

WORRIED ABOUT PAYING OFF STUDENT LOAN DEBT?

Depending on your job, help might be available.

The state of Iowa offers programs to help healthcare professionals, veterinarians, and teachers pay off some or all of their student loans. Federal programs can also help health care professionals, teachers, and public servants.

All of these programs are intended to recruit college graduates into high-need positions. Awards might be based on your job alone, or on your job plus your geographic area—usually rural.

Only federal loans qualify for these forgiveness and repayment programs, although you might be able to refinance after you receive forgiveness without losing your eligibility.

Forgiveness Programs PAY OFF LOANS

FAQs

Is forgiveness guaranteed? No. Some programs are highly competitive—as few as 1 in 10 applicants might be selected. Meeting the basic eligibility requirements does not guarantee that you will receive an award.

Do the requirements change? Yes. Jobs defined as high-need change regularly. Do not choose a major based on loan forgiveness that might—or might not—be available when you graduate.

Are these programs taxable? Depending on how money is disbursed, some loan forgiveness benefits might be taxable. Ask a tax adviser about your situation.
