THE EISENHOWER TROPHY

The Chief, National Guard Bureau, with the consent of General of the Army, Dwight D. Eisenhower, has established an award to be known as the "EISENHOWER TROPHY", which is to be presented after the end of each calendar year to the most outstanding company-size unit of the National Guard in each State.

The trophy, in the form of a large cup, will be engraved with the name of the winning unit and will remain in the custody of the unit during the current year. Thereafter it will be replaced with a smaller replica to remain the permanent possession of the unit.

The 34th Infantry Division Band, Fairfield, Iowa was the first unit to receive this award and the Trophy was presented on 8 December 1949.

FIELD TRAINING—ARMY NATIONAL GUARD 1948

Under the provisions of Training Authority 13A, National Guard Bureau, dated 2 August 1948, the following units, Iowa National Guard, under the Command of Major General Ray C. Fountain, attended Field Training at Fort Riley, Kansas during the period 8 to 22 August 1948.

The approval of Fort Riley as the training site for 1948 Field Training provided the first post war opportunity for the 34th Infantry Division to participate as a unit in Field Maneuvers. Training was excellent, morale was very good and it is believed that the entire 34th Division gained much needed training as a result of the facilities made available by the Regular Army Authorities.

FIELD TRAINING—AIR NATIONAL GUARD 1948

Under the provisions of Training Authority 13-1-Air, National Guard Bureau, dated 19 August 1948, the Iowa Air National Guard under the Command of Colonel Ellis E. Eno attended Field Training during the period 14-28 August 1948.

Due to the lack of facilities the Iowa Air Guard participated in training at home stations as shown:

Municipal Airport, Des Moines

Hq 132d Fighter Group
124th Fighter Sq (SE)
124th Weather Sq (Type A)
Det A, 232d Air Svc Group
Utility Flight, 124th Ftr Sq

Sioux City Air Base, Sioux City

174th Fighter Sq (SE)
174th Weather Sq (Type A)
Det B, 232d Air Svc Group
Utility Flight, 174th Ftr Sq

Lack of a regular Air Force operational Base was a serious handicap to the Group training of the Air units. However, it is anticipated within another year a regular Air Force Base will be made available for the Field Training of the Air Guard Units.

Morale of the organization was excellent and every effort was made by all personnel to take full advantage of the limited training facilities available.

FIELD TRAINING—ARMY NATIONAL GUARD 1949

Under the provisions of Training Authority No. 13, National Guard Bureau, dated 26 July 1951, the following units, Iowa National Guard under the Command of Major General Ray C. Fountain, attended Field Training at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, during the period 7-21 August 1949.

Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri proved to be nearly ideal as a training ground for the 34th Infantry Division, geographically well located to both Iowa and Nebraska. Training facilities were very good and housing accommodations well located and in fair condition.

Training showed much improvement over 1948 and percentage of attendance was much higher (85%). It is hoped that Fort Leonard

Wood will again be available as a training site and that the Iowa National Guard can again show a decided improvement over previous years.

FIELD TRAINING—IOWA AIR NATIONAL GUARD 1949

Under the provisions of Training Authority 13-1-Air-50, National Guard Bureau, dated 2 August 1949, the following units, Iowa Air National Guard attended Field Training at Camp Williams, Camp Douglas, Wisconsin during the period 14-28 August 1949.

132d Fighter Group
124th Fighter Sq (SE)
124th Utility Flight
Hq Det, 232d Air Svc Gp
Det A, 232d Air Svc Gp
174th Fighter Sq (SE)
174th Utility Flight

Det B, 232d Air Svc Group
124th Weather Sta (Type A)
174th Weather Sta (Type A)

With the selection of Camp Williams, Camp Douglas, Wisconsin as the Field Training site for 1949, the Air units had the first opportunity to operate properly as a complete tactical organization, every effort was made by all personnel to take advantage of this situation and a highly successful Field Training period was the result.

Pilot training advanced rapidly and at the close of Training favorable comment was received from the Air Force inspection teams.

133D AIRCRAFT CONTROL AND WARNING SQUADRON

The 133d AC&W Squadron which was organized too late during 1948 (1 June 1949) to participate in Field Training during that year, was ordered to attend Field Training at Camp Dodge, Iowa during the period 14-28 August 1949.

Although this was the first Field Training for this unit reports indicate that the unit, under the Command of Major John F. Monaghan, very capably handled their assigned training problems and the personnel gained valuable experience in operating radar equipment under tactical conditions.

Units of the Iowa National Guard from Sioux City were immediately called to assist in rescue operations and to aid in protection of the property. Credit to individual members of the Iowa National Guard and the moral obligations felt by members of the Guard are reflected by the fact that large numbers volunteered services and reported for duty before any call was forwarded to the units.
