EXPLANATION OF VOTE

I have always been of the opinion that farm land should be assessed with the same consideration as commercial property. The latter is valued with consideration of depreciation and earning capacity. The selling price of land should be an indicator of its true value but the assessors should be made to be skilled and trained professional appraisers appropriately compensated by the state as a means of equalizing value concepts. I feel House File 784 leaves the farm valuation open to personal judgment of each assessor and equalization will not be obtained. I do not feel as many do that this bill will have an adverse effect on cities and towns. Equalization also, as indicated in this bill will start in 1971. Equalization figures will not be available by this time. I believe House File 784 was a better bill before the committee report and I supported it then. For these reasons, I voted "No" on the bill.

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

State Capitol
Des Moines, Iowa 50319

May 23, 1969

The Honorable Roger W. Jepsen
President of the Senate
Sixty-third General Assembly
State Capitol
Des Moines, Iowa

Honorable Members of the General Assembly:

With the first session of the Sixty-third General Assembly at the point of adjournment, I want to commend you—for myself personally and on behalf of all Iowans, whose servants you and I are—for the job you've done in faithfully discharging your responsibilities.

I look forward to the second session of this Assembly in January, 1970, for the balance of the good record this session has begun. Yours is the unique role of pioneers in charting a productive course for future annual meetings of the Iowa legislature, and I especially congratulate you on having kept the 1970 session in mind as you have ordered your priorities of business in 1969. The principal purpose and the great advantage of annual sessions are that they make it possible for you to function as a truly deliberate body, giving due and considered study to the far-reaching policies which you must determine. It is no longer necessary to transact all of the state's legislative business in a single, crowded period which becomes more and more tension-filled as the weeks advance, until—in the final stages—much is done, under great pressure, which no one recalls with great pride after the dust has settled.

While neither you nor I claim perfection for the things done or left undone in the session now closing, I am sure that most of your acts will stand the test of time—either as improvements in activities previously undertaken, or as promising new thrusts into previously untouched areas of public concern. The preponderantly constructive rhythm of this session has substantiated my own vigorous support of the constitutional amendment establishing annual legislative meetings, just as your record here has validated the wisdom of Iowa's citizenry in adopting that amendment. Added experience with this new schedule will increase our skill in utilizing its full potential. Meanwhile, I trust that you will continue the encouraging progress already made toward equipping the General Assembly—as an ongoing part of Iowa government—with the professional study and research tools which are required for successful fulfillment of the legislative responsibility in today's society.

It is particularly essential that law-making bodies perform at the highest level of human possibility in an age when the general body of citizens are, as never before, claiming their share of participation in governmental decision-making. Like you, I welcome this growing sense of public identification with political activity. It provides assurance that the roots of representative democracy are stronger and healthier than cynics had supposed them to be. At the same time, we who are public officials must accustom ourselves to doing our jobs under much sharper scrutiny from a much more concerned constituency which crowds about us more closely than has ever been the case in the past—or, at least, since the era of the New England town meeting and the much more ancient assembly of Athenian citizens. We must not only measure up in fact to the high quality of performance which the people rightly expect from us, but we must communicate to the public the actuality of our commitment to the common welfare. It is overwhelmingly necessary that we do this, to turn back the danger that significant elements of the young, the elderly, the poor and the non-white will be alienated from the mainstream of American life, to the great detriment of us all. That is why I hope that my oft-repeated request for fixing the minimum voting age at nineteen years will receive your prompt and affirmative attention in the 1970 session.

For surely it is the goal of us all to make participation by Iowa people in their government as broad-based and widespread as we can make it. Such has been the goal of our tradition from the beginning. Politics presupposes the existence of certain interest and values which are held in common; the purpose of politics is to give substance to the moral principles which a society shares. Like Plato and Aristotle, we are convinced that politics is the application of ethical principles to social problems. Politics is purposeful; it aims at the reconciliation of conflicting interests; and it depends on the existence of certain principles in terms of which that reconciliation may take place. Politics tries to answer, in practical terms, the questions: What is in the best interest of human beings? What is good for men?

That is the framework of concern within which you have conducted the affairs of this session. It is the framework of concern within which I try to discharge my responsibilities as Governor. Let us now look for a moment at the record of the past four and one-half months, to see how it fits the framework by which we—and the people—measure our achievements.

First, I want to thank you for following many of my recommendations, not only on a number of specific legislative actions I requested, but also in carrying out the difficult task of providing a balanced budget. Even though the process of keeping appropriations within estimated income is one which lacks glamour and is frequently unpopular, I believe sound fiscal policies are a necessary requirement of good government.

In education, although I will not repeat them all, two particularly outstanding accomplishments of this session deserve special mention. First, you passed a bill permitting long-range financing of capital improvements at our three state universities, a measure considered vital to those schools in planning to meet the educational needs of the future. Start and stop construction, based upon whether or not the state has a surplus of funds in a particular year, has been effectively eliminated, to the great advantage of both the universities and the taxpayers.

Second, you passed the tuition grant program for needy students planning to attend our private colleges, thus helping to alleviate the enrollment demands at our public institutions, providing a way in which we can utilize all the educational facilities in our state to their fullest, and insuring the continuation of the pluralistic system of education so vital to our democracy.

But equally important, you looked at the broad spectrum of education in Iowa, and increased total appropriations in this vital area by 16½ percent. Education now receives more than 55 percent of the expenditures of the State Government. You passed legislation increasing the state scholarship fund for needy students to $525,000 a year, and approved another bill allowing students at our area community colleges and vocational technical schools to participate in the program; you made it mandatory that schools offer special education programs for the physically and mentally handicapped; you increased the budgets of our state universities by more than 12 percent for the biennium, and provided for a 60 percent increase in state aid to our area colleges. Dramatic increases in state aid flowing to our public schools were also effected.

Under the broad category of social services and health, you passed the Youth Forest Camp bill, which will allow Iowa to pursue a new pastoral approach in the rehabilitation of our youth who go astray and enacted legislation allowing Iowa's participation in the Work Incentive Program, designed to help train ADC recipients to become wage earners. You appropriated an additional $500,000 a year for the Commission on Alcoholism so that treatment of this devastating disease among Iowans can be expanded and coordinated. You appropriated $100,000 a year for youth development projects, which will attract three-for-one matching federal money to aid us in establishing jobs for young people in Iowa. With your help, we were able to make budget adjustments allowing the appropriation of an additional $2 million to cover the inherited deficit of Medicaid.

You deserve special commendation for the migrant worker law, which guarantees proper health, safety and housing standards for those workers and their families in Iowa. This law is particularly representative of the constructive give-and-take relationship through which dedicated legislators can resolve differences and put aside provincial considerations to achieve necessary ends for the ultimate benefit of the human spirit and man's dignity. I repeat that you are to be particularly commended for this action.

But perhaps the most difficult task before you this session was legislative reapportionment. No other action required such deep personal involvement, nor did any other legislation pose such a threat of complete disruption to the legislative process. Yet you met the challenge calmly and carried out this major accomplishment.

I am particularly pleased with the legislation enacted to help our cities and towns, legislation which will be of lasting benefit to our populated areas where it continues to be necessary to absorb rapidly rising costs for an increasing number of programs. At the same time, you brought the license fees on trucks, which had not been increased in 20 years, more in line with those on private motor vehicles. I favored, and was pleased that we were able, to make a necessary change in the formula for road use tax funds, to funnel more dollars to our cities and towns for roads and streets, and at the same time increase aid to our rural roads. Also, with your help in budget adjustments, we were able to appropriate an additional $2 million on top of this for our municipalities. Also, important legislation for urban renewal was enacted, aimed at making the mechanics and the financial aspects of projects more workable, and you created an office of Urban Affairs.

In the area of economic development in our state, you revised and improved the banking laws, and most importantly, you passed much of the major legislation I requested concerning the revitalization of the Iowa Development Commission. I believe we can look forward to a dramatic expansion of our Iowa economy in the next few years because of this action.

Also of import was your passage of the Regional Airport bill permitting comprehensive state-wide study of our needs in this area, which ultimately will permit us to compete successfully with other states in the supersonic age of transportation.

In law enforcement and public safety, you strengthened the law against drunk drivers, and you made parents responsible for the vandalism of their children under 18 years of age. You removed restrictions on the hiring of police chiefs and officers, and you made important progress toward the passage of an act to modernize our court system and to increase penalties for sex offenders. These are two very important legislative matters that should be passed at your next session.

I would like to mention, in this connection, that Iowa is making significant strides in the battle against crime and juvenile delinquency with funds granted us under the Omnibus Crime Bill. We have established a Crime Commission; we are instituting a thorough analysis of crime in Iowa; and we have dispatched funds to local communities to begin planning and, eventually, institute action programs to meet particular problems facing their respective communities. We plan a state crime laboratory at the University of Iowa, which will greatly aid law enforcement officials with technical and scientific research and analysis required for modern crime fighting programs.

Another significant tax reform measure, in addition to the truck bill, was the repeal of the "sales tax refund" giveaway, which, although originally designed to give aid to the poor, resulted in benefiting many who were far outside this category. This action freed $13 million a year for education and other social service programs designed specifically to meet the needs of less fortunate Iowans.

While I favored a simplified income tax form, which would have given additional relief to the poor of our state, I was pleased you passed legislation which will guarantee that those Iowans who truly need our help, those whose incomes are less than $3,000 a year, will not be required to pay any state income tax. This is a significant reform.

In the area of Human Rights, you repealed the $500 bond requirement for anyone who wishes to file a complaint on a violation of their fair housing rights, and you generally strengthened the fair housing law.

Quite obviously, I have delineated only a few of the more than 300 final legislative steps you have chosen to take during the first session of the Sixty-third General Assembly. All of your accomplishments are now a matter of record, and certainly require no special reiteration by me to attain the high stature they deserve in our state's history.

Finally, I want to make public acknowledgment of the personal sacrifice which every one of you has assumed by reason of serving in the Iowa General Assembly. My close association with you in our joint enterprise has forcefully reminded me of the many private burdens which legislative duty imposes: physical burdens of unbelievably long hours—not only on the floor, but also in committee sessions, in conferences, in study and in communication with the people back home; financial burdens of living away from home, and, in many cases, suffering reduction of income; and, not least of all, emotional burdens of protracted separations from your families. It is only right that our fellow citizens throughout the state should also know of the price which legislative service exacts from those who enter it.

I also acknowledge, with gratitude, the many personal courtesies which have been accorded me by members on both sides of the aisle, and the considerate understanding which you have shown of my problems as Governor.

In the Inaugural Message which I delivered to you at the outset of my administration on January 16 of this year, I said that your goals as legislators and mine as Governor "are identical, our cause is common, and the course we follow must lead to a greater Iowa. Together"—I then concluded—"we shall respond to the challenge of today and the promise of tomorrow."

Together, since January 16, we have lived up to the expectations of those inaugural remarks. I look forward to working with your interim committees throughout the rest of this year and to welcoming all of you back for the 1970 session next January, when we shall resume the never finished business of meeting today's challenge and achieving tomorrow's promise.

Sincerely,
ROBERT D. RAY
Governor

The report was received and the committee discharged.

President Jepsen closed the session with the following remarks:

My remarks will be brief. I wish to thank and commend each and every Senator for his hard work during this session. Your diligence and concern in working on the problems of Iowa was a credit to yourselves and the people you represent.

As we leave the rigorous world of decision and enter the exhilarating world of opinion, I wish for you and your loved ones Godspeed in all of your private endeavors.

I also wish to commend the Secretary of the Senate, Carroll Lane, and the entire Senate staff. Their work was superb and I predict will be recorded as the finest in the history of the Iowa legislature.

GOVERNOR'S ITEM VETO MESSAGE

Honorable Melvin D. Synhorst
Secretary of State
State Capitol
Local

Dear Mr. Synhorst:

I hereby transmit House File 823, an act to appropriate from the primary road fund to the State Highway Commission.

House File 823 was approved June 20, 1969, with the following exception:

I am unable to approve Item 5 designated as "Sec. 5" in the act which reads as follows:

"Sec. 5. The permanent resident engineers' offices presently established by the state highway commission shall not be moved from their locations, however, the commission may establish not more than two temporary resident engineers' offices within the state as needed."

I hereby disapprove this item as provided for in the Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Iowa adopted in 1968.

My action is based on the following:

The function of the Highway Commission is to construct and maintain roads and highways in the State of Iowa in the most efficient and effective manner possible.

Restricting the location or relocation of resident engineers' offices will inhibit the Commission's efforts to operate at maximum efficiency.

Mr. Joseph R. Coupal, Director of Highways, estimates that this restriction could cost the State of Iowa an estimated $100,000 during the next biennium.

Sincerely
ROBERT D. RAY
Governor
