Access to Opportunities

Everyday in Iowa workers are going to jobs, children are going to school, elderly are accessing community resources, and all are relying on the public transportation system to get to their destinations. Public transportation provides a valuable service, allowing all Iowans the opportunity to contribute to their community. Last year Iowa's public transportation system provided Iowans with over 23 million rides. Iowa is served by 35 public transit agencies. There are 19 urban transit systems, each providing transit services in one or more communities of more than 20,000 in population. There are also 16 multi-county regional transit systems that provide transit services in all areas of the state.

There are as many reasons to use public transportation as there are people who use it. In FY 2005, Iowa public transportation provided more than 23 million rides!

What's your reason?

"Having a 'chauffeur' is great. I can read the paper or take a nap while I ride the bus to work!"

"Riding the bus helped me graduate. I had time to finish my homework before class, and it was cheaper than paying for gas for my car!"

"Our family loves to take the bus to special events. We can spend more quality time together and don't have to worry about parking!"
