ANALYSIS OF REPORTING FORMS

The National Defense Education Act has provided funds for the improvement of the Statistical Services of the State Department of Public Instruction under Title X. As the first step in this plan for improvement, a complete analysis is being made of the forms used by school and county superintendents in reporting to the State Department of Public Instruction. Some of the old forms will be revised and new forms prepared to provide necessary information not now being gathered, to provide uniformity of data and terminology to conform to the Common Core of Educational Information Handbook I, and to avoid duplication of reporting.

In order to analyze these forms, the group working under Title X requested from the department heads a copy of each report which they require the school and county superintendents to submit to this office. These reports were analyzed as follows:

- (1) Reports within a division were numbered in logical sequence.
- (2) Every item of information was assigned a number starting with "1" in a division and running consecutively through all the items requested for that division on all reports.

- (3) A brief description of the information requested in each item was recorded.
- (4) In conference with a representative of each division the following data were determined:
 - a. The date this item of information was available to the reporting agency.
 - b. The date the information was to be submitted to the State Department of Public Instruction (See Code Number 1).
 - c. Whether or not the item was duplicated in another report in the department.
 - d. The use made in the department of this information (Coded according to Code Number 2 below).
 - e. Whether or not the item was already on IBM cards (1 if "Yes", and blank if "No").
 - f. Whether or not the item was needed as is reported, needed revision, or was not needed at all (See Code Number 3 below).
- (5) Next the items were checked against the information listed in Common Core of State Educational Information, Handbook I, 1953, Number 8, reprinted in 1958 by the United States Office of Education. A listing was made after each item description showing which code in the common core was satisfied by that item. The extent to which it satisfied the common core code was also coded (according to Code Number 4 below). At the same time a notation was made in the Common Core Handbook by each classification, telling what report number and item would answer this common core number.

After all this information was secured on every item on every report in a division, it was punched on IBM cards. The attached report was printed from these cards, using the IBM accounting machine to print directly on stencils for the duplicating machine. An explanation of the meaning of each column of this printed report is given at the top of the first page of each division.

You will notice that a "Super-Master" was made for the division, a master card for each report showing only the title and date due, and then one card for each item on the report.

In the event that the card was used for more than one purpose or served to fulfill more than one type of common core information, the other pertinent information was repeated on the card and only those items changed which were different. For example, the first item was used for purposes 18 and 16. Therefore, two cards were made, the first listing Use 18, and the second, Use 16--all other information the same.

As soon as all the reports have been put on IBM cards item by item, these cards will be used:

- (1) To find duplications of reporting items of information within a department.
- (2) To find suplications between the departments.
- (3) To pull those items no longer needed.
- (4) To revise those items now out of date.
- (5) To add new items not now included in any reports, but needed for detailed statistical analysis.

A committee representing all divisions within the department, together with the representatives from the schools' and county superintendents' offices, will use the results to revamp and simplify the entire system of reporting to the State Department of Public Instruction.
