to the front, fill your minds and hearts with a great faith in the eternal rightness of things, with an inspiring optimism and pull for the common good, for the betterment of human conditions until your State shall come to be the best place in all the earth in which to live. A man ought to set for himself a goal toward which, leaving the things which are behind, he can press forward. He ought to be inspired with a vision inviting to fine accomplishment. The man without a vision is a burden. He is a camp follower. You never can get him out on "the red, roaring firing line."

Iowa is to be greatly congratulated on the splendid public spirit that has sprung up all over the State in the last two years. It doesn't make any difference into what part of the State you go, it is there. There is public discussion of ways and means of growth. More production, better and cleaner farms, better herds, better roads, better streets, better parks, better schools and school-houses, better homes, better and cleaner towns and cities, better sanitary conditions. When before did such a spirit ever get into the very atmosphere of Iowa? To such an extent has this become an all-pervading spirit that the man who does not breathe it has become known throughout the State and gained a kind of distinction. This does not mean a spirit rampant for change for the sake of change. It does not mean a spirit that will out-run the safe, sane, reliable judgment of intelligent, careful men, but it means a spirit that understands the needs and knows how to build a great civilization. It does not mean that anybody thinks that this is but the work of a day, but it means that there is a clear vision of what ought to be and can be done under the conditions of Iowa life and a determination to work out and realize gradually that ideal so far as possible. Did you ever know a time when public office was more regarded as an opportunity for public service than now? Have you not observed that there is far more talk about the common good than there was only a very few years ago? Have you noted how more and more men are giving of their time and money to the public welfare? And it has not all issued in talk. There has been great advancement. It is seen on the farms of the State—better homes and farm buildings—far better and more comfortable life there. Better schools. More school-houses built last year than for very many years before. More children in the schools. A higher average paid for teachers than ever before. Forty-nine fine high school buildings have recently been erected ranging in cost from $15,000 to $190,000. Aside from these, there have very recently been built twenty-two consolidated school buildings ranging in cost from $9,000 to $60,000. There are in the State eighty consolidated schools, and the increase in the last two years was sixty-four. There was more paving done in the towns of Iowa, I am told, in the last year than in ten years before. Time would fail me if I were to attempt to speak fully of the wonderful progress made in the last two years, largely animated by this all-pervasive spirit that I have spoken of that is moving upon and inspiring the lives of the people for better things. May the great State move on.

There are some obstacles, of course. Indeed, it must be said, there are many, and the regrettable thing is that it is so often based on human selfishness. I mean that a man will sometimes place what he deems his own even slight pecuniary interest above what it is perfectly clear would be for the enhancement of the interest of all. There are men who would charge a battery for Iowa against a deadly fire with splendid bravery who would not have the firm courage and patriotism to consent, without the most determined fight, to the change of a law that would divert fifty or a hundred dollars from their pockets annually, although clearly for the common good and worth a hundred thousand dollars annually to the people. There is but one question, it is impossible there could be any other, and that is, is this for the public welfare? If it is, every personal consideration should instantly disappear. I can have no interest, you can have no interest, that is detrimental to the interest of all. Will men let loose of their selfish interests? It is this very question over which battles have been fought and the intellectual contests in the legislative bodies of the world have ever been, when reduced to their last analysis, in innumerable cases, waged about the very same question. As legislators, the question is, is the principle involved sound, and then, is it right, and will it contribute to the common good. Selfish interests have delayed the righteous thing, the just thing, as Carlyle said, some day or two, some year or two, in Iowa history many times. When letters come pouring in upon you from every direction it is very wise to inquire into the source of them. The rule is that you will find them prompted and inspired from a source that would promote an individual rather than the common good. Men familiar with legislative history in Iowa have known of General Assemblies being stampeded in this way from enacting the most wholesome legislation, only to find it become law later, with the final approval of all the people, and to find also that the letters received by them were sent by men who would have benefited most by the law relieving them of the incubus of the selfish interest but had been deceived into thinking that it was detrimental to their good.

You start, Senators and Representatives, into this session under the fire of criticism. Every legislature so starts. Before you have introduced a bill, even before you have come to the Capital City, the discrediting talk about the legislative session and what may or may not be done begins. It is one of the most unfortunate things of our American life that, with an air of superciliousness and superior wisdom, a large part of our citizenship assume to speak of State legislatures, and the Congress of the United States as well, with at least poorly disguised ridicule. Men who have never given any time at all to the consideration of public questions and who have seldom, or never, seen any bad effects of the completed work of a legislature will begin, and have already begun, to discount your work. It has actually become a habit. It brings into contempt with young people especially the law-making department of the State—by far the most important, bearing a greater weight of responsibility, than any other department of government. Neither the Executive nor the Judicial department can be compared with it in its importance to the life, happiness and destiny of the commonwealth. And yet I but speak the truth when I say that to be known as a member of the legislature is to be regarded by many with a certain sort of condescension. To such an extent has this thing grown up among the people that I have known most excellent men shrink from the unpleasant publicity it would give them to become a candidate for a member of the legislature—a place capable of commanding the very best equipment and more versatility of talent than any other in the State. It is all a part of our want of respect for law. Indeed, it breeds the want of such respect. It brings about the failure to enforce the law. If the people and the newspapers assiduously but, perhaps, sometimes, thoughtlessly, by slighting reference and sometimes open condemnation, bring about the impression that the legislature is more an instrument of evil than anything else, there will not be much reverence for the lawmaker's law. There are men who do this and then talk about good citizenship, forgetting that this is the very worst sort of citizenship. I am not talking about fair, dignified, honorable criticism, or corrective suggestions, but I refer, as you know, to the I-am-the-superior-curling-lip-contempt sort of suggestion and criticism. This ought not to move you, but, I am frank to say, you start with this handicap—the handicap that makes a man hesitate and makes some men afraid. Be not afraid.

Another thing will be your experience, and it grows out of the habit of the public mind of which I have just spoken. When your work is done, the better it is done, if you do anything worthy of yourselves and the State, if you make a record for really wise, constructive legislation, especially if you change an old, worn out way of doing a thing—a way adapted to by-gone days and conditions, to wise, up-to-date business methods, if you do something for the public welfare that prys some men loose from a few-dollar-per-year position or from some business graft, you may be assured that a storm of condemnation will fall upon you before you have been home thirty days. Of course, if you do nothing you will escape all this. The man who never does anything never arouses any antagonisms. The man who is never close enough to the battle line to hear the music of the bullets and shells never gets hit. And the men whom your legislation does the most for are often the men who will condemn you most severely. After you have given weeks, sometimes months of time, to the consideration of a measure and reached a wise and sound conclusion, your constituents who have not given the subject two hours of really careful study and thought will pour out their vials of wrath on your heads. That is what is coming to you. It is not decent treatment. On the other hand, it is a reflection on your honesty; it is a charge of your abandonment of the public welfare; it is a declaration of a want of confidence. I want to suggest to the great Iowa constituency of this General Assembly that it can do no more unreasonable, unjust and unfair thing than to condemn its representatives before it has given the same careful study and consideration to the subject under as favorable circumstances for acquiring facts and knowledge of conditions and results to follow as they had. The decent, right, honest, patriotic thing to do is to assume, what you know to be a fact before these men left their communities, that they were honest, true men and that they would not have enacted the law if they had not thought it right and in the interest of the common good. When you have made this study under this assumption and given the law time to be tested, then condemn, if you are not satisfied, but not before. You have no right to do so before. There has never been a great, constructive piece of legislation where the loss of political heads did not follow and in every case time has vindicated the value and wisdom of the law. And it is a fact that the very men who led the victims to the political slaughter have often been the men to whom the law has been of most value and the men who afterwards would have fought its repeal with all the energy they could command. And no such law, so far as I have discovered, has ever yet been repealed. No law touching a great subject ever comes from the legislature perfect. It would be foolish to suppose that could be so. Its imperfections, on testing it, however, can be discovered and remedied by amendments.

The truth of what I have said here could be easily proved by many examples. I need only instance the drainage law enacted by the Thirtieth General Assembly. It fell under the most violent condemnation and its repeal was demanded. It, however, added multiplied thousands of acres to Iowa farms and hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of dollars to value of farm products. But I need not go further back than to the last legislature. When before in the history of the States did such a storm of condemnation fall upon men? There was the road law. Its repeal was demanded with the utmost insistency. In just this brief period a wonderful change has taken place in public sentiment in its favor. Who made the most noise and incited the insurrection? For the most part, the men who had for years profited enormously in the sale of material for bridge and culvert construction. But now it has had the endorsement of the meeting of the Boards of Supervisors of the State. It has the distinction of being referred to as the model road law by government experts in road building. Under it, and it has hardly yet had time to get under way, more good, permanent road work has been done in Iowa than in very many years put together before. Under it the people are getting value received for their money while before millions upon millions were wasted. Time will completely vindicate its wisdom and the men who enacted it and took the pitiless, cruel storm, the men who laid down their political lives for the good of the people.

There is the school superintendent law. Because of the nature of it, it has, perhaps, not yet reached its full vindication. The legislature thought that office, and through it the schools of Iowa, ought not to be made the football of politics. In the great public school interests, they thought, it ought not to be that anybody, without reference to qualifications, could be elected county superintendent of schools, as had been done in some counties.

What else has the Thirty-fifth General Assembly, the violently condemned, to its credit? Just to instance a few measures by the briefest statement:

- Against unfair discrimination in trade;
- Fraudulent advertising;
- Books of accounts photographed for depositions, used in evidence;
- Carrying concealed weapons;
- Board of Arbitration to settle disputes, prevent strikes;
- Instructions to jury submitted to counsel before read to jury;
- Weights and measures law for protection of people;
- Public recreation and play grounds for schools;
- Right to acquire up to five acres for school grounds;
- State aid to consolidated schools;
- Providing for Normal Courses in high schools;
- State colony for epileptics;
- Establishment of hog cholera serum plant;
- Reorganization of State Board of Health—now the most effective in the State's history;
- Strengthening law as to bureau of labor statistics as to inspections, accidents, etc.;
- Custodial department at Knoxville and payment of inmates for work;
- Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Act;
- Department of Insurance;
- Employment of prisoners on public highways;
- Election of United States Senators by the people;
- Shortening ballot by making clerk and reporter of Supreme Court and State Superintendent appointive;
- Reorganization of State Superintendent's department;
- Capitol extension bill.

The list might be much extended. The Thirty-fifth was, perhaps, the most violently condemned legislature in the history of the State, yet I venture to say there is not more than one other that can for a moment stand in comparison with it. The future will thoroughly and completely vindicate it in spite of some mistakes it made. You men of the Thirty-sixth are the successors to those of the Thirty-fifth. You are good, honest, true, faithful, patriotic men, proud of Iowa, loving her, devoted to the common good to human betterment, and your constituents know it. They ought not to assume the attitude I have described and I speak of it thus publicly because it is a public wrong and good citizenship, on reflection, will see that it is.

I have already spoken of the zeal that exists in the State for its upbuilding. If you will bear with me I shall like to be specific with reference to several matters.

CO-OPERATION OF INDUSTRIES.

There is much consideration given in these days to the building up and development of particular interests in the State. It is well that it is so, but it has sometimes seemed to me that there is much loss of effort. Much good is done and advancement is made all of the time but more could be accomplished if there were a greater combination of efforts. To illustrate: There are held annual meetings of the Corn Belt Meat Producers' Association, the Corn Growers, County and District Fair Managers, the Poultry Men, the Dairy Men, the Bee-Keepers, the Swine, Cattle and Horse Breeders and perhaps other organizations all having to do primarily with the farm, or with life on the farm and, fundamentally, with the development of the wealth and greatness of the State. These meetings are all held separately. In this way every man is taught to consider only his own individual interest and business. Each one of these only represents, however, one element entering into the increase of the State's wealth and the betterment of conditions. The exchange of ideas, the discussion of subjects pertaining exclusively to the particular industry is admittedly very helpful, but such methods do not make for the bigness of the man in the best sense. His vision becomes too circumscribed. He fails to realize that the greatness of his business and the completest success of it must, after all, depend on the measure of success or volume and profit of every other one of these lines of effort. The greatest sum of prosperity and human well-being can only be attained when all are prosperous and general contentment prevails. Every man is dependent upon every other man. Every business is dependent upon every other business. These are but expressions of a general principle, but we cannot get away from it. We never can make a great State here, superior in its achievements and attracting marked attention on account of them, nor can we have great, big Iowa men until they come to see that the other fellow's business is their business, too. Each one of these lines of endeavor and others that might be named are capable of a tremendous contribution to the State's wealth, but to get it the men of Iowa ought to be behind every one of them. In other words, there ought to be combination of effort. There ought to be co-ordination of all of these interests. There ought to be team work. Here are the bee-keepers in a meeting alone. Nobody but themselves knowing much about it or taking any interest in it. Yet they can turn hundreds of thousands of dollars into the State's wealth. Yonder are the dairymen, likewise alone, and the swine breeders, cattle and horse breeders, the poultry men, the meat producers, the horticulturists—a few men comparatively at each place, as if all Iowa were not very vitally interested in all these things. There may be difference in degree of importance to the common welfare among these industries, but all are important—very important. As things have been going, in their one-sidedness instead of their wholeness of interest, some are led to think and speak of some of these interests as of slight consequence. Every man wants every other man to be greatly interested in his particular interest, but he forgets to reciprocate. The men engaged in the development of finer and better animals forget that there is such a thing, for instance, as fruit breeding, such a thing as making new plants and trees. The exhibits of the horticultural society show as fine apples as are produced anywhere, but they practically come from the southern sections of the State. What Iowa needs and must have in the coming years are apples, peaches, pears, plums and other fruits that will grow and thrive and bear in the different soils in all sections of the State—on the prairies of central and northern Iowa. I am told that it is practically impossible to grow fruits for Iowa which were bred “in the moist air and timbered regions bordering the eastern seaboard or the great lakes.” It is said “The Mississippi valley has a fiercer climate of heat and cold and great and sudden changes” and that there must be bred trees and plants adapted to each particular region—to Iowa. Mr. C. G. Patten of Charles City, has in a quiet way been devoting himself to this work. A leading horticulturist of Iowa for more than forty years says of him: “He is a genius in his way and has done more than any other man east of the Rocky Mountains. The work of Mr. Burbank of California does not count, as his productions are not suited to this climate and are mostly entire failures here. Mr. Patten has the most extensive laboratory for producing new and adapted varieties of fruits that exists between the Rocky Mountains and the Atlantic Ocean. He has spent his life and strength at this work for nearly forty years and is now well past eighty.” It gives me the greatest pleasure to in this public way call attention to Mr. Patten’s work. Modest, unassuming, quietly, intelligently, without reward or hope thereof, he is giving himself to the future. It is for Iowa that he wants to breed fruits adapted to her climate and her soil—adapted as if they were indigenous here. He has already done a great work. He says, “I am confident that the horticultural society of Iowa will have the honor of promoting the organization of a distinctly new, high quality pear and the most hardy type of cultivated pear tree ever known.” This work ought to have encouragement and support. Other breeders should take notice and should lend their support, interest and encouragement. The other earnest, intelligent man’s work is of vast moment also. This work, continued and supported as it ought to be, will mean millions upon millions of dollars to Iowa in the coming years. And it is toward the future, the future, that every right man should have his face set. The problems of the world will be solved when men look upon life as a service to humanity. It all lies away yonder. What is your contribution to be? To be specific, what is it to be to the Iowa rising yonder in the distance in splendid vision?

I have spoken of horticulture by way of illustrating the thought that I want to present here. I might have taken any other great industry. It is well, very well, these meetings of these different interests in the fall and winter of the year. But why would it not be a great thing if they would all make a week of it and after the separate meetings and special discussions, give, say two days of the week, to a general, altogether meeting to form a better and closer acquaintance with each other and with what each is trying to do and the greatness and possibilities of the work and business of the separate organizations and thus co-ordinate these interests, organize them as a whole, do team work, create a general helpful, sympathetic mutuality that will arouse an enthusiasm for all these things that are to bring satisfaction, comfort and wealth to all the people now and in greater measure in the future, thus, indeed, every man becoming a promoter of a "Greater Iowa."

I do not know that any legislation could be suggested to bring about a result which, it seems to me, is so desirable, but I submit these thoughts for consideration and call attention to Chapter 140 of the Acts of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly providing for "County Corporations for Improvement of Agriculture, Animal Husbandry, and Horticulture," with the inquiry, Why not a State wide incorporation for the promotion of the interests I have mentioned, thus bringing about organization, co-operation and concentration of effort? Explode a little powder, laid about, here and there, and its force is dissipated, lost and disappears in a puff of smoke. Get it together, confine it, get it behind something, then ignite it and the ball instantly flies away yonder, one mile, two, five miles with tremendous effectiveness. So may it not be to get together and amalgamate these great Iowa activities?

AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS.

Believing that it would result in great benefit to our agricultural interests and promotion of the general good I asked the last legislature to authorize me by resolution to appoint and commission as representatives of the State not more than three persons to visit foreign lands, especially Great Britain and Ireland, to study at first hand agricultural conditions and methods with reference to co-operation, land tenantry and the preservation of soil fertility and make a report of results, facts and conclusions. The request was granted and two of the most eminent and best qualified men of the State for the task, Hon. James Wilson and Hon. Henry Wallace, were appointed. They were remarkably well fitted for the mission because of many years' study of agricultural conditions and needs and a genuine interest in and devotion to agricultural betterment. They visited the countries named, made a most careful study and most instructive report which will be placed on your desks for your careful consideration.

Subsequently, and some time after the adjournment of the legislature, I appointed another commission of especially qualified men, namely, Hon. John Cownie, Hon. Eugene Secor and Hon. F. D. Steen, to investigate and report upon the needs of agriculture in Iowa. They, also, made a most helpful and suggestive report. I urge upon you a most conscientious study of what these men have to say in these reports. They both raise a question of very greatest importance which, sooner or later will force itself on the people—the preservation of our soil fertility. They show that we are exhausting, wasting, destroying it all the time on almost half the farms of the State. This is a matter of great public concern. There cannot be a great people without great soil production. The greatness, indeed the very life of the State, in fact of the Republic, is founded on the retention and increased fertility of the land. The land robber is a menace to the public good. The present should call a halt. Out of the future comes the cry of determined protest. The countries of the old world were forced to meet and solve the problem and they did it through the experience of centuries. It will be far less difficult of solution here if we begin at once and profit by their experience. The report on conditions in the countries visited says there is "an entire absence of worn-out land" and no complaint "of a want of soil fertility" or "land hunger" on the part of tenants. In substance, it is said, this is all due to the law relating to landlord and tenant. Nearly all the land is cultivated by tenants but there are no short term leases, the term being from fourteen to nineteen years in Scotland and the tenant paid for unexhausted fertility added to the land by him. Here forty per cent of the farms are reported occupied by tenants and most of the leases for only one year. No incentive to improvement upon the land or to increase soil fertility. Impoverish and leave for continued impoverishment by the next tenant. It is a hopeless condition for landlord, tenant and land. The public interest is in the land and legislation must give it consideration first and landlord and tenant next. It is the very first duty of Iowa to preserve her soil. Her sovereignty can find no higher expression. To save her own life she must command the preservation of the means by which she lives. She should forbid that her citizens impoverish the children of the future. There is no question in which society would have greater concern. It rises to a question above merely private rights and interest to one of the public welfare. I have always understood that that which affects the public welfare may be a subject of legislative regulation. There cannot be a matter of greater public interest and therefore can be controlled for the common-good. The Supreme Court of the United States very recently held that a large part of the country's wealth is subject to loss through fire and therefore that fire insurance rates may be fixed and regulated by law in the interest of the common good. By analogy why may we not reason—the soil is a large part of the wealth of the State and the terms of its leasing may be regulated by law in the interest of human welfare. Under conditions as they are shown to be the landlord is not a conservationist and the tenant cannot be. Men speculate in lands, rentals increase, the short term tenant exploits the soil, and not to be blamed, he takes his flight to cheaper lands in other States or under another flag. He should have an interest in the soil he tills. There should be something of a reasonable permanency in his connection with it to inspire his hope. He should be a builder and not a destroyer and so should the landlord. This is a vital question now; it will be doubly so in the future. To solve it now, or to even begin the serious consideration of it, will be the saving of millions of dollars to the future of our State. In one of these reports it is said: "We need laws, both federal and State, that will compel consideration of the land in all leases, making it the chief factor of importance, to be followed later by the claims of the tenant and landlord." This is a problem most difficult of solution, but that should not deter grappling with it. It is easy to point out the conditions which should exist but how to bring them about is quite another thing. We may, at least, begin to think seriously about the problem. I think it must be that the remedy can gradually be worked out. I think I can see that the well-being of the farmer—the owner and tenant—and the land and, ultimately of course, society as a whole, must depend upon such laws as the committee suggests and it must depend also upon a correction of our system of distribution which returns to the producer perhaps not more than half or two-thirds of what the consumer pays and also upon a solution of the great problem of agricultural credit. I submit these reports and suggestions for the special and careful consideration of your committees on agriculture.

THE EXTENSION OF THE CAPITOL GROUNDS.

The 35th General Assembly, after the most careful consideration and study of the immediate, pressing needs of the State and of her needs and greatness in the coming years, authorized and directed the purchase of certain, specific grounds surrounding the Capitol building and directed the levy of a tax from year to year to pay for the same. In this bill was incorporated a plan for the future development of the grounds. This plan, which became a part of the law, was devised by one of the most competent and skilled landscape architects in the world and without expense to the State. The purpose in this was to prevent the haphazard location of buildings, memorials, monuments, walks, drives, etc., in the future thus marring and spoiling the opportunity given by nature to Iowa to have, probably, the most inviting and beautiful Capitol grounds in all the world. The opportunity, already too long neglected, to secure the grounds at a price the future would doubtless forbid and a desire to render a great public service, not only to the present but to the men and women of all the oncoming years in this great commonwealth, prompted your immediate predecessors by an overwhelming majority to pass what has since come to be known as the Capitol Extension Bill. Not only was this bill so passed but afterward when attacked by all the legal learning that could be brought to bear upon it, it was held by an undivided court to be invulnerable to any legal criticism that could be lodged against it. Subsequently the dominant political party of the State, in a contest in which it was a leading issue, refused with very strong emphasis to express its dissatisfaction with what had been done. Again the question, clear cut, undisguised, fully understood in its length and breadth and height and depth was submitted to all of the people of the State for their approval or disapproval. Their pronounced approval is so recent as to be fresh in the minds of all.

In accordance with the provisions of this law the Executive Council proceeded to purchase said real estate and has bought one hundred and seventy-five different descriptions for the aggregate price of $980,902.00. But little more in comparison with the whole remains to be acquired. The whole, with the exception of the large stone church and the lot directly across the street west of it exactly upon the northwest corner of the tract is essential to the plan that was in the mind of the 35th General Assembly and the sketch of the completed grounds as outlined by the landscape architect which became a part of the law. It was the policy of the Council, so far as it reasonably could, to buy from the Capitol outward and what remains are lots in a few of the outlying blocks. In all of these blocks the State has bought a portion. So far, therefore, as the purchase is concerned it is practically completed. The best estimate I can now give you as to the cost of the whole as thus outlined will be $1,140,000.00. The Council is now taking options for and contracting for the lots that remain. Competent, expert opinion from all sources is agreed that as a whole the property has been bought at very fair and reasonable values.

The law referred to ordered the Executive Council to sell Governor's Square either as a whole or after platting the same into blocks and lots. As the law also directed the sale of the buildings on the extended grounds it was the judgment of the Council that it would be much more profitable to the State to plat the square and move some of the better houses on the lots and sell the lots as thus improved. Thirty houses will be moved to the square. A few have already been moved. Already there have been moved from the purchased grounds fifty houses and three old brick structures wrecked. It is confidently believed by the Council that this method of dealing with the problem will bring to the State a net profit of $40,000 to $50,000 over and above what would have been realized by selling without thus improving the lots. The houses sold were of the poorer class. There have been realized from the sale of property from the grounds and from rentals $28,405.63.

These things I have outlined because I think that the people are entitled to know the exact situation. I believe and always have believed, as the people of the State know, that they are greatly to be congratulated upon this great movement. From all over the county, from New York to San Francisco, have come letters from eminent men and women and from persons not well known, expressing their great appreciation of what Iowa has done in this particular. Already it has brought distinction to the State in that her legislators have provided for the great future while they could at a very reasonable expenditure. Greater distinction will be hers and universal applause and congratulations will constantly greet her from all parts of the Union when the great Capitol and the buildings, monuments and memorials emerging from the coming years will have proper placement and adequate setting and when Capitol Hill, commanding a most superb and beautiful view of a great city, the valleys of the rivers and the country stretching far beyond, shall have been improved and completed in harmony with the design of the architect and the splendid vision which has for years inspired thousands upon thousands of the men and women of Iowa and which found expression in the Act of the 35th General Assembly and when this hill shall bear upon its front and crest in grateful shade in summer time and in strength and majesty in the winter the trees indigenous to Iowa soil and climate as well as trees adapted thereto transplanted from all lands and when lawn and flowers and shrubbery shall everywhere invite, all eloquently proclaiming the bigness of the life of the people, their culture, their ideals, their appreciation of the really great value in human existence and of an investment that can never by any possibility involve a loss, then, and after we have long been forgotten, will Iowa continually enjoy great distinction because of her Capitol grounds.

And now in closing I desire to say that I am very hopeful that a fine record may be made by the 36th General Assembly. I am anxious to do whatever I can by cooperating with you in a proper way to assist in promoting such a result. When the work is done I trust it will be distinguished for its important, constructive character and for the care, thoughtfulness and accuracy with which it was done. There is no greater, no more responsible work than that of the lawmaker. A State's place in the world, its degree of enlightenment, must ever, in a very large measure, be determined by its laws. The future of Iowa, in the large sense, in its public policy, with reference to the things that make for her growth and development will and must find expression in her legislation. Whatever Iowa may have and be in the future that will be of benefit to mankind must depend upon us who today call the State ours. Our obligation is not simply to today. It is a thousand times more to the years that are to come—to the Iowa that is to be—to the Iowa that we desire her to be. We ought to take a far-ahead look. The foundations ought to be enduring. What are these roads, these schools, these questions of social well-being, these questions of public health, these questions that go to the enlargement of life in the best and deepest sense—what are they to the future, should have consideration. We are not worth our time and space here unless we are looking constantly forward to a coming of a better day. Right good questions to ask oneself are, Is this the little or large view I am taking? Am I consulting my own, selfish interests or the welfare of all? What if everybody were just like me? What would my community, my State be if everybody were to adopt my view—which way would they be pulling, forward or backward?

Down in the rotunda in letters of gold is inscribed the sentiment, "Iowa—our eyes have been permitted to see only the beginning of her glory." It is true, and it doth not yet appear what she shall be. What a splendid vision rises. How much depends on us. Halt her not in any of the great steps forward she has taken. With unstinted devotion of her and her greatness may you do your work.

RESOLUTION BY SENATOR HAGEMANN.

Senator Hagemann submitted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The nations of the old world are now waging the greatest war of mankind, causing a destruction of life and property and bringing to the nations involved ruin and desolation and untold suffering and misery;

And Whereas, as a people, we stand and strive for the highest ideals of a Christian civilization and now hope and fervently pray that this massacre of nations may soon come to an end, followed by peace universal and everlasting among all nations of the world;

And Whereas, our government has proclaimed strict neutrality and given assurance to American citizens of all races and to the belligerent powers themselves, that we shall give aid and support to none, and by our acts as a nation, break no bonds of friendship with the countries with whom we are at peace and create no discord among our citizens here;

And Whereas, this country has recognized the right of our government to withhold war supplies from contending armies when she laid an embargo on munitions of war when the feeble armies of Mexico were arrayed against each other, but now permits its citizens, without protest, to offer their limitless supplies to the mightiest armies that were ever assembled in battle array, thereby assisting in keeping alive this great military conflagration;

And Whereas, we, the members of this body, are in sympathy with the Christian endeavor of this nation to appeal to the God of Nations that peace may come, and reject as hypocrisy and national sacrilege the commercial spirit of the country that is answering our supplications for peace by sending the instruments of destruction and death to the serried armies arrayed in struggle through the empires of Europe.

Therefore Be It Resolved, That we, the Senate of the State of Iowa, duly assembled, hereby declare that it is the imperative duty of the Congress of the United States to pass the necessary laws forthwith that will enable the President of the United States to lay an embargo upon all contraband of war, save and except food stuffs alone, and thereby withdraw from the contending powers all aid and assistance of this Republic;

And Be It Further Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to our Representative in Congress, in the House of Representatives and the Senate with the request that all legislation, looking to this end, be given their loyal support.

F. P. HAGEMANN.

The following communication addressed to the President of the Senate was received and read.

Des Moines, Iowa, January 16, 1915.

Hon. William L. Harding,
City.

Dear Sir:

The Register and Leader has for many years printed the State Laws, carrying a publication clause, at a rate much less than actual cost. We have tried several times to induce the Legislature to pass a measure increasing the compensation. The present rate is less than one-half of our regular commercial rate.

This is to advise the officers and members of the Legislature that we will not in the future publish these Laws in either the Register and Leader or The Evening Tribune without adequate compensation. If a measure should be introduced increasing the compensation to the Des Moines newspapers publishing these Laws, it should carry a rate of not less than seven cents a brevier line, or its equivalent.

Yours very truly,

W. B. SOUTHWELL, Business Manager.

Referred to committee on printing.

Senator Eversmeyer submitted the following communication which was received and read.

Des Moines, Iowa, January 18, 1915.

Dear Sir:

The Des Moines Capital has been favored for a number of years with the publication of laws of the state of Iowa, which take effect on publication. We, however, have received this business at 33 1-3 cents per square, (a square being more than an inch), while our lowest average commercial rate is 70c an inch. Consequently, we have been publishing this business at a loss.

With two previous General Assemblies, in conjunction with the Register & Leader, we made an effort to have the rate made compensatory. A bill accomplishing this was passed by one house of the General Assembly on both occasions, but was refused in the other branch. The Capital cannot afford to carry the business at the price fixed, and we are requesting all members of both Houses of the General Assembly to either increase the rates, making them 70c an inch, or that the Capital's name be not inserted in the bills to receive the advertising.

The amount of the advertising received by the Capital from the last General Assembly was $425.66.

We will be pleased to have you give the matter immediate attention.

Yours most cordially,

THE DES MOINES CAPITAL,
Lafe Young, Jr.

SECTION 3. That the said incorporated town of Adel, and the town council of said incorporated town be and are hereby authorized to provide for the payment of the said bonds and interest thereon in the same manner as is provided by the statutes of Iowa in relation to the payment of bonds and interest thereon, issued for the construction of water works.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received and read.

To the Members of the Thirty-Sixth General Assembly:

I think it proper for me to call your special attention to conditions which have arisen and damages which have been sustained by reason of the ravages of the "Foot-and-mouth Disease" in portions of the State. Quite a number of our citizens have suffered considerable pecuniary loss on account of it. The disease is not yet completely stamped out, but it is hoped it is under control. In the state of Illinois on our eastern border it is much more general and prevalent, I am advised, than here, and the greatest care will have to be exercised to prevent further spread and damage in our state. In submitting the matter to you, I venture to suggest also that it is earnestly hoped that the people in the infected districts and in such districts as may become infected, will co-operate in a spirit of helpfulness with the authorities to the end that the disease may not spread and that losses may be reduced to a minimum.

I requested the State Veterinary Department to submit to me a statement of losses actually sustained from the disease, as well, also, as expenses incurred on account of it. His statement is as follows:

Total appraised value of live stock killed and buried..	$ 95,000.00
Total burial expense.....	3,500.00
Total expense of cleaning and disinfecting premises...	2,500.00
	$101,000.00

Of this total amount the federal government will pay one half or $50,500.00.

In addition to this the State Veterinary Department approximates the amount due assistant state veterinarians and other persons employed to be compensated by the state at $35,000.00, making a total of $85,000.00. There is now no fund out of which these sums can be paid. It will be necessary for you to provide such a fund and the provisions should be made as soon as you can fully advise yourselves of the amount you should appropriate, taking into consideration the amount of loss and expense already occasioned, and the fact that additional needs may arise. This is a matter of somewhat pressing importance and I trust you will give it early and careful consideration. So much of a fixed sum as may be found necessary should be appropriated. The $35,000.00 the department estimates is to cover the expenses referred to and sufficient to meet the possible needs by way of expense of the department up to the close of the biennium, June 30, 1915.

G. W. CLARKE,
Governor.

Dated January 25th, 1915.

Referred to the committee on agriculture.

MR. PRESIDENT—

Your committee, appointed for the purpose of investigating the facts underlying certain charges of graft made in connection with the organization of this body, herewith submits the following preliminary report:

Your committee addressed a communication to the Hon. George W. Clarke, Governor of Iowa, relative to the matters it was charged to investigate, and this morning received from the Governor a reply thereto.

Inasmuch as the Governor requests in his said reply that the communication to him, together with its answer, be printed in the Journal of the Senate, your committee have deemed it courteous to comply with the request at once.

The committee has not had time or opportunity to consider the reply of the Governor or the statements therein contained, but will at once proceed to consider the same, discharge the duties assigned to it, and make full report to the Senate at the earliest possible moment.

The committee herewith submits to you its said communication to the Governor and his reply thereto, and recommend that his request be granted and that both be printed in the journal of the proceedings of the Senate of even date herewith.

L. E. CRIST,
T. J. B. ROBINSON,
ROBERT QUIGLEY,
G. M. GILLETTE.

January 29, 1915.

Report adopted.

*To the Hon. George W. Clarke,
Governor of the State of Iowa:*

Pursuant to the action of the Senate in the adoption of the following resolution—

“Be It Resolved by the Senate of the State of Iowa, That, in view of the fact that the Governor of the State of Iowa has, in his message to the joint Assembly, imputed graft to this body, that the President of the Senate appoint a committee consisting of five members of the Senate, three to be Republicans and two to be Democrats, for the purpose of investigating what foundation, if any, exists for the said charge.

“That the said committee be empowered to require the attendance of such witnesses as they deem necessary to determine the said matters, and report their findings or recommendations to the Senate, at the earliest possible moment.”

The President of the Senate appointed Crist, Robinson, Darrah, Gillette and Quigley as a committee to carry out the purpose of such resolution.

That the committee may proceed advisedly in the discharge of its duty, we would be pleased to receive from you such information, facts or suggestions, as you see fit to place before us that may assist us in determining the real situation that we are called upon to investigate.
Senate Chamber, Jan. 23, 1915.

L. E. CRIST,
T. J. B. ROBINSON,
JOHN H. DARBAH,
ROBERT QUIGLEY,
G. M. GILLETTE.

To the Honorable Senators Crist, Robinson, Darrah, Quigley and Gillette, Members of Committee:

Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your communication setting out in full a resolution adopted by the Senate in which it is said “In view of the fact that the Governor has, in his message to the Joint-Assembly, imputed graft to this body” that a committee be appointed “for the purpose of investigating what foundation, if any, exists for the said charge” and asking me for facts and suggestions that may assist you in the investigation.

I beg the privilege of saying first of all, that it seems to me that senators had not even read with any care what I said.

What I said, as I stated, I first said six years ago at the opening of the 33rd General Assembly when I was President of the Senate and it was printed in the Journal. The Senator who introduced the resolution above referred to was then a member of the Senate as were others who now criticise. They offered no criticism of it then, so far as I know, nor did any one except a very few who thought not enough was involved to be of consequence. I venture to say that not a Senator at that time thought of such a thing as is now assumed although it was spoken in the Senate, to the Senate upon its organization.

In the present case the message was prepared, including this paragraph, several days before the opening of the legislature, and therefore, was entirely impersonal and had no reference at all to anything the Senate of the 36th had done, because it had not then done anything. I was simply laying down some very sound principles of administration for consideration.

Have senators really considered what was said? It is quite apparent they have not. Referring to an expenditure of $500.00 per day for extra help, clerks, doorkeepers, etc., I said "some of this is absolutely essential, of course, but much of it is pure, unadulterated graft." What do senators call the excess, the non-essential that the State pays for? What excuse, what justification can they make for it? They should say, there may be a difference of opinion as to the non-essential, but as only the excess was referred to there can be no criticism. I am not to be understood as even suggesting that any Senator would justify going beyond needs. I am only suggesting that in his haste, from whatever motive, he has failed to consider what was actually said, when the address was prepared, and that it only had reference to a common, indefensible practice and closed by saying the 36th "ought to organize along different lines."

Again, I said: "Public money is taken from the people for a public purpose only and it is intolerable that it should be used for petty graft, or turned over even in small sums to persons who have rendered no equivalent of service in return." Can Senators, can anybody, find any just objection to that statement? "Graft" there is referred to as equivalent to turning over money where there has been no equivalent of service rendered for it. Does anybody have such an idea of the use of public funds as to criticise that statement? It may be called "graft" or it may be called by some other name, but the sense in which the word was used in the paragraph is plain and it was a perfectly proper use. If these positions and expenditures in excess of need had been referred to as sinecures no one, perhaps, would have thought of criticism and yet a sinecure is "an office that has a revenue without employment."

Permit me to most respectfully suggest that Senators stick on a word, drag it out of its relation, both as to time and place and utterly fail to consider the whole that was said, and that it was said with reference to a system or an everywhere indefensible practice. Can any sentence of what was said be denied as to facts or results?

I suggest the foregoing because I think that in the very beginning of your investigation you should determine whether there was any ground whatever for the grave charge made against the Executive in the resolution and I suggest them because you ask me for "such information, facts or suggestions as * * * may assist in determining the real situation."

Much seems to have been said in debate and in another resolution about the old soldier. Why, I am sure, nobody can tell, unless to create prejudice. It does serve, however, to throw light on the motive of it all. Nobody had said a word about the soldier. Might just as well have assumed a great sympathy and expended oratory in behalf of the five times more numerous young lady clerks. But that would have been ridiculous; no more so, however, than as it was. If door-keepers and clerks are mentioned at the same time and in the very same way and in the same connection why should convulsions be caused in one case and not in the other? Everybody knew then and everybody knows now that reference was had to a principle, to a system and what was said was exactly applicable to the evil, without reference to the class employed.

But since the soldier question has been brought in (not by me) I suggest that you investigate and report as to whether or not it is a fact that not only now but many times heretofore soldiers have been given places as doorkeepers who were owners of farms and well and comfortably fixed in life, worth many thousands of dollars, to the exclusion of needy comrades whose service to their country had been equal to theirs and kindly report if this was not for political reasons. And, if so, who was unkind to the needy old veteran and comrade?

I may ask you to investigate and report why there should be more doorkeepers than doors? Is there any reason why doorkeepers should be posted at the four doors in the galleries, it being well known that they are not used by the public except on special occasions—very many days of a session going by when not a half dozen persons appear in the galleries, and are not these for admission to the public? Can any reason be given why a doorkeeper should be stationed at the doors on each side of the President's and Speaker's desk? Those doors are used only by members and employees. What do all these doorkeepers do? Can the committee report that they are needed for any proper purpose and are not the doors used exactly as they would be if they were not there?

Can any justification be given for placing four or five men in the cloak room of each house to hang up the coats and hats of members as they come in?

The mail is brought from the city to the Capitol. The State had a stalwart man regularly employed to distribute it among the departments. He could easily have carried the package for the members upstairs to the legislative post-office, and expected to do it. Can any just reason be given for employing another man to take that particular package up the elevator to the post office?

Can any justifiable reason be given why two bill clerks should be employed simply to hand a senator a bill from a shelf or pigeon-hole when upon occasion he calls for one? And this is not frequent as all House and Senate bills are placed in binding upon every Senator's desk. Now and then he wants an extra bill, perhaps, to send to a constituent.

Are two men necessary to get it for him, or are two necessary to receive these bills in the bill room from the printer and put them in place by number?

The Senate has, I believe, seven pages and two telephone messengers. The telephone is in the cloak room just by the Senate. Here are nine—one to every six Senators. Are they really needed?

Is it not a fact that the law provides only for committee clerks? Is there any provision in the law for a clerk to each Senator? Has not the Senate provided each Senator with a clerk? This is simply an oversight of the law, which any one may make, and the following of a custom. There are forty-six committees and is it not a fact that at least twenty of them will not have occasion to meet, on an average, five times during the session? Is it not a fact that the large number of committees were originally created to give place for as many clerks as possible? If the clerks employed were restricted to committee clerks and to committee work, as the law provides, would not twenty-five in place of fifty be all that could possibly be given work? If there were a clerk to each of the forty-six committees, to do committee work, is it not apparent that at least twenty or more of them would be idle three-fourths of the time or more? Is it not a fact that many more than half of the clerks have no employment more than half the time even when the senate is not in session? Is it not the experience of senators that many of the clerks are often absent from the Capitol because they are not needed? On investigation you may not be able to answer these and other questions directly, but do you not find that they state substantially the facts? Are not doorkeepers, clerks, janitors and even pages given places for political reasons?

After your investigation will you kindly report whether you would organize your own business on any such lines or if the Senate were a business corporation would you stand for an organization along such lines?

In view of your investigation can you now say in view of the time of the preparation and delivery of the message that I said anything on this subject that was not in accord with the truth? If these things are true does it not tend to bring all the departments of government into disrespect in the minds of the people and ought not the legislative—the greatest of them all and the one having authority over all—to adopt such a course as will place it above criticism and give Iowa the distinction of being perhaps the first American state to do so.

Senators, it is very unpleasant, indeed, for me to have to submit the foregoing. The Senate resolved that I should do so and you come in obedience to its command. I have only complied with the Senate's request. I beg to assure you of my high regard for every Senator and to assure you also that I greatly desire to cooperate with the General Assembly in placing every department of the government beyond all just criticism. I beg to ask that your communication and this compliance with its request be printed in the Senate journal.

Very respectfully yours,

G. W. CLARKE,
Governor.

SECRETARY JAMES WILSON BEFORE THE IOWA LEGISLATURE.

A foreign invasion has attacked our meat bearing animals. They are more valuable than those of any other state.

Foot and mouth disease is established in all countries except ours, Sweden, and the British Isles. No treatment is effective but stamping it out. The continent of Europe has tried treatment, and failed to get rid of it. South America has this disease everywhere. It was stamped out twice during my time in the Agricultural Department. Prompt action is a prime necessity.

The present outbreak has spread farther than any previous one, and we are in great danger of having it extend beyond control. We arranged in previous outbreaks to have the federal government and the states pay equally toward eradication, and required the state executives to appoint federal agents as state agents, to avoid questions being raised of federal interference in state affairs. Should litigation cause delay, there is little hope of avoiding general contamination of all the meat producing animals of all the states. The consequences of this would reach beyond all computation.

The outbreak previous to the present one extended to four states, and by prompt action was stamped out at an expense to federal and state governments of less than a million dollars. We asked congress to authorize a million dollars to be held against future outbreaks, which was done for several years; but continued exemption from attack brought feelings of security, that resulted in failure to continue putting this feature in the annual appropriation bill.

I observe that stock owners are restive in some states regarding the execution of the killing process by federal and state executives, doubting the good faith of reimbursement promises. There never has been any hesitation in the past about such payments by state or federal lawmakers.

I think it would be wise for both federal and state lawmakers to set apart ample amounts to be used by the executives, should this disease come during recess of the lawmakers.

Foot and mouth disease is one of the most contagious of all the maladies that affect domestic animals. When the outbreak occurred in Portland, Maine, an importation of affected animals was driven to the quarantine station; a yoke of oxen crossed the path where the affected animals had been driven the day previous, and got foot and mouth disease.

Mature reflection leads me to conclude that in the future the federal government should handle the whole matter and pay the bills. It is a foreign invasion that should be suppressed by the general government of all the people, which has power to raise money by taxing the people.

A litigious spirit encouraged by a local court makes delay, and delay endangers all the states.

The federal government has in its service the ablest scientists in the land along lines of animal diseases. The Department of Agriculture has control of all the telegraphic dispatches for an hour every morning. It can learn of any outbreaks sooner than any state can, and act more promptly.

During the uncertainty brought about by the fever tick some years ago, states quarantined against states, and local courts upheld local jurisdictions, and also charged fees from cattle owners crossing state lines, which was exceedingly annoying. Some states at this time are behaving queerly regarding foot and mouth disease, and we may have repetitions of what was done some years ago on account of cattle fever ticks.

INQUIRY INTO CONDITIONS OF LANDLORD AND TENANT IN GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

The Thirty-fifth General Assembly authorized the Governor to appoint Doctor Wallace and myself to look over the relations between landlord and tenant in the British Isles. We made the trip, looked carefully into the conditions existing there on this subject, and made our report to the Governor, without expense to the state. I presume his excellency has laid the report before you, and I respectfully ask you to look it over.

There are 40 per cent of the farms of Iowa under lease. The Iowa landlord may be divided into several classes, and the conditions to be found in our state are quite different from conditions on the other side of the Atlantic. I do not think enough is known regarding affairs in Iowa to justify an attempt at legislation at the present time; but it would seem wise to authorize your committees on agriculture of both house and senate during a recess of the legislature to get the facts regarding landlord and tenant as they exist in our state, and have a report made to the next General Assembly.

EDUCATIONAL AND OTHER INSTITUTIONS IN IOWA.

The state of Iowa is admirably equipped with educational, eleemosynary and penal institutions. The credit for their development belongs to the successive legislatures that have met in the state. Their work has been well done. I was at one time, while a member of the Iowa legislature, elected a regent of the State University. I took pride in the development of that institution. There is no reason why the Iowa student after getting his primary degrees should not conduct post-graduate work within the state; and there is no reason why a state of such prominence and wealth as the state of Iowa should not have a State University such as Michigan and other western states have. Progress is being made toward that end. The legislature has been generous in providing means, conveniences and stronger faculties.

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

For many years there was doubt in the minds of many Iowa people, including members of the legislature, whether education at Ames was valuable to the Iowa farmer. There was a prominent opinion lodged in the minds of many, that the graduates of the agricultural course did not go back to the farm. I think there is ground for change in that opinion. Two years ago I called upon Dean Curtiss for information with regard to getting more of the four-year graduates in agriculture into the Federal Department of Agriculture at Washington. I asked him what the prospect was for getting members from the graduating class of that year. He replied that the class would number 41, that 39 of them were going back to the farm; but he did not know what prospect there might be for getting the other two. Since that time they have graduated two classes in the four-year course, one of 80, another of 125, besides many more in courses relating to agriculture—dairying, farm engineering, etc.

A new problem presents itself for your consideration with regard to that institution: The freshman classes in agriculture have numbered one thousand and over in 1913 and 1914. You have provided a splendid equipment, that was supposed to take care of all the young farmers and farmers' daughters who might want to come to Ames for education. The buildings are beautiful, a credit to the state; but they are all overcrowded. It is for you to determine what is wise to do. I cannot bring myself to think that when a farmer's boy comes to Ames to study agriculture, you will have him sent home for want of room; and if the farmer's girl wants to come and study domestic science, I hardly think you will conclude to have her go back because the state of Iowa has not provided for her training.

Your normal school at Cedar Falls has greatly strengthened the teaching force of the state, and its work is very creditable.

The Senate returned to the Senate chamber and resumed its sitting.

WHEREAS, the then treasurer of Page County, D. M. Creal, acting under the advice and personal direction of the members of the Board of Supervisors, did not, at such times as warrants drawn on the County Bridge Fund were presented to him for payment and when said funds contained no money with which to pay them, endorse the said warrants, "Not paid for want of funds," as the law provides, but did pay said bridge warrants from money in his hands belonging to the credit balances of one or more of the other county funds and from certain trust funds, in his hands as County Treasurer; and

JAMES A. MacDONALD.

Mr. Speaker, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives of Iowa:

I count it an honor to be invited to meet you this morning. I have not the privilege in my own country of sitting in the legislature or in the parliament, although it falls to me, as it falls to every man of the press, to exercise functions in connection with the molding of public opinion, which are sometimes thought to be superior to either the parliament or the legislature. I do not express any such views in this connection. You are the elected representatives of the state. You are supreme in so far as your functions go, and it is to you that the people of the state must look for expressing the public opinion which is made throughout the state by the schools and by the press and by all the other advocates and organs of the opinion of the people. On our side of the line, as on your side of the line, we are in a democracy. We are not all of us absolutely sure that democracy has achieved, that it has made good, that it has wholly fulfilled all the promises made by Washington and by Jefferson and by Franklin and by Adams and all the spokesmen for democracy with which you are familiar, but good or bad, it is our form of government. We believe that the power of government should be with the people and we must make good. We must justify that faith, and on your side, as on our side, the responsibility for justifying that faith of those who struck for self-government rests with us. Democracy in itself, self-government in itself, will not fulfill the promises or discharge the duties of government. The forms of government are what we choose to make them. Therefore, sirs, in my judgment a state legislature that comes so close to the every-day interests of the people not only holds a position of high honor in the republic, but has upon it the responsibilities, quite as real, and perhaps in some respects as great as rests upon the Congress at Washington. Therefore, I say to you, I say to all the members of the legislature, speaking for the crowd, as the press always speaks for the crowd, that we look to you to interpret aright,—not the shallow, not the superficial, not the evanescent opinion, but the real judgment of the people to organize that into law and to see that those laws are enforced with justice to all, with privileges to none, and in the interests of all the people of the state and of the nation.

I speak to you today as a native-born Canadian,—native-born myself, my father before me and his father before him native-born Canadians, and two generations before that having had the distinction of living in North Carolina and having some part in the historic movements with which the name of this republic is identified in the history of the continent. But whatever may have been involved in the struggle for self-government by the colonies, this is true, and every intelligent Canadian, every intelligent subject of the empire knows this—that the thing that was done by the patriots in their day, the supreme thing, was not the separation from the motherland of Britain. It was not, I say, the separation from the motherland of Britain. That was incidental; that was not the important achievement of the men of that day. What was important? What was inevitable? What was absolutely essential was the struggle,—not for independence, for independence may be only the noisy clamor of the lawbreaker,—the supreme struggle was for the right of self-government. That was their inherent right because many of them had in their veins Anglo-Saxon blood. I have no Anglo-Saxon blood in my veins and I often thank God for that fact. I have no Anglo-Saxon traditions for an heritage of any kind that would connect me with the Englishman or with any of the Celts. There is Anglo-Saxon blood here; there is Celtic blood here; blood from all the countries of Europe; British blood; French blood; German blood; all the bloods of Europe that are now struggling in war are mingled in this state of Iowa. My Celtic blood fought for Charles Edward Stuart on the battlefields of Britain and thirty years after the man who carried the same broad sympathy for King George all the way from the Fear river in North Carolina to the East river in Nova Scotia, but if any loyalists object to my internationalism I say to them, What did they do when there was any trouble? They cut for Canada. Mine stayed and fought it all the way through, and while they may have been wrong in my personal judgment, they were wrong when they fought for the Stuarts on the battlefield of Colodon and were not right when they fought for King George in North Carolina, the great thing that all struggled for, those Celts, was a democracy. I do not mean politics,—I am not sure where the line should now be drawn. I listened to Mr. Taft two nights ago in Toronto and whether he is a Republican or a Democrat, the only thing I am quite sure of is, that he is a progressive, but he does not call himself a progressive. But the real interest of all parties in that struggle was the right of a free people to govern themselves, and that is the greatest achievement that the colonies won in their day. I am accustomed to say sometimes that on our side of the line we are the inheritors of that achievement. When in the next century the Canadians came to face their responsibilities they must have the right of self-government just as truly as the men of like blood must have had the right of self-government in the century before. The only distinction is this, and this is our greatest achievement, that whereas your people achieved their right to self-government by separation, by sacrificing the thousand years of historic background of the nation, on our side of the line we won the right to govern ourselves, to make our own laws, to administer our own laws, we won that right, not by separation, but by maintaining for Canadians the right of self-government without sacrificing the background of the nation. That is one of the most remarkable events in all history, that for the first time in the world's history any colony of any nation or any empire won the right to self-government. That first colony was the colony in Canada. Absolutely that is true. That for the first time in history any people achieved the right of self-government without sacrificing the historic background and perspective of the people was the achievement in the nineteenth century by the provinces of Canada, and what happened? After Canada achieved her right to self-government, Australia followed with her right to govern herself, then New Zealand, then South Africa in her own day, and not only did they achieve the right of self-government for themselves, but they changed the whole spirit, the whole constitution of the empire of Britain, so that there no longer was an empire, so that it is no longer the old Roman empire with a central government, that it is rather an alliance of free nations, each one controlling its own affairs, all of them bound together, not by bonds of compulsion, but by sentiment, by free will, making up the world alliance of the empire of Great Britain.

I can see the day coming when all civilization will find a place for every nationalism, but a place, not of strife and not of war, a place in which each nation will regard every other nation within the scope of civilization, not as an enemy, not as an antagonist, but as you said, sister nations, sister countries, sister communities, and that no nation can live without the cooperation, the sympathy and support of all the other nations in the world's circle of freedom. That is the thing that North America has done for the world. It is not our achievements in science, industry or art,—it is our achievements, these two nations of a common speech, North Americans have illustrated, and in this day, in the light of a world war, illustrated the great achievement of civilization, two nations, both of them proud, both of them with the Celtic and the Saxon blood and all the other bloods that go to make up our peoples here, we have done the thing that has never been done on any other continent in the whole world. Two nations living side by side through one hundred years and their international boundary line of four thousand miles without a fort, without a gun, without a battleship, without a sentry on guard. That is the greatest achievement of North America, an achievement of international civilization, an achievement of which both politics and religion have a right to be proud before the world, and my hope is that this achievement of our two nations in our two countries, this achievement of international civilization, will be a sample for Europe, for Asia, for Africa, that every continent will see that what has been done by the sons from Britain, the sons from France, the sons from Germany, from Austria, from the Balkan states, and from Scandinavia, the children of those races not at war in Europe, what has been done by their children in North America can be done by them on the North sea and on the channel, and all those lines or boundaries that today are bristling with bayonets and most of them soaked with blood. It is our business, every American, to justify the hopes that the problem of living together, of nations living together, each nation, large and small, having its right reserved to it, its right to a "place in the sun," Belgium as well as Germany, China as surely as Britain, every nation, every people, having reserved to them their right to their "place in the sun," their opportunities to live their own life, to achieve their own destiny, the great responsibility resting upon these two nations that through one hundred years have done the thing that never was done in God's world before. And you and those associated with you in administering the affairs of state, you are the men more responsible than any others for helping on and making good that great aspiration of the American people. You have to do with the administration of law. The great need of the world today is not more wealth as much as more intelligence, more clear thinking and more of a sense of what is morally right or wrong. The great responsibility of your state is the education of the coming generation in your state universities, of which I know something, and all of your universities in your state, and your high schools and public schools. Not simply to make money, but to make life, not simply to understand the situation around about them on their farm, in their factory, store or shop, but to understand that much more essential relationship of man with man, community with community, state with state, nation with nation. There can be no borders for the intelligent mind, there is no limit to the intellect, to thought, to power of thinking through your problems, and just as you make your educational institutions strong and efficient, so will you make your citizenship in this state of Iowa a power in the republic and make your republic the power it ought to be more and more in the world. And more than that, that your responsibility for administering law and justice and fairness as between man and man, as between interest and interest has its part and its place in the great international problem. Men say to me again and again in the press, in parliament, in the public platforms that force is the power behind law. I deny it absolutely and unswervingly. Force in a civilized nation is not the power behind law. The policeman in his uniform represents something more than brute force; he represents the community's respect for law, and respect for law is the real power in a democracy; respect for law is the power behind law. Your policeman is valueless, your army and navy are useless unless in the common mind of a common people of this state and of all the states there is that respect for law which is symbolized by your policemen and by your army and navy. Therefore, you in your legislating and in your enforcement of law, you really are making your contribution to international civilization that is to be.

Sirs, I thank you for permitting me to look in on you this morning. I beg of you to believe that we in Canada are interested in every progressive movement, everything you do, everything you undertake to do to make the common life of the average man more satisfying in the best things. Every achievement of yours in civilization, in government, in the broad democracy, everything you do along these lines you do for us as well as for yourselves, for the one irresistible thing, the one omnipotent thing in all the world is a vital idea. Against brute force you can mass brute force, but there is no power that in the end can gain the mastery over a vital idea. A man went out once, started out empty handed with nothing but an idea. His idea was of a social organization in which there should be no arrogant rich and no suffering poor, in which every man should be a brother to every other man and every nation a sister to every other nation, with nothing but his idea, an idea that he conceived as bringing into the common ways of earth the kingdom of heaven. He started out with nothing but his idea and he released it and set it free. Once that idea was grasped by another mind, once after three years of experience, he found one man had seen the vision, he said, "On that idea, as on an eternal rock, I will build my new society, establish my new kingdom, and against it the gates of hell shall swing forever in vain." To do with the organizing and releasing and setting free of ideas, that supreme opportunity of dealing, not with things merely, but with ideas, we men with minds and consciences, it is our business, as you have done so nicely in this state, to realize those ideas of social justice, industrial reform, those things that will make for the purity and progress of the people of this state; it is our great business to fulfill in our republic, in our continent, and in our world that ideal of a brotherhood for all humanity, for in this day, with all the progress that has been made by science and the turning of science to the destruction of man in this day with every nation rubbing shoulders with every other nation, there must come the brotherhood of all in the neighborhood of the world or our civilization and our progress will mean hell for all the world.

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Senator Crist, chairman of the special investigating committee, submitted the following report and moved that the same be printed in the Journal.

Carried.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON "INVESTIGATION OF GRAFT."

We, your committee appointed to investigate the facts underlying certain charges of graft made in connection with the organization of this Senate, beg leave to submit the following report:

Your committee proceeded to organize and discharge its duties with all reasonable dispatch, and addressed a communication to the Hon. G. W. Clarke, Governor, asking for information, and received a reply thereto, which communication and reply were embodied in a preliminary report of this committee made to the Senate under date of January 29th, 1915, and are hereby referred to and made a part of this report by reference.

Your committee made it known through the medium of the public press that its sessions would be public, and that it was ready to give full hearing to anyone who had any matter they desired to present to the committee. Several persons presented themselves pursuant to this notice and all were given a full hearing, and your committee requested the appearance and took the testimony of more than thirty other witnesses relative to the matters it was charged to investigate, and the committee feels that the inquiry has been as full, fair, and far-reaching as could be conducted within the powers given it by the Senate, under the resolution that created it.

We do not find in the testimony heard, or in the investigations that we have conducted, any matter or thing that reflects in any way upon the honesty, honor, or integrity of this body or any of its members; nor do we find any evidence or fact from which a deduction could be made that any member of this Senate had personally profited, directly or indirectly, in the organization of the Senate, or in the conduct of its affairs.

We believe that the expression "pure, unadulterated graft," as used by Governor Clarke in his message to the joint assembly, was an unhappy choice of words to express the thought which the Governor's reply to your committee shows he had in his mind, and that it was unwarranted by the facts as they have been disclosed to this committee.

Your committee finds, however, that the condition to which the Governor was attempting to direct the attention of the Assembly with reference to the employment of the help of the Senate and the determination of the places and the number thereof, is not the work of any one General Assembly, but is the gradual development of a system probably reasonable in its inception, but continued through inadvertence or through lack of care and investigation, and is in need of correction as evidenced by the following statement of facts and suggestions disclosed to us by our investigation:

1. We find a policeman carried on the list of extra help of the Senate, with no regular duties, and believe his services to be needless.

2. We find one assistant filing and bill clerk who is earning the money paid him, but who is almost wholly employed, together with a similar employee of the House, in keeping up to date between fifty and sixty journals and bill records in offices of the state outside the Senate and House chambers, without authority of statute or rule, and excepting in a very few instances merely to satisfy the requests of state employees outside the chambers aforesaid, and at a total cost to the state of approximately fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500.00) per session, and we recommend that the practice be discontinued so far as it concerns the Senate employee, in which event his services will be unnecessary.

3. We find an extra man employed to carry the legislative mail from the basement of the Capitol to the Assembly post-office, and another man regularly employed by the state, ready, willing and able to perform these duties, and we recommend that the services of the said extra man be dispensed with.

4. We find three men employed in the Senate cloak-room in doing janitor work and caring for the wraps of Senators and visitors, and believe that all necessary and efficient service can be easily rendered by two men, and that the service of one of these janitors may well be dispensed with.

5. We find five janitors employed in the Senate chamber and committee rooms, and one who has been authorized but who has not reported, and believe that at least one of those now employed, as well as the one who has not reported, are unnecessary, and that four janitors could attend to all the work properly and well, and without undue burden.

6. We find three men at work in the office of the Secretary of State who, together with one who has been authorized but who has not reported, are charged to this Senate as extra help. These men are not now, nor will they be until after the session adjourns, doing work pertaining to this Senate. They are employed in work that may be necessary, but which should be taken care of under the supervision of the executive council, and should in no wise be performed by men alleged to be needed because of work incident to this General Assembly.

7. We find employed by the Senate a page as messenger in the State Law Library, and recommend that the services of such page be dispensed with as unnecessary.

8. We find employed by the Senate one chief door-keeper and ten assistants, and that all are old soldiers, veterans of the Civil War, who have been employed pursuant to chapter 14-B, section 1056-a15, of the supplement to the code of 1907, which provides: "That in every public department, and upon all the public works of the State of Iowa, and all of the counties, cities, and towns thereof, honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines, from the army and navy of the United States in the Civil War who are citizens and residents of this state, shall be entitled to preference in appointment, employment and promotion, over other persons of equal qualification." Under and by virtue of this law many of the employees of the Senate have been hired who are veterans of the Civil War, and range in age from sixty-nine to eighty years, and, while still able to perform work of the kind required of them, being somewhat weakened by age and infirmity, may not always be able to be on duty at all times when required; and while your committee believes that the work of these door-keepers could probably be performed by a much smaller number if younger men were employed, we do not believe that the Senate, or the people of Iowa, are ready to abandon the provisions of the old soldiers' preference law.

We do believe, however, that the work required of these door-keepers can be well and efficiently done by one chief door-keeper and six assistants of the same class as now employed.

9. We find that there are employed by the Senate fifty committee clerks, and that one of these has been assigned to each Senator. That the present statute is so worded that in our opinion it does not contemplate the use of these employees in other work than that which pertains to the particular committee for which they are appointed. We find that almost without exception they are being used in part to assist the Senators in their private and business correspondence.

We believe that, under the present arrangement of committees as to their number, time of meeting, and the consequent demand upon each Senator's time, the number of committee clerks could not be materially reduced without impairing the work that the Senate has to do; but we believe that an arrangement can be devised whereby the work of the Senate could be well and expeditiously done, and the services of a very considerable number of these clerks be dispensed with. We do not believe that the working out of such a plan in detail comes within the purview of the duties of this committee and the purpose of its creation, but we submit the following outline of suggestion and recommend that the Senate use this or a similar outline to aid them in devising and adopting such a working arrangement, as a part of the rules of the Senate, such as will meet the situation and save unnecessary expenditure.

An examination of the organization of the Senate of a number of states has convinced us that our present organization of committees is burdensome, and the number thereof is unnecessary. We believe that all the standing committees now existing in this body may readily be grouped into seven general heads, which might be named: State Finance, Judiciary, Public Utilities, Industries, Public Welfare, Governmental Affairs, and Appropriations; and when so grouped, an arrangement becomes at once apparent whereby the entire committee work can be included within the reasonable scope of probably not to exceed twenty-one committees. We suggest that the membership of the Senate be so assigned to these committees that each member will not be included in the membership of more than from four to five of these committees, and we further recommend that, if some such plan as this is followed, the chairman of each committee organize his committee into permanent sub-committees for the different lines of work coming within the purposes of his particular division.

We believe that, if such a plan is worked out in detail and adopted by the Senate, that the work now done by committee clerks could be well and efficiently handled by a corps of stenographers under the direction of an expert and experienced person, familiar with bill drafting and its requirements, and that it would probably be unnecessary to employ more than twenty-five such stenographers for the conduct of the work of their department with efficiency and dispatch.

Your committee desires to say in the matter of the foregoing items of help, which it reports to you as unnecessary, that it has in its investigation found no fault with the kind of service these employees were rendering to the Senate, and does not wish its report to be construed as a reflection upon them or their services. We found them, without exception, to be honest, ready and willing to perform all duties assigned to them; but their services are not needed to secure a thorough and efficient administration of the affairs of the Senate, and by dispensing with their services and the adoption of the recommendations of this committee, we believe that the State of Iowa can be saved a very considerable sum of money at each legislative session.

Your committee further reporting wishes to say that we have not found in our investigation, anything to indicate that any office or position has been created in the organization of the present Senate, or retained from a prior organization, for political reasons; but we find the fact to be that this Senate has fewer employees than were employed at the last session.

The members of this committee desire to express their appreciation of the fair treatment given them by the press representatives who attended the meetings of the committee, and the willing assistance given us by all the witnesses called before us, and we desire to commend the courtesy shown to us by all with whom we came in contact in discharging an unpleasant and difficult task.

Respectfully submitted,

L. E. CRIST

HONORABLE FRANK J. CANNON.

Mr. President, Senators and Representatives:

In expressing appreciation of this high opportunity, I am quite conscious that the courtesy is not to me personally, but to a great issue which has been brought to your attention by some of your own citizens. Permit me at the very outset to offer you my congratulations as a citizen of the United States upon the wonderful things which this legislature of Iowa is giving to the country. First of all, a mighty hope of a better day to come for all the states of the union. In crossing the land from east to west we have heard no subject more frequently discussed, we have heard nothing which has incited a finer spirit of congratulation than the daily reports from the Iowa legislature. Let me say to you that perhaps I shall confer a better service, if I am able to render any to you, if I extend to you the reciprocal opportunity to make any inquiries concerning the subject upon which I am to address you briefly.

If any phase of the Mormon issue demands from you any especial consideration and you feel that the ground has not been amply covered in my remarks, I shall be very glad indeed to be interrupted at any stage of the proceedings or any time after the address I shall be glad to answer, if possible, any inquiry which you may propound.

Up until 1890, for many years, the Mormon church and kingdom practiced polygamy. The Mormon prophet ruled over his people absolutely as a monarch in political affairs. The Mormon kingdom gathered unto itself millions of dollars of property which it expended in secret ways to the disparagement of public right. So grievous was the situation thus presented to the people of the United States that for more than sixty years the people of this country, acting through their state legislative bodies and acting through Congress, through the judiciary and executive authority of the United States, made war upon this system. Perhaps no state in the union had a stronger part in that national warfare than this state of Iowa, through the action of its representatives and its senators at Washington. It was due to a bill introduced into the House of Representatives in the year 1890 by Isaac S. Struble of this state of Iowa that the Mormon kingdom was immediately brought to its knees in contrition. I desire to present to this intelligent assemblage this pointed inquiry: "Were the people of the United States right in their warfare against the Mormon kingdom up to 1890? Is there any man or woman within the sound of my voice who will contend that the people of this great Christian republic were wrong in that controversy?" I have read millions of words upon this issue and have heard hundreds of thousands, but I have never heard any citizen, I have never read the words of any patriot that admitted that the nation was wrong in that mighty contention. Very well then. The Mormon kingdom now practices polygamy; the Mormon prophet now rules the people within the states which comprise the Mormon kingdom as a monarch; it has gathered unto itself untold millions of money and property which it expends and directs through channels antagonistic to the public welfare. If we were right then, how dare we be silent now? The attention of the people of the United States should be turned to this, a greater peril. What right had the people of this country to make war upon the Mormon system when those people were a little handful in the desert; when they were making an historic battle against the savagery of man and beast; when they were making a struggle for existence; when they had no political power which could threaten the integrity of the republic; when they were almost friendless in the world, unless it was to redeem this nation from a threat of iniquity contained within the principles and practices of that system? We are wrong now if we permit the system to continue when it has wealth beyond any conception of the man who has not studied the institution, when the prophet has more than three hundred millions of capital, an income now that more than approaches all the possessions of the Mormon communities within the scope of their kingdom. The Mormon kingdom has invaded the very halls of legislation, wielded with political influence the balance of power in the United States Senate, when the threat of that day of long ago has now become an actual fact. Is there anyone here in this great assemblage with right of speech here on this floor who doubts for a moment that the Mormon teaches and practices polygamy? I ask the question in all good faith. Is there anyone here who has a doubt as to their continuing the practice as a nation? I may proceed, for I take your silence in the same good faith as my inquiry. The people of the United States for more than 45 years made a most determined battle against polygamy. This is a Christian nation; the people of this land, through their legislature and through their courts, through the power of the executive, expressed the doctrine that if anyone wanted to maintain a Mohammedan harem he must go outside of the United States in order to maintain such an institution. Polygamy is still practiced and over a larger area than when you made your statutes and laws against this crime. It is impossible to punish the one offending, because the power of the Mormon prophet within the states where his people reside and where it is practiced is such that no officer of the law so much as entertains the remotest intention to prosecute.

Representatives and Senators having in charge the public welfare, that which concerns you is anything which affects the life of this republic. The Mormon polygamy has spread already into eleven states of the union; it goes unpunished there. The prophet of the Mormon kingdom crossed your State of Iowa on the 3rd of November, 1913, with a part of his polygamous harem. No one here interfered with him in any way. So great is his political and commercial authority in the United States now that this man who, twenty years ago, fled from before the very name of the United States marshal, this man who could only see his wives by stealth, now transports his harem from ocean to ocean, across the Christian United States and no officer so much as remonstrated with him. The people of the United States passed upon this question in 1862 when by a statute procured by Abraham Lincoln polygamy was punished severely by the terms of the act. It was executed in only a few cases because polygamy was protected by the skill of the Mormon priest who practiced it, and by the perjury which was committed to shield it. In 1882 Congress of the United States passed what was known as the Edmonds act, which provided for more severe penalties, open venire for jurors, the right to serve on juries, and also creating what is known as unlawful cohabitation. Polygamous marriage could not be proved, but continuous polygamous living could be proved because that was a matter of general repute. Under the provisions for offenses created by the Edmonds act, two thousand Mormon priests went to prison. Later on Congress passed an additional act and under this act all the property of the Mormon church was escheated to the government of the United States. In 1890 Isaac S. Struble introduced into the House of Representatives a bill which disfranchised every Mormon, took away from him all the civil rights of the United States, because it had been found impossible for the government of the United States to bring the Mormon church to an abandonment of its claims and its polygamous practices and its material claims in the United States. It was when that act was pending under favorable recommendation in both houses, that the Mormon chiefs met in conference in Salt Lake City and humbly surrendered to the United States by a solemn covenant addressed to the government of this kingdom and in which they pledged themselves never more to teach or practice polygamy. Subsequently they pledged themselves to the government of the United States never more to claim the independent right to rule in the United States, a right superior to that of the government. Subsequently they pledged themselves never more to aspire to public office, and then the government bestowed upon them the most splendid series of benefactions this world ever saw. First, the president of the United States gave amnesty for all their past violations of law, forgiving all their rebellion, blotted it out from the book of remembrance. The government of the United States restored the citizenship of the once outlawed chiefs. The government gave back all the property taken from them, gave it back to the last dollar into the hands of the prophet in trust for his people. The government gave statehood to Utah and all the other Mormon territory. The Congress of the United States did the most gentle and generous thing—Congress legitimized every child born in polygamy in the Mormon church. You would not do it for your own community. You people of this legislature would not pass a healing statute to legitimize the progeny of such a parent. Congress did it with the full assent of the United States, so that there might remain no wound unhealed. Just as soon as the Mormon kingdom realized its full possession of all the favors you conferred upon it, it immediately restored its tyranny and re-established its crimes and treason, and has done so for these sixty years. It did not at any time relinquish its intention to rule in the United States. It made that concession in words, but immediately after giving that promise made plans to violate that covenant. I stood at Grover Cleveland's side when he signed that document. I left the happiest man in Washington. I had visited every member of Congress, every Senator. These were my people. I loved them then; I love them now, even while fighting against them. I was so glad that I saw the end of that long fought war, and just six hours after Mr. Cleveland signed that bill of admission I received a telegram from the prophet of the Mormon church stating that he had received a revelation that one of his apostles was to be selected to the Congress of the United States. I assured him that we had just given our word of honor to this country that never more would he get any political revelations from Almighty God. This proved later not to be a revelation from Almighty God, as his chosen apostle was not elected to the Congress of the United States. The Mormon church never retreated. Just three years later when the prophet thought you people were asleep he reappointed one of his apostles to be a member of Congress from Utah. He discovered that you were not asleep, however. More than fifty thousand women of this state of Iowa presented a memorial to Congress demanding that B. H. Roberts be not allowed to sit in the House of Representatives, and in answer to that appeal, every representative in the lower house from this great State of Iowa voted to exclude B. H. Roberts, and he was sent back without being permitted to take the oath of office.

And now to digress for a moment. The change of opinion which has come into this country is not a change of morals but a lack of information concerning the facts and conditions.

The prophet waited just three years longer and then appointed and anointed one of his apostles to be a senator in the Congress of the United States. This was the third revelation for the appointment of an apostle as senator. Reed Smoot was sent under that appointment, and again the people of this country demonstrated that they were not asleep. More than a million people sent a memorial to Congress demanding that no hierarch of this kingdom be permitted to sit in either house at Washington. The committee on privileges and elections then conducted the most extensive investigation of this sort in all our history and laid bare the crimes and treasons of this polygamous kingdom. It reported that Reed Smoot did not come as a citizen of the United States but of a hostile country, that he had taken an oath of disloyalty and that he was disqualified to be a senator and recommended that he be excluded from the United States Senate owing to the fact that he had taken this oath of disloyalty and was an ambassador from a hostile kingdom. The Mormon church is said to have expended over seven millions of dollars to submerge the facts of this investigation from the people of the United States.

Unless you are better informed than most legislative bodies, many of you believe that the charge against Reed Smoot was that he practiced polygamy. We never made any such charge. That point had been settled in the Roberts case. We charged Reed Smoot with being a supporter of a polygamous system, the supporter of a treasonable monarchy, with having taken an oath of disloyalty to this republic.

At the end of four years the Mormon apostle was seated there, the representative of a polygamous kingdom. The principal issue is, whether we shall have a polygamous monarchy in the United States or whether we shall maintain this Christian republic. There is no room for a political church. If there is room for one, there is room for 360 political churches.

The W. C. T. U. have been making a determined assault upon the polygamous practice in this country. They have been asking in every state of the union the passage of a resolution favoring a constitutional amendment to prohibit polygamy. The reason for that is, as I stated to you in the beginning, that the laws within the states where polygamy is practiced are suspended by the power of the polygamous prophet and the constitutional inhibitions within the states are nullified. This case is closely akin to the issue of slavery. There is only one way to reach it, and that is by the federal power. The W. C. T. U., aided by the Mothers' Congress, the National Reform Association, and other like associations, have been as a unit working for this great moral reform. They are asking that this state of Iowa shall take its place as the thirty-second state to approve the resolution addressed to Congress asking for this amendment to the constitution of the United States. The only people in our country who are fighting against it, so far as I know, are those who themselves practice polygamy, those who are affiliated with the Mormon kingdom in politics and business and those who, because of a lack of the knowledge of the real situation, are misled into the supposition that the Mormon church has abandoned polygamy. For the first class of these three I have only so much of respect as goes with admiration for sincerity. For the second of these classes I have only that opinion which candid men should maintain concerning those who sell their convictions for place and power. For the third class I have only the desire that they inform themselves concerning the history and condition of their country. The supreme court of the United States, in a case carried to that high tribunal by the Mormon church itself, decided that no institution, no individual in this land could practice crime and cover it with the claim of religious immunity. We dispense with all the supposition that we are prosecuting any particular body by desiring the enactment and enforcement of laws to forbid polygamy.

I appreciate the honor which you have conferred upon me. Let me express my pride in what the Iowa legislature has done and is doing. We know perfectly well that there is always some nation on the face of the earth which seems in itself to be touched by the finger of God in order to carry out more of his purposes for mankind than any other people of its time. No one doubts that in this period of the world's history that nation is our own. Civilization has run her western career until now she has reached the last spot of the western world. If she shall go further it will be to leap the Pacific, and the oldest east will then become the newest west. Twenty-six republics have arisen upon the face of this earth since our own was established. They are the real daughters of the American revolution. They followed the example of this land—not because we conquered them with military power, but because we conquered them by force of splendid example. We demonstrated to them that a nation can live, can grow, can increase its power by casting down the divine right of kings and acknowledging the divine right of the people to rule. The only way we can justify our holding of God's purpose is to keep this vessel clean, this as a nation. The time for us to have His favor is now, by righteous conduct, so that when we ask for His help in the time of our need it will come to us as justice, as well as mercy. I thank you.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON RETRENCHMENT AND REFORM.

Senator Allen, from the committee on retrenchment and reform, filed the following report which was ordered printed in the Journal:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

The committee on retrenchment and reform appointed by the 35th General Assembly beg leave to submit the following report. At the time of the publication of our preliminary report it was the intention of the committee to present a final report which would contain a thorough discussion of this whole matter. However, the reception given to our preliminary report has been so favorable and the matter has been so generally discussed in the papers of the state that we have thought best to confine this report to a presentation of the bills which represent in concrete form the ideas of the committee, together with a brief explanation of these bills and an introduction which would not undertake to go so far as to be an argument for the adoption of our recommendations but which would simply serve to present the point of view of the committee in a general way, and make it easier for the reader to understand the proposed bills.

There are three elements contained in our proposed reform,—

1st—Efficiency.

2nd—Economy.

3rd—The fixing of responsibility for the purpose of making the government more responsive to the will of the people.

The main idea with us is efficiency. The economy will at once be felt in the getting of greater results from what we spend and this will gradually show more and more as under our plan of competent and comprehensive and co-ordinated management the details of the system will work toward a more direct and economical basis.

We do not enter upon the field of speculative re-organization but simply undertake to establish a business management taking things as we find them. While the committee is in sympathy with many of the proposed theoretical reforms in government, yet we have not considered it our field to undertake to work out any of these, leaving that field to general legislation. As a matter of fact our work is not in conflict with any of these, and is in harmony with some of them, but the reforms presented in this report are essentially practical, not theoretical, in spirit.

We ask that the proposed reforms suggested by the committee shall be judged only by the reports issued by the committee and the measures proposed to be enacted into law, as there are many things suggested in the report of the efficiency engineers and in the discussions of these matters issued from other sources, with which this committee is not wholly in sympathy and there are other suggestions which, while we may have believed them to be based upon sound judgment, we have not deemed it wise to attempt to include in our recommendations for present legislation. We urge the reading of the preliminary report issued by the "Committee of Thirty," business men to the Minnesota legislature for the purpose of information, but wish to keep before the minds of the members of the Iowa legislature the fact that this committee is approaching the consideration of these problems from a very practical and conservative point of view.

We do not agree with those who consider this a war on graft and corruption although our recommendations will help to make graft and corruption impossible. Neither do we consider this to be an admission of the failure of our system of government; we do not consider that there has been a failure in our system of administration of government; we simply seek to adapt our present existing system of government to the greatly increased field of work and the greatly increased complexity of interests which the development of our state and its people have naturally brought about.

The changes we suggest are the natural result of our social growth; we do not seek to exalt the office of Governor and to increase his powers and responsibilities,—it is the force of circumstances entirely beyond control which necessarily have converted the Governor of the State of Iowa from the leader of a political party to a greater field of usefulness as the business manager of the State, and there is nothing new in this. As a matter of fact up to a comparatively recent date the Governor of Iowa was in fact the business manager of the State. Practically all the state institutions were managed by Boards of Trustees appointed by the Governor and of which he was ex-officio a member. As the business of the State increased in volume we have from time to time created Departments or Boards for the purpose of relieving the Governor and obtaining a control which would be closer to and more actively interested in that particular department. Where we failed, however, was in the fact that in creating these boards we failed to preserve in some central power a general supervision which could view these various Departments or Boards as details of the management of a state, and having in mind the interests of the State as a whole rather than the interests of any particular department.

And the Governor must be the business manager of the State; otherwise we have none; this being admitted then it follows as a matter of course, that in order to be a successful business manager he must have the authority that goes with that position. We have in history repeated illustrations of the fact that hesitancy and failure of decision are more destructive than wrong decision; and this is a sufficient answer to those who argue against our proposed reforms by saying that the man we elected to the Governorship might not rise to the situation. Any kind of definite management is better than no management, and that is the trouble with us today, we have not definite and comprehensive management.

By comprehensive management we mean such management as will consider the needs of each department, not only in the light of its own situation and its own demands, but also in the light of the demands and the needs of every other department of the state.

The consideration of appropriations by the Legislature is at this time, of necessity, local to each department or each board as it presents its needs; we hope to obtain for each department a consideration of its needs under such circumstances as will enable the Legislature to see not only the particular department in question as a unit, but to see it in its relations to all the other departments of the State; in this way only can the money of the people be so expended as to give fair consideration and support to each and every interest in the state.

The Committee has paid some attention to the matter of economy and efficiency in the Legislative and Judicial Departments of the Government but feeling that the greatest possibilities for good lay in the reformation of the Executive or Administrative Department, we have thought best to limit our efforts at this time to that one field. Nc bills therefore are presented except such as apply to this Department.

We feel that the people as a whole are strongly in favor of what is called the "Merit System" in the matter of appointments to the public service. The Committee has attempted to accomplish much along this line by general provisions as to non-partisan (not Bi-partisan) appointments, removal for cause, and prohibiting political activity by employees of the State. Going further than this would mean the establishment of another department of government, and we have thought best to leave that for future legislatures to work out after having had opportunity to see what results our present suggestions may have accomplished.

We are submitting with this report a number of Bills in form to be considered by the Legislature. In connection with each Bill will be found a brief, plain, statement of what the measure is and its effect upon the present existing laws. We have kept these Bills as plain and as short as possible so that each measure could be submitted upon its merits and without argument as to the effect of the Bill.

After careful consideration and study, the members of the committee are agreed in submitting these measures to the Legislature. We are confident that the enactment of them will result in giving to the people a more direct control of the government of the State, and will not only save them large sums of money, but, what is of still greater importance, will put into their hands a State Government which they will not only control, but which they will fully understand, and which they can, therefore more intelligently direct.

Respectfully submitted,

SEN. JOSEPH H. ALLEN, Chairman,
SEN. JOSEPH MATTES,
SEN. LESLIE E. FRANCIS,
SEN. JOHN L. WILSON,
SEN. SHERMAN W. DEWOLF.

On the part of the Senate.

REP. JOHN W. JACOBS, Secretary,
REP. WILLIAM LARRABEE, JR.,
REP. GERRIT W. KLAY,
REP. CHAS. W. MILLER,
REP. BENJ. H. BLACK.

On the part of the House.

This bill is aimed to promote efficiency and economy in the administration of the Executive Department of the State. There are two ideas in this bill, the first being to obtain some adequate general supervision over all departments and thus in public affairs obtain action based upon the interests of the state as a whole rather than upon the interests of any particular department. The second idea is to establish a Budget System for the purpose of making our expenditures more intelligent and more efficient.

There are a great many changes in the subordinate departments which we think would be advisable but we have thought best to simply put before the Legislature at this time the two great ideas above suggested, to-wit; Supervision and the Budget System and we have not interfered with the present organization in any of the subordinate departments any further than was necessary to do this.

We have attempted to establish a Cabinet for the Governor so far as possible until such time as the constitution be amended and permit the appointment of the Secretary of State, Treasurer of State, Auditor of State and Attorney General.

SECTION 24. This act, being deemed of immediate importance, shall be in force and effect from and after its publication in the Register and Leader, and the Des Moines Capital, newspapers published at Des Moines, Iowa.

The purpose of this bill is to transfer to Iowa City the Geological Survey. As a matter of fact the law does not at this time fix a location for the Geological Survey, but by custom it has been established at Des Moines. It has been thought best to leave the method of appointment of the State Geologist by a board as the law now contemplates, rather than to absorb it as part of the Geological Department of the University for the reason that this Geological Survey covers a wide field of usefulness to the state outside of its association with any particular school. As at present organized all the schools of the state have somewhat of an interest in it and the students and professors of the different schools have each an equal opportunity to serve in this work.

A BILL FOR AN ACT To Amend Section Two Thousand Four Hundred and Ninety-seven (2497) of the Code, Relating to the Geological Survey.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 1. That Section Two Thousand Four Hundred and Ninety-seven (2497) of the Code be amended by adding thereto the following:

"The Geological Survey shall be located at the University at Iowa City, and suitable quarters shall be provided by the President of the University."

NOTES TO BILL NO. 3.

This bill is absolutely self explanatory and is based upon the idea that it is the present duty of the State Board of Control to make a general investigation into modern methods of dealing with the criminal, defective, and insane classes and that this Board should be competent to take care of the work which is in the hands of the Board of Parole.

The Committee is in sympathy with the purpose for which the Board of Parole was established and this bill is not in any manner an attack, either upon the Board or upon that system; it is simply a business proposition to establish this work as a department under the State Board of Control where it would seem that it logically belongs.

A BILL FOR AN ACT To Transfer to the State Board of Control All the Rights, Powers, Privileges, and Duties, of the Board of Parole, and Abolishing the Present Existing Board of Parole.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 1. That at 12 o'clock P. M. on June 30th, 1915, the Board of Parole now existing in the State of Iowa as created by the law appearing in Section Five Thousand Seven Hundred Eighteen A-14 (5718-A14) of the Supplement to the Code, 1913, shall cease to exist and the terms of appointment of all the members of said State Board shall terminate at that time. None of the powers, rights, privileges, or duties conferred by the present existing laws of the State of Iowa upon the Board of Parole shall lapse or be held to be void in any manner by reason of the passage of this act, but the same shall continue in full force and effect in all respects up to Twelve (12) o'clock P. M. of the Thirtieth Day of June, A. D., 1915, at which time all of the said powers, rights, duties and privileges shall pass to and become vested in the Board of Control as now created and existing under the laws of the State of Iowa, excepting only that the salaries provided by law for the members of the Board of Parole shall cease.

SECTION 2. That the Board of Control shall on and after that date assume, exercise, and carry out all of the said powers, rights, privileges, and duties, which the laws of the State of Iowa, now vest in the Board of Parole. At that time all books, records, office supplies and equipment, pertaining to the said Board of Parole or used by it shall be transferred to the Board of Control.

SECTION 3. The office of the Secretary of the Board of Parole as now established by law shall continue and he shall be known as the Secretary of the Department of Parole and shall in all respects on and after the date fixed in this act be under the jurisdiction and supervision of the Board of Control.

SECTION 4. Wherever in the Supplement to the Code, 1913, or the Acts of the Thirty-third, Thirty-fourth, or Thirty-fifth General Assemblies, or elsewhere in the laws of the state of Iowa, reference is made to the Board of Parole the same shall on and after June 30th, A. D., 1915, be held to refer to and to mean the Board of Control.

SECTION 5. Any and all appropriations heretofore made for the use and benefit and support of the Board of Parole and its functions shall be available for the same uses under the authority of the Board of Control.

SECTION 6. This act being intended to preserve the functions and duties of the present existing State Board of Parole and for the further purpose of vesting the same in the present existing Board of Control as a department thereof for the purpose of economy, and efficiency, shall be liberally construed in order to accomplish those purposes.

NOTES TO BILL NO. 4.

This bill is for the purpose of making the Railway Commission appointive. Other than this there is no change in the law except that the term of office is made three years.

By making this change in the term of office it becomes certain that there will be at all times not less than two experienced men on the board, thus avoiding sudden changes in its personnel.

Senator Wilson does not endorse this change.

A BILL FOR AN ACT Repealing Section One Thousand and Sixty-eight (1068) of the Supplement to the Code, 1913, and Also Repealing Section Two Thousand One Hundred and Eleven (2111) of the Code and Enacting a Substitute Therefor Relating to the Board of Railroad Commissioners.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 1. That Section Two Thousand One Hundred and Eleven (2111) of the Code be, and the same is, hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof:

“The board of railroad commissioners shall consist of three persons having the qualification of electors, who shall be appointed by the Governor and shall each hold office for three years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. The present incumbents shall continue in office until the expiration of the term for which they were originally elected or appointed and the vacancy created by the expiration of the term of the office of the commissioner whose term expires in January, 1917, shall be filled by the Governor, by appointment for a term of three years. The vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of office of one of the commissioners whose term expires in January, 1919, shall be filled by the Governor, by appointment for a term of three years. The vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of office of one of the commissioners whose term expires in January, 1919, shall be filled by the Governor, by appointment for a term of five years. Thereafter the appointments shall be made for a uniform term of three years. Immediately after the new member has qualified, the board shall organize by electing one of its members as chairman, and appointing a secretary who shall take the same oath as the commissioners; but this, or a part of this, may be done at a subsequent meeting. Any person ineligible to the office of commissioner shall be ineligible to the office of secretary of the board. The board shall have power to employ such additional clerical help as it may find necessary. No person in the employ of any common carrier or owning any bonds, stock or property in any railroad company, or who is in any way or manner pecuniarily interested in any railroad corporation, shall be eligible to the office of railroad commissioner, and the entering into the employ of any common carrier, or the acquiring of any stock or other interest in any common carrier, by any officer under this chapter, after his election or appointment, shall disqualify him to hold the office and to perform the duties thereof."

SECTION 2. That Section One Thousand and Sixty-eight (1068) of the Supplement, to the Code, 1913, is hereby repealed.

NOTES TO BILLS NO. 5 AND 6.

These two proposed amendments to the Constitution are submitted by the Committee for the consideration of the Legislature. Some of the members of the Committee have felt that it would be unwise to press these at this particular time but the Committee as a whole have felt that from a theoretical point of view they should be included in the report as it was hoped that ultimately the three new offices proposed to be created by this report could be consolidated with three of the present existing elective offices and in this way we could not only economize but obtain a better organized and better balanced executive department.

NOTES TO BILL NO. 7.

This Bill is a necessary part of the plan offered by the Committee because it necessarily follows that if the Governor has no power of removal he would have no power to enforce the carrying out of his policies. In order to fix responsibility it is absolutely necessary to place this power of removal in his hands and there is no other place in the state where it can be vested with as much assurance that it will be used for the best interests of the people as a whole.

A BILL FOR AN ACT Repealing Section Twelve Hundred Fifty-Eight b (1258-b) of the Supplement to the Code, 1913, Relating to the Removal of Appointive Officials and Commissioners and Enacting a Substitute Therefor, Conferring Upon the Governor the Power to Remove any Appointive Officer or Commissioner for Cause.

Be It Enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 1. Section Twelve Hundred Fifty-eight-b (1258-b) of the Supplement to the Code, 1913, is hereby repealed and the following enacted in lieu thereof, to-wit:

Any official, superintendent, commissioner, member of a board or subordinate employee, of any of the departments of Government of the State of Iowa, referred to in Section Three (3) hereof, and whose tenure of office is derived by appointment either directly by the Governor or by any of the said boards, commissioners, or superintendents, may be removed by the Governor at any time, for cause, and after such hearing as the Governor may deem advisable.

SECTION 3. The provision of this Act shall apply to the following departments of the State of Iowa, to-wit: (1) The Department headed by the present Superintendent of Public Instruction; (2) The Board of Educational Examiners; (3) The State Library; (4) The Geographical Survey; (5) The Historical Departments; (6) The Historical Society of Iowa; (7) The Academy of Science; (8) The Public Archives; (9) The Library Commission; (10) The Board of Control; (11) The Board of Parole; (12) The Board of Education; (13) The Department of Agriculture; (14) The Weather and Crop Bureau; (15) The State Veterinary Surgeon; (16) The Commission of Animal Health; (17) The Horticultural Society; (18) The Inspector of Bees; (19) The State Entomologist; (20) The State Dairy Association; (21) The Beef Cattle Breeders' Association; (22) The State and County Fairs; (23) The Railroads Commission; (24) The Commerce Council; (25) The Commissioner of Insurance; (26) The Industrial Commissioners; (27) The Bureau of Labor Statistics; (28) The Department of Banking; (29) The Bank Examiners; (30) The County Examiners; (31) The City and Town Examiners; (32) The Public Accountant; (34) The Adjutant General; (35) The State Militia; (36) The Fish and Game Warden; (37) The State Highway Commission; (38) The Custodian of Public Buildings and Property; (39) The Department of Capitol Extension; (40) The Land Office; (41) The Department of Meandered Lakes; (42) The Fire Marshal; (43) The Board of Health; (44) The Board of Medical Examiners; (45) The Board of Optometry Examiners; (46) The Board of Law Examiners; (47) The Board of Dental Examiners; (48) The Commission of Pharmacy; (49) The Veterinary Examining Board; (50) The Dairy and Food Commission; (51) The Examiners of the Dairy and Food Commission; (52) The Oil Inspectors; (53) The Inspectors of Boats; (54) The Mine Inspectors; (55) The Board of Examiners for Mine Inspection; (56) The Automobile Registration Department; (57) The Board of Voting Machine Commissioners.

SECTION 5. This act being deemed of immediate importance shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication in the Register and Leader, and the Des Moines Capital, newspapers published in Des Moines, Iowa.

NOTES TO BILL NO. 8.

The purpose of this Bill is to prevent the building up of any political machine and the Bill is so drawn as to prohibit political activity within the Executive Department of the state, but at the same time to leave all state employees free to take that position which, as citizens they should take up in respect to national, judicial, county, city and school affairs.

MR. PRESIDENT—Your committee upon the contest of Sherman W. DeWolf, contestant, vs. Henry W. Grout, incumbent of the Thirty-eighth Senatorial District of Iowa, beg leave to report as follows:

That after due argument by counsel upon the legal questions involved in said issue had been duly argued, the committee deemed that there should be a recount of the votes and so ordered, whereupon said committee constituted J. E. Williams and W. M. Birdsall, attorneys for contestant, and O. B. Cortwright and E. H. McCoy, attorneys for incumbent, a canvassing board to recount the votes and agree upon the votes that each candidate was entitled to receive and, having recounted the votes of Black Hawk and Grundy counties, said canvassing board reported that they found no disputed ballots, that they found numerous and material errors made by the judges and clerks of election in canvassing the votes in thirty-three out of forty-seven voting precincts in said Thirty-eighth Senatorial District. Said canvassing board found that the contestant, Sherman W. DeWolf, received five thousand one hundred eighteen (5118) votes with which he should be credited and that the incumbent, Henry W. Grout, received five thousand one hundred fifty-eight (5158) votes with which he should be credited, making the plurality received by the incumbent over the contestant in the election held on the 3d day of November, 1914, in said Thirty-eighth Senatorial District, forty (40) votes. Said canvassing board submitted their report in detail, as is shown by the same, of the changes in the votes in the different precincts throughout the district. The report of said canvassing board having been made to your committee, your committee found that Henry W. Grout, incumbent, is entitled to his seat in this Assembly. The canvassing boards, consisting of the attorneys of contestant and incumbent, having canvassed the returns from the various precincts and having made their report to your committee, saving your committee all the trouble of counting said votes and making said returns, have saved the time of said committee and your committee herewith desires to submit a report to the Appropriations Committee of the Senate and recommend that a bill be prepared by the Committee on Appropriations to cover the costs of said contest including such sums as the committee shall deem just to the attorneys for contestant and incumbent.

Respectfully submitted,

Said committee canvassed the votes of the forty-seven (47) precincts in the Thirty-eighth Senatorial District, discovering mistakes in thirty-three (33) precincts but said mistakes were not of a nature to materially change the result of said contest but simply showed the justification for there being a contest of said election. Ordered passed on file.

The President announced the receipt of the following communication which was read and ordered printed in the Journal:

Council Bluffs, Iowa, February 22, 1915.

To the President of the Senate, Des Moines, Iowa.

Gentlemen—The soldiers of Iowa have for many years endeavored to have a new location selected for the Iowa Soldiers' Monument. They have for years been before the Iowa Legislature, but failed to obtain any action until the passage of the law for the extension of the Capitol grounds, which provided for its location in the middle of Capitol avenue, two blocks east of the Capitol.

This is an ideal location, and will give the monument a proper surrounding and a commanding appearance, and do away with the general criticism of the present location, which has also caused many criticisms on the monument itself.

The veterans supposed that the Extension Act authorized the monument's removal, and at the State National Encampment of the G. A. R. at Des Moines, they passed a resolution approving of the law passed by the Legislature. And at the Second Grand Reunion of all the soldiers of Iowa last May, I explained to them the action of the Legislature, and pointed out the new location, and they unanimously and with great applause also approved of the new location, many of them visiting the Capitol and examining the plans.

We supposed the Extension Act gave full authority for the removal of the monument to the new location, but the Governor thinks that it needs an affirmation of the Legislation, directing its removal to the place designated in the Capitol Extension plans.

And I ask, in compliance with the wishes and action of the Iowa veterans, that the Legislature pass such an act as is necessary to insure the immediate removal of the monument to its new location.

My health is such that it does not permit me to visit the Capitol, and I submit this appeal to the Legislature by letter, feeling and knowing it is only necessary to explain to the Legislature the present condition and necessity, for them to act.

I am respectfully,

Your Obedient Servant,

GRENVILLE M. DODGE.

Senator Hilsinger moved that the Senate do now adjourn until 10 o'clock a. m. tomorrow.

WHEREAS, the said resolution has been published as provided by law and has now been referred to this, the thirty-sixth, general assembly, now, therefore,

Be It Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

That the proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of Iowa as contained in and proposed by said house joint resolution number five (5) of the resolutions of the thirty-fifth general assembly, which resolution including its title was and is in words and figures as follows, to-wit: "JOINT RESOLUTION To Amend the Constitution Relating to Legislative Authority; Providing for the Initiative and Referendum with Reference to the Enactment of Laws, or Laws Enacted by the General Assembly, and Amendments to the Constitution."

Be It Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Iowa:

SECTION 1. The legislative authority of this state shall be vested in a general assembly which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives, and the style of every law shall be, "Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the state of Iowa", but the people reserve unto themselves the right and power to propose laws, to enact, approve or reject the same at the polls, independent of the general assembly, and reserve the right and power to approve or reject any item, section or part of any act enacted by the general assembly, except otherwise provided by this section. The general assembly shall fix the number of qualified electors required to propose the enactment of any proposed law, which shall be not less than twelve (12%) per cent nor more than twenty-two (22%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Every law proposed by the people shall be presented by petition, signed by the required number of qualified electors, addressed to and filed with the secretary of state not less than one hundred and fifty (150) days before the general election at which the proposed law shall be submitted. The petition shall contain the full text of the proposed law, with title and enacting clause.

If the proposed measure be to enact a law, the enacting clause shall be as follows: "Be it enacted by the people of the state of Iowa."

The right and power to initiate and enact laws shall be restricted within the same constitutional limitation as apply to the general assembly.

The required number of qualified electors required to exercise the right and power to require an act passed by the general assembly to be referred for approval or rejection shall be fixed by the general assembly, but shall not be less than ten (10%) per cent nor more than twenty (20%) per cent of the qualified electors of each of the congressional districts of the state. Petitions therefor shall be addressed to and filed with the secretary of state within ninety (90) days from the final adjournment of the general assembly which passed the act to which the petition is addressed, and shall contain a full text of that part of the act to be referred; but such right and power shall not extend or apply to an act passed by the general assembly relating to the preservation of the public peace, public health or appropriations for the support and maintenance of the department of state and state institutions. All acts, and parts thereof, enacted by the general assembly and submitted to the people shall be and remain in full force and effect until rejected by the people, as herein provided.

Until the general assembly enacts a law fixing the per cent of qualified electors required for petition, the required per cent shall in all cases be fifteen (15%) per cent of the qualified electors of each congressional districts of the state.

The whole number of votes cast for secretary of state at the regular general election last preceding the filing of petition shall be the basis for the number of legal voters required to sign such petition.

The veto power of the governor shall not apply or extend to any measure initiated and enacted by the people.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative or referred under the referendum shall be submitted to the people for adoption or rejection at the regular biennial election first occurring after the filing of the petition.

All measures for proposed laws under the initiative shall become a law when approved by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon, and shall take effect as hereinafter provided.

Any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law when rejected by a majority of the voters whose votes are cast thereon and proclamation has been made by the governor as hereinafter provided. All proposed laws under the initiative shall take effect and any measure referred under the referendum shall cease to be a law from and after the date of official declaration of the vote thereon by proclamation issued by the governor, which shall be not later than thirty days after the vote has been canvassed by the state canvassing board for that purpose, composed of the governor, secretary of state and attorney general, and certificate thereof made not later than December first following the election.

The petition contemplated by this section shall consist of sheets having such general form, printed or written, as shall be prescribed by the secretary of state, and shall be signed by the required number of qualified electors, in their proper persons only, to which shall be attached the resident addresses of such persons signing the petition and the date of signing. To each of such sheets shall be attached and made a part thereof an affidavit of some qualified elector that each signature thereon is the signature of the person whose name it purports to be, and that, to the best of the knowledge and belief of the affiant, each of the persons signing said petition was, at the time of signing, a qualified elector. Such petition, so verified, shall be prima facie evidence that the signatures thereon are genuine and true, and that the persons signing the same are qualified electors of the state of Iowa.

Immediately upon the filing of a petition for the submission of a proposed law to the voters, the secretary of state shall submit the said proposed law to the supreme court for its opinion upon the constitutionality thereof, which shall be rendered within twenty (20) days, and if the court finds that the proposed measure conflicts with the constitution of the United States or the state of Iowa, the proposed measure shall not be submitted.

Until the general assembly shall provide by law a method of procedure of printing, distributing and submitting proposed measures, the secretary of state shall, ninety (90) days preceding the general election at which the measure will be voted upon, cause to be printed any and all measures for or to which petition has been filed, in pamphlet form, containing the full text thereof, with the title and enacting clause, together with arguments for and against the same, within the limits prescribed by the secretary of state. The number printed shall be not less than one for each voter voting at the last general election preceding the filing of the petition, which shall be delivered to the county auditor of each county.

For each voter in each voting precinct of each political party voting at the last general election, the auditor of each county shall deliver one copy to each precinct committeeman of each political party in the county.

The secretary of state shall submit all measures petitioned for in accordance with the provisions of this section, to the people for adoption or rejection at the polls in compliance herewith; but the right and power reserved to the people shall not operate to deprive or limit the power of the general assembly to enact laws.

If, at an election, conflicting measures submitted to the voters of the state shall be approved by a majority of the votes, severally cast thereon, the measure receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall become law as to all conflicting provisions.

Insofar as applicable, the provisions of this amendment shall govern in the initiative and adoption of amendments to the constitution; provided, however, that no amendment so submitted shall become a part of the constitution until it shall have first received an affirmative majority vote at two successive regular biennial elections, the majority vote at the first of which shall be the authority for preparation of the ballot and re-submission at the second. The word "enacted" shall be replaced by the word "resolved" in the enacting clause when amendments to the constitution are submitted.

This section of the constitution shall be, in all respects, self-executive.

Be and the same is hereby agreed to, enacted and adopted.

JOHN R. MOTT.

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I value more highly than I can express this privilege of meeting this body of men of wide outlook and of responsiveness to the highest ideals and purposes that are working in our generation; and it is an added honor to be permitted to come at a time like this when so many men are associating themselves in constructive measures, which have commended, not only the attention, but the sympathetic approval and convictions of discerning men throughout our nation. I confess that my heart beats a little more quickly, and the emotions of patriotism become more intense as I find myself back after varied wanderings in the state with the associations of my boyhood and my young manhood, those never to be forgotten vision-forming and character-building days. And I think, coming back from my work in some forty to forty-five different nations abroad, I have an added appreciation of what is being wrought out in this commonwealth in the upper Mississippi valley. I have often said in other quarters, in my judgment, the hope of the largest measures, for the expansion of the faith and of the principles which we most value in America, lies in the upper Mississippi valley. That has come to me more and more through my world-wide travels; and I ever honor this great commonwealth, from the days when I had the rare privilege of the fellowship and tutelage of Governor William Larrabee, one of the most proficient, wise, constructive and disinterested men in the long line of public characters in this state, and I have ever been proud of the peoples of this state and commonwealth in our nation and in their outreach in the world. In these recent months I had the sacred privilege, as well as the sad privilege, of being in the war zone of Europe; and I will say that I have come back here much older than I was a few months ago. I would be a hypocrite were this not the case. No man could see what I have been obliged to see without being a changed man; and no man could listen to what I have listened and not have the springs of vitality sapped. I have been going to Europe every year for twenty-five years, but I have never known Europe until this time. I have come to see that you cannot know a nation, just as you cannot know an individual, until you see that nation subjected to an impossible strain. Then you see the lines of least resistance; then you become aware of the weaknesses, as well happily, as their strength and power. I have looked into the very soul of the great European peoples, and I say it reverently—"I have entered into fellowship with their sufferings." Naturally I received impressions of them just as you would here of nations at long range. I was impressed in each nation by the fact that the people of that nation are perfectly united. There may be rifts of divisions—in my judgment there are rifts of division beneath the surface—in each nation now at war, but they are not apparent. Everywhere you are impressed with the solidarity of the nations. In France I found Roman Catholics, Jews, Protestants, agnostics, blending their age-long differences in a common loyalty and devotion. In Germany I could hardly believe what I found, in view of my earlier experience, that the democrats and the autocrats of the imperial government, had formed a wondrous unity. So in each of the other nations, I received the impression that in each country the people are not only perfectly united, but absolutely determined. If you ask me to name the nation which gave me evidence of having the least will power, I would be unable to answer your question, because nowhere did I find evidence of flabbiness of will, weakness of purpose, or want of staying power. That lends tragedy to the situation.

Take France. I read a book written by a Roman Catholic ecclesiast, entitled "France Herself Again." The writer was showing how in recent years France has reverted to her best type, and how tremendously the events of the recent months have accentuated his main contention instead of that old emotional, changeable, volatile, talkative France with which you and I are familiar with on earlier visits. I found a people characterized by wonderful poise, calm, not speaking, fixed in their purpose, steady,—but not more than any other nations which I visited on both sides of the struggle. In each country I found the people not only perfectly united and absolutely determined, but fully confident. I did meet here and there a German who doubted as to their success on the sea, but I never met a German who had any doubt whatever as to their success on the land, nor have I since heard of one. In each country I found the people trying to justify their positions before all the other nations of the world, and in particular before the United States of America. They seem to look upon us as a supreme court. And by the way it impressed me with our tremendous responsibility. Among the thousands of conversations which I had with leading men of all these nations, as well as with men in humble walks of life, sooner or later an attempt was made to discover what was the present or probable attitude of the American toward their particular position. When people tell you that this war gives evidence of the breaking down of Christianity, they are not thinking straight. There has been no circumstance which has so revealed the fact that Christianity has been getting in its work. In connection with what previous war or occasion have we had such abundant proof that conscience has been educated, so that today one finds it troubled and seeking to justify itself. And that reminds me that today they are using the phrase "Holy War." If you were to ask me which country regards it as the most holy war, I might say Russia. In all my visits I have been impressed with the thought that the Russian people, as a whole, are among the most religious of people, possibly with the exception of the British Indians. I do not know that I should make that exception. The Russians go literally from their knees to the war.

Likewise in France, how different it seemed, for instead of finding as I have in all my earlier visits, that the educated classes and the governing classes, and the virile men in general, were indifferent concerning religion, this year I found not only the churches and chapels, but the cathedrals, packed to their outer limits, by all classes of men not called to the colors. I had a letter a week ago from a friend in Paris, a prominent representative of the government, who had just come back from the front, investigating a certain department of the war, and he had only one criticism to make, and he is an agnostic: "My only criticism at the front is that our soldiers are becoming too religious."

In Germany, not only on Sundays but on week nights, and often in the day time, you will find the churches and chapels thronged. No regiment thinks of going to the front without the holy sacrament. The song that I heard most, sung by the soldiers of Germany, and they were singing most of the time, was not "Die Wacht am Rhein," not "Deutschland uber Alles," but the Luther Hymn, and my attention was called to the fact of how they repeated over and over again the familiar second verse—you recall it.

The other day, coming down from Manchester, I was talking with an European soldier, invalided home, as a result of concussion from shell fire. A large number of men are wounded by shell fire. I have read that seventy per cent of the wounded are wounded by shell fire. But indifferent to this, many men, even of the strongest nerves, break down sooner or later, because of this steady shell fire, and are invalided home or sent back among the reserves for the time being. This was one of those men, a Christian man. He said to me: "It was awfully hard for us in a certain action to turn the machine guns on a German regiment as it came forward, when we got the familiar strains of the Luther Hymn."

The colossal dimensions of this war are everywhere in evidence. It is colossal, gentlemen, when it has called to the colors in the belligerent countries alone a little over twenty millions of men; and if you add the neutral countries where they have been mobilized, nearly four million more in Italy, the Balkan group, Switzerland, Holland and the Scandinavian group, the dimensions become colossal.

I crossed Germany the other day—a beautiful day. The sleeper service had been cut off, and I went all the way through by day. We passed over two hundred thousand soldiers. I was reminded of what Bismarck once said, that Germany will have three armies, one on the East, one on the West, and one on the Eisenbahn. Germany seems to move whole divisions in this war to the French and Polish borders, six hundred miles, with the same facility as in earlier wars they moved regiments from one position to another.

It is a costly war. Part of the time I was in Germany I was the guest of the under secretary of the finance department of the imperial government, a friend of mine of many years standing. I have come to the conclusion, and I have no reason to change my opinion, that the actual daily expenses for purely military and naval purposes, since August first, in all the nations combined that are now at war, has been a little over thirty-seven million dollars gold, and some estimates are over fifty million dollars, and that is the smallest part of it. If you add the work of demolition in northern France, as one sees it everywhere in Belgium, still more in Poland, where over twelve thousand towns and villages have been utterly destroyed, then in Galicia, on the eastern borders of Prussia and in Russia, the price mounts. Then when you remember that nearly all of the armies outside of the British Isles are prescriptive, that is that all peasants bankers, doctors, lawyers, wealthy men, are invariably summoned to the ranks, and that you take out the productive, the constructive, the most virile, the most purposeful, and the best equipped men, the price mounts.

While crossing Germany the other day, where in my earlier visits to Westphalia I had known Breslau as a manufacturing town and where I had seen dense clouds of smoke from the factories, only one chimney remained in operation, and that was industrially connected with the war. In northern France I found that the provinces that produced more manufactured products than all the rest of France, were tied up absolutely. Belgium, the most highly organized industrial nation of the world, was tied up absolutely. In England, a little further removed from the center of the war zone, the great industries have been paused. Then when you think of our own nation, and every other neutral country, where you can point to activities that have been brought to a halt by this war, the price mounts. And if you add what it costs to produce a man and bring him up to the point where he is shot dead, and realize that over seven hundred thousand men have been killed, you begin to get a larger conception of the price that is being paid. Did I say seven hundred thousand? The number now is considerably over a million slain. When I called on our ambassador, Mr. Page, in London, I mentioned this to him, and he said "When a man says a village contains seven hundred inhabitants, I can take that in. If here is a division which had seventy thousand and at the end there are only thirty-two thousand left, I can comprehend that, for I lived in a village about that size. But when you come in and tell me seven hundred thousand have been killed, I cannot take it in." But, gentlemen, I begin to take it in.

The first home I visited in Europe was one in Germany. My host said thirty-one of his family had been called to the war, and that nine of the thirty-one had been killed. And the last home that I visited was Lord Balfour of Burleigh. He thought his older son was captured, but he learned that he had been killed five weeks before. He received a letter of condolence while I was there. As he read he choked up and he said "Mott, finish it for me." So it was, going from one house to another in Europe.

It is a suffering Europe. Before I left there over three million had been wounded. A large portion have what they call clean wounds, and are therefore patched up and sent into the fight again, but making all allowance for this, the numbers which have been added since I left,—I am well within the facts, as I can prove,—make nearly four millions of wounded. Can we take that in? A friend of mine in eight days counted in Belgium one hundred fifty-one railway trains, averaging twenty railway carriages each, or over three thousand railway cars, filled with the German wounded, moving eastward. It reminded me of rivers of pain. When I was at the seat of the great German gunworks, I found that all through trains to Berlin run in two sections. There are similar trains in Austria-Hungary. I have seen those rivers of pain in France, and there are more of those trains in Russia than in any other country in this war. I have seen them in England.

The other day in Paris a friend of mine took me to the French lines. We went through the beautiful valley of the Marne, to the valley of the Aisne, within sound of the great guns by the trenches. I counted the fifteenth hospital,—there are more than that,—and I saw the rivulets and the gushing torrents coming out,—rivers of pain. But there is another kind of pain over there; it is that dull pain, that insistent pain, that pain ever present in every conscious moment, and therefore working in the unconscious moment that causes mothers, daughters, sisters, even little children, to start in the night.

In Berlin every German state has a foreign office, and by going to this office you may receive advance intelligence regarding the casualties. We came by the military college. They brought me into a room almost like this, and the first thing that I saw was this sign "Walk Softly, Speak Softly." One side of the room was an alphabetical list, and a man could go forward, point to a certain letter and find out things in advance. Women came with children clinging to their skirts. A friend told me that the other day a young German wife came to the station to bid farewell to her husband. She did not weep; she even tried to cheer him. The train left the station, and she fell dead on the platform. It was this fortitude, this repression, this bearing the cross that got into my consciousness. Truly it is a suffering Europe. It is stretched on a cross; but thank God it is an unselfish Europe.

I was expecting to enter into a difficult negotiation on the continent, and Mr. Page suggested that I ask certain people for help. I asked Mr. Page if it would not be a difficult thing for me to secure help from strangers, and he said "You will not find a selfish man or woman in Europe." I suppose they do not think it out, but if they do they probably think it this way: "While millions are stretched on beds of pain, God help us to do something to help relieve the strain and suffering."

I reached Holland two days after the fall of Antwerp. They had already taken in over one million Belgian refugees. They were not complaining; they were not boasting of their lot; they were rising to the occasion. I have never seen a whole nation unselfish before. Town after town had more Belgian refugees in it than Dutch. I went into a Belgian village and they were bringing in cans of milk and placing them down that the refugees might have their milk without price. Before I left England they were arriving in that country eight or nine thousand a day, and the English, Welsh and Scotch were eager to get them. They had given over twenty million dollars for benevolent funds, and have given vastly more since. Imagine my feelings when I landed in New York, when I saw in the New York Times that up to that time our aggregate gifts had been one or two million dollars. We have been doing better recently. Thank God that we have raised it to about twelve million dollars. We are beginning to get under the load.

What are the effects of this war? No doubt you have read them between the lines. Gentlemen, you cannot spend each day for purely military and naval purposes, more than all the Protestants, Roman Catholics and missionary societies in the world are spending in a year on the expansion of the Christian religion, without cutting into the present and future resources of civilization; and you cannot turn the machine guns on the most virile men of the strongest nations of Europe, and keep them turned one,—they do not stop, it is a solid siege; they have spent more days fighting than we did in the Civil war. My friend in Paris said we make sixty thousand bullets per day, and we use fifty thousand per day. Something leads me to believe that this war will not last beyond another winter. There has been a little more than forty thousand men a day killed, wounded and imprisoned, more nearly forty-five thousand. You cannot stand this shell fire indefinitely.

I had a letter from this friend asking if we might not have some men from the neutral countries who might form plans for peace.

I said that would be possible if we could assemble the right men, and if they could command the confidence of all the belligerent countries. I said a second thing essential is, that we would have to wait until the psychological moment comes. It is coming, but I added that they have got to suffer more. I do not like to say it; I do not want to say it, but it is my belief now.

It was a sad night in Germany to see four hundred eighty thousand in their new uniforms. They distributed these beautiful boys twenty years of age to the two fronts, and put them in with the veterans, and there they were mowed down like wheat. And it brought tears to my eyes in England and Scotland, to see the flower of those British Isles sent to certain death, to a disproportionately large measure. The man who says these are not adverse results is thinking superficially. They are cutting down the leaders, not only of the present but of the next generation.

I am grateful to add there are favoring considerations in connection with this war. One is, that this war has demonstrated, as nothing else has done, the strength of the international Christian bonds, as manifested in movements like the Y. M. C. A., the Students' Christian movement and the missionary movement. During my twenty-five years trips over there I have built up an acquaintance of thousands in those countries, including leaders, and therefore I can bring you accurate word that I know by name men who have the confidence of millions in each of these countries, who have entered into an agreement that in these Christian enterprises, after they have fought out as citizens their political differences, they will instantly resume constructive co-operation after the war.

I have seen the greatest miracle that the world has ever seen. "Behold how these Christians love one another." I know people on both sides of this struggle. By what they are doing behind each others backs, I know that there is something in the world that Christ released when he said "Love your enemies." I do not find it springing up from any other source.

Another favoring consideration is, that it is revealing the helpfulness of international bonds. How I have seen the strong nations helping the weak nations. I have seen the neutral countries springing to the relief of the belligerent countries. The little countries put us to shame: Switzerland, Holland, Denmark.

Another favoring consideration is, that it is revealing the necessity for those international Christian bonds. This war will not be followed by over forty years of international revenge as in the Franco-Prussian war; neither will it be followed, as in our Civil war, by the division of whole churches, which are still rent in twain. It will be followed by an instant rebuilding of the great international structure.

Another favoring consideration is, that this war is revealing the shortcomings of the nations, and it is always well to know our shortcomings. This reflection is with me, gentlemen, by day and by night. What might we not have done if all leading citizens of our nation, in common with the other nations, had been busy throwing down strands of international friendship, busy magnifying the good points of other nations, busy moulding right attitudes between nations and other peoples! Would we have drifted to these rocks? Certainly not. We will not drift to them again, if I understand the nations today.

Another favoring consideration is, that it has revealed the capacities for vicariousness, for suffering, for sacrifice and a heroism of which we have not dreamed. I have been criticized for saying that it will take twenty thousand of the best young men and women from our colleges to evangelize the world in this generation. You will never hear me make such a low estimate. In Canada, in three of their greatest universities, half of the students have volunteered. Before I left England, fifty-six per cent of the students, and sixty-six per cent of the Christian students, and ninety per cent of the officers of the Christian Associations, had volunteered. Gentlemen, we have not been putting hard enough things on the students. There is a danger of bringing up another soft generation, in ease and extravagance. It is time to appeal to the heroic. They will respond, and we will save our nation, and we will take our part in the world's work. This war is trying the faith of men by fire. I come to you to say that faith is being purified, that superstition is being burned out. Men are not believing as many things, but the things they do believe are the things that count. The faith of Europe is being rebuilt as never before, not on a vague, shadowy influence, but on the Lord Jesus Christ.

Another favoring consideration is that this war is revealing the unparalleled opportunity for helpfulness and reconstruction. A year ago when I returned from the old world, I said in Iowa what I never thought I would live to say, that Egypt, Russia and Turkey are now plastic. And I say that Europe is now in the melting pot.

I spent a day with President Wilson not long ago, and in answer to his inquiry as to the outcome of the war, I said: "Mr. President, as your faith, so be it unto you." And by you I meant America. When this war is over, the nations now engaged in it will be exhausted economically, exhausted vitally, and I am afraid I must say exhausted largely in hope, in faith, in courage. Then America, with unspent energies, with the spirit of prophecy, with courage, not afraid of her strength, not afraid of her idealism, if she is sufficiently unselfish, may help meet, as we have never dreamed, even in the days of our fathers, the needs of the nations. May we not be found wanting at a time like this, when whole nations are stretched on a Calvary cross. How uncourageous it would be for America to drift into zones of selfishness. Rather may she preserve a true neutrality. Keep her moral powder dry until the psychological moment, and then not be afraid of her destiny.

Ring of Linn moved that the joint convention be now dissolved.

Motion prevailed and the joint convention was dissolved.

WHEREAS, the meat producers of Iowa lost within the past six months millions of dollars, estimated to be enough to build and equip stock yards, packing houses, switches, and yards, to slaughter all the meat producing animals of the entire state, all on account of our inability to reach a market within our own state, now therefore,

Be It Further Resolved, That jurisdiction is hereby lodged in the State Board of Agriculture with the advice and consent of the Executive Council to purchase land near such railroad centers as they deem best for the construction of all stock yards, slaughter houses, refrigerators, and other buildings necessary to do a live stock, slaughtering, meat packing, and selling business for the State of Iowa, and to buy, sell, or rent for this State all material and equipment and employ all the necessary labor and clerical help, and do all things necessary to carry on a general meat slaughtering, selling and packing business in this State, and to suitably reward all slaughterers doing a general slaughter house business in this State.

SENATOR FRAILEY.

Mr. President, Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association, Members of the Joint Assembly, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In my endeavor to carry out the commission which you have so kindly entrusted to me today I shall not hope to rise to the exalted station demanded by this occasion, and yet I hope that my shortcomings will be attributed to the head and not to the heart. I cannot quite understand why I was selected to make this address. I say this, because these visiting lawmakers do not understand the situation. I understood that the address was to be made by a lawmaker. I want to state frankly that I am not a lawmaker. I think that about seventy-five per cent of the bills that I voted for have been defeated and about seventy-five per cent of the measures that I voted against have been passed and will become a law.

It is no small honor to welcome here these legislators of the past generation who have made the history of this state,—they and their predecessors who have given to us of this generation and to the future that which we so proudly call the history of Iowa, and gentlemen, it is a marvelous history that you have given us, this history of our state, a history whose title page is written in the blood of sacrifice, a history of a powerful people who, in less than half a century overran this domain between the Missouri and the Mississippi rivers; the history of a people who, standing steadfast to the ideals that inspired the pilgrim fathers at Plymouth Rock. standing steadfast to the ideals that made those starving regiments in rags, barefoot in the snows of winter, immortal at Valley Forge; standing steadfast to the ideals that made Yorktown a possibility and Appamattox a certainty. In this state of Iowa in the very heart of the Mississippi valley they have built up this commonwealth that today more nearly reflects the fundamental ideals of our fathers than does that of any other state in the union; a history of soldiers and of sailors who, in field and flood and savage wilderness, have borne the flag triumphant even to the gates of the sunset; a history of statesmen who, in the wisdom of their legislating, have guided themselves to majesty and might; a history of seers and prophets and historians who have given to the early generations of the earth a haven and a hope; a history of a state whose cradle song was the confluent murmur of two of the greatest rivers on this continent, whose constitution is the guaranty of civil and religious liberty to all mankind, the stamp of whose imperishable knighthood is noble, honest toil and whose crowned jewels are a Kirkwood and a Larrabee, an Allison, a Dolliver, a Gear and a Harlan, and gentlemen, with all this marvelous history behind us, we are prompted in this generation to more strenuous endeavor, more glorious achievement. It is indeed eminently fitting and proper that we of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly should set aside this morning to do honor to you men of the generations past.

The study of the beginnings of representative government, no matter in what part of the world, seem to me to be the most interesting study that can attract the human intellect, notwithstanding that so much of it is legendary and so obviously false, and I have sometimes wished that some great historian, some divinely gifted man or woman might write down for us the marvelous history of the beginning of this state of Iowa, might take us back to the beginning of things, might show us the people and the pioneers of those early days, the houses in which they lived, the languages they spoke, and their lives as they lived them, for, gentlemen, it is a marvelous study, the early history of this state, and the significant thing to us today is, that it was you pioneer lawmakers and the generation that preceded you, beginning away back in the first territorial legislature in Burlington, coming on to Iowa City and then to Des Moines; it was these early pioneer lawmakers who laid deep and firm and true the foundation stones upon which we are building today and upon which the generations of the future will build tomorrow.

And so, gentlemen, it is not only the past that belongs to you, but the future as well, you who have been the moulders of our future, and it takes no prophet's vision to behold the future of this glorious state of ours, to see the home of the happy millions of people who rise up every morning to vast hives of industry and thrift; her country side the treasure vault from which her wealth is drawn, her streams everywhere buzzing with the whirr and hum of the wheel and the shuttle, her fields tranquil in the white and gold of the harvest, her hilltops resound with the music of the bells as her flocks and herds go forth from the folds; her rulers honest and her people contented; her homes happy and her hearthstones bright and her conscience clean. Peace and sobriety walking hand in hand in her borders; honor in her midst, straight and simple faith in the hearts and the faces of her sons and daughters and sunshine everywhere and all the time. That, gentlemen, is the Iowa that you pioneer law-makers have given to us and to the future, and now, makers of our past, moulders of our future, on behalf of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly I bid you welcome to the fellowship and deliberation of this occasion.

HON. G. L. LOBSON.

Mr. President and Members of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

I haven't words sufficient to thank you for the address of welcome that has been tendered the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association. Go back, as we did yesterday, to the time when Iowa was a territory, when the western part of Iowa was part of the great American desert, and then as we come on down, there are men here who helped plan and lay the very foundation of this great state, as the Senator spoke of, men who could surely look a long way into the future when they planned this beautiful capitol. Go back for a half century in Iowa, and who could ever have dreamed that the time would come within a half century when we would stand first and foremost of all the states in the union in regard to agricultural products.

Friends, I am informed that I have just five minutes and so I will have to condense what I have to say, but we do thank you people for this address of welcome. We did what we could in our ways many years ago to build for the future, and yet what little conception we had of what was coming. I remember only eighteen years ago as a member of the executive council of the state we had turned over to us by the Genral Assembly of that time fifty thousand dollars which we were instructed to spend for the building of a complete historical building and buy the grounds besides, and when we met to spend that money we said we did not know how to spend it, and so we refused to spend a dollar and waited until the next legislative assembly came and then the beautiful west wing of the present building was put up. In all cases where money has been spent in Iowa for public buildings, homes for the unfortunate, schools of every class, criticism was made at the time, but, friends, there isn't an intelligent man in Iowa today who would want one stone taken out of that building and put a poorer stone in its place or have the least part of one of those buildings taken down.

We have but little conception, friends, of what Iowa has in store for her. I go back in my early days when you could get a homestead in north-western Iowa where there was no railroad, for a very small figure. When land came to ten dollars an acre we thought it had about reached the limit, but yet, friends, in my judgment, in the next ten years you will see land go to five hundred dollars an acre, and you want to look ahead and build with that in view. Nothing is too good for Iowa, and I am glad, friends, to meet with a body of men at a time when the day of partisanship is gone. Thank God. Back in my day no measure of importance came up scarcely in regard to the common welfare of the people but that it was made a partisan measure and it was fought out on partisan lines, but today, gentlemen, when I come to look into the faces of the men of both great political parties and see you standing shoulder to shoulder, battling for the interests of common humanity, battling for the best there should be in Iowa, friends, I thank God that I have been permitted to see this day, when I can look into the faces of the men who are doing the very best they can for the good of humanity from the very lowest strata of society, for the cast out, to lift them up and give them a chance in this great magnificent state.

As we come here to spend these few moments Iowa is continually marching on; she is at the forefront; she should be at the forefront, and when men come to Des Moines from the remotest parts of the state in the next ten years they will behold the most magnificent grounds surrounding any capitol in the union, and I am glad I had a part in making it the most beautiful spot on all this continent, and you will be proud of the day and we as old members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association are perfectly willing to pay whatever taxes you think are necessary for us to pay to carry out this great program for a larger Iowa and a greater Iowa.

And again, friends, just a word more. You are on the right track. And oh! friends, when it is possible to forget that we belong to parties when we are battling for the good of humanity, "it is a wonderful thing. You could not have been made to believe that ten years or twenty years ago, but it is on hand now. You have great plans here for the future bettering of Iowa in every part of it and you are going on with them. This broad, healthy spirit has gone out from this state, reaching every other state. Men say in Maine, "I would like to come to Iowa, for there they are planning great things for the future." Down south they say, "I like to come to Iowa, as I have heard them say that their men are planning great things for the future." And so, friends, do not be afraid of the critic that will come up and assail you. I remember when we built the wall around the state house that a great howl went up because we were spending the people's money, and so it will come up on all great questions. Look at what is for the best interests of the future and you will be glad you served in the Thirty-sixth General Assembly.

SENATOR CHASE.

Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Association:

I am very glad, indeed, to assist in tendering a welcome to the Pioneer Lawmakers of Iowa. It gives me greater pleasure because I believe that I am eligible to a membership in the association. I had the honor to serve in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth General Assemblies as a member of the House. I came back after an interval of twenty years as a member of the Senate. I intended to come back sooner, but with some assistance I kept putting it off. However, when after this lapse of years I returned to the capitol, I saw some ancient landmarks. I recognized on the calendar the old repeal of the labor exemption, which was on the calendar when I was here. I remembered a few familiar faces among the doorkeepers, and occasionally I would see a lady committee clerk, which like the college widow had withstood all changes and was still smilingly on the job. But that which impressed me most was a matter which was referred to by the eloquent speaker who has just addressed you. When I became first a member of the Twenty-third General Assembly, it was the occasion of the famous deadlock. There was a tense feeling of political excitement. The republicans sat on one side and the democrats on the other, and they were equally divided. And the feeling ran so high that no pairs could be arranged, and it is a fact that members were brought in on stretchers in order to answer to roll call so that no advantage could be taken, and it was six weeks before any organization was made.

On my return I find there is practically no political alignment. There are democrats and republicans as formerly, but it is largely a descriptive term. It is put into what has been called the herd book the same as a man's religion or the place of residence, but there are today classifications running on other lines. In this legislature there has been a classification of wet and dry, and moist, which is somewhere betwixt and between, like Mohammet's coffin, which is suspended half way between heaven and earth. And in the newspapers I have seen some classified as outlaws or insurgents. I prefer the latter because it is a little milder, and I am somewhat of an insurgent myself. As I understand the term, that simply represents different stages and different degrees of intelligence.

It seems to me that sometimes we do not properly recognize the obligation that we are under to the great men who laid the foundations deep and broad for the great commonwealth of Iowa. Some distinguished man has said that the present is the lineal descent of the past, and, if there be such a thing as conscience in law making,—which I understand is a matter somewhat in doubt and dispute,—it would seem to consist in a sort of evolution. We derive our ideas from those who have gone before us; and I say this state has been peculiarly fortunate in those men who formed it in the beginning. There is one thing particularly that we can say for the state of Iowa and its early lawmakers. In the entire period of its history. there has never been a time when there was any accusation that any lawmaker in Iowa had ever violated his trust; there has never been a time when there was a taint of bribery or a suspicion of men being bought. Where there has been so much scandal in surrounding states, that is a matter of universal congratulation that from the first General Assembly down, the record has been absolutely straight and clean in that respect. I do not know but what I heard a whisper over here about the word "graft" that has been used from a high and distinguished source in the recent past, but I want to say that that does not in any way deteriorate from my remark. As I understand it, this word was used, not in a dictionary sense, but purely, gentlemen, in a Pickwickian sense. I want to repeat and emphasize and accentuate that one thought, that throughout the history of this state there has never been a member of the legislature against whom the charge has been brought of being unduly influenced.

It has been made possible for us today, owing to the foundations that were laid deep and broad by these gentlemen and those before them, to go on legislating safely upon a firm foundation and building wisely upon what they did; and, therefore, it seems to me proper and fitting that we should recognize the immense obligation that we and all who follow us must owe to you. It is with pleasure that I add my mead of praise, for I realize, and realize fully, as a sort of connecting link between these two generations what we owe to those who have gone before us who have made it possible that we shall have as a blessing in all the future generations from this experience no blood on our escutcheon, but that we shall continue to build up a greater and a better Iowa.

HON. HERBERT C. RING.

Mr. President, Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association and Members of the Joint Convention:

I am glad the president of this convention called attention to this unequal balance of power,—one plebeian and two from the other side. I noted the remark of the gentleman from the House of Lords that he had heard a strange and unfamiliar word "graft". I wish to say to him and to those whom he represents that the air in this chamber and the members are as clean and as pure and as wholesome as the breath of an early June morning and no graft abides on this side, and I listened with utter amazement, gentlemen, to his statement that in the Twenty-third General Assembly or some preceding General Assembly it was necessary to bring in some members on a stretcher. I am glad that I belong to the Thirty-sixth General Assembly and that prohibition is coming. Aren't you? And then I listened to Mr. Dobson as he pointed out the beauty of the Iowa farms, the capitol extension, of which some of you have heard, and you know truly, gentlemen, back in my home county I heard some remarks on the other side during the campaign that didn't sound a bit like his. But I am glad we did it.

Yesterday the committee from the House having this matter in charge asked me if I would speak a few words at this session on behalf of the House. I have answered that call and am glad to stand before these pioneers this morning, as well as those who are here in the Thirty-sixth General Assembly. I will confess to you that I didn't quite understand what the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association stood for and I took opportunity to investigate. Perhaps all of you were familiar with the situation, but I alone may not have been. I found that former officers of state, former members of the General Assembly, judges of the federal and state courts, members of the board of education and distinguished attorneys who began their period of service twenty years or more prior to this time are eligible to membership in that organization. And so this morning, when there seems so much that summons us to work, when every hour seems freighted with its every load of care, when there is so much pending here, like there was those twenty or more years ago, that summons us to work, it seems to me that it is altogether fitting that we should pause for this hour and in a figurative sense tender to each one of these members of the Pioneer' Lawmakers' Association an American beauty perfumed with our love and respect and esteem, and on behalf of the House of Representatives of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly, Mr. President and members, I am glad to be the bearer of that message.

Gentlemen, you belonged in a way to the nineteenth century in your activities, perhaps. We belong to the twentieth. Those closing days of the nineteenth century had problems of their own, and yet many of them were problems that were age long in their importance. Many of these problems are yet with us and will be with every assembly through all coming time. And yet, as I look back over those years and know something of the measures then pending, I cannot help but understand that each succeeding assembly has new problems that it must face.

Two years ago it was my good fortune and privilege as a member of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly to be here when our junior United States Senator, Kenyon, delivered that splendid address upon the life and the character of a former governor of this state, Mr. Larrabee, and I remember that in that address he quoted these words from Lowell: "There are men with empires in their brain." Gentlemen, I would not speak untruly, but I am of the opinion that there were men in the beginning of the history of this state, men who were pioneers, such as you men, who did have empires in their brain, and you did build wisely and well. No monuments will mark their pathway that the visible eye can see, but if you will look into the records of the different offices of government here, if you will turn to the statute books, if you will turn to the decisions of the judges of our courts, you will find there the record of the progress through the years, and I repeat again that we have men in Iowa who did have empires in their brain.

Men of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, it would be presumptuous for me to advise you, my fellow members, but I do not and will not now refrain from this statement: We ought not alone in our legislation to look today, but we ought to turn and look through the years with prophetic inspiration and say, what import will our acts have upon the twenty years that are to come? And if we shall do as well here and now as you did in the days that are gone we shall have done wisely and well. Seated by my side, listening to the addresses here, was one of the Senators of this Thirty-sixth General Assembly, and he said, "Where will we be twenty years from now?"

Members of the Pioneer Lawmakers' Association, I doubt not, in fact I know, that many of your associates have gone to plead the justice of their cause before that bar where justice is administered with a mercy that is unknown in the administration of earthly affairs, and members of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, when twenty years shall have come and gone, we shall have aged correspondingly, many of our members will have gone before that same court; and while we are busy with these affairs here that seem so large and seem so important, let us, remembering the past, not forget the finer things that, after all, go to make up life and real manhood.

Gentlemen, again on behalf of the House, permit me, as its humble representative this morning, to bear to your our tribute of love and respect and veneration.

COL. W. P. HEPBURN.

Gentlemen of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly:

It has never been my good fortune to be permitted to address either one of the houses of our legislature, although I had some connection in an official way with the sixth and seventh General Assemblies, and while I have not been permitted to address the legislature of Iowa, I have witnessed, as a boy and man, something of its transactions since the first territorial legislature met in 1841 in the then new capital of the territory. I knew Iowa when the territorial limits of Iowa included all of the present state, all of Minnesota west of the Mississippi river, and probably something more than half of the two Dakotas. In all that vast empire there were then a little more than 43,000 people—43,000 where now there are seven millions of people. My father's cabin was very near to the 91st meridian. West of that line, only a few miles from our door, you could not have found in all the United States as it then appeared upon the maps the homes of five thousand white families. From our cabin, moving westward to the border line of our state, you would have traveled without the sight of the smoke from a single chimney. It was a wilderness that God had planned to invite the coming of the men who have built the commonwealth. In those early days there were no railways, very few stagecoaches; probably not more than two lines of daily mail. Of course, the telegraph, the daily paper, the telephone and all those modern means of communication were unknown, and when the ambitious men of Iowa sought acquaintance, when they had some message to deliver to their fellow men, they came to the capital, and meetings of the legislature and meetings of the various conventions always brought throngs of men who wanted to aid. It was a custom in those days to organize the third house of the General Assembly, to which all of these members were eligible and where they discussed those grave questions so important when the foundations of a state were being laid. My stepfather was the clerk of the supreme court. He had his office in the then old capitol, and it was my fortune to see very many of these early patriots, and when old enough, to hear very many of their discussions. I remember very distinctly the discussions that occurred when men of progressive thought were striving to change the old English common law with regard to domestic relations, to give to the wife the right to own real estate without the intervention of a trustee; to give to a wife the power to own and control her own property; to take from the husband the right to own whatever of hers he reduced to possession; to give to the wife equal control and right of custody of the children. I remember the discussion when it was proposed to emancipate capital from the conditions under which it was held, when corporations were decried, and when each stockholder of a corporation was liable for all indebtedness of the corporation. I remember some of these discussions and I remember with veneration, Oh! with gratitude, those grand men who effected these changes and reduced from thralldom burdensome indeed those who suffered under the old system.

I listened to a gentleman here today thanking God for the absence of partisanism and apparently decriing parties. I sympathize with no thought like that. I look back and I find that every step of progress made in a state and nation, every law lifting humanity higher, every law bringing blessing to mankind, has been wrought out by partisans and parties. I believe that that state or nation is best governed when there are two contending parties, each with ideas and each in turn responsible for the good or bad that comes to the state. Can you think, gentlemen, of any great step, any progress of any great movement that has lifted mankind higher or has brought us civic blessings, that was not wrought out through the intervention and instrumentality of parties? There are today and always will be where there is stable government, parties political. There is not a government or a dynasty today in this universe that is not sustained by a dominating and controlling party. The Czar of Russia could not hold his throne or maintain his crown a month without behind him there was a dominating party, and so it is, and so in my judgment it always will be.

I sometimes hear gentlemen say lamentingly that the era of opportunity is past for the individual and for the legislator. Our governor, who yesterday delivered a most admirable address to the association, spoke of a past period as the heroic period, giving peculiar advantages to the men of that day because of questions of great moment presenting themselves that they were able to solve. I was not content to believe that in all respects his judgment was well founded. I believe, men of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, that before and before your successors there are as grave questions to be settled yet as were ever settled during the period when Abraham Lincoln as a blessing from God was permitted to preside over the destinies of this nation. We thought then that we had solved the one great question that stood as a menace before the prosperity of the nation. There are as grave questions for you to settle. The great labor question is before you and your successors to settle; the control of enormous capital is for you to settle; the management of the great agencies of commerce and manufacture are not settled yet. They are for you to settle. And there are innumerable questions in the present and the future to arise, giving place and scope for the genius, the learning and patriotism of the men of the day of their uprising. We often hear of the extraordinary virtues of those who preceded us. Undoubtedly they have played their part well and accomplished that that was set before them to do, but it is my earnest belief that the genius of the American people has not deteriorated, that the patriotism of this day is not excessive in comparison with the patriotism of the days past, that the ability for legislation is not buried with the days of the past, but that this generation has its full quota of genius, of patriotism, of worth, with the advantage of the larger accumulating experience that comes to you. I am not one of those who feel discouraged or lose hope in the republic. I expect from my grandchildren a great superiority over their ancestors. I expect you younger men to more than equal your fathers, and your children you will be proud of.

There is one word further that I would like to say, and that is, I want to raise my voice here on this very occasion, and I hope each one of you will do it, against those detractors, those creatures of venom, spite, hate, falsehood, who are constantly decrying men whom their neighbors selected as their public servants. Read the magazines, read a certain class of journals, and all public men, as soon as they receive expressions of confidence from their neighbors who have known them, at once become grafters and thieves. Animated only by selfish desires, intent only upon rapine and spoil. How ridiculous it seems to one who stops a moment to think. Men who occupy your positions are men who have the confidence of the men who knew them best; men who have a knowledge of your capacities; men who are willing to trust to you the highest business of government—and yet legislators are the ones who seem to be most often selected by these blighted moral monstrosities.

There is one further suggestion that I would like to make, that in our state legislature those that were selected to make our laws are under serious difficulty. You are selected in November. You receive official notice of your election in December. You are called upon to enter upon the discharge of your duties early in the following month. The great majority of you gentlemen have had no experience, either in law making or law construction. The probabilities are, that a great majority of the gentlemen do not even know the process by which a thought is crystallized into a statute. Probably not one man, not half the men that come here, know the process through which that paper we call a bill must go before it becomes a law. A great many of you are not lawyers and perhaps had not read the law closely or critically that you are expected to amend. In addition to the difficulties of that kind, you find the rules on parliamentary law, something that you probably never thought of, consisting of a comparatively few pages, twenty maybe, but if all of the constructions that had been placed upon those rules during the life of the state and the territory by the presiding officers and by the chairmen of your various committees of the whole, were included, it would make a half dozen immense volumes. About all of that the average legislator knows nothing and he has got to learn it, because his efficiency is not of the highest standard without he has a knowledge of parliamentary law and what his rights on the floor are and what his duties may be. Those are difficulties. The best thought of a civilization ought to find reflection in the laws of the land. We boast of our civilization and the best efforts of the most intellectual of our nation and state have been addressed to the advance of our civilization as it may be reflected in our laws, or to reflect in our laws our civilization. And yet I am told that the last General Assembly enacted three hundred forty-six public statutes, every one of them a criticism upon that civilization of which we boast. Every new law is a criticism upon the existing civilization. It is a suggestion that it is not perfect and we are going to make it perfect. I sometimes think that we engage in too much hasty law making and I cannot but think that you gentlemen would be able to perform your duties much more satisfactorily to yourselves if your activities began some months later in your term of office. If I had my way with my view of the matter, I would have a short session where you have your one session for the members to become acquainted, to familiarize themselves more or less with processes—in other words, to learn the hang of the schoolhouse—and then I would give an interval for the purpose of studying, learning more of the duties and more of the better methods of accomplishing them, and I would have a long session later in the term, and I believe it would effectuate an improvement in our legislation, without criticising in the slightest degree the legislation that we have had.

Gentlemen, I know that the members of our Pioneer Lawmakers Association feel very grateful to you, indeed, for the gracious manner in which you have received us, for the very kindly expression that you have made for those entitled to membership in our organization, and in expressing, as I know that I do, the very earnest gratitude of all of our members, I thank you.

Thomas of Union moved that the joint session be now dissolved. Motion prevailed and the joint session dissolved.

Senate returned to the Senate chamber and resumed its sitting.

On request of Senator Larrabee leave of absence was granted Senator Hilsinger for the day.

THIRD READING OF BILLS.

The time for consideration of special order No. 2 having arrived, on motion of Senator Allen, Senate File No. 329, a bill for an act to enjoin and abate houses of lewdness, assignation and prostitution, to declare the same to be nuisances, to enjoin the persons who conduct or maintain the same, and the owner or agent of any building used for such purposes, and to assess a tax against the person maintaining said nuisance and against the ground, the building and owner or agent thereof, was taken up and considered.

Senator Farr moved that action on this bill be deferred and that it be made a special order for Friday morning, March 19th, at 11 o'clock.

Motion lost.

Senator Allen moved that the rule be suspended, the bill be considered engrossed, and read a third time now, which motion prevailed, and the bill was read a third time.

On the question, "Shall the bill pass?"

The ayes were:

Allen, Arney, Balkema, Boe, Chase, Clarkson, Crist, Darrah, Doran, Enger, Fellows, Fleck, Foskett, Foster, Francis, Gillette, Grout, Heald, Helmer, Jackson, Jones, Larrabee, Lindly, Nye, Parker, Perkins, Ream, Robinson, Savage, Taylor, Thomas, White of Benton, Whitmore—33.

So the bill having received a constitutional majority was declared to have passed the Senate and its title was agreed to.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

I regret I cannot vote for this bill, not because I am not in harmony with the attempt to suppress lewdness and houses of ill fame; but this bill imposes a fine and tax upon persons entirely innocent and who are unfortunate enough to get tenants who commit a single act of lewdness. It is plainly unconstitutional and takes an innocent property owner's property without opportunity to be heard in court or make defense to the same and gives such property owner no defense and makes him a criminal for the wrongful act of another.

CLEM F. KIMBALL.

Senator Caswell moved that the Senate do now adjourn until 2:00 p. m. today.

Carried.

Senate adjourned.

CORRECTION OF JOURNAL.

The Journal of March 15th was taken up, corrected and approved.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE CALLED UP.

Senator Thompson called up for consideration the following report of the committee on rules:

MR. PRESIDENT—Your committee on rules in regard to the Rules of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, respectfully report that the committee recommends that the rules of the Thirty-fifth General Assembly be adopted as the rules of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly, with the following rule added thereto:

Rule 31-a. The Chairman or Clerk of a Committee to whom a bill is referred shall note thereon the date of its reference and it shall be the duty of each Committee to report back all bills in its hands, within fifteen days after the order of reference, unless a different time is granted by a vote of the Senate.

The following amendment offered by Senator Savage to the amendment offered by the committee on rules, and found on page 745 of the Senate Journal, was before the Senate for consideration:

Amend the proposed Rule 31-a by inserting after the word "committee", in line one, the words and punctuation ", except of the appropriation committee,".

Adopted.

The amendment as proposed by the committee on rules and as amended was adopted.

Senator Francis offered the following amendment to Section 2 of the rules and moved its adoption:

"All permanent committees of the Senate shall be selected by a committee of seven senators, which committee shall consist of four members of the dominant party of the Senate and three members of the minority, said membership to be selected by party caucus and when reported to the Senate, to be subject to the approval of the Senate."

Senator Chase raised the point of order that this amendment was not germane to the subject; that these rules were to govern the Senate at this session and not for another session.

President held the point was well taken in that rules adopted now would apply to this Senate only.

Senator Francis asked permission to add the following words to his amendment: "provided, however, this provision shall not apply to committees already named."

Permission was granted.

Senator Allen called attention to the constitution of the state and made the point of order that the Senate of this session could not make rules for a succeeding session of the Senate.

The President held that in his opinion the point of order was well taken, but that he did not care to rule upon the point and would leave it to the Senate.

Senator Heald moved that further action on this matter be deferred to Monday, March 22d, at 10 o'clock a. m.
